Seely Field Will Be Scene For Rival Tilt Friday Night

Locals Hope To Break Four-Year Jinx And Entire Town Will Help

One day back in 1936 the Littlefield Wildcats defeated the Olton Mustangs.

Since that day the mighty Mustangs have won three straight zone championships, and have almost reached the top in the district the other year.

Twice during those four years that they have trampled over the Wildcats, have they been able to win by more than a touchdown. Last year the Wildcats, supported by every fan in town, journeyed over to the county seat town with heads up, only to return with a 12-6 defeat.

But—this year the cards are stacked against the Mustangs, in spite of the touchdown twins, Willis and Willard Hedges, Olton's twins who make their opponents see double trouble.

Coaches Abe Murphy and C. L. Storrs believe the Wildcats have a mighty good chance Friday night, when the Mustangs will invade Seely Field.

The game will start at 8:15 o'clock, and unless tickets are bought before tonight, (Thursday) adults will pay 75c admission, at the gate.

Parent's Day will be observed, and all parents of high school students will wear badges. Parents of the squadmen will be on the sidelines, pepping up their boys.

Local fans, who have watched the Wildcats religiously the past several weeks, believe it can be done. "Beat Olton".

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Barton In Competition With 20 Others In District

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Barton, who reside one mile north of the Spring Lake school, were honored Tuesday afternoon when more than 60 persons gathered at their home for the presentation of an award from the Progressive Farmer magazine. Mr. and Mrs. Barton were acclaimed master farmers last January for the year 1940, in competition with 20 other farmers in 20 counties on the South Plains.

Presentation of such awards are usually made about the first of each year, but this year, Eugene Butler, editor of the national magazine, was in South America until recently. He presented Mr. and Mrs. Barton with a beautiful bronze plaque, the Master Farmers award. He made a similar presentation in Potter county Monday night.

County agent V. F. Jones and Miss Beatrice McCurdy, county home demonstration agent, assisted in the presentation. Others on the program included G. E. Adams, of College Station, vice director and state agent of the extension service, and J. K. Edwards of College Station, district (Continued on Back Page)

Poppy Day Will Be Observed In Littlefield November 8

Poppy Day will be observed in Littlefield and throughout the Nation Saturday, November 8, Mrs. Maude Street, President of the local Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, announced Tuesday. On that day all Americans will be asked to wear memorial poppies as a tribute to the World War dead, and to aid the living victims of the war.

The Littlefield Poppy Drive is being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, with Mrs. Tom Matthews, Chairman of the Committee in charge, who will be assisted by Mesdames W. D. T. Storey, G. M. Shaw, Neal A. Douglass, Eugene Latimer, J. R. Coen, and Ernest Gaston, and Miss Erna Douglass.

Last year five hundred poppies were sold, but this year 1,000 have been received here and will be sold on the streets of Littlefield by members of the Auxiliary.

Booths will be placed on both sides of Phelps Avenue, where poppies will also be sold.

All contributions received for the flowers will go to Legion and Auxiliary welfare work for disabled veterans, their families and the families of the dead.

The American Legion and Auxiliary organizations throughout the United States have provided a market for 23 years for the poppies made by disabled veterans, who receive a percentage for their work.

Everyone is urged to wear a poppy Saturday, November 8, in honor of the soldiers, who died in the World War.

Heavy Rains Render Roads Impassable For School Buses

Downpours Reported All Over The South Plains Territory

This week rain measuring about three inches have fallen, distributed as follows: Thursday .81 of an inch; and Tuesday and Wednesday the balance.

Nearby cities reported heavy downpours as follows: Anton three inches during Tuesday and Wednesday; Spring Lake and Earth between four and five inches; Amherst between three and four inches during Monday night, Tuesday and Wednesday; Olton a downpour of two to three inches Tuesday, but not much rain Wednesday. Sudan reported between three and four inches which fell Tuesday and Wednesday. Muleshoe and vicinity experienced a big downpour Tuesday morning, and again in the afternoon, (Continued on Back Page)

Housekeeping Aid Center Observe Open House Sat.

Support For Project WPA Funds Provide Assisted By City

Open house observance drew 200 visitors at the Littlefield WPA Housekeeping Center from 9:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Saturday in observance of the 2nd birthday for the project.

Miss Alma Byers, sponsor, assisted by the women who work at the Center received the visitors and escorted them through the building which is located south of the post-office, and was previously used as a dwelling.

The four room and bath structure is completely furnished, all of which is an example of ingenuity practiced by constructing furnishings from scrap material.

The aids on this project are not only trained at the Center to do housekeeping duties but in home improvement work.

WPA funds provide support for the project, aided by the city. During the past two years that the Center has been in operation, it has not only given aid to those whom it has served but has given employment.

A local committee appointed by the city commission is composed of W. E. Jefferies and Mesdames Pat Boone and Arbie Joplin.

More Than 200 Attend Methodist Youth Rally Here

More than 200 young people and adults from the Plainview and Lubbock districts attended the bi-district meeting of the Methodist Youth Fellowship at the local Methodist church Saturday night and Sunday.

Saturday night's activities were started with a chuck wagon feed, in a typical western setting, as the guests filed by a real chuck wagon for their hand-outs of spaghetti, tamale pie, and all the trimmings, served by Rev. J. H. Sharp, E. J. Newgent and Jim Etter.

A musical skit was presented by the local young people, after supper, followed by a short recreation period.

Dr. Frank L. Turner, president of McMurry College, Abilene, brought an inspiring message to the group, using as his subject, "Weavers Together With God".

Climaxing the evening's program was a concert by the Chanters from McMurry College.

Sunday morning the group assembled at nine o'clock and Neyland Hester of Lubbock discussed "High Standards Used by the Workmen."

F. A. Hemphill brought a message on "Spiritual Qualities in the Weaving" during the Sunday School hour.

Six Littlefield Residents Report Loss Sunday Night

Man Reported Taken Into Custody At Brownfield Tuesday

A number of tires and wheels are reported stolen from cars of several of Littlefield citizens during Sunday night. A rather unusual and systematic method was used inasmuch as when the owners approached their cars from their homes the wheels were missing from the opposite side of the cars only to be propped up in a neat manner with even length two by four timbers.

