Billions of barrels of Texas oil reserves mean money in the bank for you as a Texan.

On constant deposit in underground vaults, they assure continued wages for Texas workers, lease and royalty payments for Texas farmers and ranchers, and tax revenues for our State and local governments.

Nearly 11 billion barrels of known oil reserves are on tap in 161 counties of our State. Texas oil men are now searching for new fields in 90 additional counties. They discovered last year almost three times as much oil as they produced.

These oil reserves can be cashed only through their production and processing by Texas workers.

As a means of safeguarding this backlog of economic security, you as a Texas citizen can and should expect:

(a) Sound conservation practices, (b) A reasonable taxing policy by State and local governments to permit healthy development without loss of employment through abandonment of properties, (c) Increased use of this great fuel source through creation of new Texas industries.

These oil reserves provide security for you and every other Texan

Twenty-Eight Peaches Grow On 6-inch Twig

Indications are that there will be a bumper fruit crop in this section this year.

J. M. Blessing, farmer of three miles east of Littlefield, on the Lubbock highway, brought to the Leader office Thursday a small twig, measuring about six inches, broken from a peach tree, on which there were 28 peaches. This twig is on display in the Leader office.

Mr. Blessing has eight or ten peach trees, and a number of cherry and plum trees. He states that all his fruit trees are heavy with fruit though he says the plum trees have not as much fruit as the Cherry and Peach trees.

Mr. Blessing said that he would have to pick some of the fruit off the trees, otherwise it would break the limbs off.

He said he had never seen the fruit hanging so heavy on the trees as they are this year, and barring hail, or other damage, a bumper crop is predicted.

There's No Argument About the Fertility

Kenedy, Texas. —(UP)—Farmer Henry Koehler, Sr., grew a 13-pound radish. Of the "White Giant" variety, it measured 18 inches in length and seven inches around the waist. Koehler said he got tired of other folks bragging about their garden produce.

"I went out into my back yard and pulled up some evidence", he said. "It wasn't the largest radish, either".

Koehler sent it to U. S. Rep. Lyndon B. Johnson at Washington "so he can prove some of his stories about the fertility of Texas soil."

Band School To Be Conducted At Tech June 4 to July 14

LUBBOCK, April 30 — Young band players, both in and out of college, and band teachers in the state will attend the eighth summer band school at Texas Technological college June 4 to July 14.

Having the list of visiting instructors again this year is Dr. A. A. Harding, director of the University of Illinois bands, who will be guest conductor of the senior band from July 7 to July 12. Dr. Harding will play many selections from the Illinois band library besides heading clinic sessions on 1942 contest numbers.

Other visiting instructors include R. A. Dhosche of San Antonio who will direct the intermediate band; Col. Earl D. Irons, director of the N. A. T. C. band in Arlington, who will offer a short course in practical arranging for band and cornet the week of June 23; and Milburn E. Carey, director of the Phillips university band of Enid, Okla., at present warrant officer of the 189th field artillery band at Camp Barkley.

Last summer 200 students and band teachers were enrolled in the three divisions of the band school. The college division offers credit work to college students of undergraduate standing. The graduate division is for students who have completed work for the bachelor's degree, and the preparatory division includes junior and intermediate bands. For boys and girls of elementary and high school standing, this division offers an ensemble instruction in keeping with the student's musical advancement, according to Director D. O. Wiley.

Band students will be permitted to purchase summer recreation tickets for the entertainment features offered on the campus four evenings each week.

COTTON HARVESTED IN 1940 REACHES 3,285,000 BALES

Cotton harvested in 1940 is estimated at 3,285,000 bales on 8,523,000 acres, with an average of 185 pounds an acre. The acre average in 1939 was 160 pounds on 8,520,000 acres and the ten-year average, 149 pounds. The ten-year harvest average, however, is 3,876,000 bales and the average, 12,584,000. Production exceeded that of 1939 in every district excepting eight, Miller says, notwithstanding that unfavorable weather shortened production in the northwestern area of the state toward the end of the season.

More Officers For Texas Highways Is Proposed

Senator A. M. Akin of Paris estimates that it costs $3,500 to $4,000 to keep a highway patrolman on the road. Their average salary is $2,000 (base pay for a private is $1,800 a year) and in addition automobiles or motorcycles must be purchased and maintained and uniforms purchased. Each patrolman is furnished two uniforms a year, but he must pay for their upkeep.

The state has 234 uniformed men at present, including Director Homer Garrison, in addition to clerical employees of the Department and garagemen. A bill before the Legislature to levy a driver's license would increase the number of patrolmen in accordance with the income from the license fee law that is finally adopted. A 50-cents-a-year license, sponsors say would provide for 200 more patrolmen.

The present forcey patrols part of the State's 26,000 miles designated road. They are assigned according to density of traffic and to hazards on the road. This year crews usually checking motor vehicles for mechanical defects and testing drivers have been transferred to active patrol duty in areas where traffic has increased because of National Defense Projects.

Under THE DOME At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press
Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Tex., May 5—(UP)—Now that the legislature has decided that motorists should be willing to pay 25 cents a year as accident prevention insurance in the form of a driver's license fee to maintain 110 additional highway patrolmen, the solons can now turn their attention to some non-cost accident prevention.

They get much first hand information in the capital city. If they walk from a downtown hotel or restaurant to the capitol they find drivers of cars swinging at high speed into right turns where red lights stop a straight go-ahead.

Austin permits right turns on red lights, but the drivers ignore the provision that they must slow down or stop before making the right turn. If legislators come to the capitol from the north they dodge cars rushing into the capitol drive with complete disregard of the "slow" sign at the entrance.

No legislator has been hit yet in going to the capitol. One state employe is permanently disabled from an accident at the north entrance. A former mansion watchman was killed at the south entrance.

Austin, too, gives the legislators a liberal demonstration of the way the headlight and tail-light law is ignored by both motorists and police.

The state has citrus weeks, potato days and "eat meat" periods. One night devoted generally to enforcement of the vehicle light law probably would save many lives.

Any community could afford to station one officer at the city or town limits to stop every automobile or truck that tried to enter without the required two headlights and a tail-light. State police could catch them in between cities.

Of course, the night could not be proclaimed or be publicized in advance, for its effect would be limited to providing one night of safety from the violators. They would not take their cars or trucks out that night. But if the date were kept secret and the enforcement started without warning, the cars and trucks that would be required to put on proper equipment would reduce accident danger for months.

Count on the college student to write a snappy headline: "He Shook Hands With the Great White Father"

The story in the Daily Texan, University of Texas newspaper, described the visit of retiring Student President J. Ward Fouts of Dallas with President Roosevelt. Young Fouts was in Washington to attend a meeting of students interested in aid-to-Britain.

Federal Land Bank Begins Twenty-Fifth Year Of Service

The Federal Land Bank of Houston, owned by farmers and ranchmen in the 314 National Farm Loan Associations of Texas, began its twenty-fifth year of service April 3 as one of the largest banks in the system and in strong condition, according to its president, Sterling C. Evans.

