Littlefield Medical Facilities Are Complete

The medical facilities in Littlefield are something of which all residents have a right to be proud. There are 10 doctors serving the two hospitals and approximately 65 nurses.

Doctors serving Medical Arts Clinic-Hospital are I. T. Showell Jr., R. A. Maurer, Larry G. Shipp, Joe Standefer and Bernard Periman having a total of 142 years experience. The hospital, which has been in Littlefield since 1938, has 40 patient beds.

O. W. Still, W. C. Nowlin, J. R. Fain, D. J. Stafford and Barney Klein are the doctors of Littlefield Hospital and Clinic. Combined they have 72 years of actual experience. This 42 patient-bed hospital had its beginning 27 years ago.

To take care of the dental needs of residents are Drs. Albert Perkins, Aaron Williams, James Shotwell and Ronald Harlan.

The eyes, which are also a very important part of our bodies, are looked after by the three Littlefield optometrists, Dr. B. W. Armistead and Dr. Glenn S. Burk and Dr. Larry S. Chandler. Drs. Armistead and Burk have been here a number of years and were just recently joined by Dr. Chandler, who moved here from Pasadena, Tex.

Rounding out the medical facilities of Littlefield are the two convalescent homes, Knight's Rest Home and the Hospitality House. Knight's opened for business here five years ago. It is a Class II home with 46 rooms, containing 60 beds. Twenty-six persons are employed at Knight's. Two licensed nurses are on duty at all times. Mrs. Jean Bundick is the manager of Knight's which is owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. E.

Knights. The Hospitality House, which will be ready for occupancy around the first of October, will accommodate 50 patients. Mrs. I. T. Showell Sr. will be the business manager, and Mrs. Jean Huffman will head the nursing staff. The Class III convalescent house will be open staff with patients using their own doctors. The number of personnel for the house is not known at this time but will be increased as the number of patients are increased.

Post Office Improves Grounds

The Littlefield Post Office is celebrating its 25th year in the same location as the present building was completed early in 1940.

A landscaping of the grounds has just been completed and a contract has been let, with the construction to start in the near future on the interior of the building to include remodeling, air conditioning and other improvements.

This is the third location of the post office in Littlefield as the first one was set up in 1913 with C. J. Duggan as postmaster and the first mail delivery was made on March 14 from Barton Site.

The present site was approved by Washington in 1939, and after the title to the land had been cleared by Postmaster William T. Storey the construction began with the doors being opened for the first time on January 15, 1940.

Cotton Contributes To Growth Of County

The growth of Littlefield greatly parallels the growth of the cotton industry on the South Plains — hailed as the No. 1 contributor to the area's economy.

It is estimated that as high as 85 percent of the area's business activity hinges on cotton and other agricultural products.

Lamb County is deep in the heart of cotton. More cotton is produced in the 23 South Plains counties than in any comparable area in the world. Production has averaged more than two-million bales a year for the past six years in the 23 counties and cotton generates an estimated one to 1.4 billion dollars in business activity on the South Plains each year.

Best available figures show more than 24,000 cotton farms on the South Plains. More than 10 percent of these farms are located in Lamb County where more than 1,500 farmers are actually engaged in cotton farming. A total of 201,000 acres in Lamb County were allotted to cotton this year and from the allotted acres it is forecast that about 193,000 bales will be begun during the current harvest season.

The approximately 40 cotton gins in Lamb County have an annual payroll of almost a million dollars with the gins in this county valued at nearly $12 million. One-third of the more than 1,350 gins in Texas are on the Plains and about nine percent of the Plains' gins are in Lamb County.

Throughout the South Plains, gins, compresses and cottonseed mills have an annual payroll exceeding $20-million. Untold millions more are paid workers in industries directly related to cotton production from irrigation well drillers to insecticide supplies.

Speaking of irrigation, that has been the big asset to the continued growth of the cotton industry on the Plains. From 4,300 wells on the Plains in 1945, there are now more than 51,800 wells. There are more than 10,000 miles of underground pipe in the region, more than enough to reach through the earth and pour water on China.

The area is the cotton capital of the world. More cotton oil for everything from soap to mayonnaise is produced in this area than anywhere else. Cottonseed mills in Littlefield, Lubbock, Lamesa and Levelland crush 650,000 tons of cottonseed per year, an increase of 100,000 tons per year over the total of 20 years ago.

