PLAYING WITH YOUR MONEY

In commenting on the growth of government bureaus and the tendency of office-holders to assume a paternalistic attitude toward the taxpayer, Frank D. Fitzgerald, Governor of Michigan, said, in recounting his experience in seeking a share of Federal relief funds to aid in building an addition to the largest state hospital in Michigan:

"A young official from Washington recently sat in my office and told me the state would have to conform to certain rules and regulations concerning a public project. 'Or else,' he said, 'we won't be able to grant you any of OUR money.' 'Our money' is what he said. Well, I told that young man he better go back to Washington and find out whose money he was talking about. In that instance, he was talking about money belonging to the people of Michigan, money the people of Michigan were rightfully entitled to use for the benefit of their state.

"That's the attitude which I deplore—this tendency to count the taxpayer out of the game immediately after he has thrown his chips into the pot.

"It's the taxpayer's fault in a way. He has permitted government bureaus and government services to pile up on one another until there's no way of making head or tail out of the tangle. When the structure of government is stripped down to the its natural size again, when its fancy trimmings and unnecessary annexes have been removed, the taxpayer is going to regain sight of his dollars—not until then. Once he gets a glimpse of them, he's likely to take a greater interest in the manner in which they are handled."

Demonstrations In Contouring Held

Two demonstrations on contouring were held during the past few days by the County Agent department, it was announced.

A demonstration was held on the W. H. Cunningham farm, three miles southwest of Littlefield, Friday and on the A. R. Pool farm, three miles northeast of Fieldton Monday of this week.

Donald Turner, county agent, announced that they were receiving many requests for contouring and terracing work over the county and since it will be impossible to meet each individual request the farmer living in the same locality are requested to arrange for a whole day of this work and have it in the form of a demonstration.

"All farmers sufficiently interested can attend the demonstration which will be conducted by the agents," Mr. Turner declared, and said that at these demonstrations every one will have a chance to learn how to operate the instrument and target. After learning this procedure it will be possible for these men to contour their own farm."

Mr. Turner, also announced that one of the county agents will be glad to help any group of farmers at any time if they would let the agents know a few days ahead.

ROCKY FORD

Sunday school and church services were well attended Sunday. Bro. Booth preached for us both morning and evening.

D. J. Dunlap and family were called to Slaton the first of last week to the bedside of Mrs. Opal Leggett, who had undergone an emergency major operation. They report her getting along nicely now.

Mrs. Reno Rochelle had quite a few intermediate boys as her guests for lunch Sunday noon.

Mrs. Garland Yandell is in the school room at Hart Camp for a while, substituting for Mrs. Green.

The biggest thing that has happened in quite a while took place Sunday in the J. A. Roberson home. His wife and children planned for him a surprise birthday dinner for his fifty-third birthday. They had three large tables arranged end to end out in the yard and each of them were groaning under the weight of the burden on them. And such a repast as only those who are experts in the culinary art could arrange everything that the appetite of thoroughly healthy people could wish for or imagine was there in profusion. All six children of Mr. Roberson were present. They were: W. H. Roberson and family of Hale Center; Herbert, Ernest and Dean of Amherst, together with their families; L. J. and Winnie, yet under the home roof. Other relatives present were: Bryan Munday and family, Mrs. M. E. England and son Wayne of Plainview. Local friends present were: Brown Guess, Miss Annie Guess, Claude Rogers, and wife, C. F. Booth and family, L. L. Dunn and family. Others calling in the afternoon were E. F. Roberson and family and Miss Maxine Northcut of Earth. Everyone enjoyed a nice day and went away wishing Mr. Roberson many more such happy occasions.

Fuel Test Given Pontiac Automobiles

Economy of a 1936 Pontiac master six sedan was demonstrated recently in a series of test runs over a measured three miles concrete track. Performances up to 24 miles per gallon of gasoline were recorded according to C. P. Simpson, general sales manager of the company.

Tests were run and gasoline consumption recorded at 20, 40, 50, 60 and 70 miles per hour, the best average being 24 miles per gallon. The average for all speeds from 20 to 70 was 17.7 miles per gallon.

Chevrolet Adds New Car To Line

A new type vehicle combining passenger car appearance with the utility of the small commercial car has been added by Chevrolet Motor company to its Standard line. It is called the coupe pickup, because it consists of a regular Standard coupe and a pickup body, which is built in the rear compartment of the passenger body, extending but a short distance beyond the sweeping curves of the rear deck.

The combination offers complete passenger car comfort and smart appearance with the utility of the ordinary commercial pickup body. It is designed especially for delivery service and for use by electricians, plumbers, contractors, oil field workers, and others who haul compact loads.

