where he led his team to the state championship in 1949, the same year he was named to the All-State Class A Team. He is now a sophomore at the University of Houston.

If Bailes should fill the shoes of Randy Owens as the regular fullback for the Cougars, he will find competition aplenty on the gridiron next season. UH has already announced a portion of their 1952 grid schedule including such opponents as Texas A&M, Baylor, and Arkansas, all of the Southwest Conference, Mississippi and Texas Tech, of the Southeastern and Border Conferences, respectively, plus games with Tulsa, Oklahoma A&M, and Detroit of the Missouri Valley. Two more games will be added in the near future.

Wildcats Finish Strong Season

Littlefield Wildcat basketball team ended the 1952 season with a victory over the Fort Worth Idians, 55-31 in a game held in the local gym.

The Cats got off to a fast start and lead 22 to 11 at the end of the first quarter. Martin played the B team in the third quarter to keep the game from being a runaway and to also let every boy on the team play in their last game.

In the "B" game, the Morton crew took a close 29-25 decision over the locals and the Morton girls trounced the local quintet 44-8.

Coach Forrest Martin expressed his appreciation to the team for the fine showing the boys made this year, and told them that Tuesday night's performance was the best they had put on all year.

Frank Frye, one of the regular players had an eye infection and was unable to play in the game.

The starting five men for the Cats were Freddy Howard, Joe Walden, Keith Streety, R. L. Rhoten and Garland Thornton.

The Loveland Lobos won the district crown with eight conference wins against no losses. Brownfield ended up in second place with only two losses. Littlefield and Muleshoe tied for third place and Morton gained sole possession of the cellar.

Dr. Ty Timms of the Extension Service was in Amberst Thursday with representatives of the Lamb county division of the Farm Bureau in the offices of County Agent David Eaton, and studied plans for the approaching meeting, which is now planned will be a joint meeting of farmers, farm bureau members, business men of the county, and in full co-operation with the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce.

Specific program arrangements for the all-day meeting, with a noon-luncheon to be held in Littlefield, will be mapped in the next few days when Marshall Howard of Littlefield Chamber of Commerce Agricultural committee and Leroy Hackler, of Olton, president of Lamb county Farm Bureau, David Eaton, County Agent, and Bob Crowell local C of C manager, will meet together to map detailed of smelling may be likened to an atomizer. When the oils of a scent hit that olfactory bulb in the nose, the bulb absorbs the oil and shoots it into the tubes of the brain from where the spray is dispersed. Much literature and poetry have been written about the odoriferous business of smelling, but maybe Kipling sized it up best when he said:

"Smells are surer than sounds or sights
To make your heart-strings crack."

New De Soto Car to be Equipped with 160 Horsepower Fire Dome V-S Engine

Tremendous power, long life, economical operation, and smooth quiet performance even at the highest speeds are outstanding features of the sensational new De Soto Fire Dome V-S engine, for which specifications and details were released today.

The new engine, a power plant unrivaled in the automotive industry, will appear in a new De Soto car within a few weeks. It is being produced in De Soto's new engine plant, the industry's finest.

The Fire Dome V-S will produce 160 horsepower—more horsepower per cubic inch than any competitive American automobile.

Littlefield Motor Co. are local De Soto dealers.

Heart of the new engine is its hemispherical combustion chamber, the ideal design long sought for by automotive engineers and developed after years of research.

The dome-like shape of the chamber gives the new engine its name of Fire Dome V-S.

"This engine has exceeded the expectations of its designers," C. E. Bleicher, De Soto's president, said. "No matter what we tested it for—power, long life, efficiency, economical operation, or quiet running—it proved itself time and again the very finest engine now being produced in America for automobiles."

"For the De Soto owner who drives our Fire Dome Eight, it means a car of tremendous get-up-and-go, from a standing start all the way along the speedometer; a long-lasting engine that requires the minimum of maintenance cost; an engine that gets the last bit of power out of every drop of standard gasoline; an engine that is designed so well and built to such high standards that it runs smoothly and quietly at all speeds.

"More than seven years of research have resulted in the production of an engine that will set a new standard in American passenger car power plants. In the De Soto Fire Dome V-S we have the nation's finest automobile engine."

