

You And Your Congress

Four points stand out in connection with the tax situation, which held the spotlight in Congress during the past week.

1. There are only two alternatives to raising taxes—borrowing to meet current expenses (known in economic circles as deficit spending) or reducing expenditures.

2. The best estimates of federal income from taxes and of federal spending show that the national government will be in the red when its current fiscal year ends next June 30.

3. There is a point beyond which taxes cannot be increased further without: (1) resulting in diminishing returns, (2) bringing rebellion by taxpayers, (3) weakening the economy—or all three.

4. Congress, which alone can increase federal taxes under the Constitution, now has direct control over only about one-third of the money which the national government is spending.

Those comprise the four-point dilemma that faces and will continue to face Congress until some forthright, realistic decisions are made.

Present evidence indicates that the problem eventually may boil down to a choice between reduction of expenditures or more deficit financing. However, that is not to say there will be no further calls for more tax increases.

The ingredients of the situation include the following:

The close of the federal fiscal year will see a cash deficit of at least $1 billion, according to Budget Bureau estimates, but federal spending is scheduled to rise from the $70 billion of this fiscal year to between $80 billion and $90 billion in the next.

So the government presumably will have to tax more or borrow more or spend less.

The political odds are definitely against the enactment of any large additional tax increase in election year 1952—and yet a sizable increase would be required to offset the deficit which is indicated.

Meanwhile, Sen. George (D-Ga.) and Rep. Doughton (D-N.C.), chairmen of the Senate and House taxation committees, respectively, have said they are against further tax increases unless all-out war should develop and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Senate Republican policy leader, takes the same stand. Their underlying argument is that the point beyond which taxes should not be increased in a peacetime economy is close at hand if not already here.

They and other Congressional leaders also are aware that Congress' grip on expenditures is weakening. One reason is the spending commitments which Congress authorized in the past and now must appropriate to meet. Another is the vast amount of spending taken for granted as a matter of military urgency.

More government borrowing would be only a temporary answer to the problem and would be inflationary.

The government borrows by selling bonds, which frequently are used by banks and other purchasers as the basis for making more loans. Thus new credit is created to bid against supplies of goods that are decreasing because of diversion of production to military items.

That leaves reduction of federal expenditures to be considered.

The evidence now at hand indicates that in order to cut spending Congress will have to review appropriations requests more closely, rescind some spending commitments it made in the past and, particularly, look carefully at military expenditures.

Significantly, the Senate Appropriations Committee, whose Sub-committee on Military Expenditures has had a one-man staff to review a $60 billion budget request, has been given money to increase that staff.

National Tax Plan Should Be Evaluated

It may be necessary for Texas and other American states and municipalities generally to seek new sources of taxation for their support, Gov. Allan Shivers told the Texas League of Municipalities convention at Mineral Wells recently.

He calls attention to a much-needed reform in our entire field of governmental taxation. There should be a careful study of all available tax sources and an allocation by mutual agreement as among federal, state and local governments.

At one time the Federal Government's tax revenues were considerably less than the total of state and local revenues. They rose gradually and, in 1935, the federal revenues equaled those of the states and local civic subdivisions. On the basis of present appropriations and expenditures, the Federal Government is more than two-to-one ahead of state and local governments.

Beginning with the income tax amendment, the Federal Government has laid its hands on one and then another tax resource. This grabbing has been justified in part because of the several national emergencies that have required the upbuilding of strong military defenses. However, the increase of federal taxation for the purpose of making grants in aid back to state and local governments has had the vicious tendency to clamp federal power over lower levels of government. The old saying that "the power to tax is the power to destroy" was meant to apply to individual liberties. It applies as well to subordinate governments.

Such organizations as the League of Texas Municipalities and the Governors Conference should cooperate to map a program of fair separation of tax resources. In fact, a strat in this direction has already been made. It should be pushed. And it should be aimed at, not merely discovering new fields of taxation, but eliminating unjust overlapping and duplication that has already occurred in the competition for tax resources.

