PROTEST WATER PLANS

TEXAS UTILITIES PROTESTS PART OF CITY PROJECT

Claims City Has Contract to Use Electrical Power

Plans for the extension of the Littlefield waterworks system which the City Commission and Secretary have been working on for the past several months have been at least temporarily halted.

Plans for the extension of the Littlefield waterworks system which the City Commission and Secretary have been working on for the past several months have been at least temporarily halted.

As announced by W. G. Street, City Secretary, to the Leader Wednesday, the Commission has received notification from the Federal emergency administration of Public Works Washington, that the Texas Utilities Company has filed a protest against the allowance of funds for the construction of a portion of the city's project, on the grounds that the City has a contract with them to purchase power at a 2-cent rate extending over a period of years.

The letter received by the City Secretary from the Public Works Administration reads as follows:

"We are today in receipt of the following letter from Mr. C. McDonough, Director of Engineering for the Administrator:

"We have received a protest from the Texas Utility Company regarding the installation of the diesel pumping plant by the City of Littlefield. They state that the City has a contract with them to purchase power at a 2-cent rate extending over a period of years. We are not passing upon the validity of such a contract or the right of the city to construct a diesel pumping plant. However, you should advise the City that at the price they are buying power there is no advantage for them in constructing a diesel plant. Kindly

We Do Our Part

PEACE BETWEEN NATIONS

We are indebted to Miss Lora Mae McFarland, Spanish instructor in the Littlefield High School, for our editorial for this week.

Miss McFarland prepared the article for use in the educational section of the Lamb County Leader, which was issued in observance of American Education Week, but the editor found in Miss McFarland's article something more than facts relative to the study of Spanish in our schools. Writing under the caption, "Why Study Spanish?" Miss McFarland brings to the readers of this newspaper a message as to how best to develop and maintain peace between nations.

Here is Miss McFarland's article:
To the teacher of a particular subject there is no doubt as to the question of value of this subject, but to the mass of people it may be quite different.

The first thing we must do is to look at the work objectively. That is one of the hardest things for the human mind to do. There is doubt whether it ever does or not. People can not get away from the subjective phase. They measure the value of knowledge in dollars and cents, or try to. They exhibit a lamentable lack of ability to dissociate personal interest from scientific observation of fact.

We hear much about the crisis in education. Some of us are terribly worried about it. It so happens that our educational crisis is accentuated because it occurs simultaneously with a serious financial crisis. When a man finds his pocket book getting flat he begins to question his expenditures. When things go well with him, he is not so critical about where his money goes. Therefore at the present time educational procedures, is beginning to wonder about what he is getting for his money. There follows a shaking of the accepted, is it solid or is it flimsy stuff?

Naturally these subjects feel it first that are most recently introduced and that haven't the weight of tradition behind them. Languages are therefore placed in the question zone, and Spanish is one of them.

Through the ages every common man has learned the value of knowing the language of his neighbors, but he says that has nothing to do with the U. S. A. To the north they speak our language and to the south they speak Spanish (and often forget Portuguese.)

Surely the southwest cannot forget that its first European civilization and culture was Spanish and contains within itself the tradition and reminiscence of that civilization. Modern America owes its existence to the Spaniards who discovered, conquered and civilized this continent long before any country ventured to follow her example and travel her routes. It was through this impulse that later the English made settlements in the northern areas, and hence planted the seeds of another civilization which has flourished into the great nation that came into existence under the name of the United States.

Spanish ought to be our second language since the number of Spanish speaking people is second to that of English, and because of the part Spain played in our history. We have only to think of the explorers, Columbus, Balboa, Pineda, De Soto, Cabeza de Vaca, Juan de Onate and others.

Those of us in the southwest-Texas can look around and find Spanish living in the architecture, geographical names, music, origins of laws, and old missions and churches constructed by the early explorers. The Spanish gave them language, then religion, then laws and then customs to the Mexicans and many of them here in the Southwest and are our neighbors to the South.

From the beginning of recorded history language has been the strongest national bond, forming the basis for mutual understanding. National prejudices arose as a result of mutual misunderstandings. What the nations need today is to learn their neighbor's language, then so much national prejudices will disappear. We need to become more unselfish and seek the aims and customs of our foreign neighbors, hence an understanding.

The man who speaks one language is like the man who lives in a house with only one window. Through that window he must behold the world. No matter how large the window or how rich the view, it will be restricted to only one. Every language learned will give a new and broader view. Such experiences help an individual to interpret life better, to enjoy it with a fullness that grows in proportion to the extent of the new language.

The United States is called upon to play such an important role in international affairs that we cannot afford to neglect or ignore our neighbors. No nation can live to itself, and least of all ours. Our attitude, our decisions, and our policies, whether we wish it or not will affect the whole world.

The time has come when the Americans can without disloyalty, appreciate and recognize the good in other races. The U. S. must face the responsibilities of a world power and its people must become language minded in order to be better able to understand and sympathize with other nations.

The responsibility for the realization of this ideal, which comes nearer than any other to the teachings of Christ, because it intends to bring about the brotherhood, rests with the learning of modern languages. It is necessary and important that a perfect understanding between men be restored as essential to world peace.

MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT OPENED UNDER LEADERSHIP OF T. P. JOHNSON IN FALL OF 1925

By G. M. Erwin
Instructor of Manual Training

The school board of 1924-25 recognized the value of manual arts in education and through their vision and insight of what a modern school should teach, they introduced the vocational work designated as manual training. We are indebted to such men as: A. P. Duggan, Pat Boone, W. O. Gray, W. G. Street, G. A. Stagers, F. A. Butler, C. W. Toews and also the then secretary and business manager, E. G. Courtney for the establishment of this type of work in the Littlefield high school. Plans were made and equipment was purchased to start the work in the Fall of 1925. Twenty good work benches were bought, a complete set of wood work tools for twenty students, all necessary supplies and equipment for starting work were secured. Standard brands of tools, quality equipment and a generous supply of materials characterized the encouraging start for manual training work.

Under the leadership of Mr. T. P. Johnson the work was started in the Fall of 1925 in room 8 of the high school building, as the temporary head quarters for the manual training shop. Due to the close proximity of class rooms in the high school building, the work quarters made too much noise for the other departments and it was imperative to provide a shop of some kind for the work. The class constructed the present shop building.

The second year of shop work was under the direction of Mr. C. C. Perryman. The work was organized according to the State course of study and affiliation for one year of shop work and one year of mechanical drawing was affiliated with the State department of education. Eighty two students enrolled for shop work and sixty seven students for mechanical drawing.

The third year of manual training 1927-28 under the direction of G. M. Erwin; a graduate of East Texas State Teachers College, who specialized in the study and teaching of manual training, was a very eventful year for the department. We worked hard, following the state course of study and secured affiliation for second year of mechanical drawing and affiliation for second year of shop work. We had lots of hard work planned and for good reasons the size of the classes were reduced. The record shows that sixty-seven students enrolled in shop work and sixty-three in mechanical drawing. All the shop work and drawing work offered is affiliated.

The fourth year of shop work 1928-29 was a banner year for the department. We received a car load of good lumber and the interest in the shop work increased; eighty six students enrolled in shop work and eighty three enrolled in mechanical drawing classes.

We gave a prize to the best piece of work made in first year shop work and a prize for the best piece of work made in second year shop work. Max Stansell won the prize for the first year of shop work and Doyle Berryman won the prize for the second year. Both students constructed beautiful cedar chests and the judges were Littlefield business men; Mr. F. G. Sailer, Mr. Jimmie Betz and Mr. T. S. Sabu.

Due to circumstances, illness in family at the beginning of school, G. M. Erwin resigned his place and Mr. Frank Jones of Canyon, a graduate of West Texas Teacher's College manual training during the school year of 1929-30.

In May of 1930 at the school board meeting that elected teachers for the school year of 1930-31, G. M. Erwin was re-elected to teach manual training in the system. The class records show that eighty-seven students enrolled for shop work and seventy-five for mechanical drawing. Practical projects were stressed and making something you can use in the home was the central theme.

The depression year of 1931-32 found the school authorities worried about money matters. Instructions were to cut down on every expense item. The manual training department and the home economics department were fearful, but the bud-wolf kept away from our doors and we survived. We rallied to the standard of economy and we used scrap wood, box wood, crate materials and cut down expenses in every way.

We followed the motto "Do the best you can, with what you have, where you are." Our records show that eighty-two students enrolled in shop work and eighty-eight in mechanical drawing.

Due to the change in requirements and the furnishing of materials we had an overflow of students for shop classes in 1932-33.

We followed a similar plan of work that was started in the school year of 1931-32, having more projects made from ply-wood and many worked over pieces of furniture.

Our ninth year of shop work was begun 1933-34 under a new educational leadership Supt. A. B. Sanders. The work was reorganized; students were required to furnish materials for shop projects, new lockers were installed, some strict regulations were introduced and a better type of shop student was the result.

The work has progressed very smoothly under the direction of G. M. Erwin and the supervision of Mr. Sanders. The record book shows an enrollment of seventy-eight students for shop work and seventy-three for mechanical drawing. The quality and amount of projects turned out was very satisfactory and we received a few compliments on our exhibits during the school carnival.

Our tenth year of shop work finds us thinking of curriculum revision and thinking how we may improve each and every item taught in manual training. Every artistic touch we can add to projects, improvement of curve design, bringing in new ideas, and to improve methods and to make the work worth-while is our goal.

We Do Our Part

PEACE BETWEEN NATIONS

We are indebted to Miss Lora Mae McFarland, Spanish instructor in the Littlefield High School, for our editorial for this week.

Miss McFarland prepared the article for use in the educational section of the Lamb County Leader, which was issued in observance of American Education Week, but the editor found in Miss McFarland's article something more than facts relative to the study of Spanish in our schools. Writing under the caption, "Why Study Spanish?" Miss McFarland brings to the readers of this newspaper a message as to how best to develop and maintain peace between nations.

Here is Miss McFarland's article:
To the teacher of a particular subject there is no doubt as to the question of value of this subject, but to the mass of people it may be quite different.

The first thing we must do is to look at the work objectively. That is one of the hardest things for the human mind to do. There is doubt whether it ever does or not. People can not get away from the subjective phase. They measure the value of knowledge in dollars and cents, or try to. They exhibit a lamentable lack of ability to disassociate personal interest from scientific observation of fact.

We hear much about the crisis in education. Some of us are terribly worried about it. It so happens that our educational crisis is accentuated because it occurs simultaneously with a serious financial crisis. When a man finds his pocket book getting flat he begins to question his expenditures. When things go well with him, he is not so critical about where his money goes. Therefore at the present time educational procedures, is beginning to wonder about what he is getting for his money. There follows a shaking of the accepted. Is it solid or is it flimsy stuff?

Naturally these subjects feel it first that are most recently introduced and that haven't the weight of tradition behind them. Languages are therefore placed in the question zone, and Spanish is one of them.

