News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

WASHINGTON By RAY TUCKER

Line-up—Campfire strategists agree that the 1936 presidential issues have started to jell.

But the Farleyites have devised a scheme to throw the Republicans off balance. They will ask GOP candidates and orators to specify the Rooseveltian reforms which they will scrap if they capture the White House.

The political planners welcome Herbert Hoover's entrance into the pre-convention campaign. They are actually concealing their joy for fear it may frighten him back into silence.

Bogged—The administration's $400,000,000 program for elimination of grade crossings has been halted temporarily, though nobody will talk about it.

WPA Road Project Is Approved

Approval of the Knott to Highway No. 9 road as a WPA project was given presidential approval Wednesday.

Another difficulty lies in the fact that all contracts must be cleared through government agencies by Dec. 15.

Financial and industrial experts are making a real study on the possibilities that lie in formation of a National Emergency Council.

Now it develops that several sets of government sharks are exploring the plan in some detail.

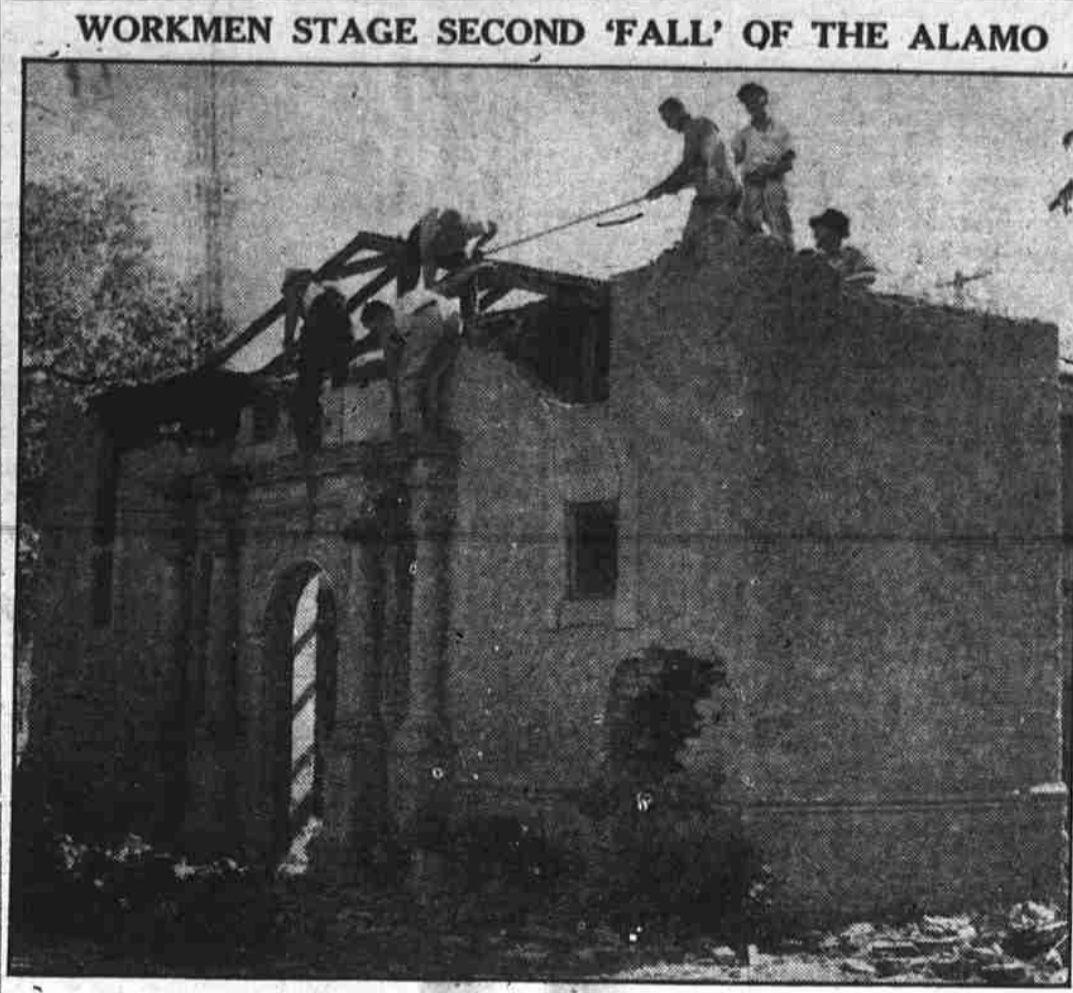

Set—Jesse Jones' railroad reorganization plans are getting him into all sorts of trouble.

