A community meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 10 in the Muleshoe State Bank meeting room.

Nancy Kidd, CofC manager said, "We are still signing events into the July 4th activities. We may run out of day, that that would be okay."

"We have lots of interest. The Lee Horsley family will surely be a highlight for the occasion. Parade forms are coming in and this is encouraging."

"If you have anything you would like to add to the day, be sure to be at the meeting or call the Chamber of Commerce office. Very few things would we turn down," she added, "we have already started the plans for Mule Days, so don't stay away because you think we are only doing July 4th."

"We need more food and drink booths for both days. It's a good way to make a 'Buck' or two for your organization. This is a way to get involved in YOUR community," she concluded.

Muleshoe State Bank Continuing Program

For the past several years, the Muleshoe State Bank has been cooperating with Muleshoe High School in a supplementary education program designed to meet a need in the curriculum of high schools throughout the United States. It was formulated because it was found that many students graduate from high school without knowing how to properly write a check or even how a simple bank transaction is completed.

The "Banking Is" program is to be presented again this year to the students at Muleshoe High School. Students will gain firsthand experience with the basic banking activities they will use throughout their lives. Bob Finney, president, and Kay Mardis, cashier, of Muleshoe State Bank will participate in the program with the students, by giving personal experiences and information.

Muleshoe State Bank will provide the educational materials and film-strip for the "Banking Is" program. The program features an updated teaching method utilizing an audio-visual introductory approach, and a learn-by-doing workbook that each student retains after classroom study. Through this method, the booklets have an average exposure to four people: one in the

'Star' FFA Honors

"To use your potential, you never give up," said Ellen Miller, to members of the Muleshoe FFA and their special guests Thursday night. "You are the eagle, you belong to the sky, not the earth," she added.

Ellen Miller is an ambassador of agriculture from Texas Tech University and spoke to the group at the FFA banquet in the Muleshoe High School cafeteria.

The Lufkin native referred to the fact that God made the world in seven days, and figured that man is very curious and with the potential there, would develop that potential.

The speaker said man is also very intelligent and God has hidden every possibility we need in our hearts, reminding, "Everybody has the potential to succeed."

She challenged the FFA members to set their goals and decide what each wants to be, then work toward that goal.

"Just decide to succeed, and work toward your potential. Figure that you have to try one more time because that one more time just might be what you need."

In the awards presentation, Outstanding Freshman Greenhand award went to Steven Wauson.

Johnny Noble received the Outstanding State Farmer Award and for Overall Achievement the Kenny Henderson Memorial Award was presented Jody Gibbins.

Johnny Noble also received the FFA Broadcast Award and Ag Booster President Daryl Embry presented the scholarship award to Darryl McCamish.

Receiving an award and a $25 check was Brian Wilhite, for being the Outstanding Greenhand Hustler.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Noble accepted the Star Farmer Award which was presented their son, Johnny Noble.

Miss Williams, Wilhelm United In Marriage

Miss Suzanne Williams became the bride of Ken Wilhelm in a candlelight ceremony Feb. 24 at 6 p.m. in the Primitive Baptist Church. Elder K.B. Martin and Elder Don Martin read the double ring vows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Williams of Muleshoe and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilhelm of Friona.

Vows were exchanged before two spiral brass candelabras on either side of a large arch brass candelabra with greenery and large dusty rose bows. Two large and two small green palm trees in brass planters were placed between the candelabras. The unity candle was white, accented with tiny dusty rose rosebuds and was placed on a brass stand with the mothers candles of dusty rose on each side. They were accented with greenery and dusty rose bow.

The pews were marked with a large dusty rose bow and ribbons.

Gary and Alba Wilcox of Lazbuddie sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "My Only Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal length gown of white satin and chiffon. The bodice of the gown was accented with Venetian lace appliques and featured a wedding band neckline of Venetian lace, and a yoke of English embroidered net. The satin leg-o-mutton sleeves were detailed with appliques of Venetian lace. The natural waistline fell into a full skirt of white chiffon and continued into a cathedral length train. The gown was finished with a row of satin covered buttons down the back. The bride wore a hat featuring an up swept brim accented with seedpearls, lace and white flowers and an attached two layer fingertip veil.

