Petitions Presented Ask $600,000 Bond Issue

A courthouse election was ordered for October 11, 1952, by the Commissioners' Court of Lamb County, Texas in response to petition presented to the court September 8. The petitions, signed by more than the necessary number to require court action, asked for a bond issue of $650,000. The court ordered the election to authorize issuance of bonds in the amount of $600,000 to erect a courthouse and jail. The petitions were signed by individuals, mostly from Sudan, Earth, Springlake, Olton, Hart Camp, and territory surrounding those cities and communities.

Preparations Complete For County Fair

Pictured above are the still smoldering ruins of the Amherst hotel building, first brick structure in the city. The hotel and adjoining stores were razed by an early morning fire of undetermined origin, Monday. Discovered at 4 a.m. by Ross Hanks, the vacationing owner's brother, the fire already had a death grip on one section of the block in spite of efforts of volunteer fire departments from Amherst, Earth, Littlefield, and Sudan. Destroyed were the hotel, the drug store, Homer's barber shop, the school tax collector's office, Halsell Farms Co. office, and the Amherst Insurance Co. The ruins were still smoldering at 1 p.m. when this photo was taken.

White Dahlia Wins Sweepstakes In Amherst Show

An arrangement by Mrs. George Harmon of Amherst and a horticultural entry belonging to Mrs. W. A. Beal of Sudan took the sweepstakes in the Amherst Garden Show last Saturday held in the American Legion hall. Besides the pink ribbon and the $2.50 prize in the sweepstakes, Mrs. Beal won five first places, two seconds, and a third. Her best flower, according to the judges, was a white cactus dahlia. The best arrangement which won Mrs. Harmon the sweepstakes in floral arrangement was "The Fisherman Comes Home," designed from tritonias, cattails, and castor bean plants. Driftwood and aquatic figures were used to lend an exotic, tropical atmosphere. Mrs. Harmon won four first, two seconds, and a third prize.

The county commissioners and judge studied the petitions all week, looking at the project from every angle, before ordering the election. The members of the court stated that Lamb county needs a courthouse very badly. Although one of the outstanding counties in Texas, Lamb is possibly the only county in the state operating its own business that does not have a courthouse.

Although the commissioners and judge are grateful to the City of Littlefield for use of its city hall as a courthouse, the members of the Court pointed out that due to increase of county population and business, the building is entirely inadequate for use as a courthouse. For example, there is no fireproof vault in which to keep deed record books and other record books that are absolutely essential for the residents of the county. The ownership or title to every home, farm, and business house in Lamb county depends on preservation of these records. The jail has no facilities for women prisoners or juveniles; both classes of these prisoners have to be taken to adjoining counties whenever arrested. There are no adequate facilities for juries, either petit or grand jury. There are no facilities for county court or for the commissioners' court, except the district court room, which is often in use for other purposes. There is no office for the district judge or for commissioners. There are no storage facilities for records that must be maintained but are not daily in use. Offices for the sheriff's department, the county clerk, the county tax collector and assessor are very inadequate. It was pointed out that the county already owns an ideal site for the courthouse, so that it will not be necessary to acquire land for a building location.

Amherst Hotel Building Burned Early Monday; $100,000 Loss

The ruins of the two-story Amherst hotel which was razed by fire early Monday morning were still smoking at 1:30 p.m. when Volunteer Firechief Raymond Cantrell and a crew with a maintainer began the dangerous task of pulling down parts of the three walls left standing. Another three-man crew with a fire hose flooded the surface of the walls with water to cool them off enough so that a man could climb up them to attach the chain from the maintainer. The rear wall fell at 2 p.m. crushing a large tree growing close to the back of the hotel which had miraculously remained quite green despite the fire which had raged through the building. The part of the side wall that had not collapsed earlier in the morning was pulled down at 3 p.m.; and by 4 o'clock, Cantrell and his crew had completed the job on the crumbling front wall. Eisenhower For President Club Organizes At Tuesday Night Meeting

