Rev. Elvin Ingram, pastor of the Parkview Baptist Church has resigned his position, effective September 1st. He plans to enter Southwestern Theological Seminary in Fort Worth this fall. His family consisting of his wife and three children will accompany him to Fort Worth where the family will make their home, while Rev. Ingram is attending the seminary.

Rev. Ingram has been pastor of the church since the organization of the Westside Baptist Chapel, by the First Baptist Church, which was dedicated Sunday, July 17, 1949. He was formerly pastor of the Enoche Baptist church.

On the fourth Sunday in May, 1950 the church was organized into a regular cooperating Southern Baptist Church, and the name was changed to the Parkview Baptist church. Rev. An addition was made to the original building several months ago, and the church is entirely free of debt. Offerings run well over $100 each Sunday, school attendance averages around

Rev. Elvin Ingram

Printed below is the letter of resignation taken from the "Silent Messenger," weekly bulletin of the Parkview Church.

Some time ago we spoke in the morning service of having to go to the Seminary in Fort Worth. We have prayed much about this matter and having reached our decision we offered our resignation last Sunday night. This will take effect the first of September. From the depth of our souls we feel that this is the Lord's will for us. We shall always remember Parkview and what this church has meant to us and what a blessing each of you have been to us. So we will be entering Southwestern Baptist Seminary this fall. While we are here our desire is to help in any way we can to help you in the work. Let us all remember the Revival which is to begin the 17. Let us be much in prayer that God will send a gracious revival. We know that he will if we pay the price. Pray for us and let us all pray for our church.

New Building Is Under Construction For Porcher Produce Company

Sudan Child Is Ill With Polio

Dave Wesley Williams, aged 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Williams of Sudan was admitted to the Plainview Clinic Tuesday suffering from Polio.

The Williams family live on a farm belonging to Ves Terry.

The child was reported as not being badly paralyzed.

This is reported to be the first new case of polio that the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis of Lamb County has a record of for this year.

Construction got underway Wednesday in the erection of a new building on West Delano Avenue, West of the City Water Tower, which when completed will house the Porcher Produce Company.

According to Ben Porcher, owner of the business, this building is being erected on several lots purchased by him a number of years ago, and which form a triangle shaped property.

The building will be one story, of concrete and tile construction, and provide 3600 square feet of floor space.

It is expected that the structure will be completed about September 1st.

Own Swiss Is the Farmer's Cow, Declares Ed Ray, Lamb County Breeder Of These Milk and Beef Animals

Franklin Reynolds, a Lamb county farmer and a director of the county fair association has spent full agricultural years down through the years handled many cattle of breeds and crossbreeds.

He stands in his pasture proudly looks over his herd of the dual-purpose, milk, Brown Swiss he will later, "they are in every way every standpoint, the satisfactory of any cattle I handled. They are good milkers, they are good milkers, they are good milkers, they have good disposition and are the most intelligent in the world."

"The Farmer's Cow didn't just 'stumble' into the business of breeding Swiss. He had been told Brown Swiss is the farm cow" and he decided to try himself before he depended upon the breed. He traveled around the country, asked a number of herds, many questions of Brown breeders, and of the other strains and he decided for himself that what he had heard was true — that Brown Swiss is the farm cow.

In February of 1947 that his first animals, five cows and a bull. Since then he has almost $2,000 worth of calves from the herd and still more than the six with which he started.

Two of those heifers had mature cows," he explains, "I drove up here in a truck and asked me what I was about selling them just I put a price on them. I had set it so high he wouldn't buy them." (Continued on Page 4)

THE MOST satisfactory cattle in the world is the way Ed Ray, Lamb county farmer, describes his Brown Swiss herd. In the lower picture Ray is standing beside his present herd sire. This bull was calved December 20, 1949, and since the Brown Swiss continue to grow until they are six or seven years old, this bull will put on lots more size. To the left of the cow in the right foreground is a young bull calved October 8, 1950. In the upper left is a half-bred heifer, sired by the Ray bull and calved by a Jersey cow October 18, 1950. This heifer is now larger than her mother. The upper center picture shows the hindquarters of the bull, and at the upper right is Ray with one of his older cows, Dolores Delano F., calved November 25, 1946. She was one of the original heifers brought to the farm. (Photos by Reynolds)

Time To Sell Somebody On West Texas

Members of the Industrial committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in their first two meetings of the year, approved sending a special train to northern and eastern centers later in the year, carrying exhibits and information of the region's industrial potentialities.

