PROGRESS REPORTED ON WPA ROAD PROJECTS IN COUNTY

Judge L. R. Crockett announced Tuesday that satisfactory progress is being made on the WPA road projects in the County.

He stated that the work on the road from end of Oklahoma Avenue running to Spade had been somewhat held up on account of lack of trucks, for the past ten days, but that the County had allowed the men to go ahead and work with shovels awaiting WPA furnishing the trucks. However, trucks are now on hand and they began hauling caliche Wednesday morning. About 80 men are at work on this WPA project.

In regard to the Sudan road project, Judge Crockett stated "this project is coming along fine. We opened up a new caliche pit several days ago. About sixty men are at work. Six trucks are hauling better than 100 loads of caliche daily."

The road from Spring Lake to County Line is also reported to be progressing nicely. Grading and drainage work is well underway, and the crew are getting ready to lay the caliche, which they expect to get started on the last of this week.

Sale of Littlefield Hotel Recalls Early History and Life of City and Territory

(Written exclusively for the Lamb County Leader) by C. J. Duggan, an Old Timer

In the passing of the Littlefield Hotel from a public hostelry, there can be but a tinge of sadness and regret in the hearts of the early day residents of our splendid little city, but we graciously submit to the inevitable—the march of progress—and welcome the new institution that is to transform it into a modern hospital-clinic.

What is now known as the Littlefield Hotel was christened "Casa Amarilla Lodge" (Yellow House Lodge) by its designers, the late Senator Arthur P. Duggan and the writer, it being built by Major Geo. W. Littlefield when the town of Littlefield was "born." Its hospitable doors were opened to the public, mostly land buyers and settlers, in March, 1913. The contractor was the late Abe M. Hensley of Lubbock, one of the best builders on the Plains, and the lumber was hauled overland in wagons from Abernathy and Lubbock, over rough and crooked roads, running from windmill to windmill or ranch house as the case may be, there being no highways in those days.

The building is of semi-American colonial style architecture, with a wide, inviting porch in front, opening into a large and cheery lobby. The building was painted yellow with white trim—setting the precedent for all other houses of the town to be likewise painted—yellow being the color motif as this was the breaking up of the famous Yellow House Ranch—but individual taste of the new comers varied as to colors and many refused to carry out the original plan.

In the light and well ventilated dining room with its four sets of double windows to the East and South, many of the major functions of Littlefield have taken place. In the early days, the majority of the citizens—all of the single ones and some of the married ones, lived in the hotel, and many a merry and interesting time has been spent in repartee and wit within the portals of this hospitable hotel. The dining room has been used as such most of the time during these years, and chefs that would do justice to the larger hotels of the cities have served the best of foods from the small kitchen in its rear. Banquet, parties, public meetings, clubs and various organizations have used this room as a gathering place.

Littlefield's first bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Gray Street, stepped from a rent car (in those days automobiles were scarce in these parts) driven close to the

DRS. PAYNE AND SHOTWELL BUY HOTEL PROPERTY

Littlefield Doctors Will Open Hospital Here April 1

A new forward step in the enlargement of clinic and hospital facilities for Littlefield and territory was announced Wednesday.

Dr. C. E. Payne and Dr. I. T. Shotwell have purchased the Littlefield Hotel property, and will open the Drs. Payne and Shotwell Hospital and Clinic at that location about April 1.

Dr. M. G. Wood, Littlefield dentist who has been practicing here for several years, will have offices in the new hospital and clinic.

The Littlefield Hotel, one of the early structures in the building of Littlefield, was purchased by the doctors from the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Dr. Payne, with whom Dr. Shotwell became associated early this year, will retain his interest in the Littlefield Hospital.

Start Remodeling Immediately
 Drs. Payne and Shotwell will be given possession of the hotel property March 1, and work will be underway in the remodeling of the structure into a modern hospital and clinic, which will offer the very latest in medical and surgical services.

Frank Harrison, Amarillo architect, was in Littlefield Wednesday and went over plans for remodeling with the new owners of the property.

The structure, when remodeled, will be a white stucco of attractive exterior design and treatment. Located, as it will be, in the spacious grounds of the property, the remodeled building will be an outstanding improvement to the city.

