CHARLEY STRAWN, COMMISSIONER OF PRECINCT NO. 3, HAS BEEN NOMINATED FOR MEMBERSHIP IN THE GRAND AND EXALTED ORDER OF THE WORLD'S BEST ACCOMPLISHED LIARS. We are not familiar with Charley's ability to qualify as a member, but we are certain that he will not be found wanting; in fact, we expect that Charley's nomination is an announcement that he will come right on in to the office at the first opportunity and state his qualifications in detail. We have known Charley for a number of years and have always found him willing and able to meet any situation. We are taking it on ourselves to make him a member of the order, and hereby extend to him the hand of welcome and fellowship as soon as we have membership cards printed we will mail them to him.

ARREST SUSPECTS IN LINDBERGH CASE

(Special to Leader by United Press)
NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 20 — A suspect was arrested today in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, and was brought to police headquarters here for questioning by leading operators in the Federal government's drive on kidnapers J. Edgar Hoover, prominent in the Federal government's drive on public enemies, is declared to have participated in the latest arrest.
Bruno Richard Hauptmann, 35, was arrested on charges of being recipient of the $50,000 tossed over cemetery wall in the Bronx in vain effort to recover kidnaped child. Two other suspects also are under arrest.

Rain Falls Over Littlefield Territory

Littlefield and the entire trade territory received a good drenching rain Friday night last measuring from one-half to an inch moisture.
Following up a sand storm, which blew up suddenly, the rain with very little warning came down in torrents.
Several cars were reported to have stuck in the mud, including one near Morton, one about a mile and a half from Littlefield and another near Anton.

Farm Meeting Is Postponed

The meeting called by W. H. Cunningham, President of the Littlefield Agricultural Association, for Friday last to discuss the question of cooperative purchasing of feed, was postponed until more information could be obtained on the matter.
It is expected that another meeting will be called in the near future.

Government weather forecasters are right 85 to 95 per cent of time.

Littlefield School District Receives $3,060

$30 Taken From Lumber Firm's Cash Drawer

About $30 in cash was taken from the cash drawer of Wm. Cameron & Co., Saturday afternoon. Two men are believed to have been implicated in the theft.
Not long before the robbery two men entered the lumber concern's sale room. One of the men made a very small purchase and both men left the building. A short time later a man came into the sales room and asked to see some material outside the building, but left without making a purchase after looking over the merchandise.
It is believed the money was taken while the employe was out of the building.

As announced by H. C. (Carl) Arnold, Secretary of the Littlefield Independent School District, a check for $3,060 representing payment of $1.50 on the remaining unpaid, on the 1933-34 per capita scholastic apportionment, was received by him Tuesday last. This payment was made on the basis of 2040 approved Scholastics.

A balance of $1020 is still owing on the 1933-34 apportionment, according to Mr. Arnold, who states that it is expected remittance will be received for this amount within thirty days.

A materially better financial condition as of today compared with last year has been reported by the State Department of education. On Sept. 15 last year the state owed $5 on the per capita apportionment for the preceding year.

FIVE OF SIX HOME GAMES TO BE PLAYED AT NIGHT; SALE OF TICKETS IS ON

Through efforts of the Littlefield Athletic Booster association night football is assured for Littlefield this season. The announcement was made by the publicity committee of the association after representatives of the booster group returned Wednesday night from Lubbock where they made final plans and placed the order for the necessary lighting equipment with the Texas Utilities Company. Littlefield is the only Class B town in this district which plans to play night football this season.

It is almost a certainty that the light will be installed in time for the Littlefield-Brownfield game, scheduled for Friday night, September 28, to be played under the lights.

Five of the six home games scheduled to be played here this season will be played at night. The first game, with Amherst tomorrow, will be played before the equipment can be installed.

Necessary lighting equipment for the project will cost $475, it was announced. This amount is being raised through the sale of season tickets for the first six games of the 1934 season. The lighting equipment at the soft ball field will also be moved to the high school park and used.

The season tickets are being sold for $1.75 each and officials of the booster association are urging every citizen who can possibly do so to purchase tickets and assist in financing the project.

WILDCATS WILL OPEN SEASON WITH AMHERST FRIDAY

Friday afternoon at two o'clock coach Barksdales' Fighting Wildcats will go into firing order. At that time the cats will meet the Amherst Bull dogs on the local gridiron.

Amherst is reputed to have the strongest team that it has had in many seasons, and that the Bull dogs will be in ship shape to take the pig-skin away from the Cats.

According to reports the Cats will be outweighed several pounds per man, by their opponents, but they have been working hard preparing for the tussle and they expect to scratch through to victory.

The Pep Squad with Miss Mamie Brewer as leader will attend the game in full force, and help put it over in fine style.

Don't fail to see Friday's game. Come out and boost those fighting Wildcats.

A lineup on the season's games is not available at present, but will no doubt be published in next week's issue of the Leader.

Derrick Completed For Cochran Test

The derrick has been completed for an oil test on the West Texas Development location in Cochran county, it was announced by officials of the company in Littlefield Wednesday afternoon.

The test is located on labor 53, league 149, Randall county school land, Cochran county, between Bledsoe and Lehman.

Sentence Three For Robbery of Levelland Bank

Half a century in the penitentiary was the total punishment a 72nd district court jury set for three convicted bank robbers late Tuesday.

