

There's Not Too Much Emphasis On High School Football!

CHAPMAN Sports Editor. National news lately sports world and that too much emphasis on high schools. We wish to base and universities, involved are men in some way or salary or scholastic services rendered on the basketball court, we might be able to swing along with great men and say that there is too much emphasis on sports. Dettling has increased so much that practically every kind of game or sport has had fixes and scandals involved. But when it comes to High school sports, we draw the line for as long as a school boy receives nothing for his part in sports but the pride of the school there can be no over emphasis. Coach Jay Fikes pointed out last week at the F-TA meeting that all young boys and girls must have the attention of some one or they cannot succeed in life. If some boy does good in football and works at it hard, he deserves the attention of all the town people just as the boy who blows a horn good, has a good FFA project, or is a good talker. For if anyone does a good job, no matter what it is, he deserves praise for his work whether it be digging ditches or playing football.

A football player works at his job harder than most other school children work at their lessons and he must also pass his grades. Some people have the gall to say that people forget football players after they have fulfilled their duties on the football field. Personally we can name you several players of over ten years ago, and we don't need to study the records to do so, who have not been forgotten. Take Maxey McKnight for one instance, who used to play ball for the Wildcats in the thirties and later attended Texas Tech at Lubbock. He is now head coach of the Wellington Rockets. Wilford Moore, the head coach of the McMurry College Indians also played for the Wildcats. And now their very living depends upon what they learned in football. Some boys who find no interest in such things as the band, FFA and other organizations, turn to football, to find fellowship, buddies and still be in the spotlight of school activities. Also they can develop their body building better and the physical training they receive in football practice is equal to that received by our servicemen in keeping themselves physically and mentally awake. Take, for instance, 1949, the year that we won the State Championship. It took those boys five hard months of vigorous workouts to win that title and all they received for their efforts was a jacket, the rule set forth by the Texas Interscholastic League that a high school player cannot receive any gift or present of any kind other than that one lonely jacket. Some schools would have to find other means of income for their school if good crowds did not attend games that the school participates in. No, you can't say that a boy gets too much credit for his part in the grand game of football, the most popular sport on the South Plains, come fall and winter.

WOW Presents Flag To Littlefield High School

Here's another example of "Fraternity in Action" . . . good deeds that count in the advancing of true Americanism and a better life for all mankind. The photographs were made on the occasion of the recent visit to Littlefield and Littlefield WOW camp by Max Hurt, executive vice-president of the Woodmen of the World. In the top picture Mr. Hurt (right) is shown presenting an American flag to the Littlefield school system. This flag will fly over the new high school. Joe Hutchinson (left); superintendent of the Littlefield schools, is shown receiving the flag from Mr. Hurt. In the group, left to right, are: George Hines, state manager, WOW; Bill Yeary, secretary, Littlefield camp; Sam Hutson, past consul commander; W. D. Chapman, watchman and district manager; Merle Beard, consul commander; Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Hurt; Bob Kirk, advisor lieutenant; John Oxford, member of drill team, Littlefield camp, and Merle Gamble, member of drill team, Littlefield camp. DISTRICT COURT POSTPONED: GRAND JURY REPORTS FEB. 25

The opening of the February term of District Court, scheduled to open Monday of next week, on February 4th, has been postponed, to a later date, March 24. Two reasons for the postponement were given. First, Judge Bills, presiding Judge for this District will be in Farwell, Farmer County on February 4, when the trial of L. D. Stevens, charged in the slaying of Josh Bloucher, aged Bailey county resident several months ago, and which case was transferred from Bailey to Farmer county, due to the questionability of ability to obtain a jury in the county where the crime was committed. Thomas Livesay was convicted of the crime with which Stevens is also charged. Separate trials were granted to both, and interest in the progress of both cases has been wide and intense not only in Bailey county, but throughout the Ray Swain, who has had charge of Perry Brothers Store at Childress, Texas, arrived in Littlefield Monday, and has taken over the management of the local store.

M. T. Smith, Assistant Manager, and who has been acting manager of the Littlefield store in the absence of Archie Dale, who has been ill for the past several weeks, is being transferred to East Texas, where he will have charge of another of the Perry stores.

It is reported that Mr. Dale has received a promotion from the company, and on his recovery, will go to East Texas.

Mr. Swain was assistant manager of the local store in 1948 and 1949, and since that time has managed Perry Brothers stores at Haskell, Shamrock and Childress.

Mr. and Mrs. Swain have two children, Roy Allen, aged 7, and Patricia Kay, aged 5 months.

