P-T. A. MEETING

Very Interesting Meeting of Ladies Held Last Friday

The Parent-Teachers Association met Friday afternoon in the auditorium with a large number of members and visitors in attendance.

Mrs. W. G. Street, president presided over the meeting and a splendid program was rendered, wherein Mrs. Allen made a talk on physical education, Mrs. E. A. Bills on "Intellectual Advantages I Would Have My Child Enjoy", Mrs. F. A. Butler on "Choosing Association for our Children", Mrs. B. B. Liles on "The Importance of Retaining the County Health Nurse and Home Demonstration Agent", and Mrs. Charles Harless read an interesting berlesque on "How to Raise a Child."

In the business session a number of important items were brought before the association and a number of committees were appointed.

LITTLEFIELD HAS AN UP-TO-DATE MODERN DAIRY

That Littlefield can boast of a modern dairy, is a fact presented by a visit to the Home Dairy, which is operated by B. B. Moulton, one and one-half miles east of Littlefield.

Two Empire milking machines have recently been installed, which are run by a vacuum system from a one and one-half power gasoline engine, enabling the operator to milk 30 cows within an hour.

The milking machines empty into containers which hold six gallons each and have a vacuum port, making the container air tight while the machine is in operation and when the machine is cut off the top is released in order to empty the containers, all of which assures strict sanitation. From there the milk is carried to a nearby vat, where bottles have been well sterilized in vats of hot water, and later put to cool in a vat of water just fresh from a mill, where sweet, fresh milk can be obtained at all hours of the day. All containers are kept in perfect cleanliness and in accordance with the state sanitation law.

BUSINESS CHANGE

Roy Hairston, of Chilton, and J. H. Cunningham of Breckenridge, closed a deal with J. H. Pope, Friday, wherein they purchased the City Tailor Shop, and are now in charge of the management.

Both parties are experienced in tailor work, having owned shops before coming to Littlefield. They are well pleased with the choice of their location and the promising future of Littlefield.

the large majority of citizens Lamb county are urgently in favor of continuing the work of the Home Demonstration Agent County Health Nurse in Lamb county was the unanimous opinion expressed last Friday night in a demonstration meeting held in Littlefield attended by representative citizens from all over the county.

The meeting was opened by a stirring address by Dr. P. W. Horn, president of West Technological College, in which he stated he was glad to speak in behalf of the health of the American home.

He expressed it as his opinion that the average county official wanted to know what their constituents desired, but sometimes they were misled and he hoped such was the case in this instance. "There is no easier way in the world to save money," he said, "than by lopping off certain expenses; but sometimes that is not the best thing to do. The withholding of money for certain worthy purposes is sometimes very poor economy, and it is always poor economy to do without the things that mean for better health and living conditions."

Miss Myrtle Murray, district home demonstration agent, from College Station, declared that every home to which it ought to be should be physically, socially, mentally and spiritually healthy—and this is the result of results that are being brought about by the county home demonstration agent. The work means neater and better appointed homes, better and more of the proper food for the family, better clothing for the household members—and all at a considerable saving in dollars and cents.

She gave figures to prove that the saving in canning of just two clubs in the county had more than paid the county's share of the home demonstration agent's salary during the last year.

Miss Esar Grimes, the county demonstration agent, read her program for this year, told of the number of women and girls interested in her club work.

Miss Katherine Hagquist, district state nurse from Austin explained the work of her department and how it was supported. She told how the county health nurses went about organizing health clubs, helping mothers and children toward better health.

Miss Beryl Kaigler, Lamb county health nurse told of her work throughout the county, of how she had made nearly 1700 calls in homes to give instructions during the few months she had been in the county.

G. M. Shaw, who led in the round table discussion, declared he thought it would be exceedingly unfortunate if Lamb county should have to give up the work of these two departments at this time. He said Lamb county was the first to install a county health nurse, but since that time seven other counties on the South Plains had in-

LAND SALES AND IMPROVEMENT IS CONTINUED HERE

Notwithstanding drouth conditions and poor crops in east and central Texas, the South Plains country and especially in the vicinity of Littlefield continues to be attractive to new buyers anxious to get a home in this prosperous section while homes are available at such reasonable prices.

Never a week goes by now but there are numerous prospectors arriving in Littlefield to be taken out by some of our local real estate dealers to look over these fertile acres, and very seldom is it that a prospector goes away without becoming a buyer. Every week witnesses great truck loads of household goods arriving—some new settler moving onto his recently purchased farm, every day carloads of immigrant outfits—household furnishings, farming implements and live stock, come in over the Santa Fe. Every day truck and wagon loads of lumber are hauled out from the local lumber yards to begin the erection of new homes and other farm improvements. The well drillers of this section are all busy, the implement houses are being swamped with orders for tractors, plows, wagons, and other farming tools. It is all indicative of the continued prosperity that smilingly hovers over this section. Here everyone is optimistic of the future. The assets of the country have long ago been thoroughly demonstrated and established. There is no doubt as to the fertility of the soil, the purity of the water, the sufficiency of the rainfall, the length of the seasons nor the energy of the populace. It has been proven long ago, that while conditions may vary here somewhat as they do elsewhere yet in general this is a dependable country indeed, superior and more satisfying than any other portion of the southwest that is now bidding for new citizens. Among recent sales made by Littlefield realtors the Yeager-Chesher Land Co., report the following:

J. N. Killingsworth, from Oklahoma, 160 acres of Spade land. He will move here this winter and begin improvements.

J. T. Downing, Wichita county, 80 acres of Spade land.

S. E. Darby, Taylor county, 160 acres of Spade land.

Chas. Gallis, south Texas, 177 acres 8 miles of Littlefield. He has already begun breaking out 100 acres and is putting up a set of improvements.

W. W. Barber, Lubbock county, 160 acres of Spade land. He will start improving this winter.

T. B. Phares and O. H. Lee, Lamb county, 177 acres 8 miles west of Littlefield.

MY CITY AND I

My city is where my home is founded, where my vote is cast, where my children are educated, where my neighbors dwell and where my life is chiefly lived.

My city wants my citizenship—not partizanship, friendliness—not dissention; sympathy—not criticism; my intelligent support—not indifference.

My city supplies me with law and order, trade, friends, education, recreation and the right of a free-born American. I should believe in my city and work for it.

AND I WILL!

EX-SERVICE MEN ATTENTION

Compensation Blanks May Be Filled Out By Dr. Simpson

Dr. J. D. Simpson, local examining physician for the United States Veterans Bureau, advises that all ex-service men, who have not already made application for adjusted compensation to which they are entitled, may do so by appearing at his office where he has been supplied with sufficient blanks.

In neglecting this important thing, in case of death of an ex-service man, who has not made necessary application, his survivors receive only about one-third the amount to which they are entitled.

This is a matter well worth consideration and the services are voluntarily rendered by Dr. Simpson.

ORGANIZE HARMONY CLUB

High School Music Pupils Elected Officers Last Week

The high school music pupils of Miss Nannie Thelma Wardlow met Wednesday of last week and organized a music club and the following officers were elected: Bobbie Lee Skipworth, president; Lillian Hopping, vice-president; Carmelita Baze, secretary-treasurer and reporter, and Undyne Beebe, chairman of committee for constitution and by-laws.

A decision was made that when a member is absent from the club meeting without an excuse, a penalty of ten cents must be paid. The monthly dues will be the sum of 25 cents.

SINGING AT LUM

There will be an all day singing at Lum's Chapel next Sunday, Nov. 29th. Everyone is invited to tune up their voice, bring it along with them together with a basket of good eats, and enjoy the day.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH BUILDING BEING CONSTRUCTED NOW

Despite the fact that on account of difficulty in securing skilled labor the First Christian church could not be completed in a day, as was anticipated, a fine start was made and volunteer services were secured from about 15 workmen.

Rev. C. C. Curtis, state evangelist and Joyce Thomas, assistant evangelist, who are conducting a meeting here, are both engaged in the work on the church, although, it is considerably out of their usual routine. They are skillfully driving the nails to assist in bringing the church to completion, which will be ready for services Sunday, where both morning and evening services will be held. Evening services through this week have been postponed because of work on the church, but will be resumed next week and continue indefinitely.

The ladies of the church served dinner in the yard of Mrs. Gholson, near the church building, both Tuesday and Wednesday to the workmen.

PUTTING IN BASEMENT

Excavation has been completed and work is progressing rapidly on the concrete basement 40x92, which is being built for W. H. Heinen, just west of his coal yard.

When the work is completed it will be one of the finest of its kind in Littlefield.

Help keep Littlefield clean!

METHODIST PLAN BUILDING OF A PARSONAGE SOON

At a meeting of the stewards of the First Methodist church, recently held in the office of A. G. Hemphill, at which time they organized for the year, A. G. Hemphill was elected chairman and C. J. Duggan was elected secretary-treasurer of the board, which consists of the following: A. G. Hemphill, J. T. Elms, C. C. Burns, T. Wade Potter, C. J. Duggan, A. L. Shive, Mrs. W. W. Gillette and Mrs. W. H. Gardner.