Interior to be Remodeled
 The interior will be extensively remodeled and redecorated throughout, one of the outstanding improvements being the refinishing of the

"The blushing bride was becomingly attired in dark blue coat suit, with all accessories to match," and as the groom courteously assisted her up the steps and into the lobby, all of us made him introduce her to us as "his wife." There have been many other brides and grooms make this hotel their honeymoon abode, one couple of which, now outstanding citizens of our city, is the "Josh" Cogdills.

Asks Leaders To Go Ahead With Court Reform Plan

Congressional leaders Saturday were instructed by President Roosevelt to go ahead with legislation for reorganization of the courts.

Senators emerging from the second of two conferences at the White House forecast that the senate judiciary committee would begin work this week on the president's proposals to name six new justices will be held, it was indicated.

The senators said there was no talk of compromise at the White House. As the legislators left,

Thomas Corcoran, young presidential adviser who is widely credited with helping draft the court program, went in to dine with the president.

Two of the dozen senators who attended the conferences Saturday, Frazier (R-ND) and Nye (R-ND), already were opposed to the presidential idea, and they said afterward they had not changed their attitude.

For more than an hour and a half the president went over battle plans with Vice President Garner and a half dozen senators backing his proposal for six new Supreme court justices.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, acted as spokesman when the group was questioned afterwards by reporters.

"It is believed the measure is progressing in a satisfactory way," he said.

"What do you mean by progress

—the bill hasn't moved yet," one newsmen asked.

"No, but it will move," Robinson replied as he stepped into an automobile with Garner and departed.

APPLICATIONS FOR CROP LOANS RECEIVED HERE

L. S. Keen, Field Supervisor Opens His Office in The City Hall

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1937 are now being received at Littlefield by L. S. Keen, field supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration, at his office in the City Hall.

These loans will be made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source, as provided by regulations issued by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The money loaned will be limited to farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1937 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock and in no instance may exceed $400.

Farmers are not eligible for these loans if they can borrow from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern. Emergency crop and feed loans will not be made by the Farm Credit Administration to standard rehabilitation clients of the Resettlement Administration whose current needs are provided for by Resettlement.

As in the past, the security for these loans will consist of a first lien on the crop financed if the loan is for the production of crops, and if for the purchase of feed for livestock, then a first lien on the livestock to be fed. Landlords, or others having an interest in the crops or the livestock to be fed, will be required to waive their claims in favor of the lien to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration until the loan is repaid.

Checks in payment of the approved loans will be issued by the Regional Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office at Dallas, Texas.

DAY OR PARTY FROCK
Pattern 8880: Sophistication, soft pedaled by demure feminine touches here and there, makes this the sort of dress one can wear and wear and always feel perfectly groomed. Two versions are available: the informal day frock and the dinner dress of floor length.
Each plays an important role in the well set up wardrobe. Each is a clever interpretation of the modern mode as seen in swank gatherings these days.

The distinctive touch of velvet bows down the front and the ever so important sleeves are reasons why this dress is a thing of charm.
Beauty of line radiates from shoullightfully stressed. The skirt swings wide and in taffeta or velvet it "does things" to one's figure with flattering results.

Evangelism Stressed By Texas Baptists

The Baptists of Texas are stressing evangelism this year under the leadership of Dr. R. C. Campbell, Dallas, State Secretary. Nothing suffices like the saving of the soul.
Plans for whole associations to enter into a simultaneous revival campaign. Rev. A. A. Brian, district missionary of this district is leading each of the seven associations to simultaneously hold revivals in every Baptist church and school house.

Rev. L. S. Jenkins of Amherst is leading this campaign in the West Plains Association composed of 24 churches. The month of August has been designated as revival month and fourteen of the twenty-four churches have already agreed to enter into the soul-winning campaign.
Rev. A. V. Bradley of Anton is assisting Rev. Jenkins in securing the cooperation of all the churches in the association and arranging for the school house meetings.

A leading evangelist of the state will direct the campaign next August and the preachers in these revivals will meet at some central point during the day to plan and pray for successful meetings.

An all day meeting of the pastors of the Association has been called to meet at Littlefield, Monday, March 1st, starting at ten o'- clock. Twenty preachers are expected to attend. There are nineteen pastors in the association.

