AIRMEN'S ARCTIC 'DREAM HOUSE'

A quonset hut may not be the answer to the housing shortage, but airmen stranded in the Arctic, it will be a real dream. The shelter, which can be blown up with a hand pump, is snow-proof, water-proof and easy to transport. Constructed of fabric impregnated with rubber, the shelter is designed to stand up to 100-mile-an-hour gales, according to the National Cotton

Students Use 'Showboat' Theme Junior-Senior Banquet

"Showboat" was the theme of a Junior-Senior banquet given Monday evening in the dining room of the First Methodist Church by Littlefield High school students. The stage of the room was decorated to simulate a showboat. A ship railing ran across the stage with life savers marked "USS Littlefield" hung on it. Flags and lanterns were hung about the room and blue crepe paper was used as water. Advertisements of former entertainers placed about the room carried out the showboat theme. Troy Arms, high school principal, gave the invocation at the banquet and Bill Gray acted as master of ceremonies. The response was given by Bennie Zahn. The "Southern Lassies", a trio composed of Betty Clement, Amelia Flores, and Barbara Ferguson, sang "Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline" and "In the Evening By the Moonlight". In a skit called "This and That From Alabama", Joe Paul Owens and Robert Rutledge did a black-face act as "Molasses and January". The class prophecy was given by Jackie McCanille and the class will by George Porcher. Catherine Foltyn played a piano solo, "Beautiful Dreamer". In addition to the junior and senior classes the guests included school board members and the school faculty and guests. Miss Doris Brantner was the banquet sponsor.

Drivers Fined $70 For Reckless Driving

Reckless drivers paid a total of $70 this week as police continue to crack down. On Monday a $28 fine was levied against a driver who pleaded guilty to both speeding and reckless driving and $14 fine was paid by another charged with reckless driving. On Tuesday two drivers charged with reckless driving on Phelps avenue pleaded guilty and paid $14 fines. With Safety Day approaching, indications were that city police intended to continue their drive to make streets safer for both driving and walking.

Prospects Good For Legion Club

About 23 boys have turned out so far for the Junior Legion baseball team which is coached by Pat Patterson, Littlefield High school coach. So far the prospects of getting together a winning ball club seem very favorable. Among the players out for practice are several who have played two years and a few more who have one year's experience. For the present Coach Patterson is working on baseball fundamentals with the players. The pitching staff is coming along a little. The schooling in fundamentals is expected to continue until about May 20 when the 16 member team will be chosen and intensive practice will be started to prepare for the eight team county tournament which will begin about June 1. Players will turn out for practice from 5 to 7 p. m. every week night for schooling. Practice games with the colored Junior Legion club are expected to help both teams get into shape.

BELLY BOUNCE . . . Firemen give the works to a light bomber that made a "belly-landing" at Bolling air base, D. C. Pilot L. R. Galloway circled the base for over an hour before bringing the aircraft in with the landing gear only partially down. None of the three-man crew was injured. The plane was on a training flight.

Tom Cox Continues To Win Junk Races

Tom Cox of Lubbock continued to burn up the track of the Littlefield Speedrome for the third week in succession by winning the 25-lap main event in the Junk Car races held here Sunday. Last Sunday Cox took both the main event and trophy race and the preceding Sunday ran away with the trophy race. Placing behind Cox this week were Fat Jenkins, Littlefield; Cisco Hull, Hart's Camp; and Howard McGee, Lubbock. Doug Posten who placed second in the trophy race last Sunday took it this week. Local drivers are beginning to crowd out the Lubbock drivers who have been walking away with the prize money. Of the fifteen drivers racing Sunday nine were from Lamb County and six from Lubbock. More drivers are getting their cars in shape and before long it will be a completely local race. The largest crowd yet was on hand Sunday to watch the races run off on a greatly improved track.

RETURNS TO DUTIES Miss Florence Sadler returned to her duties at Hall Grocery and Market this week after a month's vacation. She visited relatives and friends at Anton, Levelland, Spade, Lubbock, Farwell and Littlefield.

Swanner, Missionary of District 9, Baptist General Convention of Texas, doing the preaching. The meeting, which opened last Sunday, will continue throughout this week. Services are held at 9 o'clock each morning, and eight o'clock each evening.