Teen Talk

BY VIVIAN BROWN

There is nothing more disconcerting to a young beau or belle than to own a lovely evening dress and tuxedo which seldom is worn. Sometimes it has been worn just once at a big frolic, other times—and particularly in the case of the tuxedo—it has been a present from a definite uncle or aunt or mother or dad, and has never been worn.

What can you wear dress-up clothes more often? Ingenious gals could get together and cook up some of means that would require formal togs. For one thing a young man in a tuxedo is a lot more fun on a party and is not likely to act younger than his age, as is usually the case with boys in their teens, if he is all dressed up.

One idea to get some wear out of those pretty duds is the Prom House Party or a Sweet-Sixteen get-together.

Little dance cards could be given to the girls just as at a regular Prom. Since each man would then be tied down to dancing each dance or sitting it out with a gal—there would be no bashful boys or wallflowers on this shindig. He's got to get up on his feet or else!

A buffet supper with party variety foods can be made hours in advance by the hostess, so that even she can have a good time. Tomato juice, apricot nectar or a cold soup such as mock vichyssoise can be served first. Then small sandwiches—chicken salad, cheese, watercress and cucumber—could be daintily arranged on a tray, garnished with parsley for extra-special table glamor. Trim the crusts off the bread for this occasion. A ham salad is inexpensive and served with au-gratin potatoes (which can be made in advance and popped in the oven at the last minute) is delicious. Add to this a tomato aspic (recipe to be found in any cook book), especially decorative if it is made in a fish or animal mold.

For dessert—a fruit salad is easy to do and if enough fresh fruits can't be obtained, canned fruits can be added. If bananas are used, however, don't mix them until just before serving.

An interesting punch can be made by making a strong solution of 2 measuring cups of tea, sweetening it with one-half cup of sugar, or use one of the new non-caloric sweeteners now on the market, one-third cup of orange juice, one-third cup of lemon juice. Mix all together and put it in a punch bowl. Add sparkling water and ice cubes. Be sure to make the tea strong as the ice cubes will melt, weakening it as the evening goes on.

The ice cubes can be made very interesting. Try coloring the water in the tray so that you will have colorful ice cubes, particularly lovely when used in clear glasses. Another fun-idea is to put a sprig of mint in the ice cube compartment before freezing the tray. A cherry can be put in the water to freeze within the clear ice cube.

If your group of boys do not have tuxedos, the girls still can dress up providing the boys can be persuaded to wear a dark blue or other dark suit. The trick is to get the boys into something other than cas-

Adequate Plant Food Must Be In Soil To Produce High Yield Of Corn

Fertilizer frequently is the difference in making or not making a corn crop in East Texas, emphasizes E. A. Miller, agronomist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service.

Miller points out, "On a lot of this sandy land, corn will make 50 to 60 bushels per acre when properly fertilized. But if fertilizer is not applied, it may produce practically nothing. If adequate plant food is not in the soil, corn cannot be expected to produce high yields."

A demonstration conducted this year by Gary Nixon, Lamar county 4-H club boy, illustrate the value of fertilizing corn in that area of Texas.

According to Assistant County Agent Gerald Sauls, Gary produced an average of 48.5 bushels of corn per acre on a four and one-third acre field by making full use of fertilizer. He obtained only seven and one half bushels per acre from a two-thirds of an acre unfertilized check plot. Sauls estimates that the fertilized corn would have produced 80 bushel per acre if it had received adequate rainfall.

Gary applied slightly over 200 pounds of 10-20-10 and 400 pounds on their passes. An electric "code verifier" flashes like a metal detector in a prison when each of the workers check in or out. Armed guards will stop you, if you walk 10 feet inside the area without an escort.

A carefully screened, select group of officers and civilians works at the center. Engineers, photo interpreters, metallurgists, scientists and specially trained evaluation experts of all kinds are putting the enemy under the microscope 24 hours a day, studying North Korean Communist equipment as well as Russian equipment.

What these technicians do, the technique they employ and how much they learn is a secret locked behind the laboratory fences. But their prime job is to get every bit of technical information about the enemy, evaluate it and make the information available to our fliers in combat.

