3,000 Farm Hands Are Expected Here This Weekend

The local office of Texas Employment Commission announced Friday that they have orders for at least 3000 hands, needed badly for boll pulling. Two thousand are here now including local help. There are 39 crews with 15 to a crew of Mexican labor.

J. D. Jordan, office manager announced that he expects a large influx of hands here this weekend including laborers in the north and west section of the state around Abilene and Vernon, who have reached the peak of harvesting in those areas.

There is little call for field workers in grains. However, there has been a call for a few shakers.

Lubbock Team Member Injured Here Thursday

Frank French, 14, of Lubbock, was painfully injured on the grid-iron Thursday night, when the Lubbock "B" team, played the local "B" team here. He was admitted to Payne-Shotwell Foundation for a head injury and lacerations, and remained a patient over night.

Hendrickson Gets Invitation To Alpha Chi, National Scholastic Group

About ten per cent of the Junior and senior classes are eligible to become members of Alpha Chi, as only the students in the very top scholastic standing are chosen.

Hendrickson, a fullback, serves as one of the co-captains for the McMurry eleven. He formerly played football for Littlefield high school.

This year for the first time in history, Littlefield public schools will have an organized, correlated art program throughout the entire school system.

Home room teachers will instruct students in grades one through six, and special instructors are used for classes from 7th through the 12th.

Art is a part of living. It plays a major role in everyday life as an emotional release, as a clarification of ideas or a visualization of concepts, as a tool for communicating thoughts and as an occupation for the use of leisure time. There is scarcely a subject taught or an activity conducted that does not, at one time or another, turn to some phase of art as a means of expression.

Knowledge gained through the social studies may be clarified through pictorial representation, modeling, construction, handwork or costume designing. The social studies stimulate a desire to create.

Out of these grow worthwhile art activities.

The creative teacher will discover many ways in which art serves to enrich the curriculum. Nature study, dramatic art, festivals, observance of special days go hand-in-hand with art.

Art and handwork are vital factors in the observance of holidays. It is important that, along with the making of things symbolic of holidays, the significance of the day may be emphasized, especially Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter, and patriotic days. Halloween and circus time are ideal times to stress the fun involved in creative activity. Valentine's Day, one of the most appealing special days, presents a welcome occasion for helping children understand and express affection.

The overall objectives of public school art is to promote self-expression; to develop originality; to instill color consciousness; to

DOPE PEDDLERS MAY BE SELLING TO CHILDREN HERE

The possibility that dope peddlers, of marijuana as well as other dopes are active in the Littlefield area, and possibly that their activities have reached into juvenile channels, among school children, was brought forcibly into focus here the past week, when a local pastor, from his Sunday morning pulpit, touched on the matter, in his morning sermon, and stated that his information tended to show that some dope was circulating among local school children.

Later, it was learned that state law enforcement officers have been checking, and tracing, not only in Littlefield, but in Lubbock and elsewhere on the South Plains, with reports that some person or persons are under suspicion and surveillance—with the possibility that they or others were responsible for dope circulating in this area.

A National Problem
City papers in several states have been teeming with stories of dope peddling activities among juveniles, and school children, and the dire results following for the past several weeks.

The pastor, who touched on the subject last Sunday warned parents here, not to be too sure that the dope activities were confined to the big cities—that it could be happening right here at home—and there can be no question that he was not issuing the warning on rumor or hearsay—that there must have been information placed in his hands—which made him feel it necessary to publicly call attention to a matter so grave as this.

There were reports that law-enforcement officers were making a check, and talking with school officials, but this phase was not confirmed.

Pastor Is Courageous
The Lamb County Leader wants to give a word of praise to the local pastor, who had the courage to publicly bring this serious matter to the attention of his congregation last Sunday—which in turn has focused the spotlight of public attention, of all of us on this grave subject.

Whether the dope is found; whether the culprit or culprits are found; even whether the reports are finally proven in error, or not as bad as first reported, so far as the local situation is concerned, his action in bringing the matter into the forefront, to the attention of parents and school officials, has served a very worthwhile purpose, because certainly it will put all of us on guard against one of the gravest monstrosities—dope.

The matter is too serious to permit of even a semblance of complacency on the part of parents, or school officials, and of all citizens. We have a right to expect without demand that the proper law officials carry the investigation into any and every channel—nothing less will be acceptable or warranted.

