Plans for a state convention of the National Farm Holiday association in Lubbock Saturday, June 17, were made in that city by L. Gough, Amarillo, chairman of the board and L. F. Tannery, of Lubbock, local president.

"We expect an attendance of 200 to 300 or more," said Judge Gough. "The number will depend upon how busy farmers are and how large delegations are from down state. We expect people from El Paso, Houston, San Antonio and other towns."

M. Stokes.

This is the last issue of the Lamb County Leader before the day of the great June Frolics and the last call to parents to enter their children in the different events to take place on the day of June 21st.

The June Frolics is an annual event the object of which is to furnish not only a day of pleasure, but an opportunity for the business people of the county to advertise their merchandise. It is an outstanding event which Lamb county alone in this part of Texas sponsors and it furnishes our county with an opportunity to advertise itself in an unusual way. Help boost your county by putting your children in the different events of the day and by advertising your business in the big parade at four o'clock in the afternoon.

All advertising floats must be on the same scale as the children's floats. They must be built on small wagons and pulled by some young boy or girl dressed in white if possible. Children too old to be entered in the other events can be used by the merchants on the advertising floats.

Merchants of other communities in Lamb county are urged to take advantage of the advertising to be had from this parade and children from any part of Lamb county are cordially invited to compete for the various prizes. Remember there will be twelve prizes and every child will have a fair chance of winning one. No floats or costumes are needed for the morning events in the June Frolics, but it is hoped that all babies entered in these events will also ride in the parade.

The parade will start from the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber yard at four o'clock p. m. on the day of the June Frolics. Please have all children and floats there early enough to be placed before that time.

If any help in planning a float is desired call Mrs. C. E. Cooper who will be glad to offer suggestions.

Don't forget that the June Frolics will end with a jitney dance. Save your nickles boys!

PAVING OF NO. 7
AND NO. 143 TO BE REQUESTED

Association Will be Formed
To Obtain Floydada To Portales Highway

A delegation from Littlefield and other cities of this section, will be in Austin June 19 and 20 for a conference with the Texas Highway Commission, relative to the improving of Highways No. 7 and No. 143, the latter road being the new north and south highway which was recently designated and surveyed.

The Federal government has appropriated $400,000,000 for highway work, and Texas will get a minimum of $24,000,000.

Those active in highway work in West Texas feel that this section of the state should receive its full share of the $24,000,000.

The delegation that will go to Austin will urge that Highways No. 7 and No. 143 be included in the immediate program of the state highway commission and in the general State-Federal road construction program. There is much pavement yet to be built to complete the paving of No. 7 highway and No. 143 is yet to be paved.

No. 143 extends from Channing to near Brownfield, and is a very important project in the development of this section of the state.

The route for No. 143 through Littlefield will be the road which runs between the Farm Bureau and Lowrimore & Irvin gins and Duggan avenue commencing at Highway No. 7 and extending to the Levelland highway.

Another important step in the building of good roads for this section will be the forming of an association to work for improvement of a road from Floydada to Portales, passing through Littlefield.

Airplane May Aid Prosperity

WE'VE TURNED THE CORNER

For three years now people have been saying optimistically that Prosperity is "just around the corner."

We have turned so many corners in looking for it that most of us found ourselves right back where we started from. For no sooner were economic conditions safely out of one tight corner than something new occurred to send business into another corner.

This time, however, it seems increasingly clear that there are no more serious corners in sight. We have turned the last one and before us lies the open road to Prosperity.

We shall encounter some curves, to be sure. The road is not yet as smooth and as level as we believe it will be later on, and there may be a few collisions. There are still up-grades to be climbed, but, if we may be pardoned for mixing metaphors into a sort of verbal hash, the old bus is hitting on all sixteen cylinders and if we don't run out of gas we're in shape to take any hill on high.

In all seriousness, there is no guesswork about the reports that come in from every part of the United States. Business is picking up. One after another of the big industries is coming through with reports of increased orders, more men put back to work, prices firming up, all of the essentials of real prosperity. We know that prices of staple farm commodities are rising and agriculture once more has a chance to make a living and something more for those who follow it.

The best thing about this whole situation is that people don't look skeptical when anyone says that things are better. Instead, the other fellow agrees with you. We have passed beyond the region of hope into the realm of faith, faith in the future, generally shared by everybody.

It won't be long now.

AWAKENED WOMAN

by LINORE BARRY

teenth Installment

Joyce Ashton, poor stenographer, suffered loss of memory in a taxi cab accident in Chicago morning two years later after a fall from her horse, by restored, to find herself, the wife of Neil Packard, a fruit packer. She detestful nobility of her present set about learning what of her life in the interval, conversation of her friends in her desk she gathered had been a heartless, pleasant young woman. One letter told her was from a woman herself Supie, blaming Frills giving a home to a baby Sorcarin for. Could it be Frills wondered! She also self involved in an affair named Maitland. In San where she went while her under the window, or out of doors in the hammock under the pines with the multitude of stars gravely keeping watch overhead in the deep velvet of the sky?

As she came to this thought something seemed to grip her heart, and she clenched her hands suddenly. She was in love with Robert Ainsworth!

Thank God, Neil was away. Joyce had never valued the luxury of privacy and undisturbed quiet more than on this particular night. She wanted to forget everything and everybody except Robert Ainsworth.