More than 100 tons of captured North Korean, Chinese Red and Russian equipment have been shipped thousands of miles from the fighting zone to the Ohio intelligence center. Some was flown here. More came by ship.

One big item is a MIG-15 jet fighter taken by an air intelligence team shortly after it was shot down in Korea.

"It was fairly intact," an officer said, "but there wasn't enough to warrant reconstructing it and flying the machine."

The officer explained, however, the Air Force could build a MIG-15 and fly it, if it wanted to. There's another MIG-15 at the base these days. But it's a pile of junk now. A mass of turbine engine cowlings, wires, seats, tailpipe from a jet engine, rudder fin and elevators stacked in a storeroom. It was more complete when they got it, but they took it apart and studied it, piece by piece.

Col. Harold E. Watson, pointed to the pile of junk:

"Sure, we learned a lot of things about it. But, we're only telling our own interested agencies. That's what makes our work so tough. It isn't that we're afraid to tell the Russians about the MIG. They know all about it. But they don't know how much we know."

The warehouse looks like a Russian junkpile, with here and there supplies of intact equipment. There are racks of clothing worn by North Korean Navy, Air and Army officers.

There are oxygen masks, gloves,

Several From Area Attend District Meeting Of C. R. O. P. At Lubbock

Those from this area who attended a district luncheon meeting of Christian Rural Overseas Program held at Lubbock Hotel last Friday, October 19th, included Rev. C. Schulte and Rev. H. Heckman, district supervisors; William Matthieson, County C.R.O.P. chairman for Bailey county and H. E. Gohlke, member of C.R.O.P. Committee of Emmanuel Lutheran church.

Walter Parr, regional supervisor for the State of Texas presided over the meeting, and made a most stirring talk on "Why we're doing what we're doing." He stated that C.R.O.P. is Christianity in Action, and added that the reason for flying jackets, boots, helmets, new engines of a reciprocating type used by Russians in transport planes.

In warehouse cubby-holes, is a partly intact Russian IL-11 two-seater trainer. The wing is in good condition. The fuselage, however, is partly shot up.

World War II was the fact that the churches were indifferent to world affairs as they were at the close of World War I.

The speaker introduced Gus Birdwell of Perryton, stating that he had given a carload of wheat every year since 1947 to C.R.O.P. Mr. Birdwell said that he didn't regret what he had done—his only regret was that he didn't give more while he had a chance. He said, "maybe I fed some undeserving folks, but I'd rather feed 1000 undeserving than overlook one hungry child who is innocent. That's my duty to God."

Mr. Pharr stated that Governor Shivers of Texas as well as State Church Leaders like J. Howard Williams of the Baptist General Convention of Texas cooperate in loading the Friendship Food and Fiber ship at Houston on November 30.

Rev. Carl Schulte stated Tuesday that the Lamb County Committee is still in process of organizing.

1951 may long be remembered as a pretty tough year because of moisture conditions in the state. It wasn't a good year for high production on most crops but H. C. Robinson of Rains county average 120 bushels of corn per acre on his eight acres and his contest acre produced 142.6 bushels.

All Babies Are Different

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

How baby develops and learns will depend on baby.

Just as no two babies look exactly alike, so each one is different in disposition, in activity, and in the ways he responds to people and things. And, points out "Infant Care," the latest edition of that now famous publication of the Children's Bureau (Children's Bureau Publication No. 8, 1951) which you can obtain from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. (20c):

"If you notice the ways in which he is different from other babies, you will have more fun out of watching him grow than if you are expecting him to smile, and to coo, and to double his weight at the same age that another baby you know has done these things."

But it is even more exciting to watch him develop. To "grow" and to "develop" do not mean exactly the same thing.

A baby grows in size, in height and weight. At the same time he's making progress in what he does with his mind and body, like trying to get hold of a toy, and holding up his head. He gains in understanding and in being able to use his eyes, and ears, and fingers.

Parents can help this development along, says the Children's Bureau . . . "Part of a baby's development depends on things outside himself; so a baby left to lie in his bed all the time with little attention doesn't develop fast. He isn't alert because he has so little to stir him or rouse him."