"Land Bank loans since organization in 1917 have passed the 96,000 mark," Evans said, "and one fourth of them have been repaid in full. Loans outstanding on March 15 were 67,285 for a total of $187,886,842.45.

"Earnings during recent years have been at their highest level and reserves have been strengthened. Capital stock of $11,502,260 and reserves and undivided profits of $31,089,918.62 are all owned by the National Farm Loan Associations, and through them by the individual member-borrowers. All government-owned stock has been retired.

"Much of the credit for the strength of the institution belongs to the local National Farm Loan Associations and a great deal of individual credit goes to the leadership of such men as the late Judge M. H. Gossett and to Judge S. A. Lindsey of Tyler, who have helped guide the institution for so many years and kept the cooperative features foremost."

The Land Bank system, said Evans, has "pioneered in long term credit to meet the needs of farm and ranch families and has stood the test of twenty-four years in which there were war years, readjustment periods, 'boom' and depression times and unprecedented drought and market situations.

"Farm mortgage conditions are quite different today from those of 1917 when the bank was established. Terms today run as long as 34 1-2 years as compared to the early day 3 to 5 year mortgages which sometimes came due in full amount when it was difficult to re-finance them.

"Interest rates in 1917 were up to ten per cent or more, while today they are the lowest in history—a contract rate of four per cent.

"Today's long term, low interest farm mortgage is based on normal agricultural value rather than fluctuating value and it is amortized so that interest and principal are liquidated in small payments out of earnings.

"There have been provided deferments in worthy cases during depression years, and conditional payments have been encouraged in good years to enable borrowers to build up cash reserves to tide them over the lean years."

He said the percentage of loans in good standing is high and the number of farms owned by the bank is the smallest in many years.

"While much has been accomplished for agriculture in these twenty-four years, the clear challenge as we enter this silver anniversary year is to be prepared constantly to meet the rapidly changing situation facing agriculture by providing farm and ranch families with the type of long-term mortgage credit best suited to their needs."

Large Bones Found In Gravel Pit

A large tusk or horn, measuring seven and one-half feet long, was discovered in a gravel pit on the Clem Johnson farm, 18 miles southwest of Littlefield recently by M. L. Vaughn, while he was working in the pit.

Sand and gravel was brought from the pit and used in the construction of the Littlefield post office.

Mr. Vaughn stated that the bone was semi-circular in shape and was about three and one-half feet in circumference in the center, tapering to about one and one-half feet at each end.

A human skeleton was found in the pit last year, and several other large bones have been dug up recently, he said.

Here's Good News For Plains Fishermen

According to present plans, four or five of the government lakes in the Texas Panhandle that were constructed under sponsorship of the Panhandle Water Conservation Authority will be opened for fishing around July 1, this year, H. H. Finnell, Regional Conservator of the Soil Conservation stated.

The Conservator felt that many Panhandle fishermen might be disappointed because the lakes are not opened for fishing sooner, but he stated that the best advice obtainable by the Government from its own biologist and the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission was that most of the lakes should not be opened until about July 1.

Although the exact opening date for fishing has not been set as yet on any of the lakes, Finnell stated that the Wolf Creek Lake near Perryton, the McClellan Lake near Jerico, the Boggy Creek Lake near Canadian, and the Tulia Lake probably will be opened for fishing around July 1 and Buffalo Lake near Umbarger may be opened if spring rains are plentiful and the water again reaches a level where fishing is advisable.

I'LL TUNE OUT THE ALKA-SELTZER ANNOUNCEMENT
Don't—THAT'S THE MOST IMPORTANT THING YOU'LL HEAR TONIGHT

"When statements about Alka-Seltzer are made over the air, please, please believe them."
Mrs. Oma Catherine Jones

MILLIONS suffer less from Headache, Acid Indigestion, Distress of Colds "Morning After" and Muscular Fatigue because they have heard—and believed—Alka-Seltzer radio announcements.

To these millions, the relief obtained by the use of Alka-Seltzer is worth far more than the genuine enjoyment they get from the broadcasts.

The most important parts of our radio program, both to you and to us, are the commercial announcements. Once you have tried Alka-Seltzer we believe you will agree with us.

But try Alka-Seltzer because it is an unusually effective medicine not because you enjoy the radio programs.

WHY ALKA-SELTZER IS SO EFFECTIVE
The pain-relieving analgesic in Alka-Seltzer is in complete solution, ready to ease the distress as soon as you swallow it. The pain-relieving action is made more effective by alkaline buffers.

The alkalinizing elements in Alka-Seltzer reduce excess stomach acidity.
Get Alka-Seltzer the next time you pass a drug store.

AMBITION REALIZED

A girl thirteen years old was asked to recite a "piece" in school. She got out a book of recitations and decided upon the famous old classic, "The Battle of Blenheim." The big night came, her father and mother and sisters and brothers were there to see her do herself proud. But she didn't do herself proud. She was so frightened that she became sick at her stomach, and turned and left the stage in disgrace. Thirteen years later she was considered the most promising new actress in America. Her name? Katharine Hepburn.

She wanted to become a movie actress, but no Hepburn in history had even been an actor, or an actress, and none of her mother's family had ever been on the stage. When the girl told them that she wanted to be a movie actress, her family was shocked and horrified. What—a Hepburn an actress! Never!

She wanted to go to movie shows, but they would not let her. Words flew and finally her family compromised by letting her go to see Western movies of cowboys. Her favorite actor was William S. Hart. And he was the one she studied and tried to emulate as a model for screen technique. In other words, she studied a cowboy actor to become the queen of emotional acting!

After graduating from Bryn Mawr college, she heard that a man in Baltimore was putting on a show; so she got on the train and went to Baltimore and applied for the acting job. And, by a stroke of luck, she got it, and began rehearsals. The play opened. The next day she picked up the paper breathlessly to see what it said about her. And here it was, just one word: "inadequate."

She got parts in three different plays—and was fired from every one of them for incompetency.

She appeared in a few Broadway plays, and then one day received a telegram inviting her to Hollywood. Hollywood expected her to ask $200 or $250 a week. This is the telegram she sent back:

"I'll come for $1,500 a week."

The movie company thought she meant $150 and wired to see if the telegraph company had added a cipher by mistake.

Her wire back read:

"I am the one who made the mistake. Fifteen hundred a week is too little."

Well... she got the job.

And that is the story of the girl who made such a mess of "The Battle of Blenheim" that she ran off the stage.

Mothers' Day

"Woman is the mightiest power in the World, and it lies in her hand to lead man whither the Almighty God would have him go"

Mother's Day

The theme of the old song, "I didn't raise my boy to be a soldier" must be thumping on the heart strings of millions of mothers throughout the world as we approach Mother's Day.

It has always been the fervent prayer of mothers everywhere that their children would grow up to enter into a peaceful, safe and prosperous existence and that the scourge of war would never approach them.

