State Health Program

State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox intends to put a resolution urging increased operating funds and better working facilities for the State Health Department in the hands of "all interested persons."

The resolution, calling for legislative appropriation of 62 cents per capita for public health, was passed September 22 by the State Board of Health. Current appropriations amount to 20 cents per capita.

Based on a population of 7,750,000, 62 cents per capita would yield $4,805,000 in operating funds for the money-short department, the resolution points out, providing "sufficient money to hold together the present development and an opportunity for conservative expansion."

Part of the expansion, according to Dr. Cox, would be a research laboratory.

"The way things are now, we either neglect research work, or ask our friends in other states to conduct work for us, and that is limited," the health officer said.

He said he was "only trying to build for the state a program that will give people the best and the most in public health."

Present laboratory facilities are housed in a twenty-five year old brick building on East Fifth Street, adjacent to the million dollar State Health Department building which was built in 1943.

Shelters for experimental animals occupy a large portion of laboratory space. Operating space for several divisions of laboratory activity are crowded together.

The State Board of Health described identification, prevention, and economic control of disease as the "greatest essential need at the present time."

To meet the need, the Board made available $400,000 of federal hospital survey and construction funds which the Board administers, with the understanding the Legislature would contribute on equal amount toward a new laboratory research building.

"It is the considered judgment of the State Board of Health," the resolution reads, "that to request of the Legislature an appropriation of funds in the amount of $4,805,000 is without question amply justified."

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

You've heard it said "The Greeks had a word for it." Just like everyone else, though, once in awhile they came up with the wrong word.

Take "cataract" of the eye. You've probably heard the term used in connection with a waterfall. That's more or less what the physicians of ancient Greece thought a cataract of the eye was. They believed there was a large space between the lens of the eye and the colored matter which lies in front of it, the iris, in the middle of which is a hole, the pupil. Into this space, they thought, fell a cloudy fluid which cut off the sight and made the pupil, normally black, look gray or white.

Today scientists know that the trouble lies within the lens itself, not in front of it. A cataract is any cloudy spot in the lens, regardless of size, shape, or color. A patient may have a cataract so small it never bothers him. On the other hand, even a tiny cataract located in a part of the lens needed for vision can be annoying. Cataracts usually occur in old people but may be seen in those of other ages as well, including infants.

One thing above all should be remembered about cataracts: the diagnosis does not carry with it the certainty of blindness. With treatment, the progress of a cataract sometimes can be slowed up considerably. Furthermore, when the patient's vision becomes bad enough to handicap him in getting around, an operation can be done. In children the cloudy lens is cut in two and left in the eye to be absorbed; this procedure is called needling or dissection. In older people the lens must be removed from the eye. After the operation glasses can take the place of the missing lens of the eye, which is not replaced by Nature, and if the rest of the organ is healthy, the sight often is near normal or at least useful.

Everything that cuts down the vision is not a cataract. Some people speak of a cataract on the eye, but the lens, the part involved, is in the eye. They may confuse a cataract with another condition of the eye called a "pterygium" (pronounced ter-i-jum, accenting the second syllable). This is a small, fan-shaped growth which usually begins near the nose and spreads over the eyeball. Thick and fleshy looking at first, it finally shrinks and turns pale, and the blood vessels in it become cord-like. Ptery-

Soil Conservation District News

Conservation Benefits

A. F. Wedel of seven miles southeast of Littlefield, recently harvested 109,430 pounds of Caprock milo from twenty one acres of land or 5211 pounds per acre on land which had a crop of hairy vetch turned under as green manure the previous year. This field was observed by some three hundred farmers on the soil conservation farm tour held on September 9. Mr. Wedel applied 200 pounds of 20% superphosphate to the vetch crop. The grain yield was hurt some during the last few weeks of the growing season due to a charcoal smut infection, according to Mr. Wedel. He is planting vetch and sweet clover again this year.