J. C. Smith received a 20-year term; his son, Buck Smith, and Chester Branch each a 15-year sentence.

The men had pleaded not guilty of robbing the Levelland bank of about $1,200 last April 25.

Receives Order to Cease Buying Cattle

An order to cease buying cattle under the federal government's drought relief program has been received at Amherst by D. A. Adam, County Agent.

Lamb County for several weeks has been on a 450 head per day purchasing schedule.

Abductors Still at Large

All efforts by police and relatives have failed to disclose the identity of two men who, on Monday night, September 10, kidnaped Miss Lillian Hopping, Littlefield High School teacher, from the home of her sister and brother-in-law, City Commissioner and Mrs. Pat Boone.

The investigation has been carried out from every angle, but officers and relatives are as much in the dark today as to the identity of the two men as they were when they first learned of the kidnaping.

Meanwhile Miss Hopping is carrying on her duties as usual at the Littlefield High School.

The opinion is still held by police Mr. Boone, and relatives that the two men sought to kidnap Mrs. Boone and believed that when they first forced Miss Hopping to accompany them that she was Mrs. Boone.

The kidnaping took place at about 8:30 p. m., when Miss Hopping was alone. She was forced at the point of a pistol to accompany the two men, but made her escape about three hours later when the pair left the car to change a punctured rear tire. Miss Hopping walked for the greater part of the balance of the night in an effort to return home. She feared to visit a farm house or to stop a car, in view of the possibility of again falling into the clutches of the kidnapers.

Miss Hopping arrived home about 8 a. m. Tuesday morning. She had walked within three or four miles of Littlefield before she visited a farm house, and was brought to Littlefield. Miss Hopping's absence from home throughout the night was not regarded as unusual, in view of the fact that she sometimes spent a night with friends.

FACULTY TAKES LEAD IN SOFT BALL STANDING

Faculty Probably Second Half Winners; Tie Is Possible

Wednesday night the Faculty club elevated themselves to the top most rung of the eight club soft-ball loop by decisively whalloping the lowly Oilers who had numerous handicaps all season towards placing high in the standings.

The game was played as the second affair in a twin bill carded for the nights entertainment. Amherst was slated to pit their wares with the Sunnysdale club in a practice affair but their non-appearance made necessary a pick up club who took on the Sunnysdale performers only to lose in a well played affair 5 to 4.

In all probability the School Faculty are second half winners. In event the firemen lose to the Legion Friday night it will cinch the flag for the school entry. On the contrary a tie will result should the Firemen win.

There is very little to be mentioned in the game between the School and the Oilers unless it is to say that the Oilers were completely outclassed and that a win for the Educators was not unexpected in the least. Eagan and Hemphill pitched for the School with Baize doing the assignment for the losers.

The League of Nations Monday elected Chile, Spain and Turkey members of the league council.

We Do Our Part

FIRST SIGNS OF WINTER

There's nothing unusual about it — it happens every year at about this time — but it always comes with an unexpectedness that lends it the atmosphere of surprise.

North Winds, whistle around corners; shivering people caught by the sudden change. The first sign of approaching cold it came yesterday with a threatening, sinister shout. If the opening of the fall season is any indication of the winter that is before us, we shall, indeed, be faced with one of the severest cold seasons in a number of years.

There is no one at this time, probably, who does not welcome the prospect — even the poor, unclad, who look upon the coming months with fear. We have experienced mild winters and found them to be wonderful at the time but leaving a terrible effect afterwards.

This year we are willing for snows to fly long and hard as possible. We hope every mountain top in Colorado and New Mexico will be covered for months. We have learned that when the snow is gone, little rain comes.

The first sign may not mean that any degree of cold weather is upon us. It may be weeks before an appreciable change of average temperatures is noticeable. But we always face the new winter season with a feeling that "all is well," despite what has gone before. That is behind us; changes, new opportunities are at hand. Something is about to happen — we can feel it. There is new life, new hope.

For some, unfortunately, there can be no such feeling. For them we must do what we can. — Memphis Democrat.

is the most important
quality in gasoline

... say Authorities

WHAT does it take to make a gasoline "great"? Four oil experts tell you in their statements at the right.

They emphasize volatility... and Phillips 66 is famous for high volatility. Besides, this volatility is scientifically controlled, month by month, so make this greater gasoline a star all-weather performer.

Your engine always runs better, because the gas you get at a Phillips pump is correctly "tailored" for the particular weather you are having. You actually feel the difference in your motor... in increased speed and power... in peppier pick-up... in reduced noise and no-knock... in plus extra mileage in every gallon.

We invite you to try a tankful, to see for yourself the outstanding improvement given by extra volatility, at no extra cost, at any Orange and Black 66 shield.

TODAY'S FASHION HINTS VERY LATEST By PATRICIA DOW

Designed in sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 44 requires 5 1/2 yards of 35 inch material and 1/2 yard of contrasting.

Pattern 8315. Jacket ensembles hit the high note of the season, and are in great demand for the fall days when it is too warm to wear a coat and too cold to go without. This style has been designed for the larger women. Notice how the double points on the skirt slenderize the hips. The contrasting yoke repeats the lines of the skirt, and with the flattering V neckline, lessens the width of the shoulders. Of course, the length of the Jacket adroitly conceals the tendency to wider hips, and gives a willowy silhouette.

This ensemble may be made in plain or printed crepes, satin or sheer woolsens. The dress may be made with long or short sleeves. This pattern is so easy to make that the larger woman can make this at home with complete satisfaction in its style and fitting.

