Another Files In School Race

Trevino Makes Bid

Pete Trevino, Littlefield resident the past 16 years, became the third man to seek a slot on the Littlefield Independent School District Board when he filed for the position Wednesday morning.

PETE TREVINO ... seeks board post

Trevino will be running on the ballot with two incumbents in the at-large election, slated April 1.

Pat Downs and Jack Barton had previously filed for return bids. Downs, currently school board president, is seeking a second term and Barton is running for a third term. These were the only incumbents filed at 1 p.m. press time Wednesday with the deadline only four hours away.

School board members run at-large in Littlefield as they are elected in a city-wide vote here instead of by precincts or places. Terms of the board are for three years.

Trevino, 33, is the assistant manager of the Union Compress. He has lived in Littlefield since 1951 when he moved here after graduation from Rivers High School.

He is a member of the board of city development by appointment and on the Parish Council of the Catholic Church. Trevino commented that, "If elected, I will serve the people of the community to the best of my ability."

He and his wife, Margaret, have six children. Three of them are in the local schools. Connie, 12, is in the seventh grade; Alice, 11, is in the fifth grade; Martha, 10, is in the fourth grade; Carl is five years old; Brenda is four years old; and Alan is two years old. The Trevinos are members of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

When asked why he decided to run for the school board position he commented that "people had asked him to file for the position and that I have always been interested in education and children and this is a good way to help them."

Baseball Meet

A meeting of the Littlefield Baseball Association will be held at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 9, in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas.

All persons interested in a summer baseball program in Littlefield are being urged to attend, according to Joe Ledbetter, baseball association spokesman.

Red Cross Drive Will Kick-Off

The kick-off breakfast for the Lamb County Red Cross Drive will be held Friday morning at 7:30 at Thornton's Cafeteria.

The month of March has been designated as Red Cross month. All this month volunteers for the Red Cross will be canvassing the county for donations to help the Red Cross with their work. The theme for the drive is "Help Us Help."

Volunteers are needed in all communities to help with the drive. At this breakfast quotas will be announced for each chairman and his volunteers. Mrs. Bonnie Haberer, county chairman, will preside at the breakfast. Bill Weige, over all chairman, will outline the rules for the month-long campaign.

Council Agenda Includes Sewer

Three major items will be on the agenda of the City Council meeting slated for 7 p.m., today, at City Hall.

They include: --Discussion of proposed sewage treatment plant. --Discussion with John Byers of Livermore Drilling Co. of Lubbock on the water flood project in the city limits. --Report of the current airport project.

City Gets $82,500 Grant From HUD

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved reservation of $82,500 for expenses for water and sewer facilities in Littlefield, Cong. Bob Price and Sen. Ralph Yarborough announced this week.

Reservation of the funds will assure availability of the money after final review and approval of the project by HUD, Price said. Mayor J.E. Chisholm said the funds would be used primarily for a sewer collection line in conjunction with a proposed new sewage treatment plant here.

Preliminary plans have been prepared for a new sewage treatment plant which should be located about where the current plant is now, according to Richard Bean, city manager. The new line to be installed with the funds will be a relief sewer line to the new facility.

Bean said that no action has been taken lately on the treatment plant, and that the money from HUD on the project will be set aside for use when it is needed.

Grooming Bill For County Residents Exceeds Million

Judging by the amount of money the average Lamb County woman spends each year for beauty products, personal appearance is of prime importance to her.

Her annual outlay for face creams, hair coloring, eye makeup, permanent waves, nail polish, lipsticks and other cosmetics, together with visits to the beauty parlor, comes to a pretty penny.

And all of it is in the "must" category. She would sooner cut down on much of her other spending, if it became necessary, than allow for her appearance to droop.

Each successive year finds her spending more and more in this direction, the figures show. One reason for it is the rising cost of cosmetics. Another is the multiplicity of new products that she is urged to try.

Fortunately, her spending ability is better than it was (See GROOMING Page 11)

Rock Hounds Sniff Out Stones

Rock hounds, that's what Mr. and Mrs. Jack Singer are. That doesn't mean they are dogs or anything like that. They are collectors of any form of rock from sea shells to fossils of prehistoric fish.

Beginning their interesting hobby about three years ago, the Singers have since become more and more enthused in all there is to be found in what seems to be only worthless rock.

"We just enjoy the beauty that one can find in what seems to be only a useless rock," said Mrs. Singer. The beauty of the stones which the Singers look for are usually found under a crust of weather-worn rock.