W. B. Jones of six miles east of Littlefield, planted fifty acres of New Era cowpeas in the same drill with Martin's milo. Mr. Jones says he doesn't think the growth of peas in the grain sorghum helped or hindered the yield of this year's grain crop but expects an increase from next year's planting judging from the amount of nitrogen nodules found on the roots of the pea vines. Proper inoculation of the legume seed is very important to get this nitrogen fixation on the roots, he says. Describing the nodules he found on the roots Mr. Jones declared they were as big as the end of his thumb. He plans to follow this practice on all of his irrigated grain sorghum plantings next year.

D. L. McLain north of Olton, has grown New Era cowpeas for the third consecutive year in his grain sorghum. Where he followed the sorghum and peas combination with cotton this year the cotton is considerably better than average he says. Mr. McLain used a pickup attachment on his combine to harvest the peas after the grain crop was combined. The stubble and pea vines were turned under as green manure for added soil improvement.

G. R. Hill living two miles north and one west of Littlefield, reports that his D.P. & L. cotton variety is yielding approximately two bales to the acre where he broke his land 18 inches deep and applied a mixed 16-20-0, commercial fertilizer at the rate of 214 pounds per acre before planting. Stormproof cotton was yielding approximately one and three-fourths bales per acre under glum is seen most often in persons exposed a lot to dust, wind, and sun, and never in children. When the growth covers the cornea (the watch crystal-like covering of the eyeball) enough to block off seeing, it becomes necessary to operate.

A certain amount of pressure of the eye's contents against the inner side of the eyeball is needed to give the eyeball its shape. However, when this pressure rises to unhealthy levels from some cause, either known or unknown, glaucoma results. Glaucoma may be connected with cataract. This eye disease, which causes about 10 per cent of blindness, has been called "a thief in the night" because often it steals away eyesight so gradually that its victim is unaware the disease is present; the loss of sight usually begins at the edges of the field of vision. However, if the patient has an acute attack, the pain is so severe that he usually seeks medical relief. General symptoms like nausea, vomiting, and headache may be associated with an attack of glaucoma; the condition has been described as "a sick eye in a sick body." Other signs may be blurring of the sight and seeing colored halos around lights.

Treatment for glaucoma consists of eye drops to bring the tension of the eyeball down and surgery if the drops don't control the disease. The doctor may be helped in deciding whether or not to operate by the amount of side vision which has been lost. The field of vision can be measured, as can the amount of tension in the eyeball.

Many people are bothered with irritations of the lid (bepharitis) and conjunctiva (conjunctivitis). The conjunctiva is the tissue which lines the lids and covers the cornea, and of course "itis" refers to an irritation or inflammation, just as it does in any other part of the body. The patient may complain that he feels as if something is in his eyes and that they tire quickly in doing close work. Itching, burning, and redness of the eyes and lids also may be noticed. Any irritation which is painful or long drawn out should be brought to the attention of a doctor because often it may be the first sign of a deep-seated eye disease. Also, if neglected, this surface irritation can lead to more serious trouble of the eye. The doctor may treat the condition with medicines or prescribe glasses.

WATERMELON FIZZLES

Lyal Viers spent the summer carefully cultivating a watermelon plant. The first frost of the fall froze his melon just when it got as big as a good-sized orange.

similar treatment with the earlier planting making a slight increase over the later plantings. Mr. Hill estimates that on seventy-five acres of cotton the early freeze damaged his yield about fifteen bales. When asked what he attributed the high acre yield to Mr. Hill stated that it was combination of things over a period of years that paved off but of the two treatments this year he gives equal credit to the deep breaking and the commercial fertilizer. He further states that it will be hard to maintain such yields across the farm over a period of years unless he takes full advantage of the rain fall by reason of the fact that irrigation water cannot always be applied at the proper time on every acre when the crop needs it most. On land that appears to be relatively flat you still need to have your land leveled to have control of the irrigation water and to save and get equal distribution of the rainfall if the yield is to be equal on every acre, Mr. Hill says.

Praising the benefits of soil building crops, A. S. Nafziger of Olton, reports that he can still see a marked difference in crop yield on alfalfa land over other land where the alfalfa was plowed out in 1943.