The churches in the West Plains association reported 246 baptisms last year. Through united efforts there should be 500 led to believe in Christ as Saviour and baptised into the memberships of the churches.

West Texas C. of C. Sponsor State-Wide Soil Conservation

STAMFORD, Feb. 20.—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce headquarters here, and the extension service of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College are jointly sponsoring a statewide soil and water conservation act now before the Legislature.

The measure is senate bill No. 4 and house bill No. 24, introduced by Senator Davis of Brownwood and Representative Fuchs of Branham. Public hearing has been set by the agricultural committee of the two houses for next Wednesday, February 24, and a West Texas delegation probably will be on hand urging passage.

Federal Approval Given
J. O. Guleke of Amarillo, and D. A. Banteen, manager of the West Texas Chamber, who, with Davis, Fuchs and representatives of the extension service wrote the new bill, said it would be in harmony with federal soil conservation and flood control legislation, thus qualifying for federal aid, and has been, in fact, approved by federal agencies. Banteen made public letters from Alvin R. Allison of Levelland, President of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners association, and from Van Zandt Jarvis, WTCC president, quoting this except from Jarvis' letter to all West Texas Chamber directors:

"The destruction of our land by wind and water and the retention of our water where it falls, is a problem which West Texas must solve if we are to retain and preserve our land, agricultural and livestock industries. This bill will render aid to every county and every landowner in a program of keeping our top soil where it is an dour water where it falls.

Provisions Set Forth
"In addition, the bill renders aid to our cities, and towns in their water, flood and allied problems. It does all this without imposing new local taxes. Furthermore, no new agencies are created and we use the agencies and political subdivisions already in existence. The bill in my opinion is the most practical method yet proposed for attacking our various types of conservation problems. Under its provisions, facilities are offered so that everybody everywhere can be benefited." Mayor Ross Rogers of Amarillo also has joined in solidifying West Texas for the measure by urging all West Texas mayors actively to support it.

The bill declares (a) that the farm, grazing and timber lands of the state are among its basic assets and their preservation is necessary to protect and promote health, safety and the general welfare; (B) that the consequences of soil erosion are almost incalculably tragic; (C) that to conserve soil resources and prevent erosion appropriate land use practices are essential including construction of terraces, check-dams, lower water dams, rodent control, strip-cropping, lister and contour furrowing, forestation, reforestation, crop rotation, planting of soil-holding crops, retirement from cultivation of highly erosive areas, and other measures.

Districts Proposed
The bill would create a state soil conservation board of nine members, of whom five would be selected from as many districts whose boundaries are fixed in the bill to bring equal representation to all sections of the state. Members would be paid not to exceed $10 for each working day, with travel expense. The state treasurer would have custody of all funds and securities of the board. A $10,000 appropriation is asked for, to get the program started; and for the next biennium, $50,000 appropriation.

The bill would create county soil conservation districts co-extensive with the boundaries of any county, which may be formed into a conservation district by vote of its qualified citizens. When a district is created, the county judge and county commissioners would become the governing body. A district board would assist landowners in carrying out soil conservation measures, to be financed, so far as the state is concerned, by the diversion to each district, for a period of ten years beginning in 1937, of funds accruing from 10 cents of the state ad valorem tax rate. The act says:

Counties May Be Pooled
"Funds arising from property taxed lying outside of incorporated cities and towns and within the county soil conservation district shall be used for soil conservation purposes upon lands outside of incorporated cities and towns.

"Funds arising from property taxed lying within the territorial limits of incorporated cities and towns located within the district shall be used for municipal water supply, flood control works, drainage and other municipal purposes either within or without the territorial limits of such incorporated cities or towns."

The bill provides that no debt or obligation shall ever be created by any soil conservation district that cannot be reasonably retired within a period of 10 years out of funds granted under provisions of the act.

Under the bill, two or more county districts may organize and pool their resources and labors in meeting common problems.

Pirates Bold Used Galveston Isle As Place to Buy Gold

Next stop for radio listeners who each week go "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells" will be Galveston, Texas—Pleasure Island of the South—the story of which will be told by the famous world explorer in the Continental Oil Company broadcast at 7:15-7:30 C. S. T. Wednesday night, March 10, over station KGNC, Amarillo.