It is little wonder that economists all agree cotton is what has made the area economy what it is today. Without cotton, experts agree, stores would go bankrupt, employees would lose their jobs, construction would grind to a virtual standstill.

Lfd.'s First Celebration Recalled

As Littlefield prepares to celebrate the dedication of the remodeled and beautified section of downtown Littlefield, some of the oldtimers recall other celebrations occurring on Phelps Avenue. One of the earliest was on July 4, 1913 when the town was officially named and the first Santa Fe train rolled into town.

A big tent was pitched downtown, several beehives were barbecued, all residents pitched in to prepare the trimmings for the big feed and all business halted in the brand new city for the celebration.

The Marine Corps Drill Team was not present at this earlier celebration - as it will be Saturday - for several high school bands, but a band from Lubbock consisting of about 10 persons was here for the festivities.

At midmorning a train rolled in from Lubbock, its wild tooting blending with the cheers of residents, to mark a "first." It contained a locomotive and three passenger cars loaded with persons coming for the celebration. Others arrived by the earlyday touring cars.

There were tubs of ice water and soft drinks. The day saw typical picnic events, races and contests and, of course, speeches on the bright future of a new frontier.

The train that rolled into town was a special train as regular service had not been started at that time from Coleman to Littlefield. The train turned around and went back that afternoon with an audience of interested spectators.

In all, it was a festive occasion that forecast in the words of speakers, "a day when the Plains will bloom like a garden". It is almost certain those earliest settlers didn't think that even the main street of Littlefield would be "blooming" as it is today with the various types flowers and plants in the new planter boxes.

General Telephone Participates In Downtown Project

Five years ago the telephone plant at Littlefield was completely redone for purposes of converting to dial and adding new facilities. However, for Park and Shop project they had jointly with Southwest Public Service Company to improve their facilities on single lines, and replaced the black creosoted poles with new clean looking painted poles in the downtown area. They have also placed 31 poles, and removed 58 poles of various sizes. All the cable cut and LFD Drives had to be moved as a result of the pole layout.

While the sidewalks were re-laid, they placed underground ducts at appropriate locations for future use.

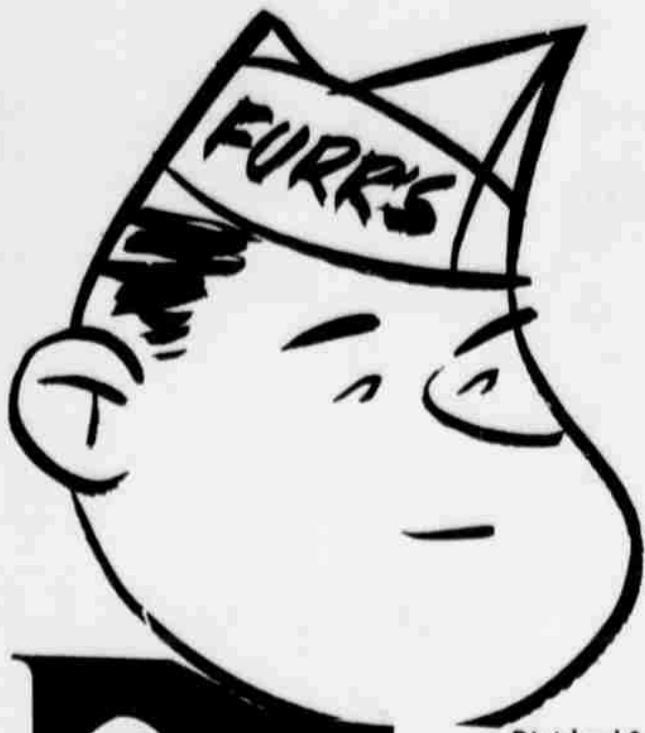

In the various rest areas along Phelps Avenue they have provided provisions for coin telephones in the latest style and with concealed wiring. General telephone has been more than happy to go along with plans.

All of their future expansion for Littlefield have been used to take into account Park and Shop area.

Future additions to their plant will be made to facilitate removal of aerial cable and to care of anything else necessary.

As a result of cooperation such as that shown by General Telephone, that progress has been brought about, reassuring to know that we have constantly been improving their service, and that was only one part of their advancements.