Results of an election held Tuesday, January 8, for the first permanent Board of Directors of the High Plains Water Conservation District No. 1, have been released.

Navy Chaplain Fill Local Pulpit Sunday Morning

Rev. Chas. Dickey of Arlington will fill the pulpit at the eleven o'clock hour, Sunday morning, at the First Presbyterian church. He will be accompanied here by his wife, arriving Saturday afternoon. They will be guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Manell Hall.

Rev. Dickey is a former pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Arlington. He has recently returned from serving 17 months as chaplain in the United States Navy, and has been at sea most of that time.

The couple has two children who are both students at Trinity University at San Antonio.

The public is cordially invited to attend the services Sunday morning.

TWO GRASS FIRES

The Littlefield Fire Department was called Friday to extinguish two grass fires. The first fire was at noon, and the second fire was later in the afternoon. No damage to adjacent property was reported.

DR. ROBERT A. COOK

Youth Revival Leader At Plainview

Dr. Robert A. Cook of Chicago, president of Youth for Christ International and a prime mover in the youth revival movement which now has reached 76 countries over the world, arrived in Plainview January 28 and will remain until February 1 for a city-wide youth revival.

This week has been set aside by Governor Allen Shivers as Christian Youth Week. Under the auspices of the Plainview Civic Clubs and pastors and other youth leaders, Dr. Cook will be speaking each morning in the Wayland College Auditorium. In the evenings will be services at the City Auditorium. During the week he is scheduled to speak at the high schools in Plainview, Pampa, Amarillo and Lubbock.

Leaders for revival arrangements state that plans are now being made to have a different youth speaker for each evening service and a large choir made up of young people of Plainview and the surrounding area. Among the speakers will be Jackie Robinson, All-American and Olympic basketball star. Dick Baker, Fort Worth youth and music leader, will have charge of all music. Baker is the author of the songs "Longing for Jesus" and "Keep Looking Up."

Dr. Cook is in demand around the world as a speaker, author, song leader, youth director and pastor. In 1948 he visited the Orient as captain of a three-man Youth for Christ team which did much to expand the work in the Far East. He has been in Europe five times in the past three years, serving as director of World Congress on Evangelism at Cannes, France, Brussels, Belgium and will serve as director of the coming World Congress on Evangelism to be held August 10-17, 1952 in Belfast, Ireland.

Chinese Land Reform Backfire

By FRED HAMPSON
 Features
 KONG — The Chinese carried out "land reform" in southeastern Shansi province.

ince of north China five years ago. While they abolished landlords, they had less luck with human nature. An examination of what has happened shows competitive elements back in play. Everyone got the same amount of land and started from scratch, the old landlords having been eliminated. So did a classless share-and-share-alike society begin, with everyone living happily ever after? Just listen to this from the Communist's own official Peoples Daily in Peiping: "After the land reform, 96 peasant families in the five villages (cross-section villages selected for examination) have sold a total of 284.11 mow (a little more than 47 acres) of land to pay for wedding and funeral expenses and the like. Ninety-nine peasant families bought up land from the others. Private ownership of land, natural calamities, and other inevitable misfortunes have caused some of the peasants to lose labor, and others have risen in status. "When it was impossible to buy more land (with surplus capital gained from superior farming) the peasants made money by lending their money at usurious rates, collecting interest in kind which sometimes reached as high as 60 to 150 per cent a year."

New boundary markers divide the land as drummers flourish. Sign reads: "We Farmers Got on Top."

Burning the deeds of "reactionary" landlords in China.

This disclosure is taken by experts on Chinese agriculture to mean that the Red land "reform" has gone full cycle and in a good many places is right back where it started—sometimes with a new set of landlords, sometimes with the old ones.

There is always the farmer who works harder, is smarter, seems to have better luck, and raises more than his neighbor. He pays his taxes and has something left, while his slothful neighbor is immediately in financial trouble.

The successful farmer lends at usurious rates—traditional in China—and shortly owns his neighbor's farm. He hires labor, sometimes surreptitiously, to farm this extra land.

Soon he is a landlord, who under China's ancient traditions not only supervises the farming of the land but takes care—as a paternalistic feudal land owner—of the peasants who work for him.

The Reds ask themselves what causes this. They answer not by a study of the farmer but by looking into the works of Marx, Lenin, Stalin and MaoTze-tung, the leader of Communist China.