The load space of the box is 60 inches long by 41-16 inches wide, inside. The opening under the rear deck is 16-14 inches deep, which permits the loading of large packages well forward on the platform. When the tail gate is lowered flush with the floor, the platform is 71 inches long.

To support the pickup load adequately, sedan chassis springs are used in the rear instead of the lighter coupe springs.

nial. The book is designed to assist teachers in preparing school and community programs planned for Centennial activities. The 28 songs contained in it were chosen after conferring with music supervisors in Texas schools. The collection is representative not only the songs of and about Texas but also of those songs of the nation and the south which are known to Texans.

In commenting on the newspaper as an advertising medium, the letter read in part: "We are, as you well know, firm believers in newspaper advertising. Other media are important, but the newspaper is the final vital link between the producer and the consumer that must be, in the very nature of things, an essential part of any well balanced advertising program."

Littlefield Girl Cast In Play At Baylor University

BELTON (Special)—Concluding their week's observance of National Drama week, Mary Mardin-Baylor presented the Greek tragedy, "Antigone," by Sophocles. This was the fifth production of the week, and in many ways the most outstanding.

Miss Dalene Gray, of Littlefield, was cast in this play, being a part of the chorus, which always had a prominent part in Greek drama.

"Antigone" is one of the more colorful of the tragic dramas of the early Greek literature. With its attractive costuming, good lighting effects, and excellent staging, it was in many ways the most interesting of the week's productions. Those who participate in speech productions of this nature do it as an objective phase of their class work. The chorus, dressed in white, added much to the beauty of this drama.

Mrs. Velma White was appointed chairman of the finance committee. Plans for an exhibit at the meat show at Lubbock were discussed and at 2:30 we went into a point meeting with the Farm Family organization to discuss the "Long Time Farm Plan."

Business was discussed concerning the Young People's rally which is to be held here on May 31, and the program was planned for the occasion.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games, after which a lunch of sandwiches, cake, and coffee was served by Mrs. Jim Timian, Miss Christine Micklink, and Miss Martha Kelm.

EIGHTH INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS — A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining — and tragic — Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls — These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship — and his soul—NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Peter squeezed her arm, then wandered off to look at the carving in the temple, Jenny stood in contemplation before the Emerald Buddha. She stared at him until she was half-hypnotized. Angela came walking up to her.
 "I think, in a way, that this is one of the best of the Buddhas," she remarked.

"It goes so well with the bright gincerackery of Bangkok," said Jenny. "Isn't it an amusing place?"
 "I've always thought it the most exotic place on earth. Have you seen the white elephants?"
 "My husband and I have just been looking at them."
 "Oh, is he about?"
 "He was, a minute ago."
 Jenny looked around, but there was no sign of Peter. "He's always wandering off," she explained. "He's a born traveler, but he forgets that he has me on his hands at times."
 They were walking through the courtyard now, Jenny turning her head from side to side. "I'm looking for Peter," she said. "It would be so easy to lose a husband among the wats of Bangkok."
 "Rather! All those winding stairways and giant devas. He's probably hidden behind a deva!"
 "Should we leave the courtyard and look somewhere else? But he may come back, expecting to find me here."
 "You stay where you are and I shall stroll outside. He may have gone towards the gate."
 Jenny stood in the middle of the courtyard, leaning on her parasol. Everyone else was trooping out. They were all on their way to the Phya Thai Palace for luncheon. Peter could not fail to see her, standing there so conspicuously in the center of the courtyard. It must be fully half an hour since he had looked at his watch and said it was twelve o'clock. Had something happened to Peter? But how ridiculous to think that a competent person like Peter should come to harm.

"I shall go through these buildings and you take the others. Angela, will you please?" said Jenny, indicating the two to the left. "I'm getting frightfully nervous."
 "Don't, my dear. There's nothing to worry about at all. Your husband knows his way about. I think you should stay in the courtyard until he comes and finds you."
 Jenny ignored her warning and hurried across the cobbles on feet that were now winged with alarm. It was most disquieting. She raced from building to building. When she rejoined Angela she was panting, and her eyes were wide with fright.
 "Jenny, my dear," said Angela, "the thing for you to do is to come back to the hotel with me. Nothing is to be gained by staying here."
 Jenny was at last persuaded to leave the palace. She was drooping now. A thought flashed like a thunderbolt through Jenny's mind. The words sprang to her lips before she could check them: "Have you seen Mrs. Langford about?"
 "No," said Angela. "I'm sure she didn't come with us today. Johnny was looking for her from end to end of the train, and is now in a huff because he couldn't find her."
 Jenny's face grew smooth again and her spirits rose. Of course, Peter was sure to be somewhere about.
 The hotel was really an old palace, with spacious salons like ball-rooms, and bedrooms the size of halls. There was no sign of Peter in the lounge. He had not been heard of at the desk, nor was he in the bar, where Macduff was busy with the Phya Thai cocktail. Her dismay came back, swooping down on her with fresh certainty. Angela made some discreet enquiries, but none of the cruise men had caught a glimpse of Peter. Perhaps his launch was still on the river, or he had wandered off to explore another part of the town.
 The afternoon wore on in a blaze of overpowering heat. Angela stayed with Jenny, who sat like a shadow in the great hall of the hotel. Nothing seemed to rouse her. At tea-time one of the cruise men came bustling up to tell her that Peter had taken a train back to the boat shortly after noon.
 "I came up on a later train and happened to run into him at the station," he said. "When I got here they told me you were looking for him."
 "Oh yes! Thanks so much." Jenny's voice was automatic. "Clare, of course!" She thought, and saw the same idea reflected on Angela's face. The older woman put out an arm and staided her for a minute. Let's have our tea," she said. "What a relief to know that nothing has happened to him."