Through the ages every common man has learned the value of knowing the language of his neighbors, but he says that has nothing to do with the U. S. A. To the north they speak our language and to the south they speak Spanish (and often forget Portuguese.)

Surely the southwest cannot forget that its first European civilization and culture was Spanish and contains within itself the tradition and reminiscence of that civilization. Modern America owes its existence to the Spaniards who discovered, conquered and civilized this continent long before any country ventured to follow her example and travel her routes. It was through this impulse that later the English made settlements in the northern areas, and hence planted the seeds of another civilization which has flowered into the great nation that came into existence under the name of the United States.

Spanish ought to be our second language since the number of Spanish speaking people is second to that of English, and because of the part Spain played in our history. We have only to think of the explorers, Columbus, Balboa, Pinedo, De Soto, Cabeza de Vaca, Juan de Onate and others.

Those of us in the southwest-Texas-can look around and find Spanish living in the architecture, geographical names, music, origins of laws and old missions and churches constructed by the early explorers. The Spanish gave them language, then religion, then laws and then customs to the Mexicans and many of them here in the Southwest and are our neighbors to the South.

From the beginning of recorded history language has been the strongest national bond, forming the basis for mutual understanding. National prejudices arose as a result of mutual misunderstandings. What the nations need today is to learn their neighbor's language, then so much national prejudices will disappear. We need to become more unselfish and seek the ideas and customs of our foreign neighbors, hence an understanding.

The man who speaks one language is like the man who lives in a house with only one window. Through that window he must behold the world. No matter how large the window or how rich the view, it will be restricted to only one. Every language learned will give a new and broader view. Such experiences help an individual to interpret life better, to enjoy it, with a fullness that grows in proportion to the extent of the new language.

The United States is called upon to play such an important role in international affairs that we cannot afford to neglect or ignore our neighbors. No nation can live to itself, and least of all ours. Our attitude, our decisions, and our policies, whether we wish it or not will affect the whole world.

The time has come when the Americans can without disloyalty, appreciate and recognize the good in other races. The U. S. must face the responsibilities of a world power and its people must become language minded in order to be better able to understand and sympathize with other nations.

The responsibility for the realization of this ideal, which comes nearer than any other to the teachings of Christ, because it intends to bring about the brotherhood, rests with the learning of modern languages. It is necessary and important that a perfect understanding between men be restored as essential to world peace.

MANUAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT OPENED UNDER LEADERSHIP OF T. P. JOHNSON IN FALL OF 1925

By G. M. Irwin
Instructor of Manual Training

The school board of 1924-25 recognized the value of manual arts in education and through their vision and insight of what a modern school should teach, they introduced the vocational work designated as manual training. We are indebted to such men as; A. P. Duggan, Pat Boone, W. O. Gray, W. G. Street, G. A. Stagers, F. A. Butler, C. W. Toews and also the then secretary and business manager, E. G. Courtney for the establishment of this type of work in the Littlefield high school. Plans were made and equipment was purchased to start the work in the Fall of 1925. Twenty good work benches were bought, a complete set of wood work tools for twenty students, all necessary supplies and equipment for starting work were secured. Standard brands of tools, quality equipment and a generous supply of materials characterized the encouraging start for manual training work.

Under the leadership of Mr. T. P. Johnson the work was started in the Fall of 1925 in room 8 of the high school building, as the temporary head quarters for the manual training shop. Due to the close proximity of class rooms in the high school building, the work quarters made too much noise for the other departments and it was imperative to provide a shop of some kind for the work. The class constructed the present shop building.

The second year of shop work was under the direction of Mr. C. C. Perryman. The work was organized according to the State course of study and affiliation for one year of shop work and one year of mechanical drawing were affiliated with the State department of education. Eighty two students enrolled for shop work and sixty seven students for mechanical drawing.

The third year of manual training 1927-28 under the direction of G. M. Irwin; a graduate of East Texas State Teachers College, who specialized in the study and teaching of manual training, was a very eventful year for the department. We worked hard, following the state course of study and secured affiliation for second year of mechanical drawing and affiliation for second year of shop work. We had lots of hard work planned and for good reasons the size of the classes were reduced. The record shows that sixty-seven students enrolled in shop work and sixty-three in mechanical drawing. All the shop work and drawing work offered is affiliated.

The fourth year of shop work 1928-29 was a banner year for the department. We received a car load of good lumber and the interest in the shop work increased; eighty six students enrolled in shop work and eighty three enrolled in mechanical drawing classes.

We gave a prize to the best piece of work made in first year shop work and a prize for the best piece of work made in second year shop work. Max Stansell won the prize for the first year of shop work and Doyle Berryman won the prize for the second year. Both students constructed beautiful cedar chests and the judges were Littlefield business men; Mr. F. G. Sailer, Mr. Jimmie Brittain and Mr. T. S. Sales.

Due to circumstances, illness in family at the beginning of school, G. M. Irwin resigned his place and Mr. Frank Jones of Canyon, a graduate of West Texas Teacher's College manual training during the school year of 1929-30.

In May of 1930 at the school board meeting that elected teachers for the school year of 1930-31, G. M. Irwin was re-elected to teach manual training in the system. The class records show that eighty-seven students enrolled for shop work and seventy-five for mechanical drawing. Practical projects were stressed and making something you can use in the home was the central theme.

The depression year of 1931-32 found the school authorities worried about money matters. Instructions were to cut down on every expense item. The manual training department and the home economics department were fearful, but the bad wolf kept away from our doors and we survived. We rallied to the standard of economy and we used scrap wood, box wood, crate materials and cut down expenses in every way.