SYNOPSIS
The passengers of No. 12 wonder about the pretty, uncommunicative girl who had been riding the train for three weeks ago, when she had been thrown into the sea. She had been amazed to find no news references to the thing she feared. But even so, the girl of the night was no longer.

The Suburban station the Marston straggled informal single dusty street with a few offshoots on each side. In the rear of the post-office a young man appeared, looking up the road toward the station. He was tall and dressed, but without the weathered look. He had a prominent nose with pride in every line, rather nice gray eyes, clear and steady, and a pleasant, finely cut mouth, curiously at war with the rest of his face. He caught sight of the automobile over by the station and a faint grin twitched at the corner of his mouth. He was wondering what some people of his acquaintance would say if they ever met Marston and had to be met like an old hobo," he remarked. "That Petry loves it like a guess I'll go over an wait rolled on down the dusty street as if by no means a crowded one, but the few people he met all knew him. Their greetings were friendly, although perhaps not as warm as they might have been, for Boone Petry, who worked for the store, or any of the few seat-ranch owners who occasionally stop for supplies. He seemed, in fact, just a little apart from their usual familiar interests. Only when he passed the deserted real-estate office his face darkened slightly, for the little building, slacking its uselessness to any eye, was undoubtedly a long offense to him. At the shimmering distance a cab had appeared. At the station the longer came to life for the major events of Marston Boone Petry, propped contentedly against the weathered boarding and away, awoke to mild interest. The operator grinned sociably. "Expectin' company?"

"Scene stuff for the boss." "He gets a lot of stuff, don't he? Must have some real money to spend?" Petry blinked at the glinting tracks and apparently forgot to answer. The operator took another look.

"Jim Bagley says he hears Duane's out 'most every day, pokin' the old Junipero full of holes. Barry's a nice fella, but if he keeps on like that he'll end up the same way his uncle did."

"Maybe, and maybe not. I ain't inquired his destination, but wherever Barry aims to go he most generally arrives."

The conversation seemed unprofitable, but the operator was a hard man to down.

"Speakin' of destinations, I saw the whole Simpson tribe headin' out of town this mornin', bag and baggage. If they'd of piled anything on that feller it would of laid down and died. They're movin' over to the county seat."

Petry grinned. The Simpson's nearest neighbor—a trifling matter of five or six miles—was Barry Duane, and it could not be denied that there had been no great amount of neighborly visiting between Eagle's Perch and the little ranch where the Simpson family dribbled out its happy-go-lucky existence.

"What's happened?" he inquired mildly. "Somebody leave Sim ten dollars or did he just get too exultated to work?"

"Don't talk about a triflin' ten dollars to Lonzo. He's sold his place and from the general excitement in the Simpson family I'd say it must've been a pretty good cash payment."

The jar of the two-thirty-eight closed the conversation abruptly. Number Twelve clanked to a stop with a long sigh. Petry looked along the line of dusty coaches, nodded familiarly to the brakeman, gallantly laden with somebody's suitcases, and started toward the forward end. Then he stopped, as abruptly as though he had been jerked at the end of a halter.

Silken ankles and beautifully shod feet were coming down the gritty steps of old number twelve. Petry looked up dizzily at a slim young woman clad trimly in blue. She was appealingly young and she had the loveliest skin that Boone had ever seen and an engaging little mouth which looked rather sober just now but would surely show lovely teeth when she smiled, and lustrous big eyes with a growing dismay in them as they looked beyond the ugly little station toward the forlorn straggle of houses which constituted the town of Marston. That was Marston's first glimpse of Anne Cushing as she stepped from the two-thirty-eight directly into the path of Boone Petry, ex-cowman, ex-ranchman and general factotum to Barry Duane.

Involuntarily he swept off his battered hat showing a grizzled head, a skin weathered to a leathery brown and light blue eyes which gave him a deceptively innocent air. The girl smiled at him. Some of the dismay retreated.

"You are Mr. Simpson, aren't you?" "an Anne Cushing." "Why, no ma'am." Petry gulped feebly. "My name is Petry, Boone poon, he—he's moved away from here. He sold his place just recent."

"Yes I know. I bought it. But I thought he might be here to—well, to show me the place, I suppose. I'm afraid that was a rather silly idea."

"o ma'am," said Petry helplessly. The dismayed look was hovering in her eyes again. He shifted his weight from one foot to another, and thought earnestly of things he would like to do to the departed Simpson.

"I guess Sun's kind of careless that way," he added apologetically. "But don't let that bother you ma'am. If there's anything I can do, or the boss either, we'd sure be pleased to."

The local ground in all its length and gathered its complaining joints into restless sighs, leaving them standing there. At a little distance, just beyond the platform, the young man who had been seen from the post-office stood and watched them with unaltered curiosity. The few dawdling loungers had frankly turned their heads in the same direction.

The girl's eyes were sweeping the sun-warped platform and the hot road beyond. They hesitated for an instant as they caught the unobtrusive scrutiny of the brown young man, and then passed on composedly. They went back to Boone Petry.

"It's awfully kind of you to take so much trouble. If you could just tell me where I can get a stage or rent a car, I think I can manage all right."

"It ain't a bit of trouble, but there ain't any stage, because there ain't any place in particular for a stage to go. And there ain't any garage, either, nor for hirin' cars. But that needn't matter a bit, because our place is just a spell beyond yours, and we can give you a lift easy. Any time you like."