E. L. Buelow of San Angelo, committee chairman, conducted the first meeting in his home city June 22 and the second in Amarillo, June 29.

The promotional program approved in these conferences includes endorsement of the WTCC advertising campaign as projected at the annual convention in Mineral Wells last fall.

Chairman Buelow was authorized to name a special sub-committee on advertising and tourist development to work with the WTCC committee on Publicity and Tourist Promotion.

The special train proposal was submitted by Fred H. Husbands, executive vice-president and general manager.

Husbands reported $30,000 to $40,000 had been spent on research of the region's industrial assets during the past six years.

He expressed the opinion this research is very valuable but added:

"It is high time we quit appraising our possibilities and began selling somebody on West Texas as an ideal site for many types of industry."

Itinerary of the trip as proposed by Husbands included Washington, D.C., New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago with a return by way of St. Louis and Kansas City.

At each stop a "task force" of West Texas business men would call on prospects with the invitation that they visit the exhibit abroad the train and see for themselves what West Texas has to offer.

It then would be left to the individual community to follow leads in securing new industrial plants and other enterprises, Husbands said.

Aid of the railroads and other utilities will be sought in preparing the exhibits.

As proposed, displays on the train would be "adequate but limited" with a single theme throughout. Husbands expressed the belief this would not place smaller towns and communities at a disadvantage.

Alden L. Cathey, manager of the WTCC membership and public relations department joined Husbands at the Amarillo meeting.

You And Your Congress

The business that was started many years ago by the rain-makers of Indian tribes may be the next major target of permanent federal control.

Congress, with a long record of control legislation behind it, is now considering whether it should control those persons who seek to control the weather.

As always in these matters two questions immediately arise:

Should control over weather controllers be left to the individual states or be directed from Washington?

Should controls, if authorized, be rigid or moderate?

The whole matter is uncertain at the moment, due to the present uncertainties involved in artificial nucleation—man-induced rain.

Last Spring, for example, the cotton growers in Rep. Frank E. Smith's (D) Third District in Mississippi vainly searched the skies for days on end for signs of rain. They feared for their crops in a drought that lasted 56 days.

They wondered whether the rain-making experiments in California and some other western states might be depriving them of rain. They also wondered what their chances were of getting relief by means of artificial nucleation.

Their Congressman carried their questions to the U. S. Weather Bureau and was told that the Bureau had not been able to reach any definite, major conclusions on the subject.

Meanwhile, the drought broke in the Third District and Smith's constituents have had so much rain at this point that they again fear for their crops. They are wondering if rain-making experiments in western states may have caused too much Third District rain.

Perturbed by that turn of events, Smith has introduced a bill (H. Res. 296) calling for appointment of a special eight-member House committee "to conduct a full and complete investigation and study to determine the effects of artificial rain-making on the various segments of the national economy."

Smith cited as a supporting authority for his proposal T. H. Evans, Dean of Engineering, Colorado Agricultural and Mechanical College, Evans, who feels it would be dangerous to allow rain-makers to operate indiscriminately, favors a bill, passed by the Colorado legislature, which would impose moderate controls. It also calls for coordination of rain-making study and information by a regulatory commission.

Meanwhile, however, Sen. Anderson (D) of New Mexico, where some of the earlier non-Indian rain-making experiments were conducted a few years ago, has introduced S. 222, calling for rigid federal control of artificial nucleation. It would set up a Weather Control Commission with the reins held tightly by the Secretary of Commerce.

Three subcommittees of the Interior, Agriculture and Commerce committees, with Anderson presiding, held joint hearings on S. 222. These were marked by conflicting testimony from U. S. Weather Bureau experts regarding the dangers and possible benefits of artificial rain-making. The Commerce sub-committee involved has held two closed-door sessions so far trying to decide whether to recommend the controls proposed by S. 222.

In the interim, the disastrous, rain-made floods hit Missouri. Among other things, the floods stirred the suspicion that the excessive rain may have been induced, partly at least, by the cloud-milkers, who sow dry ice from airplanes or spray vaporized silver iodide into the atmosphere from the ground.