We followed the motto "Do the best you can, with what you have, where you are." Our records show that eighty-two students enrolled in shop work and eighty-eight in mechanical drawing.

Due to the change in requirements and the furnishing of materials we had an overflow of students for shop classes in 1932-33.

We followed a similar plan of work that was started in the school year of 1931-32, having more projects made from ply-wood and many worked over pieces of furniture.

Our ninth year of shop work was begun 1933-34 under a new educational leadership Supt. A. B. Sanders. The work was reorganized; students were required to furnish materials for shop projects, new lockers were installed, some strict regulations were introduced and a better type of shop student were the result.

The work has progressed very smoothly under the direction of G. M. Irwin and the supervision of Mr. Sanders. The record book shows an enrollment of seventy-eight students for shop work and seventy-three for mechanical drawing. The quality and amount of projects turned out was very satisfactory and we received a few compliments on our exhibits during the school carnival.

Our tenth year of shop work finds us thinking of curriculum revision and thinking how we may improve each and every item taught in manual training. Every artistic touch we can add to projects, improvement of curve design, bringing in new ideas, and to improve methods and to make the work worth-while is our goal.

"BIG HEARTED HERBERT" TO BE FEATURED AT PALACE SUNDAY IS SCREAMINGLY FUNNY COMEDY

"Big Hearted Herbert", the Warner Bros. comedy romance, which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Palace Theatre Sunday and Monday, is heralded as a novel and most unusual fun film concerning a discordant family in which the wife and mother tames the crabbed head of the household by a bitter dose of his own medicine.

Aline MacMahon heads the all star cast as a wife doomed to drudgery by a husband who, although he has attained affluence, believes that a woman should do her own housework just as it was done in his family when he was a child.

Guy Kibbee, as the crab husband attempts to force his son into a disagreeable job in his plumbing supply factory and flies into a terrific rage when he learns his daughter is engaged to a college man.

The wife decides to thrust the husband's own medicine down his throat in front of one of his best customers and his wife who have come to dinner, in some of the most hilarious and unusual situations imaginable. The crab is changed into "Big Hearted Herbert" in a highly amusing climax. The picture carries a heart throbbing romance as well as comedy with Patricia Ellis and Phillip Reed as the lovers. Helen Lowell, who made

MANY TEACHERS IN SCHOOLS HERE HAVE DEGREES

From all accounts there are more people with degrees teaching in the Littlefield schools this year than in any previous year. There are seventeen teachers out of the 38 who have B. A. degrees and two more who have M. A. degrees which makes a total of nineteen people who hold degrees. This fifty per cent is relatively high when taking the whole school together.

Pair Arrested In Alleged Plot to Extort Money

Mrs. Bulah M. Brake, former houseworker on a Texas farm, and Robert V. Dudgeon were under arrest at Clovis Tuesday of last week on charges of using the United States mails in an alleged extortion plot. Both were in jail in default of $2,000 bonds.

The man and woman were arrested by federal agents as Dudgeon called for his and the woman's mail in the Clovis Post Office lobby. Sheriff E. B. Eastham said Mrs. Brake confessed to dictating letters allegedly written by Dudgeon in which they demanded $300 from Sam Wiseman, Sudan farmer, under a threat that the woman would disclose certain affairs which would injure Wiseman's reputation. Mrs. Brake formerly worked as a housekeeper for Wiseman.

Sheriff Eastham said that Dudgeon, shown a copy of the alleged confession also confessed in part to the plot and later changed his story in an effort to take full blame for the letters.

NOVEMBER'S HOLIDAYS

November, the first cold blustering month is not liked by many people. The world is ugly and all outdoor sports are over, except football. But November has some good traits too. Lovers of out-of-doors find this month most attractive. November is noted for some special holidays and therefore makes it a month to look forward to. The first holiday of any importance is All-Saints Day. This is not celebrated by many people. Then comes one of the greatest holidays we have, Armistice Day, which comes on Novmbr 11. This was the day that the World War treaty of peace was signed in 1918. Another widely celebrated holiday and one that makes us think of turkeys, and cranberries, and good 'ole baked potatoes is Thanksgiving Day, a day set aside by the Pilgrims to give thanks for their survival of the cold, bleak New England winters. Although we are thankful and always celebrate we can hardly realize what the last Thursday in November meant to our hardworking forefathers.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH
 J. W. Hendrix, Pastor

The year's work is over. The pastor has been here his allotted time according to the appointment of the Annual conference; and he goes to give answer to that body as to what he has been enabled to accomplish through the co-operation of his people. A number of things should have been done that were not. We should have had a success in our revival, a greater success, but untoward circumstances among ourselves defeated much we undertook.

But the year has been very encouraging indeed in many ways. There is so much accomplished which cannot be easily transcribed in print. For example, the congregation has changed in spirit, in courage, in belief in their ability to do, in their desire to approach the program of the church with study and interest, in the spirit of the group which meets to worship. The social life of the church may not be considered of much value but nothing manifests the good spirit among people much more than their happiness together in a social way. That has been ours this year.

Great things are accomplished in an environment of proper temper and fashion; and this environment must be created, cultivated, — unity of mind and solidarity of purpose. This is one of the accomplishments of the year, primary, essential.

The pastor and his wife leave Wednesday morning for the seat of the conference, Abilene.

Leagues — Intermediate, Hi-, and Senior—meet at 6:45 p. m.

LEVELLAND IS WINNER OF WILDCATS VS. LOBOES CLASH

Littlefield Wildcats were defeated by Levelland Loboes 6-23 in the game played here Monday. The Cats put up a mighty fight but the Loboes powerful eleven crashed through to victory.

