E. WHITE CONTRIBUTES

"I think we ought to have less counties in Texas," asserts A. E. White in a communication to the editor of this "colony" What do you think?

"Now that everyone is talking about cutting down expenses, why not take a look at our counties."

"Here are some figures that I have dug up. There are 3,072 counties in the United States. That makes an average of 64 counties for each state. Texas has 254 counties. The population of the United States in 1930 was 122,698,190, which makes an average population per county for the entire United States of approximately 40,000. Texas has a population of 5,821,272, or an average population of 23,000 per county."

"Now, take the 55 counties comprising the Panhandle and South Plains and we find a total population of 525,000, which equals the population of 13 average counties in the United States, and Texas is by no means the only state in which counties could be consolidated."

"There might have been an excuse one time for small counties," concludes Mr. White, "but now we want on foot or roads behind us. But now, with good roads and

CLYDE THOMAS, DEFEATED CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR, ISSUES STATEMENT URGING ELECTION OF ARTHUR P. DUGGAN

Clyde E. Thomas of Big Spring, who was defeated in the first primary in the race for state senator, has thrown his support to Arthur P. Duggan of this city, who is in the run-off with G. E. Lockhart.

Mr. Thomas has issued a statement to the press, which reads as follows:

"Gentlemen: Just wanted to say to the public and particularly to my friends that I am supporting Mr. Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield, in the run off campaign, without any ill feeling to anyone else, but knowing him to be a high class man, thoroughly reliable and worthy of the position.

"He is not a politician and the people should rise up and elect him. The people in the Southern portion of the District will, in my opinion, give him a very heavy substantial support, and the record shows his unusual strength in his own county and adjoining counties in the first primary when he had four candidates against him.

"Yours very truly, 'CLYDE E. THOMAS'

Are Seeking North And South Highway

A group of county commissioners and other officials from West Texas and South Plains counties were in Austin yesterday discussing with the state highway commission the designation of a new road in the western tier of counties.

Counties included in the scheduled list are: Oldham, Deaf Smith, Parmer, Bailey, Cochran and Yoakum. They are asking a designation from highway No. 5 in Hartley county through these counties. At the same time Dallam and Hartley counties are asking for construction of a highway south from Channing in Hartley to Dalhart and designation of a road from Dumas in Moore county to Hartley in Hartley county.

Two months ago the West Texas North and South Highway association was formed in Muleshoe, with delegates from these counties.

J. L. Winder, county judge of Cochran county was named president and Jess Mitchell, editor of the Muleshoe Journal, secretary. These men headed the delegation to Austin.

Average Consumption of Water Daily By City 200,000 Gals.

Littlefield residents are using plenty of water these days, the average consumption per day being 200,000 gallons.

According to Commissioner Hall, the amount was increased Tuesday, as the report showed 210,000 gallons used.

Taxpayers Here Ask Reductions In Assessments

Lower assessment valuations and the maintaining of the present rate of taxation, that of $1.50 per $100 valuation, is, in brief, the wishes of the taxpayers of Littlefield, as expressed at a meeting with the city commission Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting was called for the purpose of giving the taxpayers an opportunity to discuss the city's budget for the fiscal year commencing March, 1932.

The meeting, while suggesting a new basis for the taxing of property, expressed that the city commissioners are rendering excellent service to the city and are carrying out the operation of the city in an economical manner.

On a motion of C. L. Harless, seconded by R. E. Riley, the meeting passed the following resolution:

"BE IT RESOLVED that the City Commission and all citizens of Littlefield, Texas, in attendance at this meeting go on record as objecting to the budget for said fiscal year, as prepared in accordance with law requiring a budget to be prepared showing the expenditures to be made by said city for the fiscal year, and

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the City Commission of said city of Littlefield, Texas, be required to re-assess all properties situated in the limits of said city, subject to taxation, at its cash value as of January 1st, 1932, and in the event any of such properties did not have a cash value on said date, then that such properties be assessed at its real value, and that the rate of taxation be set at the rate of $1.50 per $100.00 valuation."