During the next day, however, the inevitable reaction occurred. Doubts and fears plunged her down dispiritedly from the heights of exaltation to frequent moods of black uncertainty and hopelessness. Where could this end, this delightful, this miraculous meeting? She was married to Neil Packard. Yet even as the faculty of her groping for words and looked at him, appealing to his tolerance and understanding of her difficulty.

He smiled at her and in his smile there was no trace of condescension nor mockery nor bored disgust. It was a cheerful, completely understanding, ever a grateful smile. It warmed Joyce to the tips of her toes, made her feel as if he had accepted her as a friend, an equal, not just a girl who might be flirted with.

"Nice girl!" he commented briefly. "Strength . . . something to bite on. You couldn't say anything to please me any better than that."

When she was leaving Ainsworth said, "Do you think you can find the way if you drive out sometime? I'm sort of looking forward to meeting Dickie. You'll bring him sure, won't you?"

"Oh yes, I can find that back road and I'll bring Dickie. But . . . but I can't help worrying about . . . about interrupting you!"

"Forget it! While Claud Alfred's away I do as I damn' please in the matter of visitors. I often work at night too, you see. There isn't much else that's more tempting to do out here so I tear off quite a bit each twenty-four hours just whenever I feel like it. No particular hurry, either."

She dismounted from Rosita just as Neil drove his car into the garage. When he joined her and they turned toward the house together, he said, "Been out long, Frills?"

"Why, most all day. It was so lovely and I had my lunch so I kept going farther and farther."

"I was sort of hoping you'd feel like a ride with me but—"

"Oh, I'm sorry, Neil. But I really am tired. I went pretty far."

"Want to go over to Paul's tonight?" went on Neil, "he's leaving in a couple of weeks now, he said today. Got most of his plans all made. I'll . . . I'll miss old Paul."

Joyce bit her lips and frowned as she tried to decide what to do.

"You go on over to Paul's, Neil. I'm going to be so sleepy from my long ride that I'd yawn my head off, I know, and that would be so annoying to Paul," she said finally.

Neil did not urge her and at dinner, after his first few attempts at conversation had met with vague, absent-minded replies, he finished the meal in silence.

The next morning during breakfast Joyce said suddenly, "Neil, I'm so sick of that hideous yellow Duesenberg. I wish I could turn it in and get a different one. Would you mind?"

Neil grinned. "Well, I never did care much for it myself. Sure, you can do whatever you like about it."

"If . . . if I drove the Duesenberg up to the city today, do you think I could make the exchange right toff without too much red tape?"

"Oh, yes, I don't believe you'd have any trouble. How about running up and taking in a show tonight and driving back tomorrow? I've got a little business to see in the city and I'd like to drive up with you," suggested Neil.

Joyce sighed inwardly. She did not want to go to a show. She had looked forward to the drive alone, a chance to dream uninterrupted . . . But after all she owed Neil a debt that seemed to grow in proportion to her regard for Robert Ainsworth.

"All right," she sighed.

To her disappointment Joyce found that she would have to wait a couple of days in order to obtain the car she wanted. And when they ran into Ross and Clarice Emery, Neil suggested their staying up in San Francisco a second night and making a party to go to the theatre together.

The following day they started back about noon and drove to Manzanita in the new roadster, a beautiful car, but entirely unlike the "Easter Egg", for its mirror-like enamel surface was a deep blue, almost black.

Three whole days since she had seen Robert Ainsworth! That was the thought which pushed all others into the background as they approached Manzanita.

So impatient was she to see Ainsworth again that it was not yet noon the next day when she arrived at the entrance to the wood road and guided the new Duesenberg carefully down through the pines to the rustic garage.

When Joyce arrived at the shack she found Ainsworth engaged in giving his horse a thorough currying. He stopped and came to welcome her and Dickie, displaying a most satisfactory amount of enthusiasm.

After a stick had been thrown for Dickie until the little dog was weary and panting, Robert and Joyce talked. And as usual, the world drifted for Joyce far away from this lonely spot.

Toward the end of the afternoon they happened to be inside the house for a moment, standing in front of the bookshelves while Ainsworth hunted for a volume of poems which he had mentioned and from which he wanted to read to her.

Joyce watched him as he bent over the bookcase, his eyes running swiftly over the titles along the shelves. Her heart filled with sudden pain. She loved him! She adored him! This feeling which surged through her was the kind of love she had dreamed about, for which she had wistfully yearned as a young girl. Instinctively, she recognized it. Was love always partly pain? Ainsworth was speaking, but she hardly heard what he was saying.

"Oh, damn the luck! I must have left it in the city last time. I'll get it when I go up next week if I can remember to . . . I want to read you the one on the Eucalyptus Grove. You'd like it. . . ." He turned.

Joyce looked up into his face silently. His expression changed abruptly. Suddenly he put his hands on her shoulders. "Why don't you bring your aunt along as a chaperone?" he demanded. He was smiling but to Joyce's amazement his voice shook. "You . . . you can't expect me to stay impersonal much longer, you know," he continued, now very softly. "Not while you're so . . . while you're such a sweet child! I . . . I can't keep my hands off you, you lovely . . . adorable . . . beautiful—" Very gently his one arm slid about her shoulders, and he drew her close to him. Then he bent his head and laid his cheek against hers as he murmured the last words. His arms tightened around Joyce's yielding form.