"Known as Treasure Island in the days when pirates roamed the Gulf of Mexico and buried their loot in the vicinity of what is now Galveston, this small island can best be described now as Pleasure Island," says Wells. "Galveston boasts a delightful subtropical climate with an average temperature of 70 degrees, and mildly winds of winter make numerous summer sports enjoyable the year around."

Pontiac Jan. Sales Largest In History

January retail sales of Pontiac cars throughout the United States were by far the largest of any January in the company's history, it is reported by C. P. Simpson, general sales manager. Littlefield Motor Company is local dealer for the Pontiac Motor Company.

During the month just closed 13,602 Pontiacs were delivered. The best January prior to that was in 1928 when deliveries were 9,680.

In January of 1936 the were 8,253.

It is pointed out that enough cars in dealers' Pontiac company's stocks care of sales for the next days.

DOLLAR DAY IN LITTLEFIELD

Everybody loves a real bargain! Therefore, Monday the first day of March should find Littlefield the envy of all shoppers in all the adjacent trade territory, and Monday is "Dollar Day" in Littlefield. The growth of "Dollar Day" as a merchandising day in Littlefield has been steady and gradual, and as more buyers are discovering the exceptional bargains that Littlefield merchants are offering on these Dollar Day, Littlefield merchants are making every effort to make these days buyers holidays, bargain days that will add to this town's prestige as a shopping center. We are sure that local business men have done a splendid job in this direction—the fame of Littlefield and her progressive merchants has spread not only into the territory immediately adjacent to this city, but to an area many miles distant. The growth of "Dollar Day" as a merchandising day in Littlefield has not just happened, it is the result of careful planning on the part of local business men. It is planned to see that the merchandise offered on these occasions is not only of a superior quality, but that from a dollars and cents standpoint they are tremendous bargains to the buyer. Every buyer is cordially invited by Littlefield business men to share in these shopping treats that are to be had Monday.

REVOLUTIONS ARE NOT BLOODLESS

A phrase which is often heard but which does not mean anything is "bloodless revolution." There is no such thing in history of a revolutionary change in a nation without bloodshed. Nations have changed their systems by popular mandate, but these changes are not revolutions. The word "revolution" implies a revolt against the existing government. It is the people change it by a majority vote, that can only be called a revolt. Revolutions do not succeed unless the revolutionists have the control of the armed forces of the nation. The Russian revolution succeeded because it was backed by the army, with the organization of the Soldiers and Workers Union. The Fascist movement in Italy succeeded because it had the army behind Mussolini. So, too, Hitler would never have won and held power in Germany if he had not had the army behind him. The present Civil War in Spain began with a revolt of a large part of the Spaniards.

There is no way that a minority can impose its will on a majority without killing people. Armed force is the means whereby usurpers and dictators seize and hold power. Once the killing begins, it can be kept up whenever opposition shows its head. It is by making an example of those who try to go on against the will of the dictator that the people be kept in subjection. Stalin, the Russian dictator, is now engaged in a "purge," killing off active and suspected members of the Communist regime, as a warning to the Russian people that they had better walk the line and obey orders. Any talk of revolution in this country is absurd. It is the indulgence of irresponsible persons who enjoy scaring the public by indulging in a lot of loose talk about revolutions upon nothing but sharp differences of opinion on public questions. That sort of talk, if long continued, might possibly lead to bloodshed, but we are not going to let a revolution until the revolutionists are able to back up their threats with superior force, which seems a remote possibility.