LANDMARK IN HISTORY

1809, HODGENVILLE, KY. Birthplace of ABRAHAM LINCOLN

After his marriage in June, 1806, Thomas Lincoln and his young wife, Nancy Hanks Lincoln set up house-keeping in this simple log cabin in Hodgenville, Hardin County (now Larue). Three years later, on February 12, 1809, their first son was born. He was named Abraham, after his paternal grandfather, who came to Kentucky from Virginia about 1784 and was killed by an Indian soon after his arrival. It has been said that Lincoln's first ancestor in America came from Norwich, England in 1638, and settled in Hingham, Massachusetts. The log cabin, restored, is now a national monument in Hodgenville.

London Hails Virginia McKenna, Youthful Rising Star Of Theatre

By MILTON MARMOR

AP Newsfeatures
LONDON—From the moment she walks on the stage a golden glow surrounds Virginia McKenna.

It isn't just that she is a beautiful blond of classic features and perfect design. She is a 21-year-old actress, so well thought of in the theatrical circles that she is being watched as one quickly rising to the top. In the film world she has been given the feminine lead in the movie adaptation of the best seller, "The Cruel Sea," and is being mentioned for the lead in Graham Greene's "The Heart of the Matter."

At the moment Miss McKenna is appearing in Charles Morgan's esoteric play, "The River Line" which intrigued the intelligentsia when it opened in the Edinburgh Festival and now is in London getting set for a long run.

The play is a penetrating philosophical study of wartime underground escapees who killed a dear friend whom they wrongly thought to be a German agent. They meet again years later and are rather upset about it all.

Miss McKenna, as the slain man's half-sister, makes it all rational in a long speech at the final curtain. She held the critics and the audience in her hands throughout.

VIRGINIA McKenna—The toast of London.

"Passing of time," says the Sunday Times critic who saw the play in Edinburgh, "has done nothing to impair Virginia McKenna's beauty, heart-touching in its youthful freshness, but it has deepened her understanding."

The Daily Express gives an idea of why it feels Miss McKenna is on "the fast climb to fame and she seems to have all the talents needed to get her there."

"Virginia could wear an old sweater and a roll of oilcloth around her waist and something about the light in her eye, the serenity that seems to shine through her skin means elegance to me."

Miss McKenna began her theatrical career at 17 in London Dramatic School after returning from South Africa where she had been evacuated during the war.

At 19 she spent six months with the Dundee Repertory Theater and later played at the Haymarket Theatre. Then she attracted attention as the young Shakespearean heroine in "Winter's Tale" alongside John Gielgud. She has been on television and, in addition to "The Cruel Sea," has finished three as yet unreleased films: "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "The Oracle" and "Father's Doing Fine."

Miss McKenna isn't burning with a dedicated flame to leave her name in the theater. She looks forward to marriage and children.

Bible Words to Live by

ISAIAH 30:15—"In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

In a day of strife and tumult, doubt and fear, we all need some sure source of strength for the duties of every day and confidence for the future. This I find in my favorite verse, though like most Christians, I have many other favorite verses and love the whole of God's Word.

Happy is the man whose trust is in the God and Father of us all, and who knows that through his faith in Christ as Saviour and Lord he has found the secret of joy and usefulness in life. Where else can we look for true and lasting peace of mind and heart and to whom else can we go for assurance for this life and the next.

Whatever the tumult without, the Christian can have peace and poise within. No matter what may be the test he has access to resources beyond himself that are unending and everlasting. Try this life of faith yourself and you, too, will find the promise is true, "In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

Save Costly Garden Tools By Checking Winter R

KEEP YOUR GARDEN TOOLS IN A HANDY RACK. IT IS ECONOMY.

Garden tools are precious in this inflation era.

Since the greatest deterioration comes when tools are idle, careful cleansing this fall and dry storage over winter are necessary precautions.

The worst enemy of tools is rust. This attacks the metal parts during the winter when the tools are in storage and does more damage than in the summer, when they are in constant use.

To check the rust, first clean all outside metal parts by washing thoroughly. Caked mud should be softened and removed. Then dry, and cover the metal with a thin film of lubricating grease, or oil. All bearings of wheel tools should be oiled. It is possible to obtain new handles, where the old ones have broken, and these set in place this fall. Spraying and dusting should be cleaned. All old spray material, nozzles of sprayers should be cleaned. Oil the pumps and set them away withing down the tank caps. Rubbers gaskets are not to be cleaned. Instead of oil, powder should be used on the bearings. Make a resolution, when tools have been cleaned, to clean in the future, prolong their lives, and substantial saving. A few every tool has its place found well worthwhile.