"Joyce looked silently up into his face."

was away on business, she had always admired. When he came home, she decided to write to Neil than Frills had this line was dangerous, Neil was pathetically anxious back her love. At his recall upon Neil's mother, she finds adorable.

she forced this undeniable fact upon her consciousness, there stole into her mind the disturbing thought, "But that was why I was holding Neil off all this time . . . I was waiting for Robert!" How could she be Neil's wife now? Every heart beat was lifting her on an irresistible wave of longing and sweeping her toward the other man.

Joyce was in bed before Neil got home that night and the next morning, a little ashamed of her cowardice, she remained in her room until he had left for the day, pretending to be asleep when he knocked gently before he finally departed. She got up as soon as she heard his car roll out of the drive, dressed in her riding habit, and ate a hurried breakfast. She pretended to herself that she was simply going for a long ride. She told herself that it was too soon to make another call on Ainsworth and that she had no intention of doing anything so foolish. She certainly did not want him to think she was pursuing him! Yet, somehow, about noon she found herself at the foot of the trail. Suddenly she heard horse's hoofs behind her.

How could she be Neil's wife now? Every heart beat was lifting her on an irresistible wave of longing and sweeping her toward the other man.

Joyce was in bed before Neil got home that night and the next morning, a little ashamed of her cowardice, she remained in her room until he had left for the day, pretending to be asleep when he knocked gently before he finally departed. She got up as soon as she heard his car roll out of the drive, dressed in her riding habit, and ate a hurried breakfast. She pretended to herself that she was simply going for a long ride. She told herself that it was too soon to make another call on Ainsworth and that she had no intention of doing anything so foolish. She certainly did not want him to think she was pursuing him! Yet, somehow, about noon she found herself at the foot of the trail. Suddenly she heard horse's hoofs behind her.

"Hullo," exclaimed Robert Ainsworth, coming up at a gallop. "I was just thinking as I rode along that to have to eat lunch alone on such a day was enough to make the angels weep!"

Joyce's heart lightened at a bound. Deep gratitude flooded her at this casual but warm reception. She smiled happily, all her doubts dispelled. She was glad, glad that she had come! And during the three hours she stayed with Robert Ainsworth, eating lunch with him, helping him wash the dishes, and listening to his nonsense, she continued to be glad.

The conversation was kept, as it by mutual consent, light and bantering, impersonal.

"I've finished Glittering Pavements," she remarked in a pause, "but I'm saving The Rose Abode a little longer. It's such riches to have two books by Robert Ainsworth at once! You can't think how I adore your writing. I wish I could express myself better," hoping he would not think her stupid; "of course, you don't need any praise from me, but I do want you to know how much I enjoy your books. Everything you write is so satisfactory . . . it has such strength . . . there always seems to be something to bite on." She paused, suddenly overcome by

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price.

Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple:—a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different—he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

Henry Ford

Gulf Exhibit At Chicago Fair Is Full of Interest

"Everything in action"—this is the outstanding impression of the exhibition displayed by the Gulf Refining Company at Chicago's Century of Progress. Although featuring realistic airplane and racing car rides, a beautiful Oil Fountain, and one of the largest automobile cylinders ever built, the Gulf exhibit is fundamentally practical and instructive.

Even the huge auto cylinder, reaching 29 feet towards the ceiling, gives a lesson in power. In the cylinder a large piston operates, showing, with the aid of lights, intake and exhaust and bringing out the truth that "fresh gas packs power." At the base of the cylinder three shelves rotate, displaying miniature models of an airplane, a racing car, and a motor boat. In this section of the Gulf display, visitors also find a cut-away Chrysler marine engine, an Evinrude outboard motor which established a world's record, a Cummings Diesel engine, a Westinghouse farm lighting plant, and four Gulf service station pumps.

Balancing this display in the opposite corner, 125 feet away, stands the beautiful oil fountain. Twenty-six feet high and designed futuristically, it explains graphically total chassis lubrication as well as industrial lubrication. Series of aluminum pipes with glass windows show the Gulf oils and greases bubbling and flowing. A smaller oil fountain, four feet high, with 12 glass tubes, explains oil viscosity.

Next the visitor sees a miniature model of the Capitol Limited train, with an engine and two Pullman cars, moving. There is also a miniature model of an oil tanker. Both indicate the uses to which Gulf lubrication is put.

Further on, a gear demonstration shows what happens when poor lubrication goes into the transmission.

Two transmission gears are used for this test and the proper comparison is obtained by using an incorrect lubricant and Gulfpride oil.

The visitor can take part in the next demonstration. A Mack truck unit, 4x15 feet, shows in motion complete engine lubrication as well as transmission lubrication and rear end lubrication. The complete power unit is moving, so it is possible to shift gears and see what happens. This particular exhibit was used once before and by actual count, three out of every four people passing the display worked the gears.

Now the visitor comes to a platform on which rests a Westinghouse high voltage transformer, cut away to show Gulf's transformer oil. The display is encased in glass so that its audience can see what happens inside. Two arcing horns on top give off approximately 75 arcs per minute. The effect is startling since the arcs appear in many colors.

Back a bit there is a cut-away of a Duesenberg motor operating at a speed of 50 R. P. M. This is the actual motor with which Gulf made the 100-miles-an-hour record at the Indianapolis Speedway and which Gulf Supreme oil as the 100-miles-an-hour motor oil.

Other moving displays include the cut-away of a Plymouth engine, demonstrating floating power, and complete lubrication, a G.M.C. truck unit displaying complete lubrication, and the new revolutionary White Pancake Bus Motor which averaged 43 miles an hour, actual driving time, over the mountains from New York to Pittsburgh, using only one quart and one pint of the new Gulf motor oil. The latter display holds special distinction since it is the first public showing. Only four of these engines, attaining 250 h. p., have been made. There is also a 7' miniature of the Belgenland, showing first-, second-, third-class, and engine room. This fuel-burning ship is lighted and moving.