Littlefield Hotel—

 years. Even a distraught mother who had lost her young babe in one of the rooms to the mercy of the fire, adopted it. Deals for land were made within its portals. A school was conducted from the rooms in times gone by. School teachers occupied the rooms and made merry with their chattering at the dining table. Ministers of the gospel were housed therein and brought reverence and respect for God and His works to its other occupants. The original one bath room in the hotel was a source of joy and happiness to a wide circle of people in this section of the country. Some travelled many miles to have the opportunity of a real bath with hot running water even if they did not occupy a room over night. Later, remodeling of the building, two other baths were added as well as running water in each room. There are eleven guest rooms on the second floor, and four with owner's room on first floor. During prosperous days, the wide hall on the second floor was literally filled with beds and even then, would-be guests were turned away or directed to residences for shelter. There have been few nights, however, when most of the rooms have been unoccupied—much to the regret and financial loss of owner. The ownership and management of the Hotel has been wide and varied. First built and owned by Major Littlefield interests, it passed to various hands, some owning, some renting, and finally into the ownership of a loan company which has sold it to the new owners who are to remodel it into a modern hospital. B. B. Moulton and family opened the hotel and ruled its destinies for some years, passing its management on to the E. B. Westfall family, a farm family unaccustomed to dealing with the public. Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Westfall's mother, was the chef that won for her the most enviable reputation for making good pies as well as being most adept in all culinary arts. Judge and Mrs. C. H. Curl moved down from Olton to preside over the hostelry, and many a gay party did they give, "42" being the most popular game, for they were hospitality and efficiency personified. Mrs. Hugh Taylor, mother-in-law of our former highly esteemed citizen, Floyd Sadler, (and here's where Floyd found his bride) came up from Lubbock at our solicitation and took over the management, and the first thing she did was to refurbish the hotel throughout with new and high class furniture. Then came in rapid succession Mrs. Jennie Parker, a Mrs. Whittington, the T. B. Engledows of Temple, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hilliard, the J. C. Whickers, Mr. Crump, the Whickers again, and finally the efficient and charming Mrs. Henry Woodley, the present proprietor. With all due respect to all proprietors and owners, throughout the years of prosperity and depression, a history of the hotel would not be complete without paying a compliment to Mrs. J. C. Whicker who held sway longer, perhaps, than any one other connected with it. Kind, courteous, efficient, accommodating, motherly, hospitable, tactful—all these were hers by nature and breeding, and no one who ever came under her reign will ever forget her, for to know her and to be associated with her, one must be a better and happier man. "To live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man" was her motto, so we thought.

and there should be added to this "and to dispense hospitality to all within my home," and the Littlefield Hotel was Mrs. Whicker's home and all who came into it as paying guests were made to feel that it was their home, too. There is one other who has presided over the dining room and kitchen perhaps longer than any other, and it is the jolly Paul Vause. Of course, Mrs. Vause sees that the food is properly cooked and served, but it is Paul in person that rules in the dining room and makes all who come to partake of the delicious eats, glad that they did come, for his happy laugh, quick wit and come-back to jests—well, they just make you digest your food better. As I sit today writing this sketch in the upper southern corner room—the same room I occupied for many months when the lodge opened—"with a sigh in my heart and a tear in my eye" my mind goes back down memory's lane for a period of twenty-four years, reminiscing the events that have transpired in the life of the Littlefield Hotel. I once gazed out of these windows upon a broad expanse of prairie—nothing but prairie—but now the spot where I spent my first night (December 5th, 1912) on the ground in a tent is obscured from view by beautiful residences, and brick business houses. There are to be seen a stately city hall, handsome school buildings, and in the distant vista, comfortable and commodious farm homes surrounded by fertile fields. Where once was not a single tree is now beautiful ones lining the streets, park and artistically landscaped yards. The hotel has majestically stood thru the years of prosperity and depression, the gloom of winter and the beauty of early spring and summer, the shadow of dust storms as a beacon of shelter, and in the brilliance of heavenly sunshine. It has been a silent sentinel as the pony of the cowboy has given way to the paved streets lined with autos. It has witnessed the growing of the town from a two-room land office to a thriving, prosperous little city of some 3500 population. So, here's a toast to the Littlefield Hotel: may your new owners serve suffering humanity that comes within your "face-lifted" walls to the efficient degree in the years that may come that your various managers have dispensed hospitality to their paying guests in the years that have passed. Your mission as a place of abode in Littlefield has ended, but we are comforted with the thought that you will not be torn down and destroyed, but that you will remain as a lasting, interesting landmark in our midst.

Ellen Gets Her Man

Third Installment
 OPPOSIS: Ellen Mackay, on her way from school at Winnipeg, to her father at Fort Edson, in the boat by which she was sent. Hearing that another boat was starting north in the morning, she goes to the owner, John Benham, and begs him to give her a ride. To her surprise he flatly refuses. Puzzled, Ellen tells McClatchney, a kindly old cooper of her difficulty, and with the help of one of Benham's crew, succeeds in getting Ellen aboard as a stowaway.