Local Pastor Preaches On "Jesus Loves Children"

"Jesus Loves children, but do we?" was the question which confronted the worshippers at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, 417 West Third, this past Sunday morning at the 11:00 a. m. hour of worship. Jesus' love for children among other things is obvious from His desire to have the children in His Kingdom, entrance to which is granted to all them who believe in Him. This faith, Rev. Heckmann declared, is planted when the Word through the water of Baptism touches their lives. Parents, on the other hand, love children with a different brand of love only too often as can be seen from the small families which is the fashion in today's world. Too many breadwinners, too little time, too much trouble are a few of the excuses offered. The selfishness of many parents can be seen also from the dwarfed minds, personalities, and souls of their children, dwarfed because the parents refused to be troubled with a real, old-fashioned home and home life, the pastor continued. This home life, with rare exception, needs a mother in it and two parents who teach by Word and, example, the good life, the Christ-filled life. The problems facing children in this complex life, would last just about as long as snow in the sun where home would be set up on the basis of and run according to the principles of the Good Book. Parents whose love to their children is a reflection of the love that Jesus Himself bore children will succeed in changing four walls into a home though the way be difficult.

Texas Cancer Group Is Leader In Battle Against The Disease

The American Cancer Society, Texas Division, today reminded Texans that the state is taking a leading part in the nationwide fight to conquer cancer. The Society listed the following Texas achievements: Texas has 25 cancer diagnostic and treatment clinics. There are 13 cancer hospitals in part of the University of Texas—the United States, one of them a M. D. Anderson Hospital for Cancer Research in Houston.

Texas has 10 full-time cancer information centers, operated by county units of the American Cancer Society. These are located at El Paso, Amarillo, San Angelo, Ft. Worth, Dallas, Texarkana, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, and Galveston. Through contributions to the annual Texas Cancer Crusade the state supplies more than $100,000 a year to the national Cancer Research Program. Several Texas scientists are participating in this program.

Through the combined funds of the American Cancer Society and the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, a young Texas Negro completed a health education scholarship and is now teaching cancer facts to members of his race in the state.

Texas is one of the first states to establish a fully-functioning tumor registry, as a means of "following-up" cancer patients after treatment.

Texas is one of the first states to combine the efforts of the various agencies fighting cancer under a single working plan. This unit is the Texas Cancer Coordination Council—composed of the American Cancer Society, the State Department of Health, the Cancer Committee of the State Medical Association of Texas, and the University of Texas, M. D. Anderson Hospital for Cancer Research.

for ALL of Littlefield

Littlefield will be subject of a thorough fire inspection May 8th, 17-18th. Sponsored by the West Texas Field Club, an organization of fire insurance companies in Texas, insurance men will conduct a survey of homes, schools, hotels, churches, and business houses in a search for fire hazards.

Citizens will receive a questionnaire about possible fire risks in their homes. It is urged that these be filled out and returned to the nearest school. On May 8, the schools will be visually surveyed. This will precede a similar inspection of all public and private buildings in the city.

The single purpose of the program is fire prevention education, and is being carried out as a public service.

Please do your part. Your cooperation is needed.

White Boys To Contest Colored

Progress is reported in the working out of the boys preparatory to the organization of the American Legion Baseball League.

Stiff workouts are being given, and according to Manager Vernon Hofackett they are whipping up in good shape.

Mr. Hofackett said Friday:

"Prospects look better than we have had in Littlefield the three years I have been manager of the team. Coach Patterson is coaching the boys and teaching them the fundamentals, etc. If we can get some pitchers, we will be okay. We have five or six good prospects for pitchers, but it all depends who gets a sore arm before the summer is over. They will need three more weeks of hard schooling yet before we can pick our positions. We will pick our team about June 1."

A practice game will be played this week when the White boys play the colored.

HOW CAN I PREVENT FIRES?

... one good way is by cooperating in your community's fire inspection.

Your duties will consist of filling out a questionnaire of possible fire hazards in your home and reading the suggestions that are included. You will receive these through the schools.

After this home analysis, the schools will be personally examined by special agents belonging to the West Texas Field Club, a group representing fire insurance companies in this area. Then, on May 17—18th, churches, hotels, and businesses will be subject to a similar survey for fire hazards.

MAYOR McGUP By John Jarvis

The Private Flying Forum By "Ernie" Bode

So you are planning a vacation? Well, just make yourself comfortable and I'll tell you a true story that happened just recently and I'll even use real names.

John and Mary Sinadin of Levelland called at about 10:30 Saturday morning and asked about chartering a plane to Casper, Wyoming. At 12:30 that same day we were cruising northwest at 6,000 feet in the cool smooth air while we gazed down on hot shimmering fields that seemed to have forgotten what water really is.