Another part of his development comes from within, says the Bureau . . . "babies are born with a strong impulse to do, to use their senses, to try out their powers. Parents cannot 'make' a child develop any faster than he will naturally. But they can give him surroundings and care that allow him great freedom for using his abilities."

The way your baby grows is a continued story. Only he can tell you what is going to come next. You have to wait until he is ready with the next chapter. You can't write it ahead of time or guess it from what other babies do. About the only thing you can be sure of is that the unfolding of your baby's powers will follow the same general pattern as that of all human beings. So, instead of looking for a time when certain things will appear, look for the order in which to expect them.

First, he'll learn how to lift his chin and how to smile; then he'll lift his chest and begin to make sounds; learn to turn his head in the direction from which he hears voices and hold up his head when you pull him up by the hands to a sitting position.

Then he'll learn to reach for and grasp an object and laugh out loud, as well as rolling over all the way from back to stomach.

Sitting up is the next big achievement, then crawling and using his hands more expertly. Pulling himself up to a standing position, walking with help and then standing alone and walking alone follow.

Saying a word or two may come before or after walking and marks the development of thought, the Bureau says.

Greatest Problem Of Ushers Is To Get Women To Sit In Front Seats At Church

WACO (AP)—Fifty years ago W. H. Jenkins, Jr., a tall handsome youth of 21 years, showed up 45 minutes early at Waco's First Baptist church. It was his first day as head usher.

Now graying and 71, Jenkins is turning the responsibility over to one of a corps of 30 young men who have been installed as ushers.

Jenkins had some advice for his successor, Tom Joseph, Jr. An usher's greatest problem, said Jenkins, is to persuade people to sit in the front row seats.

"Sometimes you can get the women up front with a couple of comments," Jenkins added. "I used to greet them with, 'Let's put these good-looking people up at the front of the church to inspire the preacher.' It nearly always worked."

Stepping down as head usher means Jenkins must give up the seat unofficially reserved for him these many years. It is the seat first to the right as one enters.

Jenkins still will be an official greeter. He is deacon and associate superintendent of Sunday school. But he no longer is an usher during regular church services.

The smiling Jenkins told his successors of one problem he encountered a half century ago.

The people apparently did not like the implication that they could not find a seat without help. Very vacancies, existing of the executive board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, in the closing sessions at Houston, last Thursday.

Others named to the board were Howard J. Jones, Wellington, B. J. Martin, Childress; H. M. Osborne, Plainview; and Cecil Ray, of Lubbock.

A delegation of local Baptist church members headed by Rev. Lee Hemphill, attended the sessions.

Sheppard Diesel Tractors And Implements To Open November

BUSINESS BEING ESTABLISHED BY TOMMY MCKINNON

Located In New Garlington Bldg On Highway 84

A new business, the Sheppard Diesel Tractors and Implements, Sales and Service, will be opened in Littlefield Thursday next, November 1, by Tommy McKinnon, Jr. in the new Garlington building, next to the Shamrock Service Station operated by Richey and Son, on Highway 84, west of town.

Mr. McKinnon has been appointed dealer for the Sheppard Diesel Tractors and Implements, and will handle the sales, and carry in stock Sheppard Diesel Tractors and Implements.

"Blackie" Repass, who operated Blackie's Garage, and is carrying on business in the same building, will service the Sheppard Diesel tractors and implements.

Mr. McKinnon has lived near Littlefield since 1929, when he and his family moved there from Springtown, Texas. He has been a farmer all his life, with the exception of three years spent in the service. He served in the ground crew of the Air Force, and was released January 21, 1946.

Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon have a son, Tommy Quinn, aged 10 months.

The tractors and implements are manufactured at Hanover, Pa. by an old established diesel engine manufacturing company.

Mr. McKinnon extends an invitation to the farmers of this area to visit him for their farm needs.

Home Spending Should Be Planned

Often household members managing the family income estimate that they have put aside enough cash to take care of living expenses for the month, only to discover a week or so before the first that the funds are all used up. Much of this worry can be avoided, says Gladys Darden, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, if the family will develop a plan for spending.