On two turn-tables there are, respectively, a Fairbanks-Morse diesel marine engine showing complete diesel lubrication with Gulf oils and a cut-away Chevrolet motor displaying the working parts in operation.

Then there is the display of the new Gulf automotive packages in orange, blue, and white; the plastic model, 4'x9', of a Gulf service station showing all the services rendered when the motorist drives in at the Sign of the Orange Disc; a flasher showing a large-size cylinder and piston and portraying the difference between Good Gulf gasoline and bad gasoline in auto cylinders; a flasher system of four pictures illustrating various customers using Gulf auto polish, Gulf valvestop oil, penetrating oil, and Gulf lubrication; a slide film of 25 pictures proving that Gulf products take care of all automotive needs. This film is controlled by a Gridglow tube so that the Century of Progress guest can start the pictures by touching the Orange Disc.

Next door the amazing Alchlore. This picture is controlled by Process is explained in a motion picture electric eyes and begins when a visitor passes before one of the eyes. Here is shown the exclusive refining process by which Gulf is able to make the outstanding motor oil on the market.

Adjacent is the display of Gulf's household products: (1) 4'x9' plastic model of a home with emphasis on Gulf fuel oil, Gulf oil, Gulfwax, and other products; (2) Flasher with four pictures showing housewives using Gulf Venom, Gulf penetrating oil, Gulf cleaning fluid, Gulf wax and Gulf Gleam Liquid Gloss; (3) a slide film controlled by a Gridglow Tube, indicating why Gulf products should be used in every modern home; (4) a display showing the difference between Gulf motor oil and poor oil in a cylinder; (5) a complete showing of the Gulf household products in their attractive new packages.

Above the heads of visitors is seen a 20'x30' electric sign, flashing on and off. Here the Gulf pump is seen. Then a car pulling into a Gulf service station. Next the tank is being filled with Gulf gasoline. And finally as the car drives off, prominence is given to the Sign of the Orange Disc and the message, "It's Fresh."

But the greatest thrills remain. At the back in the alcoves, are two booths. Visitors walk into one, climb into the driver's seat of a racing car and, with the aid of motion pictures and sound effects, find themselves driving around the Indianapolis Speedway at 100 and 120 miles an hour. The race is made with the help of Lou Moore, famous speed demon who established records with Gulf Supreme Oil. In the other booth, visitors operate the airplane which established the world's re-fueling endurance record with the help of Gulfpride oil. This record was made by Dale Jackson and Foster O'Brine. Again, movies and sound effects give the feeling of an actual sail in the skies over the oil fields of Texas and Oklahoma.

Motion—yes! Yet when the Gulf guest takes his leave, he might well glance up to the walls of the exhibit and notice the Westinghouse electric murals inlaid in dyed aluminum there. He will see the various production, refining, transporting, and selling operations pictured there. And his final thought may be that the oil industry is terrifically important to the world's progress and that the Gulf Refining Company is doing its share to make leisure and work more pleasant and more convenient.

4-H Club Boy Makes Good Record

Jesse Money of the Spring Lake 4-H club, and a tenant's son, who had mighty little equipment, and lots of determination, received two calves from the Halsell Cattle Co., on September 8, weighing 1000 pounds.

He showed them on March 22, at Amherst, in the Lamb County Calf Show, and one of his was the Grand Champion calf, in spite of the fact that Jesse had to haul water all winter long, two and one-half miles, in order that his calves be properly fed. He showed the real 4-H club spirit when he performed this feat.

Also, Jesse won the W. E. Halsell prize of $25 for the boy exhibiting the best two calves fed by one boy, and at the Lubbock show was the only Lamb county boy to get his calf cut out in the top 16 calves.

Total income for feed fed these two calves was $40.41 for his gain of 660 pounds, and, in addition received $30.50 for prizes. These calves were fed on a cooperative contract.

Roosevelt Honors 4-H

President Franklin D. Roosevelt is to play the part of "Big Brother" to the 950,000 boys and girls of the nation enrolled in 4-H clubs by his acceptance of honorary chairmanship of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work of Chicago. This means that he is glad to lend his name and influence to foster the 4-H movement.

It is only organizations of the highest standards and rendering a service of real human advancement which are honored in this manner. President Roosevelt is well conversant with the work of 4-H clubs, having taken a keen interest in their program while chief executive of his native state, which is a leader in this movement.

Ex-president Hoover honored the 4-H movement by accepting the honorary chairmanship of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club work, and showed his sincere interest in the work on many occasions. Delegates to the annual National Club Camps held in Washington during his administration were always cordially received by the then president and Mrs. Hoover. The late President Coolidge was the first chief executive to honor the clubs in this way, and he and Mrs. Coolidge showed their friendly interest and high regard for the movement and its leaders at many times.

The National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work services the 4-H clubs of the nation on its own resources, and in numerous ways which are not within the province of the agricultural colleges and the government. One is the management of the National Club Congress held annually in connection with the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. At this occasion over 1200 state and local club leaders and 4-H member delegates gather for contests to determine the national championship in various lines of endeavor. These contests are in many cases sponsored by individuals and industrial concerns who have a genuine interest in helping rural boys and girls to become successful farmers and home makers or to careers of service in other lines. These contests are conducted by the National Committee in cooperation with the extension leaders of the country. The nation's newspapers play a large part in fostering the 4-

H movement as well as numerous civic and other organizations in conjunction with the National Committee which President Roosevelt has just honored.