There was a large attendance at the meeting, and much interest was manifested in matters pertaining to the operation of the city.

Texas Livestock Values Increase Over $14,000,000

Recent upturns in livestock prices have increased the value of Texas 6,127,000 cattle nearly $10,000,000 and Texas' 2,088,000 hogs more than $4,000,000, it is estimated by John C. Burns, manager of the Texas Livestock Marketing association of Fort Worth. Cattle have shown an average increase of $2.60 per head and hogs, each.

There is no indication of a surplus of beef cattle for normal consumption, Burns, in the opinion of Mr. Burns, who points out that the total number of beef cattle in the United States in 1932 is approximately 88,000,000 as compared with 48,870,000 in 1920, a decrease of more than 10,000,000.

To offset this, however, "says Mr. Burns, "the number of calves born in 1932 is expected to be 10,000,000 more than in 1931."

TRADES DAY IS ONE OF BIGGEST BARGAIN DAYS

Littlefield Band Furnishes Entertainment for Crowds Thronging Streets

Monday night in Littlefield proved to be one of the biggest bargain days in the history of the city. The merchants cooperated in making it a Dollar Day, as well as Trades Day, and a large number of the business establishments had set hot specials for the benefit of people of the city and trade territory. People came from far and near to participate in this saving event, and enjoyed the program for the day.

The Littlefield band is to be complimented on their splendid co-operation during the day.

As a special attraction $21.00 in cash was given away, being distributed as follows: one Ten Dollar prize, one five dollar prize and six one dollar prizes.

One example of the value of Trade Day to the merchants of the city, and to Littlefield, is the fact that one merchant reported a twenty percent increase in business over any other Monday. Many other merchants also reported improved business.

The program for the day was in charge of several local merchants, Bob Cobb, J. O. Garlington, C. O. Stone, W. E. Jeffries and W. H. Madden.

Co-Op Livestock Business Doubles Over 1931 Period

Another bright spot on the business horizon is the semi-annual report of the Texas Livestock Marketing Association of Fort Worth showing an increase of 56 1/2 per cent in total cars of livestock handled during the first six months of 1932 as compared with the same period of 1931.

Since starting operation in October last year, the association has handled over 1,000,000 lbs. of livestock.

THE UPSWING HAS BEGUN

Everywhere we hear people speaking more hopefully than even a month ago. That mysterious something which some folks call "public psychology" has definitely changed. Instead of talking "depression" we hear business men, workers, and bankers talking of "better time ahead."

That is not all that is needed to put us back on a sound working basis, but without such a change of mental attitude we would never have a chance to come back. Faith is as essential in business as it is in religion. When folks believe that things can be done, they usually find a way to do them; when they do not believe that anything they can do will do any good, effort ceases.

What has happened is that faith in America and in our American system is coming back. People are no longer afraid. And as fast as that new faith spreads, just as fast will economic conditions improve.

There is no lack of money in America; the lack has been in confidence in investments. Too many people were stung by speculative schemes in the guise of investments, to encourage them to put money they have since accumulated into anything but the soundest and most proved enterprises. But now money is beginning to come out.

We were interested to see the report of the savings bank deposits in the United States for the past few years. They have been growing steadily since 1926, until now 52 million Americans have more than 28 thousand million dollars in this form of reserve alone, an average of more than $500 each! Most of this money will not be easily lured into speculation, but much of it will go into new homes, into small business enterprises, into a thousand other solid and productive investments as soon as the return of confidence becomes thoroughly manifest.

The republicans didn't boast a whole lot about the wonderful Hoover prosperity, nor brag about the empty dinner pail.—Canyon News.

Somewhat we sometimes think we would like for this depression to last until that wolf at our door has starved to death.