Jane Anne Whitfield Crowned Football Queen At Anton

Teen Talk

AP Newsfeatures
BY VIVIAN BROWN

Use your teens to build for your twenties. That's the advice offered by glamorous Mildred Miller, who at 26 years of age finds herself a star of the Metropolitan Opera, slated to sing the important role of Preziosilla in Verdi's "Forza del Destino" in the first performance of the season. Says she:

"Young people sometimes tend to let well enough alone with their gifts and talents instead of exploring tentative interests. There are many teen-agers who flirt with the idea of being a nightclub singer, a recording artist, a musical comedy star or even an opera singer, but few of them do anything to make their dreams come true."

Mildred's own story is a good case in point. She had taken piano lessons from early childhood and in high school acted as accompanist and soloist for school affairs and programs. She might have continued in that secure spot, if she hadn't had faith in herself. She explains:

"I got interested in singing because I sang in our church choir. When I got a solo once and felt the thrill of feeling my voice soar out I found a thrill that piano playing never gave me. I didn't know if I could really sing, but I figured I was young enough to take a chance and find out. When you are in your teens you have time to waste on this kind of exploration."

Mildred offers these pointers to ambitious young people, and those who need to be pulled out of a rut:

1. Participate in school or church events. It doesn't matter whether you go to a small school or a medium sized one. Extra-curricular events in all schools are planned chiefly to draw young people out and create school spirit, so don't be shy about volunteering or applying for school jobs. An interest in reporting can develop on the school. The stage is full of talented young people who got their first theatrical experience acting, designing scenery or making costumes for school productions. A college or university radio station can offer practical working experience.
2. It's a good thing to be adamant about your talent, but if you find your interest in one kind of activity waning in favor of another, give yourself a chance to find out how deep your interest is in the new field. (Mildred did this when she switched from piano to voice.)
3. Take your dreams seriously. Don't be self-consciously afraid that they are too big for you. If it weren't for dreams, we would not have the telephone, airplane or the discovery of radium. We limit ourselves when we do not give our dreams a chance to come true."

Miss Jane Ann Whitfield, popular Anton High School student, was crowned Football queen in a gala affair at the half time between the Anton and Quitaque teams last Friday night.

4. Be realistic. Have a plan of action and set your sights. Rather than be turned down for a lack of experience on the job that you are anxious to have, get the required experience before you apply for it. If the odds are against you as a newcomer, wait a while and get a professional or business standing elsewhere.

5. Be down to earth about yourself and your ambitions, so that those who are responsible for your welfare won't be reluctant to give you another chance. Parents and teachers will help you if you show definite talent for the thing you are aiming to do.

In order to get attention, Mildred went to Europe to gain experience on the opera stages abroad before she tackled the Met. She sang in Italian and German opera companies and got many opportunities that she would not have gotten in musically crowded New York, she says. Sheer luck entered into this program also, however, for she says she was heard abroad by Mr. Rudolf Bing, General Manager of the Metropolitan Opera.

Piano music was furnished during the evening by Miss Glenda Hulse, sister-in-law to the honoree, and Mrs. Johnny Edwards.

First Aid For Kitchens

Practical considerations and glamor can go hand-in-hand to make your home more livable and eliminate many irritations.

You can have a warm bathroom without using your entire heating system, with a new combination heater, light and ventilating fan installed in the ceiling. You can't back into it and it is out of the reach of children.

Heat that ordinarily rises in a room is utilized with this unit. A fan draws air from the ceiling, pulling it through the unit. Heat is forced down in the room, circulating air from floor to ceiling. It is said to heat areas from 400 to 575 cubic feet and is ideal for recreation room, bedroom and nursery.

In the kitchen a new ventilating fan helps remove stale air and odors. It has a motor and aluminum blade mounted on a three-point bracket. Rubber tips hold the bracket in place, permitting you to slip the entire unit out of the housing for cleaning.

