Children Join Hopalong Cassidy Savings Club

The Security State Bank, the youngest in the city, welcomes their young depositors Saturday morning, when a number of little savers became little savers.

Fun was had by all in receiving their Hopalong Cassidy Savings Club coin banks, deposit books, rating badges, and riding the mechanical horse.

This program is primarily for ambitious children, however, there is no age limit—both young and old can become a member of the Bar-20. The enthusiasm shown by the parents and children is certainly appreciated by the Security State Bank, and has proved the need for a savings plan for the younger set.

Hopalong Cassidy Savings Club gives the children something to strive toward and teaches that saving is a habit. The important point to saving is to make it consistent whether the amount be large or small just so you save some each week. . . . So youngsters make the Corral at the Security State Bank your meeting place every week. This is now your bank—come in and see us anytime. Bob Manley, cashier, welcomes all the children and parents, and he says it was quite a struggle to try to keep them in line at the mechanical horse. . . . Yes, even Joe Hutchinson, superintendent of schools, eventually got his ride. The accounts were received by Miss Patay Young, Mrs. Nina Talburt and Verna Carter, who were dressed in western attire to fit the occasion.

Use A Comfortable Stance

By PATTY BERG
AP Newsfeatures

The stance plays an important part in establishing a good swing. Proper strokes are possible only when a solid and comfortable stance is used.

In taking your golfing position remember three things: ease, comfort and relaxation. The posture must be so that you can start your swing smoothly without the tension of strained muscles.

It is better to be yourself rather than try to imitate some one else. Following rules are used by all players: stand fairly erect, feet normally and heels close together so that the arms hang comfortably from the shoulders and flex your knees so as to maintain a feeling of ease. These fundamentals are the basis for the stance.

If you place your feet too far apart, you will restrict your swing. The amount of distance between the feet should be approximately the same as the width of your shoulders.

The location of the ball is also important. Your swing can be simplified by placing the ball forward and opposite the left instep and being far enough behind it so that you can hit the ball without an additional shift to the right. However, avoid reaching for the ball for this pulls the arms away from the body and flattens out your arc.

Women usually stand farther from the ball than men to gain more power in their stroke and lessen the interference with their arms. Women should swing the club instead of hitting.

Popular terminology classifies the stance into three types—square, closed and open.

The Square Stance

In the square stance the feet are placed parallel with the line of flight, which is designated by the club on the ground. The toes are turned slightly outward with the left toe turned more than the right. The square stance is preferred for wood and long irons (Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4). The ball should be opposite a point just inside the left heel for the No. 3 and a little off center for No. 4.

The right foot is drawn back in the closed stance which is used for wood shots. This stance permits easier pivoting in the back stroke and some professionals maintain more power is had through this stance.

If you're slicing your wood shots, the chances are you've been using the open stance Patty Berg uses in the top photo. This is a good stance for iron play on short distances. The square stance, lower right, is preferred for wood and long iron shots. The closed stance, lower left, permits easier pivoting, provides power.

News of Women

Donna Kimbrough And Ed Nickels Married Recently

In a beautiful candlelight service at the Main Street Baptist church, Muleshoe, on June 14, at 7:30 p.m., Miss Donna Kimbrough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Finis Kimbrough of Muleshoe was married to Ed Nickels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Nickels.

Rev. M. E. Robinson read the double ring ceremony under an arch of greenery and bridal satin. Tall candelabra and fern trees flanked the altar with baskets of pink gladioli completing the scene.

Miss Greta Paul at the piano accompanied Mrs. Loyd Roberts as she sang "Because" and "Always."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown of white metallic nylon and tulle, fashioned with a full skirt. The fitted bodice and slender waist was emphasized by a deep point in the center with a tiny covered button trim to waist. The long fitted sleeves ending in points over the hands were also trimmed with covered buttons. Her fingertip veil was attached to a lace calet with seed pearls and rhinestone trim. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of white roses surrounded with white stephanotis on a white ribbon.

Attending the bride as maid-of-honor was her sister, Wanda Kimbrough. Her gown was of orchid metallic nylon and tulle fashioned similar to the bride's. She carried a bouquet of pink gladioli. The bridesmaids, Bettye Gaede of Limon, Colo., and Mrs. Charles King were identical ballerina length dresses of ice blue taffeta with corsages of pink gladioli.

J. A. Nickels served as his brother's best man and Lee Kimbrough and Charles King were ushers.

Little Miss Donna Jo Gaston, niece of the groom, was ring bearer. Her dress and bonnet was of yellow organdy ruffles with ribbon trim.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Kimbrough wore a teal blue dress with black and white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. Mrs. Nickels, mother of the groom, wore a navy suit of silk shantung with white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

from the line of flight, you have the open stance. Supple players employ this method for the short irons, short pitch shots and chip shots to the green. It is also effective to produce a slice.