Thirty-nine Lamb county 4-H club boys received a total of $1538.25, or an average of $16.72 per head income for the gain on 92 calves fed on a cooperative agreement with the Halsell Cattle Co. of Amherst, states D. A. Adam, county agent.

Ninety-four calves were received by the boys on September 8, at an average weight of 456.6 pounds per head. These calves were fed 197 days, and sold at Lubbock during the Quality Meat Show at an average price of $5.33 per hundred, and a weight after 24 shrink and three days at the show of 754.7 pounds, making a net daily gain for all the calves of 1.51 pounds per day, at a feed cost per hundred pounds of gain of $3.175. Total average feed bill including heads, threshed grain, limestone, cotton seed meal or cotton seed, was $9.46 per head.

W. E. Halsell received a total of $2163.42, or $23.50 per head, after his part of transportation was paid. This was $5.12 per hundred for his calves.

Two State Parks To Be Established in Palo Duro Canyon

By executive order from the White House two state parks were established in the Palo Duro Canyon in Randall county. President Roosevelt signed the order which takes over the Byars Bros. land east of Canyon, consisting of 14,466 acres, and also a half section of the Palisades which is northeast of Canyon.

The president established four work camps on the Byars land and one in the Palisades, giving five camps for the two projects. Each camp will be allowed $18,000 in cash for the purpose of buying materials for the development of the parks.

Federal engineers from the National Parks system are expected at any moment to make plans to start work. It is stated that the government has the 1,000 men, who will be assigned here for the five camps, nearly ready to place in these camps.

Plans are being made for the development of a water supply, and building roads into the canyon. These will be the first steps taken.

W. W. HEATH, Secretary of State. (A Correct Copy.) 7-41-c.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF TEXAS S. J. R. No. 31

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Article IX of the Constitution of Texas be amended by adding thereto a section to be Section 3, which shall provide:

"Section 3. (1) Holding the belief that the highest degree of local self government which is consistent with the efficient conduct of those affairs by necessity lodged in the Nation and the State will prove most responsive to the will of the people, and result to reward their diligence and intelligence by greater economy and efficiency in their local government affairs, it hereby is ordained:

"(2) Any county having a population of sixty-two thousand (62,000) or more according to the then last Federal Census may adopt a County Home Rule Charter, to embrace those powers appropriate hereto, within the specific limitations hereinafter provided. It further is provided that the Legislature, by a favorable vote of two-thirds of the total membership of both the Senate and the House of Representatives, may authorize any county, having a population less than that above specified, to proceed hereunder for the adoption of a Charter; however, as a condition for such authorization, it is required that notice of the intent to seek Legislative authority hereunder must be published in one or more newspapers, to give general circulation in the county affected, not less than once per week for four (4) consecutive weeks, and the first of such publications shall appear not less than thirty (30) days next prior to the time an Act making proposal hereunder may be introduced in the Legislature. No County Home Rule Charter may be adopted by any county save upon a favorable vote of the resident qualified electors of the affected county. In elections submitting to the voters a proposal to adopt a Charter (unless otherwise provided by a two-thirds vote of the total membership of each House of the Legislature) the votes cast by the qualified electors residing within the limits of all the incorporated cities and towns of the county shall be separately kept but collectively counted and the votes of the qualified electors of the county who do not reside within the limits of any incorporated city or town likewise shall be separately kept and separately counted, and unless there be a favorable majority of the votes cast within and a favorable majority of the votes cast without such collective cities and towns, the Charter shall not be adopted. It is expressly forbidden that any such Charter may inconsistently affect the operation of the General Laws of the State relating to the judicial, tax, fiscal, educational, police, highway and health systems, or any other department of the State's superior government. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to authorize the adoption of a Charter provision inimical to or inconsistent with the sovereignty and established public policies of this State, and no provision having such vice shall have validity as against the State. No Charter provision may operate to impair the exemption of homesteads as established by this Constitution and the Statutes relating thereto."

"(3) a. A Charter hereunder may provide: the continuance of a County Commissioners' Court, as now constituted, to serve as the governing body of a county to operate hereunder; or, may provide for a governing body otherwise constituted, which shall be elective and service therein shall be upon such qualifications, for such terms, under such plan of representation, and upon such conditions of tenure and compensation as may be fixed by any such Charter. The terms for service in such governing body may exceed two (2) years, but shall not exceed six (6) years. In any event, in addition to the powers and duties provided by any such Charter, such governing body shall exercise all powers, and discharge all duties which, in the absence of the provisions hereof, would devolve by law on County Commissioners and County Commissioners' Courts. Further, any such Charter may provide for the organization, reorganization, establishment and administration of the government of the county, including the control and regulation of the performance of and the compensation for all duties required in the conduct of the county affairs, subject to the limitations herein provided."

"b. A Charter hereunder may provide that Judges of County Courts (including that County Court designated in this Constitution), and Justices of the Peace be compensated upon a salary basis in lieu of fees. The jurisdiction of the County Court designated in this Constitution, and the duties of the Judges thereof, may be confined to that general jurisdiction of a probate Court which elsewhere is defined in this Constitution. The office of Justice of the Peace may be made either elective or appointive. Other than as herein provided, no such Charter shall provide for altering the jurisdiction of procedure of any Court. The duties of District Attorney and/or County Attorney may be confined to representing the State in civil cases to which the State is a party and to enforcement of the State's Penal Code, and the compensation of said attorneys may be fixed on a salary basis in lieu of fees."

