Miss Blaylock-Dwaine Key Wed In Methodist Church

AMHERST—In a candlelight service at the Friona Methodist Church, Sunday, Dec. 21, at 4 p.m. Miss Elizabeth Blaylock, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Hugh F. Blaylock, became the bride of Dwaine L. Key, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Key of Amherst.

The double-ring ceremony was read by the bride's father, Rev. Blaylock, before an arrangement of greenery flanked with baskets of poinsettias, white mums and white candles. Rev. Blaylock is pastor of the Friona Methodist Church.

The bride wore a white lace dress with fitted bodice and soft pleated skirt over white taffeta. Her matching bolero featured a high neckline with tapered sleeves with self-covered buttons. The bridal veil was attached to sequin covered circlets of net atop a white hat.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations and wore a penny in her shoe for good luck. For something new she wore a string of pearls and matching ear clips, which were a gift from the groom.

She carried a linen handkerchief which was borrowed from her mother. For something blue she chose a garter which was a gift from her aunt, Mrs. Harold Corner of Fullerton, Calif.

Patsy Anthony was the maid of honor and Luellen M-Lean was the bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of blue embroidered satin with round necklines and soft pleated skirts. The bridal attendants wore blue feather hats and carried arm bouquets of white mums. Candelights were Charlotte and Judy Brock, sisters of the bride. They wore identical styled dresses of blue and white.

Guests were registered by Janice Brock, another sister of the bride, who wore an off-white dress and matching hat.

Eisenhower's conservative Republicanism is new, more aggressive in Congress than two years of his administration. The President can count on both to support him in his fight to hold down spending, keep foreign aid going strong, get labor legislation aimed at curbing racketeering, and passing new farm laws. Dirksen may have more trouble keeping Senate Republicans in line with Administration policies than Halleck has in the House. While the fiery Illinois Senator was strongly opposed by a small group of GOP "liberals," Halleck drew support from both liberals and conservatives in the House. Democratic Cooperation How well Dirksen and Halleck succeed in getting the President's avowedly more conservative legislative program adopted by the 86th Congress will depend, in a large measure, on how much cooperation they get from Democrats who outnumber Republicans by almost two to one. On many issues they can expect support from conservative Southern Democrats. That, however, does not include new civil rights legislation, which the Southerners will unanimously oppose. It is significant that the "liberal" majority of Democrats is headed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson and Rep. Sam Rayburn, both Texans and both rated as Southern conservatives. They may, however, coasts to the more traditionally conservative stronghold of Republicanism, the Midwest. Dirksen is from Illinois and Halleck from Indiana.

Both have staunchly supported foreign aid programs in an area supposed to be more "isolation-minded" in the past than other sections of the country. They gave a reputation of being down-the-line Old Line party Republicans.

Protest Just Isn't Solved In Communist State

William Henry Chamberlin, the distinguished interpreter of Communist affairs, describes an important facet of Communist writing in The Wall Street Journal, he says: "It is a Communist assumption that social protest can only be in non-Communist countries. Social inequities are to be automatically eliminated under Communism, and capitalism is expected to generate a continual outpouring of revolutionary literature."

Kremlin, of course, goes to great lengths to assure conformity to the Communist ideology. Leading writers, so long as they retain their rigid orthodox opinions in all the material ways. Their works circulate their royalties are great. Special privilege is dealt them with a lavish hand, as it is to top scientists, millers, and others who perform major service to the state. At the same time, the non-conformist is in for nothing but the punishments run the gamut from refusal to publish to imprisonment and even to execution.

In spite of this, Mr. Chamberlin writes, the basic Communist position concerning social protest has been knocked over. Indeed, "... there is accumulating evidence of true angry men of the present time are in the East, and the literature of social protest in such countries as the United States and Great Britain is at a very low ebb."

The affair of Boris Pasternak and his remarkable novel, "Zhidvago", has cast a brilliant, world-wide light on the literary firmament, with all the rewards that go with it. Then came "Doctor Zhivago" and the Nobel Prize. Within Russia, Pasternak was denounced in applicable to the most depraved criminals. He was forbidden the award after accepting it in a warm and friendly manner to the prize committee. The reason was that he dared to indulge in social protest—social protest against the policies of Russia's masters. As an example, "Collectivization was an erroneous and unsuccessful experiment, and it was impossible to admit the failure. To the failure people had to be cured, by every means of the habit of thinking and judging for themselves and to see what didn't exist, to assert the opposite of what their eyes told them."