The Texan first antagonized administration "liberals" by what they called his tenderness to private banking and managerial groups.

As they recall—the government's stake in their properties does not compare with their own.

The controversies seem to be getting more and more heated.

Hauptmann Attorneys Plan To Appeal Case In Supreme Court

NEW YORK (AP)—As Bruno Hauptmann's attorneys planned to appeal to the supreme court, the New York Evening Journal said "one of New Jersey's most powerful officers" had pledged he would get commutation if Hauptmann confesses and names an accomplice.

Amendment To Chain Store Bill Is Offered

Presiding Officer Overrules Contention Of Tioga Senator

AUSTIN (AP)—The proposed three per cent sales tax as an amendment to the house chain store tax bill withstood a senate constitutionality attack Thursday.

Senator Van Zandt, Tioga, contended the tax altered the original intent of the bill in contravention to the constitution.

Fire Prevention, Air Mail Topics At Lions Club

Discussions on fire prevention and the approaching fifth annual airmail service celebration here were heard Wednesday by the Lions Club.

Fire Marshal E. B. Bethel called attention of the members to the saving being effected in Big Spring by virtue of a good fire rate.

Action in overcoming fire hazards and not mere lip service was urged by Bethel.

W. T. Strange outlined plans for the airmail celebration here Tuesday and enumerated a list of personalities who may be expected here for the occasion.

The club authorized a telegraphic message to District Governor Ralph Randal of Panhandle assuring him of continued support.

The president appointed a committee to plan for the 100 per cent attendance day on Oct. 30 which will also be held in the nature of a ladies' day affair.

Red Cross To Hold Accident Prevention Campaign In Howard

A plea for accumulated air mail postage went begging Thursday as time for the fifth anniversary celebration of airmail service here Tuesday grew nearer.

To date only a small amount of mail has been left at the Chamber of Commerce office despite announcements by many business men that they would have much air mail for that day.

R. E. Thompson, congressman of the old "jumbo" district of which Howard county was formerly a member, sent his regrets at being unable to attend the affair.

Goal for Howard county in the roll call is 1,000 members, Bridge announced. B. J. Cook, roll call chairman, said the chapter would set a cash goal of $1,000.

There was some discussion concerning a nursing program but the suggestion was kept under advisement.

Bridge revealed that Howard county last year attained 64 per cent of its roll call goal while the average West Texas county succeeded in getting only 52 per cent.

Roll call this year will start as usual on Armistice Day and continue to Thanksgiving.

Several members of the chapter said they planned to attend the regional meeting of the Red Cross in Abilene Oct. 25.

Holy City Of Aksum Taken By Italians

Naval Blockade May Be Established To Cut Off Italy Troops

(By Associated Press) The league of nations gave its final approval of sanctions against Italy as the Italians captured Aksum, the holy city.

Possibility was seen to establish a naval blockade to cut off Italy's East African forces from the homeland.

Baron Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation, said Italy "was convinced she, in interpreting the true spirit of the league, which is synonymous with life, against the league"

(By Associated Press) An Italian spokesman said Thursday any naval blockade against Italy means war.

It was said the Italian delegation probably will leave Geneva Friday.

The spokesman said Italy was not fearing economic sanctions because she intends to get necessities from Germany through Austria.

Bombproof shelters were ordered built under American and French legations in Addis Ababa.

Italian war correspondents reported Emperor Selassie has ordered a shakeup among army chieftains because of "collapse of morale" after the success of the first Italian advance.

Italian headquarters announced Ethiopia lost 2,500 dead in the last eight days, while Italian losses were two officers killed, and a hundred men wounded.

The league, is synonymous with death.

The disinclination of Austria and Hungary to impose penalties complicated the problem.

The league steering committee decided the sanctions coordination committee would comprise all members except Italy and Ethiopia.

Rome reports said the left wing of the northern Italian army had begun advance toward Haufen, strategic center south of Adigrat and was on a line march into the interior.

The Italians encountered bitter resistance and lost heavily at Edagahamus and Debracion.

The southern army pushed from Italian Somaliland to near Dolo, close to the border.