Dr. Ira E. Woods lost both wheels on the right side of his car; L. B. Stone, lost one wheel; J. C. Hilbun, one; Carl Arnold, two; Judge S. A. Doss, one; Otha Key, two and Bill Fields one.

This is the third time in the past few months that tires and wheels have been stolen from cars of Littlefield owners.

Thefts of same equipment have been reported from many South Plains towns, and officers are pooling their activities in a wide spread effort to make arrests.

One of the towns reporting the theft of tires and wheels is Brownfield, where officers are reported to have surprised a man in the act of stealing tires from a car in the Terry County capitol.

A man giving the name of Lewis Puryear, about 26 years of age, was reported Tuesday held in the Brownfield jail for investigation. He is said to have served a penitentiary term and several jail terms. Puryear was arrested at 4 a. m. Tuesday according to information given local officers.

Officers of the Plains converged on Brownfield Tuesday in connection with their efforts to solve tire and wheel theft throughout this section. Deputy Sheriff Sid Hopping and City Marshall Ab Anderson were among the officers who gathered in Brownfield Tuesday.

Some of those losing tires and wheels Sunday night were among those reporting thefts of same equipment last June, when J. C. Hilbun, Judge S. A. Doss, Sheriff Sam Hutson, Frank Miller, Dr. I. T. Shotwell, L. B. Stone, and Mrs. Weigall all suffered loss.

Other cities in this section also report thefts of this nature taking place on as many as four occasions.

Officers of the South Plains are of the opinion that the stolen tires and wheels are being transported out of this territory and reworked in order to make tracing difficult.

BIG BOOST

Hard cash—more of it than at any time since 1919—jingles in the pockets of Southern cotton growers this fall, as a result of the greatly increased value of cottonseed, it was stated by the National Cottonseed Products Association. Cottonseed, which a year ago were bringing farmers about $20 a ton, now are selling generally for $50 to $55 a ton throughout the Cotton Belt.

The price of seed today is about 165 percent of "parity", that elusive goal of the Federal farm program. On a "parity" basis, cottonseed are bringing the farmer more than any other farm commodity, with the single exception of Maryland tobacco.

The farmers' good fortune this year may be traced to a high rate of industrial activity, growing out of the defense program, which has greatly increased consumer incomes. Consumers this year are using fats and oils in greater volume than ever before.

As a result the price of cottonseed oil, most valuable product of cottonseed, has risen 115 percent in the past year. This increase has been passed on by oil mills to farmers who are now receiving 160 percent more for their seed than they did a year ago. Seed money is cash money and it looks like the cotton grower is facing a happier winter than he has enjoyed in many a year.

CO-ORDINATOR

The biggest problem of the United States Government today is its own unwieldiness. It has become so big, so far-spread that even the taxi-drivers (who are the best informed people in Washington on where government departments are located) have to admit to cash customers that they don't know how to help them find the co-ordinator of this or the office of that.

Consequently, in order that one department of the government will be able to locate another department, new co-ordinating departments are in operation. There is the United States Information Service, the Co-Ordinator of Information and such-like, but they are now becoming so numerous that a new department seems necessary for co-ordinating the co-ordinators. That may turn out to be one of the jobs of the new Office of Facts and Figures, now being organized in Washington.

In addition to keeping track of all departments that exist and their functions, co-ordinating departments are also charged with the duty of helping the various departments to keep from stepping on one another's toes, to prevent overlapping in the work of the departments, to inform one department what information it can get from another department—and, in general, to help one hand of government to know what the other hand is doing.

The Office of Facts and Figures will attempt to see that conflicting facts and figures are not issued by different government bureaus and will also inform anyone who wants to know what facts and figures are available on any particular subject. It is a difficult undertaking and we hope that, in regard to its figures, the new office can avoid living up to its unfortunate alphabetical nickname—OFF

Visitor In Canada Explodes The Idea That Texans Continue To Carry Guns

(This is the third of a series of articles on a trip made recently to the Northern States and Canada by the publisher of the Leader and Mrs. Drake.)

By MORLEY B. DRAKE

Canadians and Texans have an important task to perform; they must each engage in an educational program for the benefit of the other and for their mutual advantage.

Many Canadians believe that Texas is a wild and woolly, shoot 'em up quick country, abounding in cactus and mesquite, wild horses, wild cattle, and often . . . very, very wild men. In other words, they cannot seem to diffuse their minds of the fact that the old West . . . if it ever was very wild . . . has "gone with the wind".

Many Texans believe that Canada, at least a large part of it, is a vast untracked wilderness with forest predominating, sub-zero temperatures most of the year, wild bears, Indians thawing out by a red hot stove in a far north trading post, and law and order maintained by square-jawed members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who track down wanted men over vast fields of ice. Do you wonder that we recommend to Canadians and Texans a friendly, brotherly educational program.

Do Texans Carry Guns?

And a lack of understanding of our Texas is not confined to Canadians; large numbers of folks in the northern part of our own United States have a very limited knowledge of the Lone Star state.

We visited for several hours in a Michigan home, and one of the questions our host asked us was this: "Is it true that they still carry guns in Texas?"

We were asked many unexpected questions about Texas, and we were happy to do our best to furnish our questioners with the information they desired. Folks are interested in Texas, and thousands could be encouraged to move to our state.

As we nosed our car into the South we determined that we would always be found doing our part in spreading for and wide the facts about "Texas, Beautiful Texas".

Western thriller magazines and motion pictures seems to us to be largely responsible for the fact that Canadians do not really understand Texas and that Texans get a chill just thinking about Canada.

U. S. Canada Increasingly Friendly

Of course, the western thriller and the western motion picture are popular; people like to get away from the present and relax in the past. It is good for all of us. As time moves on we believe that Canadians and Americans will come to know each other better. Some folks on both sides of the line believe that the time will come when Canada and the United States will be one country. Many more believe that the present war is bringing about conditions that will knit United States and Canada so close together as to make us virtually one country even if we do retain our present boundaries.

We enjoyed a good laugh one day in Toronto, Canada.

We were driving through a residential street when we observed a little boy looking intently at our license. He slowly raised his head, gave us a half sarcastic smile, screwed his mouth up at one corner, and with true-to-form and excellent inflections, said: "Ride 'em, Cowboy, ride 'em."