In addressing the ball for the drive, stand erect with a slight bend of the back and allow the arms to hang freely from the shoulders. For shifting of the body weight, bend the knees slightly. Of course, individual differences can and should be employed. It is wise to develop a standardization in stance for every shot you make, this gives you a feeling of security.

Maintain a Balance

It is important to maintain a balance between the upper and lower parts of the body. Good footwork is essential in your golf swing. Restricting body action and faulty footwork results in a poorly hit ball.

A stance effective for a No. 5 iron shot is slightly opened. Standing almost erect with the left foot drawn back a little from the line of flight gives you good balance.

By giving careful attention to the bottom of your club head, you can determine correct stance. The bottom of your club head should rest squarely on the turf. If the end of the head turns up you are standing too far away or stooping too much.

In making the swing use your waist and back muscles, for the swing originates in the center of the body at the base of the spine.

Judging your distance from the ball is something you must practice before it becomes an automatic action. However, the problem of your aim can be solved by keeping the ball on an imaginary line between the objective and yourself.

The necessity of professional aid in learning the stance has not been stressed in this article although it is advised. The main idea is to assume the position most comfortable to you and one that affords you the best results. Do not copy someone else, for in all probability the same results will not be achieved.

Comes From Within

The stance is something which must come from within yourself. It is a feeling of comfort and ease which only you can determine. These factors, however, do not eliminate the aid of a professional for in learning all operations of the game of golf it is wise to seek professional help.

You may not be able to detect the reason why you have not acquired a comfortable stance and this is where the professional can do you the most good.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Nickels with the bride's attendants serving. The table was decorated with pink carnations, gladioli, and tulle. A crystal punch service and the beautiful double wedding cake completed the decorations.

For the wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., the bride chose an ice blue suit of imported cotton with navy and white accessories. Her corsage was of roses.

The bride and groom are both graduates of Muleshoe High school and attended Texas Tech at Lubbock this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Nickels will reside in Muleshoe where he is associated with his father in the ginning business.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Frances Gaede, Charles and Bettye of Limon, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sybert and Anne of Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Horstey and Ronny of Lubbock, Miss Claudene Goen, Floydada, Miss Nellavene Vaughn, Lubbock, Mrs. T. Warm weather is outdoor-living time, and a period when the homeowner can spend profitable time looking over the tree-and-shrub situation on his property with an idea of making changes or additions when planting time comes in the fall.

A property without trees is apt to be a pretty naked looking home place. Trees, properly placed and properly cared for, actually add to the dollar value of land. New-home builders should look carefully at existing trees on property with the idea of using them, if possible, to provide shade and charm to the house that will come later.

Whether the tree is already there and the house is to come later, or the house is there and you are contemplating putting in a shade tree, first get a good idea of how the shadows will fall. For most of us, shade in an outdoor living area is most useful in the afternoon and evening.

Trees Have Many Uses

Trees may also be used as back-grounds for smaller plants; for a screen from the neighbors when planted close together as a hedge, or in variety so that a number of trees and shrubs combine to cut off the view; to soften harsh architectural lines; to create an effect of height; to decrease height if desired; to provide a windbreak; to give color and beauty; and actually reduce temperatures and noise.

It would be impossible to cover the subject fully in a short article. The home-owner, after he has decided that some tree or shrub planting is necessary, should seek guidance from his garden library or his nurseryman.

Whether he is doing the job himself or contracting for the work, he wants strong, healthy plants to set in the ground. If trees and shrubs are planted in the fall, the roots will have a chance to get established before cold weather comes and have a competitive advantage the following spring.

Footnote for Gardeners

In an earlier column, moles were grossly labeled as feasters on bulbs. Moles tunnel below the soil line but their diet consists of insects and grubs. The tunnels, however, are used by mice, who find bulbs delightful eating. So, if you find mole runs, take such measures as destroying the moles by gas, traps or other methods and protecting the bulbs by planting them in wire baskets.

Bible Words to Live by

PHILIPPIANS 4:13 - "I can do all things in Him who strengthens me."

This verse helps to explain one of the most amazing personalities of all time. Paul achieved what amounts to fantastic results, considered in the light of circumstance. He carried the Christian religion to the Greco-Roman world, in intelligible terms, making it dynamic by His own compelling sense of mission.

This confidence of Paul provides the key to spiritual dynamic. Self-confidence is a necessity for venture. One who believes that strength beyond ones own supply is available, will venture further and give freely of his own resources. Quite often this is sufficient, for rarely do any of us completely exhaust our own strength. Life is so fashioned that spiritual strength is renewed and extended by vigorous exercise even as physical strength. This is God's plan - but beyond this is the confident faith that it is through "Him who strengthens me" that I find my resource for renewed courage and spiritual fortitude.