LET'S TALK LIVESTOCK

By Ted Gouldy

FORT WORTH—It is considered a certainty by livestock men and packinghouse men at Fort Worth that another effort to get ceiling prices and compulsory grading removed from cattle and hogs will be made right away.

The fact that compulsory grading adds considerable expense to the cost of meat has been cited by packers as hurting the consumer—who eventually pays the bill.

The fact that many retail meat handlers have not given their customers full benefit of lower wholesale prices is allegedly responsible for some curtailed consumption of meat and has made slipping cattle and hog prices lose ground faster.

Reason advanced by the trade for thinking cattle growers and hog men will redouble their efforts was the recent victory of the sheep industry in getting the wholesale ceilings and compulsory grading and classification removed.

This fight launched at Fort Worth early this year by sheepmen and packers, has won plaudits from people all over the nation in the livestock or meat business.

Parity on October 15, as announced by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, on livestock and wool was announced last week: Average prices, effective parity prices and percentage of parity are: Beef Cattle, 22.00, 20.80, 106%; Veal Calves, 23.80, 23.20, 103%; Hogs, 18.60, 21.10, 88%; Lambs, 22.20, 22.80, 97%; and Wool, 50.4¢, 58.9¢, 85%.

The losers in the recent elections have nobody to blame but themselves.

They did not promise a good general rain—and about three-fourths of the country could surely use one.

While feed supplies are critically short in many areas—stock water and drinking water are becoming critical in many places.

Sharp reductions in available supplies of livestock at major markets featured the trade this week. On Monday at Fort Worth, cattle and calf receipts were over 1,800 below a week ago, and at the 12 major public markets of the nation, cattle and calf receipts were over 61,000 below a week earlier. Similar smaller supplies of sheep and hogs were reported.

This short supply would normally have been a factor to induce sharply higher prices at the outset, but the impending election caused Monday's trade at Fort Worth and other market centers to be uneven and inclined to drift upward and downward without a definite pattern.

The United States Marine Corps Observing 177th Birthday Anniversary

The rich tradition of the Marine Corps dates back to 1775, when it was established by the Continental Congress. The Corps is observing its one hundred and seventy-seventh birthday Monday, November 10.

In the Revolutionary War, the Marines fought against the British Fleet on the ships of John Paul Jones, and made their first amphibious landing on the beaches of the Bahamas in 1776. Marines ended their war with the Mediterranean pirates when they planted the Stars and Stripes over the pirate stronghold at Oerna in Tripoli after a six hundred-mile march across the desert of North Africa. In the War of 1812, they fought at Lake Champlain and Lake Erie and were with General Jackson behind the barricades at New Orleans.

The United States Marines were permanently established under the Constitution of the United States, July 11, 1798.

They defeated the Seminole Indians in Florida in 1836, and fought under General Scott in the Mexican War of 1846-48. Their first visit to Japan came in 1854 as guard detachments from the ships of Commodore Perry's fleet.

During the war between the States, Marines took part in all engagements on the Atlantic coast and were with Farragut at Mobile Bay and New Orleans.

Official Memorandum

BY
ALLAN SHIVERS
Governor of Texas

AUSTIN, TEXAS

GREETINGS:

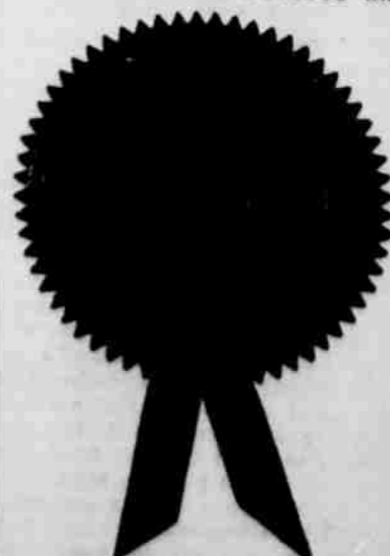

Eighty national organizations and numerous associations of the citizens are joining in a Volunteer Registration Program for Civil Defense and Disaster Relief from November 11 to November 27.