Johnny Breen, 16 years old, spent all his life aboard a tugboat plying near the coast of Texas. He was a tough, hard-boiled fellow, and his mother and father, ignorant, school-teacher driven, he grew himself in the friendly, dark-covered truck—only to be at dawn—into the tough gang of boys who chased him. He escaped into a doorway, and hid. One day he returned and taken charge of a tugboat. He was the rear of their second-hand store. He works in the greatest— and is openly courted by the young daughter. . . . The lifts to the home of the Van Horns—on 5th Avenue, lives the bachelor—Gilbert— in whose life there is a chapter. That chapter was an with his mother's maid, who house when he was accused.

drow off his gloves and tossed his cane and hat on a vacant chair. "I'm having a bit of fun tonight, on the Bowery, down at McManus' place. What are you doing?"

"Having a whiskey, sour, what else?"

"All right. Dine with me at Martin's, and then for the mixed-ale scrappers. Malone has a string of terriers, he's trying out a couple of heavies."

"All right, Judge—Ah, Josephine. I want to tell you about her."

"Yes."

"Well, you know, I'm rather lucky about that. Getting to feel like a family man, home, responsibility, and a bit of responsibility. She's entered at the Mason Filters. Sort of has the crowd guessing. Gad, I met her the other day, out walking with a class. Really, I felt as if I was responsible for the whole lot of them. A female gave me a cold stare when I bowed to my ward."

"Gilbert, all you need is a hint, and you'll be a family man, yet."

"I'm thinking seriously of getting an automobile." They talked idly. "Looked at a Panhard the other day, just brought over. The foreign makers are years ahead of us in that."

dress, stepped from a red wheeled hansom. They had dressed the part, a bit of convention in the old city, for the Bowery, and the bums, expected it of the quality.

As they walked, Sol Bernfeld, holding John by the arm, passed the door of the club and entered the fighter's dressing room. It was crowded and a maze of talk and smoke greeted John had learned that he need only fight one opponent at a time, and he knew that leather gloves were far less damaging than brass knuckles. His point of view was typical of his experience. Generally he got five dollars for a fight, not an insignificant amount, and here he might earn fifteen.

"But you got to win. Remember it, John, you got to win to cap the big money." John and Sol were being pushed along a narrow aisle to the ring-side as Gilbert and the Judge took their seats, chatting with the McManus. Blue smoke lifted in the air, drifting in the air, and the fingers of mist. A hum of talk rose between the scraps. It was a male audience; it was a time of hard heroic fighting. A hush fell over the hall as the announcer appeared. John had climbed into the ring, and a million fierce little eyes, terribly close together, in pairs, seemed to be boring at him from all sides of an endless void.

Immediately about him, under streaming light, was stark reality.

"The next bout, gentlemen, an 'I hope it will be a bout'—there was a slight pause filled with boos and jeers—"is between"—and the stout man under the floodlight in the center of the ring brought a piece of paper closer to his eyes—"is between Rasper Jorgan," he waved his hand toward a corner of the squared circle, a dark-skinned muscular youth rose to the introduction, grinning at the crowd, "known as the 'Polack Wonder,' and"—his other hand pointed accusingly at John Breen—"and Fighting Lipvitch."

The fighters had their bandages examined. The gloves were adjusted. The stools were pulled from the corners. All but the referee left the ring. The fighters stood ready. The gong sounded. They wore off, shuffling above the resined canvas. The cold white light pelted down on them. Their bodies glistened, like animated specimens on some monster operating table. The calls of the crowd rose more violent than ever.

The Polack Wonder was picked to win. Cries of "Kill the white-washed kyke! Knock his black off!—But him up! Hit 'er! Kill him!" interspersed with oaths, greeted the senses of John, reeling backward from a hard blow on the nose. The warm salty blood trickling over his lips, sucking into his mouth, filled him with an unmovable rage. Dancing before his narrowed eyes he saw the thing he was after, a cruel fighter who, in those red moments epitomized the enmity of man.