"The organization of the peasants has not been broad enough," (whatever that means) is the answer of Wang Chien, secretary of the Changchih (Shansi) district committee of the Chinese Communist party as printed in the Peoples Daily.

What steps shall be taken so that all peasants stay even? Wang doesn't know. He calls it "a problem which has not been solved among the broad masses of the peasants."

A Hong Kong authority on Chinese agriculture commented that it was a problem that has not been solved in China in 5,000 years, or in any other country, for that matter.

Interesting Facts Released By Texas State Highway Department

Because of the huge area of Texas the early Texas road builders realized that a vast state highway system would be necessary to properly serve the people of this State.

In the thirty-five years since the creation of the Texas Highway Department, an enormous system has been built, with over 46,000 miles of roads now the responsibility of the State. Over 40,000 miles of this state highway system are paved and now under maintenance.

When we speak of maintenance of highways the average person thinks of the routine pavement repair and road-patching operations which we see underway on our highways. Actually, the maintenance operations of the Texas Highway Department are much more complicated and extensive, involving many interesting elements not ordinarily noticed.

For example, the Texas Highway Department keeps the highway rights-of-way cleaned, with occasional mowing as necessary provides and keeps in order the roadside parks, sows wildflower seeds and landscapes some portions of the right of way, erects and renews the thousands of directional and safety signs, and stripes the highways into lanes and no-passing zones where needed for public convenience and safety.

These are only a few of the little-known features of highway maintenance.

One of the recent additions to our highways are the safe speed indications on curves. This is the small, square sign, having only a number and mounted beneath the regular curve signs, which tells the motorist by its number the safe speed for the curve. These new signs are advisory only and do not show the greatest possible speed at which the curve may be taken. They do show the maximum speed for the curve without side-throw of the average vehicle, as determined by repeated tests by crews of the highway maintenance forces.

It has been established that side-throw contributes to early driving fatigue, so by using the speeds indicated on the advisory signs, motorists can drive much longer distances without tiring.

Another "extra" provided by the Texas Highway Department are the built-in center stripes on our highways. Almost all of the center stripes on our highway now are of contrasting color to the roads. The early experience of the highway department indicated that using a simple flat asphalt stripe had two disadvantages when the highway was wet. First, it was slick and secondly, it was not readily visible when covered with water. Now the Department uses chat, or smaller stones laid in the asphalt to raise the center-stripe above the roadway surface, making it non-skid and easily visible at all times.

Another interesting maintenance feature is the use of shrubs instead of guardrails. In the early days of the Highway Department, many guardrails were placed along highways for their psychological effect, since it was an established fact that motorists would stay about six feet away from any fixed object along the roadway. These guardrails were used to outline the edge of the embankment, or fill, on a road and would cause motorists to stay away from the edge of the fill. Subsequent experience has shown that shrubs may be used for the same purpose and make a much more pleasing view for the traveler. Hence more and more shrubs are replacing guardrails along Texas highways, where the purpose of such guardrails was psychological.

One question often asked of our maintenance personnel is "How do you measure the mileage between Texas cities? Is it from courthouse to courthouse, post office to post office or city limit to city limit?" The answer is neither: the mileage is measured to the center of the business district, which may account for that mileage some of us may think we save when we reach a city limit still several miles short by our speedometers.

Most of the extras provided by the Texas Highway Department reflect the real human nature of the Department. Its personnel is made up of your neighbors and fellow taxpayers.

The concern of the maintenance crews for your safety, comfort and convenience when you travel Texas highways is demonstrated by their around-the-clock vigilance when weather makes the highways unsafe. These crews man the snowplows, sand the icy bridges and patrol the highways for any distressed motorists, not just during daylight working hours, but day and night as long as it is needed and as long as they are physically able. Continuous work for forty-eight and more hours at a stretch is not uncommon for our maintenance men in times of emergency.

Any general discussion of maintenance, however, would not be complete without a reference to vandalism on our highways. Vandalism costs the taxpayers of Texas over one-half million dollars per year. Generally it takes the form of shooting or painting highway signs, breaking the stone tables and benches in roadside parks, stealing highway property. Whatever its form, it is a thorn in the side of state maintenance men, for it is an absolutely senseless waste of the taxpayers money. I am happy to report today that vandalism is apparently on the decline throughout the state, except for a few particular areas. Some of this decline may be credited to the use of more substantial and permanent designs of our signs and roadside park equipment, thus making it harder for vandals to deface state property.