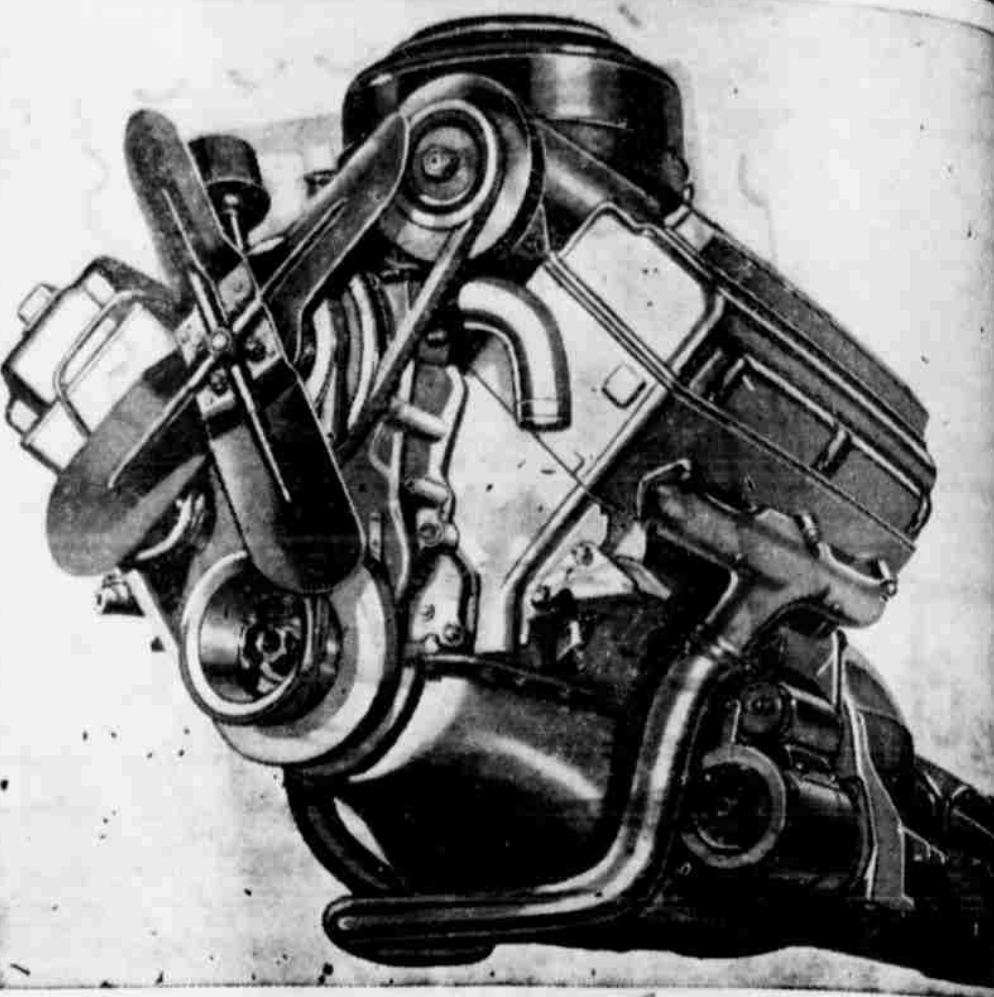

Fire Dome engines that have been run for more than 50,000 miles in every kind of weather and climate and over every type of terrain show astonishingly little wear when disassembled. The design of the engine is such that it has greatly reduced the causes of normal engine wear. A Fire Dome V-S engine will be a superb engine after years of driving.

Unexcelled engine performance and fuel economy on standard gasoline result from the combination of the hemispherical combustion chamber and a new overhead valve arrangement.

The compression ratio of 7.1 to 1 provides engine efficiencies far beyond competitive engines. Some of these engines would have to be raised to a compression ratio of 9.3 to 1 and operated on special research fuels to match the efficiency of the Fire Dome V-S.

The unusually quiet and smooth operation of the engine comes from the short, rigid cylinder block structure, the short crankshaft and piston stroke, and the unique valve drive train. Smoothness at all speeds is also assisted by a better spark provided by a newly-designed distributor. Long engine life and great durability of engine parts are assured in the De Soto Fire Dome V-8. Low piston speeds, resulting from the controlled distribution of cooling water results in lower temperatures throughout the engine.

He was with Lamesa through 1946 and 1948 seasons, hitting .345 and .344 respectively. During this period he had 367 hits good for 334 total bases. He smashed 77 doubles, 12 triples and 22 home runs, driving in 244 runs.