But in addition to her love and fear for her children, the American mother has a love of country which is inextricably interwoven with hopes for her children. Ever since this country was founded we have constantly aimed at having more freedom, more opportunity and more prosperity for all. The present American mothers before her, considers these goals essential to the permanent welfare of her children.

No mother wants war. But the American mother will face war bravely rather than permit the destruction of our way of life and the ideals toward which America has constantly struggled. No mother can find hope for real happiness for her children when a powder keg is smoldering under the foundation of her country.

Let us hope that by some miracle the prayers of the mothers of the world will bring the destruction of life to a quick end and that the world's stage may soon be set, once again:

a background of peace—a setting in which mothers may plan bright futures for their children.

The Talking Bible

Many attempts have been made in recent years to give new life to the Bible in an effort to get young people more interested in its teachings. Modernized versions of the Bible have been revised and a general effort has been made to keep religion in accord with the many changes in our way of life.

One of the most interesting endeavors along this line is the new Talking Bible being sponsored by The Bible Foundation of New York City.

In a recording studio, the Foundation has had talented actors and actresses bringing the Bible characters to life—acting out the famous Bible stories for recordings. Now the records, which will eventually include all of the important Bible stories, are being offered to radio stations, churches and any other interested organizations.

The Bible Foundation is a non-commercial, non-sectarian organization supported by donations from people interested in its work. Its whole purpose in preparing these recordings are not sold or rented but are offered, without charge, to interested groups.

Many of us, undoubtedly welcome the opportunity to hear the beautiful stories of the Bible brought to life.

Governor O'Daniel Signs Omnibus Bill

Completing enactment of the legislature's answer to Texas' social security problem, Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel at 11:15 o'clock Thursday night signed a $22,000,000 tax bill, the biggest ever approved in this state.

The measure more than doubling old age pension funds and inaugurating aid to the needy adult blind, aid to dependent children and state matching of teachers' retirement contributions, was rushed to the governor's mansion a few minutes after Speaker Homer Leonard and Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson had signed it.

The governor, a secretary said, affixed his name to the bill in his bedroom at the mansion with the statement "signed as of May 1." Some portions of the multiple levy-tax became effective immediately.

The bill increased old taxes or levied new ones on oil, gas, sulphur, telephone companies, utilities, motor vehicle sales, liquor, franchises, liquor prescriptions, cosmetics, radios, playing cards, carbon black, common carrier and contract and commodity carrier motor vehicles, stock transfers, oil and gas well servicing, motor fuel, insurance companies and cement distribution.

NERVOUS DISORDERS CAUSED FROM WRONG DIET SAYS C. H. D. A.

Many of our people are suffering from "nervous disorders" only because their diets have been deficient in certain vitamins. Food experts are urging more whole grain products in the daily diet, the reason lies in vitamins, iron and other nourishing and body building factors which whole grain products offer.

Whole grain products include rolled or cracked oats, graham or wholewheat flour, brown rice and some types of rye or bean flour.

Below is a recipe for serving whole grain products:

- Wheat Cereal Raisin Pudding
- 3-4 cup scalded milk.
- 1-2 cup cracked or rolled wheat.
- Soak the wheat in milk for 5 minutes. Then cook over a low flame for 5 minutes.
- 1 well beaten egg.
- 1 cup milk.
- 4 T. sugar.
- 1-2 cup raisins.
- Pinch of salt.

1-2 t. cinnamon.
1 T. melted butter.
Mix all together and then stir in the wheat. Pour the pudding into an lled baking dish. Bake in a very slow oven for 45 minutes. May be served with cream.

NEWS QUIZ

1. The country of Iraq is important to the battling nations of Europe because: (a) of its fertile grain fields; (b) of its supplies of oil; (c) of its many desert warriors; (d) it is the historic "gateway to Russia".
2. U. S. treasury officials are of the opinion that a general sales tax is the best method of raising money to meet the costs of the defense program . . . Is this statement true or false?
3. In the news of fighting on the Greek front, the name "Thermopylae" was very much in evidence. "Thermopylae" is: (a) new type Nazi dive bomber; (b) Greek general whose first name was Alexander; (c) a strategic mountain pass; (d) a strategic Greek port.

The SNOOPER SAYS . . .

Sunday, May 11, we will pause in the busy whirl of everyday life to honor either the memory or the living person of our most beloved MOTHERS.

Memories of the sweetest lady we know!

Back to the time when I was small . . . when no trouble was so serious that she couldn't sooth me . . . laughing with me when pleasures came my way. To me . . . the sweetest "music this side of heaven" means my Mother and My Father playing and singing the many songs they learned in their youth.

Mother's hands, gnarled through the years with hard work for her family, still touch the piano keys softly, and her voice, as she sings either soprano or alto, rings in my ears, and I realize that life would not be complete without this voice.

And—My Father singing the gruff notes of bass or reaching the highest in tenor, brings joy untold to my soul.

My Dad met my Mother when they were both very young, and I can picture Mother as she sits at the organ in the little country church, dressed in an organdy dress with ruffles . . . and Father fanning her as he leads the singing.

Another young man courted Mother who meant much to her. But I am glad she chose my Father!

While their children were all at home, we would gather around the old organ in the evening, and in later years, the piano, which is still a family shrine, for that is the favorite pastime when the children and grandchildren go "Home."

Only the past few years we realize the many sacrifices they made for us . . . Always managing for a new dress or a tennis racket, while they wore their old clothes.

Mother laughing with me . . . when I had a new beau . . . Mother understanding me . . . when I had my brainstorms . . . Mother hoping and praying for me . . . that I might realize my ambitions and my dreams.

Mother standing in the doorway . . . as I galloped across the prairie on a horse that had not been ridden before . . . Mother always calling to me . . . when I arrived home after spending the evening out. Mother—calling to me—as I leave

These Three Loves

by Louis Arthur Cunningham

CHAPTER VII

Synopsis

Lovely, red-headed Gillian Meade lives with her bachelor Uncle Anselm at Rydal House in Eastern Canada. Realizing that the family fortune is nearly exhausted, Gillian accepts wealthy Jon Hillyer's proposal of marriage, although she does not love him. At a house party at Jon's, she meets Simon Killigrew, best friend of the late Jaffry Clay, a poet to whom Gillian had been engaged. Simon blames Gillian for Jaffry's untimely death. When Jaffry is thrown from one of Jon's horses, it is Simon who picks her up, at the same time murmuring his love for her. Gillian returns home, and Simon's words of love remain in her memory.

Jon was called to Winnipeg. Gillian felt strangely relieved to know that he would be gone a fortnight. She met Killigrew one chill night of early autumn by the shores of Rydal water. They looked at each other in silence for a long, long time—for what seemed an eternity. Then he said, "I had to come, Gillian—I stayed away from you as long as I could."