The purpose of this undertaking, epitomized by its theme "Plan for Home Defense," is to provide a voluntary expression by public-spirited citizens of their willingness to be included in a reserve of man power which will be called upon by the authorities of their local communities for civil defense and disaster relief training and service as the occasion demands.

Inherent in the character of the American people is the desire for self-reliance and for the skill to help themselves, their families, their neighbors, and others in distress when disaster strikes.

It seems fitting, therefore, that the members of these patriotic organizations should once again renew their pledge of willingness to serve their country, their community, and their fellow men in time of great need.

THEREFORE, I, Allan Shivers, Governor of the State of Texas, hereby commend the enterprise and loyal impulse of those participating in this movement and express the hope that this worthy effort may achieve the success which it very surely deserves.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 28th day of Oct. 1952.

Allan Shivers
Governor of Texas

87,332 Bales Ginned In County

Lamb County gins have turned out a total of 87,332 bales of cotton this season, according to a survey made Wednesday by J. D. Jordan of the Texas Employment Commission and David Eaton, County Agent of Lamb County.
 Jordan still estimates the gathering of the 1952 crop of cotton in Lamb County will be about completed November 15.
 Gins are now running around the clock, with hundreds of loads standing on the gin lots.
 Most farmers are using mechanical strippers for gathering of the crop, and since the heavy frost reported early Wednesday morning, defoliation of the plant will enable strippers being used in all fields.

Texas Schools Make Start On Civil Defence and Relief Disaster Program

Texas schools have made a start on working out a sound civil defense and disaster relief network, but a survey just completed shows that they still have a long way to go.

The survey, which was carried out as a cooperative project by the Texas Education Agency and the State Division of Defense and Disaster Relief, was composed of a series of questions on measures now being taken which would help in the event of a disaster. A total of 843 responses were received by Dr. Joe R. Humphrey of the Texas Education Agency and William L. McGill, state coordinator of civil defense.

and has the school coordinated any or all civil defense activities with same?

A total of 103 said yes, 109 said partially, 604 replied no, and 27 didn't answer that question.

Are evacuation drills held in your school at regular intervals?

A total of 571 replied in the affirmative, 57 said a partial system has been set up, 133 said none are held, and 82 didn't answer.

Does the curriculum enrichment program in your school include conservation of human and other resources?

A total of 400 said it did, another 295 said partially, 105 answered in the negative, and 43 didn't return an answer on that one.

State and County Taxes in Amount of $143,133 Are Collected in October

State and County tax money is rolling into the Lamb County Tax Collector's office. Herbert Dunn, the recently appointed Tax Collector, announced yesterday that a total of $143,133.94 was collected during the month of October, first month in which taxes are payable.

At the same time he announced that 435 persons had also paid poll taxes, and received receipts, entitling them to vote next year.

November payment will probably maintain something of a similar pattern, but December is usually the big month in tax collections.

other district next year.

The district in which Littlefield will play next year, District 2AA, will include five teams, namely: Olton, Tulla, Lockney, Muleshoe and Littlefield. Littlefield has been taken out of District 7AA and placed in District 2AA.

Littlefield, Levelland, Brownfield and Muleshoe make up District 7AA this year. The Wildcats have beaten Levelland and have yet to play Brownfield and Muleshoe.

The transfer of the Wildcats to another district, will give the Wildcats more conference games next year, but whether this will not be somewhat offset by lighter competition is being pondered by fans and school alike.

The announcement of the assignment to different districts, announced at Austin this week, when the Texas Interscholastic League met there to give assignment to 729 Texas schools. It was announced that the action taken and announced, was still not final, and some changes might still be made. It being recognized that there probably would be some protests.

The tentative assignments have been mailed to all schools, and Supt. Hutchinson received the local school's copy of the assignment this week.

The letter stated that the reasons for the changes were guided by three factors: (1) Enrollment in four high school grades. (2) Geographical location of schools. (3) Arranging schools in such a manner as to have 32 districts in the state thus assuring an orderly state championship play-off for Conference AA members.

The letter also added "the 1953 football assignments are based on average membership in the last four grades for the 1951-52 school year as found on the superintendent's annual report on file."