Chamberlin cites other writers in the police states who spoken out in anger, at tremendous risk. Then he speaks of the free world. He says: "Meanwhile the novel of protest in the West was withered on the vine, not because it would be boycotted or put in prison or subjected to abuse for writing such a novel; but because the novel no longer exists. The 'Okies' who figure in John Steinbeck's 'The Grapes of Wrath' are now substantial citizens of California. No one could honestly write a novel like Sinclair Lewis' 'The Jungle' about the well organized packers and workers of Chicago today..." And what is true of the West is true in large degree in England, Italy, France and other Western nations.

At this point, as Mr. Chamberlin sees it, is that "Communism is more and more not like the wave of the future, but like the memory of the past." He finds that, contrary to the dogma, Communism is the creator of the most unjust, tensions and dissatisfaction. He writes at the end of his article, "To be sure, the combination of mass propaganda and state controls inhibit the open expression of these tangled dissatisfactions. But this situation may not last for long."

Roots Opinion

MINNESOTA, SENTINEL: "During the campaign, the matter of labor endorsement for candidates is pretty much a hush matter. Now that the campaign is over and labor has again come out on top, there is no hesitancy on the part of the labor bosses to frequent use of the term 'labor-endorsed candidates', and that use of such a term during campaign might be an embarrassing, if not a negative, effect."

ILLINOIS, DAILY GAZETTE: "A sinister kind of writing which is being done by college students is seen by a Princeton professor."

WILLARD THORP says that many students seem not to be able to write their native tongue. They strive to write in a gibberish which the professor calls 'No-thing'.

BACK AT THE OLD STAND—Rep. Waggoner Carr, of Lubbock elected as Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 56th session of the State Legislature raps the gavel to call the House to order. AND Sidelights

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Tex. — Some cheered and some wept, but none will soon forget the eventful, suspenseful opening day of the House of Representatives of the 56th Legislature.

Waggoner Carr became the third man in recent history to win a second term as Speaker of the House; and Joe Burkett became the only one in many years to lose by so close a vote — 79 to 71.

Burkett and Carr had been in a hard-fought contest for a year and a half. Burkett, from Kerrville in the Hill country, is a staunch conservative. Carr, from Lubbock in the South Plains, had more liberal support.

When the day came, every representative was present, and the floor and galleries were jammed with spectators. Secretary of State Zollie Steakley served as temporary presiding officer. An elaborate voting procedure was agreed upon to safeguard secrecy and assure fairness.

Representatives filed out the front of the chamber, one by one, had their folded ballots initiated by the clerk and then placed them personally in the ballot box. Six watchers, three representing each candidate, stood by.

The ballot box was opened and results called out, one by one. Only sound in the large chamber was the scratching of the pens of many score keepers, and the occasional fidgeting or gasping as the lead saw-sawed between the candidates.

A cheer went up as Carr received his victory-assuring 76th vote. A round of hand shaking, back slapping and congratulating began. Following the final count, a procession composed of Carr's family and supporters escorted the Lubbock representative to the rostrum to take the oath of office.

ON WITH THE SHOW — After the opening dust had settled, Legislators turned to their everyday concerns.

Most immediate and pressing problem was finding money to operate the Legislature. Since the state's main monetary cupboard, the general revenue fund, was bare (worse still, in debt), there wasn't so much as a nickel on hand to pay salaries of the lawmakers and their helpers, nor even for stamps, stationery, phone calls and travel. A bill was offered to appropriate $2,300,000 that had accumulated in two special funds.

Several plans were being talked about to solve the even more vexatious long-term problem of overall budget balancing. To do so will involve finding money to pay off an expected general fund deficit of $85,000,000 plus some $130,000,000 in new money to meet expected expenses for 1960-61. Only alternative would be numerous and painful economies.

Generally, there seem to be two schools of thought developing on taxation: (1) those who hope to avoid a new tax by upping many present levies, such as selective sales taxes, removing several exemptions and re-shuffling funds here and there and (2) those who say the present tax blanket can't

Sandhills Philosopher

Everything Costs More Now Except The Stuff He Grows

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm reviews the state of the union this week, in his own language

Dear editor:

I was figuring up my income and expenses for 1958 the other night and trying to remember where my money went when I decided to rest my mind and picked up a newspaper a man had handed me in town earlier in the day to keep the rain off while I crossed a street—it was a copy of The Lubbock Avalanche Journal and I don't care what some people say about it, it shed the rain pretty good — and got to reading a review of President Eisenhower's State of the Union message.

I have come to the conclusion that the President's speech writers ought to bring their language up to date.

For example, trying to bring home to the people the high cost of defending America, the President said "new bombers now cost their weight in gold."