Adequate highway maintenance is essential to continued good highway service. It is particularly important in "holding the line" on Texas' ageing and now outmoded 16-thousand-mile main arterial system. The 3.4 million Texas cars and trucks and the doubling of highway travel in the last ten years are severely taxing these first-built and now inadequate traffic arteries which carry 71% of rural highway traffic.

The old adage "A stitch in time saves nine" is particularly appropriate to describe the functions and benefits of highway maintenance in Texas.

A Code Of Living . . .

In these days when the evidence points to a wide spread weakening of the American moral fiber, with major crimes climbing faster even than the increase in population, it is encouraging to note that a great moral force in America is growing ever stronger.

The Boy Scouts of America celebrates its third birthday during Boy Scout Week, February 1 through 11. It is an occasion when we can pause and consider its mark on the youth of the nation. Since 1919, more than sixteen million American boys and men have been influenced by this Scout Oath:

"On my honor I will do my best—
To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law;
To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

For its young men members, known as Explorers, the Boy Scouts of America has the dedication pledge which would well be adopted by all Americans:

"I will live the Scout Oath and Law. I will be as true as the Declaration of Independence, as true as the Bill of Rights of the United States of America, I will respect and obey the law in order to have security and freedom."

"I will share the responsibility of my home, school, neighborhood, and community, and when legally of age, I will register and vote in all elections. I will deal fairly and kindly with my fellow-citizens of whatever race or creed, in the spirit of the Scout Law and America's tradition of equality of opportunity."

"I will work to preserve our American heritage of liberty and responsibility. I acknowledge that the privileges we enjoy were won by the hard work and sacrifices of our forefathers and our forefathers. I will do all in my power to pass on a better America to the next generation."

Today over 1,000,000 boys and men are actively engaged in their Scout activities. Scouting is indeed a great asset to the nation. May it continue to succeed in influencing the lives of countless more boys as they go "Forward . . . On Liberty's Path."

Governor Allan Shivers has proclaimed Jan. 27 to Feb. 3 as Youth Week. "In these critical times we need young people who are willing to act upon their religious convictions," said the governor. "We need them in Texas at our colleges and in our world."

Youth Week is sponsored by the United Christian Youth Movement, youth agency of the National Council of Churches of Christ in America. It represents 38 million Christian youth in 25 cooperating denominations.

Highlighting the week is The Call to Action in an address to call for a million youth for Christ.

"The Call is made to assist in the work of the Texas Youth Development Council," said its chairman, Rev. Walter K. Kerr of Tyler. "Our young people must be motivated by religious convictions," he stated, "and they must be guided by objectives that will produce significant action." The principles of The Call are not only a call but an answer. He pointed out "The core of the program of United Christian Youth action is in the local community," Mr. Kerr said.

Nehru Will Choose The Man For President Of India

By HAROLD K. MILYS
AP Newsfeatures

NEW DELHI—India has a presidential election this year. Sometime near May 1, its electoral college will ballot for a successor to thirty-four-year-old Rajendra Prasad, the country's president since the republic was inaugurated Jan. 26, 1950.

But in India the presidential election—unless there are unexpected and unforeseen developments—will be an election in name only.

Because the Congress party majority will vote the choice of one man—Jawaharlal Nehru, concurrently India's prime minister and president of its administration party.

It's up to Nehru

Sometime before May, Nehru will decide what man he wants in the $25,000-a-year presidential chair during the next five years.

That choice, the party's parliamentary members will approve it, and instructions will go out to Congress electors to pick the man Nehru names.

Whether Prasad, unpretentious Calcutta professor of English before he joined Mahatma Gandhi in 1920 and shared with him British jails and the struggle for freedom, will succeed himself depends on Nehru's decision.

Some political observers believe the prime minister will bypass President Prasad and choose another.

Here are the three names most prominently mentioned:

Rajendra Prasad, food and agriculture minister of the interim Indian government in 1945, later president of the constituent assembly, and the nation's first president. It is generally thought he was the choice of Sardar Patel,