"When the piece is sliced or cut in half the true beauty of the stone is revealed," they said. Their collection includes stones from other countries such as Japan, Africa, India, Argentina, Korea, Old Mexico and many others. In the United States the Singers have collected specimens from New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona, and in Texas near Post, Bull Lake, and in Mason County. Most of their rock hunting is done during their spare time or the time spent on business trips.

held three or four times each year in the area.

One of the most interesting of the Singer collection is an ancient Indian corn god which was found in Old Mexico. The piece dates back to the pre-Columbian period. Another interesting specimen is a large block of petrified worms.

They also have a working stone which was used by Indians to shape their arrowheads. Among the different types of stone which are in the Singer's collection are opals, topaz, quartz, agate, jade and jadeite.

Jack and his wife have in their collection pieces of rock formed from silica as a result of the testing on the White Sands Missile range. They also have an ashtray made of atomic glass.

Of special interest to Mrs. Singer are those rocks that are fluorescent under ultraviolet light. "Our desire is to collect rough and finished pieces from all over the world," said Mrs. Singer.

AMY'S ADLIBS

"Boy, Mom..."

By Amy Turner

"The Bible . . . in the beginning." We were privileged this week to attend a private showing of this film, which is to open soon at the Winchester Theatre in Lubbock. For the photography along, I would highly recommend the movie to anyone. However, I also felt that the material was handled very well.

The movie is a quite literal presentation of part of the book of Genesis and is a fast-moving 3-hour show. In fact, I didn't fidget once and that's saying something for me . . . I usually have trouble sitting through a 30-minute TV program.

At the beginning of the movie, the audience was told that special presentations at reduced rates are planned in the hopes that all the children in the area may view the film.

Comment overheard in the lobby: "I certainly wouldn't want my children to see this. How in the world would I ever explain all that to them?"

NOW I FELT very sorry for this lady and for her children until the next morning when my son grounded me with this comment: "Boy, that was a dirty movie you saw last night, Mom."

I should have learned by now not to be surprised at anything my children say, but I'm a slow learner. So I question. It seems he was looking over the printed program, which shows some pictures of Adam and Eve, in the nude, but, as we would say, "tastefully so."

"Well," I responded, "you didn't really think they were created fully clothed, did you?"

After thinking this over, he looked up and tried: "Would you believe a leaf?"

SOMEWHERE, along the line, we seem to have started trying to convince ourselves that the Bible is a book entirely of sweetness and light and let's just forget about those parts we don't want to explain.

Particularly in Sunday School. I sympathize with Sunday School teachers since, having served as one, I know there are certain difficult lessons.

And it's not that you don't want to or can't explain them.

But anyone who has been around children will know that you can never be certain just what is coming through on those little brain waves.

A teacher, facing some lessons, can get mental pictures of Little Johnny going home and reporting that "the teacher said thus-and-so" . . . no explanation, nothing.

The next mental picture is of the teacher being tarred and feathered.

Which makes it considerably safer to avoid certain subjects.

ALL TEACHERS, to a certain extent, face this problem.

I remember a case a number of years ago of a science teacher who started teaching the THEORY of evolution to a class . . . no apes, just evolution, or that things change.

One student commented to his parents that he was studying evolution and his rather ignorant Bible-toting Papa stormed the school screaming that his son was NOT descended from an ape.

Now, I don't happen to believe that my ancestors were apes, either, although there are some, knowing me, that would disagree. But it doesn't really bother me very much that some nut comes up with a different theory every month to explain why I'm walking around on the ground instead of swinging from trees.

A FRIEND of mine, after touring Europe, commented to me that he noticed most of the "snickerers" at nude works of art seemed to be Americans.

"They missed the whole idea," he lamented.

I noticed some of this in touring Hearst Castle in California last summer.

Now, I'm all for modesty and hardly advocate that everyone start running around in the nude. With our background and culture, it would be disastrous . . . and breezy, besides.

But I sometimes wonder if we don't go overboard with our whitewash job, even where the Bible is concerned.

Maybe, like my friend said, we're just missing the whole idea.

OWNER'S REPORT

An Exciting Woman

By Bill Turner

MADEMOISELLE magazine named the five "most exciting women" of 1966 in a recent issue.

And once again they somehow skipped the most exciting woman of all, my wife.

The dictionary says to excite means "to put into motion or activity; stir up; to arouse." My wife sure excites me.

Right now, she has me tremendously excited about two pairs of socks.

Both are sort of greenish-gray, a real "exciting" color. They are these new knee-high jobs, the kind that will stand up, even on my bony legs.