This is probably the only board of stewards in this section that has the honor of having two lady members.

The board met again, Monday evening, in a business and social session, at the home of Mrs. W. H. Gardner, at which time the new pastor, Rev. H. G. Scoggins was present, also B. L. Cogdill superintendent of the Sunday school, who was present at both meetings.

One of the first undertakings of the church for the new year will be the building of a parsonage, work on which will probably start at an early date.

The outlook for the coming year is very encouraging and a number of important tasks are hoped to be accomplished.

SCHEDULE CHANGE IN RUNNING TIME OF SANTA FE RY.

An important change in the time and improved passenger train service over the Santa Fe in the running time of the east bound passenger train between Los Angeles and Galveston and other divisions, and minor changes in west bound schedules, will take effect Sunday, November 29.

The east bound passenger train, No. 92, through here will arrive at 12:17 a. m. and only a minor change will be made in the west bound passenger train.

The new schedule was prepared with an eye toward giving the Panhandle and Plains more desirable arriving and departing time and for the convenience of the traveling public.

A new time table for all divisions will be issued in the near future.

GOVERNMENT COTTON REPORT

Late Report Received Here Show Increase in Ginnings.

The government report issued Saturday, November 21st, on probable yield of cotton as of November 14th received here by Burleson-Mason Company is as follows: 15,298,300 bales, total ginnings 12,849,935. This compares with an indicated production of 15,386,000, and ginnings of 11,198,660 on November 1st, against a total crop of 13,623,000 last year. The estimate of the Texas crop this year is 4,050,000.

Meeting of Cotton Farmers Regarding Pure Seed Selection Will Be Held In Littlefield Monday Night

Feeling the necessity of close cooperative action among the farmers of this section, and especially the farmers who raise cotton principally, a meeting has been called for at the Lee theatre, in Littlefield, next Monday night, November 30, beginning promptly at eight o'clock, for the purpose of discussing cotton raising on the South Plains for next year.

The opinion has been expressed by several farmers of this vicinity that it would be to the interest of the growers if they would centralize their planting on some three or four chosen and well proven varieties of staple adaptable to plains climatic conditions. It is a known fact that in the experiments carried on by the State Experiment Station at Lubbock that certain varieties of cotton have proven far superior in their production than some others. It is also known that altitude affects certain varieties of cotton more than others; that some types and breeds of cotton are of a hardier quality than others; while there are breeds that mature quicker than others.

Last year many of the farmers of this section bought their seed from irresponsible parties, consequently their crop production this year was not as great as it might have been if the purchase of the right varieties and seed of proper breeding and raising had been secured. This unfortunate condition should not prevail another year.

Considerable data has been secured by representatives of the local Chamber of Commerce regarding cotton production on the South Plains and it is desired that every farmer of this community interested in a more successful cotton crop next year be sure to attend this meeting next Monday night.

Chamber of Commerce Launches Big Campaign Twentyfour Executives Have Complete Charge

This week a campaign is being launched in Littlefield by the Chamber of Commerce for more man power and increased finances. Twenty-four men have been selected as the governing body for the campaign. They are leading business men, and will have full charge of all plans and activities.

The plan of campaign will be that recommended by the United States Chamber of Commerce and by the American City Bureau. A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, will oversee the works, and as he has used the plan successfully before, the local committee is anticipating satisfactory results in Littlefield.

The executive committee is composed of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce and other members of that body, as follows: E. A. Bills, A. C. Chesher, G. M. Shaw, A. P.

HI-Y CLUB WILL BE REPRESENTED AT STATE MEET

At the recent organization of the Hi-Y, a club composed of the older boys of the High School, which is being sponsored by Principal F. O. Boles and Garland Lewis, officers were elected namely: Howard Robinson, president; Floyd Hemphill, vice-president; Charles Glenn, chaplain; Lee Pool, secretary-treasurer and Roy Bennett, reporter.

The Hi-Y is fostered by the Y. M. C. A. and the four principals on which it stands are: clean speech, clean scholarship, clean athletics and Christian manhood.

Regular meetings will be held each Friday afternoon and banquets will be held every other Tuesday evening at 7:30, which will be served in the school diningroom by the home economics class, where discussions will be held on duty, courtesy, building of character and other subjects fundamental to promote the four principals mentioned. Music and humorous selections will intersperse the program. These will all go to aid the boy in learning to talk before public gatherings and stimulate self-confidence.

Ladies night will be observed at two banquets of the year, where the members are privileged to invite their friends. An evening will also be given to a father and son banquet. Plans are now being formulated for a meeting of this kind to be held before Christmas, where the fathers will be guests of the occasion.

Much interest is being manifest by both sponsors and the students enrolled in the work and state affiliation and a charter is hoped to be obtained this year.

Plans are being made to send a group of representatives to the state meeting to be held at A. & M. college in the spring.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

The Vocational Agriculture classes are doing some very good work in classing and stapling cotton. For practice the boys are given 30 samples of cotton from 30 separate bales and they are required to name the grade of the sample, to determine the length of staple and with half the class buyers and half sellers, they figure the price of the entire lot on the basis of the length of staple and the grade of the sample. It is not the intention of the instructor to make cotton buyers of the boys rather is it his intention to make more intelligent sellers of the staple raised on their own farms.

The class is also doing some intensive work in judging poultry, hogs and cattle. This aside from its practical value on the farm, is being done in preparation for the vocational contests that are to be held in the spring at the A. & M. college, W. T. S. T. C. and at the Texas Tech. The latter contest is being sponsored by Mr. W. R. Stangel, formerly with A. & M. college and it promises to be one of the best in the state after the college gets better organized for the work.

The Lubbock Experiment Station has agreed to furnish seed at a very nominal price to the boys that are taking agriculture, these to be used in their home project work. The Improved Mebane and the Westex are the two varieties that the station has found best for the plains and most of the boys having cotton will use one of these varieties. If there are farmers in the community that would like to get these varieties for their next years planting they may secure these by making their reservations early before the supply is exhausted.

Use of Power on Farms, Big Item

Agricultural Worker Able to Till Three Times as Many Acres.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

As a result of the increased use of power and labor-saving machinery in farming operations and the opening of new lands well suited to the use of machinery the average agricultural worker in the United States is now able to care for almost three times as many acres of crops as an individual could handle 75 years ago, according to a study recently made by the division of agricultural engineering of the United States Department of Agriculture. At the same time the hours of labor on the farm have been reduced and farmers have been relieved of much of the monotony and drudgery which formerly characterized their work.

Power and labor together account for approximately 90 per cent of the total cost of farming and a better knowledge of the power requirements of farm operations and the adoption of more efficient types of power units will do much to cut down production costs.

Second Only to Railroads.

The primary horse power available for use on farms is greater than that used in mining and manufacturing and is second only to that required for railroads. The total power used annually on farms amounts to nearly 16,000,000,000 horse-power hours and the annual cost amounts to a total of nearly $3,000,000,000.

Up to the present little scientific study has been made of the basic power requirements of various farm operations. Although the plow is one of the oldest agricultural tools for which power is required, the fundamental requirements of plow design are still unknown and no satisfactory method of measuring the actual work done by a plow has yet been discovered. The University of Wisconsin has conducted experiments which show that it is possible to run an ensilage cutter with one-half the power ordinarily used by this machine simply by employing proper speeds and an improved blower.

Farm power is derived from animals, gas engines, (including tractors, trucks and automobiles) steam engines and electric, wind and water motors. Up to about sixty years ago little power other than that furnished by animals was available to farmers. The small gas tractor, the truck, the automobile and electric power have only become important as sources of farm power within the last ten or twelve years.

The estimated total numbers of power units now on farms in the United States is as follows:

Horses	15,914,000
Mules	4,454,000
Oxen	200,000
Tractors	450,000
Trucks	254,000
Stationary engines	2,500,000
Electric installations	500,000
Windmills	1,000,000
Automobiles	4,500,000

Great opportunities exist for the cutting down of the cost of farm operations through the reduction in the labor requirements of each operation and by a better application of the power used. Before such savings can be effected, however, it is necessary to make a thorough study of the basic power requirements, and of the factors which affect these requirements. Among these are: Climate, character of the soil, depth of plowing, cultivating, etc.; condition of the crop, size of fields, size and type of power units needed and mechanical efficiency of the tools or machines employed by the farmer.

Topography a Factor.

Topography is a factor to be reckoned with in considering the power requirements of farms in any particular locality. In the Central West the land generally is smooth and is not cut by many streams or ravines. This condition encourages the laying out of large fields and makes possible the use of large machines and power units. In Eastern and Southern states, however, the land is frequently hilly and cut by ravines and streams making small and irregular-shaped fields necessary. This, of course, discourages the use of large machines and results in a predominance of small farms.