This is what I'm talking about. I would have brought the message home a lot stronger if he'd said "new bombers now cost their weight in groceries."

When he said fighter planes "now cost fifty times more than they did fifteen years ago," he would have brought us face to face with reality more if he'd said "fighter planes have gone up even higher than new automobiles."

Or if he'd said "it cost more to train a jet pilot than it does to send a kid to college."

I have a great deal of sympathy though for the President. He and I are working on similar problems.

For example, while new tractors don't cost their weight in gold yet, I think they're working on it.

I don't know what it costs to repair a 27-million-dollar bomber, but what it costs to overhaul a 10-year-old tractor is inching up in the same direction.

I don't know what a guided missile costs, but I know what a box of shotgun shells costs, and it's something to make Congress and me both sit up and do some thinking.

I don't think groceries cost their weight in gold yet, but it may not be long before they'll be saying gold costs its weight in groceries.

I don't know what it costs to keep our defense program really healthy, but I know what it costs to restore a man to health, especially if he has to go to the hospital for any length of time. It's enough to put him back in the hospital.

Everything just costs a lot more these days, everything, that is, except some of the things I produce out here, and if it was left to me, they'd be higher too.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Cadillac

Without Precedent... Even Among Cadillacs!

It has long been understood that the one true way to judge a Cadillac is to measure it against another Cadillac!

And yet, even this historic yardstick is not completely applicable for 1959. For this newest "car of cars" is without precedent—even among Cadillacs!

Standing regally at the curbside, in motion on the highway, or making its grand entrance at some distinguished event—its majestic new styling is always the subject of untinged admiration.

Cadillac's new fabrics and leathers are breath-taking to behold... appointments are crafted with a jeweler's care... and its interiors are so spacious that entering and leaving are accomplished with wonderful ease and grace.

And the car is easy to handle, so obedient and responsive to the touch and so smooth and silken in action that even the longest journey is a pleasure to anticipate—and a joy to recall.

Without precedent, did we say?

Well, we'll have to confess that there are some ways in which this new Cadillac is very much like its distinguished predecessors. There is the great quality of its craftsmanship, for instance... its remarkable dependability... and its extraordinary economy of ownership.

But with these happy exceptions, Cadillac for 1959 is clearly in a class all of its own!

So whether you are looking forward to your first Cadillac—or your fifth—or even your tenth—you have a great discovery ahead of you.

We suggest you visit your dealer soon for a personal demonstration of this brilliant new Cadillac.

About Your Health

A precedent-setting venture in chronic disease management has been launched by the State Department of Health. Immediate beneficiaries are 12,000 patients housed in Texas' 357 licensed nursing and convalescent care homes.

Built around nutritional and nursing needs of patients, the program promises to be the biggest boon to their health and comfort since passage of the nursing home licensure law in 1953. It works like this:

On request of county health officers and local health department directors, a nutritionist, a chronic disease nurse and two sanitarians instruct local health department staffs and nursing home operators in proper care of elder citizens, many of them disabled by chronic illness to the point of being bedfast.

A physio-therapist will be added to the team later. Many people are lying helplessly in bed, dependent on others for every need. With help they might learn to feed and bathe themselves—making the difference between optimism and despondency.

The program is purely educational, intended solely to help local communities meet their responsibilities toward aged and infirm citizens.

Half the course is spent in explaining and demonstrating to local health department staff members what their tasks are regarding nursing homes in the county, and in detailing how those tasks can be accomplished.

Standards which homes must meet before being licensed are carefully discussed. Nurses are taught how to handle chronic disease patients. Sanitarians are encouraged to make frequent inspections, and to impress on home operators the importance of scrupulous personal and premise cleanliness and improved nursing care.

The object of such instruction is to help local health department personnel become prominent in assisting and advising nursing home operators in providing higher standards of care.

Operators come in for their share of attention in a section of the course designed to meet daily problems they encounter. Discussion subjects, selected by operators themselves, range from records the law require to be kept to special diets.

As an adjunct service, the Department provides food purchasing guides showing the amount and type of food needed for aged men and women, and evaluation guides for weekly menus.

Time has dealt harshly with most nursing home residents. The State Health Department is determined to help them hold onto the threads of their old dignity.

Tech's Next SWC Game With A&M

LUBBOCK—Texas Tech's basketballers, one game out of first place in the Southwest Conference race, will be sidelined by mid-term examinations until Jan. 31, when the Raiders meet Texas A&M in Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

To be regionally televised—but blacked out in Lubbock—the contest is scheduled for 2 p.m.