"c. Save as hereinabove and hereinafter otherwise provided, such Charters, within the limits expressed therein, may invest the governing body to be established for any county electing to operate hereunder with the power to create, consolidate or abolish any office or department, whether created by other provisions of the Constitution or by statute, define the duties hereof, fix the compensation for service therein, make the same elective or appointive and prescribe the time, qualifications and conditions for tenure in any such office; save, that no such Charter other than as hereinbefore authorized, shall provide to regulate the status, service, duties or compensation of members of the Legislature, Judges of the Courts, District Attorneys, County Attorneys, or any office whatever by the law of the State required to be filled by an election embracing more than one county. Excepting herefrom nominations, elections or appointments to offices, the terms whereof may not have expired prior to the adoption of this Amendment to the Constitution, at such time as a Charter provision adopted hereunder may be in effect (save as to those offices which must continue to be elective, as herein elsewhere specified), all terms of county officers and all contracts for the giving of service by deputies under such officers, may be subject to termination by the administrative body of the county, under an adopted Charter so providing, and there shall be no liability by reason thereof."

"d. Any county electing to operate hereunder shall have the power, by Charter provision, to levy, assess and collect taxes, and to fix the maximum rate for ad valorem taxes to be levied for specific purposes, in accordance with the Constitution and laws of this State; provided, however, that the limit of the aggregate taxes which may be levied, assessed and collected hereunder shall not exceed the limit or total fixed, or hereafter to be fixed, by this Constitution to control counties, and the annual assessment upon property, both real, personal and mixed, shall be a first superior and prior lien thereon."

"e. In addition to the powers herein provided, and in addition to powers included in County Home Rule Charters, any county may, by a majority vote of the qualified electors of said county, amend its Charter, to include other powers, functions, duties and rights which now or hereafter may be provided by this Constitution and the statutes of the State for counties."

"(4). Any county operating hereunder shall have the power to borrow money for all purposes lawful under its Charter, to include the refunding of a lawful debt, in a manner conforming to the General Laws of the State, and may issue therefor its obligations. Such obligations, other than those to refund a lawful debt, shall not be valid unless authorized by a majority of all votes cast by the resident qualified voters of the area affected by the taxes required to retire such obligations, who may vote thereon. In case of county obligations maturing after a period of five (5) years, the same shall be issued to mature serially, fixing the first maturity of principal at a time not to exceed two (2) years next after the date of the issuance of such obligations. Such obligations may pledge the full faith and credit of the county; but in no event shall the aggregate obligations so issued, in principal amount outstanding at any one time, exceed the then existing Constitutional limits for such obligations and such indebtedness and its supporting tax shall constitute a first and superior lien upon the property taxable in such county. No obligation issued hereunder shall be valid unless prior to the time of the issuance thereof there be levied a tax sufficient to retire the same as it matures, which tax shall not exceed the then existing Constitutional limits."

"(5). Such Charter may authorize the governing body of a county operating hereunder to prescribe the schedule of fees to be charged by the officers of the county for specified service, to be in lieu of the schedule for such fees prescribed by the General Laws of the State; and, to appropriate such fees to such funds as the Charter may prescribe; provided, however, no fee for a specified service shall exceed in amount the fee fixed by General Law for that same service. Such Charters as to all judicial officers, other than District Judges, may prescribe the qualifications for services, provided the standards therefor be not lower than those fixed by the General Laws of the State."

"(6) a. Subject to the express limitations upon the exercise of the powers by this subdivision to be authorized, such Charters may provide (or omit to provide) that the governmental and/or proprietary functions of any city, town, district or other defined political subdivision (which is a governmental agency and embraced within the boundaries of the county) be transferred, either as to some or all of the functions thereof, and yielded to the control of the administrative body of the county. No such transfer or yielding of functions may be effected, unless the proposal is submitted to a vote of the people, and, unless otherwise provided by a two-thirds vote of the total membership of each House of the Legislature, such a proposal shall be submitted as a separate issue, and the vote within and without any such city, town, district, or other defined governmental entity, shall be separately cast and counted, and unless two-thirds of the qualified votes cast within the yielding defined governmental entity, and a majority of the qualified votes cast in the remainder of the county, favor the proposed merger, it shall not be effected. In case of the mergers hereby authorized, without express Charter provision therefor, in so far as may be required to make effective the object of the proposed merger, the county shall succeed to all the appropriate lawful powers, duties, rights, procedures, restrictions and limitations which prior to the merger were reposed in, or imposed upon, the yielding governmental agency. Particularly, it is provided that the power to create funded indebtedness, and to levy taxes in support thereof may be exercised only by such procedures, and within such limits, as now are, or hereafter may be, provided by law to control such appropriate governmental agencies were they to be independently administered. Such mergers may be effected under proposed contracts between the county and any such yielding governmental agency, to be approved at an election as hereinbefore provided for. In order to increase governmental efficiency and effect economy the county may contract with the principal city of the county to perform one or more of its functions, provided such contracts shall not be valid for more than two (2) years."

"b. In cases of the partial or complete merger of the government of a city operating under a Home Rule Charter, with the government of a county operating hereunder, those city Charter provisions affected thereby shall cease to control, and the county Charter provisions shall control."