Accordingly, Rep. Richard W. Bolling (D) of hard-hit Kansas City has introduced H.R. 4864, identical to S. 222. Both would license rainmakers, whose business is mushrooming, and make the federal government liable for undue damage done by licensed practitioners of artificial nucleation.

But the question of state versus federal control remains unsettled. The existence of interstate involvements has not been established definitely. No one seems to know for sure whether every time you make rain over Colorado, for example, Nebraska and Kansas are sure to get showers.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur is Real Baseball Fan

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur knows his baseball, take the word of President Walter O'Malley of the Brooklyn Dodgers. "The general has a superior knowledge of the game," says O'Malley. "He enjoys every phase of the game," especially, fast running and fine fielding. He's a real student of the game, has been since his days at West Point.

The general has visited Ebbets Field three times this season and on two occasions sat in the Dodger president's private box high above home plate.

"If the fans showed as much interest in the Dodgers as General MacArthur does we would have a much better attendance," says O'Malley. The Dodger boss feels the fans are beginning to stay at home and take in the games on television.

O'Malley doubts that the General would accept the baseball commissioner's job at $65,000 or more a year, even if it were handed to him on a silver platter. There has been some speculation that Gen. MacArthur would be the man for the job.

However, says O'Malley: "He never talks much while watching a ball game. He enjoys it too much."

Though not as glib as a press agent or as willing to pose as a visiting Hollywood celebrity, she apparently has firm control of her private world. Her mother looked a trifle awed already.

But Maria Frieda won't be able to throw her weight around for a long time yet. Her father, communications technician for the Fulton County Police department, weighs 200 pounds.—Avalanche Journal.

Now a strapping bulk of a girl, Maria tips the scales at six and a half pounds.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Billings of Chapman Springs, Ga., has a fine contralto voice.

She made her concert debut April 19 at Emory hospital and soared to new heights through her performance in Crawford Long's premature baby nursery.

A hospital spokesman said the infant, who appeared 85 days ahead of schedule, is the third-smallest baby to survive since the "preemie" ward was established. The record is 1 pound 6 ounces.

Miss Billings was so flustered by the attention being showered on her that her remarks were somewhat incoherent. Then, too, it was obvious that she had been drinking. A bottle was in evidence.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Barden, Mrs. Ho Sanders, and Rita Fern have returned from Rayden, Oklahoma after visiting with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. David Staggs and daughters visited Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Simmons and Dorothy, Sunday. Mrs. Staggs is the former Sibyl Hooten.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bozeman returned from Truth or Consequences, New Mexico Thursday.

Brown Swiss

would not buy them because I asked almost as much for the two cows as the whole batch had cost me in the first place. Well, that fellow fooled me. He pulled out his pocketbook and loaded those cows in his truck."

All Registered Animals
Ray's animals are all registered with The National Brown Swiss Association at Beloit, Wisconsin.

"The Brown Swiss is becoming a more popular breed year by year," Ray points out. "Look here —" and he starts showing you the records of the association's registrations, which include two cows of the breed that in one year produced 25 tons (50,000 pounds) of milk and 2,430 pounds of butter.

"Can't you understand," he will ask, "why good Brown Swiss breeding stock is in demand, with cows producing like that, and at the same time building beef with the best of the beef breeds?"

And if you don't understand in the beginning you will after you've studied the solid, sturdy conformation of these animals and seen one of the cows milked. It is not at all unusual for Brown Swiss cows to weigh 1600 pounds or more and for Brown Swiss bulls to weigh 2200 pounds or more. Brown Swiss calves weigh from 80 to 100 pounds at birth, and they come with the heavy, square quarters so necessary to make fine veal. All true Brown Swiss are "big" and compact and blocky in build and the Brown Swiss bulls have the talent for transmitting this desirable beef characteristic to their cross-bred calves.

Ed Ray likes to laugh about the calf he took to a locker plant for butchering. The calf had been sired by his original bull, Monica's Royal Squire and was mothered by a scrub Jersey cow. Several experienced cowmen had looked at that calf and his weight was "guessed" at about 450 pounds. "The scales showed he weighed 655 pounds, and after this animal had been dressed out the locker plant operator called it the prettiest beef carcass he had ever seen."

