The AAA's 1939 farm program for Texas goes into high gear this week with the release of cotton acreage allotments for individual farms.

Sixteen counties have already received the 1939 cotton allotments, and an additional 50 or 60 will have them this week, according to information released at the state AAA headquarters at Texas A. and M. college.

Geo. Slaughter, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee, said the state office is able to handle allotments at the rate of 10 to 15 counties a day if the necessary material from county offices is sent in. He figures on getting the needed material from 30 to 40 additional counties this week. "It's our intention to issue the acreage allotments for each farmer by December 10, when the cotton marketing quota referendum is called, so that producers will be able to vote with all the cards on the table," Slaughter declared.

The paving project, including the hard-surfacing of 35 blocks in the City of Littlefield was found unfavorable for a PWA grant, W. G. Street, City Secretary, has been informed. H. A. Gray, assistant administrator of the Public Works Administration in Washington, D. C. wrote that his examiners had failed to make a favorable report on the project, and the department declined to approve the grant. B. L. Cogdill, secretary of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, stated to a Leader reporter that although the report was unfavorable, the city would probably make another attempt to secure federal aid for the paving of the streets.

when you return. Lord, Lynda! If you knew how odd it feels to be the father of a tall lovely thing like you."

Lynda paused at the closed inner door and smiled.

"Do you really think I'm lovely?"

"I seem to. I'd like to see you in your ballgown with your smooth hair and your pearls. Were they real pearls, Lynda?"

"No, I think they were just cheap pearls that went with the costume. Mother bought it for me."

The bedroom, which contained one full-sized bed and one narrow cot against the wall, was the most untidy and unattractive apartment Lynda had ever been allowed to enter. Its one dirty window looked out on a blackness of sordid yards and passageways. On Nick's dressing table there were no photographs, no knick-knacks; there were no pictures on his walls. The one shallow closet held two threadbare suits and some battered-looking shoes. In his drawers the underwear shocked Lynda. Tattered. She would bring her sewing kit and mend his clothes! On top of a tall chest of drawers, however, a set of clean cheap toilet articles had been neatly arranged and there was a great picture of a dog, one of those magnificent canine heads which, loyal, brave, unselfconscious, have a nobility greater than humanity's. A setter, listening, looking, the eyes deep with devotion, with a sort of ecstasy.

"Tell me about your dog, Father," was the girl's first question when after a very brief inspection she came back into the outer room. "He's such a beauty."

"It isn't my dog. It's Jock Ayleward's. The animal's dead now, I imagine. He was Jock's best before Jock met with other beasts less beautiful. Jock keeps a sort of corner here with me."

"It's not his home, then?"

"Bless the child! Home?" He clocked his tongue a dozen times, his eyes laughing at her. "No. This is not his home. Look like a home to you? Jock is what you might call a bird of passage."

"A salesman?" suggested Lynda. Nick chuckled. "Well, yes. You might call it that. He's a sort of hunter too. Tonight he's after big game—against my express advice. Dangerous hunting. If I'm touchy tonight, Lynda, that's the reason."

"When will you be married?"

"That is one of the things I must talk to you about, Father. They—they—are planning an earlier date for my wedding. Easter week."

Nick whistled. "So soon! Well, why not have it over? The sooner it's over the sooner to weep!"

"Oh, Father. I don't want to weep!"

She looked at him so humbly and so wistfully that he put a hand across her eyes.

"Tell me then just this: Shall I like being married, Father?"

"I wish you'd call me Nick."

"Oh, wouldn't that be horribly disrespectful?"

"The last thing I crave, O daughter of mine old age, is respect."

"Then—Nick—oh, please do answer me quickly, some one is coming up the stairs."

Nick listened, alert, rigid.

"Father, Nick, please. Before Jock Ayleward comes."

"How did you know his step, young witch?"

"I don't know. It sounds like him, Nick, shall I like being married?"

"No. Of course not, you little simpleton."

The door was opened with a sort of quiet violence and Ayleward, faultlessly attired in evening dress came in, shut the door and flung a fierce arm about Sandal's shoulders.