"c. When any embraced incorporated city or town elects to merge its governmental functions with those of the county under the provisions hereof, such Charter may provide for defining or redefining the boundaries of such cities and towns, provided, however, that in defining or redefining the boundaries of such cities and towns, such boundaries may be extended only to include those areas contiguous to such cities as are urban in character; and as to such cities or towns and for the benefit thereof the county, in addition to the primary city and county tax herein authorized and any other lawful district tax, may levy and collect taxes upon the property taxable within such city or town as defined or redefined, within the limits authorized by Sections 4 and 5 of Article XI of this Constitution, (or any Amendment thereof) for incorporated cities according to the population, provided that no tax greater than that existing at the time of such merger or for any added purpose shall be imposed upon any such city or town unless authorized by a majority of all votes cast by the resident qualified voters of such city or town."

"d. Areas urban in character though not incorporated, under appropriate Charter provision may be defined as such by the governing body of the county, provided, however, that no portion of the county shall be defined as an urban area unless it has sufficient population to entitle it to incorporate under the then existing laws of the State; and no such urban area, when created, shall be vested with any taxing or bonding power which it would not possess if it were operating as a separate incorporated unit under the then existing Constitutional and Statutory provisions of this State; and provided further that the governing body of the county for the government of such areas shall have and exercise all powers and authority granted by law to the governing bodies of similar areas when separately incorporated as a city or town, and such areas shall be subject to additional taxation within the same Constitutional limits as control taxation for a city or a town of like population. Likewise such Charter may provide for the governing board of the county subject to existing Constitutional and statutory provisions to create and administer districts, and to exercise the powers and authority granted by the Constitution and laws relative to the same."

"(7). No provision of this Constitution inconsistent with the provisions of this Section 3, of Article IX, shall be held to control the provisions of a Charter adopted hereunder, and conforming herewith. Charters adopted hereunder shall make appropriate provision for the abandonment, revocation, and amendment thereof, subject only to the requirements that there must be a favorable majority of the vote cast upon such a proposal, by the qualified resident electors of the county; and, no Charter may forbid amendments thereof for a time greater than two (2) years. The provisions hereof shall be self-executing, subject only to the duty of the Legislature to pass all laws (consistent herewith) which may be necessary to carry out the intent and purpose hereof. Further, the Legislature shall prescribe a procedure for submitting to decision, by a majority vote of the electors voting thereon, proposed alternate and elective Charter provisions."

Section 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the State at an election to be held throughout the State on the fourth Saturday in August, 1933, at which election all ballots shall have printed thereon the following:

"For the Amendment to Article IX of the Constitution of Texas, adding Section 3, providing authority for the adoption of a Home Rule Charter by the voters in counties having a population of sixty-two thousand (62,000) or more, to effect more efficient and economical government within such counties, and to authorize mergers of separate governmental agencies within such counties as may from time to time be authorized by vote of the people therein."

"Against the Amendment to Article IX of the Constitution of Texas, adding Section 3, providing authority for the adoption of a Home Rule Charter by the voters in counties having a population of sixty-two thousand (62,000) or more, to effect more efficient and economical government within such counties, and to authorize mergers of separate governmental agencies within such counties as may from time to time be authorized by vote of the people therein."

Each voter shall scratch out one of the above listed clauses on such ballot, leaving unscratched that particular clause which expresses his vote on the proposed Amendment to which it relates."

Section 3. The Governor of this State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation ordering an election in conformity herewith to determine whether or not the proposed Constitutional Amendment set forth herein shall be adopted, and the Governor shall have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State."

posed contracts between the county and any such yielding governmental agency, to be approved at an election as hereinbefore provided for. In order to increase governmental efficiency and effect economy the county may contract with the principal city of the county to perform one or more of its functions, provided such contracts shall not be valid for more than two (2) years."

"b. In cases of the partial or complete merger of the government of a city operating under a Home Rule Charter, with the government of a county operating hereunder, those city Charter provisions affected thereby shall cease to control, and the county Charter provisions shall control."

"c. When any embraced incorporated city or town elects to merge its governmental functions with those of the county under the provisions hereof, such Charter may provide for defining or redefining the boundaries of such cities and towns, provided, however, that in defining or redefining the boundaries of such cities and towns, such boundaries may be extended only to include those areas contiguous to such cities as are urban in character; and as to such cities or towns and for the benefit thereof the county, in addition to the primary city and county tax herein authorized and any other lawful district tax, may levy and collect taxes upon the property taxable within such city or town as defined or redefined, within the limits authorized by Sections 4 and 5 of Article XI of this Constitution, (or any Amendment thereof) for incorporated cities according to the population, provided that no tax greater than that existing at the time of such merger or for any added purpose shall be imposed upon any such city or town unless authorized by a majority of all votes cast by the resident qualified voters of such city or town."

"d. Areas urban in character though not incorporated, under appropriate Charter provision may be defined as such by the governing body of the county, provided, however, that no portion of the county shall be defined as an urban area unless it has sufficient population to entitle it to incorporate under the then existing laws of the State; and no such urban area, when created, shall be vested with any taxing or bonding power which it would not possess if it were operating as a separate incorporated unit under the then existing Constitutional and Statutory provisions of this State; and provided further that the governing body of the county for the government of such areas shall have and exercise all powers and authority granted by law to the governing bodies of similar areas when separately incorporated as a city or town, and such areas shall be subject to additional taxation within the same Constitutional limits as control taxation for a city or a town of like population. Likewise such Charter may provide for the governing board of the county subject to existing Constitutional and statutory provisions to create and administer districts, and to exercise the powers and authority granted by the Constitution and laws relative to the same."