Petry rubbed his chin nervously with a mahogany paw. Here was a situation calling for diplomacy, and diplomacy, he felt, had never been one of his stronger points. He sent a hunted look around, caught the eye of the watching young man and signaled him with a furtive thumb. The girl was thanking him.

"That would be splendid, but I hate to be such a nuisance."

"Not at all ma'am the young man was at his elbow now looking interested. Looking more than interested. "Miss Cushing, meet my boss, Mr. Barry Duane. Barry this lady's just bought the Simpson place and Sim's life I've told her it's right on our way and we can take her out any time she wants to go."

"Of course we can. Very glad to." Not a single blink betrayed that the Simpson place was out of their home-ward way by some miles of singularly bad road.

"It's awfully good of both of you. I didn't expect to be a charge on the community as soon as I arrived."

"The community," said Barry Duane, "considers itself in luck. Now about this place of yours. When do you get possession?"

"I've got it now."

"Yes—of course." He hesitated, and caught Petry's nervous eye. Petry cleared his throat.

"I was thinkin' he ventured, "seeing there's nobody out there now, maybe the lady might like to put up at the hotel here, until her folks come."

"But you see, there isn't anyone else to come." Anne Cushing laughed for the first time in three long weeks and Barry Duane thought it was the loveliest laugh he had ever heard.

"You really mustn't be worried about me," she said in that lovely voice. "I'm not a bit afraid of staying alone. I thought I'd try to get a man and his wife. I meant to leave an advertisement for them before I started for the ranch. Can I do this?"

Barry laughed. "No, I'm afraid you can't. There's no paper to advertise in, this side of the county seat. At least there's no printed one. The unofficial way is to mention whatever you want over at Jim Bagley's general store, and then wait for the returns to come in. Any other suggestions, Petry? How about Martha Larrabee?"

"First rate!" Petry cheered visibly. "Martha ain't exactly a man and wife but she's pretty near as good."

He bent over and picked up a fat suitcase. Barney lid the same.

"And now, he said, "for Martha Larrabee and the general store."

"This," said Anne Cushing to herself, "is a funny dream. Pretty soon I shall wake up and find that I ain't at all."

Her spirits had soared unconsciously. She wanted to laugh as she was suddenly boarded toward the "habby" car. It was less than five minutes when she had stepped from the train and here she was, waiting confidently alone with two perfect strangers who parently all her problems into their capable hands.

At the far end of the straggling street a wooden cottage, better kept than most, sat a little back in a yard where neat borders of flowers had been encouraged to grow. They stopped. Petry went in. He was gone five minutes. Anne began to wonder what was happening. Suppose the efficient Mrs. Larrabee should decline to come?

The front door opened and a woman came out. She was tall and comfortably plump, with greyed brown hair and an air of practical competence. Her face was strong and shrewd, and not without humor. Petry came out behind her, with an uncertain grin on his homely face. Evidently the redoubtable Martha had declined to commit herself.

"This is the lady, Martha. Miss Cushing, this is Mrs. Larrabee."

"I hope you can come, Mrs. Larrabee. I really don't know what there is to be done yet . . ."

Martha looked at the girl in the car, a small and slightly anxious face.

"I'll come," she said briefly, and permitted herself a grim quirk of a smile as she nodded to the car's owner. She went on briskly, calmly taking the situation in hand.

"You wait here for me, and I'll go with you to the store. It won't take me two minutes."

She went back into the house. Such trifling matters as wages, duties and hours had evidently not entered into her decision at all.

"Passed with honors!" said Barry Duane. "Martha came out to look you over, and if she hadn't liked your looks you couldn't have argued her into coming at any price."

She laughed and sobbed, looking out at the endless waste that went on and on into the hazy distance.

"I knew I was under inspection. I was so afraid I wouldn't pass muster I scarcely dared breathe. She looks so—dependable."

"Martha's pure gold—and here she comes. Now, for the store and your supplies. Another half hour and we'll be on our way."

They were off in much less time than that, thanks to Martha Larrabee's brisk supervision. Marston's brief sensation was over, at least for the time being, but the repercussions still echoed. All Marston knew it now. A pretty young thing with soft voice and delicate hands had bought the Simpson ranch, thirty miles out across the Junipero, and expected to run it. Male Marston admired, but shook his head. Female Marston sniffed.

"Looks like she had money," said Jim Bagley hopefully. "She sure is pretty."

"She's too pretty," said his wife tartly. "Girls who look like that and wear clothes like that don't go streakin' off to out-of-way places unless there's somethin' queer back of it."

The loungers around the store preserved a polite silence.

"And what's more said the lady heatedly, "that suit she wears is handsome, just handsome, but when she took the coat off, while she was waitin' for Barry Duane to come back and dance around her, I looked inside of it to see where it come from, and the tag had been ripped off! That don't look like any accident to me."

Fortunately for her peace of mind the girl who called herself Anne Cushing had no suspicion of the too eager eye which had found that evidence of a discarded identity in her coat. She did have a faintly disagreeable memory of a harp-faced woman who had been rather offensively inquisitive but that could have meant no more than the ill-restrained curiosity of a small-town gossip. She put it behind her, and settled back contentedly.

Marston, low against its sands, had vanished in a sprawling blur. The old car made excellent time. Petry was driving. Martha Larrabee sat beside him, Barry Duane sat with Anne in the rear seat.