It also set forth that all schools with an average enrollment between 200 and 499 have been placed in the most accessible district to their schools. Several schools with enrollment between 175 and 199 have tentatively been placed in Conference AA.

Jaycettes Plan For Needy At Christmas Time

Littlefield Jaycettes are already making plans for their annual Christmas party and aids for needy families, to provide them with, and assure a Merry Christmas in this year of 1952.

They were instrumental in similar activities last year, which was high-lighted by a fund-raising style show.

While plans are still incomplete for this year, it has been tentatively decided to have their fund-raising activity this year centered around a "Toni Doll," and 30 different costumes for the doll, which will be provided by Jaycettes, and displayed in local store windows—later to be offered for sale, in some manner not yet fully determined.

Last year the Jaycettes furnished several Christmas baskets for needy families.

Expert and Champions

4-H Demonstrator Joan Tweten of Hibbing, Minn., an individual bread demonstrator at the Minnesota State Fair "shows how" to two junior baking champs, Mrs. Ruth Derousseau, Rice Lake, Wis., and Helen Constance Thatcher, Charleston, S. C., Grand National bake-off winners.

Mpls., Minn.—These two junior champs, among the five famous cooks who have won top prize honors at the bake-off at the Waldorf, met for the first time when they formed a "Cook of the Year Club" at the Pillsbury Home Service Center in Minneapolis. Anxious to compare notes, these women chatted busily about what they did with all their prize money, how they went about installing in their homes the General Electric equipment they won as bonus prizes, and what they said to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the Duchess of Windsor, and Margaret Truman, who awarded the prizes. They all claim they are intent on working out new and novel recipes to enter in the coming fourth contest to be climaxed by another bake-off at the Waldorf December 8, when the 1952 Cook of the Year will be named. Entries are being received now and until October 15.

Lamps Aid Winter Sun in Growing Window Garden

Winter gardening methods have been greatly improved by research in the effectiveness of artificial light on plant growth. It is possible for any one to have flowering plants in the house, even though a sunny window is not available.

By using a photographic light meter, which nearly all amateur photographers now possess, you can check the light from your best window to see whether the daylight is adequate for the plants you wish to grow.

An intensity of 50 foot candles for twelve hours a day is sufficient to develop the flowers of bulbs, such as tulips, daffodils, Paper White narcissi, lily of the valley, and amaryllis. To measure the light that falls on the place where your plants can be kept, lay two sheets of white paper flat, one above the other. Hold a Weston light meter six inches above the paper, being careful not to cast a shadow. Multiply the meter reading by four and you will have approximately the foot-candles of light available to your plants.

The bulbs take less light than other flowering pot plants, which need about 500 foot candles each 12 hours, and should not be attempted except in a south window, which enjoys direct sunlight or a large east, west or north window which receives the full reflected light of the sky.

Temperature is important in growing indoor flowers, next to light. There is more trouble from high temperatures than from low. Here windows which do not face south enjoy an advantage. Plants can be kept close to the glass, where the temperature is more stable, and usually much cooler than in the center of the room. An ideal temperature for flowering plants would be 60 degrees, with humidity of 60-70 but most of the subjects which amateurs grow are tolerant of a considerable range. When the average temperature rises much higher than 70 degrees during the day and 65 at night, soft growth, with weak stems, is likely. Never allow plants to stand on a radiator, or near one. Humidity may be increased by keeping saucers or pans of water near the plants.

Watering is the third important factor affecting plants. The old fashioned method of soaking the soil with water, then allowing it to dry out, is still the best one. As the soil dries, air enters, insuring the roots necessary oxygen. When methods of automatic watering are used, there may be danger of keeping the soil saturated, so that air is excluded.

If a large pan can be provided holding two or three inches of sand, pots can stand on this sand; and if water is kept standing just below the bottom of the pot, moisture will be taken up by the pot as needed. Another way is to insert in the pot, through the drainage hole at the bottom, a wick of fibre glass, or a piece of clothes line. If the top of the wick is imbedded in the soil, and the bottom drops into a pan of water, the soil will be kept moist without saturation. To arrange either of these devices requires some ingenuity, but it can be done at small expense.