After eating a lunch somewhere over New Mexico, we made a short stop for rest and to file a "P.X." (a flight plan, or a message sent ahead to our next intended stop, telling of our intended flight and what time to expect our arrival).

I checked the weather reports and we were off. Only 45 minutes later we were landing at Pueblo Colorado for a cool drink and some gas and oil. Again I checked the weather reports (although the terminal forecasts reported excellent weather for several hours all the way to Casper, Wyoming) and filed another "P. X." and we were off again after a 30 minute stop.

After another short stop at Denver we landed at Cheyenne, Wyoming and unanimously decided to spend the night in that historic city. About 9:00 Sunday morning we eased the red Bellanca up to the service apron on Casper's large paved municipal airport.

Tuesday at 12:15 the Bellanca smoothly climbed to 8,000 feet as we waved goodbye to Casper, Wyoming and its generous hospitality. I can't remember any place I've enjoyed as much in a few days as I have Casper.

The bright sun on our red wings over the snow capped mountains made a beautiful picture as we slid smoothly along toward Cheyenne and points south to Levelland. The trip, including stops on the ground took approximately 14 hours, and that includes going and coming. John said he had made the trip in 32 hours and drove doggone fast, and almost constantly at that. How about flying on your next vacation trip?

Well, I've heard of everything when it comes to "wrinkles" in aviation. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Masten announced the arrival of a 7 pound 8 ounce baby girl via air mail — pony express style. Bob Robinson flew the Timm over the relatives houses and dropped cigars with announcement cards and streamers attached. Tsk, tsk, what won't this modern, air minded, civilization dream up next.

Well, I've run out of "gas" (both actual and literal) so I'd better "over and out" for now. See you at the airport—

South Plains Cotton Outlook Optimistic

South Plains 1956 cotton prospects are considerably brighter than many observers have supposed, but still are largely dependent on the rain received during the next few weeks and months.

This summarizes the opinion Saturday of several authoritative observers, including the first report on 1956 prospects by K. N. Clapp, area representative since 1923 for Anderson-Clayton & Co., Houston cotton firm. His cotton forecasts during the past 27 years have averaged within 3 per cent of actual ginnings. Last year they were under 2 per cent.

Clapp predicted that a record-breaking total of at least 800,000 acres of irrigated land will produce a minimum of 600,000 bales, regardless of moisture from other sources. With rain to supplement the irrigation water, this production might be boosted to 800,000 or more bales.

Many Acres Unirrigated

But the big question mark now in attempting to calculate crop prospects are the approximately 1,000,000 acres of unirrigated land set aside for cotton. This production might range from a crop bordering upon failure to 500,000 bales, depending upon the quality of future moisture.

Thus the extremes of "guesstimates" Saturday as to the South Plains cotton prospects ranged from 600,000 bales under the worst of anticipated conditions to a possible 1,500,000 bales if conditions approach perfection.

Except for irrigated lands, conditions as they existed Saturday definitely were bad. But the outlook could be transformed to "excellent" by one soaking rain within the next four to six weeks.

Soaking Rain Needed

Observers agreed that the urgent need for a soaking rain exists now. Farmers would begin planting as soon as they could get into their fields after one falls.

But there are encouraging aspects of the moisture situation and outlook. Most farmers would prefer to get their cotton planted by May 20. But they can delay as late as June 15 with an excellent chance of making a good crop. Most South Plains farmers will wait this long, or longer, to do their planting unless rains fall sooner, according to reports Saturday.

Rainfall records of the past 50 years encourage the hope for moisture during the coming month. Over the Plains area, the average May rainfall during the past 50 years has been 2.67 inches, and has been about the same for other Caprock cotton counties. Only twice during the past 10 years has the May precipitation fallen below the 50-year average, according to Weather bureau reports. The exceptions were 1942, with 35 of an inch and 1946 with 1.49 inches.

Subsoil Generally Moist

Clapp's report included one other highly significant feature. One chief reason for the pessimism with which many observers have viewed 1956 prospects on unirrigated lands has been the supposition that the subsoil has been virtually exhausted of moisture during the usually dry weather.

In some areas, Clapp learned, the subsoil is extremely dry. But over most of the South Plains, the subsoil is moist below depths of 12 to 14 inches. This condition is spotted and in no instance reported did it contain as much moisture as it needed.

But the conclusion of observers was that there is enough to offer encouraging insurance that the crop on most of the unirrigated lands won't be a failure. It may be short. But it won't fail unless this region should experience drought of unparalleled severity during the next several months.

Sensation Strain of Cosmos.