Need a Laxative? Take good old

It's a top-seller all over the South

'Ride Him, Cowboy!'

And we remarked to ourselves: "We wish we could," recalling that we were not too good in a saddle . . . if we ever got in the saddle.

Canada—U. S. Similar

What Canada is like from the Atlantic to the Pacific can best be understood by remembering that there is much similarity between the Dominion and this country. We have the mountains extending through the Pacific states and the province of Columbia in Canada; the western prairie provinces are not unlike the sections of the United States situated geographically about the same as the prairie provinces of Canada; the province of Ontario is similar to some extent to states to the south, and the same is true on across the two countries to the Atlantic. Of course, each country is definitely different.

Southern and western Ontario and the southern part of Northern Ontario, as we look upon the province geographically, are rich, progressive agricultural sections chocky dotted with large manufacturing cities and pretty towns. We were particularly impressed with the fact that even the smallest cities in Ontario have one or several manufacturing plants. We wanted very much to get out of our car and invite some of those manufacturers to move their plants to Texas to Littlefield and Lamb county. We could use a few factories hereabouts.

Ontario produces all kinds of small grains, such as oats, barley, peas, etc., corn; timothy and clover hay; root crops, such as turnips and sugar beets; truck crops of all kinds; fruits of all kinds, including some of the finest apples to be found in any part of the world, and tobacco is grown in some sections. The farms range in size from 50 acres up to several hundred acres. The 50-acre farm is considered too small by most farmers.

Virtually every Ontario farm is well stocked with all kinds of domestic animals. Each farmer has several head of horses, but no mules; beautiful herds of dairy cattle; sheep, but no goats; hogs, and poultry of all kinds.

Much Diversified Farming

Ontario agriculturists go in strong for what is known as diversified farming. This method of farming gives them something to market at all times throughout the year. And, in addition, it enables them to maintain a large supply of home produced food for their family tables. Every Ontario farm home has a large cellar under all or part of the house, and into this cellar goes everything from canned foods to Irish potatoes.

Some folks are of the opinion that Canada's summers are very short, and that the winters are very long, and very, very cold.

January and February are definitely winter months with low temperatures; March is a blustery month in which anything can happen; April sees the breaking of winter in a very definite way, generally with plenty of rain; in May the birds are everywhere, announcing to everybody how good it is to be alive; June is pleasant, warm month; July and August, are exceedingly warm months when thermometers climb to equally as dizzy heights as in Texas. September is a beautiful warm month, but brings with it a hint that it might be wise to acquire warmer clothes for use in the colder months to come. In October the northern people begin to pay more attention to the furnace, and in November and December looking after the furnace is serious business.

As the Christmas season rolls around, Santa Claus, his sleigh and reindeers, experience no difficulty in swooping up to a housetop, then down the other side of the gable to repeat the same performance next door. . . there's always plenty of snow . . . and in the streets below other sleigh bells blend with the music of the tiny bells on the harness of Saint Nicholas' fiery, dancing steeds.

AMHERST'S FIRST BALE

Doyle Baccus ginned the first bale of cotton at Amherst Wednesday, October 8, it was reported.

The cotton was produced on Baccus farm six miles southwest Amherst. Baccus received 12 cents per pound and $50.00 per ton for the seed. Net receipts from sale amounted to $78.01.

A premium of $30. was contributed by Amherst merchants.

The cotton was ginned at the Fry and Boyles gin.

CHAPTER I

Below, shimmering in a blue September morning haze, was the Hudson River. An automobile pushed its way along the narrow winding road, rising steadily. Its two passengers looked out and up.

The car stopped at a quaint bridge. From a thatched hut stepped a ruddy little old man. He pointed wordlessly at the door which was open above the door which was closed. In old English characters: "No trespassing—The Hamlet."

The other man, large and square, leaned out and yelled: "We want to see Drury Lane! He expects us!"

The bridgeman scuttled forward to the bridge, manipulated a creaking iron gate, stood back.

A short drive and the car emerged into a spacious clearing. A castle sprawled before them, staked to the Hudson hills by puny granite walls.

The immense oak-and-iron door beyond the drawbridge, twenty feet high, opened and, an astonishingly robust little man in livery stood there, bowing.

"District Attorney Bruno? Inspector Thumm? This way, please." The port-bellied servant trudged cheerfully before them.

Out of a door in the farthest wall stepped a hunchbacked figure—bald, bewhiskered, wrinkled, wearing a tattered leather apron like a blacksmith.

The newcomer advanced spryly. "Good day, gentlemen. Welcome to The Hamlet." He turned to the old man in livery and said: "Whisht, Falstaff," and District Attorney Bruno opened his wide eyes wider. "Falstaff . . ." he groaned. "That can't be his name!"

The hunchback ruffled his whiskers. "No, sir. He used to be Jake Pina, the actor. But that's what Mr. Drury calls him . . . This way, please."

Everything was redolent of Elizabethan England. Leather and oak, oak and stone. In a fireplace, twelve feet wide, a small fire was burning. The ancient stool very still near the wall, grasping his beard, then he stirred and said, quite clearly: "Mr. Drury Lane."

A tall man stood regarding them from the threshold.

Mr. Drury Lane strode into the room and extended a pale muscular hand. "Gentlemen, I'm delighted."

Bruno looked into gray-green eyes and after a moment he began to speak and was startled to observe the eyes drop quickly to his lips. "Good of you to receive Inspector Thumm and myself, Mr. Lane," he murmured. "We—well, we don't know quite what to say. You have an amazing estate, sir."

"Amazing at first glance, Mr. Bruno, but only because it presents to the twentieth-century eye, a medieval quaintness." The actor's voice was serene, like his eyes, but richer it seemed to Bruno, than any voice he had ever heard. "Quacey!"

The gnome stepped to the actor's side. "Gentlemen, this is my inseparable familiar and, I assure you, a genius. He has been my make-up man for forty years."

In some mysterious manner the visitors sensed a tremendous air between these completely untypical individuals and began to speak at once. Lane's eyes flickered from the lips of one to the lips of the other, and his face curved into the merest smile. "Separately, please. I am quite deaf, you see. I can read only one pair of lips at a time—a latter-day accomplishment of which I am very proud."