Bill Morris, county chairman of the Eisenhower for President Club of Lamb County, told Eisenhower supporters at an 8 p.m. meeting in the county courtroom Tuesday night that there are in excess of 2200 paid poll tax voters in the city of Littlefield and 1000 paid poll tax voters each in Olton and Sudan. The task facing the Eisenhower Club is threefold: telling voters how to split their tickets, getting voters to the polls, and informing them that they can vote for Eisenhower even if they did vote in the Democratic primary. The local Eisenhower club is eager to get volunteers to help in this large scale program. The purpose of the Tuesday night meeting was to organize the precincts. C. G. Clark was appointed captain of all the Littlefield precincts. Each precinct will have a captain who will have a "free hand" (Continued on Page 5)

Rotarians Fete Teachers At Annual Teachers' and Ladies' Night Banquet

Teachers' and Ladies' Night was observed by the Rotary Club Tuesday with a banquet dinner at 7:30 in the school cafeteria honoring the teachers and the school board and their wives.

Speaker of the evening was Charles A. Guy, publisher of the Avalanche-Journal and popularly known as the Plainsman. Mr. Guy was introduced to the group of 175 teachers, board members, and Rotarians by Bill Chesher, an old friend of the publisher.

Music for the evening was under the direction of Stillwell Russell who presented Mrs. Maxlee Fann, vocalist, and Don Hays, high school band director who rendered an instrumental on his saxophone.

The purpose of these annual banquets is to get the teachers and business and professional men and their wives acquainted; therefore, introductions consumed a major part of the evening. Joe Hirtchinson, superintendent of schools, introduced Jack Christian, chairman of the school board, who in turn introduced the board members. The principals of each school introduced their teachers. Jim Brittain introduced the Rotarians.

Special guests of the evening were Mrs. Charles Guy, Mrs. Cadell, secretary to Mr. Guy; Charlie Watson, managing editor of the Journal.

City Inspector and Wife Are Injured In Car Accident Near Pumping Station

A car driven by City Inspector Phillip Brown was in collision with a car driven by Al Thornton, colored, Wednesday at 4:10 p.m. near the city pumping station.

When the two vehicles came together, Inspector Brown had been in the process of making a left turn at the pumping station. Thornton's car struck the Brown car on the right side, spinning it around in the same direction from which it had approached.

Highway officer Jean Pate who was at the scene of the accident reported that both cars were total losses. Brown was driving a 1946 Chevrolet. Thornton's car was a 1950 Ford.

In the Brown car besides the city inspector were his wife and two grandchildren, Johnny White, 14, and Phillip Crouch, 10. The children sustained only slight cuts and were not admitted to the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were admitted to Littlefield Hospital at 5 p.m. Mrs. Brown is suffering from a broken knee and cuts about the face. Mr. Brown sustained slight shock and one or two broken ribs.

Al Thornton was treated for a head injury at the Littlefield hospital.

Amherst Fire —

Discovered at 4 A.M.

The fire which completely destroyed the hotel and several other offices was discovered about 4 a.m. by Ross Hanks of Lawton, Oklahoma, brother of the vacationing owner, P. S. Hanks.

Fire departments from Littlefield, Earth, and Sudan rushed to the scene to help the hard-pressed Amherst volunteers, but it is reported that the blaze was too far along to be put out by the time the Amherst department was notified. At one point during the fire, firemen feared for the safety of the whole business section, but the wind, which so often means the difference between emergency and catastrophe, stayed in the northeast, blowing across the already blazing building rather than toward business establishments in the remainder of the block.

Firemen were stationed on the roof of Wagner's grocery store next to the burning school tax office to keep the fire from spreading over the roof tops. This store reported some slight damage to goods from water.

Lee Payne Office Threatened

A green stucco building belonging to Lee Payne containing the offices of the Farm Bureau situated directly across from the blazing sidewall of the hotel was threatened from the fire carried by the northeast wind. No equipment, however, could be spared from the main fire-fighting operation for use as precautionary measures. Volunteers from the fully aroused town brought garden hoses attaching them to the hydrant at nearby Zachary's Produce Co.