"It's no use, Simon," she said. "You should not have come. I should not have let you see—" "That you feel the same way?" "We'll have no more of 'should' and 'ought' with you. I love you. I think I must have loved you from the moment I saw you." "Strange way you had of showing it." "I know. I was—" "Don't mind me. The things you said didn't hurt me, Simon. What did hurt was that you were the one who said them."

"They were not true. Will you tell me what is true in the story of you and poor Jaffry? You could set me right, Gillian." She smiled queerly. "But that's not it. I couldn't set you right."

"You mean that there is truth—" "Not the kind of truth you speak of. What is there is buried with him. It can never be disinterred now—not even for this."

"Not even for our love?" "I'm going to send you away, Simon," she said softly. "This time you are not to come back to me."

"And you will go ahead and marry Jonathan Hillyer?" "Just as I planned to do."

"I love you, Gillian." "That's what you think. It isn't really so. I might tell you that there is nothing in my life that I need be ashamed of. I can tell you that." She frowned in bewilderment. "But do you believe me?" "Of course I believe you."

"Right now you do. For a while you would. Then you would remember the old stories, the old it for what it's worth." "More—there's more. Some real son—" "There is no more. You're the only one I've told. I tell it to you so you'll hate me again—if you ever loved me—and go on hating me. Oh, no, no! I don't mean that, Simon. Whatever you think of me, don't hate me."

"I love you, Gillian. Nothing you may do, nothing you have done can make any difference." "As your enemy I can love you; as your wife, I might get to hate you. I think of that, Simon. It's been all on your side so far. Think if I should hate you as you hated me."

"Still I'd love you. Let's forget all that's gone before. Let's begin again, you and I, Gillian." "If I could believe that it would thoughts you had of me. And presently you'd begin to ask me with your eyes, to watch me and to speculate, and then you'd question me with words. You'd nag at me to tell you about Jaffry Clay and me. And I couldn't tell you—do you hear?"

Gillian, don't you realize this is your wedding you're talking about?

"But it's not true—oh, I hate myself for asking you this—it's not true that he went to pieces because you threw him over?" "He said, 'If you throw me over, Gillian, I won't go on living. I'll drink myself to death—that's a pleasant way. And you can always remember that it was you who told me to take it.'"

"And you—you had told him you loved him?" She laughed then. "I had. Take be that way, I'd go with you tonight, Simon."

"Come with me, Gillian. Come with me!" He took her roughly into his arms and strained her close, close to him and buried his face in the golden thickness and fragrance of her hair. His lips were on hers. She clung to him when at last he let her go.

"Now—now will you come?" Gillian ran then, eluding him. She heard him call, "Gillian, Gillian!"

There was a note from him waiting for her in the morning when she came downstairs. She pounced upon the note, yet she was afraid to open it. There must be no more between them. There could be no more. She carried the letter out into the fading garden, to the grape arbor that had been a childhood retreat for her and Deborah. He had written from the Rydal Arms, last night—

"Gillian, darling Gillian; I have just returned from Rydal Water, from what I find is hard to realize was not a dream. Why did you leave me like that. Don't you know you can never escape me now? What seemed to stand between us does not matter now—nothing matters save this—I love you. Simon."

Slowly she read and reread it and folded it and returned it to its envelope. "You will not come back, Simon," she said. "We've known all that we will ever know of love. It has to be enough."

She longed now for Jon's return. To Anse, who was waiting for her at the breakfast table she said, "I'll be going up to the city tomorrow, Anse. I want to make a start on my trousseau and I'm going to make a whirlwind job of it. There'll be no big church wedding, we'll do it quickly and simply."

"Hmm, yes. Just a minor operation, to be sure, having someone grafted on to you for life. Nothing to give a second thought to. 'Here we are parson, hitch us up!' Gillian, don't you realize this is your wedding you're talking about?" "Don't be morbid, Anse."

"Just why are you rushing things with Hillyer? I know. You can't fool me. There's something pushing you, something that you're afraid of. By gosh, it's young Killigrew! He's been after you, hasn't he?" "I met him last night down by Rydal Water."

"He's in love with you. He came to tell you that, to try to dissuade you from going through with this idea of marrying Hillyer. And what he said shook you quite a bit. Now, you look here, young Gillian:

you're not going to rush into marriage with Hillyer just because you have some crazy notion that love is something not to be trusted—"

She shook her head. "It's not that, Anse. Not a question of trust, think I could trust love well enough. There are other things."

"I'll say more, Gillian." Jon Hillyer telephoned Gillian to tell her that he had just landed at St. Hubert Aerodrome. "And am I glad to be back, and happy to hear your voice. Tell me, how are you? Is everything the same for you and me?"

"Yes, Jon." She prayed the telephone would take care of the undertone of doubt, of uncertainty in her voice. "I haven't been doing much, waiting for your return. I had planned to go to the city tomorrow."

"Good. You come on the morning train?" "Yes."

"I'll meet you at the station. I love you, Gillian." Anse marched into the hall as she hung up. He had come from the library. "What is it Anse?"

"I'm writing to Deborah. I thought perhaps you'd like to take her with you tomorrow."

Gillian jumped at the chance. Deborah would be a splendid shock absorber, both in regard to Jon and—there was another prospect, another fear; she might meet Simon Killigrew. If she did meet him, she wanted others around her.

He looked over her shoulder before he went on with his letter—and it seems to me, Deborah, that Gillian is quite blind to what she's doing. I think she is falling in love—with a young man named Simon Killigrew but, she intends to go through with marrying Hillyer.

I want her happiness more than anything else. I know you will help me. Just how, I don't know, but it may be that you can throw her and Killigrew together when you are in Montreal. And mind you, absolute secrecy is the word. My love to you—Anselm Meade.

Jon was waiting for them at the station. He managed to hide any chagrin he might have felt at seeing Deborah.

Deborah was happy. Gillian, glad of her presence, let her talk all she wanted to, which was a great deal. "I think it's grand—your going into the publishing business, Jon." "Are we going to see Simon's Printery?"

"We have a lot of shopping to do—" Gillian's voice trailed off. "You must see the printery," Jon was quite agreeable. I can't go with you, I'm afraid. But I'll meet you here at five-thirty and we can have dinner together and—well, we can see about tonight."

"Shall we go to Simon Killigrew's now?" Deborah asked innocently. Gillian wanted so much to go, wished still that she were at the other end of the earth.

Deborah turned into Beaver Hall Square with a great shrieking of tires.

Deborah was almost at the top, sign, Simon's Printery," by the door on an ancient house. Gillian followed Deborah slowly up the steps and into a long hall.

Deborah was almost at the top, Gillian still at the bottom, when Simon Killigrew came in the front door. And she could hear Simon say, "Gillian!" and notice the way he said it.

Gillian prayed he would say no more. He must know she was not alone. She said, "Deborah is with me, Simon. You've met Deborah?"

"We came up to buy Gillian's trousseau," said Deborah idly, looking at an etching but watching him from the corner of her eye.

"Yes". Simon's voice sounded hollow. "I suppose you want to look about."