HIT 369 WITH CLOVIS

His best season was 1949 with Clovis, when he hit .369. Palmer appeared in 139 games as a catcher and third-baseman, getting 212 hits good for 331 total bases. He had 52 doubles, six triples and 18 home runs, with 148 runs batted in. The latter led the league.

Palmer was signed by Macon, Ga., during the winter and in 1950 with the Class A club hit .288, a late season slump pulling his average below .300 for the first time. He was the most valuable player in the league all-star game, his home run winning that tilt. He also was a leader in home runs and runs batted in that year.

He started the 1951 season with Macon, but Dean purchased his contract and the feisty catcher played in 96 games with Lubbock, hitting .334. He had 125 hits good for 186 total bases, with 26 doubles, four triples and nine home runs and 86 RBI.

The new manager was one of the more popular players on last year's team, earning the respect of the fans with his hustle and his booming bat.

It could be pretty well deduced last year that Palmer would be manager this season. He was having a fine season with Macon, Ga., a Class A team. He might have gone up. But he lected to return to Class C ball, which indicates that he was given assurance of something better than just being a player.

He and Paul Dean see eye to eye in everything and the situation at Rosenthal Field this year should be more propitious to success than last season.

In the off season Palmer lives here in Littlefield, where he is employed by the C. T. Oliver Implement company. Palmer is married.

HAUNTING MEMORY

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP)—Jim (Sonny) Wilson, Hobart College freshman basketball ace, scored 48 points in a game for Geneva High against Jamestown High last year. But despite his efforts Geneva lost the game, 77-73, in overtime. Wilson is currently averaging 16 points per game for the Hobart varsity.

Burr. He is under contract to River Divide Farm and is at the track every morning before six o'clock.

Charlie likes to drive his automobile and go to the beach, but he isn't throwing his money away. "I'm putting away all the money I can to buy a farm for my dad," he says. "He can run the farm and I'll stay with the horses."

He plans to be married, perhaps this year, to an Oklahoma girl he met while riding quarter-horses. Burr made an auspicious start toward repeating as jockey champion by riding a triple at Tropical Park on New Year's Day. Does he think he can do it again? "Yes, sir," he says with quiet determination. "I'm gonna try."

Olton Grid Schedule Announced For '52

The Class 1A Olton Mustangs will open their 1952 football schedule at Olton September 12 against the Lockney Longhorns. The Mustang schedule follows: Sept. 12, Lockney; Sept. 19, Muleshoe; Sept. 26, at Morton; Oct. 3, Happy (e); Oct. 10, Canyon; Oct. 17, at Sundown; Oct. 24, at Sudan (e); Oct. 31, open; Nov. 7, at Amberst (e); Nov. 14, at Springlake (e); Nov. 21, Dimmitt (e).

Burr Has Winning Ideas

NE PLOWDEN
The slender little 17-year-old rider from Arkansas City, Kan., last year rode 310 winners to become the seventh jockey in modern American racing records to bring home 300 or more in a year. He has 232 seconds and 192 thirds out of 1,319 mounts—a winning percentage of 23.5 and a remarkable record of more than half his mounts in the money.

Burr, who can get pretty sulien when he loses, is popular not only with the $2 bettors but in the jockey room as well. If he fails to hit the winner's circle, he rages and mopes, but soon cools off and goes after the next one.

He keeps an accurate mental count of his winners and can recall characteristics and performances of horses he has ridden, but he doesn't remember the odds. He says:

"I rode one that paid a hundred and forty something. I rode another that paid seventy-some dollars; I don't remember exactly."

Burr began his riding career at Fairmount Park in Illinois on September 9, 1950. Sixteen hours after he arrived at the track, he sloshed home in front on his first mount—a horse named Thomas.

In Florida last winter, he was leading apprentice rider at Hialeah Park, competing against such veteran saddlemiths as Ted Atkinson, Hedley Woodhouse, Bobby Permane, Logan Batcheller, Jimmy Stout, Sam Boulmetis, and Kenny Church.

Burr was born May 14, 1934. He spent much of his early boyhood on his grandmother's place near Arkansas City, working with cows, hogs and horses. When he was six, his father and grandmother gave him a pony.