Native Bloom With Ambition Is the Cosmos

Cosmos, pronounced coz-muss, is an ambitious American flower, which has shown the will to improve under the guidance of American plant breeders. Thirty years ago the large 3 to 4-inch flowers which now bloom in northern gardens from July until frost, were so late that plants were often frozen before they bloomed. Only in the deep south could the yellow cosmos be flowered.

Now we have the varieties Orange Flare and Yellow Flare which bloom in midsummer, and the Sensation strain with giant blooms of pink, rose, white and crimson, flowering in midsummer from seed sown in the spring, and increasing in abundance until winter kills the plants.

Cosmos is a background plant. It develops as a loose bush, growing up to four feet tall, with its lovely single flowers terminating stems and branches. The foliage of the Sensation strain is fern-like. In the rear of the border it forms a misty screen of lovely coloring which casts no shadows, and allows free passage for sunshine and fresh air.

Flowers of this strain are excellent for cutting, lasting in good condition for 10 days. It is a tropical flower, from Mexico, but it is no more demanding as to soil and temperature than the good natured marigolds. The seeds germinate in eight days and the plants grow vigorously in average garden soil. They respond with 4-inch flowers to good feeding, but produce abundantly without this stimulation.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Mrs. G. Y. Tate of Belmont, N. C.: "I remember the days before Rural Free Delivery. When you went to the post office, you'd bring back your neighbor's mail. When I was a little girl my father once sent me to our neighboring farm with some mail he'd picked up in town. I had to go through some woods and was so frightened by what I thought was a lizard, that I ran right back home. Papa met me with a switch."

From Mrs. Pearl Clepper of Hillsboro, O.: "I remember when a hook in the open fireplace with a pot hung on it was the only way we could cook our food. All foods were cooked in that one suspended pot."

From Mrs. Grace Burkhardt of Berryville, Ark.: "I remember when we bought peanut butter in bulk at 10 cents a pound. . . . when new beans, green peas and cranberries were sold by the quart and each box of them boasted its own tin quart measure. . . . when gum was usually sold by the stick and if a whole package was bought you got a pin with the picture of the President on it."

From Mrs. F. Nies of Bradenton, Fla.: "I remember when I first visited Granny Nies, who had a log-house on a farm in Pennsylvania, in which all the joists showed in every room. My marriageable aunts wanted to 'doll' up the parlor, so they sewed enough muslin together to cover the ceiling. They tacked it to the joists or beams and made a 'smoke pattern' of circles and half-circles on it with the smoking chimney of a coal-oil lamp, to form a pretty, grey ceiling. This was more than 50 years ago and the house has been torn down, but I have never seen or heard of another ceiling like that one."

From L. Joan Kahr of Cincinnati: "I remember when families rearing children were never without dogs around. They believed they made the children stay healthy and somehow helped them cut teeth easier."

Eliminate Your Limitations

ALBERT LESSARD, Quebec, Canada, says that when he got his first job after coming home from government war service in 1937 he worked conscientiously, tried to give value for what he received. He got along all right, apparently; but he didn't receive an advance in salary nor a promotion. Well, he couldn't complain. A lot of fellows he knew were not doing nearly as well as he was. And he was glad to hold down his job though he worried about it occasionally. Worried for fear he might lose it.

Carnegie

When he had been with his company two years, and felt he had learned a good deal about the business, the manager of the branch in which he was employed suddenly resigned his position. Maybe Albert would get that job! He felt himself better equipped than anyone else in the department. He had been married a little more than a year, and they were expecting a baby in the family. He could use any extra money a promotion would bring.

Then he heard one day something that didn't set so well: a man was sent from their head office, in another town, to fill the managerial position. Maybe his morale didn't take a slide! He had worked hard, why couldn't this job have come to him? He made up his mind to find out. He went to his superior, who certainly must have had a voice in filling the manager's place, and asked what his future was with the company; asked what chance there was for him to do any better than he now was doing?

Instead of getting an encouraging line of talk, which was the least he expected, all this superior said was, "Lessard, you should know your own limitations."

That brought no comfort. What were his limitations? He moaned over it for a couple of weeks, lost his appetite, lost a lot of sleep. Finally, he decided to analyze himself, decided to see just what kind of oil he was burning within. Then he got down to work at his job harder than ever, watched for chances to help the business, to help his superior make a good showing. It wasn't long before he was running circles around his new boss, the newly promoted manager, who had the job he wanted. But he was careful to help him, too, and not to antagonize him.

Today Albert Lessard is the branch manager and his earnings are comparatively higher than they were when he took sack of himself.