C. E. Townsend Is Pastor of Church Of the Nazarene

Rev. C. E. TOWNSEND has been called as pastor of the Nazarene church, and filled the pulpit for the first time here, Sunday, September 23rd. He has moved his family, consisting of his wife and an eleven year old daughter Jean here, and they are residing at the parsonage.

The new pastor succeeds Rev. Seay, who has been pastor of the local church several years.

Wednesday evening, following prayer service Rev. and Mrs. Townsend were honored with an old fashioned "pounding" with more than 45 attending. The affair was

You And Your Congress

This session of Congress has featured a good deal more talk than action about federal economy.

There is nothing particularly unusual about that. However, there has been more talk about economy in this session of Congress than usual.

One reason is that this Congress has approved spending at a rate higher than any ever previously known in the country's peacetime history.

This has caused considerable concern among those members who really worry about the future of the country's economy. But most of the increased spending is for military or related purposes and, not being military experts, those members who would like to effect possible economies find themselves equipped to do little except talk about it.

Another reason for the greater than usual amount of talk about economy is that members of the House got a vacation last month and had an opportunity to get back home and find out what the people are thinking about Congress.

A number of them report that many of their constituents are beginning to associate the forthcoming tax increase with the sharp rise in federal spending. That sort of public feeling is apt to make a man who depends on votes for a living nervous. But, with both the tax rise and spending increase now practically a matter of record, about all he can do at this point is talk about the need for more government economy.

When the books of this Congressional session are closed as scheduled next month, it will be seen that Congress succeeded only slightly in reducing the total budget requests of the various government departments for the current fiscal year.

Some of the trimming almost certainly will be nullified by the granting of supplemental or extra appropriations before the fiscal year ends next June 30. If that doesn't happen, it will be the first time in many years.

While its use sometimes is necessary for special reasons, the supplemental appropriation also is a handy device for appearing to economize but not actually doing so.

Generally speaking, the public isn't aware or loses sight of that.

Neither does it realize that much of the federal budget each year is for spending which Congress has authorized in previous years.

For example, Congress passes a law authorizing the construction of a dam which will cost, say, $250 million. But it does not appropriate $250 million for the dam the year that the authorization law is passed, because the work that will be done on the dam that first year will cost only, say, $4 million the first year and then, during subsequent years, other appropriations must be made to progressively pay off the balance of $246 million on that dam—or, which is highly unlikely work on the dam must be stopped by repeal of that original authorization law.

What if Congress was required to appropriate the entire $250 million for the dam that first year? Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee believes that in such case Congress probably would be inclined to approve less new dams and other long-range spending projects.

Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.), top-ranking minority member of the Appropriations Committee, agrees. Congress should present the cost picture of a new project as large as it actually is, says Taber, "rather than in small doses."

Those taxpayers who, according to their members in Congress, are beginning to associate federal expenditures and taxes, may now be realizing that those "small doses" Taber speaks of finally add up to very large ones.

If such a feeling should become widespread, there may be less talk and more action in Congress regarding federal spending.

Courage Does It for Pretty U.S. Co-ed Starting on Bullfight Career in Mexico

EL PASO (AP)—Patricia McCormick is tall, slender, blonde, 21-years-old—and determined to be a bullfighter.

It's her courage that the aficionados (fans) have cheered wildly in her two appearances at the Juarez, Mexico bullfight ring across the Rio Grande from El Paso.

One Sunday afternoon this summer she tied her long blonde hair back with a ribbon, pulled on her tight-fitting slacks, buttoned her white blouse at the collar and went into the Juarez ring.

She faced a two-year-old bull. She started a gaonera—a pass with her rose and yellow cape—and swirled the cape behind her. The bull followed her instead of the cape. He hit her legs. She tripped and fell. She lay still in the arena, and a tense silence fell on the 1,500 persons who watched.

Just in time a handiller leaped in with his cape and drew the animal away.

The girl picked up herself and her cape and started again. It was the courage of the girl from Big Spring, that the crowd cheered.

"I wasn't scared," she said later. "I was just angry because that happened to me so soon. That was my first appearance in a bull fight. But it won't be my last. I'm more determined than ever to make bull fighting a career."

That was in August. Patricia was allowed to make only a few graceful passes with the cape in the ring then. A retired matador in Juarez, Alejandro Del Hierro, taught her the passes.

On Sept. 9 she appeared again at the Juarez Plaza De Toros, one of the best little bull rings in all of Mexico.

This time she killed her bull—but only after it had trampled her twice and tossed her on its horns.