A few years later his uncle Clarence (Shorty) Burr, introduced him to the business of riding for pay. He spent four years on the quarter-horse circuits of Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

Riding the fast, wiry little horses gave him valuable training and experience. Now many of his mounts are front runners, for he believes in getting out of the gate on top and staying there.

The quarter-horse circuit also helped develop his shoulders and hands and today he stands a solid five feet tall with trim hips and legs but broad shoulders and powerful hands.

Burr, the oldest of five children, finished his sophomore year in high school. He now goes to night school and studies typing. "Right now my ambition is to ride in the Kentucky Derby," says changes boots. Burr rode 310 winners last year.

Baseball's Hall Of Fame Has Drawbacks In Voting

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Age has caught up with Casey Stengel!

The manager of the world champion New York Yankees is ineligible for the Hall of Fame, under present rules.

The Baseball Writers' Association of America ballot, sent out to ten-year members, includes this directive: "Vote for any player active from 1926 to 1950 inclusive. Vote for players only. No one active as a player organized ball in 1951 is eligible. No players who finished their careers more than 25 years ago are eligible in this popular election."

Played 15 Seasons

Casey, 61, quit playing in 1925 after 12 games with the Boston Braves. He had played 15 seasons as an outfielder with the Dodgers, Pirates, Phillies, Giants and Braves. Later he managed the Dodgers and Braves before leading the Yankees to three out of three world championships.

Stengel belongs in the Hall of Fame. He was the big World Series hero for the 1921 Giants when they beat the Yankees, five games to three.

But Casey now is ineligible for the Hall of Fame because he hasn't played in the last 25 years. It's a ridiculous rule; the line has been drawn too fine. Ol' Case didn't have much of a chance of making the Hall of Fame because he drew only eight votes from among 226 ballots cast last winter. But it's the principle of the thing.

Mel Ott and Jimmy Foxx, with 187 and 179 votes, respectively, were voted in last winter. At least 170 votes were necessary for election to the Cooperstown shrine.

Paul Waner with 162 and the late Harry Heilmann with 153 both barely missed. They ought to make it in February when the ballots are counted. A player's name must appear on three-fourth of the ballots. Each ten-year baseball writer is permitted to name 10 former players.

DIMaggio Must Wait

Lives Depend On Your Caution

How would you like to stand, an unprotected pedestrian, a foot or two out in the roadway at Indianapolis Speedway, as the roaring cars in the 500-mile race classic thundered by, inches from your toes?

It would be a nightmare, wouldn't it?

You'll never have to live through that experience, of course but there are men in your own community who take risks just as great, day after day, to make a living.

Perhaps the risks are even greater, for the Indianapolis drivers are split-second thinkers, keyed to instant response to hazards on the road ahead. On Texas highways, drivers are not often so expert, and the men we're thinking of stake their lives on the caution and common-sense of the driver who comes up, occasionally, on a Highway Department sign reading like this:

CAUTION MEN WORKING

Perhaps there'll be a barricade of light wood partially blocking the road, but more often there'll be nothing but open pavement between Highway Department maintenance crewmen at their job, and the high-speed traffic on the road.

Those maintenance men have to be on the road sometimes, to do minor patchwork, center striping or shoulder repairs that may save you from damage to your car or a serious wreck caused by a road defect. They aren't paid daredevil wage, though the work is about as dangerous as could be imagined, thanks to the blind carelessness of some drivers.

Several times every year, a car will plow into a highway maintenance work crew with fatal results, and any man who has done the work can remember more than one time when only a fast leap saved him from sudden death. A good driver, a courteous driver, will slow his speed to 20 miles or less as soon as he sees a maintenance crew warning sign. Not many do that well, and some that were involved in fatal accidents to maintenance men recently apparently just didn't even see the warnings or the men in the road. Two men were killed in Texas in 1951, and about three weeks ago a Nacona resident working with the Highway department, patching asphalt, was killed instantly by a passing motorist.

Give those workmen a chance—your car is a deadly weapon; handle it accordingly.

The Immutable Commuter

By JOE WING
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK—One of the joys of living near "The Heart of Things" is that you have an opportunity to commute.

Several hundred thousand commuters zip into Manhattan each morning by train and bus. At nightfall they slip into their grooves again and scoot to their little places in Connecticut, or Jersey, or Long Island or Westchester.