Emperor Selassie asked the Italian minister at Addis Ababa to leave immediately.

STEER COACHES ARE DISPLEASED WITH NEW LINEUP
Football's Big Intersectional Battles Flare High Again

FAILS TO CLICK IN WORKOUT
More Changes Are Due To Be Made; Fort Worth Team Favored

Coaches Bristow, Brown and Moffett watched a revamped Steer team work-out Wednesday afternoon and after the signal drill practice was over for the day Bristow announced that the new arrangement didn't look so hot to him.
"Things seem OK in a way," the coach pondered, "but it just doesn't work right." Although he intimated rather strongly that other changes might be made, Bristow did not say just what would be done. He did, however, mention that the boys might be sent back to their old positions.

Make Profit Of $1,240.62 From July 1 To October 8

A report of the high school athletic fund made available today shows that the school has profited $1,240.62 from July 1 to Oct. 8.
Total receipts over the period amounted to $4,498.90 while expenses were $3,258.28.
Assets are listed as $14,225.66, including permanent and athletic equipment, which is not paid for. Liabilities amount to $12,290.20.

GIVES WAY TO SAM FLOWERS

Steve Baker, who started the season as regular center for the Steers, gave up his pivot post this week to Sam Flowers, co-captain, who was taken from the backfield and placed at the pivot slot where he won a lot of recognition last fall as a member of the state quarterfinalist team.

Mrs. W. A. Robertson of Ballinger is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ernest left last week to go to Funcan, Okla., called there by the illness of Mr. Ernest's mother. Upon arrival they heard that Mrs. Ernest's mother at Cushing was ill and Mrs. Ernest went there. Mrs. Harry Lester accompanied her.

Mrs. J. L. LeBlou has left for an extended trip visiting relatives in various parts of North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Biles have had word that I. N. Smith of Fort Worth, Mrs. Biles' cousin, is seriously ill in a Fort Worth hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Worley have as house guests, Mrs. Worley's sister, Mrs. L. M. Durham and her husband of San Antonio. They arrived today and expect to be in Big Spring for about a week.

Roy Q. Minton, southern representative of King Features Syndicate, New York, with headquarters in Dallas, was a business visitor in Big Spring Thursday. Mr. Minton was recently in an automobile wreck near Bowie, in which he sustained injuries to a knee and ankle.

Mrs. M. K. House and Mrs. James Davis spent Thursday in Abilene.

Garland Woodward returned Wednesday evening from Fort Worth, where he spent Tuesday and Wednesday on legal matters.

A brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pearce was injured in a car wreck Wednesday near Pecos. He was John H. Williams of Abilene, salesman for the Ed S. Hughes Company of that city. He came to Big Spring to spend Wednesday night. His injuries were a broken nose and cuts on the face. The accident resulted from a broken spring.

Mrs. Cecil Long and children are planning to leave Friday to visit Mrs. Long's mother, Mrs. B. E. Parmley of Electra.

Mrs. R. L. Pritchett has returned from Quannah after taking her mother, Mrs. Paralee Gilliam, home.

Traveler Fails To See Buffalo

BUFFALO—A German concern manufacturing brewing machinery has recently opened a branch in the United States, in a small town just outside the city of Buffalo. Recently the wife of one of the officials boarded an American Airlines plane at Newark. She spoke very little English and the stewardess spoke no German, but they managed a little conversation, all having to do with Buffalo. The stewardess used her hands to describe the size of the city and told her about Niagara Falls. The woman seemed delighted. As the ship approached the airport, the stewardess said to the woman "Buffalo." Looking out the window in great excitement, twisting and turning in her seat, she began chattering away in German at a great rate when the ship taxied up toward the hangar. "I see no animal the way you tell me," she exclaimed to Miss Bell. "I think you have not ought to joke me that way."

Chapter 32 THE ENIGMA

At the end of a week she was able to join Andrew in the garden. It was time to get the bulbs in, for next spring the garden would be her place of refuge.

Edwin didn't approve; she was over-riding her strength, he said; but she smiled gaily at him and insisted that she never lifted a finger. She was merely superintending, and who ever heard of a super-intendent who died from over-work.

Dorothy resumed her visits. The first time she had simply gathered Emily into her arms and held her close for a moment.

"You blessed angel," she said in an unsteady voice, and launched immediately into a ludicrous account of the latest scandal.