The trouble with the socks, though, is that they catch my pants and make me look like I'm wearing knickers.

That can get pretty embarrassing, like when you get up from a chair and start to walk out. You look pretty stupid standing there shaking your britches' legs.

TRULY, they are fine socks, a gift from my exciting wife.

When she handed them over, I made over them like they were sent from heaven. I even wore them two or three times.

But enough's enough. I couldn't take it any more. So I just quit wearing them.

After awhile, it dawned on Amy.

"How come these socks are still clean? I can't remember when I washed them last."

Well, I got out of that one okay. I just told her that, yeah, she'd washed them a couple of days ago, and I just hadn't gotten around to wearing them again yet, but I would, probably tomorrow.

That let me off the hook for the time being.

AMY ASKED about those socks the next day, though, when she couldn't find either pair.

"Surely you didn't get both pair dirty in one day?" she questioned. Then she headed to check the dirty clothes hamper.

"They're not here, either. Well I'll be . . . oh I know, you didn't like them and you threw them away."

"Nosiree, baby! Not me. I wouldn't . . . Nope!"

"Yes you did."

"No I didn't."

FINALLY, I thought of a possibility.

"Honey," I said, in my most soothing manner, "those socks weren't big enough."

"See," she yelled, "I knew it. . . you threw them away."

That time I didn't say a word. I just got out of there. Excited.

She is an exciting woman. If I don't find those miserable socks, she is going to excite me about them every day for the next 12 months.

It may kill me, but it might get her on the Mademoiselle list next year.

She's been on my list for a long time.

THROUGH THE YEARS

15 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of the Lamb County Leader, Sunday, March 2, 1952)

Approximately 1400 acres of Lamb County farm lands will in all probabilities be planted to castor beans this year, has been tentatively pledged or designated to go into such production, said David Eaton, county agent, at his office in Amherst Friday morning following a series of three meetings held with PMA and Commodity Credit agents, engaged in furthering an enlarged castor bean acreage.

Representatives from Littlefield, estimated their water needs during the next 60 years at a conference held in Lubbock, Thursday at about 1,250,000 gallons daily in 1960 and about 4,000,000 in 60 years. The local representatives anticipated the population increase will be from 6,540 in 1950 to about 12,000 in 1960 and 35,000 in 2010.

Texas Milking Shorthorn Association is sponsoring three field days, and showing of this famous breed of cattle, the week of March 23, one of which will be held in Littlefield on Wednesday, March 26.

Plans are underway by the Farmers Cooperative Gin of Springlake to erect a new 80 stand gin this spring. Construction is expected to be about April 15, which when completed, will be operated as gin No. 2 by this organization.

25 Years Ago

(Taken from the files of the Lamb County Leader, Thursday, March 5, 1927)

The food stamp plan is expected to be established in Lamb County soon, as announced in a letter from Congressman George Mahon to the Lamb County Leader, dated February 27.

Production of food and feed and conservation of metals, rubber and other materials needed for guns, tanks, ships and planes, is the double war responsibility Lamb County farmers have this year, V.F. Jones, member of the county USDA War Board said this week.

As announced by C.E. Cundiff, Clerk of the Lamb County Rationing Board, passengers cars were released Monday last, and trucks and pickups will be released after March 9, and may be sold to those who are able to qualify and obtain a certificate to purchase.

Littlefield individual users of sugar will register and receive ration books at the local elementary school Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 18, 19, and 20, while all trade users, up to and including the wholesale level, will register and receive ration books at the high school building on Monday and Tuesday, March 9 and 10.

THERE HE LAYS IN A RUFFLE.
THANKS AGAIN TO THE "ALI SHUFFLE!"

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Throw Off The Pressures

BY BOB WEAR

The very nature of life, with all of the inescapable conflicts and differing ideologies, presents us human beings with many problems and difficulties; however, it is not all bad. There is some good involved. In fact, there is much good available to all who desire good.

We sometimes feel that life would be more desirable if all excitement to do personally harmful and socially unacceptable things were eliminated. Of course, we know that such is not possible. We also know that such a state of being would not be life as we know it. This state of being would be something else -- another world. We must be realistic and admit that temptations and testings are constant elements in the life experience, but we must not be overwhelmed or discouraged by them.