Blazing sunlight beat down, and a long plume of dust waved and wavered in their wake. The road ran on ahead of them, mile after mile, with nothing to impede their view. There was not a house in sight, nothing moving. In the opulent flare of sunshine distance took on strange colors, turning to purple in the fields of those sudden hills.

"You are in the Junipero Valley now," Duane told her. "You must remember that, because it is your next-door neighbor. A few thousand years ago there was a river here, but it has been dry a long time. I suppose it looks pretty ugly to you, but it has its points, and after the rains it will be streaked with purple and gold."

"Purple and gold." She answered with thoughtful eyes and stared at it, half dreaming.

"No, I don't think its ugly-hn-Ca. No, I don't think it is ugly, it's fascinating. It's empty and brooding and rather terrible, but it beckons you. It keeps promising you something, and you want to go on and on until you find it."

The grey eyes warmed. They almost blazed. She had a quick feeling that somewhere behind his pleasant brown young man there was an eager little boy, rather pathetically anxious to have someone admire a thing he loved, but with all a little boy's sensitiveness to rebuff. That was curious when in other ways he seemed so completely poised and assured, quite as much so as any man she knew. She wondered what had happened, to make him feel like that.

The Palace will be ablaze with lights as the stars of the scintillating screen, if not in person, then in impersonation arrive at the entrance of the Palace and are met by uniformed footmen and ushers and are announced to the crowd over the special public address system.

The giant flood lights have arrived and are being put in place and the loud-speakers are being placed for this gala occasion. Lacking nothing but the stars themselves, this Hollywood premiere will be one of the events of theatre night life this fall and is scheduled to be the biggest thing yet put on by the Palace Theatre.

The impersonators will begin to arrive at 7:30 and after being introduced to the crowd in front of the theatre they will go to their places backstage. After they have all arrived at the theatre, they will appear on the stage and impersonate various movie stars in competition for prizes.

Every few months—since our opening in 1929—you have probably read various newspaper announcements concerning the many improvements made by Renfro Bros.

We first opened with a small grocery store and a mere handful of customers. But we opened with an ambition and determination to build one of the finest and most complete Foods Stores in the entire South Plains. Today, we believe we are rapidly succeeding!

During our five years in business we have continued to improve and enlarge our facilities and our stocks that we might give you a more complete Food Store, a higher degree and more convenient service. A short time ago we made additional improvements. We enlarged our floor and display space and added many dollars worth of merchandise.

We truly believe that we have been well compensated for our efforts. And the large number of regular customers who continue to turn to us for their grocery needs prompts us to believe that we will make even greater progress during the months to come.

Third Cotton "Parity" Payment To Be Paid in Oct.

The farm administration have announced that the third cotton "parity" payment due in December would be combined with the second rental payment and that both would be distributed in October. The total thus to be paid out will approximate $72,500,000.

In making this announcement, C. A. Cobb, chief of the cotton production section said:

"Payment of the second and third installments due under the cotton contracts were combined in order that the distribution of the payments to the interested parties might be more easily and more promptly effected."

He said tenants and share croppers had an interest in the "parity" payment and that to put off payment until December, the usual season for many tenants and renters to move to other farms, would cause unnecessary complications.

The "parity" payments due cotton producers total $28,000,000.

The second installment of the rental payment is approximately $44,500,000.

The AAA expects to pay benefits on the 1934 crop totaling $117,052,539. Payments on the first installment totaled $41,061,775 up to September 14, leaving payments yet to be made to farmers on the 1934 cotton program of $75,990,764.

The first installment was one-half of the rental payment, with the second to be the remainder of the rentals. The third installment is a parity payment, calculated on the basis of one cent a pound on the estimated

The first tussle of the week and first double header slated for tonight's entertainment the Faculty and the strong School team for seven innings before were settled. The Allstars counted in 2nd with Anderson coming in to tie the count at four all in the final count of the second round. Things rocked along on even terms the rest of the way until the final verse was sung with the School emerging as winners by counting two in their half of the 7th and then checking the Allstars in their half.

trip to first and Coach Barksdale's Homer to left center. The next three men were retired in order. Walters, Yantis and Kimmel tallied for the Allstars in their first inning gesture and the lead. Hanes and Maxwell counted in 2nd with Anderson coming in to tie the count at four all in the final count of the second round. Things rocked along on even terms the rest of the way until the final verse was sung with the School emerging as winners by counting two in their half of the 7th and then checking the Allstars in their half.

Cotton Eagan and Robbins opposed each other on the mound and did justice to their respective assignments.

Businessmen Lose to Sunnysdale; Score is 15 to 7

The Sunnysdale boys made two rallies count for a total of fifteen runs at the expense of the businessmen thereby winning their last game of the season and making their standings show nine victories to five defeats for the fourteen games played in the last half.

This being the final game for the businessmen and making their won and lost column show eight wins to six defeats. The scoring for the businessmen occurred in the third and fourth innings giving them their total of seven.

Bob McKnight had last control in the first inning and finally was replaced by Otha Key who had his hand in the fourth when a total of eight runs were made on four hits and a number of infield errors, coupled with two infield putouts. Aside from the two big innings the game was full of pep and nifty plays by both clubs. Pitcher Cape went the route for the winners.

GAME RAINE DOUT

The game between the Lutheran and Allstars was rained out Friday Night, with only a part of one inning being played before the game was called off.