In keeping with tradition, the bride carried a handkerchief with handmade lace for something old. The handkerchief was given to the bride by the groom's mother. It was presented to the groom's mother before her wedding. Something new was her gown and hat, something borrowed was her mother's diamond earrings, and something blue was her garter.

In each shoe, the bride wore a penny minted in the year of their birth.

Barbie Jackson of Tucson, AZ served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marsha Williams of Odessa, sister of the bride, Kim Williams of Lubbock, sister of the bride, and Trina Webb of Canyon.

They wore floor length princess style gowns of dusty rose satin featuring a large puff sleeves with a dropped waist. They carried a nosegay bouquet in shades of dusty rose and white roses and carnations, lace and pearl ribbon, seed pearls, dusty rose and white ribbon.

Miss Leslie Cargile of Lariat served as flower girl and was dressed identical to the other attendants.

The flower girl carried a dusty rose satin covered basket with ribbons and dropped dusty rose and white satin rose buds.

Nathan Wilhelm of Hereford, cousin of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Michael Wilhelm of Friona, brother of the groom, Randy Smith of Muleshoe, and Charles Martin, cousin of the bride, of Muleshoe.

Jon Keith Turner of Muleshoe served as ring bearer. Ushers were Jack Lennon and Dwayne Dale, both of Muleshoe, and Rick Dale of Lazbuddie. Candlelighters were Rick Dale of Lazbuddie and Dwayne Dale of Muleshoe.

The groom wore a solid white tuxedo with cummerbund, tie and tails. Groomsmen and ushers were attired in solid black tuxedos with dusty rose cummerbund and tie with white shirts. The ring bearer was attired the same as the other attendants.

The ringbearer carried a white satin, heart shaped pillow with lace ruffle and one large white satin rose in the middle, accented with small dusty rose satin rosebuds, made by the mother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the dining room of the church. Terrie Smith, cousin of the bride, Wanda Wilhelm, sister of the groom, and LeAnne Bass served at both the bride and groom's tables.

The bride's bouquet served as the centerpiece for the bride's table. The four tiered wedding cake was topped with a porcellien bride and groom cake topper accented with pink netting and dusty rose rosebuds.

The wedding cake, heart shaped mints, nuts and rose colored punch were served from crystal appointments.

The groom's table featured silver trays of pineapple chunks, apple slices, grapes, sausage balls, ham and cheese rolls, all served with snack crackers, prepared by the groom's mother.

Both tables were covered with dusty rose satin under white lace tablecloths accented with bows at each corner of the table.

Following a wedding trip to Red River, N.M., the couple are making their home in Muleshoe.

The bride is a 1985, graduate of Muleshoe High School. Wilhelm is a 1982, graduate of Friona High School and a 1984, graduate of TSTI in Amarillo.

She says to bring your own seats. And, someone may have something cool to drink.

"Many adults learned banking by trial and error; but, in today's world of advancing technology, this is no longer a satisfactory solution. For instance," he added, "today check writing is as much a part of life as driving is. Ninety percent of all financial transactions are made by check and the American public will write more than 37 billion checks this year."

"Yet, in spite of this, statistics show that less than 85 percent of the graduating seniors know how to write a check properly. So, it is easy to see that check writing is an activity that students should understand if they are to take their places in the financial community."

"We hope our sponsorship of this program will help give students a more thorough and systematic understanding of these basic banking activities the new services that are available, and help them in the management of their personal affairs."

"We strongly believe that the more financially secure students become through knowledge and practice of good banking, the said. Townsend said, "Hospital Week is a time to recognize people who are special to hospitals: patients and their families, doctors, nurses, hospital employees, volunteers, board members and benefactors. The hospital's mission can be accomplished only by a team approach. All team members play a vital role in achieving the overall goal of providing the patient with quality health care services."

Texas Hospital Week is celebrated in conjunction with National Hospital Week, which originated in 1921. Matthew A. Foley, a hospital magazine editor, selected May 12, the birthday of Florence Nightingale, as a special day for hospitals "so that the community may know its hospital." In 1924 the American Hospital Association assumed sponsorship of National Hospital Day and expanded the celebration to National Hospital Week in 1953.