Rushing To 20 Game Win Mark

By JERRY LISKA
AP Newsfeatures

CHICAGO—Big Rob Rush, fireballing Chicago Cub right-hander, is showing up for the curves and thus is well on the road to his first victorious campaign in five seasons. The 6-foot, 5-inch, 26-year-old Rush has dripped with potentiality ever since he came up to the Cubs from Nashville in 1948. But National League batters took a toe-hold on Bob's blazing fast ball with the result he had a 5-11 record his freshman year; had 10-18 in 1949; 13-20 in 1950; and 11-12 last year.

Manager Phil Cavaretta and Coach Charley Root this spring convinced Rush that a change of delivery would make his fast ball more effective. Now his sweeping curve, mixed with his low, hard one, is paying dividends. On June 4, Rush notched his seventh straight complete victory and his eighth win of the season against two losses. He had three straight shutouts on Memorial Day when he beat Cincinnati, 11-0. In his first 11 games, one of which was a losing relief effort, Rush had allowed only 16 earned runs and 63 hits in 85-1/3 innings. In his first eight complete wins he had allowed only 11 hits and seven earned runs. "He's got everything a great pitcher needs," extolls Root, a Cub pitching immortal himself. "And he's using it."

There was a time the 205-pound Rush got tangled in his feet chasing bunts. Last spring, Rush worked hour after hour fielding from the mound. He knows his way around now when handling infield taps. "Bob has the confidence an outstanding pitcher needs," comments Cavaretta. "He goes out there and shows it. Confidence—you can't beat it." Umpire Lon Warneke, the one-time Arkansas Hummingbird, is properly awed by Rush's steam. "He's always had a fast ball," says Warneke, "but it seems to mean more now." Outfielder Bob Borkowski of the Reds describes Rush's fast ball as the "quickest I've ever seen." Bob seems a cinch to top his 12 complete games pitched in 1951 when his 129 strikeouts rated fifth in the league. He may even top the 19 complete games he fashioned in 33 starts in 1950. But the important thing to Bob, of course, is to produce a winning season. He can't miss if he keeps up his brilliant current pace. He almost seems destined to become the first Cub 20 game winner since Hank Wyse chalked up 22 in 1945.

WOMEN MIGRATING TO ENGLAND
AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Young New Zealand women are embarking on an unprecedented migration to Britain. Shipping officials say girls in their 20s and early 30s are forming the largest group of passengers in outgoing liners. Many of the cheaper cabins are shared by groups of young women bound for working holidays in Britain. For the most part they are working girls of good education who have saved for years for this opportunity of seeing something of the world.

Local Lions Club Represented At International Convention

Littlefield is well represented at the International Lions convention which is now in progress at Mexico City. Making the journey to the capital city of our closest Latin-American neighbor for the international festivities are Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Ater, owners of the Ben Franklin store and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Roberts, distributors for Freshie bread.

The Littlefield delegation in company with 46 other delegates from Amarillo and adjoining towns in this section began the first leg of their journey at Lubbock. The bus load of Lions and their wives departed at 10:30 a.m., Wednesday, June 18 for a trip to Mexico's capital which sounds more like a "progressive party."

At every town the bus was met by representatives of the local Lions organization who wished them a pleasant trip and grand convention, and did everything possible to give them a good send-off. Sometimes it was lunch, sometimes a box of cookies they were offering. The itinerary of this group of Lions scheduled a stop-over for the first night in San Antonio, the second night in Monterrey before proceeding to Mexico City on the third day.

While attending the convention, the Lions from Littlefield are staying at Cuernavaca a city 40 miles from the capital. They have accommodations in the same hotel in which Herb Peatree, a fellow Texan and ex-international vice-president, is staying. The local Lions and their wives are expected to return to Littlefield about the first or second of July.

Hollywood Comes To McMurry

Hollywood has come to McMurry College!

At least with all the preparations for filming "Medea" by the McMurry Film Society, it's beginning to look that way.

The filming of "Medea" by McMurry is apparently setting some sort of precedent, explains Bill Adams, director. From all available information it will be the second full-length feature and the first Greek tragedy in full color ever filmed by a non-professional group in the United States.

Both the cast and the technical assistants for the movie will be taken from a course which is to be offered this summer. "Advanced Production," open to anyone and giving three hours college credit. The class will meet five nights a week from 7 to 10 p.m. Enrollment is limited to 50 with registration set June 9.

A 16 mm. American motion picture camera, the standard gauge used by non-professional groups, has been purchased and will be used to film the movie.

The McMurry gymnasium is being used as a sound stage with most of the filming scheduled there. The camera is equipped with its own power system so that exterior shots will not be dependent on electrical outlets. A great deal of the set has already been completed and Adams says that filming should start several days after the class begins.