The two of them took lengthening walks in the brief December afternoons, and Emily was amazed to find how much her recent loss had intensified her powers of feeling and perception.

She had never in her life been so alive to the beauty and ugliness, to the happiness and despair, of the world about her.

A ragned, white-faced baby, its head nodding over the shoulder of its weary mother. A negro woman, dragging a bundle of soiled clothes in a child's broken-down wagon.

She smiled at the negro, and the answering smile was so swift and so heart-breakingly sad that his tears burned her eyelids. A precocious little dog, going determinedly about some errand of his own.

He stopped and wagged a pointy tail in response to her greeting, but his mind was on other things. A middle-aged salesman, desperate, neat, carrying a heavy metal suitcase that had imparted a permanent sag to his right shoulder.

A single wind-blurred pine in silhouette against the sky. These things and a thousand others beat upon her raw senses with an intensity that was almost unbearable.

Edwin was an enigma. At first his tenderness and consideration had been unflagging and Emily had matched them gladly with her own. Perhaps Jeffrey even in his passing would unite the two people who had been ready to love him most.

Edwin often came home early from the office to take her driving, and brought her unexpected gifts that touched her immeasurably; a book she had mentioned, candy; even a piece of antique silver he had seen in Turner's window.

But if he had rarely laughed before, he never laughed now; and his sombre solicitude was at times more difficult than indifference would have been.

She tried to pick up the broken threads of companionship with their mutual friends, the friends she had fought so hard to keep, but he frustrated her. To every invitation he said firmly, "I'm sorry, Emily, but I couldn't go to save my life."

"But it would do you good," she protested gently. "You see no one but me, and your mother and father and mine, and none of us is very good medicine for the other."

"I can't help it," he would repeat. "I'd rather not go." And she would be compelled to drop the subject.

Mrs. Barnes was the worst of her ordeals. She came almost daily to the house and sat in gloomy contemplation of the fire, or talked round and round the subject of little Jeffrey until Emily felt that she must ask her to leave or go mad. Callers could be steered from the subject, but not her mother-in-law.

Typically, her mother came up magnificently in the crisis, and Jeffrey was her fortress. She spent a great deal of time with them, grateful for their determined presence that things were just as they had always been.

Mrs. Barnes resented the fact that Emily went to her mother; while her mother-in-law must come to her, but Mrs. Barnes' resentment was too trivial to count a great deal.

Next week, Emily realized, would be Christmas. She dreaded Christmas, partly because of its associations, partly because of the problem it presented.

Frances said simply, "I hope you'll spend it with us," and Mrs. Barnes said resignedly, "We'd like to have you spend the day with us, but I suppose you will want to be with Mr. and Mrs. Felton."

She did want very much to spend the day with Frances and Jeffrey, but Edwin, she knew, wanted them to spend it with his parents. She asked it over frankly with Frances.

"You know without my telling you how much I want to come here, but they're so terribly sensitive—"

"I'll go mad with the strain of keeping them placated," Frances nodded vigorously. "I know. And I was afraid this very question would arise." She considered a moment. "Suppose you come to us Christmas Eve for dinner—when you were little we often used to have the tree and—"

Emily smiled her gratitude. "It would help such a lot! And let's have a little tree, with silly ten-cent store presents, and try to pretend that nothing has happened."

Her mother's eyes misted with unaccustomed tears. "We'll do our very best, darling."

And so the question was settled. On Christmas Eve they went, laden with small packages and two or three larger ones, to dine with Frances and Jeffrey. There was a tiny little tree in the living-room and they grouped the presents about it.

Edwin wore an uncertain air, as if such gaiety seemed to him in execrable taste, but Emily wore the brown velvet dress and ignored his uncertainty.

After dinner they opened the present, which this year were simpler than ever before because no one felt like spending much money in times like these.

At eleven Emily rose with a start. "I haven't had such a good time in months, darling. And if my presents had been any nicer I couldn't have stood it."

She kissed them lingeringly, and each put into the kiss the thing they had been careful to keep from their words.

"You'll come back tomorrow?" Jeffrey insisted, wistfully.

Emily laughed. "Of course." Surely the session with her parents-in-law couldn't be expected to last all day!

At home again she was blessedly tired from the physical exertion of the next day. She kissed Edwin goodnight and wondered if his kiss could be a trifle reluctant.