The next halt was made at sundown. The scows were tied up, fires lit and the evening meal prepared. Benham himself did not come near her, but he sent Pierre Buschard to her with several heaped dishes of savoury, steaming food and a pannikin of scalding hot tea. By the time she had finished her supper the Indians had brought numerous armfuls of fragrant spruce tips for her bed.

Ellen arranged her own couch, then, with sudden determination, went ashore. Benham faced her. "I'm going for a little exercise," she defiantly. "Or am I a prisoner?"

"Not in the least," was the quiet answer. "Only do not go too far. It is nearly dark and these woods are uncharted."

Unconsciously, Ellen stayed longer than she had intended. When she finally threaded her way back ture encompassed the wilderness about them.

Ellen was startled. Most men she had known in the north country became hardened to its beauties. But there was something almost poetic in John Benham's simple words and tone. In some intangible way it seemed that a bond of friendship of common understanding between them was born there at that moment.

For a long time Ellen stood there, across the flames from this strange, still, elemental man. Her mind seethed with truant thoughts, and words that frightened her lay close to her lips. Then one of the sleeping Indians stirred in his blankets. The spell was broken. Ellen moved away.

"Good-night," she called softly. "Good-night—John Benham."

The low, sturdy log buildings which comprised the Hudson Bay axe and hammer and a pile of spikes, Benham went to work at the prow of the scow. With the poles spiked upright and the length of tarpaulin unearthing the cargo, he fashioned an enclosure. To finish it off he cut out the blankets Pierre had provided for her and them in the new-built cubby. When he was up for the night he shall gather you enough tips for a comfortable stay," he announced. "This will give you reasonable privacy." Without another word or a stroke of the axe away, strode his men and stood there, holding out a short black briar which he clenched affectionately in his teeth, to smoke calmly and uninterestedly.

Ellen looked across the flames at this strange, still man.

to the fire but a single figure remained seated before the fading flames. It was Benham. He looked at her without speaking.

A stir of response gripped Ellen. She knew he had been awaiting her return. "I'm sorry," she said, quietly. "Sorry if I've kept you from your rest. But somehow it seemed that I had at last, come home, after being away too long. I won't offend this way again. I realize I am very much in your debt."

Benham nodded. "I understand," he said, softly. "I too have been away—and come home. And I often sit late like this. It is at night that all this speaks." A brief ges-

Post at Fort Edson, were spread out against the rising slope of a low, thickly-wooded ridge which mounted from a short beach of shingle on the west shore of the Mackenzie River, the last and mother river of those three great streams which carried the brigades of the fur traders into the vast bosom of the north.

Down the Athabasca River to Lake Athabasca, from there along the broad, smooth reaches of the Slave River to Great Slave Lake. Then at last into the twisting flood of the Mackenzie, John Benham's brigade had found its way. Long, dreamy days and still, mysterious nights had passed in number since the day of the start, and now, at the death of still another day, the brigade tied up there on the beach below Fort Edson.

Side by side on the leading scow, Ellen Mackay and John Benham stood in silence and watched the end of the journey materialize out of the gathering river mists. A strange camaraderie had grown between these two. Time, enforced companionship and youth, had worked slowly but surely upon them. They were not lovers in any sense of the word. If such fires burned within them, then such fires were smouldering ones, hidden, banked fires which would need to know the ache of absence before thoroughly and consciously realized. Yet each recognized in the other a kindred spirit, an understanding heart.

The parting was commonplace enough. Ellen stepped to the shore and her baggage was placed beside her. At the head of the slope by the fort buildings a group of Indians were gathering. Benham gestured towards this group.

"They will take care of your luggage," he said slowly. "It is best that I leave immediately."

Ellen hesitated. "That first day, below Cascade Rapids—the morning you discovered that I had stowed away—you spoke of exacting payment. I—what is that payment, John Benham?"

The look he bent upon her was fathomless. "I would save you from that payment if I could now. But I am afraid that you must pay, just the same. Not to me—but to others."

"I—I don't understand." "You will." He held out his hand. "Good-bye, Ellen Mackay."