It is important to know that we can successfully resist the temptations to inferior and perverse living. We can and we must resist temptations to defeatism, to despair, to discouragement, to lethargy, to skepticism, to immorality -- we can successfully meet and cope with all testing. This tempting and testing helps to make life what life must be for us. Looking at this reality from the Christian viewpoint (and this is the only meaningful viewpoint), inspiration informs us that "there has no temptation (testing) taken you but such as is common to man." This tells us of the common state of all men. In this same context, we are assured that we will not be tempted or tested beyond our strength, because, when the test comes, there will be a way to pass it successfully, if such is our desire.

There are daily testings that we must meet, but they can be made to serve useful purposes. If we deal with these in the right way, they will be most helpful in making us strong. Faber said, "Every moment of resistance to temptation is a victory." It should be remembered that temptation is not necessarily a persuasion to evil. It may be, but, in its broader sense, it must be recognized as the most common and perhaps the most effective means of refining and developing us. If it were not for this general method of testing, which is an inherent part of the atmosphere in which we live, we could not attain a high level of personal strength and efficiency.

We are being told daily that these are times that try the souls of men. This is not something new, but has been the situation in each succeeding generation and will continue to be so. We must decide whether to yield to the testing or, with intelligence and spiritual courage, resist it and maintain our integrity. Someone has said, "Occasions of adversity best discover how great virtue or strength each one hath. For occasions do not make a man frail, but show what he is."

If we were never tempted or tested, we could never become as strong as we must be; however, let us know for certain that the strength always comes from resisting the temptation. Paradoxically, inspiration teaches us, "Be glad when you meet various trials, for you know that the testing of your faith produces steadfastness."

Life will continue to test us - God's way to make us strong and victorious.

PAUL HARVEY SAYS

Where Freedom Ends

Your freedom ends where my nose begins! It's time for some top-sergeant talk to the silly-billies who are demanding their "rights" to make the rest of us miserable. Your freedom ends where my nose begins!

At the University of Florida a coed posed nude for an off-campus newspaper, received a mild remonstrance from the university's administrators. Promptly, other students demonstrated in defense of her "rights."

At the University of Wisconsin, the unfrocked Harvard professor Timothy Leary, publicly repeated his insistence that he has a "right" to use and promote LSD. He demands it in the name of "freedom of religion."

So even freedom of religion is going to have some sensible legal limitations.

Our nation's founders could not possibly foresee that Americans would so profane the faith of their fathers as to drug themselves and encourage others to do so in the name of "religious freedom."

Presently, a fraction of the Mennonite Church in South Carolina is petitioning for a change in that state's drivers license law.

The Bible says, "Thou shalt not make unto thyself any graven image"; these comparative few construe that to mean "no photographs." So they insist that any law requiring their photographs on drivers licenses violates their "rights."

Well, now, there is also scripture commanding us to "render unto Caesar . . ." The Bible, as most of us understand it, specifically requires that we obey civil law.

It is to the credit of these Mennonites that they are not flaunting the law, but are instead seeking to amend it. If they fail in this objective, they will have no choice but to park their cars or get photographed. The tail must not wag the dog.

The maintenance of law and order is vastly complicated in a sardine society. We are necessarily confined by limitations on our liberties. You can't park seventy million cars in seven million parking places without some restrictions. As we thus "imprison" ourselves, a photograph with a number on it is a logical inevitability.

You and I don't like all this government snooping, but you cannot safely allow me to park in front of your fire hydrant.

Your freedom ends where my nose begins! Transcending civil law, a basic moral law, "love thy neighbor," could keep most of us off one another's toes.

When that girl undressed herself for the photographer in Florida, the University's Dean, Lester Hale, said, "A student has an obligation to conduct himself on and off the campus in such a way as not to degrade himself or the university, regardless of whether his action is lawful or unlawful."

And the degree to which we reject this responsibility to others determines the extent to which Big Government must move in and enforce propriety.

The Berkeley campus has been seeing pornographic picket signs paraded in the name of "freedom of speech."

Your freedom ends where my nose begins!

SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER

CIA Not Helping Him

(Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm has heard about the activities of the C.I.A., his letter this week indicates.)

Dear editor:
Every newspaper I've picked up out here lately has had another long article on what the C.I.A. has been doing, and I've done my best to keep track of it.

As I understand it, the C.I.A., or Central Intelligence Agency, gets a lot of secret money from Congress to keep this country informed on what's going on behind the scenes around the world, and to help counteract Communism, and smarter men than I recognize it's a valuable work and I believe it.

However, it might not be a bad idea to give an intelligence test to the man in the outfit who thought he could hand out money to college students and keep it quiet.

