TRADE PROGRAM IS BEING FORMED FOR NEXT MONTH

Money Prizes To Be Given In Littlefield On Oct. 5 And 7

Great enthusiasm is manifest by the Littlefield business men over the proposed celebration of the opening of Highway 7, which has been under construction for the past several months, and the trade expansion program being sponsored by the group.

The celebration is scheduled to take place Saturday, October 5, when a goodly sum of money will be given away, in three different denominations, and when all merchants will offer unusual values—goods at prices that will compete with any city on the South Plains.

It is also the plan to carry the celebration into Monday, October 7 with all the business establishments cooperating and offering very special prices for the occasion. It is expected that the organization will conduct such trades days every first Monday at least until January 1st.

The cash to be given away will be contributed to by the merchants and professional men of the city, and it is expected that all will cooperate in this way. A portion of the cash so contributed will be given away each Saturday following the celebration, and the balance put into a sinking fund, and given away Trades Day, which will be first Monday of each month.

The merchants of the city are making big preparations to make this celebration the most outstanding in the history of Littlefield. Large stocks of goods are being purchased, which will be specially marked for the occasion.

C. OF C. MEETING WELL ATTENDED TUESDAY NOON

Much Enthusiasm Over Trades Day Program Being Worked Out

Plans for the great celebration which will be held here Saturday and Monday, October 5 and 7, on the opening of highway 7 and a trade expansion program, which are being sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce, were discussed fully at the luncheon meeting Tuesday, which was presided over by W. D. T. Storey, Vice-President.

G. M. Shaw, who has been working hard on the organization of such a program, outlined plans for the celebration and subsequent Monday trade days, pointing out that all merchants and professional men of the city had agreed to cooperate and contribute towards a fund, a portion of which would be given away Saturday, and the balance put in a sinking fund to be given away on Trades Day. He also pointed out that this plan was to thereafter have a likewise celebration every first Monday, and to extend the Littlefield trade territory by cooperation of the merchants in the offering of values, which would compete with cities much larger than Littlefield.

L. B. Stone of Stone's Variety store also discussed plans for a trades day in Littlefield each first Monday, outlining the program carried out in Portales, N. M., and stating with the cooperation of all business establishments and the giving of special offers in merchandise, together with the cash to be given away, that he believed "we can make a big success out of Dollar Day."

THE FLORIDA SHIP CANAL

On the same day that the news came from Miami that the Steamship Dixie had been driven upon a coral reef off the Southern Coast of Florida by a Caribbean hurricane, word came from Washington of the allotment by the President of $5,000,000, from his Works Relief Fund, to begin construction of a sea-level ship canal across the Florida Peninsula. Had such a canal been in existence, the "Dixie" would not have been compelled to make the treacherous passage through the Florida Straits in the hurricane season, on its voyage from New Orleans to New York. It would have taken the shorter cut directly from Port Inglis on the Gulf of Mexico across to the St. Johns River and Jacksonville and the Atlantic. It would have saved perhaps two days in time, besides taking a safer course.

The fact that all of the passengers and crew of the "Dixie" were rescued, comparatively uninjured, does not alter the force of the example. The "Dixie" is only one out of scores of vessels that have come to grief in the troubled waters between Florida and Cuba, and it is only one of thousands of ships, plying between ports on the Gulf of Mexico and those of the Atlantic Coast, to which the new Florida Canal will offer an immense saving in time and cruising coast when it is completed. The tropical hurricanes which sweep the Caribbean and sometimes brush the Southern tip of Florida have little or no effect, either upon land or water, as far north as the locations of the canal.

Few who have not given study to the subject realize the immense volume and importance of the sea-borne traffic between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Coast. From Vera Cruz and Tampico in Mexico, from the Texas ports of Galveston, Houston and Port Arthur, from New Orleans and Mobile, Pensacola and Tampa, a tremendous stream of commerce is constantly flowing to Savannah and Charleston, Norfolk and Baltimore, New York and Boston, and to Europe, a stream which flows steadily in both directions. Every one of those ships today must pass between Key West and Havana. Every one of them in the future will save hundreds of miles of steaming, cutting down both time and fuel consumption, by the new short-cut from the Gulf to ocean.