Probably the most serious drawback to the efficient use of power in agriculture is the extreme seasonal demand. In each type of farming followed there is usually some single operation which requires a large amount of power for a limited time and it is usually this operation which determines the minimum amount of primary power that must be available. In the corn or cotton belt the operation requiring the maximum power is that of planting or cultivating—in hay or small grain it is harvesting. Such conditions result in what is termed a low-power load factor and a high cost per unit of power utilized. The peak load could frequently be reduced by reducing the acreage of the crop which requires this power, but as a rule the farmer is justified in retaining such a high acreage of the crop in question because of the relatively high net returns which may more than offset the higher cost of power used in this operation.

Other factors which have an important effect on the efficiency of farm power are the diversity of operations and the small power unit commonly employed under the control of one worker.

Thanksgiving of 1714 Made Matter of Record

The following account of a Thanksgiving dinner held in Danvers, Ill., in 1714, from the pen of Rev. Lawrence Conant, has been handed down to posterity:

"When ye services at ye meeting house were ended ye council and other dignitaries were entertained at ye house of Mr. Epes on ye hill near by, we had a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner of bear's meate and venison, the last of which was from a fine buck shot in the woods nearby. After ye blessing was craved by Mr. Garrich word was brought that ye buck was shot on ye Lord's day by Pequot, an Indian, who came to Mr. Epes with a lye in his mouthe like Ananias of old. Ye council therefore refused to eat ye venison, but it was afterward decided that Pequot should receive 40 stripes save one for lying and profaning ye Lord's day, restore Mr. Epes ye coste of ye deer, and considering this a just and righteous sentence on ye sinful heathen and since ye blessing had been craved on ye meate, ye council all partook of it, but Mr. Shepard whose conscience was tender."

A BOY'S OPINION ON THANKSGIVING

When I go out to parties
I never eat all I can,
Yet they say that I must grow
So I'll become a strong man.

When I go out to dinner
I have to be too polite
Yet if I don't grow a lot
I'll be a miserable sight.

Once a year I get a chance
And add strength and height this way.

I don't think boys could ever be men
Were it not for Thanksgiving Day!

WHAT THANKSGIVING SHOULD MEAN TO US

Pilgrim Men and Women at Plymouth Set Example.

THANKSGIVING is a day unique in the list of holidays—not perhaps, so unique in its conception as in the meaning which the day has come to have. We think of it as a day of getting together. The dinner is its symbol. Faith in the goodness of God and a reverent and formal prayer of thanksgiving for His bounty is its avowed purpose.
But its greatest profit to us may come from the thoughts it invokes of that little band of hardy men and women who knew what it meant to face hunger; to know hunger and stick to an appointed task. That task appended to be the opening up of that new land which was destined to provide so bountifully for you and me who have inherited it.
They were stickers—those from whom this heritage has come down.
Hardy? Yes; but with a ruggedness that was not alone a physical attribute.
They experienced the primal lessons:
want, fear, and the need of strife.
But they stuck. And they won. That first Thanksgiving day was for them a solemn rite. If they—that band of Pilgrim men and women—could feel so honestly thankful for God's bounty as it was measured out to them at Plymouth in 1621, what one of us in this day and generation but needs to be ashamed to feel less. It was a solemn occasion, but how could they else but be happy? Let us be happy on this Thanksgiving day. But, roo, let us not forget.—Frank H. Sweet.

Mrs. J. Norton, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Duggan, left Thursday for her home at Fort Worth. She was taken by C. J. Duggan to Lubbock where she took the train.

A THANKSGIVING

—by W. H. PIERCE

WE THANK thee, thou Most High, for youth,
For, though 'tis fleeting, yet forsooth
'Tis filled with freshness and with hope,
And all unfathomed is the scope
Of pain, of sorrow, or of sin,
And sordid cares ne'er enter in
The bright young years, and naught is seen
Save through the rosy, golden sheen
That shimmers in the summer sun.
Hope wins the race before 'tis run,
And knows, though skies may weep today,
The morrow's sun will drive away
All clouds. And so we say, in truth,
We thank thee, thou Most High, for youth.

WE GIVE thee, Master, thanks for age.
The whitened hair that marks the gauge
Placed on our brows by passing years
Tells us our weary journey nears
Its ending, and our backward glance
Is keen and searching, lest perchance
Some stumbling-block of ours be placed Athwart the path some spool has traced,
The morrow—that is left with thee,
For we have learned humility;
We know ourselves; this lesson taught
By hard experience, has brought
The weary sojourner his wage.
We give thee, Master, thanks for age.

WE GIVE thee, Father, thanks for death.
Relying on thy word, which saith
"I am thy way," we take thy hand,
And, by thy side, just waiting, stand Ready the little step to take
'Tween Here and There; to sleep, to wake,
To live again, and so to learn
The lessons from which now we turn
As deep and far beyond our ken,
We blind, unseeing sons of men;
We do not hear, we cannot see
And, helpless, can but turn to thee,
O, Father, and with trembling breath,
We thank thee most of all for death.

Why is it that the fellow who tells a story before marriage that he would like to see her see to be kicked out of bed before he'll get up and make a fare for her after marriage?

Another combination that helps to fill up the newspapers these days is a nut at the steering wheel, a peach at his side and a sharp turn in the road.

BLEDSOE GROWING FAST

First Train Will Be Run in There
On December 1st.

"If It's Said So, It's Bledsoe," would be a pretty good motto for the tremulous town of the new Santa Fe railroad running out of Doud, according to persistent information coming in regarding the development of that new municipality.

About a month ago Littlefield citizens visited the Bledsoe townsite, but that was about all there was to be seen. Last week some of them made a second visit and were surprised to find 125 buildings either up or in the process of erection.

The Santa Fe expects to run its first train into Bledsoe on the first day of December, and thereafter regular schedule will be maintained.
Then the town will really begin its development. The railroad depot is now completed and the agent has been selected. A school house has been erected, the teacher employed and school will begin November 31st.
Real estate dealers report that land is selling rapidly in that vicinity and some of the recent purchasers have already established residences.

Thanksgiving Praise

Alone, dear Lord, of all my nights and days
I cannot sing Thy goodness, far too vast
For my weak utterance. Let me
humbly cast
Upon the sweep of universal praise
My single tribute; let the morning raise
My anthems for me, let the storied past,
In varied hallelujahs nobly massed,
Exalt the infinite story of Thy ways,
Where'er the blossoms glad in loveliness Reflect Thy beauty, or the bird's bright song
Has holy skill the Father's love to bless,
Or where the shining stars through ages long
The soul of worship silently express,
Grant me a lowly place in that thank-giving throng.

Lampasas—The Heart of Texas
Band Association met recently in Lampasas with an estimated visiting attendance of 2,000 people. Seven towns were represented with their bands, all arriving before the noon hour. A barbecue was served to the visiting crowd by the Lampasas municipal band. Each band rendered an individual concert consisting of three or four numbers, after which a massed concert was given under the leadership of T. L. Callaway of Brady, with more than seventy-five musicians participating. The association will hold their next meeting in Mason in March.

Slaton—More than 100 business awarded here. There will be eighty-making a total of 209 rooms for the Hotel. The annex, when completed, will cost around $125,000.

Clyde—A farmer living near Clyde gathered 211 bushels of Porto Rico Yams from one acre of land. The land was fertilized some but the potato plants received no special cultivation. With yams selling around $1 per bushel the crop is somewhat a profitable one.

LOOKING BACK FIFTY YEARS

Fifty years ago this year a national system was started in the United States.

Today Americans have on deposit an asset to check or drawing interest the un-sum of $60,000,000,000

If you do not own a part of that vast you can still profit through the experience
ers. You can still make your dollars work for —and a working dollar is the only dollar having.

Or you can do your boy or girl a wonderful favor by taking even one dollar and starting account for them—and then teaching them thrift and saving has made the United States most prosperous, the most contented, the happiest nation in the world.

The Texas Utilities Company

It Supplies Light and Power
Without Effort on Your Part

That is one of the reasons why service of electricity is growing so fast.
It meets the definition of "an essential public service."

No community that expects to grow can get along without electric light and power. No community can grow unless its electric service grows ahead of it to make its growth possible.

Supplying electric power and light is not selling a commodity. It is doing service. This service must be ready every minute of the day. It must be ample to meet all demands. It must be supplied to all alike.

These things about this service lend it the great public interest that attend
it. They are the things that make it desirable for the community and its people and electric utility management to understand each other fully and be perfectly frank with each other.

This company seeks that kind of co-operation with the people that it serves.

The Thanksgiving Myth
 by Jane Osborn

DORA LOUISE GRAYSON, in spite of caressing brown bobbed hair and starry blue eyes, found herself at twenty-five a full-fledged doctor of medicine, working in the clinic of the Children's hospital. Somehow, worn, anxious mothers looked at her with so much trust and so much confidence, she wondered how it had all come about. Sometimes she doubted her own powers of endurance to go on.