Faulty Wiring Thought Cause
It is theorized that faulty wiring in the basement was the cause of the blaze, which was thought to originate in a short in the wires to one of two electric motors in the drug room. Several factors aided the quick spread of the fire underneath the floor of the lobby. In the basement were boilers and other heating equipment as well as volumes of old bank records stored since the days when the First National, which has moved into a new building on the corner across the street, was housed in the corner of the hotel.

Mr. Hanks discovered a smoking electric motor in the drug room of the Amherst drug store also owned by his brother, P. S. Hanks. After emptying several buckets of water on the motor, Mr. Hanks abandoned it and went to awaken Mrs. Annabelle Hanks, mother of the owner, who lived in a downstairs apartment. Together with Mrs. Blanche House, an employee at the hotel, Mr. Hanks awakened all 18 guests and permanent resi-

The band will go through its paces before some 17,000 people who are expected to see the game. Precision marching and paying tribute to both schools will mark the performance of the local band Saturday.

The band from Brownfield will present the other part of the half time intermission show.

Hays explained that it was quite an honor for a high school band to be asked to perform in college game activities. The game between Tech and WTSC is very early for a college game. None of the college bands are ready to take the field this early in the season.

dents of the hotel. No one was injured by fire or by making their way out the second story windows of the blazing building.

Loss $100,000

First estimates of the total damage fixed the loss at $100,000, but later in the day losses were totaling near $120,000 according to Bill Rowland, manager of the Hartsell Farm Co. and Troy Rowland, manager of the Amherst Insurance Co., both of whose offices on the first floor back of the hotel building were total losses. Intense, overwhelming smoke in the building prevented efforts to salvage important records.

Also housed in the hotel building and damaged by smoke and water in the spectacular blaze were Homer's Barber Shop, owned by Homer Harper, vacationing in South Texas; and Amherst School Tax Collector's office. The Amherst Recreation Hall, owned by Henry King, housed in the corner of the ground floor in the space formerly occupied by the First National Bank was completely destroyed.

First Observer

One of the first observers of the early morning fire was Mrs. Allen White, who was sitting up at 4 a.m. with a body at Lee Payne's Funeral Home, which is directly the hotel building across the street.

Mrs. White said that she might have noticed the fire sooner had it not been for the route she took from her home to the funeral parlor. She went north from her home skirting the block containing the then-smoking hotel and approached Payne's from the south. At that time she noticed nothing unusual. Mrs. Ted Long and Mrs. J. R. Watson were sitting up along with Mrs. White. At 4:30 they heard the fire alarm and rushing to the door, saw smoke pouring from every opening in the building.

Mrs. White called the operator in Littlefield who summoned the local fire department. Mrs. White and the telephone operator in Sudan could not get no one to answer the number usually dialed in case of fire so they rang the phone at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyn E. Slate. Mrs. White explained that they would know who to contact. The Slates gave the alarm in Sudan via telephone and the emergency alarm.

The Littlefield police accompanied the local fire truck. A fire truck from Anton was also present.

Tax Records Saved

Miss Cloe Harris, school tax collector, was interviewed amid the unsorted mass of hastily snatched up records and office equipment that had been piled into the garage of her home about 10:30 a.m. after the fire was brought under control.

Miss Harris said, however, that things were not as bad as they looked for her office. With help she had managed to save most of the important records and could go right on with the general office routine. Many of the files were smoke and water damaged, but the information they contained would still be useable.

Concerning her personal discovery of the fire at her office, Miss Harris said that she was awakened by the alarm and "figured it might be our place."

The hotel together with adjoining offices and shops in the building was the first brick structure in Amherst, begun in 1923 and finished in 1924 by the Halsell Farm Co. It was a landmark and popular spot for traveling men and residents of the area. Many old residents still talk about the fine meals that used to be served from the hotel kitchen and the club meetings that were held there through the years.

The office of the Halsell Farm Co., builders of the fire-razed hotel whose own office in the building was consumed, has been moved into a small building owned by Ernest Black near the City Hall.