During the first minute of the round, as the fighters, by their actions, revealed a lack of science many of the audience turned their backs to the ring, preferring to discuss matters of greater interest while awaiting the main event of the evening, a much touted bout between third-rate heavies. But on the Rasper Jorgan-Lipvitch fight, the crowd showed spunk, the fans, alert on the instant, turned back to the ring. The tiered seats and the gallery bent over, glued to their chairs and benches. The mephitic air, heavy with stale tobacco and foul with the fumes of whiskey breath, vibrated under the impact of tight fighting gloves pumeling human flesh.

The Rasper landed again and again, then John, seeing an opening, drove his hard right to the chin and laid bare the lower teeth of the Polack. Dark blood oozed from the cut lip in a sluggish stream. A quick left to the jaw, partly blocked by the Rasper, spattered blood over both fighters; the gong sounded the end of the round. Cheers rose from the ringside, cat calls and boos mingled with the din. The stamping of feet and the dust and smoke that lifted above the crowd attested their approval. They were getting blood and action for their money.

Stools were shoved into the ring, and the Rasper was raised to his feet. He spat blood, and a large mouthful of water from a bottle, sprayed the contents over the face and body of his man, while two others massaged his arms and legs, and advisers from the Greenpoint section whispered breathless instructions for the continuation of the battle. Bets were being laid on their man, and partisan Jane shouted encouragement. "Ye get him, Rasper, hit him in the nose, hit white—he is! Plug his wind! Look out for his right knee a bit, Rasper!"

Fighting Lipvitch also had his adherents. Men yelled and howled as he went to his corner where Manager Sol, and a boy, worked over him in clumsy fashion. Sol Bernfeld had failed to provide his man with proper handies. John wiped his nose with a towel and gulped from a bottle of water. Then he sat back on his stool, his arms resting on the lower ropes of the ring. He was without the artificial aid for quick recuperation accorded his opponent. An angry murmur arose from the excited crowd, brought to a close by the ringing of the gong for the second round.

The experienced Rasper ducked and dodged in a waiting game to wind and tire his opponent. Heets and howls of rage greeted these unpopular maneuvers. "The Polack's stallin'!" some one shouted and an empty flask whirled at him, missed, and crashed into the spectators in the opposite ring-side seat. A great cheer for John swept through the crowd as his right fist again, smashed against the jaw of the dodging Rasper with the hard sharp thud of a perfect blow, reeking his man, for an instant, against the ropes. John responded to the change of sentiment with a burst of speed, landing right and left against the body in quick succession and jumping clear of a furious counter blow. Purple blotches rose under the impact of his flats. Then, after a summing minute, a short hook to the wing ended the round. The Rasper staggered to his corner, a look of doubt crossing his battered face. John fell onto his stool, his nose again bleeding, a thick trickle of gore smeared down his throat and over his heaving chest. At a whistle from the trainer two boys from the Samson Club elbowed Sol and his assistant out of the corner, stripped off their coats and began rubbing and blowing water under direction of Pug Malone. A third man swung a towel alternately from his shoulders, fanning air into John's face. They rubbed and kneaded his legs, for fighters like these first. "Play his wind," was the advice of Malone, "don't stop—mind your guard," and the third round was called with the sudden clanging of the gong.

Some is natural fighters, same as some is swimmers," Pug Malone was expounding his views in the dressing room of the Samson Sporting Club, after the fight. "They just naturally know how to fight in a ring, you know."

a punch, an' kick, when it lands. Why dammit, ninety-nine fighters out of a hundred hit like windmills. Now, that kid—Breen's his name, not Lipvitch, he's no kyke—that kid's a born natural fighter."

The Jorgan-Lipvitch fight, ending by a clean knockout in the middle of the sixth round, after a mill filled with fight from start to the count of ten, completely overshadowed the main event in which the mixed-ale pugilists, "Red Herring" Hennessy and Jeff Keegan, floundered around in clumsy buffeting while the crowd dwindled in disgust.

WILL SUPPORT STERLING

George O. Wallace, Dallas County Chairman of the Hunter for Governor campaign, has announced that he will support Governor Sterling in the second primary.