Bruno cleared his throat. "Inspector Thumm and I both feel, Mr. Lane, that we're presuming a bit in coming to you this way. I should never have sent my telegram, of course, if you hadn't solved the former case for us in that really astounding letter of yours."

"Scarcely astounding, Mr. Bruno. You wished to consult me, according to your wire, on the Longstreet murder?"

"Are you sure, Mr. Lane, that you are Inspector and I—Well, we know how busy you are."

"I shall never be too busy to dabble in the most elemental form of drama, Mr. Bruno." The voice was clear now with the faintest animation. "It was only after my retirement from the stage that I began to realize how theatrical life itself can be. The creatures of a play are, in Mercurio's evaluation, in Mercurio's evaluation, children of an ungodly brain begot of nothing but vain conceit."

The visitors stirred at the actor's voice. "Creatures of life, however, in their moments of passion present the larger aspects of drama. They can never be as thin as substance as the air and more insistent than the wind." All my life in company I have been interested in the emotional climates. I have been, among others, perhaps less noble, Macbeth, and I have viewed a simple wonder for the first time, I have realized the world is full of Macbeths and Hamlets. True, but true. I now have the impulse to greater authorship than created drama. Everything fits so nicely; even my unfortunate affliction—a lean finger touches his ear—"has contrived to sharpen my powers of concentration. I have only to close my eyes and I am in a world without sound and therefore without physical disturbance . . ."

His left hand: the palm and underskin of the fingers were bleeding in a number of places.

Inspector Thumm looked bewildered. Bruno coughed. "I'm afraid, Mr. Lane, that our little problem is quite beneath the—well, the dignity of your detective ambitions. It's really just a plain case of murder."

"Please," said Lane, "give me a scrupulously detailed account, Inspector."

On the previous Friday afternoon (ran the story related by Inspector Thumm and with occasional interjections by the District Attorney), two people sat closely embraced in the sitting-room of a suite at the Hotel Grant, Forty-second Street and Eighth Avenue.

They were Harley Longstreet, middle-aged Wall Street broker, of powerful body ravaged by years of dissipation, dressed in rough tweeds; Cherry Browne, musical-comedy star, a brunette with bold Latin features, black flashing eyes, passionate arched lips.

Longstreet kissed her and she cuddled in his arms. "I hope they never come."

The man disengaged himself. "They'll be here. When I tell Johnny DeWitt to jump, he jumps!"

"But why drag him here with that frosty bunch of his if they don't want to come?"

"Because I like to see the old buzzard squirm. He hates my guts, and I love it." He crossed the room and poured himself a drink.

"Sometimes," the woman said, "I can't figure you out. What you get out of tormenting him is beyond me." She shrugged. "Is Mrs. DeWitt coming, too?"

"Why not? Now don't go harping on her again, Cherry. I've told you a hundred times there's nothing between us."

"Not that I care." She laughed. "But it would be just like you to steal his wife, too." She jumped up at the sound of a buzzer and hurried to the door. "Pollux, old-timer! Come in!"

A flashily dressed, oldish man with a dark face and carefully combed thinning hair put his arms around the woman.

"Remember my old pal, Pollux?" Her voice was gay. "Master Mind-Reader of the Age on the two-a-day. Shake hands, you two."

The buzzer sounded again and Cherry opened the door to admit a small party of people.

A little slender middle-aged man with gray hair and a brush-gray mustache came in first. Longstreet strode forward, exuding cordiality. John O. DeWitt shrank as the big man brushed by him to receive the other members of the party.

"Fern! This is a nice surprise."—This to a faded stouthead woman of Spanish type, with the barest traces of a vanished beauty on her lacquered face; DeWitt's wife, Jeanne DeWitt, a petite brownish girl, nodded coldly; she pressed closer to her escort, Christopher Lord, a tall blond young man. Longstreet ignored him and pumped the hands of Franklin Ahearn, DeWitt's closest friend, and Louis Imperiale, another friend—a middle-aged Swiss meticulously dressed.

"Mike!" Longstreet clapped the back of a broad man who had just slouched through the door. Michael Collins was a brawny Irishman with porcine eyes and an apparently fixed expression of hostility. Longstreet grasped his arm. "Now don't crab this party, Mike," he whispered. "I told you I'd get DeWitt to fix things up. Go over there and take a bracer."

Walters appeared. Ice chimed in glasses. The DeWitt party were for the most part silent, strained. Longstreet swooped Cherry Browne demure and suddenly shy, into the curve of one great arm. "Friends! You all know why you're here. Gala occasion for the whole firm of DeWitt & Longstreet an' all their friends and well-wishers!" His voice was a little thick now. "Have the honor to present to you—future Mrs. Longstreet!"

At 5:45 Longstreet excitedly shouted: "Arranged a little dinner party at my place in West Englewood. F'got to tell you about it. Surprise! All invited." He consulted his watch owlishly. "C'n make reg'lar train if we start now. C'mon everybody!"

DeWitt protested that he had made other arrangements for the evening, that his own guests . . . Longstreet glared. "I said everybody!" Imperiale shrugged; a faint puzzled light glowed in Lord's eyes as he turned to look at DeWitt . . .

The entire party crowded into an elevator. In the lobby Longstreet bought a late newspaper and ordered taxicabs. On the sidewalk the doorman whistled desperately as weeks of hot weather gave way suddenly to a vicious downpour.

Pollux whooped: "Here comes a Crosstown!"

Longstreet snatched off his glasses, returned them to the case, and the case to his left pocket. He waved his right hand. "Devil with cabs!" he shouted. "Let's take the car!"

The street-car squealed to a stop as the Longstreet party dashed to it, Cherry clinging to Longstreet's left arm. Longstreet's left hand still in his pocket.

The car was freighted to capacity.

Longstreet swayed with the rocking motion of the car, a dollar bill clutched in his right fist above the heads of his fellow-passengers. The humidity, with all the windows closed, induced a feeling of suffocation.

The conductor wriggled about and took Longstreet's bill. Longstreet received his change and began to shoulder his way after his party. He found Cherry, who grasped his right arm. The car edged on toward Ninth avenue.