The way the newspaper articles explained it, a lot of the college students didn't know the C.I.A. was supplying them with money, and I believe it, but you can't depend on all students staying in the dark all the time. One or two of them were bound to catch on.

On the other hand, a lot of organizations run by grown men were unaware of where their money was coming from, so you don't necessarily have to be a college student to be fooled.

A friend of mine in town got to thinking about all this and he stopped me and said, "Say, I understand you farmers are always getting government checks. You reckon the C.I.A. is behind that?"

I have investigated this thoroughly, and I can state that unquestionably and beyond a shadow of a doubt the C.I.A. is not financing me or any other farmer.

It is an insult to our intelligence to suggest such a thing. It is outrageous to even think it. Certainly the C.I.A. is not financing me.

But in this connection I would like to say, How do you get in touch with them?
Yours faithfully,
J.A.

COTTON TALKS

From Plains Cotton Growers Inc.

Representatives of 14 Texas Cotton Producer Organizations in Dallas on February 14 nominated 26 men from which the Secretary will select five members and five alternates to serve on the Cotton Board being formed under the dollar-a-bale Cotton Research and Promotion Act.

Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., with producer members in 23 counties surrounding Lubbock, was represented in the Dallas producer organization caucus by its president, J. D. Smith of Littlefield.

Smith was authorized to speak for PCG by the Executive Committee at a meeting on February 9, and in accordance with the Committee's instructions placed in nomination the names of eight cotton industry leaders well known on the High Plains.

To determine the areas from which the five members and five alternates on the Board would come, Texas was arbitrarily divided into five "Places." Members and alternates from four of these are to represent one or more of the major cotton producing sections of the state. The Board representative from the fifth Place was to be what might be called a "roving" delegate, and could come from anywhere in the state.

For Place One in Texas, which covers the High Plains area, PCG nominated Roy Davis and Roy Forkner, both of Lubbock, as board members. As alternates, the names of Donald A. Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President, and Joe B. Pate, Jr., were submitted.

All fourteen of the producer organizations concurred in these nominations, and Smith says it can be assumed the Secretary will appoint either Davis or Forkner to the Board and Johnson or Pate as alternates.

Place Two includes the Rolling Plains, Pecos and El Paso areas. Place Three is made up of North Central and East Texas, and Place Four covers the Coastal Bend and Rio Grande Valley regions.

Once nematodes get at your cotton, yields go down and so do profits. But with FUMAZONE® 86 soil fumigant applied at only 1 to 2 gallons overall an acre, you can take care of root-knot, sting, meadow and other nematodes—those microscopic, worm-like soil pests that attack plant roots, suck away profits. FUMAZONE 86 soil fumigant increases yields up to 1/2 bale an acre. Many High Plains farmers just like yourself tell us that's exactly what happened to their yields after their soils were treated with FUMAZONE 86. It can be applied right from the drum. No

Conservation Measures Introduced

Three legislative measures updating and broadening the responsibilities of the State Soil and Water Conservation Board were approved Tuesday by the Senate.

Sponsor for the proposals was Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon.

The proposals would give the State Board power to negotiate with local agencies, organizations and the Federal government in conservation programs.

The State Board would be authorized to enter into agreements with local and Federal agencies and buy and sell property for the development and protection of the states' water and soil resources.

Conservation funds from the Federal government and other sources would be deposited in a Natural Resource Conservation and Development Fund for administration by the board.

"Under the proposals," Senator Hightower said, "The State Board would be able to negotiate with local agencies, organizations and individuals for conservation purposes."

Noting that the responsibilities of the State Board have not been updated since 1939, Senator Hightower said:

"It is anticipated that the State Boards and Districts will be asked to handle some Federal funds for soil and water conservation."

"The State Board needs this additional authority to better facilitate the anticipated conservation programs."

Senator Hightower reminded his fellow senators that Governor Connally has advocated greater participation by the state in Federal conservation programs.

Senator Hightower's second proposal outlines requirements for filling vacancies in supervisor posts in soil and water conservation districts and changing district boundary lines.

A third measure lays down bookkeeping and administrative requirements for the State Board.

Senator Hightower said he expects House action on the measures in the near future.

Nominees Being Taken For Heroism

Somewhere in rural Texas lives a person who is due a hero's award. He or she, adult or youth, may be a member of your family or one of your neighbors.

The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council is now seeking that individual and you can tell the council where he or she lives and about the deed performed.

The individual being sought may have rescued another person from a burning building, saved a child from drowning or performed an heroic deed of another nature.