Office Supplies, Royal Portable Typewriters, pin tickets, etc. at the Leader office.

The fact that you again expressed your confidence in me makes me more eager than ever to serve you efficiently as your Tax Assessor, and to this end I shall direct the very best of my ability. This is my personal word of appreciation to each one of you.

ROY GILBERT

To Lamb County Voters:

I very greatly appreciate the splendid support you gave me in the first primary. Your loyalty gave me a substantial vote, and placed me in the second primary.

I very earnestly solicit the continued support of my many friends in the run-off, and shall sincerely appreciate the support of those who saw fit to support any one of my opponents in the first primary.

J. W. (Jake) HOPPING
Candidate for County Clerk

They were off, shuffling above the resin canvas.

They walked down toward 5th Avenue, and beyond to the river, and the Cavalier. Tom Breen was glad to get her at any price.

As Gilbert left home his father pulled him by the hand. "Well, Gilbert, you are a Van Horn, not a Halpert, thank God. The girl may show up again. I suppose she knows how to take care of herself." The words, which now sounded so familiar, rang in his ears. "But let this be a lesson to you."

At the club, however, in the utmost confidence, pouring out a liberal highball of Sherwood, tossed it off and told the whole story to Marvin Kelly, a gentleman who mingled politics with law. "I recall the girl, Marvin, a handsome wench, a figure, if you follow me, and a way with her. Think of leaving my boy clobbered with that."

"He's a Van Horn, all right. Well, here's luck to 'em both."

"How!" and the man tossed off their drink.

The affair never got outside of the Van Horns' home. Servants in those days were loyal; it was still in a time when servants talked, but not for publication.

"I feel like a good scrap tonight." Van Horn stood and flexed his arms. "Wouldn't mind mixing in it myself. Judge, you're a life saver."

The two friends strolled up the avenue in the dusk.

For a block or so each way, groups of letterers, and the curious, talked of the fight. The crowd gradually thickened before the doors of the club. Now and then some notable would appear; the McManus came; then followed the district chief of an adjoining principality in the close feudal system of Tammany; or some sporting celebrity would dash up in a cab. It was more the attraction of the club than any special frame of the contest that drew the mob.

Pug Malone, the trainer, generally put up a show. Boys and men looked on with the perpetual interest of expectation.

with a conscious thing. Judge Kelly had ordered his drink and was considering it. "Joseph Muldoon, a child of seven, was killed on 1st Street last April by one of the new vehicles. There'll be dozens killed every year before we know it. Don't take any chances, Gilbert."

"Depend on me being careful. Judge—here's looking at you!"

For a while they continued to look out on Fifth Avenue.

"Come, Gilbert, let's walk up to Martin's."

"I feel like a good scrap tonight." Van Horn stood and flexed his arms. "Wouldn't mind mixing in it myself. Judge, you're a life saver."

The two friends strolled up the avenue in the dusk.

For a block or so each way, groups of letterers, and the curious, talked of the fight. The crowd gradually thickened before the doors of the club. Now and then some notable would appear; the McManus came; then followed the district chief of an adjoining principality in the close feudal system of Tammany; or some sporting celebrity would dash up in a cab. It was more the attraction of the club than any special frame of the contest that drew the mob.

CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH Sunday, August 7

9:45—Sunday School. Our Superintendent will be away one more Sunday. As we have done in his absence, let's keep the schedule up to a standard. He will appreciate it. 11:00—Morning Worship. The pastor will speak on the subject: A ONENESS. 7:30—B. T. S. Our B. T. S. had twelve representatives in the Association at Amherst last Sunday afternoon, but Luths Chapel was too great for us and took the banner with twenty-four, "hundreds" in attendance. Our union brought home the efficiency banner on a grade of seventy-four and one half, but Luths Chapel was a close second with an average grade of seventy three. Just a little work on the part of our adults will help this branch of the work. We will not hold our regular evening service in the church, but will join with the Methodists in their revival. We extend to the general public a hand of welcome to all our services. We invite you because we want you to worship with us and enjoy your fellowship. Joe F. Grizzle, Pastor.

METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday, August the 7th has been announced for something as the opening day of our SUMMER REVIVAL. How I wish I could get the message of my heart to the ear of every man, woman and child in Littlefield and the surrounding vicinity. A great revival is coming our way, God is the power on the throne. The young people are sponsoring this revival, how that rejoices the heart of God. That is the reason we say that a real revival is coming. What a mighty thing for young people in this 1932 to be the first group to say we are for this meeting and back it by their actions. They have been working for a month making plans, meeting and getting organized for this place of leadership. Littlefield, may I say to you, you are welcome to these services. We are planning for a town meeting, and welcome you to all privileges of this revival. The young people will direct the music, so plan for the best songs, singing you have ever heard. All the young people of the town are to be placed waiting for them in this young peoples choir. God is on the giving hand, get ready to bring your joys, your sorrows, your praise, your disappointments to the greatest of friends. Some of our people are happy in service this week getting things out of the way so that these next two weeks may be a concentrated time of harvesting for the Lord. ARE YOU IN THAT GROUP? Oh, God we pray lead the way and send thy spirit to the hearts of the people. Next week there will be no day services at the church but there will be prayer meetings in every section of the town. This is for the convenience of the people. A prayer meeting near enough that every one will be in walking distance of it is our plan. In the business section plans are under way for a group meeting of the men. The young people will meet each evening at eight o'clock in their assembly room for a special meeting. Especially do we wish to say to the other churches of the town, come over and worship with us, lend a helping hand, link together to enthroned Christ as King of Littlefield. May we. JOE E. BOYD, Pastor.

Who Discovered It?

I was a printer's devil some 20 years ago on a small city weekly. It was a hard job for the editor-owner to sell advertising in those days. Merchants simply didn't believe in it. About fifteen years ago the small city weekly was "discovered." Advertising men in city advertising agencies began "trying out" the country newspaper field. Gradually they found out that the small city weekly, with its advantage of being read from cover to cover, with its relatively few pages of competing advertising, was an excellent buy for national advertisers. None of this advertising was bought on sentiment, none of it was purchased to support the paper. It was bought for just one reason—it paid. The local merchants had not "discovered" the value of advertising space in the small city weekly. The very men who should have known its value, did not, for the very simple reason they had not used it enough to find-out about it. Many small city merchants are passing up today the opportunity to use the productive columns of the weekly newspaper to sell their goods more cheaply, more quickly, more profitably.

We Think

Private business is made to pay by consolidation when necessary. Why could not the same common sense be used by the counties? What an army of officers could be cut off of the payrolls?

GOOD WILL TRIPS

There is nothing under the shining sun that will build and cement friendship more quickly for a city than good will trips of its citizens into adjoining territory.

"Another trip will be staged today. It will take the "troopers" over a route of fully 175 miles. The delegation of "goodwillers" left about 8:00 o'clock in something like 25 cars.

WE THINK

That Littlefield business men should make a series of good will trips into the territory hereabouts. That we should ask the Chamber of Commerce or the Retail Merchants association to sponsor the trips.

Two Die From Burns Suffered Sunday Near Whitharral

When their home near Whitharral was destroyed by fire about 8:45 Sunday morning, Donald Armstrong, aged 2, son of Mrs. Olive A. Mott, and J. H. Teague, aged 26, brother of Mrs. Mott, sustained such severe burns that they died soon after. Mrs. Mott, also received burns, but is recovering at the Lubbock Sanitarium. Teague passed away at 9:15 Sunday evening, and the child about 11:15 Monday morning. The fire occurred about 8:45 Sunday morning in a house Mrs. Mott occupied at the Mace Herndon farm, about 14 miles northeast of Levelland, when the woman was filling the gasoline tank on the stove, which was still hot at the time. The woman's clothing caught fire, and flames broke out in the kitchen, in which the stove was located. As Mrs. Mott was beating at her burning dress, Teague, who was in another part of the house, rescued the two-year old boy, who was seated in a high chair in the kitchen. He twice ran a gauntlet of flames to rescue his nephew.