Talmadge Scott, after several false starts and several years of business, at thirty found himself in possession of his degree of doctor of medicine. He wondered sometimes how it had ever occurred to him that he could possibly be anything else besides a doctor.

For several weeks Doctor Scott had been stopping every day at the Children's hospital to speak to Doctor Grayson, who received her little patients in the room right across the corridor from the small operating rooms where he worked two hours every morning. In all his life he had never known a woman doctor before; he tried to imagine, but could not conclude, what sort of person she must be.

"Clinic is closed tomorrow," he remarked the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. "I suppose you will have dinner with friends."

"Thanksgiving dinner?" she queried. "I am afraid I don't feel in a very thankful mood. I'm thousands of miles from home. Do you still believe in turkey and cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie?"

"It's a pretty myth," he said.

If Dora had been a keen observer she might have noticed that a look of disappointment passed over Talmadge Scott's face, and if he had been a mind reader he might have been aware of her own disappointment. Not being so gifted they parted with a brief farewell.

Talmadge Scott knew where Dora Grayson lived. All Thanksgiving day he thought of her, in spite of efforts to put her out of his mind. Several times he found excuse to pass her apartment. At half-past six, as he felt for the first time since breakfast the need of food, he again walked by her house. It was then that he was rewarded for all his diligent waiting, for Dr. Dora Louise Grayson just then

When I began to talk about it you seemed to pounce on the idea of Thanksgiving dinners—

"And I'd made up my mind to ask you to come and have dinner in my little apartment with me. I was so anxious to cook it. But you said something about the Thanksgiving myth, so I didn't."

It was after dinner together that Dora asked Doctor Scott to her little apartment, where they talked before the cheerful glow of the open fire in her living room.

"I've always wondered just why a girl like you studied medicine?" he ventured to begin.

"I've wondered, too," said Dora. "It all seemed so wonderful and so easy in medical college. But now I'm practicing by myself, I wonder, too—"

"It seemed," Talmadge went on, "as if you were the sort of girl—the sort of girl that would want to marry—that just couldn't escape marriage—"

"But I never wanted to marry anyone but a doctor," she began, and then stopped in confusion.

And this gave Talmadge Scott the cue for his first and last proposal.

"BUFFALO BILL'S" BODY MAY BE MOVED TO CODY
 Kansas City, Mo.—There has recently been some agitation relative to moving the body of "Buffalo Bill" William F. Cody, from the summit of Lookout Mountain, Denver, Colorado, to his old home town, Cody, Wyoming. Relatives of the famous plainsman recently met in Chicago and perfected an organization of the Cody family.

At this meeting it was brought out that many relics of the famous old fighter have been assembled at Cody. Among these are the scalp of "Yellow Hand," an Indian chief whom Cody killed in combat while opposing soldiers and Indians looked on; the coat he wore when presented at the court of Queen Victoria; saddles, guns and trophies from all parts of the world, and his Masonic uniform, in which it is said, "He took more pride than in his frontier buckskins or any other garb in which he appeared."

"Buffalo Bill," was a member of Platte Valley Masonic Lodge of North Platte, Nebraska.

 The Child Study club met Wednesday afternoon in a very interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. N. L. Ball.

A short business session was held followed by a splendid program wherein a paper was read on "What the Child Means To Its Parents", by Mrs. Madry, "Baby May", by Mrs. Ball, "Oh Sleep My Babe", by Mrs. Gray, "Lullaby of An Infant Chief", by Mrs. R. L. Speight and "The Child Its Care and Nurture", by Mrs. Cundiff.

The next meeting will be held on December 9th; at the home of Mrs. E. A. Bills at three o'clock.

Messrs. Emial Gerik, Anton Rejcek and Sulak, of West, purchased material here Monday to build improvements on their land near Pep.

But They Call You Queer
 To know what you prefer, instead of humbly saying Amen to what the world tells you should prefer, is to have kept your soul alive.—New York Telegraph.

Read all the news of your town and county in the Leader, "the old home paper."

came out of the door of the apartment house.

"Are you going to dinner?" he asked, and Dora admitted that she was going out in search of something to eat. "But you don't care about the old, traditional Thanksgiving feast?" she queried. "It's funny how people have clung to the tradition."

"Isn't it?" he said, and then, "As we both seem to be going out in search of nourishment, what do you say to combining forces?"

Ten minutes later they were seated opposite each other in a white-tiled eating establishment. Dora had declined Talmadge's invitation to go to a more expensive place.

"A salad is all I want," said Dora. From a tray being borne past them came whiffs of aromatic turkey and stuffing, that somehow made Talmadge's mouth water. Yet he said, looking instantly at Dora, "Yes, a salad and tea. I think that's what I shall have, too."

So they supped together, and somehow as they ate Dora felt a funny sobbing sensation—as of intense homesickness and disappointment, and Talmadge felt a curious sort of melancholy.

After it was over and Talmadge had paid the insignificant check, they went together as far as the corner and here Dora left him.

Thirty minutes later Talmadge Scott, after some irresolution, entered the restaurant of the Sterling hotel. He allowed the head waiter to lead him in ceremony to a table near a babbling fountain. He was about to order and in search of such delicacies as turkey, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie when he noticed that the girl at the table beside him wore a hat like Dora Grayson's. Why, it was Dora Grayson! And before her there was a small platter of steaming turkey, sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce—

They exchanged smiles, and then Talmadge Scott found himself at her table sitting opposite her. Dora blushed with extreme embarrassment. "You see, I just had to have turkey. It may be a myth—all this business about Thanksgiving—but I like it."

So they feasted leisurely and happily together. Later there were explanations.

"I was going to ask you to dine with me," said Talmadge Scott, "but

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL
 By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
 Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

GIVEN TO HOSPITALITY
 THE Grangers entertained a great deal, and they spared neither money nor domestic strength in trying to make their entertainments impressive. They had a big barn-like house filled with expensive and not always beautiful things, not excluding the various members of the Granger family, for I am sure Mr. Granger found his family a rather expensive pleasure, if not, at times, a luxury.

I have been at the Grangers' house when one or another of these social displays was on, and I found the functions interesting. The decorations were always elaborate, the viands more than sufficient, and everything was managed with some ostentation. It is true, but carefully managed. Nothing was omitted which could contribute to the pleasure and comfort of the guests.

Nothing, I said—and yet I never came away from the Grangers' house feeling that there had been any especial welcome for me or any especial interest in my being there. I was one of a crowd or, even if there had been only a few guests present, I had no feeling of being at home, of being one of them.

Mrs. Johnson and her two daughters lived in a very modest little cottage, which was scarcely large enough to meet their own needs. All three of them worked and were quite generally busy with their work. There were only two sleeping rooms in the house, and these were needed, of course, for themselves, but they could always find a place at their little table for the chance guest, or make up a bed on the couch in the sitting room to take care of an unexpected visitor overnight, and they always left one with the impression that it was a pleasure to do these things and sometimes even a privilege.

Their meals were simple, but there was always some little article of food prepared especially to meet my taste when I was there, some special attention shown to me which indicated that they had had me in mind and had remembered my preferences and my idiosyncrasies.

One always felt a certain freedom and comfort in the Johnson house, simple as it was. There was no display, no suggestion that one's presence was giving trouble or causing any readjustment of the family affairs. One knew that he was welcome and was given the feeling that if he should come back again they would be glad.

Theirs was real hospitality.

THANKSGIVING

It is an old saying, "The better the day, the better the deed." What day could be better than Thanksgiving Day, and what deed could be better than the expression of Thanksgiving?

It is with sincere joy that we take this opportunity of expressing our deep appreciation to all our friends and customers for the liberal patronage accorded us in a business way during the past year. We trust that all of you may have much for which to give thanks, and that the Day will bring to you its richest returns.

Sincerely,

Community Building

Financial Value in Beauty of Building
 Architectural beauty has as real a commercial value as structural strength or material excellence. Over the rugged stews of steel and brick the architect evolves an adornment the beauty expressing fittingly the character desired.
 It is this beauty of design, combined with a carefully planned utility which makes buildings desirable, not only in the eyes of the owner, but in the regard, as well, of those upon whose opinion the commercial value of a building depends.
 Men pride themselves upon homes which, in their quiet beauty, reflect their owner's station in life. The building of commerce, designed along lines of refined prosperity, is, for the very character and beauty of its design, a desirable place in which to locate. The hotel which best expresses an inviting and generous hospitality, wins patronage through the appeal of attractive appearance.
 The architect, by virtue of his training and talents, understands the meaning and application of architectural design. Only he can bring out the beauty so much desired.—Chicago Evening Post.