The crowds went wild. They showered her with bouquets on her triumphant tour of the arena following the kill, and tolerant judges awarded her an ear of the bull. It's usually given for excellent performance and bravery.

The crowd included both Mexican and American aficionados. The Mexicans were delighted. The Americans were terrified. One woman cried out: "Get that girl out of there."

The Mexican newspaper critics said she was as "green as lettuce" but added that she would cause a sensation wherever she fought.

The tremendous appeal she has is courage. An aficionado will cheer the brave, even if inept.

The bullfight critic of the El Paso Times, Mary Thurber, wrote of Pat: "When she is working coolly and not in trouble, she gets the feeling of art that all great toreros have. Some call it emotion. At any rate, she's got it."

She's a pretty, young girl with honey-blonde hair and blue eyes. She can't wear those fancy bullfighter's suits yet. Only a novillero and a matador can wear the trade laces—suit of lights.

She has the figure for a bullfighter—five feet, six inches tall, slim, no hips to speak of. The figure is important in bullfighting because the taller and more graceful the matador is, the better he looks when he makes his passes.

Critics say Pat has a lot to learn before she becomes a matadora—a full-fledged lady bullfighter.

In the meantime, she's practicing her cape work in her dormitory room at Texas Western College at El Paso, where she's an art major.

Our Bank Says "Help Yourself!"

People around here need lots of small change these days — what with candy, gum, cigarette and soft drink machines... pay phones... and those penny sales taxes.

Used to put a strain on our bank. Changing money took up a lot of time. Then the Chief Teller Happy Wilson, read about another bank using a "help yourself" change system. The directors decided to see if it would work here.

They set out some big shallow bowls full of nickels, dimes and pennies with a sign saying "MAKE YOUR OWN CHANGE." Works fine, too. At the end of the day the totals are never a couple of cents under the right amount.

From where I sit, where are pretty much the same. Farmers and city folks and Democrats, joy a glass of beer those who prefer one we all usually try to trust others have in mind.

New Pricing Program Goes Into Effect

A revised pricing program for the retail sale of beef establishing new dollar and cent ceilings went into effect in the Lubbock district—69 West Texas counties—on Oct. 3, the Lubbock district office announced this week.

The regulation also permits the sale of a wider variety of retail cuts and contains more effective safeguards to protect consumers in buying beef, the district office said.

The ceiling prices of some beef cuts in the district are reduced, and some are increased under the order. It results in an overall increase in cost to the customer of about one and one-half to two cents a pound over those now in effect.

District OPS officials stressed that the increase was required under the stabilization law passed by Congress in August. The retail increase is a direct reflection of an increase granted last week to packers to restore their normal margins which had been cut by lower receipts of cattle and for cattle by-products, such as hides and tallow.

The new retail ceilings are the ones that OPS announced last week would be issued soon, based on revised wholesale beef ceilings which became effective then. Also, price relationships among some re-tall cuts have been further revised to reflect more accurately the real selling value of each cut. Because of this, there will be lower retail ceilings for some popular beef items while ceiling increases will be required in others.

Price changes will range from an increase of as much as 28 cents a pound on some choice cuts of brisket.

Meanwhile, the Office of Price Stabilization has also issued a regulation under which producers and sellers of agricultural liming materials will establish their ceiling prices by formula.

The Lubbock district price executive, Ted Gehring, pointed out the importance of such a regulation to the West Texas district because of the wide-spread agricultural industry in the area.

Care Should Be Taken of Woolens

Now that brisk winter days are just around the corner, most people will soon be pulling out their wool clothes. Certain rules need to be followed in caring for woolens, and here are a few offered by clothing specialists with the A&M College Station Service.

If wool garments are to be washed, use water with lukewarm temperature—95 to 100 degrees—and this applies to both washing and rinsing.

The specialists point out four ways in which the softness and shape of woolens can be destroyed. They urge the homemaker never to rub woolens while wet or to place them in hot water, changing suddenly from warm to hot or cold. Never use strong alkalies in the washing water, they warn.

Now for pressing wool, the specialists recommend using a dry woolen pressing cloth with a cheese cloth wrung out from water over it. If more moisture is needed use two thicknesses of cheese cloth over the dry pressing cloth. The woolen pressing cloth distributes the moisture evenly and the iron does not stick to the dry cotton cloth. As a rule, wool should be pressed on the wrong side, but such garments as men's trousers can be pressed on the right side if a woolen pressing cloth and dry cotton cloth are used. Brushing with the nap after the wool is dry will add to the softness of the fabric.