City Founder Noted Soldier And Rancher man for whom Littlefield was named 50 years ago—George Littlefield—was a man by the standards of his time.

He was a free-wheeling spirit, a United States history buff, a brilliant soldier, an expert in an astute business, a devoted public servant, a philanthropist who gave thousands of dollars to the cause of education, for which he held a reverence.

He was a man who had a way with words, spelling simple words, trouble adding business and sizing up opportunity when business growth brought special perils.

Washington Littlefield was born in Panola County, Georgia, on June 21, 1842. Eight years old he moved with his parents to Gonzales, Texas, a proper setting for a Texas career of note. 14 years before most men of the village of Littlefield were 32 of them—had ridden to join the beleaguered garrison at the Alamo, there to die in glory.

George Littlefield had the first battle of the Texas Revolution, in November, when the Mexican government demanded from the village of Littlefield that it surrender its cannon and held.

George Littlefield went the message and take it," and when the Mexicans responded they turned back, and the first of the Texas Revolution.

George Littlefield grew to be a man in this area of glory. He died in 1853, and Mrs. Littlefield—born a distinguished family—ably took management of their Gonzalez plantation, with the help of her sons.

George Littlefield, second son, was a spirited young man studying at a plantation tutor, attending school at Gonzales and then at Baylor University, Independence, Washington.

responsibilities of the business curtailed his career. In later years, Littlefield was to lament the loss of formal education. Thousands of Texas students benefited from Major Littlefield's generous and thoughtful gifts to education.

Civil War came when Littlefield was just 19. In 1861, he joined the 1st Texas Cavalry, commanded by Capt. E. Jones and assigned to the 1st Texas Cavalry. The unit was and became cavalry and entered the Confederate Army.

George Littlefield, second son, was a man in the outfit, second sergeant.

George Littlefield's Texas Rangers, as he came to be named, were sent to the Army of the West under Gen. Albert Johnston.

George Littlefield saw heated action in the South and North Carolina when a company officer resigned. Sergeant Littlefield was elected Second Lieutenant.

George Littlefield shaved and found himself in command of the company. The company was backed up by the Kentucky, so time and again by the Texas of the "and take it" tradition. Littlefield commanded his company at Shiloh, when the Confederates almost ended the life of a rising Union general, Ulysses S. Grant.

George Littlefield, through his company, saw the battle of death of William A. Harris. Littlefield advanced to captain and company commander.

George Littlefield protested this move to his commander, who however sided with Littlefield's company in the battle.

George Littlefield had not yet turned 20th birthday. But he was a man, and a courageous, dedicated to the cause of the South.

George Littlefield's troops wrote part of the victory history of the Confederate cavalry. He was at Chickamauga, one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War, where his troops distinguished themselves in bloodshed during a crossing of Chickamauga creek.

George Littlefield's close, Littlefield's company joined a company that completely encircled the enemy forces at Chattanooga, harassing them, destroying many supplies and gaining important information. The battle finally closed.

Here, as later, George Littlefield proved himself a master trail driver. Trail driving was a craft. Cattle had to be paced at about 15 miles a day, allowed to graze to keep in good flesh yet scheduled to reach watering places on a schedule to keep them healthy. In the Territory, Indians often exacted a tribute of a few head.

But a good trail boss could reach Abilene with at least as many head as he started with—sometimes more—and those well-mated for market.

George Littlefield thrived. From his first drive he was able to pay off his debts and had some $3,600 left to open a mercantile business in Gonzales with a boyhood friend and comrade in arms, J.C. Dilworth. In 1872, the partnership sent two herds up the trail, paying for many of the cattle bought in merchandise bills through the summer.

The major supervised the drives, although he actually made only the first one. He set herds in motion at the Texas end, had buyers waiting at the Kansas end. Sometimes he found a market in New York or Chicago, contracting herds that at times were separated only by one day's drive.

J.C. Dilworth died in 1877 and that partnership was liquidated, showing a handsome profit for both. But the drives continued.

When the cattle trail shifted westward to Dodge City, the Littlefield herds moved with them.

Checks were not in wide use for cattle exchanges. At one time he had five herds arriving on the trail and he came into Dodge with $40,000 in hard gold coin for their payment. His nephew and later long-time partner, James Phelps White, came up from the Canadian to meet him and suggested that they camp a few miles out from Dodge, then a near-lawless town.