To thousands of small craft the new canal will offer the safe and necessary connecting link between the inland water-ways along the Atlantic Coast and those which follow the Gulf Coast. And to the Navy of the United States the Florida Canal might easily prove almost as valuable in case of war as the Panama Canal.

Add to those considerations the important fact that the Florida Ship Canal will immediately provide employment for thousands, both in construction and in producing equipment and materials, and will, eventually through the expenditure of the estimated cost of $100,000,000, put many thousands more to work. It seems to us to be one of the most justifiable of all the undertakings of the Federal Government. Moreover, it will definitely be self-liquidating, as is the Panama Canal, through the tolls it will be paid by water-craft of all kinds for the privilege of passing through it.

To Florida, of course, the new canal means more than to the rest of the country. New towns will spring up along its route and new business opportunities will thus be opened. Beyond a doubt, the completion of this canal will make Jacksonville one of the most important seaports on the East Coast. But entirely apart from its local value, we see a greater value as a national asset of very high importance indeed.

JESS MITCHELL CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR

Issues Statement Giving Platform On Which He Seeks Office

Jess Mitchell, editor at Muleshoe, in Bailey county, announces his candidacy as State Senator for this 30th Senatorial district, to succeed the late Hon. Arthur P. Duggan, whose recent death left that office to be filled by an election called by Gov. Allred for September 28.

Mr. Mitchell, in making his announcement, says he is entirely mindful of the opportunity for service and of the grave responsibility this office entails. He considers holding of public office a sacred trust.

"I verily believe," he said, "that aside from the duties of the Church, there is nothing more serious and more sacred than duties of State."

"I make no pretensions whatever at being a skilled politician; have never held public office and am not interested in politics par se; but I am tremendously interested in the welfare of this great area of West Texas. I have, in years past, as a public spirited citizen been able to accomplish many favorable things for this section, and confidently believe that as an official I can accomplish even more and greater results."

"I am 55 years of age, virtually in the prime of business life, strong physically, alert mentally and sound morally. I am a college and university graduate. While I am now and have been for several years past a newspaper editor, I am also a farmer, owning three farms embracing several hundred acres, one of them being an irrigated farm near Muleshoe on which myself and family reside. I was born on a farm, have been an actual dirt farmer and am well acquainted with farmer's problems."

"I was a soldier in the Spanish-American war, served in the secret service department during the World War, and was at one time United States Commissioner at Columbus, N. M., under appointment of President Woodrow Wilson."

"The citizens of this state have spoken in large majority favoring old age pensions, repeal in some sections and abolition of the officer fee system. As your senator, it would be my privilege and pleasure to do all within my power to enforce these mandates by passing such laws as would grant to the needy aged this financial income and to arrange for its payment; to pass such laws as would regulate the sale of liquor to the best advantage of the State, as well as for the protection of those counties not favoring it, and to use my strongest influence toward enforcing the Fee amendment as authorized by the citizenry."

"I shall be glad to discuss in public or private other phases of governmental matters with citizens, many of which will be taken up in public speaking."

"My one desire is to give consistent, conscientious and constructive service to the State in general and especially to this district in West Texas, looking forward eventually to making this area the best part of this great Lone Star Empire. My great wish is to keep step with the citizens of this district, to work in unison with them and to eventually participate with them in the blessings which will come to all of us because we have fought a good fight—we have kept the faith."

"There are innumerable benefits to which this area is entitled, ought to have and could have with proper representation at Austin. Strong con-

I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

Erosion Battle Rages Along 3 Plains Fronts

Amarillo.—The battle to save Panhandle-Plains soil from the ravages of wind and water erosion is being waged on three broad fronts.

Eight 25,000-acre demonstration projects, the first of which was located in Dallam county, will seek to determine the best methods of combating erosion. Four of the remaining projects will be in the Panhandle—in Deaf Smith, Oldham, Sherman, and Ochiltree counties.

The Civilian Conservation corps, with the cooperation of farmers, is at work on another front. Farm lands within a radius of 25 miles of CCC camps in Dawson, Hall, Lamb, and Ochiltree counties will be eligible for work by CCC workers. A CCC camp in Potter county is at work on an experiment designed to prevent erosion to pasture lands.