Longstreet thrust his hand into his pocket and felt about for his spectacle case. A moment of this, and with a sudden curse he snatched his hand from the pocket, bringing out the silver case. Cherry said: "What's the matter?" Longstreet uncertainly examined his left hand: the palm and underskin of the fingers were bleeding in a number of places. "Must've scratched myself. What in the world could've . . ." he began thickly. The car lurched and stopped; people fell forward. Instinctively Longstreet groped for a strap with his left hand, and Cherry held on to his right arm for support. The car jerked forward again a few feet. Longstreet dabbed heavily at his bleeding hand with a handkerchief, returned the cloth to his trousers, extracted his glasses from the case, dropped the case into his pocket, and made as if to open the folded newspaper he held tucked under his right arm.

The car stopped at Ninth avenue. A crowd pounded on the doors, but the conductor shook his head.

Longstreet suddenly released the strap, dropping the unread newspaper, and felt his forehead. He was panting like a man in great pain. Cherry hugged his right arm in alarm, turned as if to call for help . . .

The car was between Ninth and Tenth avenues now, stopping, starting, stopping, in the maze of traffic.

Longstreet gasped, stiffened convulsively, widened his eyes, and collapsed.

Cherry screamed. Necks craned and the Longstreet party pushed their way toward the spot. Michael Collins caught the actress as she recoiled.

The Lunch Room being operated at the basement of the Presbyterian Church of Littlefield for the benefit of the undernourished children of the school under my supervision has been supported by the Government and civic organizations of the town since October 1st. In view of the fact that about half of the total expense is paid by the government, I wish to say that anything the farmers could donate in the way of garden products, canned or otherwise, would help to lighten the burden on the town people and would certainly be appreciated. OLTON MUSTANGS BOW TO SLATON FIRST LOSS FRIDAY NIGHT

Littlefield fans felt better Friday night, and will probably breathe a sigh of relief this week end, if the Mustangs can only hold the Slaton Tigers held them. Although the Mustangs defeated the Slaton Tigers 6 to 0 not many moons ago, as they trampled the Mustangs over Olton, 21 to 0 in the biggest Class A upset of Olton last Friday night.

The mighty Mustangs of Olton, one of the state's leading touchdown machines, undefeated and untied and favored to march over all opposition to another north zone and District 5-A championship, were completely outplayed shortly after the game got under way.

Coach Stumpy Hamilton's Slaton Tigers, paced by bounding Elzo Collier, fullback, capitalized in every break and manufactured a few of their own to storm back in the final two quarters and overwhelm a much heavier squad, unbeaten since Coach Cy LaMaster's Lubbock High school Cowhands turned the trick in a similar upset last season.

Halfback Willis Hedges, one half of the starring Hedges combination which has paced the Mustangs to their phenomenal record, went out of the contest early with an injury. Richards drew first blood for Olton when he scored early in the initial period. Slaton bounded back in the same quarter but fullback Willard Hedges put his mates back ahead with a touchdown and an extra point in the second stanza to lead 13 to 6 at halftime.

Early in the third stanza, Richards fumbled behind his own goal line and Slaton garnered two points and minutes later scored six more on another drive. The final flourish was added in the fourth period.

The scoring picture in detail follows: Olton counted on the first play of the game on the old hide-out. Slaton received the kickoff and drove back 75 yards with Collier going over, his kick for extra point hitting the crossbar. Then Olton came back in the second. Tackled behind his own goal, Richards gave up two points early in the third. Bill Waldrep snared a 22-yard pass from Collier on the Olton 3 and stepped over for Slaton in the same period, Collier kicking point; and in the fourth Collier climaxed a 45-yard drive by plunging three paces to count.

THANK YOU!

We wish to express our appreciation and our thanks to every person who assisted us in any way, last week end, when we entertained the Methodist Young People of the Lubbock and Plainview districts at our church. Especially do we appreciate your keeping these people in your homes, and to these, and all others, we say—THANK YOU!

Portales Noses Out Muleshoe High, 6-2

The Portales, N. M., high school gridgers, considered a strong outfit in New Mexico football, were held to a lone touchdown by the Muleshoe high schoolers Friday afternoon at Muleshoe. Portales carried away top honors with a 6 to 2 score.

Brown got away for a 65-yard sprint and touchdown in the third period for the only touch of the game, after Muleshoe had scored a safety on the first play of the ball game. After the kick-off went over the end zone, the Portales center threw the ball wildly after the New Mexico team went into action on the 20-yard line, and the ultimate receiver was nabbed behind the goal line for a safety.

Portales led in first downs, 8-7. For Muleshoe, T. M. Cox and Jordan were outstanding backs, with Tipton, Clark and Wilhite, the latter playing his first football game, standing out in the line. Wilhite played at end, and turned in a fine game.

Amherst High Downs Anton Gridmen 18-0

Long runs features in Amherst High School's victory over Anton Friday afternoon in a conference contest at Amherst.

The score was 18 to 0, as Norman Phillips, left end, dashed off two 40-yard end-around sprints to score in the first period. Phillips passed to Craig in the second period, a gain of 60 yards and another touchdown.

Roberts and Clayton, doing the punting for Amherst, averaged 35-yards for the afternoon.

Amherst made 14 first downs to 3 for Anton.

Sudan, Levelland In 0-0 District Tilt

A deadlock to end all ties was reeled off by Levelland and Sudan Friday afternoon in a north zone, District 5-A conference clash at Sudan.

The score was 0 to 0. Penetrations were 2 to 2. First downs were 3 to 3.

Both elevens threatened but were halted just feet short of their opponents' goal line. In the fading seconds of the contest, Sudan, on an intercepted pass and an aerial of their own, barged to the Levelland 2-yard line, but in four tries failed to capitalize and the game ended with Levelland kicking out of trouble. In the second stanza the Levelland boys managed to push to the shadow of Sudan's goal but the home town boys held.

Outstanding for Sudan were Kenneth White, quarterback, who intercepted the Levelland pass to scamper 20 and catch an aerial for another 20 to set up the Sudan threat, and Skeeter Hammock.