Many Good Points
"There are eight points on which we Brown Swiss breeders are satisfied of the superiority of our cattle," Ray comments. "This is especially true in view of the fact that the Brown Swiss is truly what it is called, the farmer's cow."

These eight points he enumerates as follows:

1. 4 per cent Test — Brown Swiss milk averages 4 per cent butterfat making it ideal for whole milk, butter or cheese.
2. High salvage value — When a cow's milking days are over and she is sold for beef, the bigger the cow the more she's worth. Brown Swiss cows weigh around 1400 pounds and bulls weighing more than a ton are not at all unusual.
3. High production — Brown Swiss cows are uniformly high producers of milk and butterfat. All mature cows on R.O.P. test average 594 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. On H.I.R. test 4,215 cows average 415 pounds in 305 days all ages and classes with no conversion factors being used.
4. Big husky calves — Brown

Swiss calves, as has been pointed out, are big and husky when born. They are worth more for veal, and if they are kept for replacements they are easy to raise and make rapid gains.

5. Good grazers — Big Brown Swiss cows are good grazers. They can utilize lots of cheap roughage such as hay and bundles.

6. Ruggedness — Brown Swiss are rugged and healthy. They have proven themselves in the heat of the tropics and in the cold northern winters. Ray says that during the extremely hot days this summer, production from his cows wasn't lowered in any case more than a quart. In the coldest weather that had descended upon the South Plains since he obtained his cows milk production has steadily been up normal.

7. Quiet temperament — Brown Swiss have a quiet, friendly temperament that makes them pleasant to work with. And, as has been mentioned, Ray finds them a genuinely intelligent animal. The old saying of "dumb as an ox" can't be applied to Brown Swiss, as is readily to be observed by even an inexperienced person.

8. Long lived — Brown Swiss cows are noted for their longevity. Many herds Ray learned, before he acquired stock from this breed, have a high percentage of healthy, useful cows that are 12 and 14 years old.

Dwayne Beal of the Sudan FFA has a half-bred heifer, from a Jersey cow and Ray's bull with which he has won three blue ribbons in Littlefield and Sudan shows. Elsewhere these cross-bred calves have been exhibited the awarding of ribbons has been about the same.

Another advantage Ray points out, and one to which he attributes the extreme useful longevity of the Brown Swiss, is that these cattle continue their growth until they are six or seven years old. "You'll think they're never going to quit growing," he comments.

Big Milk Producers
"There's no reason," he says, "why we shouldn't call them the world's largest producer of four per cent milk. With the usual feed and care, Brown Swiss cows give a large amount of milk consistently averaging four per cent. Some times the milk will test slightly above or slightly below, but it never varies any noticeable degree from the four per cent standard for the breed." And it may be mentioned that Brown Swiss milk is pure white in color, presenting an appearance in the bottle or on the table.

Those who know Ed Ray best will tell you he is a studious man, a deep thinker, a man who is as willing to put in long hours of study, as he is long hours of labor, to advance the cause of agriculture. So, back in 1946 when he was trying to decide on some one particular breed of cattle to place on his farm Ed Ray wasn't wholly satisfied with what he had been told about Brown Swiss cattle. He decided to find out even more about them for himself than other breeders had been able to tell him, and he undertook a historical study of the breed.

Good Disposition
Certainly he prepared himself to tell the visitor about them.

One of his favorite stories is that of the history of their disposition, upon which he so frequently comments. He relates how the Brown Swiss is one of the oldest, probably the oldest, of all the dairy breeds, and is descended from cattle used in the valleys and on the mountain slopes of Switzerland since before historic records were started. It was here says Ray, that the transmitting ability of certain breed characteristics become so firmly established that they mark the Brown Swiss to this day.

The disposition he admires comes, he explains, from the development of the Brown Swiss cow in her native home, where individual care and attention was the general rule. Swiss herdsmen many times spent month after month in the direct care of their herds, and so it is easy for Ed Ray, particularly in view of his experience with these cattle, to see how this practice has been an important factor in developing the quiet, docile temperament that the breed exhibits today. The affectionate disposition of the Brown Swiss, according to cattlemen everywhere, is unequalled by any other dairy or beef breed.