The two men buckboarded out some 20 miles from town to camp and await the herds. About nightfall a lone rider came up from the south. "Here comes some rooster," observed the major.

The "rooster" turned out to be Billy the Kid, the notorious New Mexico gunman and acquaintance of White's.

The Kid spent the night with Littlefield and White, the three on a bunk under the wagon, with the $40,000.

White was later to head up, and be a partner in, a large spread on the Pecos in the 1880's, an outfit that he ran with the help of long letters from his Uncle George, giving him sound facts on operating a cattle business.

The system apparently worked. Where rancher after rancher failed along the treacherous Pecos, the Littlefield layout prospered. The trail business was similar in result, and the answer undoubtedly was that the major understood finance and the cattle business, and picked expert cowmen as his associates.

George Littlefield had written a name also in a colorful era of Texas, the trail period, names that included the Schreiners of Kerrville, Ab Blocker, George Sanders and others who rode and drove the great trails.

He erected the Littlefield building in downtown Austin, in which the American National Bank was installed and is still its location with many other business firms.

In 1901, with his nephews J.P. and T.D. White he bought the famous Yellow House Ranch from the Capitol Syndicate.

The Yellow House, with 300,000 acres, was the southern tip of the giant XIT ranch of 3,000,000 acres. It served as a receiving range for XIT cattle from South Texas for years.

For the Yellow House the trio paid $2 an acre. It was stocked with one of the finest herds of Herefords in the southwest and prospered as a ranch.

But, meanwhile, other uses were found for the cattleman-builder-banker who loomed so large in the developing Austin business community.

He was appointed to the Board of Regents for Texas State University in 1911. This must have been a signal honor for the Gonzales boy who held such high regard for education.

The years were to magnify this wisdom, as oil royalties from these acres paid millions on millions of dollars to the University.

There was no twilight for the major. These gifts marked his last days, and the neatness of a lifetime of fruitful and noteworthy business enterprise.

Monuments to the major's life work remained in the people with whom he was associated, many who became wealthy through the association. These were largely nephews and nieces, who were the major's family.

When he died on November 10, 1920, it must have been with satisfaction of a man who fought the good fight, from the creeks of Chickamauga, through the state halls of Texas, on the trails and ranges of a territory that challenged the best in a man.

Major George Littlefield, not a large man in physical stature, strode Texas in its seven-league tradition. And when he rested the trails he traveled remained, to make the way easier and brighter for many generations that follow him.

PHELPS AVE - - 40 YEARS AGO

Phelps Ave. Looking North, Littlefield, Texas.

This is how Phelps Ave., the main street of Littlefield, looked forty years ago. The street was named after George Phelps White, nephew and partner of Major George Littlefield, the city's founder.

The photograph which was taken in the four hundred block looking north shows many of the earliest brick buildings erected in Littlefield. Shown second from left is the Yellowhouse building which was the first brick building on the main street. It was erected around 1914.

Other buildings identified include the J. W. Robertson Hardware building which is now the site of the men's department of the Ware's Department Store. The hardware store became the C. E. Ellis department store in 1927, and James H. "Jimmy" Ware became a partner with Ellis in 1929.

In 1932 Ware bought out Ellis, and the name was changed to Ware's.

The building third from left, and under construction, is the present First National Bank Building. The building originally housed the Littlefield State Bank, which later consolidated with the First National Bank. The First National opened for business in October, 1925 in the Yellowhouse Building. Buildings farther north on the west side of Phelps included a cafe and then a barber shop. Just north of the barber shop was a vacant lot used by Littlefield High School as their basketball court. High board fences had been erected at the east and west end so that a small admission could be charged.

Further north was the site of the Lamb County Mercantile Store, built in 1916, and the John Arnett Ford Garage.

In the center of the picture is the Littlefield train depot, which in 1925 consisted of two Santa Fe box cars.

The first building on the right of the photograph is the Lee theater which was built in 1925 and owned by C. Chesher and Max McClure who also was theater manager. McClure came to Littlefield in 1924 and was city manager when the town was incorporated in 1924. He resigned a year later to enter the theater business.

Silent films were the entertainment feature. They were not entirely silent--a "Violane" played through the pictures and for interludes between the pictures.