The third front was created by the wind erosion law, written by Senator Clint Small and passed by the legislature this year. Under the bill certain Panhandle counties may form conservation districts. As political subdivisions the districts will be eligible to sponsor WPA projects, to make assessments for soil work and to receive any state and federal funds available for soil programs.

A BECOMING FROCK

PATTERN 8616—A soft interesting, casual little dress comes in handy on so many occasions that one can never be without one to put one when anything too definite in type would not be right to wear.

This frock is one which looks right most anywhere, most any time, and can be easily made at home with a minimum amount of time and labor. The touch of bright contrast in collar and sleevebands is effective and practical when made in taffeta as suggested in the sketch.

A clever feature of the frock is the slash below the collar thru which the tie ends are drawn. A light weight woolen with taffeta trim would be nice for cool days now and early fall wear.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH

Jno. W. Hendrix, Pastor

Yes, attendance is a lot better since fall has come on; but even now a lot of people do not attend to any extent. My dear reader, are you one of these self-unchurched group? You may not even be of the above variety of churchman; even if you went to church, you might not come to our place of worship. However, that amounts to very little. You are out from under the power of the gospel yourself; but you are voting against church every Sunday. Your failure to attend, your circulating about on the Sabbath tends to slow up church attendance. Have you any reason for not being present which you think will hold water in the day of judgment? Church school opens at 9:45 a. m.

Public worship 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

Young People, 7:15 p. m.

At the morning hour the large choir will sing and the pastor will deliver a sermon, using as his subject, "The Long and Short of It." You might enjoy this service. You will enjoy the music and you might profit by the sermon. Then you would have the opportunity to meet a large friendly group.

At the evening hour the choral club will bring a good program of music and one of their number, Miss Maxine Cash, teacher in the public schools, in Speech Arts, will render a musical reading, entitled, "The Ninety and Nine." The pastor will use the same as theme of the sermon. In the choir will be a large group of our best young people. Each Thursday they meet, rehearse their musical program for the next Sunday evening and have at the end a party. If you are young and unattached, and not a member of some other choir, you might enjoy this group. Look into it.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

E. Fifth and S. Herral Eugene Wood, Pastor

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland produces evidence and asks the permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit. Judge McQuire overrules the heated objection of Mr. Willard, and orders the case brought in. Rowland's lawyer goes to get the witness but she is dead—chloroformed. She is Mrs. Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man. Judge Dawson phoned the police. Detective Tommy Rankin is assigned to the case. He is now questioning all of the parties involved in the case. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Rankin's voice showed his disappointment. "The door isn't latched," he announced. "I was afraid of that. Somebody in these offices has fastened the catch, which means that the whole world could have entered from the outside."

It was coincident with this startling discovery of the unlatched door that the telephone operator appeared at the door from the library to announce Dr. Sackett. The black-garbed coroner's physician entered behind her. He was followed by a photographer from Headquarters, and then by Johnson, the fingerprint expert. As soon as introductions had been made, Dr. Sackett, assisted by Dr. Clark, began his examination of the body. While Johnson was producing an insufflator and a magnifying glass from his kit for the detection of prints, Rankin cautioned him: "Pay particular attention to the knobs of both doors and to the windows."

The expert acquiesced with a grunt. "While they're busy in here, we'd best continue the investigation in the library," Rankin suggested. "It's too crowded."

Accompanied by the two men, he carried Mrs. Keith's pocketbook with him into the next room. It had been on the desk before her, a fine petit-point bag.

In the library, Rankin went to the door into the main office, and beckoned Jenks.

"Here is your first job, Jenks," he said. "I want you to quiz the entire force in there and learn what you can of their actions. I'm especially interested in finding out who came in here today—anyone at all, whether employees or clients—and when they did so."

Mr. Dawson shook his head. "If it's your object to learn who opened that door to fifteen-o-five," he observed, "I fear that won't help overlook," he said; "the chance that some employee in those offices observed some suspicious acts over here. See to it the people on this side of the building are questioned early in the morning."