All three were taken to Levelland, where they received emergency treatment, and were received at the Lubbock Sanitarium about noon.

Mrs. Mott is a sister-in-law of Robert Armstrong, who is connected with the A. & N. Store here.

Funeral services for Donald Armstrong were conducted at the Whitharral Baptist Church at 8:30 P. M. Monday by Rev. R. C. Malone, pastor of the Baptist Church, Plainview, and interment took place in the Whitharral Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Home, Lubbock. Besides his mother, he is survived by two brothers, Garland Armstrong, aged 5, and Cecil Armstrong, aged 8.

The body of Teague left Lubbock about 6 P. M. Monday for Hollis, Okla., where burial was expected to take place Tuesday afternoon. The father, R. C. SCOUTS Enjoy Trip

By EUGENE LATIMER

Monday, July 25, we left Littlefield about 9 A. M. for Carlsbad Cavern, with 24 boys from troops 25 and 26. About six miles out we lost about two hours due to a blown fuse. About 40 miles out a rear tire blew out, delaying us almost the rest of the day, just getting across the Mexico line the first day. Tuesday we went into Carlsbad and spent the afternoon inspecting the irrigation plant, and swimming.

Wednesday we went to the Cavern and joined a party, making a total of 871 persons, starting through at about 10:00 A. M. The most wonderful things that we have ever seen were in the cave. The various formations, deposits, statuary work, images and colorings are works of art, seemingly impossible by even the forces of nature. One would think it impossible were it not that one comes in close contact with them and can see them in reality. Some of the rooms contain possibly the greatest work of art creation ever known. The King's room contains more statuary than any other cave room to its size known. The Queen's room is a work of artistic beauty, containing almost a replica of a bath room with the water faucet protruding from the wall, all of gypsum and other deposit formations. There are several statues resembling very much statues of objects, as the squaw and papoose, Tatapoos, King, women and child in bathing suits, baby hippo and others. We think this is a trip every person should make if possible.

There were a number of states represented in the group. We were leaving with from 32 to 36, with Texas leading with 187, Canada 4 and Korea 4. We completed our trip coming out about 4:10 p. m. and returned to Carlsbad for the night.

Thursday we went by way of Artesia to Cloudcroft, where we used all the cover we could get. The hill we camped on was so steep that some of the boys slid out of their beds and were rolled up in their cover on the ground when they woke up the next morning. Leaving Cloudcroft about 9:30 a. m. we went across the Mesquitera Indian Reservation, by Mesquitera, the Indian Agency. (However we only saw a few homes and a few Indians. Some tepals built of brush but most all shacks.) To Ruidoso. Ruidoso is a very beautiful camp ground, extending 2 or more miles up the Ruidoso River. Many beautiful cottages and camping sites along the river. The temperature and water is fine there.

Leaving Ruidoso about 8 a. m. Saturday we came by way of Roswell and Clovis, arriving home about 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

Everyone enjoyed the trip, had lots of fun and saw many things new to them.

In conclusion, we want to thank everyone who helped make it possible in any way for the boys to make the trip. We feel that your donations were well spent and that the boys appreciate it very much. We hope next summer the Troops will be in a position to go again at their own expense.

Eugene Latimer, Scout Master.

Club Work for Older Youth

Club leaders are giving a good deal of thought these days to interest the older rural boys and girls in home projects. These range in age from 16 up to as high as 26 and 30 years.

Minnesota club leaders are doing a fine piece of work in this line. They have what is called a partnership between the child and the parent. It may be either parent. This project has been carried on for several years. Over 500 boys and girls are in such partnerships this season.

The projects are much the same as for the regular club members, but in some instances they take on rather large proportions. For instance, a dairymaid in Brown county this spring effected a partnership with his four sons. In this deal the profits will be divided according to contract.