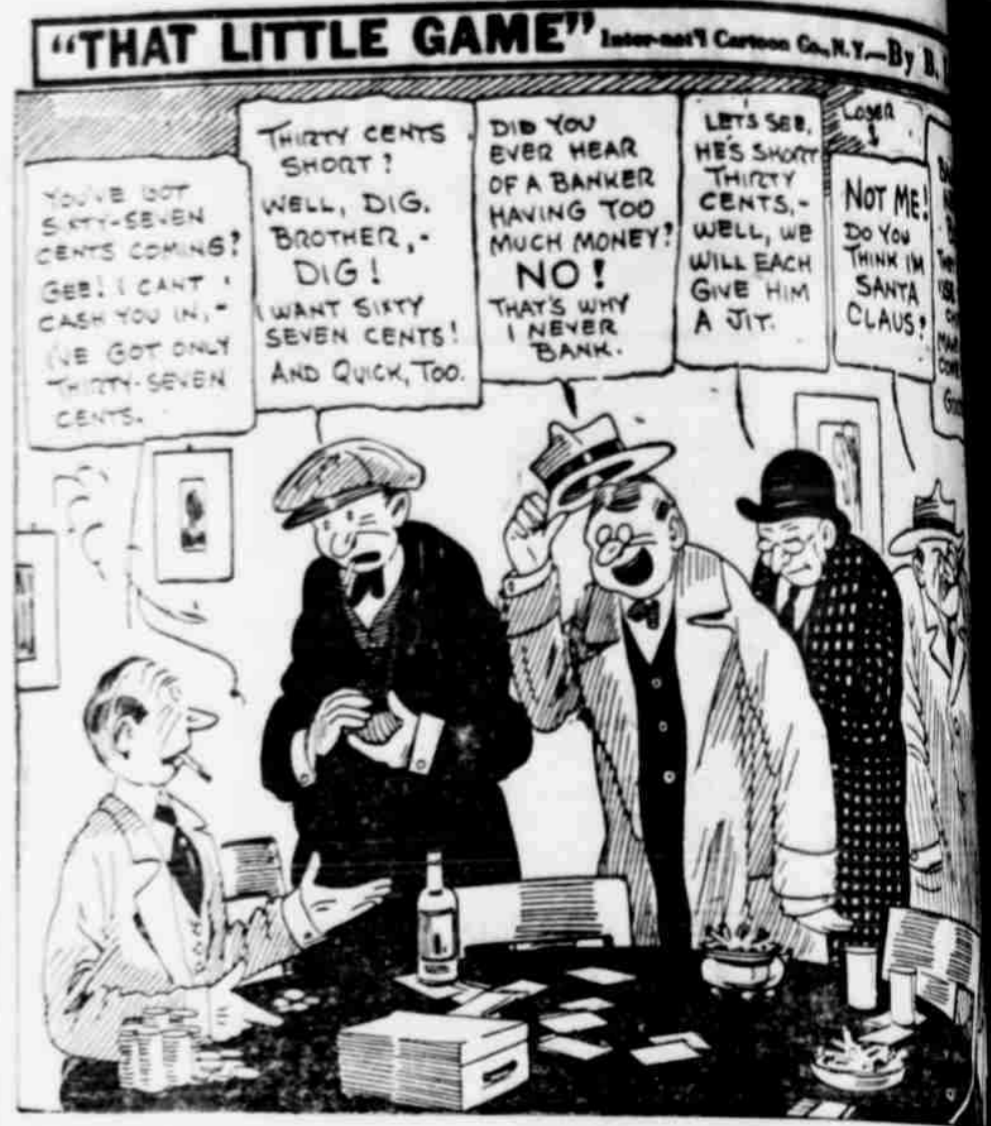

NO CAR, GETS PARKING TICKET—A San Antonio man who had given up hope of finding his car that was stolen last September, L. A. Sullivan, got a new lead in the form of a parking ticket. It seems the thief left the car parked in front of a fire plug and police traced the owner through the car's registration and sent a ticket for the violation to Sullivan. Sullivan hopes he gets his car back, but if he doesn't he asks that the thief please be more careful where he parks the car. —AP Photo man of Nehru himself. A Lawyer and a Moslem—Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, 72-year-old elder statesman whose association with Mahatma Gandhi antedates that of Prasad by at least a year. A former Madras lawyer, then wearing Rajagopalachari was India's last governor-general and became home minister at Patel's death in December, 1950, although Nehru never raised him to the deputy premiership Patel held. Rajagopalachari resigned from the Nehru government last autumn, on a plea of ill health, and his availability for the presidency—should Nehru's choice fall on him depends in great part on his recovery. Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, In-

Price Daniel, governor, announced the new plan to build more schools for the state's children.

That little game... A true secular state. Only Nehru India's dominant political party with his unchallenged control of both the national government and would dare choose as his presidential candidate a Moslem leader.