"There, you old belly-acher, what do you say? Next time will you trust a born card-handler?"

As he spoke he was pulling from his trousers pockets great handfuls of paper money which he shook before Nick's eyes and then tossed up in the air so that they fell about the room like dead leaves.

"Jock, you fool. Here's Lynda!"

Ayleward turned it upon Nick's visitor in startled grim fixation. He bowed and began to collect his earnings; for surely they must be, thought Lynda, some sort of earnings from his salesmanship! When he had them bundled together he added to them what was left in his clothing and put the whole great mass into a drawer which he locked. Then he turned to go.

"You stop here tonight, Jock," Nick commanded but with an undertone of pleading. "Lynda can put up with you. Good for you to talk to a real gentlewoman once in a blue moon."

Obediently but with a sullen air

he sat down at a distance from the two Sandals near the central table and taking up the pack of cards that lay there began to shuffle absent-mindedly, but with a skill which widened Lynda's gaze.

"Oh, I wish I could do that!"

"Come over here and I'll teach you," he said with impersonal brusquerie, like a big schoolboy to a small one.

Jock pulled up his coat sleeves and turned his long and limber hands about—artist's hands, thought Lynda, but stronger, maybe. He went through a dazzling series of wizardry in which the cards seemed to shift and dance and climb about the room at his will.

"Take her home, will you, Jock," said Nick suddenly. "I'm done and she ought to be getting back to where she seems to belong."

Lynda's laughter went away. Her face turned pale and blank.

"Oh, Fath—oh, Nick—"

"Better do what he tells you, Miss Sandal. He's a bad man to disobey, I'll tell you! Come on, I'll tumble you into a taxi at the corner. So long, Nick. I know you want to hear the dope. Don't make off with the swag while I'm out, will you? I'll cut right back."

But it was nearly morning when he came back to furious prowling Nick.

Ayleward came in at the door then, humming a dance and with a strange dazed wistful look on his young face.

Halfway down that first flight, Jock on her heels ready to put her into a taxi, Lynda Sandal had abruptly stopped. So abruptly that the young man following was forced to leap up a step.

"What's the matter? Forget something?" asked Ayleward. His voice was quite casual.

She turned with the difficulty of a nightmare will and raised her eyes to him.

"I know," said Jock. "You think he turned you out. Poor kid! You mustn't let Nick hurt you, Miss Sandal. The times I've been shown the door! He's a great man, is Nick, but he can be rough. Nick can do what he likes with me. I'm his, I'd be dead now if it hadn't been for Nick."

She ran before him down the stairs. Not until they were on the pavement did he come up to her. Then she stopped again and gripped his arm. "I must talk to you. You must tell me about Nick."

"All right. I'll take you somewhere."

Their taxi moved toward some address he gave the driver.

"Do you like to dance?" asked Ayleward.

"Yes. But I'm not dressed for a restaurant and my moth—"She was going to say, "has never let me go" but checked herself with an hysterical impulse toward laughter.

What did that mother on her knees before an altar know of Lynda Sandal, the adventuress?"

"You're dressed for the place I'm taking you to, only I will say you're a bit stagey."

"I—I thought it was all right."

"So it is. Pretty cute get-up. You're on the stage anyway, aren't you?"

The afternoon session was composed of competitive drills, Plainview winning the loving cup, with Littlefield second. Mrs. Lola Adkins was presented by District Manager, Mrs. Lindbloom, with the Gold Star Proficiency Certificate framed. Mrs. Adkins is the fourth member in the state to win this award, and reported to be the first such certificate to be presented in this district.

OLTON ONLY UNDEFEATED TEAM IN NORTHERN HALF OF DISTRICT

Olton became only undefeated team in the northern half of District 5B Friday as Brownfield joined Slaton in the lower half win column last week.

The Mustangs defeated the Leveland Lobos, 45 to 0, to maintain their record in district play. Littlefield, other undefeated team, tied Ralls, 7-7, but bowed to the Jackrabbits on penutations.

That win was second for Ralls against one defeat.