All Business Helped by Improved Homes
 Business men and trade organizations, not directly allied with the building industries, are now taking active steps to educate the public to own and properly furnish their homes, as they realize that a demand for better homes means not only prosperity for the builder, but also added business in many retail lines.
 The advantages of this far-seeing policy are many. In the first place the householder becomes a permanent factor in the growth of the city. He is actuated to greater industry and wise economy. His trade, also, belongs to the community in which he resides. He is an asset to every retailer, and a patron to be cultivated. A nation of home owners would be a nation of stable, conservative citizens.
 One of the chief considerations in thus promoting the cause of home ownership is to discourage unwisely extravagance on the part of the owner and systematize his outlay for maintenance and upkeep so that his debts do not become burdensome.

Attractive Shrubbery
 Shrubbery planting on small places assumes three forms—the plantings at the foundation of the house, plantings in angles of walks, drives and property corners next to the public sidewalk, and the large shrubbery borders designed to give privacy and serve as screens. The shrubs used in the foundation plantings and angle plantings are generally of the low type, with perhaps a few medium height shrubs and evergreens used as accents where window arrangement would permit. Care should always be taken that material used in a foundation planting will not grow so large that it will shut out light and air. Spiraea Anthony Waterer, spiraea Froebel, deutzia gracilis, hydrangea arborescens, snow berry, Japanese barberry, Indian currant and Regal's privet are a few of many shrubs which would be safe to use in such a planting.
 The shrubbery borders as a rule require the use of all three types of shrubs—namely, the low, medium and high forms. The two lower types are generally used in front of the taller group to serve as a transition from the front to the back of the border. Many times, however, the taller varieties are allowed to stand out boldly in front or on a point to serve as an accent.

Plea for Garden Cities
 America, like European countries where the evils of urban overgrowth make themselves felt with equal or even greater force, is now confronted with the necessity of squarely facing a situation which in reality constitutes the greatest menace to our civilization. Can the garden-city idea be transplanted into American soil? Does it not conflict too violently with the hyperindividualistic tendencies of American economic life? If such is the case, would it not be possible to realize in America garden cities, of a somewhat modified but nevertheless effective type?
 This, it would seem, is well worth taking into consideration. It would serve the purpose of achieving what city planning alone, as applied to the great cities in existence, is incapable of doing—namely, effectively relieve the population pressure of the overgrown cities and improve a housing situation none too good.—New York World.

Name "Carved" in Grass
 About seventy-five years ago the owner of a farm at Phippsburg, Maine, spelled his name on the grass of a hillside by sprinkling wood ashes. The letters are several feet high and read "B. H. Rogers." In the spring when the new grass is coming up fresh and green, the letters are particularly distinct and can be read easily a long distance away. It is said that only twice since the letters were originally made have they received a fresh coating of wood ashes.

200 PATRONS CALL ON SCHOOL FRIDAY VISITATION DAY

Last Friday was a red letter day for the Littlefield schools. It was a day set aside for the visiting of parents and friends interested in the work of the local schools. Nearly 200 people availed themselves of the opportunity to call and get acquainted with the faculty, meet the teachers of their children and inspect the school buildings. With many of the visitors it was their first visit to the Littlefield schools, and not a few of them expressed their supreme surprise at the finely equipped and well appointed conditions of the handsome big buildings.
 Littlefield is justly proud of her school system. It is one of the attractive features of this town that has been strongly emphasized. The consolidated system in vogue here, has been worked out and operated in a highly efficient manner, statistics showing the system working here in a superior manner to any other school of its kind in the United States.
 In the primary department, which is now housed in its own new building, constructed last fall at a cost of $66,000, the work is progressing in a manner seldom equalled by any other similar school elsewhere. There were 114 visitors present on this occasion. That their visitation was highly appreciated is indicated by the expression of appreciation from the faculty herewith following:
 We, the faculty of Littlefield Primary school, wish to thank the parents and friends of our school children for their loyal support at all times, but especially do we thank you for your response on "Parents Day."
 We realize the fact that without your support and co-operation our school would be a failure. It is our desire to make this Primary school the very best to be found anywhere. We know with your co-operation it can be done. So come, let us work together.
 We know that when parents visit our school and become personally acquainted with their child's teacher that the bond between teacher and parent becomes stronger. We come to know each other better and to appreciate the work that is being done and the efforts that are being put forth by the teacher.
 We believe we have as strong a faculty in every sense of the word as can be found anywhere.
 Last Friday, Parents Day, we had one hundred fourteen parents and friends visit us during the day. We appreciate so much the kindly words spoken, they encourage us to go forward with new zeal and more determination in our work. Please come again and we want to invite all who are interested in a good school to come at any time between the hours of nine and three twenty.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LAUNCHES BIG CAMPAIGN

Chamber of Commerce both as to membership and financial income.

The movement has been undertaken very careful consideration of the local situation and a realization of the need for a larger and better equipped working community organization.

The executive committee feels that if Littlefield is to hold her place among the progressive communities of this section and stand out as a leader among them, it must have a stronger organization. The various communities in the State of Texas are getting stronger organizations and keen competition between cities is being manifest each year, and it depends largely upon the way a city is organized whether it shall forge to the front. The towns of the drought stricken area in east Texas are banding together stronger in chamber of commerce work now than ever before, and have begun their work for the coming year with a marvelous record for stickability. Littlefield, too, at this time, should have a better working organization to be able to meet our problems and solve them.

So long as there is a margin between what Littlefield is as a place to live and work in and what it may become, there is work for its Chamber of Commerce.

A BIT OF INFORMATION ON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A Chamber of Commerce is an organization of business men and others who share their viewpoint, to promote the commercial, industrial and civic interests of a community. It is based upon the well recognized principal that more can be accomplished by working together for a common purpose than by individual effort.

The Chamber of Commerce does not attempt to usurp the functions of a local city government, but cooperates with and assists government and all other proper agencies authorized for special purposes. Its work is to ascertain what the local problems are, formulate plans for their solution and then proceed to solve them. The problem as ascertained and determined upon form its program of activities, and committees are appointed to make the program effective to improve conditions found to need improvement and to climate evils found to exist.

As the welfare of business, namely agriculture, industry, commerce and transportation, is closely interwoven with that of the community, most of whose members are engaged in business of one of these sorts, the Chamber of Commerce gives a large part of its efforts to improving business conditions. It endeavors to increase production and purchasing power in the tributary area of the town and to bring trade from out-lying districts, improve marketing facilities, increase and improve the means of transportation in that territory, to study and apply improved merchandising methods, bring in manufacturing concerns, bring about better industrial relations, better relations between the rural business man or farmer and town business man, extend markets, and many other practical matters of interest to the business welfare of the community.

POULTRY FACTS

CURE BROODINESS IN OPEN YARD IS BEST

As the hatching season is ended the problem of broody hens will be confronting most poultry raisers for the following months.

Numerous methods have been advocated from time to time for handling broody hens. Almost every one in any neighborhood has a pet plan for breaking the hens of this condition, which is guaranteed to work. Many of these are founded on sense and will give results, while a good many are founded on abuse of the hens, which should not be practiced.

One favorite method we used to have on the farm was to dip the hens in a tub filled with water, says a writer in the Michigan Farmer. We kept them under the water just as long as we dared without drowning them. This was supposed to scare the hen so badly that she forgot about wanting to set. Sometimes it worked and sometimes it didn't. When it didn't, something else had to be tried. The broody trait of hens is not a "notion" but a natural condition in response to natural laws. The longer the hens are tolerated in this condition, the longer it will be before they return to laying and the less the profit realized from the investment.

It is foolish to think that mistreatment and abuse which breaks up the tendency is a wise one. One idea sometimes used was to starve the hens when they became broody in order to break them up and get them back to laying. We now know that this was the exact opposite to what we should have done in order to encourage early laying. What is advisable is to feed the hens liberally on a good egg ration which would within a few days have induced the hens to lay. Once laying is resumed the broody trait will disappear.

The open-yard method of breaking up broody hens is one of the most humane treatments we can give the fowls and is also most productive of results. The method is simple. A small area is fenced off in a grassy and shady corner in which a box is placed for protection in bad weather. The hens are turned loose in this yard and plenty of fresh water and feed is given, and as a rule the broodiness ceases in a short time.

Slatted and wire mesh coops in doors or out work fairly well when the hens are caught in time, but in warm weather do not give satisfaction. According to my judgment, the best method for curing broodiness is the open yard. There is less expense, work and trouble involved in this plan than in any other tried. It breaks up the birds more quickly and thus gets them back into the laying class with a minimum loss of time.

Prevent Limberneck by

Removal of Carcasses

If poultrymen would spend a little time in looking over their range during the summer months to keep it free from dead carcasses they would undoubtedly prevent a great many outbreaks of so-called "limberneck," or botulism, in poultry.