Whatever the deed, the council would like to recognize and show their appreciation to the one considered by a selection committee as most typical of the nominee.

The council will present to the person selected their Rural Heroism Plaque.

Nominees must come from a rural area or from a town of less than 2,500 population. It is easy to make the nomination, just submit a narrative covering the heroic deed and include the details, such as the full names of all persons involved and news clippings and pictures if they are available.

Mail the entry before March 10 to Rural Heroism Safety Award, Joe Smetana, Safety Director, Texas Farm Bureau, P. O. Box 489, Waco, Texas 76703.

Smetana is secretary-treasurer of the Council. Other officers are Tony Price of Dallas, president; and Bob Etheredge of Fort Worth, vice president.

Castormeal Being Given To Cattle In The Feedlot

For what may be the first time, a researcher in Spur is feeding castormeal to heifers in the feedlot.

Paul Marion, superintendent of Texas A&M University's Rolling Plains Livestock Research Station, says he is trying to determine if castormeal can be safely fed as a source of protein to cattle. So far, his results indicate it can.

Castorbeans are increasing in Texas, particularly on the High Plains where they are being grown on retired cotton acreage.

Marion says he started the heifers on .4 of a pound of the castormeal a day and now is up to 3 pounds per head per day. The ration includes ground sorghum grain and silage. Since the castormeal contains (ugh) castor oil, which has a laxative effect, the cattle must be started slowly, he says.

To date, the heifers have gained 2.1 pounds per head a day, but they are rather low quality heifers, so Marion says he didn't expect extra high gains.

The castormeal is about 32 percent crude protein compared to about 41 percent for cottonseed meal. But the castormeal sells for about $55 a ton compared to around $88 a ton or more for cottonseed meal.

Marion says the oil mills plan to reduce the amount of fiber and extract more of the oil from the castormeal—this should raise crude protein to about 40 percent.

Similar cattle on cottonseed meal at the A&M research station are doing slightly better but Marion figures the difference is closely related to the lower protein and higher fiber of the castormeal.

With the milling improvements, he says castormeal could well become a relatively inexpensive source of protein for cattle in a feedlot.

Testing Soil Moisture Before Irrigating Can Save Money

By TEX ROGERS

With farmers in the area greasing up their pumps in preparation for that coming chore of pre-plant irrigation, many should be wondering how much water should be used.

What amount of moisture is needed to prepare the land? How much time should be used for each irrigation set? And what should be the size of the furrow stream in gallons per minute?

These are all important questions every irrigation farmer should want answered, especially since a lot of water may be needed to offset the dry weather in West Texas. But, also, to use just the right amount of water so that only a minimum will be wasted.

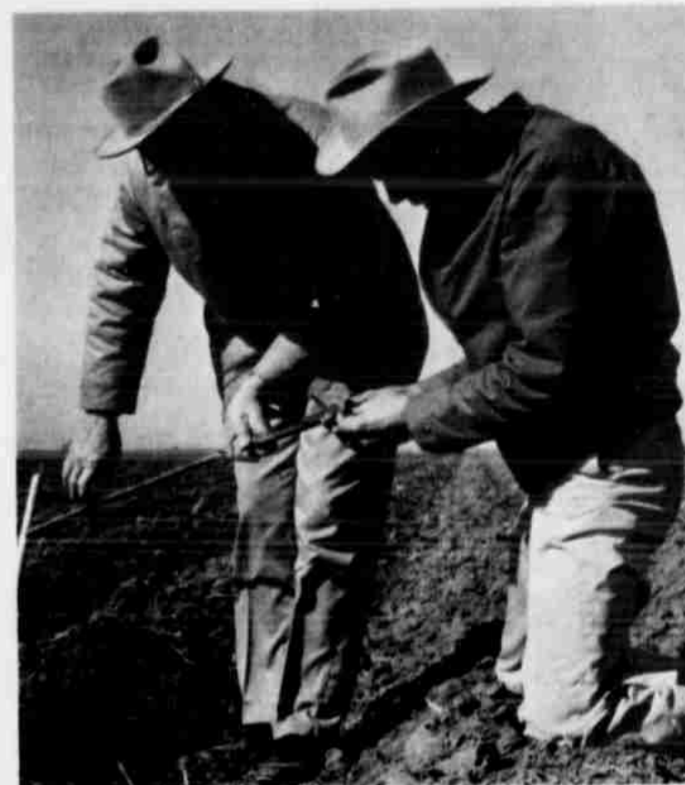

Norman Emfinger, who farms about five miles east of Littlefield, tries to answer these questions about this time every year. The method he uses is simple, but he thinks it saves him a lot of extra water and money.