Brownfield's big Cubs left Tahoka without a victory in district competition, by trimming the Bulldogs, 39-0. It was Brownfield's first conference start and completed Tahoka's district schedule.

Crosbyton found tough sledding in Class C O'Donnell for three quarters, but turned on enough steam in the fourth to down the Eagles, 26 to 7.

Slaton's B team beat Hale Center, winners of the east half of District 2C, 26 to 0. Post lost to Colorado, 33 to 6.

THROUGH THE EYES

Eighty-Seven percent of our impressions are gathered through our eyes. According to the strength of our vision—do we assimilate information, knowledge, entertainment and beauty. It is true that our other senses compliment the sense of sight, but they are mainly adjunctive, and motivated by the things we see. The eyes being our most delicate organs—have received more care and study from medical scientists. The progress made in ophthalmology and optometry border on the miraculous.

While eye surgeons frequently perform the seemingly impossible—the greater achievement is in the corrective and remedial treatment of eyes. With the aid of modern instruments and apparatus—the trained eye specialist is able to make a practically perfect diagnosis of your vision; ascertain the exact weakness, and—with absolute precision and accuracy, strengthen your vision and eliminate the faulty practices in looking.

One instrument makes a photographic record of the fixations (Eye Movements) while you're reading—it is called the Ophthalmograph. This chart is checked against subsequent records which give the attendant optometrist exact knowledge of the progress of his treatment.

A companion instrument to the Ophthalmograph (Likewise perfected by Earl Taylor, a former school teacher) is the Metronoscope. The latter is a kaleidoscopic reading machine. It is this instrument that is of special interest to us right now—because the Littlefield School Board, assisted by the Parent Teachers Association, have just purchased a Metronoscope, for use in the lower grade classrooms.

Dr. Ira E. Woods, is installing an ophthalmograph in his office. The American Optical company will send some of their specialists out here to make a complete survey (With Ophthalmographs) of the children's eyes. Dr. Woods will make subsequent records, and the young folks will have their visual edefects arrested, at the best time—while their eyes are in the period of development.

For a long time, our farsighted school superintendent, Floyd A. Hemphill, and Dr. Ira E. Woods—had hoped that it might be possible to secure these instruments for our schools. This dream was shared by the writer—who happened to be familiar with the Ophthalmograph and Metronoscope.

So—we got busy, and did something about it. The net result of our efforts is—the forthcoming installation and survey. Littlefield will be the first school system on the Plains—to fall in line with the finest educational systems in all the Metropolitan cities of America.

Of course, you are proud of our fine city and our splendid educational system. Our hat is off to the good ladies of the P. T. A. who made possible the realization of this most worthy project.

MAY HIS TRIBE INCREASE

We have found a wonderful man right here in Littlefield. He is not rich; never distinguished himself by making an after dinner speech nor carried the ball across the line, yet—he deserves a medal from the Institute of Psychology. His achievement is far more note-worthy than any of the individual performances that we have mentioned.

He is pleased—satisfied—CONTENTED. In other words—he has reached the pinnacle of the mountain of life. When all is said and done; after the fume and fury that stir our existence, what greater blessing can come to us than peace of mind—contentment? Our victories and struggles, are indeed futile if they leave us groping in the fog of restlessness and despair.

This wonderman we speak of—was asked the usual question—"How's Business?" His face lit up and he replied—"Just Fine and Never Felt Better In My Life." Then—he related to me the many nice things that happened to him and his loved ones. Yes sir—the world was his oyster and he had opened it.

Just by way of experiment—we made several efforts to shake his optimism. It was like blowing soap bubbles against a rock wall. Everytime we hinted at a doubt—he would give us another bit of joyous news. You can't down a man like that for he has mastered the wisdom of all the ages. What is more—it is positively criminal to try to rob him of this priceless possession—Contentment.

Has it ever occurred to you—How much of living you lose through doubts, misgivings and fear? When you answer that question—you will also find the solution to that greater question: "How much more you can get out of life by faith, courage, love and Contentment?"