DRAWING OF CANADIAN DAM PROJECT—This is an artist's conception of how the $85 million Canadian river water conservation project, already authorized by Congress, will look when, and if, built. The proposed dam near Sanford, northeast of Amarillo, will be about 7,200 feet (nearly 1 1/2 miles) long and 180 feet high. U. S. Reclamation bureau engineers estimate it would impound about 1,200,000 acre feet of water with an average annual inflow of about 125,000 acre feet—which is nearly 40 times as much water as Lubbock now uses each year. The reservoir would spread over nearly 50 square miles and be about 25 miles in length when full. Further important planning for the project will be discussed in Amarillo Thursday at a meeting of representatives of the 11 South Plains and Panhandle cities interested in it as a possible source of long-range water supply. (Drawing by J. MacGillis-christ, U. S. Bureau of Reclamation.)

Canadian River Project Meeting In Amarillo Today

Representatives of the 11 Canadian river project cities are meeting in Amarillo at the Herring Hotel today to give reports and information on which many important decisions are likely to hinge. Lubbock Mayor Clarence Whiteside, chairman of the Canadian River Water Conservation association, termed the meeting one of the most important since the $85 million project, designed to impound water for the use of South Plains and Panhandle cities, and their industrial developments, was proposed. The project contemplates the construction of a dam about 7,200 feet long and 180 feet high on the Canadian river near Sanford, northeast of Amarillo, to impound a lake covering nearly 50 square miles and pipelines to the cities desiring the water thus conserved. Member cities of the organization are Lubbock, Amarillo, Pampa, Borger, Plainview, Slaton, Levelland, Littlefield, Tahoka, O'Donnell and Lamesa. Only the representatives of these cities have been invited to attend the meeting, Whiteside said. He is expecting delegations from all. Lubbock's group is expected to include, additional to Whiteside, City Commissioners Harry Morris, L. E. Davis, Lucian Thomas and E. K. Hufstedler, Jr., City Manager Steve Matthews and Director of Public Works R. L. Oldham. No Decisions Expected The mayor said the session will be convened promptly at 10:30 a.m. and recess during the early afternoon. He emphasized that no final decisions on important matters are likely to be reached. But, he said, the meeting should result in:

1. Authoritative information as to how much water the proposed reservoir would impound. Tentative estimates approximate an average annual accumulation of about 125,000 acre feet, which is more than 15 times as much water as now used annually by all the project cities combined.
2. Plans for a survey to ascertain the present and prospective needs of the cities which unite in a permanent river organization.
3. Discussion of preliminary steps to organize districts which would have legal authority to contract for impounded water.

Officials To Report Prominent on the program are scheduled to be Dr. John R. Stockton, director of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas, and Harry Burleigh, project engineer for Texas of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation. Burleigh has supervised the planning for the project and, under present project, the reclamation bureau will build and operate it for an indefinite period. Dr. Stockton is to report the results of a survey made by his agency for the reclamation bureau on how much water would be available if the project would be built and to estimate present and future requirements of member cities and industries above the Caprock. Reclamation bureau officials reported that results of the studies, which have required several months, will be compiled in time to be reported Thursday. The compilations were not completed Saturday, officials added.

Re-Surveys Planned Burleigh's report is expected to deal largely with plans for re-surveys in very project city to obtain estimates of present and future water needs—and how much water each is prepared to contract for, if the undertaking should be built. Whiteside said discussions of the organization of water districts will be general and limited. But he emphasized that districts must be formed sooner or later in order to provide agencies legally empowered to contract for water. All this planning was explained as tentative. But, in a general way, the time must come when an election must be held in each project city to determine whether it is to be organized as a Canadian river water district. Those rejecting the plan will be out of the project. Those approving it, under present plans, will be com-

Project officials said there is no doubt in their minds that these cities will want a great deal more water than can be impounded. In such case, some system of prorating available supplies will have to be worked out. The expectation is that all cities will have to depend upon wells for supplemental and emergency supplies, regardless of how much water they may be able to obtain from the Canadian. A bill authorizing the project has been passed by Congress and signed by the President, but no appropriation has been made to start work. Thursday's meeting is expected to lead to intensification of efforts to get the money so that construction can get under

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

Pneumonia is a condition which interferes with the proper function of the lungs, that pair of gadgets in your chest which look like waterwings.

When you breathe air in, those lungs inflate and when you breathe air out, they deflate; disease in practically every part of the body can in some way affect and be affected by the inflation and deflation of those lungs. When the effect shows up in the lungs, it is often pneumonia.