This is the advice of Dr. E. R. Beaudette, poultry pathologist of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, who says:

"At this time of the year decomposition takes place quite rapidly. Flies are attracted to carcasses and there lay the eggs which later hatch forth maggots. If these maggots are eaten by a fowl an outbreak of botulism is very apt to occur. The outstanding symptom is the limberneck, and generally the affected bird shows a bright red comb. The temperature of such a bird is usually always subnormal. This is of considerable importance in making a diagnosis. The disease is not spread from one fowl to another, and therefore can easily be controlled by eliminating the source of poisoning. It is still a question whether the maggots themselves are responsible or whether the poisoning is due to the botulinus toxin which the maggot mechanically carries.

"Ganges which are overrun with weeds or with anything that would obscure a dead carcass are more dangerous than a range relatively free from tall vegetation; hence, it is a good practice to keep weeds mowed during the summer months. Of course there is no danger of botulism in flocks that are confined to runs.

"The disease cannot be cured after marked symptoms have made their appearance, though mild cases will often make a spontaneous recovery. Epsom salts in the usual dose aids in early cases. Confinement in a cool dark place seems to give good results."

Green Feed for Fowls

If possible, rest the poultry yards for a month and grow a green crop to purify the soil. A certain amount of green food is essential to the health of the poultry. When in addition to the food value, we can have the service of purifying the soil, it is thrifty to sow oats, or wheat, or rye in the poultry yard. Even when the yards cannot be spared, and the chickens must have their usual run, by heavy seeding there will be growth enough

Improvement in All Industries

Campaign for Eradication of Tuberculosis Is Given Credit for Stimulus.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The farmers of Hillsdale county, Mich., demonstrated their practical foresight when in 1921 they decided to rid the entire county of bovine tuberculosis. It was the first county in the country to be put on this free list, the work being done in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture and the Michigan College of Agriculture. Instead of sinking into their feather bed of laurels, the people of this community have gone ahead with other improvements, stimulated by the good results of their big venture in disease eradication which has increased their returns from dairy products and breeding stock.

Economic Benefits.

Once the county had been freed of tuberculosis in its cattle herds, the economic benefits were so satisfactory that the farmers were stimulated to search for other ways of increasing the returns from their live stock. Next to the securing of healthy stock, the improvement in the quality of the animals appealed to them as being a logical step toward the realization of a better live stock industry. As a result there has been a noticeable increase in the quality of dairy stock through the use of better blood and the elimination of poor producers through keeping production records.

The most recent move, which may be said to have had its origin in the campaign against bovine tuberculosis, is a determined effort to improve the poultry flocks by the eradication of the same disease from feathered live stock and by culling out the poor producers.

Increasing Returns.

The work of poultry improvement through these means was started the past summer in one township by a representative of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, and a poultry expert from the college of agriculture, the county paying all their expenses except salaries. The culling of the first 40 flocks revealed that the average farmer, in spite of a popular impression to the contrary, was losing money on his chickens. It was found that of these flocks a little more than 40 per cent had tuberculosis. This condition is looked upon as a plausible explanation of the fact that 22 per cent of the flocks shipped from the county are found to have the disease, as flocks are particularly susceptible to the avian type of tuberculosis.

At the same time that the prevalence of tuberculosis was disclosed among the poultry flocks, other conditions were revealed which help to account for the poor results obtained. Among them are poor stock or culls, improper feeding, having pullets hatched too late in the spring, and keeping old birds. The conclusion has been reached as a result of this study of conditions that it is advisable to keep the poultry flock fenced in away from contact with other live stock on the farm.

Favor Oats Instead of

Middlings for Fattening

Wheat middlings, which many farmers buy to feed along with corn, tankage and pasture in fattening pigs, will be more expensive in the next few months than it has been before, because of the decrease in our production of cereals.

Oats can be used to replace wheat middlings to very good advantage, and are really worth more when price is considered, in making up a fattening ration for pigs. Tests made by the experiment station at the University of Illinois show that one pound of good oats is equal to one pound of wheat middlings in feeding value. R. J. Laible informs us that middlings are a valuable supplementary feed and many men feel they cannot get along without them for pigs that have recently been weaned.

For growing pigs and as a means of economy, oats can very well be used whole or ground and fed at the rate of one-half pound a day for each pig as a supplement to corn and tankage.

Normal Milk Source Is

Principally From Feed

Milk production in cows takes place normally and principally from the feed, and not by the transformation of body tissues, according to experiments conducted by Pennsylvania State college in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, college dairy department men said.

The results of the studies, which aimed to determine the relation between the amount of feed that goes into milk production and the amount that goes into tissue, have just been published by the federal department in the form of a bulletin entitled "Relative Utilization of Energy in Milk Production and Body Increase of Dairy Cows." It may be had free, as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Pure Bred Is Backbone

The pure bred sire is the backbone of one's herd, and every farmer should use one. The improvement in your stock and the increase in your income are two big arguments in his favor. It isn't always advisable to bother about paper and pedigree, but they add interest and selling value to your herd.

$75,000 IS VOTED FOR SEWERAGE IN LITTLEFIELD WED.

Littlefield's $75,000 sewerage bond issue carried Wednesday by almost unanimous vote. In fact, it was so generally conceded that the measure would carry by large odds that very few of the citizens troubled themselves to go to the polls and vote. Only 49 ballots were cast, 27 of that number being in favor of the issuance one against, and one ballot was declared mutilated by the judges and thrown out of the count.

It is understood that the City Commissioners will push the matter of selling the bonds, letting contract for construction of the system and getting it installed as quickly as possible.

WE ALL NEED IT

Do you suppose the time will ever come when some one will appear in Texas with a heart big enough and a mind keen enough and a vision broad enough and a spirit brave enough to try to harmonize all our conflicting religious views. Do you think the time will ever come when we will all be big enough to cast our religious prejudice out of our hearts and give true Christ-ianity a chance to prove its value here on earth in Texas? Do you think there is any use to hope for that day when denominationalism will get out of God's way and allow "Thy Kingdom to come on earth as it is in Heaven." How many of us pray that prayer Sunday in our churches and then walk out to blockade the answer to our own prayer every day in the week? Why, "Thy Kingdom can't come on earth as it is in heaven" so long as every one of us is determined to have it come our little human way. How many of us set our selves up both as individuals and as organized groups of individuals and in reality instead of praying "Thy will be done" in our hearts merely order God to do as we tell Him to do and bring the kingdom to earth OUR WAY?

One of the greatest problems on earth today is our religious problems and our denominational problem. It creates most of the doubts in the minds of unbelievers. It gives the Devil more loop holes to slip into our lives and our homes. It brings discord and unhappiness instead of peace and love into thousands and thousands of homes. It is the direct cause of the death of thousands of little struggling churches. It holds communities apart instead of binding them together as Christianity should do and would do if we would let it. Everybody believes in Christianity. But there are a lot of sensible people who are growing tired of religious discord and denominational strife. And then in order to live and work in peace and harmony with their neighbors and business associates they join a lodge or a club and then all the churches wonder WHY? The greatest need of all Texas and the Nation is Christian Unity.—By Phebe K. Warner.

Thanksgiving

By TOM BRADSHAW,
in Chicago Herald-Examiner.

JEHOVAH, God of lands and seas,
Of winter's winds and summer breeze,

Lead ear today while from the ranks

Of millions swells a prayer of thanks

For all that hope and faith hath brought,

For summits reached, for lessons taught,

For life and health and peace and love,

Jehovah, harken from above!

Jehovah, God of years untold,

Of saint and sinner, youth and old,

Give ear today—th' peoples stand

With thankful hearts abroad the land,

To give Thee thanks for blessings new

That come with ev'ry morning's dew—

That follow on till night is nigh,

That aid them live and help them die,

That shower on them through th' years,

That mingle happiness with tears,

That stop not till their race is run,

And centuries sing, "Thy will be done!"

COCHRAN COUNTY NEWS

J. R. Rotchstein Establishes a Paper In Adjoining County.

The Cochran County News, the first newspaper to be established in Cochran county, has come to the exchange desk of the Leader.

It is a well printed 8-page sheet, showing good typographical arrangement and well patronized with advertising, showing the appreciation of the business interests of that county for the enterprise of the management of the paper. The editor has had some 15 years experience in newspaper work, is thoroughly familiar with every detail of the business, and with the co-operation of the citizenry of that enterprising county should be eminently successful in this new enterprise.

The News is now being published from Sudan, but will soon be located in its own home at Bledsoe, the terminus of the new line of the Santa Fe railroad.

WE HAVE all heard remarks similar to the following: "Well, I don't know what I have to be thankful for! Just think of the money we have lost, and then we had to give up our dear one. It just seems like our lot is worse than anybody's!"