We are not qualified to sermonize and lack the training or ability, wherewith to lecture. But—this man's slant on life, was a great, fine sermon and lecture combined.

PRAIRIE WEEDS

Gathered by OLE DRIFTER

Howdy Folks: An estate valued at $250,000 was left by Dr. Frederick A. McWilliams, of Sullivan county, New York. It is not unusual for fashionable practitioners or specialists, on millionaire row, to accumulate a fortune. When folks get up into the seven figures they rather like to pay extravagant fees and use these expenditures for—shall we say—eclat. But—there was nothing fancy or highfalutin' about Dear Old Dok McWilliams. He was a country doctor of the old fashioned horse-and-buggy school. For sixty years he practiced in Sullivan county, and his charge never exceeded 50c per visit. He lived in a small apartment, frugally but not miserly; prepared his own prescriptions, and his neighbors thought that he was poverty stricken. He enjoyed 60 years of continuously doing the very thing that he most wanted to do—bringing health to his neighbors. Money—think of it "M-O-N-E-Y"—simply did not mean anything to this man. Yet—consider, how rich his life was, and—what a bounteous blessing to the community that knew and worshiped him. Come on ye self-elected Titans, and see if you can match this man's life in the mirrors of your conscience.

Quite a few of the British newspapers, refer to—"The Recent Unpleasantness," meaning the little incident when Franco and England, "sold the Checks down the river. And—there comes back to me, a soul-stirring address made by a Canadian general way back in 1917 when we were having those big banquet luncheons for the poor hungry soldiers overseas. This old gentleman gave us a real pep talk. Here is a thrilling part of it:—"I was in command of the Canadian Poridge, and out of three thousand of our boys, who went up that hill, only 600 came back. And—all in all gentlemen, they gave us a very unpleasant afternoon." Aren't you glad that this brave general stayed in the rear, during the engagement—so that he could come back and tell us about it—in his own inimitable way?

Last Sunday Judge Louis D. Brandeis, of the United States Supreme Court, celebrated his Eighty-Second birthday. For twenty two years this fine jurispudent, has been a member of our country's greatest tribunal. He has been a steadfast dissenter; fighting for the underprivileged; supporting the laboring classes and ever opposed to "Big Business." Way back in 1911—it was my privilege to meet Louis D. Brandeis, at the Federal Court in New York City. It was the second trial for the dissolution of The American Tobacco Co., under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. Brandeis represented the Independent Tobaccoists; I was there—covering the trial for the "Tobacco World," a trade journal which I represented in New York—at the time. During the trial, he came over to the press table, and discussed with us—the hardships that had come to the little man in the tobacco business. I shall never forget the light of sincerity that shone in this great man's eyes. And so—I join the nation in the devout prayer, that the years may continue to deal kindly with Louis D. Brandeis.

Several of our leading citizens are in search of good opportunities for the investment of their odd nickels and pennies. You see—its like this: we had gotten into the habit of just dropping odd change into receptacles conveniently located on the counters at some of the stores. All we had to do was to just drop a coin in the slot; pull a lever—and never be bothered with that coin anymore. Last Saturday—a gentleman of rather official bearing, came by and gathered up these safe deposit boxes (Slot Machine To You.) He took them up, coins 'nervy-thing. He told one of the merchants that some of the money in the machine would go to the Salvation Army. Bystanders report that there was a nasty wink in the southeast corner of the merchant's eye when he replied—"I hope so." The destination of the rest of the money—was not made public. Your guess is as good as mine.

For the past two years I have

LITTLEFIELD'S "BIG BROTHERS"

You will hear much about our "Big Brothers" in the days to come. True it is—that in the days to come, there are only four or five of us, and wait for an idea. But—we have enough—to sketch for you, an outline of our organization.

From the time that we are old enough to stand anything, there is instilled into our minds, the fairy tale that—"The World is for the Living." Unfortunately—many of us, wait and wait for the Paymaster. I—for one, want to see that ancient gag removed from the book. However—it is here, dwarfing and robbing many of their energy and their strive. Half the world plays nurse maid to the other half, and even the nurses are at the mercy of charges. Illiteracy is rapidly becoming a national calamity, but our country, but mental deficiency, sickness, misfortune and the other evils of our birthrights, will be with us always.