Will Attempt To Reopen Texas' First Oil Field

PALESTINE OPS—Historians and petroleum hunters will have a mutual interest this fall when an attempt is made to reopen Texas' first oil field.

A small drilling firm specializing in water wells plans to sink a shallow well in the old Nacogdoches field five miles southeast of Woden, deep in the piney woods of Nacogdoches county.

Although scheduled for only 500 feet in depth, the venture will test sands which have been producing oil for white men for more than 150 years.

Historians say early Spanish traders were the first to make use of the oil. Wagons which later rolled over the Old Spanish Trail had their wheels greased with it.

The field was not developed until just after the Civil War, but by 1890 it contained 80 producing wells, most of them dug by shovels. The first bit-drilled well flowed to the surface from a little over 100 feet, but soon played out, leaving the driller bankrupt.

Leaders in the Nacogdoches area thought enough of the field before the turn of the century to lay a pipeline more than ten miles to the nearest railroad. A small refinery which strained grit out of the oil with a cloth, then heated it to evaporate the water went into operation near Cirene in the 1870's.

The field, despite its promise, had its ups and downs, and finally was closed about six years ago. The new exploration, Rutherford Water Service Company's No. 1 W. A. Neal in the J. A. Chirene survey, has aroused new hope among Nacogdoches county citizens who have had oil fever more than once in the past. They will keep a close eye on progress at the well.

The old field is still clogged with pits and hand-dug wells left by prospectors of 50 to 70 years ago, says M. P. Edmondson, railroad commission district supervisor in Palestine, in whose office the latest application to drill has been filed.

Pine trees have grown up beside lots of wells, causing their cypress-lined walls to tumble in. Farmers in the area still skim pits for oil to grease equipment.

Produce More Silage in 1952

An estimated 15 tons of silage per acre were produced with the Honey Drip variety of sorghum on the William McKelvey farm in Gregg county, according to County Agent Orben D. Taylor.

McKelvey applied 200 pounds 12-24-12 fertilizer before planting the sorghum and side dressed with 50 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre.

It is not too early for dairymen to make plans for putting next year, says E. E. Burleson, Extension Dairy Husbandman at A&M College.

Burleson estimates that good quality silage contains 10 to 12 percent digestible nutrients in the concentrate food cost of $5.49 per hundred.

Texas dairymen should use high quality roughage to offset feed costs and produce milk economically, adds Burleson.

WATER TO CONSERVE OIL—that's the story behind the flooding of the Benton oil field in Franklin County, Illinois. To replace depleted underground pressures, Shell Oil Company, operating the project on behalf of all operators in the field, is daily pumping about 1,250,000 gallons of chemically-treated water into the oil bearing sands more than two thousand feet below the surface. The water, flowing radially out from injection wells drilled precisely through the supporting pillars of a coal mine, will force the oil towards the producing wells. The flooding is expected to make possible the recovery of millions of barrels of oil that could otherwise never have been brought to the surface.

Texas' newest Congressman, Rep. Frank Ikard of Wichita Falls, luckily was permitted to keep the same office suite that was occupied for several years by his predecessor. He replaced Ed Gossett, who is now a utility lawyer in Dallas.
The suite is 114, Old House Office building. It's on the ground level and convenient to the New House Office building and the Capitol.
Ikard has announced the following will comprise his office staff: John L. Stallings, for the past two years with the Seymour public school system; Mrs. Robbie Edsall, Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Stella Merrill, formerly of Wichita Falls, who was on Gossett's staff.

ORLEANS, France—(AP)—Children of this ancient French city have daily reminder of American friendship—a tiny steam train that puffs and whistles and rings a bell as it hauls excited little passengers.

Father-Son Farm Agreements Offer Farmers Chance To Get into Business

With the rising cost of farm operation and the large amount of money needed to buy livestock, land and equipment, it has become difficult for many young farmers to get started in the business, points out C. H. Bates, Extension Farm Management Specialist of Texas A&M College.
Father and son (or son-in-law) farming agreements offer the opportunity for many young men to get into the business, says Bates. Older farmers who want to "slow down" and plan for partial retirement are also benefitted by such arrangements.

