Field Demonstration Set

A field demonstration showing the High Plains Foundation Farming Systems will be held Tuesday afternoon August 31 on the Eldon Golhke farm about six miles east of Littlefield. The demonstration, from 4 to 6 p.m., will be under the direction of Loyd Langford, associate agronomist at the High Plains Research Foundation.

Mr. Golhke has set aside 30 acres on his farm, which is planted to two rows of cotton, skip one row, two rows of grain sorghum, skip one row, and two rows of cotton, with the pattern being repeated across the field. This system of farming was developed as a result of 7 years of research by the High Plains Research Foundation.

This system of farming is designed to increase net returns per acre of land on less irrigation water. Additional benefits received are increased yields, improved cotton quality, reduced production costs, greater protection of crop and soil from wind damage, and increased soil organic matter over solid planting or skip-row planting of cotton.

Loyd Langford, Associate Agronomist, at the Foundation is working with 17 farmers on the High Plains, located from Tulia on the north to Seminole on the south, and Friona on the west to Ralls on the east. These demonstrations are composed of cotton skip-row and interplanted with grain sorghum, castorbeans, or soybeans.

Farmers selected to demonstrate the High Plains Foundation Farming System are part of an overall program to acquaint area farmers with this profitable method of farming. Reports at the High Plains Research Foundation show this system of farming to increase yields of grain sorghum up to 1500 pounds, castorbeans, 500 pounds, and cotton one-half bale per planted acre. The quality of cotton is improved and the crops are produced with at least 1/3 less water.

Each of the field demonstrations are marked with an appropriate sign. All interested persons are welcome to visit the demonstration.

EVERY ROW OUTSIDE -- Loyd Langford, High Plains Foundation agronomist and Eldon Golhke are shown looking over Golhke's experimental farming system. A demonstration will be held at the farm by the High Plains Foundation August 31 showing the results of planting two rows of cotton, skip one row, then two rows of grain sorghum across the field.

The length of the program is determined by the type of career, with the minimum time being approximately one year. During his time with the Job Corp, Craddock will receive

$30 a month spending money. An additional $50 per month is put into his account at a bank and he is unable to draw this money out until he has completed the training.

Billy Lynch, TEC local manager, stated that approximately eleven boys have applied for the training, which is open to persons between the ages of 16 and 21, but that Craddock is the first to be accepted.

Tickets For Friday Barbecue Day On Sale

Jack Wicker, chairman of the task group in charge of arrangements for the Government Day barbecue, Friday, September 10, phase of the "Key-to-Progress" city wide event, announced this week that tickets for the affair are now on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office, Littlefield Publishing Company, Amos Ward's Department Store, and Piggly Wiggly for $1.50 each.

The barbecue is scheduled to be at noon Friday with a short address from each of the visiting government officials to follow the meal.

Due to the problems involved in preparing the amount of food necessary to feed the visitors and ticket holders, Wicker said a purchase deadline of Saturday, September 4th would be set. This will give the ticket committee time to get a final count by Tuesday, the day the caterer, Walter Jeton, of Fort Worth plans to leave for Littlefield with his equipment. The decision to set the deadline came at an early week meeting of the full committee, which is working to finalize the plans for the event that will draw several thousand visitors to the city for the three days.

Reports from committee chairmen indicated the majority of the details have been worked out, but several loose ends remain, primarily with locations of the scheduled events and arrangements for the greeting of visitors. Pioneer Natural Gas Building, in the 500 block of Phelps Avenue will serve as celebration headquarters for the three day event. Mrs. T. L. Dunlap, chairman of the hos-tes task group, has said plans are being made to furnish visitors with material on our project, and information about the city.

The three day event will kick off Thursday when attention will be focused on the farming phase of our economy with a noon luncheon, hosted by the service clubs of Littlefield and honoring the farmers of the area. Friday attention will switch to the government aspect of the area with visiting national and state government officials being honored at the noon barbecue. Saturday has been designated Industrial Day with the area's industry set for special attention. A noon luncheon will honor visiting industrialists, followed by a tour of the city and a p.m. parade. The address by Paul Harvey Saturday night will climax the three days of celebration.

This opportunity is the Peace Corps Placement Test, which is passed or failed and you study for it. It measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language. If, for example, test scores indicate language acquiring ability, the Peace Corps tries to place the applicant in an English speaking area. The test is given by the Peace Corps only in the matching of applicants and jobs. The Peace Corps application is the most important indicator of suitability for Peace Corps service. The test is filled out and brought to the exam unless previously filled. Applicants should plan on one and a half hours at testing centers, unless they take the Spanish or French language achievement which requires an additional hour.

Leather Pops As 'Cats Aim For Borger Bulldogs

Leather continued to pop in the Wildcats' hair this week as Coach John Howle and his staff ran their charges through repeated drills and exercise, all with the single aim of downing Borger in the season's opener September 10.

Coach Howle said the scrimmage held last Saturday showed where work was needed, and this week's sessions are being devoted to those areas. One of the most pleasing aspects of the drills has been the small number of ailments and injuries. Line coach Doug Monzingo said he couldn't recall when injuries have been as few, and blisters had been as infrequent as they are this year. The only serious injury occurred prior to last Saturday's scrimmage, when one prospect was sidelined with a slight concussion, outside of this and a few upset stomachs, this year's workouts are progressing at record paces. Coach Howle said he has been most please with the performance of the line this week, and said they have come a long way in a short time. By the time of the opening game the coaching staff expects the line to be set. This added to the backfield of Lewis, Schovajsa, Powell and Tapley, which appear to be the starting backs, the Wildcats will be well equipped to take on Borger.

However when viewing the 'Cats you can't rule out boys like Richard Wright, Kevin Hutson, Randy Birklebach, Gary Conway and Mike Grissom among other newcomers who are pushing the regulars for the starting posts.

In Tuesday workouts the 'Cat linemen showed their desire to play as they opened gaping holes for the fleet Schovajsa and Tapley, and gave big Charlie Powell plenty of room to get into the defensive secondary. Owing to the improved line performance the coaches plan to begin to put polish to the quick hitting plays and the sweeps which will put the speed of the 'Cats to an acid test.

Coaches and practice spectators alike have expressed their pleasure at the tempo of the week's drills and are in agreement that this year it should be different. We don't have the size, one coach said, but we more than make up for it in spirit and desire. The boys are shooting off the line faster and with more drive than a week ago, the backs are finding the holes faster and they are staying open longer than they were, plus the support of the visitors have had a definite effect on the team.

Coach Howle said the Wildcats are not promising anything but when the season comes to a close the opponents who we have met will know they have been in a ball game, and we will win our share.

This type of positive thinking which comes from the boys as well as the coaching staff could well add up to be the thing that will put the 3AAA crown within sight of the locals, and could surprise numerous foes.