Like unto the weather—we can not control it—but we can do something about it. Briefly—"SOCIAL CONDITIONING," is the prime objective of LITTLEFIELD'S "BIG BROTHERS." Let me make it clear at the outset, that our purpose is not to indulge in reforms or dictaments. We hope to learn more about our brothers. Probably—this knowledge will enable us to engage our sympathies and enable us to engage in "Conditioning" With edged tools.

The first project that we have planned for ourselves is—SPONSORING ONE OR MORE IMPROVED PLAYGROUNDS. We believe this is one of the greatest needs of our community—we are approaching this first problem with necessary equipment of facts and figures, and expect reports of satisfactory progress in the near future.

The establishment of the First Playground should stimulate enough interest, to be proceeding with the promotion of a city-wide other ventures which will make Littlefield a better place to live in.

At this time, I wish to pay tribute to Hemphill, our school superintendent, and Lanken, the educational director of the City of Littlefield. These friends of youth—upon me, the urgent need for supervised activities. They were the inspiration that brought forth the Big Brothers Organization.

There will be no special invitations to members.

If you feel like playing "Big Brothers" come along with us. You will be very welcome. DAVE SCHEIDT hardly been able to keep my mind on my business. Ever since that cold December morning in 1935, when my namesake—shut England's gates behind him, took on wife, and drifted around Europe, with no place to go to except all the millionaire's palaces on the continent; I have been distracted with sympathy for the poor, homeless Royal Playboy. But happy days are here again. The Duke Of Gloucester, a younger brother of the erstwhile King, visited with David in Paris; the two wives had a nice get-together, and there is every possibility that the two lovebirds may be permitted to do their cooling right in Buckingham Palace—just on Christmas day. Well—I'm glad that matter is settled. Now—I can start in again—to forget about David Winston Simpson. So long. DAVE SCHEIDT Leader Classified

"Yes." She was annoyed. It was no part of her intention to tell anything of her own life as Jocelyn Harlowe to this young man.

"Aren't there some very queer sort of people here tonight?" asked Lynda.

"Are there? I hadn't noticed it."

"Look now, that big man with a white scar; dancing with the woman in—shoulder straps."

"In and out of 'em, eh? Well, yes, you might perhaps call him queer. He's Toni Padrona. Just out."

"Hullo!" said Jock. "Go easy. If Mr. Padrona heard you he might resent it."

He gave her a queer long glance and took her back to the table silently. He called for his check. Lynda was distressed.

"I haven't asked you — you've told me nothing about Nick."

"Maybe you'd better leave it to him. He would like to tell you himself perhaps. It seems a queer question but I gather you are a queer family—how long have you known your father?"

"Only since one night a few weeks ago."

"You live here in New York alone?"

"No. With my mother."

Jock's eyes opened. "You mean Nick's got a wife here in New York?"

"They have been divorced for very long. I do not know their history."

"Nor do I, Miss Sandal, believe me. I did not even know his wife was living nor, until I met you there that night, that he had any child."

"You won't dance just once more?"

Lynda was tempted. "If you will promise not to let me touch that man."

"Not touch the jailbird, eh?"

SPECIALISTS TO MAKE SURVEY AT SCHOOLS

made possible through the help of the Parent Teachers Association, which assumed half the cost of the new instrument. Several weeks ago, Mr. Marlow, representing the educational division of the American Optical company, demonstrated both the Metronoscope and Ophthalmograph to the teachers and the committee from the P. T. A.

Simultaneously with the purchase of the Metronoscope, Dr. Ira E. Woods, ordered the Ophthalmograph. Dr. Woods intends to use his instrument to check up on the progress of the Metronoscope users at the school. J. Y. Taylor, of Brownwood, a brother of Earle Taylor, who perfected both instruments, will arrive in Littlefield this morning, and supervise the first survey which will be conducted by the American Optical company. This survey will consist in making individual Ophthalmograph films of each of the pupils in the lower grades. These films photograph the eye movements of the subject while reading.