WAREHOUSE

YOUR COTTON FOR GOVERNMENT LOANS

The first step in obtaining government loan is to place your cotton in an approved warehouse. You will receive a negotiable warehouse receipt for each bale. Your warehouse will furnish correct weights, pull samples for classing, and certify loan papers requested by the government for completing your loan.
Cotton farmers, who placed 3,800,000 bales in the 1948 loan, realized an extra profit of $17.50 per bale. Only through a time tested and proved efficient system of warehousing and marketing could these millions of bales have been stored, protected and preserved to bring cotton growers this $67,000,000 profit.
Take care of your crop from boll to bale, and you can depend on your warehouse to take care of your cotton from bale to spindle and to the most profitable market for you.

Better Wait - Than Be Sorry!

For the man or woman who wants a Cadillac, there is no satisfactory substitute in the whole wide world!
So, if your heart is set on sitting at the wheel of this great and distinguished motor car—let us talk with you frankly about the matter.
First of all, you should come in and place your order—just as soon as circumstances will permit.
There is now—as there has been for many years—a waiting list of wonderful people who wish to own this wonderful car. And the sooner your name joins this distinguished list—the sooner your hope will be realized.
And once your signature is on an order blank—hold firm to your purpose.
This may not be easy—for temptation is almost certain to assail you!
Cars without number may be had today—almost as soon as you agree to accept them. And, quite naturally, people who sell these available cars may ask you to shift your preference from Cadillac.

But, again, we urge you to hold firm—for the sake of your own welfare and your own satisfaction.
Remember—it's Cadillac you want.
Cadillac—with its universal and pride-inspiring recognition as the Standard of the World!
Cadillac—with such performance that owners actually think up excuses for taking to the highway!
Cadillac—with such amazing endurance that its full life-span has never yet been measured!

THIS TASTES GOOD IN TEXAS

GRAHAM CRACKER CAKE
 1 1/2 cup graham cracker crumbs
 1/2 cup flour
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup shortening
 1 cup sugar
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 3 eggs
 1/2 cup nuts

Roll and sift graham cracker crumbs. Sift flour, measure and resist with salt and baking powder. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream together. Add vanilla. Beat three egg yolks, add and mix thoroughly. Add part of cracker crumbs, mix and add part of milk. Then add rest of crumbs. Add remainder of milk alternately with sifted flour, salt, and baking powder. Beat until smooth and stir in 1/2 cup chopped nuts. Fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in 2 layer cake pans in a 350-degree hot oven (375 degrees F.) approximately 25 minutes.

Let's eat this for one day:

Breakfast:
 Orange Juice, Baked Eggs, Bacon, Whole Wheat Muffins, Butter, Raisins, Coffee and Milk.

Dinner:
 Baked Beans, Cabbage Slaw, Buttered Carrots, Boston Brown Bread, Fresh Fruit, and Milk.

Supper:
 Fried Trout, Tartar Sauce, Baked Potatoes, Green Beans, Green Salad, Hush Puppies, Graham Cracker Cake, Milk and Coffee.

Timey Tips, Extension Foods and Nutrition Specialists, Texas A&M Coles.

Use the graham cracker cake with this caramel frosting—1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup water, 2 egg whites stiffly beaten, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla. Cook sugar and water to the hard ball stage. Gradually pour over beaten egg whites, beating constantly.

Cake is a favorite dessert with Texans. It is an excellent energy food.

Line bottom of cake pan with waxed paper and grease the sides. It is not necessary to dredge with flour.

TEEN TALK

By VIVIAN BROWN

You'd know in a minute that 16-year-old Patti Murphy was half Irish, even though she looks like a full-blooded Indian—her smile and sense of humor are that big. All since cowboys and Indians are of 20 together, Patti is in New York riding Western saddle at the open-air Madison Square Garden. Patti is overawed by the big city, but she's devoted to the Indian reservation at Lapwai, Idaho, where she lives, says she:

"We do not have as many liberties as girls in the East. I was surprised to learn that girls here can stay out so late at night.

"We do not have so many dances, either, and if we do, men and boys do the dancing—not the girls. During the annual George Washington birthday celebration which lasts for a week, we dance 'The Fox Dance.' This is the dance Indians used to dance with their loved ones before they went off to war. It is a slow and fashion. This and the 'Swan Dance' which is similar are really prayer dances."

Patti's town is about 50 per cent Indian. The majority of the boys prefer white girls to Indian girls. Her father, an Irish lumberman, married her mother, a full-blooded Indian, however, Patti points out:

"It is funny, but Indian grandparents always want to pick your husband or wife—even if you are half white. If Granny has an old friend who has a grandson, particularly if he has money, she probably has promised you to his family before you eyes are really opened. It didn't work in my case, however, because my father is Irish and wouldn't have it. He says I can marry whomever I like if I love him."