As soon as Jenks departed to carry out his orders, he opened Mrs. Keith's pocketbook Mr. Dawson and the court clerk watched him as he placed on the library table a gold vanity case with the chased initials B. W. K., lipstick, a key ring of five keys, a handkerchief and a nail file. Another compartment held tickets to a charity ball and a Keith. You stated at the hearing, I believe, that she is connected with a leading family in the city?"

"So she is, Mr. Rankin," Mr. Trumbull returned. "Mrs. Barbara Keith is the wife of Mortimer Keith and lives in Chestnut Hill at the Aldwych Apartments."

Obviously impressed, the detective raised his eyebrows and vented a low whistle.

"Mortimer Keith," he repeated.

For Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafa, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

"How long before the meeting began today did you arrive with Mrs. Keith?"

checkbook which Rankin put aside for future scrutiny. Beneath what appeared another handkerchief, he found a small bottle of clear, colorless liquid.

Even before he uncorked it, a reeking pungent odor revealed its contents to be chloroform. The cloth was actually a thick cotton pad, still damp from its saturation with the drug. The bottle, large enough for 4 ounces, was half empty. It lacked a label and the distinguishing marks of any druggist.

Mr. Simpkins made the first surprised comment.

"Why, that must be the... stuff the criminal smothered her with, Mr. Rankin!" he exclaimed excitedly. "Why do you suppose he hid it in her purse? Surely that's a dangerous thing to do."

The detective shrugged. "Why not? He couldn't carry it around and this is as safe a way to get rid of it as any."

Pocketing the checkbook, he returned the other articles casually to the handbag and addressed Mr. Dawson.

"I think I'm ready now to inquire what the others, besides your force, can tell me of the tragedy," he announced. "I'll question your partners first."

"Neither of them is here, Mr. Rankin," the lawyer informed him. "Mr. Locke is in New York on an important case—gone since Monday. Mr. MacQuire is playing in a golf tournament this afternoon."

"Then I'll question the immediate parties to the hearing, and their lawyers. One at a time; if you'll be good enough to have Mr. Trumbull come in, I'll start with him."

When summoned, Allen Rowland's attorney entered the library from Mr. Dawson's office. Although still under thirty-five, he looked at least five years older.

After Mr. Dawson introduced him, the detective began without further preliminaries.

"Perhaps I can best make progress with this case, Mr. Trumbull"—he motioned him to a chair—"by clearing up what happened here this afternoon before the meeting. But first I need information about Mrs.

Beneath what appeared to be another handkerchief, he found a small bottle.

you much. You really have no idea when it was unlocked; it might have been done some other day, by any of a dozen callers, who recently used the library."

"Except, Mr. Dawson," the detective countered, "that the criminal couldn't have foreseen until today—possibly not until Mrs. Keith arrived—that she would be in there, waiting alone. Do you recall the last time you noticed the latch on?"

"I haven't had occasion to try it for weeks; in fact, I haven't been using the office at all for longer than that. I'm only certain it wasn't opened by my key."

Rankin shrugged and spread his arms in a brief, comprehensive gesture.

He continued his instructions to Jenks. "See if any of the staff remembers finding the door locked more recently than Mr. Dawson does."

"O. K., Tommy, Jenks promised. "Anything else?"

Rankin drew out his watch and nodded toward the library window and the towering structure visible across the street.

"That's another thing we musn't

Pontiac Builders Go Into 29th Year Of Automotive History

Wednesday, Sept. 18, was the twenty eighth anniversary of the founding of the Oakland Motor Car Company, forerunner and parent organization to the Pontiac Motor Company.

The company grew out of the carriage and wagon business and was the result of the vision of Edward M. Murphy, president of the Pontiac Buggy Company who foresaw the dusk of horse-drawn transportation.

To build the first model automobile the company set aside 50,840 square feet of floor space. Today the Pontiac car is built in a modern plant with approximately 4,000,000 square feet of floor space under one roof.

During that first year production averaged around 15 cars per day. This year the output of Pontiac cars ran at a continuous clip of from 800 to 1000 cars daily. In the first full year of operation the company built 278 cars. Already 124,978 current model cars have been built and by the close of 1935, production for the year easily should reach the 150,000 goal.

The Oakland name was dropped in 1931 when the management decided to build cars only under one name, and the company has since been known as the Pontiac Motor Company.