The visitors showed up to be the team that they were reputed to be when they went stomping down the field for a touchdown on the first play.

McCann, left halfback for Loboes received a pass from Rodgers and ran for a touchdown 80 yards away. Rodgers kicked for his team and scored the extra point.

Roberts, fullback for the opponents got by Yantis, right halfback for the Cats and made a safety thus adding points to the Lobo score.

The Wildcats passed on almost almost every down and completed more than twenty attempts through the air.

Successful blocking and passing enabled the Cats to keep the Loboes at bay until the end of the second quarter when Kirkpatrick Lobos q. b. dodged the opponent and crossed the goal line after a 30 yard run.

The Lobos made their final score in the third quarter when Rodgers again toted the pigskin in a 30-yard jaunt.

Pierce and Dorman ends for Cats played heads up football during the entire game.

In the second quarter Pierce got off with a nice caught ball and was almost gone for a touchdown when he was stopped on the 20 yard line.

Cap'n McKnight Cat's halfback received a knee injury that kept him out a good two quarters of the game. Dufey, Cats quarter back received an injury during the second quarter and had to be substituted for.

In the third quarter Yantis intercepted a pass thrown by a Lobo and ran forty yards for the Cat's single score.

In spite of the fact that the Cats came out on the short end of the score, there was nothing short in the fight that they put up.

The outcome of Monday's game gave Ralls the undisputed lead in the northern half of district conference race.

Levelland forfeited conference victories over her former opponents because of the ineligibility of a player.

Although no definite schedule has been announced the Cats have several more irons in the fire before they call it a season.

Olton Defeats Amherst Friday Score is 27-14

OLTON, Texas, Nov. 14. — Olton rallied in the last quarter to defeat the hard charging Amherst team 27-14.

Amherst failed to score early in the game when an interrupted pass placed the ball on Olton's 1 yard line. After four line plays, the ball was on the 3 yard line.

Both teams scored in the second quarter and made extra points. The half ended 7-7.

In the third quarter Olton scored again and a few minutes later Amherst scored after a sustained drive of 60 yards. The score was again tied 14-14.

In the last quarter, Richards received a 40 yard pass from Lair and ter "Smilin' Sam" Beebe, Morton's ace end received a pass and raced over the goal line standing up.

Again Burke converted from placement. Score Morton 14, Muleshoe 13. From here on till the final whistle the game was nothing but a struggle. Twice Muleshoe was stopped with first down and goal to go. Morton was content to play defensive ball and never opened up in the last quarter. Raymond Maxwell defensive tackle, and Buck Barnett guard, stood out for Morton on defense. Acting captain Hugh Lytle and Jeff Hooper center played their usual consistent game for Morton.

Little Tidwell substitute back, and Red Beebe substitute end also played well while in the game. This game makes six straight wins for the Indians.

MULESHOE YELLOWJACKETS LOSE MULESHOE INLIANS FRIDAY

MORTON, Texas, Nov. 14. (Special to Leader) — Friday the Morton Indians got on the warpath again. The victims this time, the Muleshoe Yellowjackets, had their stingers extracted and are now as harmless as the common housefly. And to add indignity to insult, the scalping occurred after the Yellowjackets thought they had the game on ice.

Early in the first quarter two fumbles by Morton gave the ball to Muleshoe in scoring territory. Muleshoe quickly took advantage of this to make a touchdown, but the try for point from placement was blocked by a charging Indian line. Receiving the kickoff, Morton quickly marched to within Muleshoe's twenty yard line but lost the ball here on downs. In this long drive Rose of Morton snared a neatly executed pass and raced for a touchdown but the referee ruled that he ran out of bounds before crossing the pay line so the score did not count. On this play, Burke wingback received a backward pass from fullback White, skirted left end and as he was being tackled lateraled back to White who threw a beautiful long forward to Rose.

After Muleshoe punted out of the hole, Morton again started a goalward drive, but Muleshoe's line which gave Morton trouble all afternoon, sifted through and tackled Rose as he was backward passing to Burke. Muleshoe's line backs intercepted this pass and raced for a touchdown, this time the try for point from placement was partially blocked but barely skimmed over the crossbar. The first quarter ended Muleshoe 13 Morton 0.

Neither team had the advantage in the second quarter until the last two minutes of play. Here Morton's line woke up and smeared Muleshoe for two successive losses inside her own twenty yard line. On third down Muleshoe's punter was rushed and kicked short to Burke on Muleshoe's forty yard line. Behind perfect blocking Burke returned this punt for a touchdown and converted from placement. Muleshoe received the kick-off and the first half ended Muleshoe 13 Morton 7.

In the middle of the third quarter, Capt' Lair scored again for Olton after receiving a pass in the flat zone.

Amherst's entire line looked well on offense. Palmer was the outstanding back for Amherst.

Olton's line play wasn't up to par. Hair's passes were accurate and Gray was the outstanding player for Olton.

Fuller and Miller played good defensive games for Olton.

SYNOPSIS
 After a cream colored car was found wrecked in the foot of a cliff, a girl named Anne Cushing appears in town Marston. She has seen a ranch located nearby. Barry Duane, her neighbor and his man, Boone, a reliable woman for Barry's car, loaded down with their start across the Marston her reticence has suspicion. Barry and Anne are than neighbors and when Anne is lost in the hills and rescued by Barry each realize that something more than friendship existed between them.

"Certainly, if you wish," Mrs. Duane agreed politely. "Thank you for the book, my dear. As for your driving, I am sure that is better than having no one with you but that chauffeur. I don't like his looks Cleo.