First Imported About 1869

So far as can be ascertained, according to Ray the first Brown Swiss cattle to be introduced into America were imported about 1869 or 1870, and this first importation consisted of one bull, William Tell, and seven females. William Tell is the first bull registered in the "Brown Swiss Record" and the females had such Swiss names as Zurich, Lucerne, Gretchen, Brinlie, Lisa, Christine and Geneva. In the years that followed other small groups were imported. The importation and early growth of the Brown Swiss in this country was mostly in New England.

These facts are mentioned for the reason that it should be pointed out that records are available on every Brown Swiss animal imported into the United States, and every animal registered today can be traced directly to one of the imported animals by an authenticated pedigree. This substantiates the assertion of Ray, and other Brown Swiss breeders, that the Brown Swiss breed, as it is known in America today, is probably the purest of all recognized breeds of dairy cattle. It is definitely believed there has been little or no infusion of foreign blood, no apparent crossing with other cattle throughout the establishment of the breed from the earliest days in Switzerland.

History of Swiss Cattle
The story of these cattle in their native home, as Ed Ray has learned it and reveals it, is a most romantic and interesting one.

For centuries the little Republic of Switzerland peaceful and proud, nestling in the heart of the Alps, has been famous as a dairy center because of these Brown Swiss cattle, and even today it occupies one of the highest places among the nations of Europe in the production of cattle, milk and other dairy products.

Agriculture in Switzerland is far different from that in this country. The people of Switzerland, coming from Germany, Austria, Hungary, Italy and France brought with them their own cultural methods and their native language. The entire country of Switzerland contains only 15,964 sections of land, smaller than some of our larger ranch holdings, and this small country is handicapped by its steep, lofty and impassable mountain ranges with its rolling, twisting valleys as the only tillable areas. The country has been able to develop only because of the attention given to cattle breeding, a system of agriculture which competes successfully with that of other countries. It is the terrain of Switzerland that explains why these people are cattlemen and watchmakers. There is little else they can do.

So the plainsman can understand why the Swiss farmer would have little, if any, use for farm machinery. He must do a large portion of his farm work by hand. And yet, and in spite of these handicaps at least one-half the population of Switzerland is engaged in agriculture. From ages back the greatest attention has been given to selective cattle breeding, which is the pillar of Swiss agricultural industry that is possible in the mountain regions. For many years cattle raising has received special encouragement of awards and premiums through action of the local and national governments. The aim of these awards has been primarily to locate, for extended use, the best females and breeding bulls in the country.

Suitable to Lamb County

The actual breeding places and pastures where the Brown Swiss cattle, in their native habitat, are grazed throughout the summer are from 3,000 to 8,000 feet above sea level. In this connection it may be remembered that Lamb County is at approximately 3,500 feet elevation.

The unusual physical exertions and high altitude under which generation after generation of these cattle have been developed, has no doubt played a most important part in the selection for strength and ruggedness as found in the Brown Swiss breed today as may be seen in the herd on the Ed Ray farm. Raised in the atmosphere of the Alps for centuries and grazed on Alpine grass, this breed has become among the healthiest and hardiest of all cattle.

Each spring, for centuries upon centuries, the herders take their cattle to the mountain pastures, grazing higher up the mountain as the summer progresses. Then as winter approaches, the cattle are returned to the lower lands where they are wintered on the hay grown in the meadows and valleys and on turnips, potatoes and small quantities of grain.

Thus the cattlemen of one of the world's most interesting countries have overcome their geographical handicaps and from their herds of three-quarters of a million head of the world's finest cattle they have produced enough dairy products for their own country plus an annual export of from 70 million to 100 million pounds of cheese.

So goes the story of the Brown Swiss cow in her native home, as Ed Ray, South Plains farmer and cattlemen, tells it.

Suitable to Any Climate
"Neither heat nor cold bother them," he explains. "The Brown

Swiss has proved herself to be the one cow that can master the elements of the world's most rugged areas, and at the same time produce beef, milk and abundant and efficiently. She is ideally suited for the South Plains as well as everywhere else."

Ed Ray's cattle are descended from these Swiss herds that have been developed generation after generation, through the centuries, under Alpine conditions—cold rugged mountains and heat-stifling valleys, and it was from the process of selecting the finest from these herds in Switzerland that animals were obtained for importation to America.