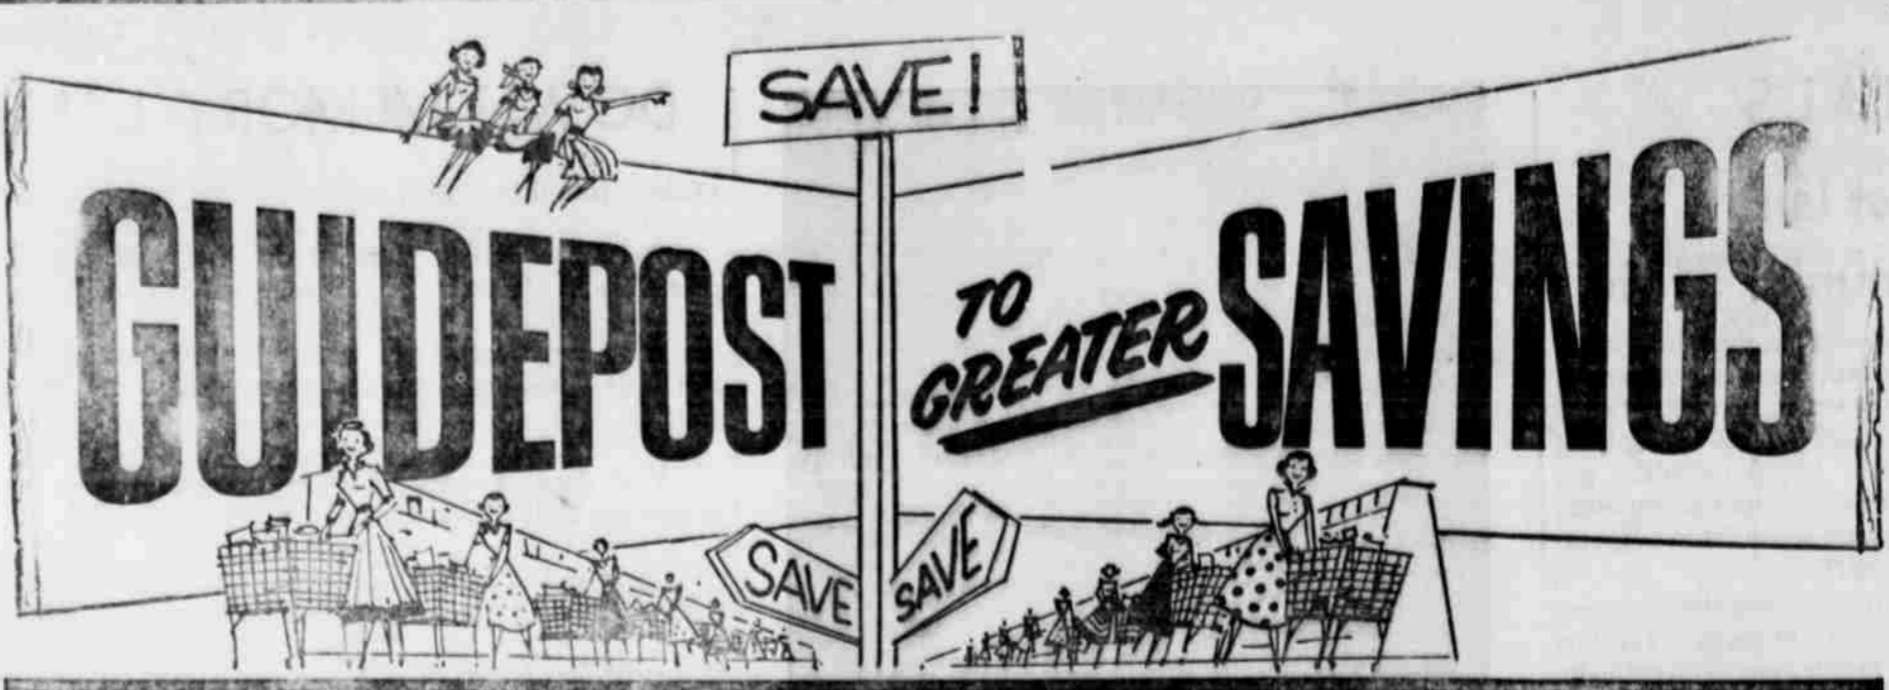

Texas Tech pulled to within a game of league-leading Texas Christian University by edging the Horned Frogs 61-57 here last week. TCU was ahead only once during the game, in the closing stages, but Gerald Myers of Borger sank two free throws with the score knotted 54-54 with four minutes remaining to send Tech ahead for keeps. Myers and the two Sudan products, Leon Hill and Charlie Lynch, played the full 40 minutes for Tech and led the scoring.