For a moment her hand trembled in his. Then he had stepped back on to the scow. His deep voice called orders. The crews bent to the sweeps and a moment later the hungry river current was wafting him off into the mists.

Something gathered in Ellen's throat. She looked away and started feverishly up the slope. And now, coming towards her from the building was a little group of Indians, led by a stooped shuffling, white-haired man.

Ellen looked aghast. "Father!" she cried. "Father!"

She flew to him, to this stooped and gnarled patriarch. What had happened? When she had left, four years before, this father of her had ghastly about this old man's wailing rage and his imprecations. And this father of hers, who had wasted away to such a shell, seemed almost like another person to her. But she drew upon her young strength and went to him. Quietly but remorselessly she forced him back into his seat and dropped upon her knees beside him. She attempted to soothe him with words such as she would have used on a child.

"You must rest, father. You are not well. You have been too long alone. I am young and strong. You must let me take most of the load from your shoulders. I have not forgotten how to handle the Indians or to grade a fur."

Again the old father laughed and it seemed to Ellen that all the elements of despair were in that laugh. He was shaking; a man palsied by the scalding outpourings of rage and hate. Over and over again he muttered the name of John Benham, cursing and reviling. It was long before he quieted, and the reaction left him weak and shrunken. His eyes, staring out beneath shaggy brows were glazed and blood-shot. He panted weakly for breath.

At that moment all the murky shadows in the world seemed to close in on Ellen Mackay. During those thoughtless, carefree years which she had spent at school, some great tragedy had been enacted here in the fastnesses of the north. Alone and in silence this father of hers had fought some great, overwhelming misfortune, to be slowly beaten down and shattered until it seemed that even his reason was tottering. And the cause of his misfortune had been John Benham, John Benham!

Something stirred and surged through her veins. Behind her was a long line of fighting ancestors, a lineage reaching to the far, gone wilderness.

covered highlands of Scotland. Here before her lay battle of another sort, yet battle none the less. With a click of her white teeth she caught up the gage. Gone in an instant were all memories of that thousand-mile trip from the north. In a flicker of an eyelash she placed John Benham in new status. An enemy now—an enemy who had shattered and brought near to death—her father.

At last the insanity of rage left Angus Mackay. One thin hand came out and rested on Ellen's dark head caressingly. "Forgive me, lass," he murmured. "But only the great God knows what I have been through. It is hard, at my age, to see defeat and disgrace looming just before the grave."

It was late when she kissed her father good-night and went to her room, the cozy little cubby that had been hers since a babe in swaddling clothes. A shaded lamp suffused it with a gentle, homely glow. It was carpeted with deep, rich furs, even to the enormous hide of a polar bear, in the gleaming pelage of which she sank to her slender ankles.

Prepared by the loving hands of Gitchie, her bed lured her beneath a spotless counterpane. On a little table in one corner was a bowl of wood violets, which Moosac had gathered and which filled the air with fairly incense. Swiftly she disrobed, blew out the light and slipped between cool, caressing sheets. But as she relaxed the darkness brought many thoughts and many images. Try as she would she could not keep a certain picture from drifting before her closed eyes. It was that of John Benham, as she had seen him many times. He stood before her again, clean, splendid, powerful, his strong, still face grim and purposeful; his brilliant eyes adream with the mystery of the wilderness.

Soil Conservation Service To Plant 175,000,000 Trees

The Soil Conservation Service plans to plant approximately 175 million trees and shrubs during 1937, as part of the erosion control program, in project areas throughout the country. H. H. Bennett, Chief of the Service, announced today. During 1936, he said, the Service planted 130 million trees, mostly of the hardwood varieties. In the wind-eroded area, 3,800,000 trees and shrubs were planted in 1936.

The 1937 plantings for erosion control will bring the total for the Service to approximately 700 million in a little more than four years. It is estimated that 2,000,000 trees and shrubs will be planted in Region 6, the wind-eroded area.

At the beginning of the year, Bennett asserted, tree and shrub plantings of the Soil Conservation Service were giving substantial protection against soil erosion on approximately 230,000 acres. Almost 167,000 acres of this area are steeply sloping land, formerly subject to severe sheet erosion. The other 63,000 acres are gullied land that has been stabilized, or is in the process of being stabilized by the plantings.