Many Brown Swiss breeders in America may not be able to trace their own ancestry back to the Mayflower, but they sure as heck can trace the ancestry of their herds back to a cattle boat that carried Brown Swiss cattle. From the few importations, numbering about 25 bulls and 130 cows, during the last 75 or 80 years have come the registered Brown Swiss cattle in America today. There are more than 200,000 registered with the association. The numbers of those not registered cannot be estimated. The association was organized in 1880.

Swiss Division at Shows

The growing popularity of the Brown Swiss evidenced by the fact that this year was the first time a division for this breed was provided at the big dairy show at Plainview. Similar stories come from other parts of the country.

The writer attended the Plainview show and the most interesting thing he found there, in some ways, was the interest the people, especially the breeders of other breeds of dairy cattle, showed in the Brown Swiss. Many of them had never seen cattle of this Swiss breed before, and the size and conformation of these cattle, plus the milk production records of the Brown Swiss cows, were almost unbelievable to some of these breeders of Jerseys, Guernseys, Holsteins and Milking Shorthorns.

The grand champion Brown Swiss bull at Plainview this Spring couldn't have been more of a curiosity if he had descended from Venus. People just simply didn't believe there could be such magnificent cattle on the face of the earth. And the writer must confess that although he has been around cattle all his life he had never seen a Brown Swiss until two years ago. They're certainly worth going to see.

And as Ed Ray so proudly points out the centuries of selective breeding for a fixed type and color has produced a uniformity of body conformation and characteristics which mark the breed wherever it is found. These centuries of close breeding have also resulted in a genetic purity which is transmitted with little variation of breed character. The deep-bodied, large size, milky kind of cows uniformly found in Brown Swiss herds are factors that arouse the admiration of every person who looks at them.

Swiss Good Feeders

Moreover, Ray will tell you that the Brown Swiss cow is a good feeder on everything that a cow ought to eat and that she has a great capacity for storing and digesting feed. In their native Switzerland, he likes to remind the visitor, little or no grain, ground or whole, is fed to cows, and hence they are not forced into maturity or pushed in productivity as are cattle in this country, with our stimulating feed and climate, and as a result the Brown Swiss cattle are exceptionally strong in constitution. This explains, too, what has been said earlier, the Brown Swiss keep on growing until they are six to seven or eight years old. "You'll think they're never going to stop growing."

And certainly no dairy breed surpasses the Brown Swiss in the ability to retain flesh and produce large quantities of milk. The dairyman wants a good flow of milk, but he also wants his herd to be smooth and sleek and not an eyesore to his farm, and it's mighty, mighty seldom indeed that any body has ever seen a Brown Swiss cow, beyond the age of dairy usefulness, sell as a canner. That's an important point.

Yes, for many years, Ed Ray has handled many kinds of cattle, but never has he found any as satisfactory, from every standpoint, as the Brown Swiss.

If you don't believe it, just ask him.

When Blind Fan Roots Local Club Conquers

By Howard D. Criswell, Jr.
ROCKY MOUNT, N.C.—Sgt. Leo McMahon hasn't seen a baseball game since before World War I, but he still considers himself the nation's number one fan.

The blind veteran, who lost his sight as a result of mustard gas, is considered a walking good luck charm by baseball players. He always parks himself behind the dugout of the home team.

Since 1924, Sgt. McMahon has visited baseball parks in every state. Club owners, especially those who are losing, welcome him and his good luck powers with open arms.

John McGraw was one of the first to recognize the blind veteran's whammy powers. In June, 1926 with his New York Giants in a losing streak, McGraw took McMahon on a road trip. The Sarge put his powers to work and the Giants swept every game.

The sergeant played in the International League before joining the Army in 1916. As a catcher for Albany, N. Y., he performed from 1910 until 1913. He hit .295. When the war came along he quit medical school and baseball to join the British Expeditionary Forces. He rose to the rank of regimental sergeant major, from where he gets the sergeant in his title, and was wounded four times before the mustard gas robbed him of his battling eyes.

While in a Baltimore hospital for blind rehabilitation, he met his

SMU Football Mentor Prefers Tough Slate

By Harold V. Ratcliff

DALLAS—H. N. (Rusty) Russell, head football man at Southern Methodist, shudders when he discusses his 1951 schedule. Its the toughest in the nation, he says.