Tech's fresh came from behind in the final minute to down the Ince Oilers 74-69.

The TCU crowd totaled 10,000. Jimmie Wilson, business manager of athletics, said that reserved tickets are still available for Tech's remaining home games.

PAY FOR SECRETARIES DEBATED—One of the first issues for debate in the 56th Legislature was pay for secretaries of Senate and House members. Generally accepted rate is $14 per day for Senate secretaries and $10 for the House. But a resolution must be passed setting amounts of the salaries, at the beginning of each session. Rep. Obie Jones of Austin said House secretaries should receive $12 a day because the $10-a-day figure was embarrassing to House secretaries when they met their Senate counterparts during coffee breaks. Rep. R. H. Cory of Victoria pointed out that the state couldn't afford the increase. "Maybe," he said, "we'll have to pay them out of our own pockets," and he pointed out that not all Senate secretaries received $14—that some of them were paid as low as $7 per day.

Wood Takes Part In Army Alert

Army PFC Richard L. Wood, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Teddy L. Wood, Duncanville, recently participated with the 101st Airborne Division in a special STRAC (Strategic Army Corps) alert at Fort Campbell, Ky. The week-long alert ended Jan. 17.

The 101st Airborne Division, a major STRAC unit, constantly maintains an immediate readiness for airborne deployment to any area in the world. The first company can be ready for operations within two hours after receiving an alert. A second company can be ready to follow in one hour within six hours a reinforced battle group of 1700 men can be airborne.

Wood is an assistant rocket-launcher gunner in Company A of the division's 300th In entry, entered the Army in June 1957 and received basic training at Fort Polk, La.

He is a 1955 graduate of Dimmitt High School and a former student at Southwestern State College in Weatherford, Okla. His wife, Karen, lives in Clarksville, Tenn.

WINNERS AT DUNCANVILLE—Coach Curly Risinger's Bula girl's basketball team won top honors at the Duncanville Women's AAU Basketball Tournament during the Christmas holidays, defeating North Hopkins, defending Class B state champs, in the finals. Last year the team won second place, after taking first the year before. The win over North Hopkins avenged a loss to the same team last year. Each girl on the squad received a medal and two girls brought back individual trophies. Opal Bogard, the outstanding guard of the tournament,

Home Training In Safety May Save Lives Later On

By J. O. MUSICK
General Manager
Texas Safety Association

Like charity, safety should begin at home—then followed up at school and in the community. Regrettably, far too few parents realize the importance of proper home training in the development of safety habits. Habits that may in later years mean the difference between a healthy, fruitful life or one of injury, regret and possibly, an early death.

By proper home training I don't mean just plain, "No! No! Johnny—that'll hurt." Certainly, the kind I'm speaking of requires discipline and the detestation of the d— and—don't type but the most important lessons will be learned from parental example.

Tell a child to be careful when riding a bicycle, or not to dash into the street, is of little avail if he sees father driving past a stop sign, or mother jay-walking to the dress shop across the street.

If you doubt that parents are safety thoughtless, ask any school patrol boy. He will tell you that it is generally the parents who have the least regard for traffic safety rules; it is the parents who do the double-parking; "I have to get back home; it's only for a minute; an infintum), who get out from the wrong side of a car or disregard crosswalk markings.

Any one of these, and dozens of other such careless habits, are not of tremendous importance when singled out, but when viewed in the whole—as a child might do—they build an attitude in the youngster's mind, one of careless respect that lasts a lifetime.

Without question, a universal respect of safety rules, for the common good is the ultimate answer to our safety problems—whether they be at work, play, home or in traffic.

How great is the need for proper traffic safety training? It is great enough that if our present traffic habits go unchallenged we can expect every second pre-school child in Texas, today, to experience a traffic accident before he or she reaches voting age.

Let me sound like an alarmist, let me hasten to add that such a statement isn't so far fetched in the light of present facts.

This year, according to Texas Safety Association records, two and a half-million Texans will operate more than four and a quarter-million motor vehicles in excess of forty-billion miles. And, in so doing, they will pile up a total of nearly 275-thousand accidents. The cost? It has been conservatively placed at $275-million.

Indeed, this is not a bright picture and promises to worsen as Texas population increases with greater and greater rapidity.

What can we do to extricate ourselves from the horns of this traffic dilemma? The first step should be taken in the home, through consistent safety training by both parents. Secondly, by careful examples. Finally, by combining the first two steps to build healthy safety attitudes.