"Oh, I know Kennedy looks wicked, I think he isn't used to this kind of work, and taking orders from women makes him sulky. I think he'll soon be settled down, for he seems to be very much interested in one of your maids. I'm sure I caught sight of him waiting outside when I came tonight."

"I must look into that," Mrs. Duane's voice was edged.

"What's the use? They'll only deny it," Cleo shrugged lazily.

"Dear me, I believe we're going to see the clandestine meeting. How exciting!"

Down the shadowed path a girl's figure moved quickly. She skirted the far end of the garden and went with slower steps toward the hedge.

The hedge was lower at that end of the garden. On the other side of it a man nodded slightly and sauntered along toward the rear gate. The girl in the garden followed him.

Cleo was on her feet breathing apologies.

"Oh Mrs. Duane, please forgive me. I didn't dream—I didn't mean to intrude like this. I'll never forgive myself . . . I'll go now."

"My dear Cleo, you have not intruded in the least. I shall speak to Bertha of course."

Grey faced in the darkness, Mrs. Duane held her head high. No one not even Cleo Pendleton should be allowed to discuss this shameful thing with her.

Cleo grinned slightly, unseen. The lights flashed on, but after Cleo had gone she plunged the room into darkness again and stood rigidly unyielding.

"My son's wife!" Her face was white in the darkness.

Barry was reading when his mother entered the library.

"Still up?" But I suppose you had callers.

"It was Cleo," said his mother briefly. "Barry, I wish you would come with me to my rooms. Quickly."

Of course, I will. Anything wrong there?

"Everything is wrong," said Mrs. Duane bitterly. "I have had the humiliation of seeing my son's wife steal out through the garden at night to meet another man."

"Mother!" There was a note in Barry's voice that she had never heard before. "I am afraid," he said carefully, "that I shall have to ask you to explain that—extraordinary statement."

"I have told you. Come and see for yourself."

"Nancy and I don't spy on each other. Besides, she went to her room with a headache. Why do you assume that it was she?"

"Our maids do not appear in evening dress."

"Nancy gave Bertha one of her's last week. Someone abspilled cTH last week. Someone had spilled coffee on it."

"It was not Bertha," said Mrs. Duane coldly. "I know it was Anne. The man was obviously waiting for her. I did not see his face, but I have the unpleasant knowledge that a common chauffeur—that insolent creature who drives Cleo, — was hanging around outside only a little while before."

"You didn't even see them meet?" He laid a pleading hand on her arm.

"Mother why can't you be kinder to Nancy? Do you think that it has been pleasant for me to see that my mother refuses to accept my wife as her daughter?"

"Do you think that it is pleasant for your mother to know that this place is buzzing with sordid innuendo because Barry Duane's wife never refers to a single day of her life before she came to that barbarous place where you met her?"

"And who has been spreading such precious gossip as that?" The moment of pleading was gone. For the first time Mrs. Duane was afraid of the thing she had done.

"I overheard it," she said with dignity. "The very way it was said showed that it was common gossip."

"Who said it?" His eyes were blazing.

"How should I know? It is enough that it could be said at all."

He did not answer immediately.

"I suppose it is impossible to escape the malice of other women's tongues."

"It is useless to argue with you. But I know what I have heard and what I have seen tonight. Once more, Barry, will you come and see for yourself."

I will not.

Mrs. Duane went stiffly back to the door.

"You are your own master, and I am only your mother, pushed aside for a woman you scarcely know. But the time will come when your eyes will be opened. And you will regret this night as long as you live."

For several minutes after his mother left him Barry paced gloomily up and down the library. The whole thing was sickening and that his mother should have been the one to bring this precious story to him left him worried and depressed. Why were women so hard on each other? Even his mother . . .

The trouble probably was that rancorous gossip. He flushed darkly at the recollection. So Nancy's name was being mangled about like that? A whispering devil of suspicion slyly jogged his elbow and was thrust out of the way.

He could easily settle this. All he needed to do was to go upstairs and look in at Nancy. He smiled to himself and swung quickly toward the stairs.

Barry let himself in quietly. Anne was not there.

He turned toward the door blindly. There was the slight sound of its opening. Anne stood there, staring at him.

"Oh—Barry!" She said breathlessly. "You startled me."

His eyes swept over her swiftly, suspiciously, and dropped to the slim perfection of her slippers. On the side of one of them, marring its delicate sheen, was a long earth stain.

The blood sang in his ears again, so that he scarcely heard his own voice. "Anne, where have you been?"

Before that hard note she stopped short.

"Why Barry what is the matter?"

"Where have you been at this hour of the night?"

"I've been in the garden. Barry what is the matter?"

"Within the past half hour I have had to listen to the sickening story that you were meeting somebody's chauffeur out in the garden."

She felt suddenly sick and tired. Barry's mother must have seen her and carried the story to him in bitter triumph. Who else hated her enough to do that? She wanted to tell him the whole hateful story, but she must not.

"Somebody must have been willing to carry tales about me to have hurried the news to you as quickly as that." She saw him flush, but she went on bitterly. "And whether I was there or not, I won't talk about it! I won't! I'll say things that we'll both be sorry for." Her hands went up to her throbbing temples. They really did throb now.

"Ring for Bertha, please. And stay until she comes."

He looked at her uneasily. He rang hastily and came back to her.

"I'm sorry if you're not well," he said jerkily. "Perhaps I'd better send for Dr. Carmichael."

"No, please. It's only my head."

They waited for Bertha in uncomfortable silence. There was a tap on the door, but it was Ellen's broad face which appeared.