Georgia Tech, Ohio State, Missouri and Notre Dame in a row opening the campaign, then six of those blood-thirsty Southwest Conference foes.

But that intersectional schedule that finds the Methodists playing the first two games on the road—Georgia Tech at Atlanta and Ohio State at Columbus—then meeting Missouri in Dallas only to hit the road again the next week to tackle Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., is making even Russell's coaching colleagues in the Southwest feel sorry for him.

"I'd rather play the best ones even if I lose," Russell says. "Sure we could get some set-up games but who would want to see them? My idea is that we play the strongest teams we can find and give the fans some football. If we keep on doing that we might bet to be one of them."

SMU always has played intersectional standouts but only the last five years have the Methodists taken on an average of four of the strongest teams in the country in each season. They just don't put the "warm-up" teams on their schedule.

In the past five years, SMU has played 17 of the nation's top teams, winning 14 games, losing two and tying one. Missouri beat the Methodists once and Notre Dame once, the latter winning by a touchdown in 1949 when it had what was considered its greatest team.

Russell hopes the home fans understand the situation—that it's a lot better to play the best even if you lose than to beat somebody 40 or 50 points.

The only objection Lester Jordan, the business manager of

'Trotter of Year' Title Looms for Star's Pride

By Frank Eck

AP Newsfeatures Sport Editor WESTBURY, N. Y. — Since there is no outstanding thoroughbred among the 3-year-olds, 6-year-old Citation, the only horse ever to win $1,000,000, undoubtedly will be the "horse of the year." This, despite winning only three races in 1951.

Among the standardbred people this problem is missing. Their selection as "trotter of the year" figures to be 4-year-old Star's Pride, a brown colt picked up at a public auction for $2,950.

Still a youngster as trotter's go, Star's Pride holds eight world records. The son of Worthy Boy has won more than $100,000 and may eventually surpass Proximity's record earnings of $252,000 before being retired to the stallion athletics who counts the money at the gate, has to this year's schedule is that it won't allow SMU to set an all-time attendance record.

Last year the Methodists played before 580,447 fans in 10 games—the all-time high. But SMU had five games in the Cotton Bowl where 75,000 can be seated. This year there are only four and the Methodists play in smaller stadia on their road trips. Jordan figures a potential of $90,000 for the four games in the Cotton Bowl but outside of Ohio State, which can handle over 78,000, the other stadia are comparatively small.

Jordan figures SMU can't hope to come within 60,000 of last year's total.

May we suggest a Sitting?

No doubt about it—you'll make a mighty handsome picture in a strapping new '51 Buick.

But it isn't the way you look, but the way you feel that's really important.

We'd like you to discover a Buick's ease and comfort, a Buick's power and performance, a Buick's steadiness and control—just to see if maybe you have been missing a travel treat.

We'd like you to discover what a valve-in-head engine, as Buick builds it—gingered with Fireball combustion—can mean in pulse-pounding thrill and in big miles-per-gallon figures.

We'd like you to learn what coil springs on all four wheels—not just in front—can do in the matter of smoothing a rough road and keeping you on an ever-level keel.

We'd like you to see what generous roadweight and a rigid torque-tube mean in solid steadiness of ride—what Dynaflo Drive* does for you in downright comfort and convenience—what a breeze it is to handle so big and roomy and impressive a car.

Most of all, we'd like you to note the easy-to-take price tags our cars wear what a whale of a lot more automobile you get for your money in today's Buicks than you'll get elsewhere.

So—come in for a sitting soon, we say? Whether you try a SPECIAL SUPER or ROADMASTER, you'll find the top buy in its field—and a beauty from any angle.

Cowboys Make Great Record in Football

The Hardin-Simmons University Cowboys rank tenth in the nation among major college teams for the ten year period, 1941-50, the 1951 Football Guide Shows.

The Cowboys, coached by Warren B. Woodson, scholar of the Winged F formation, compiled the seventh best record in the land for the 1941-45 period, compiling an 80 per cent average.

Hardin-Simmons and Texas University are the only two Texas teams listed in the top 20 over the ten year period.

Notre Dame, Army, Michigan, Texas, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Oklahoma, and Penn State head Hardin-Simmons.