The theater had a seating capacity of 800 on its main floor and balcony. It also served many community purposes. Church meetings and many public meetings were held there.

Next to the theater is the Bob Smith Quick Service Station, one of the first in Littlefield. The first frame building was the Houk furniture store, and in the rear E. A. Bills, who later became District Judge here, had his first law offices.

Farther north on the east side of Phelps are shown the Cuenods Dry Goods store, the R. C. Hopping office building and the Gus Shaw and Tom Arnett farm store. A bond issue was passed and the first paving of the street was started in 1929.

ing completed in 1929. The was done by the Construction Company. The two adjoining XIT Drive and LFD Drive also paved a short time

... AND TODAY

New High School Opened In 1963

In the opening days of 1963, preliminary studies were made of a new high school building for the Littlefield schools and conversion of the present high school to a junior high. Architects for the Littlefield schools were instructed to prepare drawings and estimates on three different types of buildings for the new high school, and the plans were presented to the school trustees.

Later in the year an informal telephone opinion poll was conducted to secure view of the $800,000 school bond issue which was designed to alleviate crowded classroom conditions and generally improve various phases of the curriculum. Main feature of the issue, of course, was a new high school building.

On Saturday, April 27, 1963, Littlefield School District voters gave their positive endorsement to the school improvements program, approving the bond election by a vote of 656 to 171. Improvements got underway in August.

In September of 1964, the new high school plant was completed in time for the school year opener, with a formal dedication delayed until October.

Today, Littlefield High School is the fifth home for Littlefield high school students. The facility, containing approximately 6,200 square feet includes a gym, cafeteria, band hall, vocational shops, auditorium and administrative offices in addition to classrooms. Approximately 400 students, in the 10th, 11th and 12th grades are now enrolled in the school that is staffed by 28 teachers.

WE JOIN IN WELCOMING VISITORS AND CONGRATULATE THE MANY PERSONS, COMMITTEES AND OTHERS WHO WORKED SO LONG AND HARD TO MAKE THIS NOTEWORTHY PROJECT POSSIBLE.

YES... WE THINK IT'S WONDERFUL... LITTLEFIELD IS WONDERFUL.

HOME OF LAMB COUNTY ELECTRIC -- The architectural drawing above shows the future home of the Lamb County Electric Co-operative building. Construction is now well underway on the $462,000 building which will be located on a 10 acre site at the south end of Phelps Avenue and will have a total of 32,000 square feet of floor space.

SETTING FOR NEAR FUTURE -- The formal opening ceremonies for the Hospitality House will be held in the near future. Located just southwest of Littlefield, the convalescent home will house a maximum of 50 persons and will incorporate many new ideas. Built at a cost of approximately $150,000, the sprawling 14,000 square foot ranch type building will front on the Bula Highway.

Building Permits Over $1 Million

The two largest building permits which have helped push the permits to over $1,000,000 so far this year were the new Lamb County Electric Co-operative and the Littlefield Hospitality House.

The Hospitality House which is scheduled to open in the near future just west of Littlefield on the Bula Highway, will cost approximately $165,000 when complete.

The convalescent home, owned by Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Shotwell Sr., will house a maximum of 50 patients and a number of unique ideas uncommon to other convalescent homes in this area.

The construction of the home started in April and will be fully operational within a matter of weeks. The sprawling 14,000 square foot one story building, built in a ranch style will front on the Bula Highway and have parking space for 50 cars.

The construction of the co-operative home started the first of June and is scheduled for completion next Spring. The contract for the construction of the all brick and steel building with 32,000 square feet of floor space under the roof was given to the Knox, Galley and Meador Construction firm of Lubbock who submitted the low bid of $462,199.

The building is being erected on a ten acre site at the south end of Phelps Ave. near the new Highway 84 by-pass. When the new building is complete the number of employees will increase from 46 to 60 with an additional annual payroll of $100,000.

TEXAS

The Beginning Was 52 Years Ago

As we view our beautiful re-modeled downtown section of Littlefield with pride, it brings to mind much that has helped to make the history of our town—many other accomplishments of which we have been justly proud and also some of the heartbreak and trying times which, too, are a part of our history.

The attractive city we have today had its beginning 52 years ago. Before June, 1913, the town was mostly open prairie with grass and yucca plants, no paved streets, just trails used by the handful of cowboys who were in charge of the widely spread herds.