Old Sarge—

me much seniority." And he was right.

Going To Frozen North
Master Sergeant Gerald F. Cutshall has received his order to report to Camp Kilmer, N.J. on October 23 for subsequent assignment to the Northeast Air Command. And this is where his premonition about overseas service begins to come true.

The Northeast Air Command consists of Greenland, Newfoundland, Labrador, and Iceland. All of them are a "fur piece down the road" from either of the sarge's preferences for reassignment: Biggs Field at El Paso or Reese AFB at Lubbock.

The sarge has no preference among the places listed above since "all of them are cold." Expressing a preference would do no good anyway and would only be a matter of choosing the lesser of four evils. Sgt. Cutshall did make one laconic comment: "Newfoundland is close to Maine," he said.

Family To Remain Here
The sergeant's family will stay in Littlefield at the home on 701 East Sixth street for the two years that the sergeant will be gone on his last tour of duty in the blue and khaki uniform. If he took his family with him, his tour would be extended to three years. The four Cutshall children are all well-situated in schools in Texas, too, and that would be interrupted entirely for two of them—Clifton, a high school soph and Raymond, a college man—since none of the countries in the Northeast Air Command have school facilities above junior high school.

The sergeant's two daughters, Judy and June, are in the sixth and eighth grades, respectively. Clifton will be eligible to play for the Wildcats next year. Raymond, the oldest, is a senior at Price College in Amarillo and captain of the football team, the Cardinals.

Will See Much Football
All of which brings the story around to what the Old Sarge will be doing with the 30 day leave handed him, effective Tuesday. He'll be soaking up as much football as possible. All Fridays between now and October 19, the probable date of his departure, will be devoted exclusively to seeing the Wildcats play—"and win, I hope!" the sarge smiled. Sgt. Cutshall is a spotter for KVOW again this year.

On Sept. 26, the weekend that the Wildcats have no game scheduled, the sarge plans to take in a game in Amarillo to see Raymond lead the Cardinals down the field.

Popular Citizen
If there is any time left between practices and games, the sarge is open for suggestions about utilizing it, but it will probably be taken up by visiting with the many friends he has made in the four years he has been here as recruiting officer. Sgt. Cutshall is one of the best known and well liked figures in the community, having actively participated in all community projects since the beginning of his residence here.

The sergeant has three years and nine months more before he can retire with 30 year's service, but when he does retire, Sgt. Cutshall is coming back to Littlefield to make his home.

Well, the old Greeks said "Welcome the coming, speed the parting" so here's our "Bon Voyage" a month in advance to the sarge on his journey across the north Atlantic. We want to get it said while the weather's still right and it can be called a warm sendoff!

cert during the Festival. Attired in their native costumes, they will sing in five foreign languages. This group is now planning concerts to be presented next year through the Central and South American countries.

Highlight of the Friday night football game will be the crowning of the Fall Festival Queen at half time intermission. Miss Connie Hopping of Littlefield, Miss Texas of 1953 will crown the local queen.

A street parade, Rotary carnival, kid's games, flower show, art exhibits, and other forms of entertainment will provide something to do every minute of the day for the thousands of visitors who are expected.

Bernie Howell, noted organist of station KCBF in Lubbock will provide music for the festival pageant to be presented by local talent. This pageant Saturday night in the city park will portray the dress and customs of the various member nations.

The Sudan Fall Festival Committee will award a $100 prize to any business, civic, fraternal, religious, education organization, or representative of a country for the best 150-word formula for World Peace. Deadline for receipt of entries is October 18. Judges for the letters will be presidents of three West Texas colleges: Dr. E. N. Jones, Texas Tech; Dr. J. W. Marshall, Wayland College; and Dr. James Coronette of WTSC. All entries should be addressed to Sudan Fall Festival Committee, Joe T. Salem, Chairman, Sudan, Texas. This celebration has been com-whole fair grounds received a liberal spraying with DDT in preparation for the arrival of hundreds of animals. V. M. Peterman's cattle were the first occupants of the new cow barn.