The Cowboys compiled a 71.7 per cent over the ten year period, winning 47, losing 17, and tying 5. Hardin-Simmons, a member of the Border Conference, has three times furnished the nation with its top ball carrier since Woodson became head foreman. Doc Mobley galloped 1,281 yards in 1942 to lead the nation. In 1946 Mobley again led the nation's ball carriers, but failed by 54 yards to equal his 1942 mark. Wilton "Hook" Davis, Hardin-Simmons' 1948 All-Southwestern halfback was the national leader in the rushing department in 1947, carrying for 1,173 yards.

Other men who figured largely in helping the Cowboys compile their outstanding record was John (Model T) Ford, who surpassed Sammy Baugh's pass completion mark, and Bob McChesney, pass catching end.

Ford Surpasses Sammy Baugh's Passing Record

ABILENE, July 23—John (Model T) Ford, throwing quarterback star for the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboys superseded Sammy Baugh's major college record of 267 pass completions last season, the 1951 NCAA Football Guide reveals.

Ford's 111 completions last fall brought his four year total for the Cowboys to 291, not counting some post-season performances.

The Breckenridge, Texas, star, who is signed to play with the Philadelphia Eagles this fall, helped pass Warren B. Woodson's Cowboys to the number two position in the nation last year in pigskin throwing.

The Cowboys were listed second behind another Texas eleven, Southern Methodist University.

Ford was second in overhead yardage in 1950 with 1,177 yards, which ranks as the third best passing figure of all time.

Ford's 111 completions last fall was the sixth best effort in the nation and enabled him to rank fifth nationally in total offense with a mark of 1,720 yards.

The 23-year-old, 169 pound star completed 26 touchdown passes in the 1949 campaign, an achievement that surpasses anything on record. While at the Cowboy school, Ford pitched five touchdowns in three games, against Wichita, Loyola (Los Angeles), and Trinity.

His best effort in single games was established against Arizona State of Tempe, 1950 top offensive team, when he completed 20 of 25 passes, and against Trinity University, 1949, when he passed for a total of 339 yards.

Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Rabe of Switzerland are new Littlefield residents, and are employed at the Payne-Shotwell Foundation. They came to the United States from Switzerland as American Medical Missionaries and spent about two years in California before coming to Littlefield.

Dr. Rabe, who is a medical doctor and surgeon is resident physician at the local Foundation. Mrs. Rabe is a registered nurse and is also employed at Payne-Shotwell Foundation on the nursing staff.

Dr. and Mrs. Rabe spent considerable time at Loma Linda, California, where they were employed in a large medical school, owned and operated by the Seventh Day Adventist Church. They also attended the Pacific Union School located at San Francisco, California, also owned by the Seventh Day Adventists.

In an interview with Dr. Rabe, Thursday, he stated that he and his wife have always wanted to "come to Texas" — and they aren't disappointed with what they found. They are both active in the Seventh Day Adventist Church here, which has a small membership. Services are held here twice a month. There is a large church in Lubbock, which they attend, when services aren't in session here.

41,000 More Will Be Drafted In October

The Defense Department Wednesday called for the drafting of 41,000 men in October—5,000 for the Marine Corps and 36,000 for the Army.

The total for the month is an increase of 6,820 over the previously asked for September, when the Army is to get 28,000 and the Marines 6,180.

The Marine Corps resorted to the draft in August for the first time since the start of the Korean campaign.

Under the call, October will be the third month of drafting for the Marines.

In the August-October period the Marines expect to draft 18,150 men in addition to obtaining recruits through a continuing volunteer program.

The October call for 41,000 is the highest monthly draft quota since March when 80,000 men were requested, all for the Army.

Drafting dropped to a low for the Korean war period in July when only 15,000 men were inducted by the Army.

The display will give fairgoers an opportunity to see under one roof the complete, comprehensive story of the state's production. Products from the Rio Grande Valley to the Panhandle area can be seen side by side, with each area's products shown in their relative importance.

The glamorous, true story of Texas agriculture is told in a series of colorful, animated dioramas, each devoted to an Extension Service district. The dioramas are built like open pages in a giant book and the entire show covers almost an acre in the mammoth Agriculture Building.

In addition to the 14 district displays, dioramas will tell of the work of Negro Extension Service personnel and Four-H Club members.