When the first chapter in the history of our town was written the horses were beginning to give way to automobiles and machinery in the fields were also challenging the four legged workers. Optimism, courage and eagerness to live and work were traits our pioneers possessed. Nowhere was the spirit of the day stronger than on the High Plains, where millions of acres of grassland lay untouched by the plow. Antelope and buffalo still roamed the prairie.

This truly was an American frontier and when it was opened people came—they came to work, make their own way, and to establish the town of Littlefield. Some arrived by the new "horseless carriages", some by train, after the railroad was completed as far as Littlefield, but many more came by wagons and buggies. No matter how they arrived their spirit was the same.

With their hands the early settlers began shaping Littlefield. Merchants hoisted and nailed the boards that were to become their store buildings. Homes began going up with one neighbor helping another, even through the houses were widely separated.

Between 1913 and 1920 Littlefield grew steadily, if not rapidly, as settlers came from various parts of Texas, Oklahoma and other states, buying the good land at a low price, most of which had formerly been a part of the Yellowhouse Ranch. This land was ideally suited for the family farming of that day. Fields of maize, wheat and barley could be seen along with patches of vegetables and melons.

As the community took shape a one-room school house was built, a post office was housed in the Land Company building and the first church was built on a lot donated by the town's namesake, Maj. George W. Littlefield. Other denominations also met in this church and various community activities were also held here. Littlefield became a center for the ranchers and ranch hands of the nearby Yellowhouse, Spade, Mashed O and other ranches, as well as farmers. It was truly a mixture of the old west with the new. Shortly after the founding of Littlefield some of its sons were called to defend their country during World War I, among them Richard New, a very likeable and talented cowboy, whom the Littlefield American Legion Post is named for. He lost his life in France during the war.

Littlefield really boomed in 1924 and the land agents were kept busy as prospective buyers thronged the sparsely inhabited stretch of Phelps Avenue. Where our present city hall and court house now stand a camping ground was set up for these prospective buyers. Some of our present residents spent their first night in Littlefield in a tent erected on this campground. Many more store buildings were erected and many more homes built.

The population of Littlefield in the latter part of 1924 was 1250 and six months later a church census showed the population was 2,000.

It began looking more like a city as a bank, newspaper, theatre, and mercantile stores went up and even an electric plant. The city voted to incorporate in 1924 and B. L. Cogdill was elected its first mayor. The first Chamber of Commerce was also organized that same year.

Soon after agriculture really started booming and cotton began taking its place in the South Plains, the depression hit Littlefield along with the rest of the country. It was pretty rough going for a while with many farmers being forced to leave the farms due to low farm prices and high mortgages, added to the fact that this was the time of the great dust bowl.

Later in the thirties things began looking up and new settlers were still coming to this area. In 1932, the town elected a state senator, Arthur P. Duggan Sr., and three years later mourned his death, in Gonzales of a heart attack. His son, Arthur P. Duggan Jr., is still a Littlefield resident and has worked hand in hand with many others on the now-completed beautification project of downtown Littlefield, as well as numerous other projects the city has undertaken through the years.

In 1940 a new federal building was erected at Phelps Avenue and Sixth Street. A year later this country was again involved in a World War and again young men by the dozens left to join others in strange and faraway places in defending our country. Many were not to return.

The years were indeed frightful but also busy. Agriculture began taking on a different outlook as price supports were removed and farmers began producing more and more from their land. Production was even helped along by irrigation which was beginning to enter the picture, as vast pools of underground water were tapped.

Following the end of the war, new and younger faces were seen in business and young men filled city and county offices. As still more new businesses sprang up the unoccupied lots along Phelps were nearly all filled with thriving commercial structures. As the gaps were filled a number of stores moved away from the main section to answer a growing need for more parking. During this time the era of two and three-car families had begun.

Since the advent of the sixties some of the changes seen are the shift of the farmers moving to town, larger homes being built and more beautiful and modern businesses, churches and schools being erected.

It is our hope that the spirit that built this fine Texas city of which we are so proud today,

Chapel Dedicated To Pioneers

In April of 1963 a $40,000 church chapel, built in honor of one of the city's pioneer businessmen, was dedicated.