"(7). No provision of this Constitution inconsistent with the provisions of this Section 3, of Article IX, shall be held to control the provisions of a Charter adopted hereunder, and conforming herewith. Charters adopted hereunder shall make appropriate provision for the abandonment, revocation, and amendment thereof, subject only to the requirements that there must be a favorable majority of the vote cast upon such a proposal, by the qualified resident electors of the county; and, no Charter may forbid amendments thereof for a time greater than two (2) years. The provisions hereof shall be self-executing, subject only to the duty of the Legislature to pass all laws (consistent herewith) which may be necessary to carry out the intent and purpose hereof. Further, the Legislature shall prescribe a procedure for submitting to decision, by a majority vote of the electors voting thereon, proposed alternate and elective Charter provisions."

Section 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the State at an election to be held throughout the State on the fourth Saturday in August, 1933, at which election all ballots shall have printed thereon the following:

Home Refinancing Bill Is Signed

WASHINGTON—Voicing an appeal to creditors of small home owners to abstain from foreclosures, President Roosevelt Tuesday signed the bill making $2,000,000,000 available for refinancing mortgages.

"It will, of course," he said in a formal statement, "take a little while to set up the machinery necessary to carry the principles of the act into effect."

"In the meantime, I appeal to mortgage creditors and all others who have claims against home owners and ask them, until full opportunity has been given to make effective the refinancing provisions of the home mortgage act, that they abstain from foreclosure proceedings and that they abstain from proceeding to dispossess the home owners who are in debt to them."

Cheese Factory May Be Established Soon at Levelland

Levelland—W. G. Snyder, a resident of Wisconsin and a practical cheese manufacturer, was here recently looking over the country with the idea of locating a plant at this place. His visit was the result of correspondence with the local Chamber of Commerce and the efforts of the secretary, C. M. Elder, to promote a co-operative company among the farmers of this section.

Mr. Snyder expressed himself as being favorably impressed with the opportunities offered by this part of the country and stated that dairying could be done on a more economical basis than in the north.

The dairying and feeding business made the North a prosperous country before the war and is largely responsible for the high development of that country. Here feed can be raised cheaply and the winters are such that cattle need little protection when compared with the dairy states of the North.

The promotion of the cheese factory has been progressing for the past two weeks. It was planned to organize a company with a capital of about $7,500, of this amount over $2,000 has been subscribed by the farmers of the county with few communities visited. It is thought by fall that there will be no trouble in raising the needed amount.

Should Mr. Snyder locate here, the proposition will in all probability be a private ownership with cooperative efforts to bring the needed supply of milk up to the demands for profitable operation of the plant. The dairy business has grown rapidly within the past four years and it is likely that it will soon be one of the leading industries of the country.

SIDELIGHTS

—By— MARVIN JONES Member of Congress from Texas

One of the most important phases of work in Congressional committees during recent years is the investigation now being conducted before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Already a number of facts have been brought to light concerning the international banking establishment of J. P. Morgan & Co., which has come to be looked upon by the American people in an almost legendary light because of its great power in the financial world.

The outcome of this investigation, which will embrace not only the Morgan interests but other big banking institutions as well, will no doubt result in beneficial legislation which will enable the federal government to strengthen its control over the money and credit of the nation. It may also lead to further banking reform and to the strengthening of other laws as well. Work along this line has already been started.

An example of the inadequacy of present statutes can be found in the testimony that J. P. Morgan gave to the Senate investigating committee, in which he said that he paid no income taxes during 1931 and 1932, and very little in 1930. However, he did pay income taxes in England.

The American people may well be astonished by such a revelation. The fact that America's symbol of monied power paid no income tax is startling. Mr. Morgan explained this fact by saying that he had to partake of the losses of his company as well as the profits.

In this country capital losses are not taxable, while in Great Britain they cannot be deducted in making individual returns.

Another interesting revelation which has been made is the extensive control which the company has through its twenty partners. These partners held eighteen directorships in banks and trust companies and 167 directorships in corporations.

These points are only a few examples of the many things which the Senate committee is learning, and as the hearings progress, more interesting developments are likely to result.

It is the intention of the investigators to bring into the open the practices of these private interests which have held such a grip on economic structure. If present laws have been violated punishment should follow immediately. If the laws have been evaded various methods, then they must be tightened and revised to insure justice to every American citizen.

No matter what the final outcome of the investigation may be, almost the little individual has come to realize how insignificant he is in the midst of this enormous centralization of holdings and control.

The balance must be restored, and the irregularities must be corrected.

IMPROVING DAIRY FARM PROPERTIES

Improvements are being made by G. C. Vaught at his dairy farm west of the city, on Highway No. 1. Mr. Vaught plans to make extensive improvements at this time throughout the interior of his house. A number of months ago he built a modern dairy barn.

KILLED AT HOBBS

HOBBS, N. M.—Robert A. Pritchard, a farm hand employed on the C. Chesher farm east of town, was instantly killed when the flywheel of a water pump on which he was working, fell to pieces. The body was shipped to Tulsa, Okla.

MOVES TO LAMESA

Talmadge Sparkman, who has been employed by the Union Compress of this city for the past several years, has been transferred to Lamesa where he will take over the duties of superintendent of the compress at that city.