From its inception in 1907, and for several years prior to that date, Pontiac and its predecessor companies have had an employee on their payrolls steadily who has carried on as an active worker. He is Joe Frechette, carriage and wagon blacksmith for the Pontiac Buggy Company; foreman of the blacksmith shop, foreman of the assembly line during the days of the Oakland company and again experimental department blacksmith in the Pontiac engineering department. He has contributed materially to every motor car the company has built.

Guest In Badger Home Leaves For Dallas Wednesday

Mrs. Blalock who has traveled and studied extensively in the north, has a very charming and interesting personality. She spends her summers in Evanston, Ill., where she studies, and attends lectures at the Northwestern University. She said the most interesting lectures she had heard this year were those given by John VanDruten of London, England, who lectured on plays on drama and technique of play writing. Mrs. Blalock says "she has to keep ahead of her children to keep up with them," and gives this as her excuse for her program of study.

Mrs. Blalock said she thought Littlefield and the people just fine, that she had always loved the west, and would be back next year to visit Littlefield.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Badger accompanied by their guest spent Saturday night in Carlsbad, visited the Caverns on Sunday, spent Sunday night visiting friends at Roswell, returning to Littlefield Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Reid left Monday of last week for Brownfield, where Mr. Reid is manager of the new Piggly Wiggly store at that city.

We regret so much our losing Leslie and Nell McCain who have recently moved to Paducah, but we are glad to welcome the three Lancaster children who come in their places. They come to us from Matador.

We are made happy because S. D. Williams is improving since the automobile accident, we sincerely hope he will be able to be with us again soon.

A number of the school children have been absent because of slight colds. We hope they are well soon.

Better Speech clubs have been organized in the grade English classes and we are seeing a gradual improvement in everyday speech. These classes have learned about 75 lines of memory gems; the gems have valuable lessons for life building.

F. M. Hayner Again On Co-op Bank Board

Reappointment of F. M. Hayner, of Las Cruces, New Mexico, as a director of the Central Bank for Cooperatives was announced recently by W. I. Myers, Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. Mr. Hayner has served in this position since the organization of the Central Bank in September 1933. His present term expires September 11 and his reappointment is for three years from that date.
In a recent election by the cooperative associations that are borrowers of the Central Bank, Mr. Hayner received a majority of the votes. Mr. Hayner is a director of the Southwestern Irrigated Cotton Growers Association of El Paso, Texas. He is well known throughout the cotton producing areas and is a prominent leader in the cooperative marketing of cotton.

Divorce Court Murder—

Once more, he could plead an off-hand familiarity with a name involved in the tragedy. Few indeed, in Philadelphia, had not heard of the Keith family, distinguished historically and politically since the American Revolution. Mortimer Keith was the last of his line, molded in the family tradition, austere, upright and reserved. When his ancestors' estate was threatened by depletion, his dominating personality and enterprise rebuilt both. He was well into middle age, Rankin vaguely recalled, when he married a beautiful woman much his junior, about four years earlier.

Whatever the previous importance of the crime, because of the prominence of the divorce action, it paled into insignificance before this new revelation. Murder was always murder; but the identity of the dead witness—no plebeian citizen or mere menial—gave it additional promise of being a genuine cause celebre.

"Yes, that's who she is," the lawyer replied to his query, "Mrs. Mortimer Keith."
"Then her husband will have to be notified of what's happened at once. I'll want to question him about Mrs. Keith as promptly as possible."

He summoned the remaining policeman from the outer room and imparted directions for communication with the manufacturer.
"Now, Mr. Trumbull," Rankin continued, after the officer had gone, "how long before the meeting began today did you arrive with Mrs. Keith?"

Mr. Trumbull shook his head. "I didn't bring her at all, Mr. Rankin; I came here alone and Mr. Rowland accompanied her into town. It was arranged that he go for her to her residence in Chestnut Hill, and join me here. I reached here about twenty-five; they drove in with Mrs. Keith's chauffeur five minutes afterward."

"At half past two, eh? And at what time did you leave her in that office to wait until you were ready for her testimony?"

"About ten minutes later, I should judge," the other replied. "Then Mr. Rowland went down to the street to dismiss the chauffeur, who was parked outside the building. She had ordered him to stay. Rowland suggested we let him go and use my car to get home."