But it didn't seem very important just then, so she closed her eyes and gave herself gratefully to sleep.

They went to church the next morning, and Emily sat tense during the singing of timeless and beautiful songs. She slipped her cold little hand in Edwin's for comfort but Edwin, after a hasty pressure, released the hand.

It wasn't quite proper to hold hands in church and he was afraid someone might see them.

So she withdrew from him in spirit and sat rigid.

From church they went straight to the Barnes', because dinner would be at twelve-forty-five sharp. Mr. Barnes liked his meals promptly, and besides, the cook was apt to be cross and bang things unless she got away by two, Christmas or no Christmas.

Emily kissed them both. "Merry Christmas!"

Mrs. Barnes returned the kiss. "You don't have to pretend with us, dear," she assured her bravely. Mr. Barnes, after a dry, rather leathery kiss, said lugubriously, "Let's hope that next Christmas will be a merry one."

Having gotten off to an auspicious start they sat down to dinner. Mr. Barnes said grace, a long prayer composed especially for the occasion, with numerous references, aimed partly at Emily and partly at the Deity, to empty arms and vacant places.

Emily counted the threads in the damask pattern of her napkin and tried to ignore the references. After all, it couldn't last forever.

After dinner the presents were opened. There was no tree, because Mr. Barnes didn't believe in such foolishness for grown people.

Emily had deliberately chosen handsomer presents for Edwin's parents than for her own: a beautiful globe for Mr. Barnes, a needed piece of silver for Mrs. Barnes. Both of them were highly pleased with her selection, and because of their pleasure, Edwin was highly pleased with her.

At half-past four she arose with carefully concealed relief. "We haven't seen Mother and Dad today; we must run by and wish them a Merry Christmas."

Tomorrow, there are bitter words in the Barnes house.

year against two eastern teams—Pittsburgh and Notre Dame—and suffered one of its most disastrous campaigns in years, again will carry the Pacific Coast burden in inter-sectional competition. The Trojans have a 10-game schedule that includes three eleven from the other side of the Rockies—Illinois and Pittsburgh at Los Angeles and Notre Dame at South Bend.

West Bogs Down Last season the western slops was able to win only two of seven major engagements against the east. In addition, Stanford bowed to Alabama in the Rose Bowl. St. Mary's makes its annual trip to Fordham, Oregon State plays Nebraska, Southern Methodist meets U. C. L. A. and Texas Christian invades Santa Clara in the only other important East-West game this year.

The second outstanding inter-sectional battleground this week-end will be New York, where two games involve alien eleven. Fordham meets Purdue. The Bolshemakers, fresh from their 7-0 triumph over Northwestern, are expected to make the Ram's first inter-sectional game a failure.

L. S. U. Favored Louisiana State, despite its defeat by Rice, is favored over Chick Meehan's Manhattan team in New York's other major game. Two inter-sectional clashes are slated for Friday night on eastern fields. At Detroit, Oklahoma A. M. clashes with an umbelton Detroit eleven. At Philadelphia, Ray Morrison's Vanderbilt Commodores spot their clean record against Pop Warner's Temple Owls, who just returned from Texas where they whipped the Texas Aggies.

Colgate will show its gridiron legdemain at Iowa City against the University of Iowa. Neither of these teams has suffered a defeat. Other major inter-sectional games are Kansas at Michigan State; Colorado at Missouri; Nebraska at Minnesota and Southern Methodist at Washington U., St. Louis.

Beautiful Bridal Shower Is Given At Mrs. Carnrike's Mrs. R. E. Wilson was entertained with a bridal shower by her co-workers, Miss Nell Davis, Ima Deason, Viola Robinson and Mrs. W. E. Carnrike, at the home of the latter, Tuesday evening.

The house was attractively decorated with bowls of roses, asters and zinnias. The table was laid with a lace cover over yellow, carrying out the color scheme of yellow and white. In the center of it stood the three-tiered bridal cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, surrounded by bride's roses. White and yellow tapers in silver holders added to the pictu. Miss Nell Robinson presided over the guest book.

The honoree was introduced by the hostess and childhood friend and co-worker, Mrs. Viola Robinson. She gave a brief history of Mrs. Wilson's life, dividing it into four divisions. She was assisted in this by Miss Ima Deason at the piano.