Planting Of Trees To Be Increased

The planting of trees in shelterbelts to protect cultivated land and growing crops from wind erosion damage, will be increased in Lamb County in 1942 according to V. F. Jones county agent.

The Prairie States Forestry Project has selected Lamb County as the only county on the South Plains to receive additional planting this coming year. The Forest Service has agreed to plant as much as 20 additional miles of shelterbelts this winter. These shelterbelts will consist of ten rows of trees and in most cases will be put on the South or West boundary of the farm.

Mr. W. H. Cunningham Southwest of Littlefield and Mr. O. H. Herring north of Amherst, both have outstanding demonstrations of these plantings and the Forest Service is particularly anxious to increase the plantings in either or both of these two areas. Any farmer who is interested in having a shelterbelt planting, is asked to contact the county agent for additional information and application form. These shelterbelts are obtained at no cost to the farmer, but he does agree to cultivate and take care of the trees when they are set out.

Prices received by farmers have increased six points in the past month and are 131 per cent of the 1909-1914 parity average, the highest level in 11 years, says the Agricultural Marketing Service.

BEST METHODIST CHURCH
In the centuries past there was a great deal of time by zealous people going to certain places that were called churches and it was a great work of piety for those people to repair and bear their testimony for their cause.
What about a crusade to win the world, to reach the unreached, and to make real the value of the Church in the lives of those who have been neglected and those who have never been moved with the church influence? Years ago Crusaders sought to drive infidels away from the tomb of Christ and other sacred places.
While we do not sanction such a crusade but might not modern Christians do well to copy their passion for the evangelization of the local communities around our churches? Enthusiasm was a great factor with them and would we not do well to copy their enthusiasm?
What of the enthusiasm in the services of today in the average church? Is it hot enough, is it vibrant enough to catch fire with the other person? How many meetings in the country have more enthusiasm than do the meetings held in the churches?
October 26th is Annual Missionary Day and we are to have a missionary offering throughout Methodism. This is to be applied on the acceptances of the local church budgets for Benevolences. Many churches have already paid their Benevolences. Might not we do well to make a clean up this day?
All services of the week. Remember Annual conference November 22th at Big Springs.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL QUOTA IS SET AT 1,225

The Lamb county quota for the annual Red Cross Roll Call has been set at 1,225 members, F. A. Hemphill, county chairman of the Red Cross reported Wednesday. Mrs. J. M. Stokes is county Roll Call chairman, and she will name committees to assist her in the drive within the next few days.

The American Red Cross has raised the quotas in the nation more than 100 per cent, Mr. Hemphill said. The Red Cross has felt the need to assist in the army camps, and more aid is being given in the army camps this year than all the aid given projects in previous years.

The Red Cross drive will start November 11, and will continue in the nation until November 30.

Quotas reported for communities in Lamb county are as follows:

PAST NOBLE GRANDS OF REBEKAH LODGE HONORED

The Rebekah lodge of Littlefield in a very unique manner, entertained past Noble Grand of their lodge Monday evening at 7:30 with a surprise dinner.

The members assembled in the lodge hall where a meeting of the lodge was opened and closed in regular session. The party was then escorted to the Batton Hotel where the dining room was lighted with Hallowe'en lanterns and with pumpkins, black cats, owls and hay, completed a beautiful setting. And the Hallowe'en motif was carried throughout the table decorations.

During the meal little Monya Hauk entertained the guests with songs, reading and dances, followed by fortunes being told by Miss Charlene Hauk dressed in witches attire.

Following the dinner Mrs. John Blair, present noble grand, presented gifts to the past noble grands from the Lodge.

Other members present were: Mesdames John Blair, Audie Collins, Jack Alexander, Elton Hauk, Bell Pratt and Misses Farrah Beekher, Charline Hauk, Susie Houk, Regna Crow and Little Miss Monya Hauk, a guest.

Local Schools Are Dismissed Two Days Because Of Heavy Rains

Littlefield schools were dismissed Wednesday afternoon for Thursday and Friday, and students will resume their studies Monday morning, Supt. F. A. Hemphill reported.

Heavy roads have made the country roads impassable and the school buses have been unable to pick up the rural students and bring them to school, Mr. Hemphill stated that Tuesday and Wednesday of this week the attendance at all the schools was only 35 per cent.

By Monday it is hoped that the roads will have dried enough to permit the regular bus runs to transport the children to school.

Mr. Hemphill said that the two days missed this week would probably be made up later in the school term.

Caught In Heavy Rain Boy Is Rescued By Rural Mail Carrier

A 12-year old boy, whose name is Armstrong, was found near the Weeks-Bagwell Gin Tuesday afternoon, walking through water that was above his knees, by M. L. Garrett, local rural mail carrier.

The youth had missed the school bus at the Littlefield school, and had started walking home. He was caught in the heavy rain which fell Tuesday afternoon, and was so cold, and the lightning had frightened him so much that he could not speak for sometime after Mr. Garrett put him in his car.

Mr. Garrett brought him to the local post office, and the postal clerks secured electric heaters, and warmed the youth, and dried his clothes. Grady Phillips accompanied Mr. Garrett when they took the boy to his home.

Odd Fellows Enjoy Annual Venison Barbecue Thurs. Night

Venison barbecue was enjoyed by approximately 775 members of the Littlefield Odd Fellows Lodge, Rebekahs, and several Odd Fellows from the Sudan Lodge at the I. O. O. F. Hall Thursday night.

The barbecue is an annual event, always staged after J. E. Brannen has a successful deer hunt. He treats his fellow lodgemen to the venison. Chefs were Bob Cox, Roy Wade and Alph Wright, who are experts at cooking venison.

Special guests were B. D. Garland, Ray Nix, and Virgil Grisham, and Stuart Champlin of Lubbock, who accompanied Mr. Brannen recently on the deer hunt. The entire party bagged eight deer, in the mountains in Colorado.

Mayor Homer Hall, member of the local lodge, welcomed the visitors to the barbecue, and the visitors from Sudan sang several songs. Mrs. Sam Sims of Circleback dedicated a reading to the Odd Fellows.

this year are: Troy Moss of Littlefield, P. E. Jones of Littlefield, Glenwood Edwards of Amherst, Jess L. Shirley of Sudan, J. M. Crawford of Springlake, and G. C. Bearden of Olton.