Factors outside the body also can interfere with the work of the lungs. There is one class of pneumonia which is called lipid pneumonia, meaning that oil has gotten into the lungs from such sources as oily nose drops or from taking mineral oil over a long period of time. Sometimes food vomited from the stomach does not clear from the body, some of it being drawn into the windpipe and into the lungs, creating a difficulty which is known as aspiration pneumonia; small abscesses often form in the lower part of the lung from this vomited material.

Atypical pneumonia is thought to be caused by a virus which gets from the upper respiratory tract (nose and throat) into the lungs. It is a slow-developing type of pneumonia, often preceded by a week of general "run-down" feeling which keeps getting worse and worse. You have fever, chilliness, headache and lack of appetite, plus a cough that keeps getting worse; the cough at first is often just a dry hack but as you start feeling worse the cough becomes heavier and produces mucus, which may have some bright blood streaks in it.

The usual diagnostic procedures for pneumonia fail to reveal the lung trouble with atypical pneumonia but an x-ray of the chest usually confirms your doctor's suspicion of this condition when you present a list of symptoms and a general appearance which he associates with the disease. Convalescence may take a long time though the new drugs are wonders in turning the tide of virus invasion of the lungs.

Bacterial pneumonia sometimes breaks out in epidemics following measles and the "flu," but it is one of the least common pneumonias except for epidemics, accounting for only 5 percent of all pneumonia cases. It is caused by a "strep" germ, most often attacking those with asthma or bronchial disorders, especially infants.

Lobar pneumonia means that a large part of the lung or lungs has been affected by the germ known as pneumococcus; bronchopneumonia refers to a more patchy effect of the lung's lobes, rather than the uniform effect associated with lobar pneumonia. Lobar pneumonia was the big killer of pneumonias a few years ago before the new drugs such as penicillin were made available in the medical fight. Today it is still a serious disease, especially in those persons already weak from other diseases, but the stigma of killer has been removed from it.

It still has the ability to cause complications within the body, however, and for that reason is deserving of the same close medical attention that it has always called for. All the pneumonias, in fact, bear some resemblance to tuberculosis, in signs and symptoms, and since both are essentially afflictions of the lungs, no pneumonia should ever be taken lightly.

Pneumonitis is another name which is being more frequently applied to those conditions which cause an inflammation within the lungs, instead of just a congestion.

No Increase In Cotton Loan Says Secretary Of Agriculture Brannan

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan will not voluntarily increase the loan rate for cotton during the coming season even if it means getting a total crop under the 16,000,000 bale goal.

The secretary so testified before the House appropriations committee in closed session during the past week, Rep. Jamie Whitten of Massachusetts disclosed last Saturday.

Brannan has been urged by members of Congress from the cotton producing states to increase the government support for the commodity during the coming season to encourage production. Under the Defense Production Act, Brannan is authorized to increase the regular 80 per cent of parity support level for major agricultural commodities to any higher level he deems necessary to encourage production required for defense and essential civilian needs.

Whitten quoted Brannan as saying that the effects and repercussions of increasing the support price on any basic crop such as cotton would be such that he would have to say he would risk getting by on less than 16,000,000 bales this year rather than raise the support level.

Brannan has already asked cotton farmers to produce at least 16,000,000 bales during the coming year. This year's crop is expected to be only a little over 15,000,000 bales, as against a similar goal of 16,000,000 bales.

Senator Allen J. Ellender, chairman of the Senate agriculture committee, has already served notice that unless the secretary voluntarily increases the support price, he will introduce and press for enactment of a bill increasing the loan rate to between 38 and 40 cents a pound. The rate for the 1951 crop was only slightly above 30 cents a pound.

New 1952 Mercury Now On Display At Local Dealer's Show Rooms

The first showing of the beautiful new 1952 Mercury was Wednesday last at the showrooms of the local dealer, Packwood Motors.

Here are some of the special features of the new Mercury for 1952: New "Fore-runner" styling, years-ahead-new "Space-Planned" interiors; Up to 17% greater window area; New "Jet-Scoop" Hood; New Monopane Windshield; New Ease Air Ventilator; New Super-Safe Box Rail Frame; Big powerful brakes with "floor free" pedal; choice of three great transmissions; Meromatic Drive; New 125 HP high compression V-8 engine;

Mercury has done it . . . brought the motoring public a really new 1952 car that's far, far ahead . . . that stands as an even greater challenge to the motoring world than last year's Mercury, one of the most popular cars that ever came down the American Road.

Here's something entirely new in car design . . . swift, clean lines that sweep from the new "Jet-Scoop" hood (inspired by the smartest European cars) to a strikingly new rear deck design. Here's styling made possible for the first time in automotive history by revolutionary new techniques in metal engineering.