Parade Prospects Bright
Tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. the parade marking one of the highlights of the three-day fair will march gaily through the center of Littlefield going south on Phelps Ave.

Don Hays, local band director, who is in charge of securing bands for the parade, will lead the local high school band amid several other bands in the area. Sudan, Olton, Springlake, and Abernathy bands will be in the marching. Andrews' band, who will accompany the Mustangs when they face the Wildcats later Friday, gave a tentative promise to come early enough to participate in the parade. Prizes will be awarded the bands, too, this year.

Floating entries for this year's grand parade were listed as coming in thick and fast late Wednesday, according to Robert R. Smith, who is assisting Gene Williams, president of the sheriff's posse, in lining up floats and riding groups for the start-off from the high school grounds.

in getting out the vote for Ike in any manner he thinks effective within his own precinct. Captains will appoint two lieutenants in their precinct to assist them. Precinct captains will not be the regular Republican precinct chairmen. The Eisenhower for President Club is an independent political organization embracing both parties among its members.

Other meetings of Eisenhower supporters in the area are planned. Arnold Reid, Republican precinct chairman of Sudan, will call a meeting of Democrats and Republicans who support Eisenhower for president. At this meeting Captains of precincts will be elected. A similar meeting will be called by Mrs. Spear, Olton precinct chairman.

The Lamb County Eisenhower Club voted at the meeting Tuesday night to enter a float in the parade tomorrow during the fifth annual Lamb County Fair. The float ridden on by a crowd of school children carrying Ike banners will advocate saving Texas tidelands for Texas school children.

The Ike supporters also discussed the possibility of setting up an Ike-Nixon headquarters in the Littlefield business section four weeks before the general election, Nov. 4. The headquarters would be open during business hours and staffed by volunteer workers who would answer voters' questions and hand out Ike buttons and literature. A possible headquarters building was suggested as the one next to the Chamber of Commerce on West Fifth.

Court House—

Judge Dent explained that upon presentation of petitions and the consequent order calling an election, the court under Texas law had to set the date for the election not less than 15 nor more than 30 days after the date of the order. The court set the date for the election as late as possible in order to permit full and free discussion of the issue.

Judge Dent added that at the coming election only qualified voters who own property and have rendered it for taxation (whose names appear on the county tax roll) are entitled under Texas law to vote on the bond issue. Voters must cast their ballots in the election precinct in which they reside. The order calling the election also names voting places and election judges and clerks for the entire county. There are sixteen voting precincts, which are identically the same as for the recent primary elections.

Mrs. Brandon urges all local chairmen to return their blood donor's cards to the office by Sept. 22 so that a donor time schedule can be completed.

Among the milliners, John FredERIC plunges farthest into the future with his new collection of "advanced modern" shapes, which include the "linear cloche," the "free form" and the "light struck" designs. The Sudan Chapter OES presented a program honoring Mrs. Pat Boone, sr. Monday night at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Hall when the Grand Worthy Matron of the State of Texas made her official visit.

Visitors were present from Slaton, Amarillo, Earth, Muleshoe, and Littlefield. The Littlefield group included Pat Boone, sr., Bertie Lee Brume, Lulu Hubbard, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Blanche Dodgen, Mrs. R. B. McQuatters, Jr., Lois Phillips, Mrs. Dodson, Doris Fry, Mrs. C. H. Messery, and Emma Reeves.

Mrs. Lela Chester, Worthy Matron of the Sudan chapter, and Joe Rone, Worthy Patron, presided at the meeting. Noel Lumpkin sang several vocal arrangements.

Following the program, a social hour was enjoyed, during which punch and cookies were served from a tea table in the hall.

ford, Texas and Mrs. C. A. Thomas of Amherst were guests at the meeting.

During the afternoon, members worked on pictures they are finishing for the art exhibit.

Coffee, sandwiches, and cookies were served by the hostesses.

Shade trees, suffering from several years of unprecedented weather, are in poor condition and need to be fed. A circular dike of soil equal to the shade canopy of the tree is suggested as the area for watering and fertilizing.