CONSIDERATION IS BEING GIVEN TO CONDUCTING BENCH SHOW AT LUBBOCK DOG OWNERS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PLAN

Dog breeders and owners of the South Plains and Panhandle may form an association and conduct an annual bench show at Lubbock.

Information that the show is being considered has been received with much interest and it is believed that such an event would enjoy a long list of entries, and would be well attended by dog breeders and owners.

J. R. Newman, who is connected with Economy Mills, Lubbock, is reported to be taking an active interest in encouraging the conducting of the show.

There are large numbers of show dogs in the Panhandle and Plains, and there are also hundreds of pure bred dogs throughout the sections whose ancestry carried off ribbons at numerous shows.

Littlefield dog owners would welcome the conducting of a bench show at Lubbock. Probably several dogs would be entered from Littlefield and surrounding territory.

Robbins will play, but the doctor seeing as how he is a "professional" will be barred from active participation.

Local Girls Down Sunnysdalers By Score of 12 to 5

The local girls' baseball team played Sunnysdale Monday afternoon at the local park, the Littlefield girls coming out ahead by a score of 12 to 5.

Pauline Wallace pitched for the local team; Susie Houk was catcher, scoring for the home team on several occasions. Alna Walraven was the first baseman; Alice Henson, second base; and Maldean Kimmell third base.

Beside Lair pitched for the Sunnysdalers; Oma Carpenter was catcher; Opal Carpenter on first base; Walker second base and Lillian Carpenter third base.

The hustling Olives put up a most creditable scrap with the businessmen for five innings play last Monday night and looked like winners with their inspired playing. This is all the more interesting when it is considered that two of their stars were out for the night and failed to make their appearance for the game.

The game was decided in the 5th inning with the businessmen driving in five scores and again put lose for a three run quart in the 7th to coast on to victory. The only score made for the losers was made by Smith new third sacker for the oilers in the 3rd.

Balaz pitched for the Oilers and Otha Key tossed for the Stone fore-cast. Spectacular fielding plays were made by both clubs and the game was one of interest to all present. The businessmen are now in a tie for second position in the league with Sunnysdale.

Firemen Trim Sunnysdale By Score 3 to 1

In last weeks final scheduled affair the Firemen and Sunnysdale met on the soft-ball battlefield to do combat for first place Honors in the league standings. With both clubs out to win and playing their best the firemen took the lead in the 2nd stanza with a three run rally and were never seriously threatened anytime during the course of play.

Capes and Claunch were the battery for the Hanks crew with Otis Scott and Bob Cox doing like duty for the Fire wistinguishers. With each club scoring in but one inning each the game was hotly contested and a pitchers battle ensued. Except for numerous decisions causing a delay in the speed of play the contest was one of the most outstanding and most important of the season.

Cox, Wright and Hemphill registered one marker each for the fire Truck gang while Claunch was the sole scorer for the losers. The win for the City entry placed them on top of the heap and put Hanks and Company in second place.

Birds' Eyes

Surpass Human's

The human eye does not compare with the eyes of some animals and birds, either in number or quality, according to Dr. Ira E. Woods of this city. A scallop will give you a cold, unblinking stare from as many as forty-six eyes arranged along the margin of the mantle. But the most highly developed and effective visual organ in the world is that of the bird. Dr. Woods believes. Many birds of prey have both telescopic and microscopic eyes, and are able to see a grain of corn from a height of hundreds of feet, or dive upon their victims in midair.

Because the human being is the most perfect in some respects, does not mean he is not surpassed by animals in others," says Dr. Woods. "Man is notably weak in eyesight. For instance, of the 29,000,000 school children in this country, 6,000,000 are known to have defective vision. Eyestrain, being less clamorous than a decayed tooth, causes many parents to neglect an examination of a backward child. Parents will spend hundreds of dollars on books and other equipment to advance a child's position in life without suspecting a weakness in the organ upon which the child relies most for its education.

Considering the exacting work of the eye Dr. Woods feels that its neglect is responsible for much of the dullness attributed to other sources of disease.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST CHURCH ENDEAVORING TO RAISE FUNDS OF $100 FOR FOREIGN MISSIONS

Members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in this city and Spade are now busily engaged in their annual Ingathering Campaign in the interest of foreign mission enterprises, and are endeavoring to raise a fund of $100.00 for their portion of a general fund of $1,000,000 that the entire denomination expects to secure to assist in their general activities abroad.

The local members of the faith are very appreciative for what has been contributed by their friends and business acquaintances in past years, and say that contributions have helped to build hospitals, sanitariums, treatment rooms, schools and publishing houses in lands where the natives heretofore lived in spiritual darkness, superstition, degradation, and object misery.

The Adventist are constantly enlarging their missionary program until today the gospel is being proclaimed in 485 languages in 275 different countries and islands of the world, and their ambition is to reach every nation, kindred, tongue and people with the Biblical message that personal salvation and personal relief from all trouble, sorrow, and woe may come through acceptance of Jesus Christ, as the only Deliverer and Helper.

Several thousand missionaries are now located in the jungles of lands infested not only by wild beasts but by wild men, whom they are endeavoring to subdue by the influence of the gospel, on the hot prairies of India and other tropical lands, in the South Sea islands where cannibalism is still practiced, in the highlands of mountains where redskin savages engage in most degrading practices, in the sections where a white face is a rarity, and where medical help is exceedingly scarce. Among these missionaries are young men physicians, whose wives are trained nurses, who have gone from a recognized school of medicine to bring relief to multitudes suffering with loathsome diseases, with no hope of relief this side of the grave.