At the moment Patti doesn't have a real romantic interest because she knows she is too young. She divides her time between Indian and white boys and doesn't play favorites. Indian boys, she says, are more devoted to Indian girls, naturally, and since they know Indian customs, appear to be more devoted to Indian girls, naturally, and since they know Indian customs, appear to be more courteous. They are never wolfish, she says. And here's a tip-off for you palefaces who think little girls are super-women. Patti says:

"White boys make dates to take girls bowling, roller-skating and other sports which really belong to men. The Indian boy thinks of us as being more delicate, and doesn't suggest an evening's entertainment that is too strenuous. They are romantic and enjoy spending the evening at home, even with the family. They like to sing soft music around the fire."

She loves sports, even if she isn't active in them herself. She loves baseball and football, and favors the New York Yankees and Notre Dame. As a matter of fact she'd like to marry an athlete, but not a professional one.

Patti, who wears one feather in her headdress to indicate that she is single (two are for married girls)

For the past several months, young Lindley has been working at the C. R. Anthony store in Clovis, New Mexico. His father went after him Tuesday night, and he is remaining here until he is inducted.

School Officials Attend Workshop

A workshop for district officers of the Texas State Teachers Association was held at Lamesa Thursday.

Local members attending included Troy Armes, high school principal, president of the Lamb county Teachers Association and W. D. Kay, superintendent of Amberst schools, vice-president. Others attending were Supt. of schools, Joe Hutchinson and J. Ernest Jones, Lamb county Superintendent of Schools.

Singapore Area Business Boom

SINGAPORE (AP)—Many Chinese youths who fled recently to Red China from Malaya to avoid the manpower draft "now are begging in the streets of Hong Kong."

That's the word brought back here by a prominent Chinese businessman who recently returned from that British crown colony city. He reported the youths had illegally, through underworld connections of the "Yellow Cow" gang, succeeded in getting out of South China and making their way into Hong Kong.

The businessman said all of the youths were eager to return to Malaya, but had found their re-entry barred.

HOSE AIDS OYSTERS

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—A new way to plant oyster shells is being tried in coastal waters near here.

Young oysters, called spat, need to attach themselves to something rough soon after spawning. That's why dead shells is spread along the shoreline, in oyster banks.

The only method used locally for as far back as oystermen remember has been to shovel the shell off a barge. But the L. P. Maggioni Company has rigged up a way to do it with water pressure that requires only three men aboard one vessel, instead of 25 hand shovellers and five boats. Shell is piled on a steel barge pushed by a converted landing craft. An irrigation pump sends water through a hose at a steady 100-pound pressure. The operator aims the stream of water at the edge of the pile and that's all there is to it.

EXTRA SERVICE

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—When you break a bill at a hotel here, your change looks like it's fresh from the mint. But the coins may be several years old, despite their shiny finish.

The secret is an ingenious money-polishing machine that handles about $350 in coins at a time. A revolving cylinder is filled with kango, water, cleaning and polishing powder, buckshot and small steel spikes. After the mixture agitates a few minutes the coins look and feel like new.

UNDERGROUND

Joining the district, did not qualify as a director, and his name was omitted from the official reports. It is understood that he decided not to serve. The directors considered three others to take his place, but no announcement was made officially of the result Friday morning. It is reported, however, that Mr. Jones, of Floyd county, will be the fifth member of the board of directors.

Before adjourning the four members of the board issued the following signed statement:

"The main reason we have spent all the time and money we have is to retain title to our water. No regulation is contemplated by the directors unless and until it is needed and the people want it and ask for it.

Studies of water levels indicate there is no critical situation as to water supply in the bounds of the district. Therefore no regulation is necessary at this time in this area.

We do not want the water to run out. It may be that by recharging water sands the supply can be made to last forever, without any regulation. It is intended to begin studies in the near future on the most effective and most economical method of recharge.

No permit to drill a new well is necessary. Landowners should be careful, however, to make new locations a reasonable distance away from existing wells.

No tax can be paid to the district this year.

The directors plan to meet within the next 45 days in order to prepare by-laws, to complete organization of the district, and to make plans for the January directors election. It is planned at the same election to elect county committeemen.

The directors are highly grateful for the strong support evidenced by the election returns and for the help given by the many progressive citizens who appreciate the fact that the landowner still owns his underground water.

The word lien signifies the right of a person in possession of property belonging to another to detain such property until some debt or demand in connection with the property detained is satisfied.