Two to four hours of their lives are spent daily on this project of working here and living there. Why? Mostly, they'll tell you, because of the kids, or because they can't abide apartment life, or because they want to garden.

However that may be, the great New York custom of commuting as a distinct species. Here we present a typical specimen, with identification marks.

Two Olton Men Enlist in Air Force

Leroy Bodkin and C. W. Leathers of Olton left Saturday, February 2 to enlist in the U.S. Air Force. They were accompanied to Amarillo by their wives who returned to Olton the next night.

The new enlistees left for San Antonio where they will take basic training. From there they will be processed out into training schools before receiving a permanent assignment.

Both were called by draft but enlisted to receive their choice of service. Both were married and were farming.

These are the first Olton men known to be called who were both married and farmers.

A Washington Hit and Misses

AP Newsfeatures
IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN DIFFERENT—Visitors to Washington know the cool, clean lines of the Washington monument which dominates the city. It is shown in the central picture. It might have been different. In fact the monument to the first President of the United States which was started in 1848 was the design shown upper left. Only the central shaft was started and a stump, 174 feet tall, was built. But a few years later work was stopped by political dissension.

It was not resumed until 1876 when Congress took over the project. In the long interval, the five other designs shown here were submitted and given serious consideration. The present monument was opened to the public in 1888.

Texas Schools Need New Buildings More Teachers as Enrollment Increases

Texas schools are facing one of the most critical periods in their history, Charles H. Tennyson, executive secretary of the Texas State Teachers Association, said today as he outlined pressing needs for new buildings and more teachers over the entire state.

The school population, particularly on the elementary level, is growing at an alarming rate, he pointed out. For example, births in Texas in 1945—that year's first graders—numbered 156,000. In 1947, births in the Lone Star State jumped to 197,000, an increase of 65,000. If this additional group could be divided into classes of 30 children each, Texas would still need 2100 additional teachers and classrooms in just the first and second grades.

And the birthrate continues to climb. In 1950, live births numbered 292,678, and the number for 1951 will exceed that figure.

In addition to the birthrate, educators worry about the size of the graduating class as compared to the number of children entering first grade. For instance, this year 156,000 youngsters crowded into first grade rooms over the state, but only 90,000 graduated from the eighth grade. This left already overburdened teachers with 66,000 additional children to accommodate in one year.

"The gain is going to continue to increase until at least the 1956-57 school year, Tennyson added. "By that time, the elementary schools must take care of 309,000 children in addition to the ones now enrolled. If 75 per cent of this number enters public schools, it will mean 8654 additional classrooms."

The average cost of each classroom and related facilities now exceeds $28,000. Thus Texas must spend $242,312,000 for buildings and facilities alone if the children are to have desirable schools. And this does not take into consideration the need for new facilities to replace undesirable buildings and to relieve already over-crowded conditions. A recent survey made by the Texas Education Agency shows that Texas needs to spend $540,294,500 to bring school buildings, facilities, sites and busses up to ideal conditions.

After the 1956-57 school year, the elementary enrollment over the state should begin to level off, but high schools will then face the problems of increased enrollment.

Texas does not face the educational problem alone. A nose count among elementary children over entire nation showed that grade school population rose nearly three million from 1947 to 1950. In October 1950, the U. S. Census Bureau reported that enrollment in all schools and colleges was at an all time high of slightly over 30 million persons. This represents a fifth of the nation's total population and half of the population between 5 and 29 years of age.

Sis Needs Guidance And Advice

You wake up one morning to find that Sis is no longer a baby. At six, or seven, or eight, she is beginning to develop ideas of her own with respect to dress, decoration and play. As parents, you find yourselves facing two problems: how to provide guidance and sincere advice she will need to mold her character; and how to provide the proper fun and entertainment for her at this stage in her life.

The larger part of these problems have been solved for you in a little book which has just come out. It's called "Fun For Girls: The Complete Book of Things To Do, Make and Learn" $1. (Padell Book Company, 830 Broadway, New York). It is edited by Sarah Brooks, the mother of two children.

There are hundreds of suggestions, ideas, drawings and pictures illustrating almost any fact of interest to young girls with particular interests and talents. The 192 pages are chock full of things to do indoors and outdoors.

Mrs. Brooks points out that being a good hostess is an art. "From the time she is hardly more than a baby until she is a grown woman there is seldom a day passes that doesn't require her to perform some function of a hostess. At home, when friends drop in; at school, when she is asked to lead the play hour or the game sessions and, finally, when she gives a real party of her own."