That plans or budget might serve as a guide for what the family plans to do during the year and each member could have a part in the planning. Miss Darden says that first, the family as a group should decide what it will need, what it wants most, and what its goal for the year are to be. If a record of expenses is kept, the specialist believes, improvements in spending can be visualized and each member will understand better what the financial problems are.

Princess Elizabeth Declines Role As Fashion Mannequin

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

En route with the royal tour—Princess Elizabeth has made it clear she's no dressmaker's dummy.

After a confused start, with as many different reports on color and costume as there were reporters on the Royal Train, a formal request was made that official communications on the royal wardrobe be made daily.

An arrangement of sorts resulted, but word leaked back that the Princess had remarked with considerable starch:

"I am not here for a fashion show."

Thereafter, however, someone—and it sounded as if it were a man—composed austere little bulletins which went something like this:

"Olive green crepe tucked dress. Short sleeves and soft belt."

On that occasion, we wondered about the color of English olives. The dress and coat were moss green. On another occasion we were duly notified that she was wearing a "brown dress and overcoat" — considerable understatement.

The truth is that Elizabeth, Duchess of Edinburgh, is as conservative a dresser as her royal mother. And she isn't exactly making any important fashion news. If she's launched anything new, it's a Canadian trend toward lighter colored stockings than we Americans like for fall and winter.

Her daytime, informal clothes seem confined to one-color ensembles. With minor changes of detail, they follow a single pattern: a silk dress with draped bodice, fitted waistline and flaring skirt. Over this she wears a coat of silk or wool, also with a fitted waist and full skirt.

She is reputed—again unofficially—to have a wardrobe of 18 costumes. During the first week of the tour, she appeared in slate blue, robin red, brown and Edinburgh green. The Edinburgh green costume was a puzzle. Every reporter who saw her come off the plane at Montreal and ride over to the Royal train had his own idea of the color. It was described as ing year and list first those vital needs such as food, clothing, and housing.

Insurance and installment payments should have a place on the records too. Add up the estimated expenses and compare the total with that of the estimated income. If "ends fail to meet" study the plan again to see where adjustments can be made. It may be that some unnecessary items will have to be left off of the list. More use may be made of free community services. Ways in which to increase the income may be considered by the family.

slate blue, spruce blue, teal, Air Force blue, lapis lazuli. Then someone stated authoritatively that this was the green in the Edinburgh tartan.

I must say that it looked slate blue to me to the bitter end.

All of her hats are head-hugging and off-the-face. This, of course, is deliberate, because it lets the crowds get a good look at the royal face. She likes feather hats, and hats whose severity is relieved by some small amount of ornament on one side.

As far as accessories go, there is little to report. Elizabeth's gloves, shoes and purse invariably match, are black or brown, leather or suede. She wears Cuban heels—and a good thing, too, for she's on her feet for long, wearying hours. Her shoes have a distinctly English look to them—long with pointed toes.

The official descriptions of Her Royal Highness' evening costumes are woefully inadequate. At night, for the state dinners, Elizabeth truly looks like the Princess in the fairy-tales. She wears wonderful simple gowns of gold or silver lace and airy tulle skirts which form a proper setting for her truly magnificent jewels. She has a number of tiaras—three or four—and wears a fabulous diamond necklace. Then, glittering from her bodice is the splashy jeweled star of the Garter on its broad ribbon.

At these great state dinners, she sits in huge, overpowering chairs with great high backs, looking serious, and like a very small innocent girl—but a Princess.

There are a couple of costume items about which none of us has any doubts whatsoever. For day time, she wears one of the most beautiful milk jackets ever seen anywhere. She keeps it handy, slipping it on and off as the vicissitudes of weather demand. For evening there is a short ermine wrap. And if wearing ermine can be considered starting a new vogue, I'm for it.

Texas Celebrates 50th Anniversary Of State's Most Important Oil Well

BEAUMONT (AP)—How Texans celebrated the 50th anniversary of their most important oil well has been set down for history in a trim little book entitled "Spindletop—Where Oil Became an Industry."

The 204 page book comprises the official proceedings of the Spindletop 50th anniversary commission. With their historic photographs and a lively introduction by John W. Newton, commission chairman, these are among the most interesting official proceedings ever published.