Texas Hospital Week is sponsored by the Texas Hospital Association (THA), the Austin-based trade association for hospitals. THA represents more than 700 institutional and 3,600 personal members.

Texas Senate Week In Review

The focus of public school finance reform shifts this week (April 16-20) to a 10-member joint panel charged with resolving the differences between the $1.3 billion Senate bill and the $500 million House measure.

The conference committee, composed of five Senate members and five House members, began negotiations last week after the Senate declined to accept the more-modest spending plan passed by the House last Monday.

Committee work was to resume Monday (April 16) and continue through much of the week. Meanwhile, the House Appropriations Committee will continue this week to scour the state budget for funds that can be shifted to finance the compromise school spending plan.

A combination of fee increases and fund shuffling is expected to emerge as the most workable plan for financing the measure although a tax bill has not been ruled out. Lawmakers are reluctant to propose a tax bill, however, in view of Gov. Bill Clements' opposition to raising taxes for schools.

The Legislature is operating under a May 1 Supreme Court deadline to equalize funding between rich and poor school districts or face a cutoff of education dollars.

The court was asked last week by legislators to extend the deadline to August 1 to prevent the possible school closings, but by week's end, no response to that request had been received.

Significant differences separate the two proposed school funding bills. The cost of the House bill increased from $450 million to just over $500 million due to amendments added when the bill passed last week.

The Senate bill, calling for $1.3 billion in 1990-91 spending, establishes specific goals for public education, student achievement and performance, while the House measure leaves that responsibility with the State Board of Education.

The House bill calls for the appointment by the Governor of the commissioner of education. The Senate version would leave the commissioner's appointment to the state board. Both versions would give more authority to the commissioner, however.

The Senate bill would make it state policy to include programs for disadvantaged three-year-olds, while the House measure leaves that provision as an optional authority for the state board.

The Senate bill also allots $9 million to establish an alcohol and drug abuse intervention program at each public school. The House bill does not address that issue.

Serving on the school finance conference committee from the Senate are Senators Carl Parker, Gonzalo Barrientos, Cyndi Krier, John Montford and Kent Caperton.

House members on the panel are Representatives Ernestine Glossbrenner, Jim Rudd, Kent Grusendorf, Paul Colbert and Hugo Berlanga.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - The eyes of Texas, particularly the innocent pupils in public schools, focused on the Capitol this week where Republican Gov. Bill Clements is engaged in a chin-to-chin faceoff with majority Democrats on the Texas Supreme Court.

Will schoolchildren be allowed to finish the few days left in the school year, or will they be unnecessary hostages of Texas political power players?

Clements' vow to veto a new sales tax and school finance plan ran smack afoul of Democrats on the High Court, who warned public schools would close this week.

Justice Oscar Mauzy, a former state senator who chaired many education reforms, said the Legislature had "run out of soap" and that school fundings would stop Tuesday. No extensions.

Other Strategies

If Mauzy and Clements were poised in the street like two gunfighters last week, several strategies to avoid the fight hung in the balance:

■ The House held out slim hope of mustering the two-thirds needed to override the veto.

■ The Senate was to consider a House-approved plan to allow prepayment of state funds to school districts for the May and summer months. Slim hope here, too.

■ Those options failing, State District Judge Scott McCown could grant an extension before the issue reached the Supreme Court.

■ Attorney General Jim Mattox' office would seek to stop schools from closing.

■ The Legislature was set to convene immediately in another special session to equalize school finance.

Meanwhile, the poor school districts' coalition was expected to appeal any extension to the Supreme Court, where Mauzy sits.

Judicial Elections

Ironically, the Mauzy-Clements clash over school finance will likely be replayed when the Legislature attempts court-ordered reform of the Texas system for selecting judges.

Clements is an ardent foe of federal judges who force state legislatures to spend great sums of tax dollars, which results in new taxes.

Clements seeks a plan whereby Texas judges would first be appointed from a list compiled by top jurists and then seek additional terms at the ballot box.