Mrs. Brooks lists ten musts for a successful party:

1. Make a list of guests you wish to attend your party.
2. Decide what kind of a party it is going to be, keeping in mind the likes and dislikes of the guests you have invited.
3. Send out invitations at least a week before the party.
4. Make up your refreshment menu.
5. Organize a shopping list, including food, decorations, game material, prizes.
6. Make up a list of games and stunts. Diversify the list using different types of games, so that everyone will have an activity they are interested in or adept at.
7. The morning of the party should be devoted to preliminary food arrangements. Prepare as much of your food as possible now, don't wait until the last minute.
8. Hours before the party start getting your decorations up. If furniture needs to be moved, lamps changed, do it now; don't be rushing around when your guests start arriving. Also make adequate arrangements for disposing of guests' wraps.

"9. Check all plans carefully. Do last minute preparation of food. "10. Sit down and rest a few minutes before your guests start arriving. If you're in a cheery, party mood, yourself, it will make a lot of difference. If you're nervous and tired your attitude is bound to show through and affect everyone else's feelings."

AND WERE THE DOCTORS SURPRISED

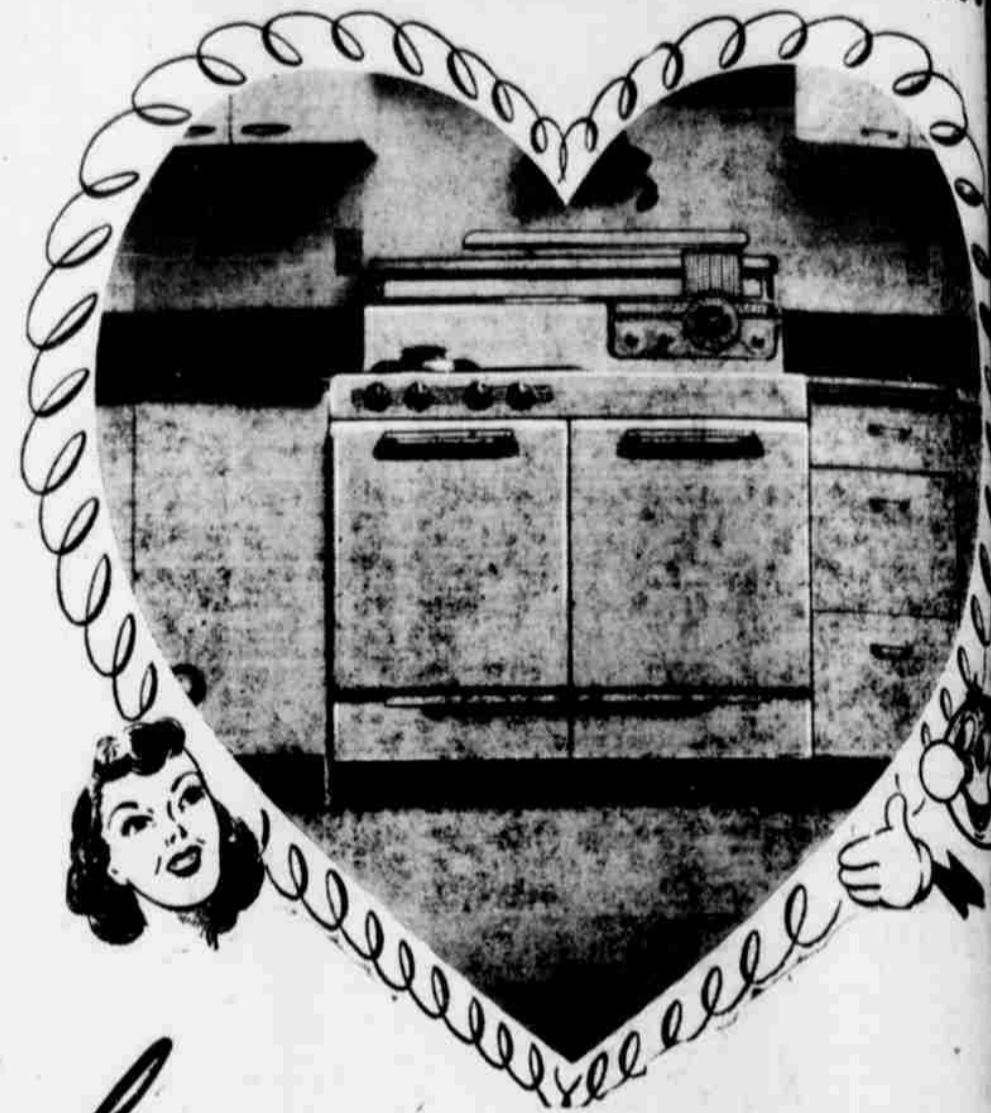

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Al Dorow, star quarterback of Michigan State's undefeated football team last season and standout in the East-West and Senior Bowl contests, almost missed out on the gridiron sport entirely. When he was 7, a physician told Al he would never be able to compete in strenuous athletics because of a bad heart.

A WIND BLOWN ACE

DENVER (AP)—A gust of wind helped J. M. Buiry DMU win one on the 110-yard pass at Lakewood Country Club. The ball came to a stop against a flagpole which leaned against the front of the cup.

Then the breeze caught and pulled the pole to the side of the cup. The ball fell or an ace.

 winter. Newspaper Pushes It
 Remembering the generosity of his home town folk, Col. Gabreski wrote Oil City's mayor, William A. Morchk, and Newspaperman Norman P. Blizzel, an appeal for aid.
 They helped launch a newspaper campaign to accumulate funds for the orphanage. The response was quick. Food, clothing, medical supplies and money began to pour in.
 Nearly $1,200 has been contributed to the Gabreski Fund sponsored by the Derrick Publishing Co. in Oil City. Contributions have arrived from Edinburg, Texas; New York City; Fort Worth, Tex.; Alexandria, La.; Kansas City, Mo.; Salisbury, N. C.; Fort Sill, Okla.; and various cities in Pennsylvania.
 Since the drive opened, the Oil City Police Department has been diverting fines of overtime parking motorists to the fund. About $200 has been collected.