One thing about it—The local squad have not been able to practice much this week, because of the heavy rains. But — reports from Olton are that everytime Littlefield has received a shower, the town to the northeast has had a young flood. So—the Mustangs are liable to be stiff Friday night, too.

agent and Miss Sally Hill, home editor of the Progressive Farmer.

Several musical selections were rendered by women of the Spring Lake community, dedicating them to Mr. and Mrs. Barton.

Three families who won similar awards were recognized. Mrs. Roy McQuatters, who resides five miles east of Littlefield was introduced, as she and Mr. McQuatters were acclaimed Master Farmers in 1937. Mr. and Mrs. Gary won the award in Floyd county one year, and H. O. Masten, who farms near Sudan, and also has farming interests near Wellington, was declared Master Farmer in Collingsworth county several years ago.

Guests enjoyed a tour of the entire homestead at the Barton farm, but the rain prohibited them from making trips to the fields. They enjoyed seeing the well-kept barns, lots, orchard, house, cellar and yard.

After the program members of the Spring Lake Home Demonstration Club, of which Mrs. Barton is an active member, served coffee and cookies to the guests.

These rooms were ably assisted by room mothers in this drive who worked with the membership committee, who beside Mrs. Matthews are: Mesdames Roy Wade, Fred Lichte, Jake Hopping, George Vaught, and Bob Smith.

The drive will continue through the high school through school club sponsorship.

Officers for the Lubbock district were: president, G. L. Farrar, vice president, Neyland Hester, secretary, Saka Spencer; assistant secretary, Charles Lutrick; treasurer, Ruth Monk; and publicity superintendent, Marguerite Watkins.

Miss Margaret Nicholas of Plainview brought a message, "Co-Workers with the Master Weaver" during the consecration service.

with rain again Wednesday, making about four inches of moisture. Brownfield had a big rain Tuesday, but report the weather clear Wednesday. Levelland received an inch; with Morton two inches.

Farmers and business men alike are becoming much concerned over the additional and unneeded rainfall, fearing that the cotton and feed crops, the harvesting of which has already been delayed, through rain, will be severely damaged.

Rural roads became impassable Tuesday for the school buses. Eight of Littlefield School buses got stuck in the mud, on their routes, and had to be towed out. The last school bus making its route Tuesday got to Littlefield about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. Consequently it was decided by the School Board that no school buses would run Wednesday, Thursday or Friday of this week.

According to Supt. F. A. Hemphill, motorists passing by picked up the children from the marooned school trucks and took them to their various homes.

Supt. Hemphill said Wednesday that occasionally school buses here are discontinued for a day or two due to snow-storms, but it is very rare that rain renders roads so impassable that the school trucks cannot make their routes. However, two weeks ago, the buses failed to run for two days on account of the condition of the roads.

Supt. H. L. Minor of Spring Lake School at noon Wednesday also reported that school buses from that school, making the routes to Big Square District in Castro County Tuesday had not returned; and that Spring Lake School had been discontinued for that day due to inability of the trucks to get through.

C. R. Stephens, Principal of Amherst Schools, reported Wednesday that all their buses were making a part of their routes, but that the roads were too bad in sections for them to make all the routes.

John R. Tucker of Sudan Schools stated Wednesday that Sudan School buses were operating but under difficulties.

$2,000,000 Loss Of Vital Rubber Stores

Here is a spectacular view of the fire that swept through the huge plant of the Fall River, Mass., plant of the Firestone Rubber company, causing damage estimated at $2,000,000. Large quantities of rubber, vital defense commodity, were destroyed in the fire that required an all-night battle by 55 fire departments before it could be brought under control.

'On the Alert' in Seaboard Defense

The sinister muzzle of an anti-aircraft gun noses skyward as the 62nd Coast Artillery on the alert at LaGuardia Airport, New York city, prepares for a surprise attack. Canada Acts To Curtail Constantly Glimbing "High Cost of Living"

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on a trip made recently to the Northern States and Canada by the publisher of the Leader and Mrs. Drake. The third article appears on the editorial page of this issue.)

By MORLEY B. DRAKE
Canada appears to be taking definite action to control "the high cost of living".

And governmental action, which has just been announced, will be enthusiastically received by the Canadians . . . most of them.
When we say "most of them" we have in mind the political situation in Canada. No Texan has been more "hot" in his political ways than a Canadian when it comes to his politics. There are two leading parties . . . the Liberals and the Conservatives . . . and a high percent of the Canadians have been Liberals or Conservatives down through the generations . . . in other words, my father was a Liberal . . . my father was a Conservative . . . and that's good enough for me.
Of course, there are "bolters"; in every family; some go to their graves as "bolters"; others "reform" . . . but father doesn't kill a fat calf at the "bolters" return; father simply tries to live down the fact that one of his sons was a "bo-ter", and hopes that nothing like that will happen in the future.

Liberals in Power Now
At the last election . . . and perhaps before that, we don't remember . . . Canada voted the Liberals into power with the result a Liberal . . . W. L. Mackenzie King . . . is Prime Minister of Canada . . . the highest position in the land and on a par with the presidency of the United States.

Canada has been experiencing a spectacular advance in commodity prices . . . food has gone sky high . . . and we were not surprised to read in the Sunday Avalanche-Journal that "sweeping price and wage control regulations for Canada were announced by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King."

We noticed that Canada had high prices, particularly in food commodities . . . and we wondered how much higher the prices could climb without something being done about the situation.

Commodity Price Control Program
"Beginning November 17", reads the announcement from Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion of Canada, "no person will be permitted to sell any goods or supply any service at a price higher than the maximum charged in the four weeks from September 15 to October 11. King said in his announcement broadcast over the network of the Canadian Broadcasting system.

"Of the wage control plan, he said that henceforward no employer in Canadian industry or commerce may, without permission, increase basic wage rates.
"After November 15", he added, "every employer will be obliged to pay a bonus in accordance with the terms specified by government order and to adjust the bonus regularly every three months in accordance with a definite formula."

The reference to the bonus program appears to be an enlargement of a system which has been in effect in Canada in a modified form; however, we did not study such matters in Canada very seriously and we are not in a position to discuss them in detail.