The J. T. Elms Memorial Chapel was built by the early day banker's widow, Mrs. Lela Elms, and was presented to the will prevail in the hearts of her future citizens even as it did 52 years ago in the brave pioneers who foresaw that here in the virgin level lands of the South Plains was a promise for a happy and profitable future for generations to come.

First Methodist Church formal ceremony.

The edifice, designed by the Methodist Church, built and given the church by Mrs. Elms in 1958.

The 28 x 55-foot structure was designed especially for small weddings, funerals, prayer meetings, and was the second major gift Mrs. Elms made to the building program of the First Methodist Church. It is indeed an asset to the community.

B.W. Armistead Remodels Building

One of the many private individuals remodeling recently has been Dr. B.W. Armistead, Dr. Armistead has "gotten into the swing of things" and revised his building at 406 Littlefield Drive by not only improving the exterior of the place, but the interior as well.

The newly decorated building is the office of Drs. Armistead, G.S. Burk, and L.S. Chandler, optometrists.

The outside of the building features flower boxes, as well as multi-colored lights. The landscape is made complete with attractive exposed aggregate. The shrubbery that surrounds the building has also been trimmed and cared for.

The interior of the building, which has also had extensive remodeling is very lovely. Handsome paneling has been added to the already spacious lobby, and beautifully colored carpet has been laid.

It is not surprising that Armistead had an interest in the downtown improvement plans. He has always been active in civic affairs. He served as president of the Chamber of Commerce in 1950; president of the Texas Optical Association in 1956; school board member for six years, serving as president in 1960; and in 1963 he was elected mayor of Littlefield. Dr. and Mrs. Armistead have two children, Alan and Kay. The family makes their home at 716 E. 11th.

ATTRACTIVE OFFICE building of Drs. B.W. Armistead, Burk, and L.S. Chandler has recently been remodeled. Outside of the building boasts flower boxes, multi-colored and exposed aggregate, while the inside of the building has been carpeted and paneling has been added. Armistead is just one of the many private individuals that has joined the parade of progress and remodeled.

OPEN HOUSE HERALDS SECURITY STATE OPENING

Friday and Sunday, September 10 and 11, will signify the beginning of 18 years of service to the Littlefield area, by Security State Bank as they open their new $260,000 building at the corner of Fifth and Phelp's in downtown Littlefield.

Help celebrate the milestone in the banks' growth, the directors will play to the public with an Open House from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Jack Wicker, president of the bank, said he wanted everyone in the area would take advantage of this opportunity to view the new facilities. Wicker stressed it was a change of the many customers of the bank, down through the years, which has made this possible.

In the first week of 1964, the Security State Bank announced the purchase of a three block site for its future home. Razing work on downtown buildings, both landmarks since the 1920's got underway to make way for the new and modern building. Interior razing was completed first on the old Wolters building, a drug store location at Fifth and Phelp's. The Walker building, a 50-foot building, was razed on the schedule. Both Walker and Wolters buildings had been vacant for some time. Two business locations in an empty lot between gave a 125 feet of frontage on Phelp's Avenue, about the same as the larger quarters are in with a growth pattern of "Jack Wicker, bank president, pointed out.

October 8, 1964, the construction signed and foundation preparation began on the new building. In late November the foundation preparation began on the same. In late November, foundation was completed, beginning with the month of December steel was being laid. By January, 1965, brick was laid and the finishing touches to the vault were being completed. The month of March preparations going up, and June masonry being installed. In the finishing touches were made and the beautiful furniture started arriving. On Monday, August 23rd the doors of the new Security State Bank building were opened to the public following the cutting of the ribbon by Littlefield Mayor J.E. Chisholm. The ceremonies were attended by approximately 100 persons.

The landscaping has just been completed this week and the formal opening of the larger, more elegant Security State Bank is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 6 p.m.

The bank offers window services available continuously from 9 until 3, even during the noon hours. It also features a day and night depository in the well lighted foyer which is always open. No key is necessary, and deposit envelopes are available. These advantages coupled with the promise that the new building will not change the Bank's unique concept of complete banking services give customers assurances that the overall idea is "modern design with the customers in mind."

$1,000 In Prizes At Open House

One thousand dollars in prizes will be given away by the Security State Bank to winners of the two contests sponsored by them. By guessing the amount of money in a glass house on display at the bank one could win up to 100 dollars in cash. First prize is $100, second prize is $75, third prize is $50, and fourth prize will be $25.