"Yes, if you please". Deborah poked in her bag, said. "Oh, I want to go out to the car for a moment—you might start with Gillian, if you want to. I'll soon catch up with you."

She went out. Simon stood for a moment irresolute. Then he moved towards a door that led into a room of comfortable chairs, davenports and book-lined walls.

"Please, Simon-Simon, Oh—Simon—let me go. I—I didn't mean to come here."

"There's nothing that can take this from us, Gillian—nothing"

He led her over to the davenport. They sat down close together. "You won't give up buying the trousseau as you planned to do? Only it's for a poor man now."

They were still sitting there when Deborah came back. She looked at them wisely. "So Anse was right! I rather thought so. Are congratulations in order?"

Gillian stood up and Deborah came to her and for a moment they held each other close.

"We'd better go now, Deb," she said at last. We'll go back to Rydell tonight. "I'll meet Jon alone for dinner. Simon, you look after the little fixer here? Take her somewhere and feed her and bring her to the train at eight o'clock?"

"I'll be glad to." "Cast off like an old shirt", muttered Deborah.

Simon Killigrew went to his sanctum on the top floor of the Printery and sat down in an old black leather chair and lighted his pipe.

Simon had faith and vision and now he felt that he possessed the strength of ten. He went to work with a will. The papers and manuscripts Jaffry Clay had left were still in the possession of Jaffry's aunt. The old lady was in England, but had written that she would be home shortly and would send the material to Simon.

There'll be something good there, he thought, something that will enable us to get away to a flying start. Strange that I should be depending on Jaff to help me marry the girl he once loved—strange—strange—

Jon Hillyer got up from a chair in the hotel lobby as Gillian entered. He looked at her and something seemed to die in his eyes.

We are not an engineer; we do not know the best plan to create a lake; we do not know how much the project would cost, but we have a definite mental picture of what a lake would accomplish in enhancing the beauty of the park.

AND... YES, YES... STRING A FLOCK OF BENCHES AROUND THE LAKE AS PEACEFUL RETREATS FOR LOVERS! THAT WOULD ENCOURAGE ROMANCE, AND HOW!

We remember back when we were young... and, and... forget it, nobody wants to read about your sparking days... you're away out of date now.

AND WHILE WE'RE ON THE SUBJECT OF CITY IMPROVEMENT, WE WANT TO PASS OUT A FEW FLOWERS TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CITY COMMISSION—MAYOR HOMER HALL AND COMMISSIONERS ELLIS FOUST AND BEAMAN PHILLIPS—

We, and the 3,499 other citizens, or thereabouts, of our growing, prosperous city, have watched with much satisfaction and pride the accomplishments of the City Commission in the paving of streets and the carrying out of the projects.

AN ESPECIALLY COMMENDABLE FEATURE OF THE CITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM IS THE FACT THAT ALL THE WORK IS BEING ACCOMPLISHED ON A "PAY-AS-YOU-GO" PLAN. HATS OFF TO OUR CITY COMMISSION, WE'RE ALL PROUD OF THE NICE JOB YOU ARE DOING.

AND NOW LET'S TAKE A TRIP OVER TO SPADE—

Bob Mann, merchant, farmer, and a judge of good cattle, has just completed a nice home west of his store; has increased the floor space of his store by vacating the living quarters at the rear of the building, and has gone into the water business in that he is supplying a portion of the town with water through his automatic pressure system. This is being accomplished by an underground pipe system.

Another recent improvement at Spade is a new blacksmith shop built by J. A. Green on the site of his former shop.

Mr. Clifton told us that his locality got at least six inches of rain and that the immediate Fieldton territory received five and one-half inches of rain.

Wildcats And Exes Tie Score In Game Tuesday Night

The Littlefield Wildcats showed excellent promise for the 1941-42 season Tuesday night, when they succeeded in holding a team of exes to a 6-6 tie in a game of trick plays and few passes. The exes team was composed of boys who will be graduated this year, Billie Holder and Curtis Anderson who finished last year, and L. A. Storrs, all-state center for the Lubbock Westerners.

Douglas Bales, 126 pound junior, who is playing for the first time this spring, made an excellent showing. His speed and ability to "take it" on line plunges accounted for a large number of the Wildcat yards gained over the line.

Highlight of the football game Friday night was the crowning of neft year's football queen, Miss Dorothy Marie Gainous. Hugo Beyer escorted Miss Gainous. Her duchesses were Betty Ruth Walters and Viralyn Patrick.

A large crowd attended the game at Seely Field.

Lieut. and Mrs. C. L. Keithley Visit His Parents Here Recently

Lieut. and Mrs. C. L. Keithley, who have been stationed at the Naval Yards at Bremerton, Washington, the past two years, visited his parents, Mrs. and Mrs. J. W. Keithley, here last week. Lieut. Keithley left last Thursday for San Diego, Calif., and sailed last week end for Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, Hawaii, where he will be on patrol duty on the cruiser, "Phoenix."

Mrs. Keithley went to Lubbock last week end, where she is visiting friends this week, before going to Dallas where she will stay with her parents. She does not know when it will be possible for her to join Mr. Keithley, since war conditions are as they are. They spent several years on islands in the Pacific ocean before returning to the states two years ago.

Juniors Entertain Seniors With Ranch-Style Banquet

The high school gymnasium was transformed completely Friday night and a typical western ranch scene greeted members of the Junior and Senior classes when they arrived for their annual banquet.

Most of the boys and girls felt at home, climbing over the sty to get into the corral, where the attractive banquet table was arranged in an arrow head "E", an old cattle brand.

Cowboy boots, red flannel shirts, gay colored scarfs and big hats were absolutely barred, however, for included in the plans were "musta" for formals.

In the corral was a ranch wagon, from which much of the food for the banquet was served, and an Indian Chief, impersonated by Leon West, sat in a tent, where a bonfire burned during the program.

The programs resembled tiny gates, with bark from trees making them very unique. They were hung on tiny "devil's hooks," which served as placecards, and yucca burrs, (commonly known as beargrass) painted in various colors, served as nut cups.

Members of the Parent-Teacher Association served food like the cowboys usually eat . . . (all but the iced tea and asparagus tips!)

Rev. J. H. Sharp gave the invocation, and James Ware was toastmaster. Cowboys sang and played various selections throughout the entire evening.

Alph Wright, president of the Senior class, gave the response to president Ware's welcome.

Superintendent F. A. Hemphill encouraged the group in an after-dinner speech, when he told them the true meaning of Democracy, "and you are the young men and young women who will carry on the ideals of democracy after the war is over.

"Be prepared to face life, with strong wills to overcome the strife that will be inflicted upon you," he continued. Bobby Taylor read the Senior Class Prophecy.

Only a very few members of the junior and senior classes were unable to attend the affair, it was reported.

Special guests were members of the high school faculty and their wives and husbands.

After the banquet, a large group journeyed to the Legion Hut, where they enjoyed dancing.

Misses Daphne Wren and Ernestine Cundiff and Bill Cone are sponsors of the Junior class.