Long-range plans for the newly purchased film equipment include trying some films for educational TV programs.

Jim T. Douglass made a business trip to Dallas Saturday, returning to Littlefield Sunday night.

Richard M. Tierce Serves Aboard Battleship IOWA

Among the 2200 crewmen serving aboard the battleship USS Iowa in Korean waters, is Richard W. Tierce, season apprentice, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry King of 517 West Fifth, Littlefield.

Since leaving "mothballs" to relieve her sister battleship, the USS Wisconsin, the Iowa has continued to bombard the Communists in round-the-clock support of United Nations ground troops.

During her first month of combat, the 45,000-ton Iowa hurled 16 inch projectiles, and over 3,000 rounds of 5 inch shells on Red installations along the East coast of North Korea.

Fast Growing Vegetables Needed for Fall Harvest

When sowing in midsummer vegetables for fall and winter harvest—the best of the year—it is important to select varieties which will mature in time to escape being frozen.

Quickest maturing vegetable is the early radish which matures in 20 days; and slowest are winter onions which require 115 days. Between these extremes are varieties which may take 40, 60 or 80 days to reach the size and quality which best fits them for table use.

Seed catalogues usually give the maturity date for each variety listed. From your local weather bureau you can ascertain the average date of the first killing frost in your vicinity. Compare these two, and you can easily avoid crops which have no chance to develop fully before winter.

There are two salad crops which are at their best in the fall—endive and Chinese cabbage. Chinese cabbage which matures in 90 days is difficult to grow in the summer, because it runs to seed, but in the short days of autumn, it makes beautiful, elongated heads of crisp leaves having a suggestion of cabbage flavor which are delicious cooked or raw.

Vegetable crops which should not be sown in June include peas, early radishes, lettuce and spinach. All these require cool weather, and you may sow very early kinds in August, so they will mature in the autumn.

Quick maturing crops include snap beans, beets, carrots, endive, lettuce, kohlrabi, turnips, spinach, peas and radishes. The later you sow, the "earlier" should be the variety you sow.

Several vegetables can be left in the garden late into the winter, or all winter long, and harvested as needed, to be thawed out and served.

Kale will provide the table with greens all winter long. Brussels sprouts stands freezing and thawing in the early winter, and frequently remains in good condition until Christmas. Parsnips which freezing makes sweeter, and salty, the vegetable oyster, can be dug up all winter, or dug in the fall, placed in paper bags, one serving to the bag, and stored in a box outdoors where they will freeze. A bag can be taken to the kitchen and thawed out when wanted.

Slow growing vegetables, which need only to be sown once in order to give an all season harvest, enjoy the cool days and more plentiful rainfall of autumn as much as the early types.

Swiss chard should be kept young by cutting off all leaves more than 10 inches long, and encouraging new growth, which will be more tender. New Zealand spinach can be harvested until freezing weather. Peppers and egg plant produce abundantly in the fall, and the late maturing tomatoes and sweet corn combine top quality with the heaviest yield of the season.

Truly, the autumn harvest is the finest of the year!

Sow Pansies and Violas For Next Spring's Bloom

Pansies and violas are both perennials, with a common ancestry. Violas, which are usually of solid coloring, are longer lived than the pansies, which have "faces." Both are grown most easily from seed sown in late summer, and carried over the winter to bloom in early spring.

The plants will hold their green leaves all winter and bloom in a cold frame as soon as the earliest spring flowers are out. If grown in the shade, with faded flowers removed promptly, they will bloom all summer. But pansies seldom live a second winter and the violas are not much longer lived.

It is easy, however, to start a flat or two of these lovely flowers each year. Sow the seed by August 15 in soil prepared by mixing a third sharp sand, a third peat moss, and a third sifted top soil. Cover the surface with a half-inch layer of sphagnum moss, and broadcast the seed in this, with a little moss to cover them. Keep moist until the seeds germinate.

Three Sitting On Porch Escape Injury As Lightning Shatters Tree Friday

Lightning struck a small tree in the yard of the J. E. Chisholm, Sr. home on South Phelps avenue, last Friday afternoon, and their daughter, Louise, had an almost miraculous escape from being struck by the lightning bolt.

She was sitting on a porch chair, on the porch at the Chisholm home, only about ten feet from the small tree which was struck. With her were two house guests, one of them an infant.

All were more or less severely shocked and scared, but fortunately unharmed.

The small tree in the yard, was literally torn from the ground, and smashed into splinters. Upon examination however, not a single trace of burn, could be found on the broken tree—the bolt having been instantly conveyed into the ground.

During the past several days, this section has been visited by two or three intense thunder and lightning displays and visitations. Fortunately, no serious property damage or loss of life has occurred here. A storm a few weeks ago, did cost a life when a woman was struck north of Sudan.