The second contest will be a drawing. The first prize will be a two hundred fifty dollar savings account. There will also be five $100 savings accounts given.

Security State Opened In 1947

The Security State Bank has been a part of the growth of Littlefield since October 4, 1947 when it celebrated its first opening.

The bank at that time was housed in temporary quarters in the Yellowhouse Building and has continued to grow to its present new quarters.

At the time of opening the new state bank's slate of officers included Art Chesher, Littlefield Mayor at that time as president, L. C. Hewitt as vice-president, and Paul Hyatt as cashier. The directors included Chesher, Hewitt, A. P. Duggan Jr., E. J. Foust, and Hyatt.

With the opening of the new bank, Littlefield again had two banks for the first time in several years. A state bank during the development days of Lamb County but had been out of business since the late 1920s.

The bank built the building at the site occupied prior to their most recent move and Chesher was succeeded by J. C. Hilburn as president of the institution.

The present president E. J. (Jack) Wicker bought a majority interest in the Security State Bank and became its president in April, 1958. Wicker had been executive vice-president of the Midland National Bank prior to his becoming president of Security State.

Drive In Window New Convenience

The drive-in window will be open continuously from nine until three. Banking services can be handled even during the noon hour.

The Security State drive-in facilities may be entered from XIT, and left by Phelps. Drive-in—Bank—Drive out. It is as simple as that. The tellers at the drive-in windows are served by pneumatic tubes to handle almost all normal banking services.

New Water System At Whitharral

WHITHARRAL — Culminating weeks of planning and work, the new water system at Whitharral will be turned on Monday.

Seventy-two paid members have been looking forward to this day for nearly two years when the Whitharral Water Association was first formed.

The new $96,000 project includes a 50 x 50 protracted tank site on the L.C. Lewis property, two and one-half acres purchased from Homer Johnson Oil Co., site of the 50,000 gallon storage tank, water rights on two acres on the J.C. Taylor farm, site of the well, pump, chlorination system, insulated well house, 13,000 feet of six inch line, 6,000 feet of four inch line, 4,000 feet of two inch line, couplings and meters.

In addition to this, nine fire hydrants were installed. Each home now is within 500 feet of a fire plug.

This project was accomplished by members paying a $50 fee and the balance was loaned by Farmers Home Administration under Hockley County FHA supervisor Horace Gilmore.

Members of the board say they expect sale of water fees to meet the payments and retire the 40-year government loan. Water rights on the well site, one mile north of Whitharral on Highway 385, have been leased for a 40 year period also. The well pumps 200 gallons per minute.

Engineer for the system was A.C. Bowden of Lubbock. Contract for the 50,000 gallon tower went to Pittsburgh Des Moines Steel Co., Dallas. The pipe contract was awarded to Rhode Pipe Co., Silverton.

Present members of the Whitharral Water Association were elected April, 1964 and re-elected for one year at the first annual meeting, January 5, 1965.

J.W. Borders is president of the board; H.G. Walden, vice president; Clifford Throckmorton, secretary; Aubrey Hudson, and R.L. Heard are directors.

Entry Deadline Near For South Plains Fair

The deadline for accepting entries in the cattle division of the 48th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair is approaching, according to A. B. Davis, fair manager.

Davis said entries in the cattle show would close on Monday, Sept. 13. "Because space in the barn is limited," Davis noted, "entries will be on a first-come, first-served basis."

New fluorescent lighting and greatly increased electrical power facilities have been added to the barn for the convenience of exhibitors this year. The giant fair opens a thrill-packed six-day run here on Sept. 27 with officials anticipating a record attendance of 250,000 milling through the turnstiles. The return of "Holiday On Ice" to the fair headlines a list of new attractions. Eight performances are scheduled and mail order applications for tickets—priced at $2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50—are now being accepted by the fair association, PO Box 208, Lubbock, Texas 79408. Tickets to the ice show purchased prior to the fair opening may be used for gate admissions.

Other attractions include Gemini capsule and Lunar Excursion Module mockups from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and National Guard exhibits, industrial arts and hobby shows, Bell Aerosystems' rocket belt demonstrations, wildlife exhibits, plus kiddie rides separated from the usual carnival midway, junior parachute jump and many other entertaining features.