Big Crop Loans Are Favored By Senate Group

Washington — despite indications the administration favors a lower figure, the Senate agriculture committee voted unanimously Friday for government loans at 85 per cent of parity prices on cotton, wheat, corn, rice and tobacco.

With the present benefit payments members said this would assure farmers a return of about 16 cents a pound for cotton, $1.15 a bushel for wheat and 87 cents a bushel for corn. Tobacco would vary according to grade.

Strike Settled

Day before settlement of the soft coal strike, which for 23 days had kept 400,000 men from their jobs, John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers leader, appeared in the above pose before a special Senate committee investigating the dispute. He blamed Southern mine operators for the trouble.

some previous period, usually the pre war years of 1909-13.

Sen. Bankhead (D-Ala) said the 85 per cent loan level would require loans of 13.49 cents for cotton, 96.6 cents for wheat, and 69.9 cents for corn.

Coupled with the loan legislation would be authority for the agriculture department to reduce acreage allotments in order to avoid further accumulation of surpluses.

The loan legislation is expected to figure in the Senate-House "horse trading" over the annual farm appropriation. The Senate voted $1,340,000,000, or some $450,000,000 more than voted by the House.

Morgan Layfield Water Bound At Crosbyton Friday

Band Director Enroute To Cleburne To Play Organ In New Church

Morgan Layfield, who had planned to go to Cleburne last week end, left here Friday afternoon and drove as far as Crosbyton, where he found the town practically "all under water," and reports from points east revealed heavier rains than those in the Crosby county town.

He returned to Littlefield Saturday morning, wondering if one of the rivers in central, east and south Texas had decided to flow backwards, flooding the West Texas towns.

He had been invited to play the new Hammonds organ in the First Baptist Church at Cleburne Sunday, when the new $80,000 church was dedicated. Dr. George W. Truett presided at the dedicatory service.

The regular organist at the church in Cleburne is Leo Duff, a lifetime friend of Mr. Layfield's. Mr. Duff is well-known in Littlefield, as he has visited here many times.

Mr. Layfield is band director and member of the Littlefield high school faculty.

Participate In "More Eggs" Campaign

"Feeding chickens for more eggs is a real opportunity for farm families to aid defense and add to their incomes." 4-H Club girls of Olton, Springlake, Fieldton, Hart Camp, Spade, Littlefield, Amherst, and Sudan are taking part in the nationwide drive to produce every possible egg from their flocks. Plenty of feed for farm poultry flocks means more eggs, and more eggs helps assume ample food supplies for this country and other countries resisting aggression. Plenty of mash either home-mixed or commercial, and all the grains the hens will clean up at night. Don't forget fresh, clean water where the hens can get to it easily at all times. Wet mash is an excellent appetizer. It should be fed in a crumbly state, and once started should be kept up. "Give the hens all they'll eat this spring. Don't make them rustle for their feed. Extra eggs will pay for the additional week.

Three young men, suffering from head lacerations and scratches, were given emergency treatment here about 6 a. m. Sunday, as a result of the collision of their car and a car occupied by several negroes, near Anton. Both cars, which were enroute to Lubbock at the time, were badly damaged. Sheriff Sam Hutson reported that he was called by telephone by one of the young men, and after they had received emergency treatment, accompanied them to the scene of the accident. Determining that the accident had occurred in Hockley County, he turned the matter over to the Hockley Sheriff's Department for investigation.

. . . of course you can't, but you were the apple of mother's eye from the first. The care and work she lavished on you . . . the slightest cry, day or night, would bring her anxiously investigating . . .

She was stern about such things as neck and ears . . . and Saturday night baths . . . stern because she was proud of you. Remember the inspection after you washed . . . and how mother would march you back and supervise the job . . .

Remember . . .

Those wonderful meals . . . particularly on Thanksgiving . . . the appetizing aroma of good things baking in the oven . . . how mother would work from early morning getting everything ready . . .

“ . . . Lest We Forget . . . ”

There's been a lot said about Memorial Day. Maybe it's all been said, all there is to say, and there's nothing more.

But there is something more . . . something vital that we feel and know in our hearts and minds.

Memorial Day means paying tribute to friends and loved ones who have passed on.

An extensive program has been planned by the American Legion Auxiliary for the beautification and improvement of the Littlefield Cemetery, and local citizens are cooperating in this worthy project.

YOU, TOO, ARE INVITED TO COOPERATE IN THIS PROGRAM, EITHER BY FURNISHING LABOR OR FUNDS.

The City Commission has assured Mrs. Maude Street, president of the Auxiliary, that several workers for the improvement project will be furnished next week, and Boy Scouts and Legionnaires plan to spend several days at the cemetery participating in the improvement program.

Plants, flowers, shrubs, evergreens and trees are being donated to the committee in charge, and it is hoped that the beautification and improvement program will be completed and the entire grounds ready for visitors before Memorial Day, May 30.

SKILLED IN OPERATION OF DEFENSE PRODUCTION MACHINES TO BE ENGAGED, PRESIDENT SAYS

General J. Watt Page, State Service Director, Sunday put machinery of the system into operation under telegraphic orders from National Headquarters to combat Selective Service rolls of the nation to insure that every man skilled in the operation of a defense production machine be engaged in that capacity.

The telegram received by General Page from General Lewis B. Herndon, National Director of Selective Service, reads:

Your attention is called to the President's announcement of May 2 because of the critical situation which confronts our Nation and the 24 hour, 7 day machine production schedule, the rolls of the nation and of Selective Service and the manpower of the nation as a whole will be combed to insure that every man skilled in the operation of a defense production machine be engaged in that capacity. Direct your attention to the President's announcement and take immediate action to recheck the lists of Class 1-A men and men awaiting physical examination to assure conformity with policy as emphasized by the President's announcement. The decision of making the necessary determination is on Selective Service reluctance of an individual or employer to claim deferment not be allowed to defeat the permanent national interest. Funeral Services For Mrs. J. M. Parker Held Here Thursday

Mrs. James M. Parker, about 87, passed away at the home of a daughter, Mrs. W. O. Roebuck, who resides near Olton, Wednesday of last week, after several weeks' illness.

Funeral services were held at the Hammons Funeral Chapel here Thursday morning at 8:30, by Bro. Harold Collard, local Church of Christ minister.

Remains were taken overland by a funeral home to Seymour, where services were held late Thursday afternoon. Interment was in the Red Springs cemetery, near Seymour.

Margaret Nancy Kisinger was born May 24, 1864, in Ottumwa, Iowa. She came to Texas while she was quite young. She had been a member of the Church of Christ for many years. She was married to James M. Parker August 24, 1875, and to this union was born six children, all of whom survive except a daughter, who passed away in 1912.

Mr. Parker passed away nine years ago. Seventeen grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren also survive. Mrs. Parker had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Roebuck for the past eight months.