One, on hearing such, feels like singing. "Look all around you, find some one in need, help somebody today." We thankless creatures! The only thing that occasions such a remark is the fact that we are all blessed with too much. We are all millionaires, if we would but take into account our wonderful opportunities and the grand privileges with which God has endowed us. When one has a feeling that his is a sorrowful plight, he has only to look around to see many in worse circumstances. We are too prone to count money a great asset, and if we do not figure a large bank account on which to draw, or live in a mansion, like unto our neighbor, we are inclined to feel that our blessings are few. Money never made a home. A mansion oftentimes shelters that which falls short of being a home.

What is a home? Home is the abiding place of man. Here contentment is, and love abounds. A place where children make you glad; where children play and laughter resounds; where friends may come and take away some kindly thought to help each day.

The one great thing for which we can all be thankful, and it reaches hovel and palace, and is more pronounced than at any period since the days of our Pilgrim fathers—is the great love being manifested by humanity. We have all learned that we cannot exist, one without the other.

Water never rises above the source. The home is the source of civilization, and we have awakened to the fact that the humblest home the vilest hovel,

"Home is Where Contentment is, and Love Abounds."

have a place in the great scheme of American civilization. Truly we are our brothers' keeper; we cannot live unto ourselves nor can we rise above the source—the nucleus of civilization—the home. All our great leaders have come to this realization. The ministers are advocating social and community service—the government is backing it. The nation has failed to become christianized from within the four walls of churches, and so on every hand is a cry for social betterment—a call for the best of our talents to be used for the development of boys and girls socially. Back to the home is the slogan, for unless our homes are perfected, our community bettered and our love for humanity strengthened, our nation cannot attain the highest standard.

So for this great move we are thankful, and as we render our thanks to God, let us pledge ourselves anew, realizing more fully our responsibilities to our home, to our community and to God.

As the Editor Sees It

PRAYER

Oh Lord, give us more charity, more self-denial, more likeness to Thee. Teach us to sacrifice our comforts to others, and our likings for the sake of doing good. Make us kindly in thought, gentle in word, generous in deed. Teach us that it is better to give than to receive; better to forget our selves than to put ourselves forward; better to minister than to be ministered unto. And unto Thee, the God of Love, be glory and praise forever. Amen.—Henry Alford.

WE ARE THANKFUL

Pausing for a brief moment to look back over the year, back to the season when we last gathered a harvest, we find a multitude of reasons why the people of Littlefield and surrounding territory should be thankful.

It did not just happen that we have a good crop season, that the early planted cotton did well, that there was an abundant feed and grain harvest, that our men have found plentiful labor in field, store and the great construction that has been going on in this town and community, that our children have been enabled to continue their school studies uninterrupted, that every interest has advanced and our town and country has witnessed a development unprecedented in the history of West Texas. It is not by accident that we have prospered and come to another Thanksgiving Day with bounteous blessings and a full appreciation of them. We have labored that all these things might be so. We have lived in peace with our neighbors, and the entire world, and we have been faithful to every task to which we set our hearts and hands. No strife has sprung up in our community, rather there has been an extraordinary spirit of cooperation manifest. There have been no neighborly difference of any consequence. There have been no bickerings or friendship blights that have seriously hindered. The same Fate favors those who strive for the best has been our faithful companion, and brings us to the close of the harvest a happy thankful people.

True, sickness has come into our community and death has left its shadow in some of our homes. But over these things we have no control, and—of course, no quarrel. It is the world-plan that we must lose some of our dear ones, just as those who hold us dear must later on lose us. We have not paused to question the wisdom of this plan—we shall not pause to dispute it in the years to come. Content we are to know that all things work together for good among those who are faithful in following the Golden Rule of old, and happy we are in deed that we live in so delightfully healthful climate and that we have been spared many of the scourges, storms and blights of other sections.

The religious life, the business life, the educational and the social life of this community has been such throughout the year that every man, woman and child must be truly thankful for the privilege of living here. There may be other communities in which greater wealth is found, but we believe there are none where true happiness, the feeling of optimism and the spirit of aggression is more manifest. Our people have lived in the spirit of human brotherhood, close to each other in handclasp and smile. There has been here a spirit of mutual interest and community welfare seldom exceeded. There has been the expressed feeling of "live and let live." We are richer as a result of this, far richer than those who lose sight of friendship in a selfish desire for a fatter purse, a larger business or an increased prestige.

While 'tis true that human nature is never entirely satisfied, yet it is also true that the people of this section have much for which to be content. It is great to be a citizen of West Texas. It is greater to be a citizen of this particular spot in West Texas. We know of none more favorable, or that offers a brighter prospect. To begin to catalog all the benefits actual and potential would be a pleasant but long drawn-out task far surpassing the measure of this newspaper or the ability of its editor. Suffice it to say, that for all the blessings that have come to us as a people, we are devoutly thankful, and it is with hearts filled with happiness that we join in a song of gladness and continued hope. We join as a community in pledging anew a continuation of the same high principles of citizenship which, in a large measure has brought the reward we are now enjoying, and of which we are duly mindful as we reach this, the nation's season of Thanksgiving.

THE REAL CAUSE

Evangelist Curtis delivered a very interesting sermon last Sunday night on the subject: "Our Young Folks; Problem or Force." In the course of his sermon, he did some good desecrating and prescribed some good remedies worthy of consideration by both the old and young.

The young folks problem has become quite a force these days, and, likewise, the force of the young folks has become quite a problem, yet we believe it is capable of satisfactory solution if sufficient interest and energy is exercised. Nor are the young people entirely to blame for conditions. Very often the editor of this newspaper believes the so-called problem is as much that of the parents as it is of the children. A few days ago we read where a prominent New York attorney declared the chief cause of crime in this country today is due to the laxity of parents in rearing their children, the case of obtaining firearms, the easy methods in which bail is secured, short sentences and quick paroles and pardons. We wouldn't be surprised if many of these causes would not hold good in Texas.

It is worthy of notice that this attorney places the chief blame for crime on the laxity of parents. Correction begins at home, and parents who permit the town or city to rear their children take long chances. The youngster who can face and overcome the temptation placed in his or her path today is certainly made of superior stuff. The properly reared child occasionally falls a victim to temptation—the improperly reared child is almost certain to. Easy spending, such as the younger generation now indulges in, begets easy getting, and pretty soon conscience is shoved aside and the question of right and wrong is forgotten.

Temptations as lures are great in the city, but don't let yourself believe smaller towns are free from them; they are not. The need of parental guidance in the small town is as great as in the larger city. Lack of it will make wayward boys and girls in the small town as quickly as in the city. Diligent care must be exercised toward making the young folks problem a force in the small town as in the city. If conditions are made better and life made safer it will have to be through the father and mothers of the boys and girls of both the towns and cities.

LET'S STOP THIS

Last year 21,000,000 letters and 803,000 packages dropped into post office boxes in this country landed in the "Dead Letter" office at Washington. Over 100,000 letters are mailed every year without a sign of an address on them. It cost Uncle Sam $2,000,000 annually to bother with 200,000,000 pieces of misdirected and poorly directed mail matter. The government collects nearly $100,000 a year for the return of mail that lands in the "Dead Letter" office, and last year that office could find no clue to the ownership of $55,000 in cash and $12,000 in postage stamps found in letters, while $3,000,000 in checks drafts and money orders failed to reach the people for whom they were intended.

Is there any way to stop this? There certainly is—and a positive way. At very small cost one may have envelopes printed with a return card in the corner. Then if a letter cannot be delivered, or if it failed to be addressed properly, it will come right back to the sender. Also, aside from the safety of the printed return card on mail matter it is excellent business form and should be adopted by everyone.

Why not drop into this office and let us show you samples of a positive guarantee against letters going astray?

LITTLE LEADERS

It is next to impossible for a Littlefield citizen to give heartfelt thanks unless his heart felt thanks.

In China children work for 12 cents a day. Around Littlefield they work Dad for more than that.

Every time a Littlefield woman begins to talk about her rights it is time for friend husband to begin thinking about some of his wrongs.

One of the most valuable lessons any Littlefield citizen can learn is the difference between enough and too much.

This is the day many Littlefield gobblers ceased to gobble, but the gobblers who gobble the gobblers will continue gobbling.

Fashions in men's clothes change some, but we hope the time will never come in Littlefield when they wear their trousers up to their knees one season and down to their ankles the next.

When one sees a Littlefield man sitting with his wife and reading over some of the half dozen sale circulars put out by the Leader office last week you know who is boss at his house.

Some of our citizens might as well get this fixed in their head now—the only dollar they can spend and expect to see again is the one they spend right here in Littlefield.

The question of the ownership of the North Pole isn't worrying the man who is trying to acquire the ownership of a house and lot in Littlefield.

It is reported that the barber on the front chair of one of our local barber shops was stricken last week when one of the patrons gave him a half dollar tip. He was said to be doing nicely in the hospital, but has had a severe relapse since the nurse found the coin had a hole in it.

PAVEMENT PICKUPS

District of Columbia Houke says his main objection to steam heat is that a fellow can't spit in the fire.