Before Emfinger begins irrigating a field for the first time, he simply takes a sample of the soil to check how deep the moisture content is.

This test can be made either with a dirt auger or sharp-shooter shovel. It doesn't matter.

By looking at the soil, he then knows how much moisture is in it at certain depths. This tells him how much water is needed to fill the root zone profile for his crop in pre-plant irrigation.

Emfinger, who has farmed here since 1952, has made a moisture content check on his land before pre-plant irrigation regularly since 1957. The information gathered in that first test has been useful throughout the season.

NORMAN EMFINGER, LEFT, CHECKING MOISTURE . . . B.T. Kisner, SCS technician, assisting

Last week Emfinger ran such a test on some land he was about to irrigate and found that soil two feet down was still moist with a content of about 60 per cent, despite dry weather in January.

This field, then, required less water than he thought. Had he not made the test, Emfinger said, he would have watered more than necessary and it would have cost him precious water and valuable labor.

On the other hand, down the road Emfinger irrigated a piece of land without checking the soil. After irrigating he made the test and found that he had used too much water, more than enough to wet the root zone profile.

Farmers are advised when testing their soil before pre-plant irrigation that they should run several checks all over their fields. This can help in distribution of water.

Also, Emfinger said, moisture tests can be made before irrigating the crop and after rains, to make sure just the right amount of water is used the next time around.

A big advantage of testing the soil before pre-plant and after is that the information can be used for setting the irrigation cycle, he said. Also, it can tell when the water can be replaced and how often.

"Farmers rotating crops should really check for moisture," Emfinger said. "Because some feed crops will use more moisture than others. So it is important to know how wet the ground is below before irrigating."

Emfinger knows that farmers today are having to be more cautious with their time, labor costs and water if they are going to make a profit.

This is especially true when it costs some $20 to pump an acre-foot of water.

"The main idea in using a checking system is to use it now, before the first irrigating," Emfinger said. "It can save a lot of money and a lot of water that isn't needed."

Waggin' Tongue

By TEX ROGERS

This is an Age of Abbreviation. And an Age of Agencies (government mostly). The combination is giving a lot of people initial-phobia.

The first symptoms are abstract staring (trying to remember what those letters represent), nervous agreement ("Sure, I know what that stands for, don't you?"), and a flushed face ("There must be two agencies with the same initials!"). Advanced cases show how marked tendencies either throw initials about with complete abandon (wives become T.O. L. parties are B.Y.O.B. and a brother-in-law is an . . .) or toward the end of the week it's T.G.I.F.

So, as a sort of public service to sort out the initials associated with just one government agency, the Soil Conservation Service, WT (uh-oh) prepared this initial explanation. It also is intended to help the non-farm people in case they are in a conversation with a man of the soil at a barbecue or in the barber shop.

Initially, here they are: USDA--This is the United States Department of Agriculture, a branch of the United States Government.

SCS--The Soil Conservation Service, which is a part of the USDA. It is referred to as the "technical arm" of the USDA and is the only government agency charged with the responsibility for conserving natural resources on private lands. It is responsible for carrying out a national program of land and water resources conservation.

SCD--Soil Conservation Districts are local organizations through which the SCS makes its technical help available to landowners and operators cooperating with the Districts.

FCA--This is the Flood Control Act passed by Congress in 1944 through which the SCS was authorized to develop flood prevention and water resources. NCSS--The National Cooperative Soil Survey is part of the national program of the SCS, assigned to it by the Secretary of Agriculture in 1952.

CSS--Coordinated Snow Surveys are carried on in the western United States by the SCS to forecast seasonal water supplies. The survey is carried out as a part of the service's flood control, flood prevention and river basin development duties.

GPCP--The Great Plains Conservation Program, encompassing a large part of 10 states, is a long-range agriculture program designed to give long-term technical and financial assistance to farmers and ranchers in the high-risk agricultural areas of the Great Plains. It is administered by the SCS.

RAD--Rural Area Development was provided by legislation in 1962, authorizing locally-sponsored conservation and development projects and income-producing recreation enterprises under SCS leadership. ASCS--The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is a government agency, different and separate from the SCS. It is responsible for administering government farm programs and it occasionally calls on the SCS engineers to assist it with technical problems.

ACP--The Agricultural Conservation Program is a cost sharing program administered through the ASCS.

If WT (Waggin' Tongue) left out any ia's (initial agencies), it is ea (entirely accidental).