While several millions of dollars a year are contributed by members of the faith through their tithes and offerings for the advancement of their church both at home and abroad, they also conduct this annual Harvest Ingathering campaign for the twofold purpose of informing others of their Biblical message and the progress they are making, with the hope that they will win converts to their cause and also to swell their funds in order to answer the call of distressed peoples in many benighted sections of the world by sending consecrated young men and women amongst these people to help them find a better and more healthful way of caring for their bodies and escaping pain and suffering, and also to point them to their sin-pardoning Saviour and Friend, who is not only the Healer of all diseases, but of all sin.

Back to Grass and Forage is Theme Of Fair Exhibits

To explain the "Back to Grass" program of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, a carload of educational exhibits is being displayed at the Amarillo Tri-State Fair, this week.

This display will be supplemented by other agricultural exhibits dealing with dairying, beef cattle, sheep, horses, poultry, and farm woodlands, each of which has close relation to the principles of farm management now being advocated by the Department of Agriculture as means of meeting present farm situations.

All of the exhibits are intended to help farmers improve their farming methods so that they may realize larger net returns from their investments of money and labor, and to help both rural and city people in wise and economic use of agricultural products. There will be an information booth with a display of publications where visitors may examine Department bulletins, talk with the Department representative, and learn information on many phases of agriculture and how advice or published culture may be obtained.

"Livestock Farming to Fit Today's Conditions," which expresses the central theme, explains by means of maps, cutouts, and a projection machine what the "back to grass and forage plan" involves and how that plan likewise is calculated to help balance production of and demand for agricultural products. A series of farm layouts illustrate a 240-acre grain and livestock farm before and after harvested acreage has been reduced 30 percent, with corresponding increase in pasture and forage.

Exhibits on dairying illustrate high producing cows and cooperation among dairymen. One points out that a single high producing cow paid the same annual net income as 13 ordinary low producing cows and asks which job a man would rather have, caring for and milking 13 cows or one. The other shows by means of mechanical striking device and a group of manikins how dairymen working together succeed where individual action fails. When the manikins all strike the device at once a weight is flung to the top and the bell is rung.

Other exhibits emphasize management of farm woodlands for profit; sheep handling equipment; the control of poultry lice and mites; the need for young horses for farm power; the prevention of damage from lightning; and how cattle grubs lower milk production of dairy cows, retard growth of calves, prevent the fattening of beef cattle, actually damage beef, and destroy the value of hides.

Oats Sufficient For Table Needs; Seed Varieties Scarce

Even with this year's crop cut in half, there will be oats enough for the children's porridge. There will be oats enough the nation over for the 1935 planting as far as number of bushels go. But the drought will give this important cereal crop a setback of many years as to adapted varieties if seed stocks in areas where the oat crop was depleted by drought and insects are fed out or drawn upon too heavily to supply manufacturers' demands.

This is the opinion of T. H. Stanton, oats authority in the U. S. Department of Agriculture. He believes some states west of the Mississippi will be planting mixed varieties and strains not locally adapted if they depend on shipped in seed next spring.

"Oats shipped in from other regions may grow all right but they are likely not to develop so well as the improved sorts of known local adaptation and will not command the best market price. Next Spring seems a long time away, but right now is the time to acquire or reserve seed for the 1935 plantings. Good seed of adapted varieties may slip away this winter with feed as scarce as it is," he says.

As examples of recently developed strains particularly adapted to a certain area, Mr. Stanton mentions Rainbow in the Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota—also Loggold in Iowa, developed by the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with Iowa State College. It is entirely possible that seed of both these varieties will be scarce, if it is not saved now.

The 1934 oat crop was estimated in the August crop report at 545,000,000 bushels, even less than the short 1933 crop of 732,000,000 bushels and less than half the average crop of 1,187,000,000 bushels from 1929 to 1931. The carryover from last year was only 107,580,000 bushels.

Most of this year's deficit is accounted for in Illinois, Indiana, and in states west of the Mississippi where improved varieties of the Kherson Sixty-Day and Fulghum types have been developed to meet local conditions. Strains of these varieties are even more important. That is why seed men are calling attention to the advisability of locally conserving seed of adapted varieties of oats at an early date.

Farm Organization Conducts State Meeting Here

A number of resolutions relative to national agricultural and economic matters were passed at a state-wide meeting of the Texas Farm Holiday association, which was held at the Littlefield High School auditorium recently.

The meeting was in progress throughout the day. One of the chief addresses was made by Judge L. Gough of Amarillo, president of the state association.

Forage Crops Seed Supply Is Much Smaller

Seed crops of most of the grasses and legumes used for hay will be much smaller this year. Preliminary estimates made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture from reports by growers and country shoppers of these seeds give a pessimistic outlook regarding the 1934 production. Much of the seed already has been harvested and is past help by rains.

The timothy seed crop may be the smallest on record. Production is estimated to be only about one-fifth of the small crop of last year. It is estimated that only about one-third as many acres have been harvested as in 1933, with the yields slightly less than one-half of last year. Timothy seed carry-over is unusually small because of the short crops of 1932 and 1933.