Sunnydale Splashes

By J. D. JORDAN

For a fact, tain't nothin' sunny 'bout Sunnydale 'ceptin' the smiles on the farmers' faces. My, but it shore makes a powerful difference in folks' faces fer it to rain, don't it? Guess it must just naturally soak off that old gloomy look, nohow we are all mighty glad to see the moisture, and gettin' anxious to begin strewin' a few of them thar cottonseed along with our kafir, maize, and other feed stuff.

We have at last found the secret of "How to Make It Rain." Just wash your car off right slick and shiny, spend a little extra time on it and I'll most nigh guarantee at least a shower. It shore has worked the last few days.

Folks have sure been prowling around during the bad weather. Figuring on getting their visiting caught up 'fore time to go to work I reckon. Beyrl Wingo traipsed off to Clovis last Tuesday and incidentally visited in the Jordan home last Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Selby Beckett and family visited in Amherst Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Brandon and family visited Mrs. Brandon's parents at Earth Sunday. Mrs. Sofia Cape and son, Hugh visited their son and brother, Mr. Bill Cape and family Sunday evening.

Mr. S. H. Whittenburg was ill Saturday. Grandma Hanks is feeling lots better after several days' illness. Little David Guinn Hampton had a severe case of earache last week but is back with the gang again, now.

The main topic of conversation among the farmers of south of Sunnydale is Arther Hankin's cotton, fifty acres of it and a pretty stand, too.

Sunnydale has its share of Littlefield Seniors this year and we are proud of these fine young people who are completing their high school work this spring. They are Bessie Ancinec, Kathryn Hanks, Celeste Lueck, Florine Lueck, and Auburn Stowers. These young folks together with Misses Margaret Melton, Verna Hill, ERna Hill, and Dorothy Ancinec who are Juniors attended the Junior-Senior banquet Friday night in spite of the bad weather and from reports all were mighty glad they did go, and thinkin' back over the dim years of our own life to a parallel occasion we know they did have a time that will remain in their respective memories for many, many moons.

Well, well, here I have been a settin' and a gabbin' till it's slap dab night and the milkin' ain't done. So long.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pass and son returned home last Thursday after a week's stay at Mineral Wells. Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Pass will return home from Mineral Wells the last of this week.

Mrs. Wm. N. Orr, Mrs. Hugo Kincker, and Mrs. Jack Farr and daughter were in Lubbock Saturday.

TEXAS CONCERNS GET CONTRACTS RUNNING TO $75,935,576

In March, 1941, Texas concerns received contract awards in the amount of $75,935,576, bringing the total allotment since the beginning of the national defense program to $375,023,359.18.

The largest contract for this period was received by the Houston Shipbuilding Company, Houston, for 25 cargo ships at an estimated cost of $37,500,000, and was awarded by the U. S. Maritime Commission.

An itemization of contracts awarded, as released by Mr. E. Frank White, acting state director of the United States office of government reports is as follows:

through Sunday and Monday. This is the stirring story of a wife, who takes the child of her husband's back street woman to rear, a very gripping and tearful story, with Hattie McDaniel, the colored girl, who stirred theatre goers in "Gone With the Wind." George Brent plays opposite Miss Davis. Mary Astor plays opposite the two stars.

NEW BUSINESS CHARTERS

The Secretary of State granted 109 new charters to domestic corporations in March, 1941, with a total capitalization of $1,358,000.

"HE SAVES MOST NOW WHO SPENDS ENOUGH"

Buick SPECIAL 6-passenger Sedanet, $1006. White sidewall tires extra.

THERE'S a rule for your guidance you may not find in the copybooks — but that doesn't subtract one whit from its truth.

Because when you buy a new car this spring you want one that will see you through many a summer.

So while you're trading it's good sense to trade up — up to something solidly good through and through.

Trade up, for instance, to the FIREBALL power of Buick's more efficient valve-in-head straight-eight.

Trade up to the thrift of Compound Carburetion — exclusively Buick's, and as much as 10% to 15% more economical of gasoline than last year.

Trade up to a splendidous big Body by Fisher — to Buick's all-coil springing that is forever cushiony yet forever free from service attention — to stout, ride-steadying torque-tube drive with nothing about it to go wrong.

Buick's bodies are roomier, its frames huskier — its steering gears go three to four times as long without adjustment and its main bearings have half-again the service life in them.

Things like that really count these days — yet they're yours in a Buick for a trifle more at most than you'd spend in any event.

Go call on your Buick dealer now!

[Available at slight extra cost on some Buick SPECIAL models, standard on all other Series.

Prof. Pender joined the Lubbock club in 1932 and has been an active member and worker since, serving as vice president and as president in 1936-7; in 1939-40 Governor A. G. BANK TO OPEN AT MORTON SOON

The foundation for the F. F. Rowland building next to the Headlight office in Morton on the south side of the square was poured last week and the laying of brick and tile was started.

Directors of the First State Bank of Morton have contracted for a long term lease on the building and as the Charter was granted for the bank by the State Banking Department at Austin recently, the bank "the first to be established in Cochran County" expects to open for business as soon as the fixtures can be set after the completion of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Aldridge, and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Aldridge visited in the home of their son-in-law and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Aldridge, in Amarillo Sunday.

Forty-Two Million Available For Old Age Assistance

A total of $42,000,000.00 per year will be available for old age assistance in Texas, Senator Marshall Formby announced this week, following the passage of the $23,661,000.00 tax bill by the Texas Legislature.

Senator Formby, who voted for the bill throughout its enactment, said the State would have $21,000,000.00 for old age assistance, and this amount will be matched by the Federal Government, making a total of $42,000,000.00. This will pay 170,000 aged persons in Texas an average of $20.00 per month.

Under the new tax bill, $3,100,000 annually goes to Teacher Retirement fund; $1,500,000.00 goes to dependent children, and $400,000.00 goes to the needy blind.

"There is enough money in the new tax bill" Senator Formby said, "to solve our social security problems in Texas for the time being. It has taken several years to raise the money to take care of these obligations, and I was glad to have had a part this year in helping pass this important bill."

WE DO PROGRESS

How about youth? Well, they are thrill seekers just like my generation and every other generation that went before. But they have aspirations and ambition, go to college in large numbers, prepare for vocations and citizenship, marry and have children, and are headed for a steady middle age. The only distressing thing about them is their intellectual cynicism, their perverse pessimism. They've grown up to doubt that there's any progress in the world. How can I prove to them that they run rings around anything we had in my generation? Doubtless they'll discover that in time. Meanwhile, I note that the good old days are gone forever—and I see no cause for tears.—William F. McDermott in the current Rotarian magazine.

Lamb Farmers Take Advantage Of Land Bank Facilities

Over One Thousand Families Take Part In Long Term Plan

Use of System Enables 100 Farmers in County To Pay Out of Debt

Lamb county has approximately 100 farm and ranch families using the Federal Land Bank and the National Farm Loan Association system of cooperative, low-cost, long-term farm mortgage credit, according to J. S. Hilliard, secretary of the Littlefield National Farm Loan Association.