Subsequent graphs (which will be made later under the supervision of Dr. Woods) will show precisely the improvement and correction effected. These surveys are very costly and most important. However the American Optical company has agreed to conduct them without extra charges. This concession was secured by David Schein of the Leader and Dr. Ira E. Woods.

The Lamb County Leader, through Mr. Schein, was responsible for the interest which resulted in this valuable installation and for the securing of this free examination.

A. & M. COLLEGE OFFICIALS WILL ADDRESS GROUP

Farmers, Ginners And Business Men Are Invited To Attend

Mr. E. A. Miller and Mr. F. E. Lichte of the A. and M. College Extension Service will talk to farmers and ginners of Lamb County in a meeting at the Majestic Theatre Amherst, Sat., Nov. 19 at 10 a. m., according to Donald Turner, County Agent. They will discuss cotton improvement and better ginning.

Farmers over the entire state are much concerned over the improvement of the quality of cotton they grow. Cotton improvement can best be accomplished by growers of a community joining together, selecting one good variety and keeping the seed pure through the cooperation of the ginner. Members of such community groups are receiving from $5.00 to $10.00 more for their cotton than are farmers in unorganized communities who pay no attention to cotton quality improvement.

Farmers, ginners, and business men are urged to attend the meeting at Amherst Saturday.

DECEMBER 15 IS THE DEADLINE ON WHEAT ACREAGE

Compliance May Be Made By Seeding Barley, Rye Or Peas

Farmers who have seeded wheat in excess of their allotment have until December 15th to bring their farms in compliance, according to a letter received by the Lamb County Committee from E. N. Holmgren. This may be done by seeding barley, rye or Austrian winter peas or a mixture with such wheat, or by bringing their planted acreage within their allotment by disposing of such excess acreage prior to December 15th.

Wheat acreage will be measured this fall according to the letter.

FIRE DESTROYS 21 BALES COTTON AT CO-OP GIN

Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed twenty-one bales of cotton on the yard at the Farmers Co-Op gin Monday morning. The fire was first seen at 4:15. Manager, Dewey Walker reported a total loss of approximately $900 to $1000, and the bales were partly covered with insurance.

Mr. Walker stated that the gin company was fortunate that no more bales burned, as there were 700 or 800 bales on the yard. Only eight of the bales destroyed, had been placed in the government loan, Mr. Walker stated.

WILDCATS WIN OVER LEVELLAND HERE ARMISTICE DAY; 20 TO 12

The Littlefield Wildcats' record for this season will not be a total blank, because of their skinning those Levelland Lobos 20 to 12 on Seely Field Armistice Day. Having suffered two losses, two weeks in succession from Ralls and Olton, the Wildcats rolled majestically along the line Friday, before the largest group of football fans, seen in the stadium, this year.

At the beginning of the quarter, the ball changed teams several times, before it was gained the third time by Littlefield on the 25 yard line, where one fumble caused a 10 yard set-back, and another fumble set Littlefield back to the 5 yard line. Elms then tried a field kick, only to be blocked and then to be carried over by Levelland for the first touchdown.

ARMISTICE DAY BREAKFAST STAGED BY LEGIONNAIRES

Forty ex-service men enjoyed the breakfast early Friday morning, starting the Armistice Day celebrations in Littlefield. The crowd started gathering at 2:30, and by 4:00 o'clock the coffee pot was brewing, the eggs were cooked and the bacon fried.

Otto Jones, local Post Commander for the American Legion, presided and after the breakfast, talks were made by Rev. Marvin B. Norwood, Legion Chaplain; O. K. Woodall, County Adjutant; J. S. Hill-hard, and Arbie Joplin and others.

The Legion ceremony was held, and the Legion flag and the United States flag were unfurled.

The ex-service men had a quiet Armistice this year, and the attempt made to shoot the anvils even failed, and as there was no noise in Littlefield up at 4:00 o'clock in the morning, the citizens missed the shooting of the powder that didn't make any noise.