C. E. Ellis says his idea of crossing a bridge before you get to it is worrying for fear you'll get two neckties alike next Christmas.

"A coquette," says Evangelist C. C. Curtis, "is a woman without any heart who makes a fool of a man who hasn't any head."

It's an old saying that "Rome wasn't built in a day, and that is where C. E. Cooper insists that a lot of Florida towns have the best of her."

John Street admits every man needs a wife to look after him, but he insists that a bachelor is usually better dressed and can afford a new car more frequently than a married man.

Bill Valles, who is somewhat of a philosopher, says that tough steak is best because the exercise of chewing one bite gives you an appetite for the next. Yet Bill serves the other kind.

T. A. Sales says his idea of the meanest man on earth is the one who won't take his home town paper because his wife might find a bargain among the ads and spend a little of his money.

Rev. H. C. Scoggins, the new Methodist preacher, says he has often observed that while it takes a lover two hours to kiss his sweetheart good-night, a married man can kiss his wife good-night in two seconds. He declares that one of his missions in life is to equalize the time for both couples.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

FATHER AND SON

IT HAS always been strange to me how fathers forget the emotions, and the escapades, and the mistakes of their youth. I have no son of my own, but I presume if I had I should be telling him, as I hear other middle-aged fathers tell their boys, of the marvelous virtues which I exhibited as a boy.

Just as a college boy going home from the regular routine of undergraduate work, excepting when talking to his parents, seldom talks of the strenuous life in college, but rather of its escapades, so the middle-aged father in conversation with his son almost invariably stresses the sacrifices he made and the virtues he practiced and the grinding toll he endured, rather than confessing—that would be far more interesting to the son—the tricks he played, the work he shirked, the escapades in which he shared. Boys are little different from what they were forty years ago, nor will they have changed much when the boys of today have become the fathers of tomorrow.

I listened not long ago to Brooks laying down the law to his two young sons as possibly Brooks' father had done to him some years ago. Brooks and I were boys together, and he was never far behind the crowd when money was to be spent, or some trick was to be played, or work was to be eluded, or a pretty girl was under discussion.

"I never had the privileges when I was young that you fellows have," Brooks was saying. "I had precious little money to spend, and I had to work."

He did not add that he worked as little as was possible and he spent all the money he could get his hands on.

Boys are very often afraid of their fathers. They do not see through the superficial sternness; they cannot realize that their fathers, when young, very likely went through about the same experiences that they are going through, and very often the father has forgotten it himself.

"You don't know my father," boys say to me over and over again when they are caught in some of the mistakes and errors of youth. "If he finds out what I have done, it will be the end of me. He'll kick me out."

If there is anyone whom a boy can really count on to stand by him to the last ditch, it's his father; and if there is anyone who is generally loyal to a man, it's his son.

It's too bad that they do not more often understand each other.

Goodland Cleanings

Sunday night, Nov., 15 singing prevailed throughout the seventh district, people from Goodland and neighboring communities gathering at the Figure 4 ranch house, where they listened to the inspiring strains of a piano and sang to their hearts content.

Mr. Mayberry, of Coryell county, a prospector on the Figure 4 ranch last week, was so well pleased with the land that he purchased a farm. He expects to improve it this winter. Last Saturday night the schools of Goodland and Maple Wilson gave a pie supper at the Goodland school house, the proceeds being used to buy shades. There was a reasonably good crowd, considering the norther and sand storm that blew up just at night-fall. There were plenty of pretty girls and delicious pies, in artistically decorated boxes, (the pies or the girls? —Ed.) and—yes, a cake for the prettiest girl. The biggest pie sold for $4.50, and the cake, which went to Misses Anderson and Payne, brought $17.00. After the auction was over Miss Chitwood entertained the people with a reading from their favorite poet, "When she was sixteen," James Whitecomb Riley. Then everyone spent a jovial hour around the table heavily laden with chocolate, carmel, coconut, custard, lemon and banana pies. Finally the auctioneer announced that the money taken in amounted to $57. It was with good cheer that the people bid each other good night.

S. P. Chitwood, son of John O. Chitwood, arrived in Goodland last Saturday night. He has been attending the Teachers College at Greeley, Colo.

DAIRY

"SWAT THE FLY" TO PREVENT DISEASE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Flies are one of the worst enemies of man. They breed prolifically and prosper in filth. Their conformation is admirably suited for carrying death-dealing organisms from questionable places which they frequent, to the dwelling places, food utensils, and food of man, says the bureau of dairying, United States Department of Agriculture. Flies are a nuisance and anyone who fights them is doing humanity a service.

The female fly is not fastidious about the place in which her offspring are to be born. As manure pile represents the height of her ambition in this respect, and when she has the opportunity she deposits her eggs there in masses. The manure pile reciprocates as an incubator for her young, and in a few days the maggots which hatch from her eggs have developed into full-fledged flies, all ready to start on a campaign of destruction and perhaps death.

The fly is covered with a hairy growth and its feet resemble hairy pads. It probably carries as much filth and as many bacteria on its body, for its size, as anything which lives. No wonder then, considering this point alone, that the fly is an enemy of milk. But this is not all, for the fly is a creature of filthy practices. It sucks its food without fear or favor and then regurgitates it at will. A smooth-surfaced milk utensil may be a handy place for this procedure.

The fly scatters its excreta promiscuously. Its specks may be found on any place it frequents. They look unsightly, but are even worse than they look, because they often contain organisms which are decidedly detrimental to health. Is it any wonder that we are besought and urged to "swat the fly"?

No one is more alive to the danger from flies than the milk inspector. His training and his ambition both call for the destruction of this enemy of clean, safe milk. But sometimes he forgets that not all of the producers are familiar with the characteristics and habits of the fly. He thus overlooks an opportunity. He should explain to his dairymen and also to the people who consume the milk why there should be adequate protection from flies. When a full explanation is made to the dairymen about the fly and its habits, he becomes interested in getting rid of manure piles, trash, and other breeding places, and in trapping and poisoning the flies which appear.

Not an Ancestor

1925's turkeys are descendants of Aztec fowls, and not the wild species that the Puritans ate, explains a Field museum wizard. So long as our Thanksgiving bird is a descendant and not an ancestor, we shall accept this discovery with equanimity. One year we remember trying to carve an original Aztec eagle, and judging by the nick it put in the knife, his name was Iztukatzopitsee.

Roads rule the world—not kings nor congresses, not courts nor constables, not ships nor soldiers. The road is the only royal line in a democracy, the only legislature that never changes, the only court that never sleeps, the only army that never quits, the first aid to the redemption of any nation, the exodus from stagnation in any society, the call from savagery in any tribe, the high priest of prosperity, after the order of Malchisedec, without beginning of days or end of life. The road is umpire in every war, and when the new map is made, it simply pushes on its great campaign of help, hope, brotherhood, efficiency and peace.

Clean Milk Production Brings Back the Money

That season of the year is here when milk is too often returned to the shipper because it is unfit for consumption or has arrived in a sour condition. Flavors and odors in milk result from four causes and it would be well for the milk producer to note these causes and guard against shipping milk which cannot be used, thereby saving a big loss to his business this summer.

These causes are as follows:

1. Internal or physical condition of the cow.
2. Flavors and odors absorbed within the body of the cow from highly flavored feeds such as turnips, onions, etc.
3. Odors absorbed into the milk after production.
4. Bacterial development within the milk while standing.

Control of these four factors this summer will mean dollars and cents in the milk producer's pocket. These things are also very important for the cream producer to consider, as high-quality butter cannot be made from low-quality cream, and if the butter-maker cannot make superior butter demanding a higher price, he cannot possibly give the producer any more for his product.—H. R. Lascelles, field man, Colorado State Dairy Commission.

Dairy Hints

Crossing dairy breeds is like mixing good ink with good water; the value of each is lost.

Baby calves respond with great susceptibility to care especially during the first few days of their lives.

The most profitable method of handling dairy cows by the average farmer is to market cream and use the skim milk for bringing up calves and pigs.

It is usually a good rule not to feed milk to exceed one-eighth of the calf's weight, at birth, for the first six weeks.

The four generally recognized leading breeds—Ayrshire, Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey—comprise 90 per cent of all registered dairy cattle in the country.

After taking the calf from the cow it should be fed its mother's milk at body temperature, (approximately 100 degrees Fahrenheit) at least three times daily and preferably four.

Listen Men!

"Do you suppose there is any way we can get the idea across to our women folks that we want them to buy our shaving and toilet supplies?"

For example—when they are down at the Little Drug Store—where they all buy their creams, lotions, powders, etc.—it would be very easy for them to buy us a tube of shaving cream—some razor blades—a bottle of bay rum or witch hazel—a tooth brush, a nail file, etc.

You know I always have to specially tax myself to remember I need such little supplies, whereas my wife gets keen pleasure in such shopping.

Gee!!—I hope she reads this ad.