Use of this system has enabled approximately 100 families in the county to pay out of debt already, Hilliard said.

Outstanding on December 31, 1933, in Lamb County were 900 bank loans totaling $2,389,000. From May 1933 to date, 800 bank loans amounting to $8,500,000 were closed. The one-year period had 919 Commission loans supplementing the normal bank services for a total of $1,420,000.00. Of these 675 loans $1,194,400.00 remain.

"This system," said J. S. Hilliard, "is founded to finance farm mortgages on terms to fit the needs of the farmer and ranchman. The family is in debt, striving to obtain independent ownership, and it is need for safe financing to protect the home investment. Credit is a dependable source, repaid in regular amounts on principal interest, frees the family from the cost of frequent renewals."

He said that "farmers and ranchmen who own this credit service feel it is an asset to the community in general. It has made more money available for better farm and ranch conditions. During the depression and following, its services have benefited many farm families to re-locate their homes. It has furthered deferred payments in worthy cases for many years and encouraged additional payments to build up farms in good years."

BIG RAINS PUT GOOD SEASON IN GROUND

Rain started falling in Littlefield and vicinity again early last Thursday morning, and continued at intervals until Sunday afternoon, when the clouds broke, and the sun started shining.

Since May 1 (last Thursday) 3.07 inches of moisture fell, L. C. Cawthon, official weather observer reported. Since the rains started on the South Plains April 28, Littlefield and vicinity has received 6.38 inches of moisture, and since January 1, a total of 9.85 inches.

The entire Littlefield trade territory has received similar moisture since January 1, and particularly in the last big rain, to that received by the immediate Littlefield section.

Farmers report the best season in the ground in years and years, which assures ideal planting and growing conditions.

Five County Men Leave For Army

Five young men left Littlefield Tuesday for Fort Bliss to be inducted into selective training from Lamb County. Those leaving were Augustus C. Hall, Billy Qualls, Raymond Allen Reed, Auda Elbert Luttrell, and R. W. Stanfield, Jr.

The Lamb County Draft Board has another call for May 19, when the first colored men from this county will be inducted into army training.

The call is for four men.

Another call for May 22 has been made for this county, when five white men will leave.

National Headquarters sent orders to all draft boards last week end to send questionnaires to all men who registered in the county, and classifications will be made as quickly as possible. The local board is busy sending out the remainder of the 1300 questionnaires to those who registered in this county.

Smart Style Show Given At Spade

One of the most colorful affairs ever to be presented in the Spade community was the style show Tuesday night, which was staged at the Spade school auditorium, sponsored by the senior class.

Sports dresses and several formal dresses were modeled by members of the senior and junior classes of the school. The dresses were furnished by Ware's Department Store, Hattie's Shop, and Replin's Department Store.

Interesting features of the program were selections by the Rhythm band of the Spade school, tap dances by Jackie Farr, Linda Beth Stokes and Georgia Lou Smith, a reading by Maryana Corry, and a solo by little Miss McCoy of Spade.

W. J. Chesher was master of ceremonies, and motion pictures were made of those participating in the affair by T. A. Hilbun and G. M. Shaw. The pictures will be shown on the screen at the Palace Theatre next Thursday and Friday nights, May 15 and 16.

Proceeds from the program will be used by the senior class when they go to Galveston in the near future for their annual trip.

APOLOGIES

Members of the Littlefield Home Demonstration Club offer their sincere apologies to the public and to the Aldridge Food Store for not getting the egg exhibit in the window at Aldridge's last Saturday, as promised. The heavy rains prevented our having this exhibit.

FISH AT RED BLUFF

Aaron Gray, Hershel Stephens, Grady Bassett, and Virgil Stephens returned Friday from Red Bluff dam where they had been fishing the past week. In spite of high winds and stormy weather they enjoyed fishermen's luck and were able to bring back a 20 pound catfish. Saturday night the four families met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Bassett for a delicious fish dinner.

THE ART OF MOTHERHOOD

Our Father:

We thank Thee for the wondrous gift of good mothers. Mothers who were old fashioned enough to be virtuous, And modern enough to be sane. Mothers who sanctified motherhood. And were not afraid to be different. What we acquired from their lives is beyond measure. Through their eyes we first saw the world we live in. They were the first to tell us of God and His love. Their prayers prepared us for life's conflicts. Their stories taught us lessons we failed to find in halls of learning. Their care gave us bodies of health and strength. Their faces revealed a beauty unmatched on land or sea. Their lullabies were music to our souls with refrains that never die—No other gifts can equal those of good mothers. Preserve for us, O God, the ministry of motherhood. We need good mothers today. Mothers who will direct the steps of their little ones to God's house; Who will cultivate in their lives a reverence for sacred things; Mothers who will teach their children to love God's Word; Who will follow their children with their prayers; Who will train their children to walk the path of righteousness; Mothers whose lives are examples, radiant and reliable; Who are more concerned in making their children good, than popular; Laughing, singing, companionable mothers; Mothers who will give their children to the Temple, if need be; These are the mothers we pray for; These are the mothers we need.

"You Don't Have To Vote Anton Wet -- It's Wet" Says E. D. Criswell

The Anton section received six and one-half inches of rain in the prolonged downpour which terminated about noon Sunday, according to E. D. Criswell, farmer whose property adjoins the Anton townsite.

H. B. Newton, official weather observer at Anton, reported five and one-half inches of rain up to noon Friday, and Mr. Criswell said that he believed that at least one more inch of rain had fallen up to noon Sunday.

"You don't have to vote the Anton section wet . . . it's wet," Mr. Criswell jocularly remarked to Lowell Short in talking with the lumberman in a local drug store Sunday.

Mr. Criswell owns and operates an irrigated farm at the southwest corner of the townsite. He said that he, and others owning irrigated farms, who had planted cotton about April 15, would have to replant most of this land. Irrigation farmers had planted potatoes, alfalfa, corn, maize, hedges, and blackeyed peas, before the big rain, and these crops will come through satisfactorily. Dry land farmers had planted only a little sudan and this will not have to be replanted.

WEET MUSIC TO A WEST TEXAN'S EARS—

Books don't consider the chorus of bullfrogs music, but it puts a smile into the heart of a West Texan.

The monotonous chorus of the frogs is a prolonged, continuous wail that much rain has fallen, the lakes are full to overflow, that there's a good season in ground, and that the coming rains should produce the immense crops that have made this favored section of Texas famous throughout the length and breadth of the world.

HERE'S SOMETHING MORE ANENT THE LAKES—

When the skies cleared Sunday, the sun came refreshingly warm through the clouds, the kids gathered at City Park, where the low end was transformed into a great playground, and floated around on all manner of contraptions.

The chief point of the foregoing argument is that low ground of the lake, bone dry for eleven and one-half months of each year, presents an ideal opportunity for a city lake within our city.

The trees in the park have attained a nice growth, roadways have (Continued On Back Page)