Unabashed Liberal

Mauzy, by the way, is running for chief justice against Republican Tom Phillips, who was first appointed by Clements.

In the Senate, Mauzy was an unabashed liberal who shirked not from a fight.

Today, as he runs for election by virtually promising to close public schools some two weeks before semester's end, his lion heart has not deserted him, though some wonder if his reason has.

"I have every reason to believe the trial court (McCown) will handle it in an expeditious way," Mauzy said, but he noted an extension could be appealed to the Supreme Court.

There, six Democrats outnumber three Republicans.

Mauzy expected the Senate to derail the pre-payment bill and ripped Clements for lack of leadership.

Mauzy Signals Mattox

Mauzy also signaled, nay, derided, Mattox for trying to seek an extension and allow schools to remain open.

"I can't believe the attorney general can go in there (McCown's courtroom) with a straight face and make that argument" (for extension).

In the face of his statements, what other conclusions can voters draw except that Mauzy wanted to close schools to force new taxes for public school revenues?

State Bribery Pledge

Texas Secretary of State George Bayoud is reminding elected and appointed officials that before taking the oath of office, they must sign and file with him a statement that they had not engaged in bribery.

Falsely praising a person is lying.

-St. Augustine.

IRS Designate 'Contractors'

Withholding income taxes for agricultural employees is mandatory, but farmers and ranchers should be cautious before they claim their workers as "independent contractors," according to Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

If producers do claim farm or ranch laborers as "independent contractors," the IRS could try to reclassify them as "employees" and charge the producer for unpaid employment taxes. Thus, it is useful to know the criteria the IRS uses to make the distinction between "employee" and "independent contractor."

Hayenga offers several tests that are used to tell if a farmer or rancher is an employer. If the farmer/rancher instructs the worker when, where and how the work is to be performed, or trains the worker for the job, then the producer is probably an employer.

Also, if the producer pays the worker by the hour, week or month, and the worker cannot delegate tasks or hire others to do the work, then the worker is considered an employee.

If the worker is furnished equipment or tools, is employed full time and doesn't work for others, the worker is an employee.

But if the employer has the right to control only the result of the work, not the way the work is done, and the worker is free to take jobs from other businesses, then the worker is probably an independent contractor.

If workers do not meet the criteria to show they are independents, they may still be classified as independent contractors if it can be demonstrated that it is a long-standing custom within a particular industry to hire independent contractors.

If the situation involving workers is still questionable, Hayenga suggests that producers should seek the help of a competent tax lawyer or certified public accountant (CPA) and ask to discuss a situation as compared to Revenue Ruling 87-41 and Circular 530.

MICROWAVE TIPS

Is microwaving faster in paper dishes?

The makers claim they are. They say no heat is lost warming up the glass or plastic dish if one uses paper. They, like microwave casserole dishes, can go straight from freezer to microwave.

But they can't be reused, since the coating washes off in cooking or washing. However, they are cheap in supermarket multiple packages. They save time spent on dish-washing, are part of today's disposable living style.

Sixteen Kiwanians-2 honorary Kiwanians-4 guest and Sweetheart Amy Montgomery were present this morning April 4, at the Old Corral Cafe. Honorary members were Lacy Morris with one leg in a cast and one arm in a brace-Lacy you are falling apart. What are you going to do when you get as old as me? Robbie Clapp was also present. Our guests were Andy Dominguez-son of Julian and Danny Dickerson, Chris Lopez-both members of the City of Muleshoe Police Department and County Commissioner Don Seals. We welcome all of our guests, honorary members and sweetheart Amy Montgomery. President Jim Lutz called the meeting to order. Don Clapp led the club in the pledge to the flag and the invocation was given by Lyndon Huckaby. Julian Dominguez gave the friendship coin to Scott Churchman. Last week I reported that the friendship coin was given to Hugh Young instead of to Julian Dominguez. I can't believe I made a mistake!! Sorry.