Babyhood was portrayed by William Landers Read who came in to the tune of a nursery rhyme, and by the mother of the bride. Childhood was rendered by Vivian Middleton, Robert Noble Read and Harry Middleton while "School days" was played. Her business career was summed up by Miss Nell Davis while the organ played softly.

The closing epoch of her life was shown when Vivian Middleton at the bride entered on the arm of Robert Noble Read to the tune of Mendelssohn's wedding march. Vivian carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses which she presented to Mrs. Wilson. Harry Middleton came in last presenting cupid. He brought in a decorated cart piled with gifts from friends and relatives.

Cutting the cake, looking at the gifts, writing recipes and well wishes completed the evening.

Refreshment plates of salad, wafers, ice cream and cake were served to about 25 guests.

Ray Simmons And Joe Ogden Aid In Jolly Auction; Many Attractive Trophies Carried Home By Bridge Players

The Junior High P-T.A. cleared about $45 from its bridge benefit party Wednesday night. The money will be used to provide lunches and clothing for needy children in the Junior high school, announced the president, Mrs. C. A. Bulot.

There was a large attendance and enough prizes to make playing interesting. Mrs. E. C. Boatler was hostess for the evening.

Ray Simmons had charge of the auctioning of the table lamp, which went to the only single man present, Dr. R. B. G. Cowper. Mr. Simmons was assisted by Joe Ogden. Mrs. Foosehee received a flower holder.

The prizes for scores were awarded by couples as follows: high, Mrs. Travis Reed and Miss Catherine Young, a Japanese cookie jar and a double deck of cards.

Second high, Mrs. R. B. Billas and Mrs. P. H. Liberty, a refrigerator set and a box of handkerchiefs.

Third high, Mrs. Joe Ogden and C. A. Bulot, a waste basket and a tie.

Consolation: Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Boatler, a cigarette box and a pair of socks; slam prize, Mrs. Lynette McElhannon, a suede bridge table cover; bingo, Mrs. Ogden, an end table.

Cake, coffee and tea were served during the close of the evening. The officials of the Junior High P-T.A. and the committee in charge of the party expressed their thanks to the public for attending so generously; to the Crawford hotel and the Crawford coffee shop for their contribution; and to the following merchants who donated prizes and refreshments:

THE NEW FOOTBALL

Coffin Corner Kicking Specialized Art That Needs Great Skill

In late years, the art of accurate "coffin corner" punting has replaced the long, high kick of a decade ago which was designed to give ends time to get down under a punt and cover the receiver.

More than ever, football teams are developing specialty kickers who need not necessarily know how to pass or be able to run with the ball. Their only other duty is to run interference and get down to receive passes.

The long, high kicks of yore covered 60 and 70 yards; the coffin corner kick of today travels lower and sometimes not more than 40 yards. But it is designed to roll out of bounds between the 10-yard line and the goal line stripe, thus putting the defender team in a hole.

To master this art, the kicker should stick at the ends of the field on each side of the field. Standing in the center of the gridiron at varying distances, he aims his boots to roll out of bounds between the flags.

Low kicks are most accurate, but the booter should get them high enough to clear the heads and upstretched hands of charging line men sweeping in on him. (Copyright 1935 NEA Service, Inc.)

Kiwanis Club Hears Air Mail Event Today

Postmaster Shick, A. G. Schlegel of American Airlines Give Talks

Kiwanians Thursday heard Na. Shick, Big Spring postmaster, and A. G. "Dutch" Schlegel, of the American Airlines terminal here, discuss the progress of air mail in the United States and plans for a celebration here Oct. 15, commemorating the fifth anniversary of air mail service in Big Spring.

Shick said that air mail is here to stay, and how fast it is growing. No one really knows unless they keep right up with it. In its earliest stages, Shick said, the government, which operated the service, expended less than a hundred thousand dollars per annum for air mail, while today the private investments in our transport companies having air mail contracts amount to approximately $25,285,338.00. He pointed out the rapid growth of air mail by reminding that the service was just established seventeen years ago on May 5, 1918.

In discussing the huge appropriations made by congress for the expansion of the local post office, Shick said that it was estimated that the cost of the largely expanded air mail service during the fiscal year 1935, which ended June 30 of this calendar year, will be approximately $10,000,000. This is about half of what was being paid in 1933.