"The beginning of a new era in civilization" came at 10:30 a.m. on January 19, 1901. At that moment a well drilled on the low, flat mound called Spindletop blew a column of oil 290 feet into the air.

For nine days the well went wild. It flowed at the rate of 100,000 barrels a day, about 16 times the volume of any previous well in world history. A lake of oil formed—about 800,000 barrels covering 109 acres. The lake caught fire and burned up but not until the well had been capped.

Capt. Anthony F. Lucas, who drilled on Spindletop against the advice of leading geologists, galloped up on a horse minutes after the well blew in. His dreams had borne greater fruit than he expected.

The Spindletop story has been told and re-told, but this slender, cloth-bound volume goes beyond that. It tells how the Lucas gusher led to the growth of an oil and chemical empire on the Gulf Coast. A new way of life—automobiles, propellers and then jet planes, fast ships—depended on oil. Without oil the free world could not have won two World Wars nor could it face a third with much confidence. And most of that oil came from the Southwest area in which Capt. Lucas was the outstanding pioneer.

All this is told in the words of those men who guide the industrial giants of modern America... David Rockefeller, Charles E. Wilson, E. DeGolyer, John G. Pew, Glenn H. McCarthy, Walter S. Carpenter. These leaders of the nation's business world came to Beaumont early in January to take part in the historic 50th anniversary celebration, and texts of their speeches are in the book.

"Spindletop—Where Oil Became an Industry" also gives an insight into the immense amount of work and money involved in a big celebration. Innumerable committees worked to provide decorations, supervise slogan contests, line up speakers, etc. A high-priced professional public relations firm in Houston was retained to "coordinate and direct the numerous activities."

Newton, the Magnolia executive who headed the anniversary commission, tells in his introduction why the industry extended itself on this occasion.

"All in all, Spindletop is symbolic of the rise and growth of American industry. It is the typical American story. It is the story of Democracy and the unlimited opportunities to be found when men of vision and courage are permitted to work in an atmosphere of free competitive enterprise.

"Therefore, it was felt that the 50th anniversary of Spindletop in 1951 was worthy of more than passing recognition."

ceremony, with more than twenty from here in attendance.

Included in this group were Mrs. Sid Hopping, Mrs. Marye Sales, Mrs. Wm. Rumback, Mrs. J. D. Dodgen, Mrs. Quinton Bellomy, Mrs. Weldon Findley, Mrs. E. B. Luce, Mrs. Ann Louise Wiseman, each of whom had a program part in the installation ceremony, and also in attendance from here from the local chapter membership were Mr. and Mrs. William Brune, Mrs. Roy McQuatters, Jr., Mrs. N. M. Frey, Mrs. E. B. Luce, Mrs. Cass Hawk, Mrs. Johnnie Miller and Mrs. H. G. Ferguson.

In addition to those from this city and chapter in attendance, the three other Eastern Star Chapters of Lamb County, at Earth, Olton and Sudan, were also well represented at the sessions of the Grand Chapter which prevailed on Monday through Thursday night, and at the installation of the new Worthy Grand Matron.

Members of the Littlefield Chapter and of other Lamb county chapters, have been appointed to various offices in the Grand Chapter of Texas, to serve during the ensuing year with and under the leadership of Mrs. Boone. They include: Mrs. Emma Ruth Bellomy, Littlefield, Grand Chaplain; Mrs. Lorraine Hopping, Littlefield, Grand Organist; Mrs. Marye Sales, Littlefield, Deputy Grand Matron, District Two, Section Four; Mrs. Blanche Dodgen, Littlefield, Grand Representative from Puerto Rico to Texas; Noel Lumpkin, Sudan, Credential Committee Member; Mrs. Gladys Laing, Earth, Transportation and Mileage Committee; Mrs. Birdie Lee Brune, Littlefield, Member Committee on By-Laws.