Team #1 was in charge of the program and Kieth Turner showed a video, furnished by Lyndon Huckaby, about Quail hunting behind good bird dogs. The video showed about the training of dogs to point and retrieve birds. They teach them to point and stand still with the tail pointed at 10:00 o'clock. They would stand still while the hunter walked past and flushed the bird and shot. At the command of whop-dead- the dogs would retrieve the dead bird and bring and stand up on the hunter and at the command of Give, would give the bird to the hunter. When the first would point, the other dogs would honor the first dogs point and would also come to point. The bush was so thick, that sometimes the hunter would really have to kick the bird out. It is wonderful to watch animals work that are trained. It is like watching an athlete who has trained, it is beautiful. Keith and Huck, that was a good program. Huck, I wish I had said more so I could take it all back since yours truly will be gone to Denver, to help spoil

Chemical Waste Disposal Needs Care

Disposal of unused crop and livestock protection chemicals is often expensive and time consuming.

In addition to the expense incurred in the purchase of product that is not used, there are costs associated with transportation to a disposal site and disposal. Disposal at an authorized site includes the completion of a manifest, a permanent record of the disposal. Estimates of the cost of disposal range into the hundreds of dollars for a 5-gallon container of liquid product.

Storing unused crop and livestock protection chemicals on the farm for extended periods of time may create problems. A product may deteriorate over time, leading to poor results when the product is used later. A product may become obsolete as a result of regulatory actions, or market- or pest-related developments. Containers may deteriorate and leak, leading to such severe consequences as illness and injury.

Contamination of water, soil, the storage area and livestock feeds or commodities also may result. Time and effort will be required to clean up the spilled material.

Clearly it makes good sense economically and environmentally to avoid the accumulation of unused crop and livestock protection chemicals. Here are some suggestions for minimizing this problem:

- Carefully plan farm chemical needs to the extent possible, purchasing only the amount required for one growing season. Take the time to calculate exactly your anticipated chemical needs.

- Triple-rinse empty containers, returning the rinsate to the spray tank prior to completing the mixing and loading operation.

According to the National Agricultural Chemicals Association, an average of two to four ounces of product may be left in a container during normal emptying. If a product costs $20 per gallon, four ounces left in a container has a value of 60 cents per gallon container.

It takes only a few minutes or less to properly rinse a container; with pressure rinsing it takes less than one minute. At that rate, your time is worth $36 per hour for the time it takes to rinse the containers. Sixty dollars worth of $20-per-gallon product is wasted in 100 unrinsed 1-gallon containers. Product remaining in unrinsed containers represents a hazard and may cause environmental problems.

- In spite of your best efforts product carry-over from one season to another may be unavoidable. Use any carried-over products first during the next season of use. This prevents unused products from accumulating from season to season.

- Be alert to the opportunity to employ leftover products for other uses listed on the product label.

Estate Tax Needs Study

Texas farmers and ranchers interested in avoiding high estate taxes can find help at seminars offered in May by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The two-day seminars are designed to help producers learn how to reduce taxable estates and learn new methods for passing their operation to the next generation without tax and administrative burdens.

"Of major importance is how every farm estate will be affected after the recent estate tax law changes," said Dr. Wayne Hayenga, Extension Service economist. "The best tax planning of the past may be the worst under the new law."

The locations and dates of the seminars are San Angelo, May 8-9; Waco, May 15-16; and Harlingen, May 22-23.