Figures were submitted showing the number of pounds of air mail handled at the Big Spring post-office for the half of the calendar year ending June 30, 1935. During that time the local post office handled one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six pounds of air mail. To illustrate the rapidly developing use of the service here, he said that in 1927 the poundage was 473.102. For 1935 the poundage was 10,775.248.

"It isn't luck and it isn't chance," Shick said, "that the airplane passenger-miles on the American air-transport lines during the first half of 1935 increased 80% over those of the first half of 1934 with a greater record of safety. Air travel attained in aviation history. Air express poundage increased 54% for the first half of 1935 over the amount carried for the first half of 1934.

The post office department has an air mail system of approximately 29,000 route miles over which fast planes, flying every hour of the day and night, travel approximately 40,000,000 miles annually and transport more than one million pounds of air mail monthly.

"The government is putting forth unremitting efforts to develop this youthful industry and its patrons with every aid that scientific research can devise," Shick said. "Shick read an amendment to the Postal Rules and Regulations, showing that the Department is ever striving to carry air mail to the remotest points. The amendment gradually broadens the scope of their aerial activities.

Centenary fans, according to report, long since have hailed the game as a "natural" and are expected to provide the season's largest crowd for the Gents. It will bring Coach Norton as an invader for the first time to the city where he played the defender's part for 16 years. Norton coached at Centenary from 1920 to 1933, inclusive; the last five years of which saw Curtis Parker, now head Gents coach, as his chief assistant.

The hefty Gent line, ribbed with weight and speed, paced by Conway Baker and Sid Binion at tackles, is reported to be the strongest in Centenary history and is virtually the same as successfully withstood assaults from T. C. U., the University of Texas, Baylor and the Aggies, among other teams, the past year. Seven letter-men man it, and more are in the offing to keep the weight average at 195 pounds or higher a man.

The big maroon Aggie forward wall, despite probable loss of its two regular tackles, is expected to pick up where it left off in deadening the powerful Temple Owl running attack the past week. It is possible Martin Lindsey will be able to play Saturday, but Selmar Kirby, the other regular Cadet tackle, seems definitely out of the lineup for the week.

Aggie Coach Homer Norton has replanted out a quartet of husky touch-down scorers on them this year, and that came about through passes. The Cadets have had three, one coming from a 96-yard kickoff return and the other two from sudden aerial thrusts.

Faced as they will be with powerful opposing line play, both teams are apt to depend heavily on passes. The Gents scraped out victory over Arizona the past week with a double pass. The Aggie heretofore have depended mainly upon their running attack but are expected to depend upon the pass.

day 12-30. Ladies who are members of the country club are invited to play lunch and bridge. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. P. H. Liberty or Mrs. E. O. Ellington.

Salesman Meets Death In Wreck At San Angelo

SAN ANGELO—The victim of a traffic accident here about 2:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, the body of J. Reese Shanks, 35, was sent Wednesday night by the Robert Massie Company here to Arlington, between Dallas and Fort Worth. Verdict of accidental death was returned in the accident by Coroner Hugh Jackson. Shanks, salesman, for a Dallas surgical instrument company, was killed instantly when his car turned over four times at the corner of Avenue K and Irving.

Driving west in a Ford V-8 on Avenue K, Mr. Shanks apparently turned over as he attempted to turn into South Irving Street. Police investigating the accident, reported that the body was found under the car. The victim suffered bruises on the left side of his head and across the chest and shoulders. Coroner Jackson was of the opinion that a terrific blow on the chest was the cause of death. He stated that Mr. Shanks showed no evidence of having been drunk. There was no blood. Only death.

Not a glass in the car was broken, but the fenders and top on the left side were crumpled. The front right tire was blown out, but police did not know whether it blew out before or after the accident. The car is held at the city police headquarters.

Mr. Shanks, identified by a card found on his body, was a salesman for the A. P. Cary Dental and Surgical Instrument Company with offices in the Medical Arts Building, Dallas. He had been registered at the Hotel Cactus since Saturday. Hotel attendants stated that he had been coming to San Angelo at various times for the past two years. He is survived by the widow at Fort Worth and by the parents at Arlington.