"I rang for Bertha. Isn't she here? Ellen was a new maid. She grinned companionably.

"Yes'm in a way, but it's her night out. She's been to a party, Ma'am, lookin' as pretty as a pitcher in the grand dress ye give her, and this good half hour she's been standin' at the end of the drive sayin' good-night to the young felly from Quinn's Garage. Is there annythink I can do Ma'am."

"Bring me some ice cubes, Ellen. I've a headache."

The door closed on Ellen. Anne scarcely breathed.

"Nancy, forgive me! I've been a brute and I ought to be kicked for it."

He drew her around with coaxing hands.

"Don't you know I love you Barry? There isn't anybody else but you. There couldn't be."

"I know," he muttered. "It's because you're so much to me, Nancy . . . I think I'd go mad if you ever let me down."

She tried not to shiver, quaking a little at the narrowness of escape.

Luck had been kind to Cleo. Mrs. Duane, outraged and bitter, would go straight to Barry with her story. Cleo felt brightly contented as she snuggled down behind the wheel. The driveway wound toward the end of the grounds in a double curve. The lights of the roaster swung around and picked up two startled figures, hastily backing out of their flaring range. One of them was Bertha.

"Alibi!" Cleo said under her breath "Damn!"

It was close to midnight when Kennedy strolled back to that smaller chateau which housed the Pendleton fleet of cars and their attendants and he was met by a message that Miss Cleo wanted to see him. Kennedy was half sulky about it. Some deviltry, or he missed his guess.

Cleo received him in the Chinese room.

"I'm thinking of getting a new car Kennedy. Do you know anything about racing cars?"

"A little," Kennedy's eyes narrowed slightly. He hesitated, and the desire to show that he had not always been at an employer's beck and call was too much for him. "I know their points pretty well," he added carelessly. "I've driven my own now and then."

"Really?" Cleo smiled encouragingly. "That was before you — er — gave up the Forty-Ninth Street house wasn't it?"

All the lines of Kennedy's face sharpened.

"About that time he said briefly. "So you've been looking up my record?"

"It wasn't necessary, Kennedy. You're quite well known."

He stared back at her suspicious and half truculent. "Well, you know, I didn't try to get the job under an assumed name, anyway."

"Oh yes, I'm perfectly satisfied, Kennedy. But of course I know that a man of your experience isn't taking a chauffeur's position except for some good reason. Does John Gage know that you are in Granleigh?"

It must have been a sharp jolt for Kennedy, but this time his face — the gambler's face, after all — was absolutely expressionless.

"That's too deep for me," he answered indifferently. "If you mean the big fellow, I don't know what he knows. I've never met him."

"Not even that night last May, when this happened?" Cleo's hand rested for a moment against the filmy turquoise of her gown, just below her head.

"You've had a busy day he said, dryly.

"Things have a habit of coming my way Kennedy. And I know you went out tonight to keep an appointment with Mrs. Barry Duane, and just where you met her . . . and by the way, how very much she looks like Miss Curtis! You're a wonderful driver, Kennedy, but you haven't any intention of staying on here as a chauffeur. You're here for money, Kennedy, big money. I'm afraid the courts would call it blackmail."

Kennedy listened, outwardly unmoved but taking lively account of this new situation.

"What's your game?" he asked bluntly.

"I'm not playing, Kennedy." Kennedy took the hint.

"My error." He temporized astutely. "But I got the idea that you wanted me to do something for you."

"Perhaps you could." She considered him thoughtfully. "There is someone in Granleigh whose presence is going to bring danger and unhappiness to some close friends of mine. Some day there will be a scandal, and she will be forced to leave in disgrace. It would be better for everybody concerned if she went away quietly, before her—her past became known."

"You want me to get Duane's wife out of the way—"

He had an unpleasant way of stripping facts naked and making her look at them.

"I wish her to go away. Alone."

"Reno, or a Mexican divorce?"

Miss Laura Virginia Bills spoke on "Music in the Schools," which was followed by two piano solos by one of her pupils, Ruth Pumphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pumphrey. Miss Bills also favored the meeting with a piano number.

A short business meeting followed the program, during which it was decided that the club's next social meeting would be in the form of a banquet on November 26.

Sixteen members were present Monday evening.

Dead Line on Cotton Certificates Extended to Nov. 24

Cotton producers in Lamb County have surrendered more than ten million pounds of surplus cotton tax-exemption certificates to the national pool, states Donald Turner, Assistant in Cotton Adjustment for Lamb County.

The final date for taking certificates in the pool has been extended to November 24, 1934, and no certificates will be taken after that date.

It is estimated that producers will net around nineteen dollars per bale for the certificates that are sold, and indications show that a large percentage of them will be sold. All unsold certificates will be returned. It is urged that all farmers who wish to pool certificates turn them in at the County Agent's office at once. Settlement will be made immediately after the close of the pool.

Sacred Heart Members Bid Pastor Farewell

A social evening was enjoyed at the home of Rev. Father Dvorak Sunday evening when a large number of the congregation of the Sacred Heart Church called on their pastor to bid him farewell and extend wishes for his future welfare.

Father Dvorak is leaving Thursday morning for White Deer, where he will take over his duties as pastor of that city.

Rev. Dvorak Leaves To Take Up Duties In White Deer Church

Rev. Charles J. Dvorak, who has been pastor of Sacred Heart church in this city for the past six years, coming here from Childress, is leaving today to become pastor of the Catholic church at White Deer. Rev. Edward J. Clinton, who has been pastor at White Deer, is to be pastor of the local church.