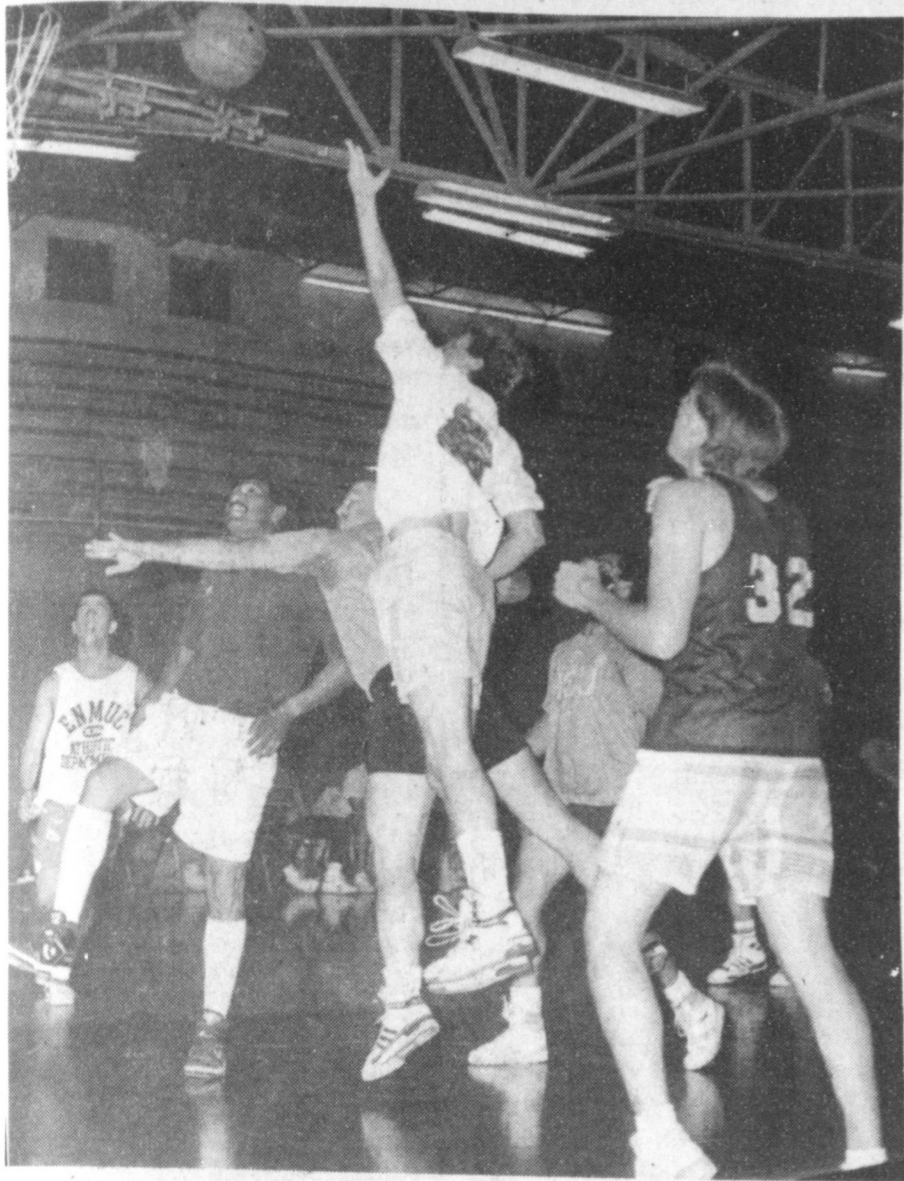

Each seminar will present estate planning devices in depth, including such topics as wills, by-pass trusts, gifts, disclaimers and property titles.

Relating estate plans to income tax savings can be advantageous. In fact, sometimes income tax savings can even be greater than estate tax savings for people with commercial farms and ranches.

One part of the program will discuss treating beneficiaries fairly. This segment could be most valuable in cases where not all heirs want to continue farming.

Another discussion will center on estate planning tools and will deal with corporations, partnerships and selling part of the business to heirs.

Estate tax rules for agriculture will headline the second day of the program.

TRYING FOR TWO MORE--A KMUL DJ tries for two more points in an effort to further their score against the Muleshoe Coaches in a benefit game for the Mule-Plex Production Co. The benefit game was a success with a good crowd attending it. It was a long hard fought game until the very end with the coaches coming out on top by a score of 62-61. (Journal Photo)

Like The Grass

The Psalmist wrote long ago that the life of man is like a dream, like grass which is renewed in the morning in the morning it flourishes and is renewed; in the evening it fades and withers.

As any really honest person must do, the psalmist was confessing that, so far as one's earthly vision is concerned, the life of man has no real meaning. "Our years come to an end like a sigh," they are; they vanish, and they are no more.

One must look somewhere else other than within this natural universe to find any secure source of meaning for his life. For every part of the universe is like man himself; it too passes away. The answer of the Psalmist remains the only answer and that is, to look to the Power which calls man and his world into existence and out of it.

Let the favor of the Lord our God be upon us, and... the work of our hands establish thou it.