Canadians are seeking some sort of balance between their income and the increased cost of living and what they must contribute for their government's part in carrying on the fight against Hitler.

Canadians Making Sacrifices
Canadians are making outstanding contributions from their funds for the conduct of the war. For example, Canadians must pay eight percent of their salaries to aid their country in the war program.

We did not realize when we visited Canada the deep interest of Texans in Canada's war program, particularly as regards taxation, and we are writing a newspaper friend in Canada for additional information which we will pass on to our readers.

Canada is making use of all of her resources to the end that Hitler will be brought to his knees. Canadians are making sacrifices in numerous ways, but they have their heads up and will continue the fight with unstinted zeal.

Here's an example of one sacrifice that Canadians are making:
They like to travel . . . they like to visit in the United States . . . but this year very few of them have been outside the Dominion.

Canadians are not restricted by their government from visiting in non-Empire countries, but they are not permitted to take sufficient money out of the country for their requirements. For example, a Canadian may only take not $5 in Canadian money for a visit in the United States. That means that a Canadian cannot travel in the United States unless he has friends who will pay his expenses. And sometimes friends and relatives are not easy to locate when it comes to advancing money.

Here's what the Canadian Travel Bureau says about Canadians traveling in non-Empire countries:

"The exigencies of the war have made it necessary for the Canadian Government to restrict Canadian pleasure travel in Non-Empire countries. This has been done reluctantly and the Government has indicated that the restrictions would be abandoned immediately if this could be done without injury to Canada's War effort. The recent Hyde Park agreement, generous and helpful as it was, has not removed the need for conservation of Canada's United States dollar resources. Our expenditures in the United States are still far in excess of our income.

Oscar P. Wilemon
Sinclair Wholesale Agent

First things must be put first; and if we are to have the United States dollars necessary to pay for essential imports, Canadians must for the time being forego expenditures for pleasure trips to the United States. It is not a question of Canada spending less money in the United States; we are spending more money there than we have ever done before. It is a question of making sure that the United States funds we have are spent on the things vitally necessary for the prosecution of the struggle in which we are engaged".

We are weak in understanding when it comes to economics . . . balance in trade between countries . . . etc and etc . . . but we do understand when we get $11 in Canadian money for $10 in American money, and how $10 in Canadian money can shrink when an American bank gets through taking off 11 per cent exchange; in other words the American dollar is worth $1.10 in Canada and the Canadian dollar

Former Local Resident Dies In California

Elmer Amick of Sudan left early Monday morning for Bakersfield, Calif., in response to a message that his father, Earl Amick, aged about 55, had passed away Sunday night.

Mr. Amick is a former resident of this section having farmed south of town until about two years ago when he moved to Bakersfield. The cause of his death was not learned. However it was understood that he had been ill with pneumonia, but was believed to have recovered.

Mr. Amick is survived by his wife and three sons and two daughters.

Mr. Elmer Amick is employed by the Forcher Produce at Sudan.

Army Service

Canada, from what we learned in general conversation, has a form of selective service for young men, and it seems pretty generally understood that when a young man enters training he is just about in the army for the duration of the war.

Canada appears to be leaning very heavily on volunteer enlistment, and does not at this time have the strict form of conscription that obtained in World War No. 1. However, that may come later.

We knew Canada in the fight against the Kaiser, and it seems to us that the Canadians are going about carrying out the duties of the hour, the day and the times with less beating of drums and public addresses than in the last war.

Factories On War Orders

But this is a different war from World War No. 1. The present war is being fought in the fertile fields in the production of food stuffs and in the great manufacturing plants which are operating day and night in the production of requirements of war. Canada's war program in those respects is virtually the same as that being carried out in the United States.

Residents of the Southwest who have not had the opportunity to travel in the manufacturing sections of the United States and Canada cannot visualize the immensity of the program being carried out in the production of the requirements of a war that is being fought out with airplanes and tanks. Factories in the manufacturing sections of the United States and Canada are operating day and night. Traveling sometimes at night we had the opportunity ity to see acres of manufacturing plants fully illuminated. It was then that we clearly understood the immense program of the United States in doing their part in the ultimate crushing of Hitler and all that goes with Hitlerism. Canadians and Americans are shoulder to shoulder under present conditions; they will be shoulder to shoulder should more be required of either or both nations. The greatest boundary line in the world is unguarded, Canadians and Americans are brothers sharing each others joys and problems.

Army Camps Everywhere

Army camps of all kinds are everywhere in Canada. Men are being trained for all branches of the service, with the air force occupying the most spectacular position. Army planes are in the air day and night. And some of the men riding at the controls or performing other duties are Americans. The Canadians like the American young men who are training to battle the Hitler planes. And, too, we were told that the American young men are very popular with the Canadian girls.

Canada at war does not have a food shortage, but prices are higher than in the United States. One item that we especially noticed was the higher cost of meat.

Gasoline Shortage

Canada has a shortage of gasoline. All service stations are limited to a total number of gallons per month, and operators will only sell a certain amount daily in order to maintain a supply throughout the month for their customers. We have often seen a service station operator sell a customer only 50 cents worth of gasoline, which is little more than one and one-half gallons Canadian measure. But, despite the shortage of gasoline, the Canadian service stations are very considerate of the American visitors. In the miles and miles we traveled in Canada we were never without sufficient gasoline. Because of the gasoline shortage all service stations close at 7 p. m. on week days and are not open on Sundays. The latter situation has curtailed Sunday driving to some extent, but a full tank at 7 p. m. Saturday generally provides amply for any average Sunday trip. Gasoline costs between 12 cents and 14 cents more per gallon in Canada, but this additional cost is somewhat offset by the larger gallons. The difference between the size of the Canadian and American gallon can easily be demonstrated in an oil change. A car that requires five quarts United States measure only needs four quarts Canadian measure to bring the oil to the proper level on the stick.

As we entered Canada, we expected to see only the Canadian flag displayed, but to our surprise and delight we observed instances without number in which both the Canadian and the American flags floated in the breeze of the famous old province of Ontario.

The Canadian flag was not flown over the American flag; both flags were displayed on an equality expressing the warm friendship of the Canadians for their neighbors—the United States of America and the millions and millions of people populating this republic.