 In Korea, the 51st has tabbed the drive "Operations Happiness." Despite their daily tasks of mounting combat sorties, men and officers of the fighter wing still have time to bring a little happiness to the empty stomachs of more than 200 orphans. They've begun to rehabilitate the Kim's, Sun Ja's and Chung Un's.

Viggo Peterson To Attend Dairy Convention

Viggo Peterson of the South Plains Creamery Company plans to attend the 44th annual convention of the Dairy Products Institute of Texas to be held in Fort Worth, February 24-26.
 Between 700 and 800 delegates from all parts of the State will attend to hear discussions of a multiple of problems facing the milk, butter, cheese and ice cream industry of the state. These problems range from government restrictions and meeting consumer demand for nutritional foods in a war-time economy to technical explanations of current developments that have brought better and cheaper dairy products.
 A number of national-known authorities will be among the convention speakers, as well as two political candidates have been invited to speak. The latter two are Price Daniel, State Attorney General seeking to become a U. S. Senator, and John Ben Shepperd, Secretary of State who has said he would be a candidate for Attorney General.
 Mart G. Pederson of El Paso is president of the Dairy Products Institute of Texas; George M. Clarke of Austin, executive vice-president; and H. E. Hartfelder of Dallas, treasurer.

Texas Water Board Publishes Ground-Water Bulletin

Increased use of ground water in the High Plains of Texas has caused further declines in water levels. W. E. Weather, Director of the Geological Survey, said today in making public a bulletin prepared by the Survey in cooperation with and published by the Texas Board of Water Engineers.

The report relates that 14,500 irrigation wells were in use and approximately 1,600,000 acre-feet of water was withdrawn during 1950.

From February 1950 to January 1951 the water table declined an average of 1.3 feet beneath the irrigated region of the southern High Plains. The maximum recorded decline during the year was 6.8 feet, but throughout much of the region the decline was only a fraction of a foot. The average decline from 1938 to 1951 amounted to 5 feet or less beneath 75 per cent of the 6,800,000-acre reservoir subdivision; the decline was 40 feet or more beneath only a sixth of 1 per cent of the subdivision.

Under a State law adopted by the 51st Legislature, the Board of Water Engineers designated a subdivision of the underground reservoir in the principal irrigated region of the High Plains, which included all or parts of 21 counties south of the Canadian River. Conservation of water resources, in being organized, is being organized.