Rev. Father Dvorak has had a very successful pastorate in Littlefield, and has made a great many friends. Large numbers deeply regret his departure from this city.

In addition to his church activities, Rev. Father Dvorak has taken an active interest in civic affairs and was, for several years, a member of the Littlefield Rotary Club.

Under Rev. Father Dvorak's pastorate, the size of the congregation at Littlefield and Pep have doubled; all debts on the Littlefield church property has been paid, and a brick church has been built at Pep, which is under the pastorate of the local priest. The Pep church property also is free from debt. Extensive improvements also have been made to the Littlefield church property.

Rev. Father Dvorak was accompanied to the Littlefield pastorate by his mother, Mrs. Aloysia Dvorak, who died in 1929, and is buried in the Littlefield Catholic cemetery.

In a brief address at last Thursday's luncheon of the Littlefield Rotary club, Rev. Father Dvorak expressed the pleasure which it had been to be pastor of the churches at Littlefield and Pep, and declared that he was leaving this city and section with much regret.

Mr. Hendrix be returned as pastor of the local church, was unanimously and enthusiastically approved at Tuesday's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to his church activities Rev. Mr. Hendrix has been active in all civic work. He is a Chamber of Commerce worker, and is a frequent visitor at the Littlefield Rotary club.

SELECT FOOTBALL PLAYERS FOR PRIZES OFFERED BY LITTLEFIELD BUSINESS MEN

The Littlefield business men who offered prizes for the Levelland ball game are very proud of the Wildcats for the showing they made against the Lobos in the Armistice Day game here. Boys, you lost a ball game but you won a moral victory and that's what counts anyway. You were the kind of team Monday that every coach prays for. You did all that you were capable of doing every minute of every play—that's all we asked for. To we folks on the side line it was a heart breaker to see you boys FIGHTING, FIGHTING, FIGHTING against odds that it was not possible for you to overcome. You never let up, you never admitted that you were whipped and by cracky you were not whipped. Again we say you lost a ball game, but you conducted yourselves as Littlefield wants her boys to do. You will go down in the history of our school as the boys who, knowing the odds were against you, and knowing that it was up to 14 of you to stop the rampaging Lobos, you never flinched, you begged for the chance to do your bit, you kept your chin off your chest, you asked no quarter and you gave none. WE ARE MIGHTY, MIGHTY PROUD OF YOU.

Coaches Satisfied

The coaches were just as loud in their praise of the boys as we are. They are not surprised that the boys played as they did because the know their boys. Head coach Barksdale says:

"It is the best group of boys I ever worked with. You cannot praise them too much for me. I am satisfied."

Assistant coach Hobbs says: "The boys played the game as we had coached them to play it, hard, clean, and fair with no alibies. I am satisfied."

Prizes Awarded

The judges who had to select the winners of the prizes had a hard time selecting the winners and they don't claim that they made no mistake in their selections because every boy was hustling every minute. Here they are:

Bob McKnight gets the prize offered by Ware's for the first intercepted pass. Cecil Hall gets the Moody Cafe prize for first lineman to tackle Levelland for loss. L. V. Pierce gets the Stokes-Alexander prize for first tackle on kick-off. O. K. Yantis gets prize from Jack Henry tailor shop for first touchdown. Billy Dorman gets prize offered by Dick Johnson for most hustle in line. Leo Duffey gets prize from Clark & Halle barber shop for most backfield hustle. Allen Kendrick gets prize by Chili King Cafe for hardest tackle by lineman. Hall Rowe gets prize for most valuable block of game by Cuenod's Dry Goods Co. Randolph Brantley gets two show tickets from Palace and Ritz theatres for recovering first Levelland fumble.

It was just as hard for the boys to select the most valuable man as it was for the judges to make the other selections. In voting on the most valuable man they tied up on Randolph Brantley and Cecil (Culry) Hall. There was no blocked punt so they drew straws for the blocked punt prize offered by Madden Drug and the most valuable man prize offered by Jimmie Brittain.

Cecil Hall gets the prize offered by Madden's and a Randolph Brantley gets the prize offered by Jimmie Brittain.

You should take note of the fact that at the price that the City is buying power, there is no advantage in constructing a diesel pumping plant.

Please advise this office immediately whether you desire to proceed with the application as it is presented, or if you wish to spend the funds for other purposes than a diesel pumping plant, and continue your present power contract with the Texas Utility Company. It has been determined that this is a matter for the City to decide.

I will greatly appreciate your prompt decision and reply to my letter.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) JULIAN MONTGOMERY
State Engineer, PWA.

According to Mr. Street an application was made September 18, 1933 to the Public Works Administration for a PWA loan to build certain extensions and improvements to the Littlefield Waterworks system, in as much as the present wells were not sufficient to insure a steady flow of water for emergencies.

The Administration approved the application, and entered into a contract with the City to buy bonds when issued, and furnish the funds with which to make the improvement. An election was called August 29 to decide the issuance of $30 revenue bonds to meet the requirements of the Federal approval of $48,000, of which $39,000 bear 4 percent interest, and would be a grant by the Federal Government when the project was completed.

There were 261 votes cast in election, 233 votes in favor of issuance of the bonds and 28 against.

The transcript was prepared by Stack & Co. of Austin and filed with the Public Works Department. Two test wells were drilled, one of which was declared an excellent producer.

A requisition was filed with the Federal Emergency Administration for Public Works, Washington, D. C., for the funds to go with the project, in response to the above letter was received.

The City has advised the Public Works Administration at Washington that it will proceed with the application, and requesting a copy of the protest filed by the Texas Utility Company, on receipt of which city commission will out course they will take toward through with the project.