But wait until you feel the stepped-up pace, the steady balance of this beauty. There's more power . . . 125 horsepower high compression V-8 greater pickup, and even better efficiency, and that's saying plenty when you think of the prize-winning Mercury performance of recent years.

Band Uniforms

At the meeting, a supervisory drive committee was named composed of W. C. Cannon, Mrs. R. V. Armstrong, and Ed Packwood. All members of the band parent organization are expected to assist in putting the drive over. Funds for the uniforms will be solicited throughout the school district, both rural and in Littlefield.

The pattern and color of the new uniforms to be purchased have been agreed upon and selected. They will be snappy, up-to-date, and of more modern cut and appearance than the present, worn uniforms. The school colors, maroon and white, will continue to be employed in the new uniforms, but trimmings, plummage, cut, etc., will be up-to-the-minute.

The governing committee has mapped the names of everyone to be contacted, and each will be called upon by some band-parent member, as solicitor. The committee hopes to complete the drive in a whirlwind two-day solicitation endeavor.

As soon as the funds are assured, the uniform order will be rushed through to placement, as the band hopes to have the uniforms to wear when they appear at the Regional spring band clinic to be held at Canyon in April.

Those attending the Tuesday morning meeting were: Bill Jeffries, J. Ernest Jones, Bob Crowell, Ed Packwood, Cal Harvey, W. C. Cannon, R. T. Bellomy, Mrs. Bob Smith, Mrs. V. E. Roberts, Mrs. Paul Jensen, Mrs. R. V. Armstrong, Mrs. Elton Hauk, T. H. Reams, C. S. Duncan, J. B. Anderson, J. B. Stuteville, and Joe Hutchinson.

Funeral For Lamb County Pioneer Held Here Sunday

Author Fred Bell, age 64 passed away about 8:15 o'clock, Saturday morning, January 26, at Sanatorium, Texas at San Angelo, where he had been a patient for several weeks.

The body was removed here by Hammons Funeral Home, and funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, from Ninth Street Church of Christ, with Brother Alben officiating. A nephew, Raldo Meacham of Turkey was in charge of special music. Interment was made in Littlefield cemetery, beside his parents, who preceded him in death.

Mr. Bell was born July 11, 1887 at Round Rock, Texas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bell. When he was a young man the family moved to Runnels County in 1905 where he lived many years and where he was associated in farming with his father. In 1925 the Bell family came to Lamb County, and Mr. Bell was engaged in the buying and selling of livestock. He remained in this business until his recent illness, about three months ago.

Deceased never married. He made his home with parents, until their death, and then lived with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mapes until he became ill. His father died many years ago. His mother passed away August 27, 1947, at the age of 84.

Survivors include three sisters, Mrs. Nellie Heard of Lynnwood, Calif., Mrs. Ralph Burns, of Winters and Mrs. Joe Mapes of Littlefield, and three brothers, O. H. Bell, of Weatherford, L. F. Bell, of Waco and W. W. Bell of Littlefield. Twenty-seven nieces and nephews also survive. All of the sisters and brothers were present for the last rites with the exception of a sister, Mrs. Heard, who was unable to attend, due to the fact that she recently suffered a broken bone in her foot.

Mr. Bell was held in high esteem by his many friends here, and the beautiful floral offering and the capacity filled church, where last rites were held Sunday afternoon proved that he was a most beloved citizen.

Littlefield FFA Chapter members, band sweetheart, plow girl, chaperone, and FFA club sponsors Hall and Potts, to the number of Hall and Potts, to the number of Littlefield late Sunday afternoon, in the big chartered bus and the FFA truck, tired, happy, and exhilarated, after three days spent at the Ft. Worth Fat Stock Show.

The group left Littlefield last Thursday evening, arriving in Fort Worth early Friday morning, toured the Stock Show and the city for two glorious days and nights, and headed homeward Sunday morning.

Littlefield FFA chapter also attended last year's Ft. Worth show, but this year's delegation was considerably larger than made the trip in preceding years.

The local chapter did not enter any of the judging contests at Ft. Worth, but plan to enter judging teams at both Plainview and Lubbock regional FFA conclaves this spring, and may send a delegation to the state meeting at Austin.

It was not possible to interview all of the boys, when a reporter visited the school and the Vocational Ag. department Tuesday morning, but, we put the question: "How did you like Ft. Worth and the Fat Stock Show?" and here