Lions Club Hears Of Texas Traffic Accident Problem

The seriousness of Texas' traffic accident problem and what can be done about it was brought more into focus for the members of the Littlefield Lions Club today as they heard Tom Hilburn present facts and figures about the situation.

In a talk entitled "Texas in Trouble", illustrated with color slides, community leaders were told that 3,500 Texans would die on the state's streets and highways this year if prevention action is not taken quickly.

The remedy proposed is advocated by Governor John Connally and is supported by "Texans for Traffic Safety," a citizens action group made up of individuals, companies and associations.

The remedy includes a plan for enactment of safety legislation that will provide for more complete vehicle safety inspections, driver education for all young drivers, stronger driver license requirements, additional highway patrolmen and other items.

"We should have 2,500 highway patrolmen on our roads," Hilburn said and added, "Today only 700 patrolmen are on the job patrolling the highways. It is true that the Department of Public Safety has an authorized strength of 900 men but only 700 are on the job because wages are so low that qualified men hesitate to join the patrol. This hesitancy costs lives because unpoliced highways are dangerous roads. Wages must be increased."

Texas for Traffic Safety recommends that the driver license law be revised to provide that a minimum licensing age of 16 be established for teens with driver education and 18 for those who have not had this training. The safety group further recommends that all licenses for persons under 21 be issued on a provisional basis with the Department of Public Safety having authority to suspend licenses of young persons convicted of the most serious violations.

Hilburn pointed out that this year some four per cent of Texas traffic accidents will involve defective vehicles and that while the percentage is very small, the number of such vehicles will be great. An estimated 140 deaths and 80,000 injuries will result from accidents involving faulty cars and trucks. Texans for Traffic Safety says that the Director of the Department of Public Safety should have the right to expand the vehicle inspection program to include inspection of any part of the vehicle.

"Almost 800 Texas teenagers will be killed in traffic accidents this year," Hilburn said, "and yet only 27 per cent of our state's eligible youngsters will take driver education. This is tragic for driver education can help prevent accidents and save lives. Texans for Traffic Safety believe that every eligible Texas teen should have the benefit of this training."

Support of Governor Connally's Highway Safety Program for 1967 by all Texans was urged by the speaker who pointed out that only a complete traffic safety program offers hope that the state's "disgraceful" traffic record can be improved.

going south on Phelps. Police said a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by Beatrice Montgomery, was parked on the curb and backed into the pickup. Damage to the pickup and auto was $250 and $150, respectively, police said.

A two-car collision occurred about 1:15 p.m. Monday on South Phelps and U. S. 84 bypass, but no injuries resulted.

Police said a 1965 Ford, driven by Alton Reuben Kirby of Littlefield, was going west on U. S. 84, when it collided with a 1960 Chevrolet, driven by S. W. Sanderson, also of Littlefield.

Police said the Sanderson vehicle was going south on Phelps, failed to yield right-of-way, and pulled onto U. S. 84 and hit the Kirby auto.

Damage to the Ford was about $150, while the Sanderson vehicle was $200, police said. Light damage was reported in a two-car accident on Sunset Drive and West 1st Street about 7:20 a.m. Wednesday, police said.

According to reports a 1964 Ford, driven by Laura Mazingo Rivers of Littlefield, was going south on Sunset when it started to pass a 1964 Chevrolet truck driven by Marian D. McClellan of Littlefield.

Police said the truck then started to make a left turn onto 1st Street and struck the car.

Grooming . . .

formerly and she is able, therefore, to indulge to a greater extent.

Figures gathered by the Twentieth Century Fund, the United States Chamber of Commerce and others reveal just how much American families are spending for personal grooming. The total is now $8.5 billion a year, up from $7.0 billion in 1964.

Lamb County's contribution to this total is estimated at $1,441,000.

This includes what the male members of the family spend for haircuts, shaving supplies and other toilet articles. Their outlay for such items has also been rising in the last few years -- the result of an intensive advertising campaign to make men feel that there is nothing un-manish about scented toilet preparations, hairtints and the like.

The surveys show that the amount spent by a family on personal grooming is closely related to its income. Among those in the "under $6,000" bracket, an average of 1.9 percent of their total expenditures is so-spent. Between $6,000 and $15,000, it amounts to 1.7 percent of the total and, beyond that, to 1.5 percent.

On the basis of local income and expenditures, the bill for personal care in Lamb County is estimated at about $1,441,000 a year, in line with these findings. It averages out to $207 per local family.