The general purpose of the Service's farm woodland management work, Bennett explained, is to give the soil the greatest possible protection against wind and water, and often to provide a supplementary source of income for the cooperating farmer. He emphasized, however, that the farm woodland work constitutes only one phase of the coordinated erosion control program of the Service, which treats each field and farm under consideration according to its specific needs and adaptabilities.

Elimination Of Two Districts To Have Strong Opposition

The elimination of two districts in proposed re-districting measures will find stiff opposition, it was indicated Tuesday.

A bill introduced by Rep. W. H. Adkins of Brady in the house would eliminate 99th and 110th districts, both in this section. The 99th court serves Lubbock county alone.

W. W. Campbell, president of Lubbock County Bar association, said a meeting of the association would be called to protest the changes. The association already has gone on record as opposing any changes in the courts here.

"I think we need two courts, and that need will increase as this section progresses" said Clark M. Mullican, judge of the 99th district court from the time of its organization in 1927 until his resignation last September.

The court has been "as busy as any I know of in Texas," he said. "It is an easy matter to abolish a court but hard to get a new one. We should hold on to it," he said.

Opposition to elimination of the 110th district already has been expressed by Judge A. J. Folley and District Attorney Alton B. Chapman, both of 110th district.

"Private interests should always yield to public interests, and I personally do not want the 99th district court continued unless it would be for the best interests of the public in this section," said Judge E. L. Pitts of the 99th district.

"Outcast" To Be Featured At Ritz Saturday Midnight

Warren William, best known for his portrayals of the suave film detective, comes to the screen in a strong characterization in "Outcast," a story of mob fury, which opens at the Ritz Theatre Saturday midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday.

Although he is acquitted of a murder charge, William, a physician is hounded from city to city by a woman who believes him guilty and who swore vengeance upon him. When she realizes his innocence and her love for him she is unable to stop the fury of a mob she had incited against him.

Karen Morley portrays the woman who wrecked William's life. The pair are supported by Lewis Stone little Jackie Moran, the boy "Paul" of "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," John Wray, who played the boy's father in the same production; Christian Rub, Esther Dale and Jonathan Hale. "Outcast" is from Frank R. Adams' popular novel "Happiness Preferred," and was directed by Robert Florey.

Fieldton and Hart Camp Schools Will Receive Recognition

G. D. Holbrook, deputy State Superintendent of Schools, Lubbock, visited the local schools Friday, and is making his official visits to the other schools in the county this week.

Mr. Holbrook has announced that Hart Camp and Fieldton schools will be fully standardized and accredited as Junior High Schools at the close of this year.

According to Supt. F. O. Boles, this is the first time in the history of Lamb County that every school in the county has been fully accredited or standardized.

Under a recent readjustment of credits, high schools are divided into four years of work and two years. The former are classed as senior and the latter as junior schools.

Morton Boys Injured In Steam Explosion

A loud explosion at Morton recently caused much concern, as the loud noise was heard for some distance.

"Jiggs" Baker, who with some boy friends, had built a fire under a gas lantern filled with water, was injured on one hand, while Dewey D. Harrison was blown from a box near a fire to a distance of almost twenty feet. The lantern, which was air tight, soon developed a lot of steam, which caused the explosion. The accident occurred in the door of the garage at the Baker home on the east paved highway.

The Baker boys' hands were lacerated and Dewey Harrison's legs were injured.

Rose Pruning Time is Here

"I have been planning to get my roses pruned but I am waiting for my neighbors to come and get the cuttings. I hate to prune them and just throw the cuttings away," said Mrs. C. E. Toney of Rubydale community.

Now is the time to cut back roses from six to twelve inches from the ground in order to have a succession of blooms during the summer. The roses will be larger and more perfect where pruning is done.

Mrs. Toney has given many people cuttings of her roses in the past. Cuttings are a satisfactory way of getting a good start for a rose garden as well as being an inexpensive way. They should be put in damp sandy soil and protected from the wind.

FRACTURES HIP

Mrs. G. A. Bench of Amherst, mother of Mrs. R. L. Richards of Olton, fell recently while engaged in her household duties and fractured a hip. She was taken to Lubbock for an x-ray examination which disclosed the break.