Mrs. Molly Goodpasture of Brownfield, was chosen by Mrs. Boone to be District Deputy Grand Matron of this District No. Two, which comprises chapters throughout West Texas, District Deputies in the other four Districts of the State were also announced by Mrs. Boone as follows: Mrs. Lillie Price, Atlanta, District No. One; Mrs. Inez Matthews, Fort Worth, District No. Three; Mrs. Lovena Grigg, Baytown, District No. Four; Mrs. Leon Carr, San Angelo, District No. Five.

Other Eastern Star Chapter members from the West Texas area, who were given Grand Chapter appointments by the new Worthy Grand Matron included the following: Mrs. Pauline Smith, Lubbock, Grand Ruth; Mrs. Pearl Metcalf, Lubbock, Resolutions Committee; Mrs. Florence DeArmand, Lubbock, Greivance and Appeals Committee; Mrs. Annie Daniel Idalou, Education Fund Committee.

In addition to the election of the Grand Matron, the Grand Chapter elections held Thursday afternoon named the following officers of the line to serve with Mrs. Boone: Worthy Grand Patron, Earl Manning, Temple; Associate Grand Matron, Mrs. Mildred Garlitz, Fort Worth; Associate Grand Patron, Judge John Rawlins, Dallas, Grand Secretary, Mrs. Rebecca L. Miles, Arlington; Grand Treasurer, Mrs. Jettie Hinton, Baytown; Grand Conductress, Mrs. Mary Ella Schoverling, Houston; Associate Grand Conductress, Mrs. Eunice Connell, San Antonio.

Other appointive officers named by the Worthy Grand Matron are: Grand Marshal, Mrs. Sue Causey, Dallas; Grand Esther, Mrs. Pauline Baker, Amarillo; Grand Martha, Mrs. Nellie Mertz, Grand Electa, Mrs. Pearl B. Lee, Galveston; Grand Warden, Mrs. Lois Burnett, Fort Worth; Grand Sentinel, Ed. L. Sharpe, Dallas.

Grand Officers of Eastern Star, who assisted in conferring the highest office on Mrs. Flora Bess Boone, Thursday night and acted as installing officers were: Mrs. Lillian Bernard, Past Grand Matron; Pat H. Boone, sr., Past Grand Patron; Miss Cora Posey, Grand Secretary; Mrs. Lollah Moe Vollis, Grand Chaplain; Mrs. Cheba DeWoss, Grand Marshal; Mrs. Mildred Cravens, Grand Organist.

Mrs. Boone's address, which followed the installation, was a beautiful outline in colorful, yet simply chosen words and phrases, the aspirations, hopes, ideals, the creed and the goals she has set for the year 1951-52, as she acknowledged the high honor and accepted the tremendous responsibilities of serving Texas Grand Chapter for the 70th year of its existence in Texas.

As she stepped before the microphone, at the center in the spotlight of the gorgeously and profusely decorated platform and hall of San Antonio's great auditorium, the beloved first Matron of Littlefield Eastern Star Chapter, constituted in 1923, the cultured, beautiful and beloved woman, who has been a faithful member of the order for more than a quarter of a century, made, indeed a striking and beautiful picture.

For the occasion she had chosen and was gowned in Nile green chiffon and Chantilly lace formal.

All of the new officers, elective and appointive excepting only the men, were gowned in identical costumes, of Nile green emphasizing and carrying out the new Worthy Grand Matron's colors of green and gold.

Highlighting the installation ceremonial address, were the new Grand Matrons announcement of theme, motto, creed and scripture, at the Martha Installation, and the theme for the entire year, will emphasize the beloved biblical character.

For motto she has selected the beautiful thought and words "Our Heritage"—Creed, "Our Faith Is Real; now Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen. Scripture chosen, the 23rd Psalm, Watchword, "Truth and Love, Unity and Peace."

And as her beautiful address was unfolded to her thousands of listeners, in simple words and with humble meim, she added: "I dedicate this beautiful installation ceremony to my beloved mother and father." And both Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hopping of Lubbock were proudly present, to rejoice with their daughter in the great honor bestowed upon her.

Five years after serving as first Worthy Matron of Littlefield Chapter, Mrs. Boone, received her first appointment in Grand Chapter work, when she accepted the appointment as deputy Grand Matron for this district, in 1927.