"Are you certain," the detective probed, "he really went downstairs to speak to the chauffeur?"

The lawyer replied vigorously, in tones that brooked no doubt. "Positive, Mr. Rankin; in fact, I walked into the fall with him and saw him take the elevator. He was gone only a few minutes, less than five; I was phoning in the outer office when he returned."

"Then two-forty was the last time either of you saw her alive?" Rankin eyed him searchingly. "You didn't enter fifteen-o-five again, through either this library or the door from the hall, while you were out there?"

"Not until I found her dead," he returned. "We left her completely alone. Mr. Rowland and I went into Mr. Dawson's private office for the next ten minutes, where we could discuss today's... strategy without being disturbed. I can vouch that he never left me the entire time, nor I him. Then Mr. Dawson arrived and we assembled for the hearing."

The detective bent forward, toying with a pencil he took from the table.

"Why was it arranged, Mr. Trumbull, that Mrs. Keith wait apart in there, instead of outside in fifteen-o-seven? Had you some special reason for that?"

"It was done for privacy and to spare her all possible distress," the lawyer explained. "She was doing us a service in offering her evidence, but naturally, in her position, she desired no publicity. She even dressed inconspicuously. In the main office, under the eyes of employees and casual visitors, she would have felt uncomfortable. And she couldn't stay in the library with Mrs. Rowland and Mr. Willard; that would have been even more embarrassing."

"Then they had already arrived before you?"

"Yes, I suppose so since they came earlier than I and waited for Mr. Dawson here. In fact, they were here when Mr. Rowland entered fifteen-o-five with Mrs. Keith; he came out at once and closed his door between the rooms. So they saw us leave her at two-forty."

Rankin nodded. "Had they any idea in advance that it was she who would be Mr. Rowland's leading witness against them? That is, before she arrived today? Was her name mentioned, for instance, in your written defense?"

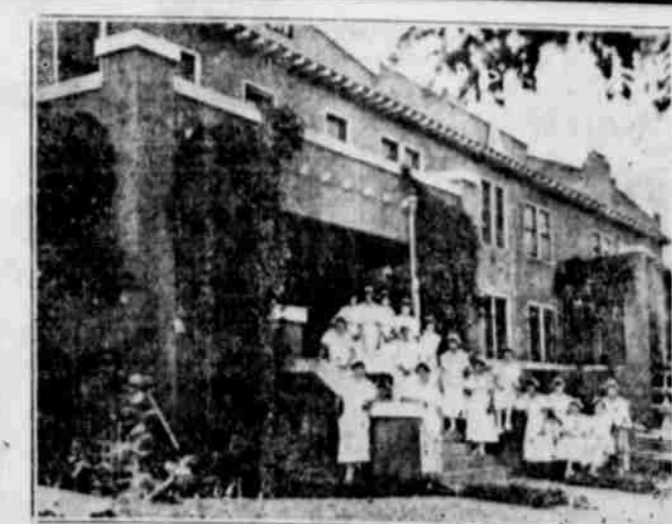

Mr. Trumbull's forehead wrinkled in a frown of uncertainty and reflection.

"No, the answer I filed was purely formal and withheld all the essential details. And considering the nature of Mrs. Keith's evidence, I don't believe his wife was in a position to learn her identity."

GOOD CROP SEEN FOR TERRY COUNTY

The crop outlook in Terry county is good, according to the Terry County Herald, published at Brownfield.

The Herald says: "Take it every way, Terry county has at this time the best average crop it has had in years. While it is too early to predict much about the cotton crop, it can make 35,000 or 40,000 bales, or we can almost have a flicker. That depends to a great extent on the worm or weather damages for the next two or three months. But at the present time, the outlook is for the best cotton crop produced here in history,

A Thing Worth Knowing

Eighty-seven per cent of all our impressions and knowledge are through the eyes. In crippling eyesight we are reminded of the old adage of "cutting off the nose to spite the face," except in this case it may be more popularly put as "putting out the eyes to spite a negligible electric service bill."

With the entering of thousands of children in school just now, it is doubly important that standard Mazda lamps be provided.