The crop of Kentucky bluegrass seed is about one-fourth that of last year, due chiefly to the drought, with freezes, a cold spring and insects as contributing factors. This crop was virtually a complete failure in Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas.

The sweetclover seed crop is expected to be "much smaller". Prospects are most favorable in northwestern Minnesota, although the hay shortage there may result in fewer acres being saved for seed. In parts of South Dakota, normally the third most important State in producing sweetclover seed, only 10 and 25 percent of last year's crop is expected. Very short crops are indicated for Nebraska and Kansas.

The harvest of red, crimson and alsike clover seed is indicated as much smaller than last year. Washington is expected to have more red clover seed than last year, but country shippers expect the production in Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri to be less than one-half of last year. In Louisiana, chief producing State for white clover seed, the acreage was as large as last year, but there heavy rains cut down the quantity harvested for seed, so that the production was somewhat smaller than in 1933.

Reports on redbud, meadow fescue and orchard grass indicate small seed crops. Those who conserve every bit of roughage in 1934 may find it welcome in 1935, with low supplies of hay, and seed for hay crops, a certainty next year.

Wheat Acreage To Be Reduced 10%

According to W. B. Eby, secretary of the Lamb county Wheat Production Control association, wheat acreage will be reduced 10 percent this year instead of 15 percent as previously announced.

EXALTED ORDER OF THE WORLD'S MOST ACCOMPLISHED LIARS—

Herbert says that one of his uncles who was an accomplished fisherman, established a worm farm under a rock down by the river. The worm farm prospered and grew into immensity. And as the farm grew, his uncle's ambitions for a bigger and better worm farm increased.

One day the said uncle found a chicken snake in the poultry yard. And as he looked on the snake a bright idea came into his mind. He carried the snake to the worm farm and duly deposited him therein. Some time later he investigated the growth of his farm.

The wonders of nature had taken place. He beheld a young and active chicken snake-worm and in the mouth of the chicken-snake worm was a chicken of eating size dimensions.

HERBERT, WE BELIEVE THAT YOU HAVE ABOUT QUALIFIED FOR PRESIDENT OF THE GRAND AND EXALTED ORDER OF THE WORLD'S MOST ACCOMPLISHED LIARS—

MY! MY! MY! HOW THIS LIARS CLUB IS GROWING!

The City Commission and City Secretary W. G. Street applied for membership in a body. That adds to the roster, in addition to W. G. the following well known citizens of our grand and glorious town: L. R. Crockett, Pat Boone and Carl Arnold.

PAT BOONE STARTS RIGHT IN TO QUALIFY FOR MEMBERSHIP

He tells a story something or other about a snake that bit a wagon tongue in half.

MAYOR CROCKETT CONTRIBUTES TO THIS "COLY-UM". THIS WAS HIS OFFERING IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING HIS ELECTION TO MEMBERSHIP IN THE GRAND AND EXALTED ORDER OF THE WORLD'S MOST ACCOMPLISHED LIARS—

An editor was very ill. The doctor was at his bedside. The doctor turned to his wife and reported that the said husband and editor had poor circulation.

The editor snapped out of his stupor in a rush and roared: "You're a d--- liar; I've got

DISTRICT GOVERNOR TO VISIT LOCAL ROTARIAN CLUB

It is expected that the new District Governor of Rotary, Tom Taylor of Brownwood will visit the local Rotarian Club at their regular luncheon meeting, Thursday, October 4. Mr. Taylor is President of Howard College, Brownwood.

MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE DISCUSSED

Several matters of importance were discussed at the regular luncheon meeting of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, Tuesday noon, when A. R. Hendricks, President, presided.

Progress on the East and west road was also brought up at the meeting, and it was explained by Joe Hale Secretary-Manager of the booster group that a road committee composed of Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, Ellis Fouse and J. S. Hilliard had gone to Portales Tuesday to take up with the Portales Luncheon Club the matter of this road, for the purpose of determining at which point the New Mexico Highway will meet the east and west road in question.

It was explained that the North and South road had already been designated by blue print, and that the Road Committee expected to go to Lubbock this week for the purpose of securing this drawing, after which they will work on the obtaining of the right of way. This road was originally No. 137, the Levelland road, and intersects with highway No. 7 at the Magnolia Filling Station, and crosses the railroad running north.

It was also announced that at the meeting that F. A. Loyd of Amherst had been appointed County Relief Administrator, and that the method of relief operations was somewhat changed; that hereafter relief matters would be supervised by the State Board of Control, and budgeted, which will make it work relief; instead of direct relief.

Durwood Henderson Receives Deep Cut Injury To Leg

Durwood Henderson, while employed for a wool-working concern here, was unfortunate enough Tuesday noon, to badly cut his leg just above the knee with an electric saw, with which he was working.

The accident was reported as horrible as the cut was so deep and required eight stitches underneath and the same number on the top to close the wound. Dr. Thos. B. Duke, who treated the patient, gave him a serum for bloodpoisoning and lockjaw. He will be confined to his bed for several days.

the biggest circulation in Lamb county."

NOW CARL, THE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CITY COMMISSION HAVE MADE. THEIR CONTRIBUTION; WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

Folks, you can expect to hear from Carl; in fact, when the city commission became members of the GRAND AND EXALTED ORDER OF THE WORLD'S MOST ACCOMPLISHED LIARS, Carl assured everybody that he was entirely eligible for membership and that they could expect to hear from him.