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often tasteless in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. Excess fat is nature's way of storing up extra food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "drain" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians' research has shown that by feeding this gland the substance known as Marmal Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So don't waste your time and money striving to reduce with methods that are hard, futile or depend on harmful, health-rushing salts and laxatives for their action. Start the Marmal Prescription Tablets today. They have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't forget Marmal today from doctors.

against Germany. England will be glad to help it. Duce solves his economic and colonial problems if only he will tone down on the Roman Empire stuff. As for Mussolini, he can talk all he likes about the Italian people having the courage to stand up under the league's economic sanctions—but these wouldn't help his difficult domestic situation at all. Further deprivations might lead to an explosion—and he knows it. So he is expected to welcome an excuse to get out from under the penalties—and to escape from the complex military problems that have Italian army officials so hot and bothered.

Well-posted observers see the only serious obstacle to an agreement in the possibility that England or Italy may still try to play too stiff a game of poker. Of course, what Ethiopia thinks about peace terms doesn't count unless the British decide to back her to the limit—which is very unlikely. There's better than an even chance that a mutually agreeable formula will be found to kill the specter of a general war.

Deterrent

A hidden factor in the European tangle that carries much weight behind the scenes is the communist menace. Communists and other radicals have been pushing the idea of league sanctions applied to Italy for all they're worth. Their strategy is simple. Italy is the outstanding fascist state. If economic pressure can force an end to fascism there it would discredit fascist movements elsewhere—and thus facilitate the progress of communism as an alternative.

New York learns that the radical undercurrent is causing a good deal of nervousness in official circles all over Europe—and is one of the chief deterrents from war. Probably no European government—with the possible exception of England—could withstand a series of economic or military reverses without inviting a left wing coup.

Menace

Germany continues to play a easy game. New York insiders are impressed by her latest move in giving a secret pledge to Britain not to start anything—in Austria or elsewhere—while the Italian crisis remains acute. Naturally the British government is gratified by the promise—which furthers the Nazi campaign to make sure that Britain remains friendly—or at least neutral—when Hitler is ready to strike on the continent. The Germans appear to be profiting from the diplomatic mistakes they made in 1914.

The best posted financial observers are convinced that Hitler—not Mussolini—is the real menace to European peace. He won't strike this year—and probably not in 1936—because he isn't ready. But a full-blown war of German origin is predicted in from two to four years unless a German internal revolution intervenes.

New York City's plan to take over the privately-owned transit lines for a gross price of about $42,000,000 will be more of a boon to the security holders of I. R. T., B. M. T. and Manhattan Elevated than to the city's taxpayers. Not that the price is excessive. Efforts by interested parties to jockey it up were thwarted and experts agree that the final valuation is pretty fair all around. But the subway won't show a profit any quicker under municipal ownership than under private—in fact the operating deficit is likely to mount. A fare increase is still rated the only way to get the lines out of the red—and that hurdle will probably be higher than ever when politicians have direct responsibility.

The only financial gain to the city in the transaction lies in the projected interest saving—charges that must be paid before the city gets any return from the lines. The proposed new bonds—bearing coupons from 4 per cent to 4 3/4 per cent—can probably be floated successfully IF they can be made tax exempt. But there's no guarantee that they can—there are knotty legal questions involved. If not, they will flop and the city will be desper in the hole than before. The Chase Bank's deposits almost hit the two billion dollar mark in its third quarter statement and the National City crossed a billion and a half. But these spectacular gains were not due to any deliberate campaign to build deposits. They were the fortuitous result of the government spending program—and but as welcome as snow in July. They were especially timely in one respect. Federal deposits in insurance premiums for the year will be based on average October deposits. So the banks will have to pay through the nose for their fine showing. Some of the big fellows are quietly throwing out their less profitable depositors wholesale in order to get an low an October figure as possible. If the said depositors don't like being given the bum's rush that's their hard luck.

Cotton—If Anglo-Italian hostilities should develop despite indications to the contrary they should at least help solve our cotton problem. The surplus that keeps the AAA awake nights might vanish rapidly if a Suez canal blockade shut off Indian and Egyptian cotton.

Rumors—Financial circles hope that A. A. Berle, Jr.'s face is suitably red. When he complained about illegal stock manipulation a few weeks ago he particularly made the point that Wall Street's estimates of the price the city was prepared to pay for the properties were way off the mark. Now it turns out that the advance guesswork was pretty accurate all along—which Mr. Berle—as one of the negotiators—should presumably have known. Some of the boys crack that he should be prosecuted under the new law for spreading bearish—and untrue—rumors.