 "Yes, a relief," Jenny responded in the tones of a parrot.
 "I wonder when the next train goes down," Jenny speculated, sipping her tea.
 "There isn't another till we all leave at half-past ten tonight. I've enquired."
 "Heavens!" said Jenny. "How gay I shall feel until then. Marooned in Bangkok. Peter on the Marenia. What does it all mean?"
 "My dear, you're building a mountain out of a molehill." Angela's voice was soothing.
 "Angela, you know better."
 Of course she did Angela, thought with a sudden rush of pain of Lovat stealing out of their state-room after he had danced with Clare, Lovat raising his hand and waving to Clare at Cairo. She knew that Jenny had good grounds for her fears.

 "Let's walk about," Jenny said.

THE DOCTORS ARE RIGHT

Women should take only liquid laxatives

Many believe any laxative they might take only makes constipation worse. And that isn't true. Do what doctors do to relieve this condition. They use a liquid

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

laxative, and keep reducing the dose until the bowels need no help at all.
 Reduced dosage is the secret of aiding Nature in restoring regularity. You must use a little less laxative each time, and that's why your laxative should be in liquid form. A liquid dose can be regulated to the drop.
 The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that form no habit even with children. Syrup Pepsin is the nicest tasting, nicest acting laxative you ever tried.

a few facts why . . .

ELECTRIC COOKERY will continue to increase in popularity during 1936.

IT IS FAST . . . because by using little or no water and flat-bottomed utensils cooking starts quickly and foods are cooked in the steam of their natural juices. Boiling is never necessary on an electric range.

IT IS COOL . . . because there is no flame . . . and consequently, there is no wasted heat . . . because the ovens are properly insulated to honestly hold the heat.

IT IS CLEAN . . . because there is no flame, there is no smoke and soot to settle on the drapes and the walls of the kitchen . . . all ranges are porcelain inside and out and are easily kept clean.

TEXAS TEACHERS CODE OF ETHICS

To teach the children of America aright is to guarantee the happiness of the people and the successful perpetuity of our government. This important task has been entrusted to the public free school system with its thousands of teachers. Those who engage in this great service must not only be trained technically and professionally for their duties, but they must possess those qualities of heart and mind that will insure that they themselves are worthy and patriotic whose leadership will lift the level of human ideals and achievements a little higher than they found them.

Having dedicated my life to service in this vocation, I recognize that it is my duty as a teacher:

Impressive victory in famous economy run officially confirms Pontiac's superior economy

THE annual Yosemite Valley Economy Run is the year's big test of economy claims—and here is what it revealed: Under American Automobile Association supervision, the 1936 Pontiac traveled 352 miles at an average of 23.9 miles per gallon (no oil added), defeating all entrants in its class.

That settles the matter of Pontiac's thrift. Pound for pound, you can't do better. Buy a Pontiac to save. Buy it for dependability. Buy it for anything else you value most in a car. You won't be disappointed, for Pontiac asks no odds of any car at any price.

List prices at Pontiac, Mich., begin at $615 for the "6" and $730 for the "8" (subject to change without notice). Base glass standard on DeLuxe "6" and "8". Standard group of accessories extra. Offered on G.M.A.C.'s new 6% Time Payment Plan.*

Promenade—

gested, restless and brooding.
"We'll walk in the gardens."
Round and round they went, past Greek statues, terraces, and hedges, their feet crunching on the gravel paths. The Marenia passengers were dozing on the veranda or behind the coil shutters of the hotel.
"What time is it now, Angela?"
"Five o'clock."
"Let's go back to the hotel," she cried. Angela followed her patiently, ready to humor her whims. Jenny wanted to rest for a while. They took a room, and each in turn had a cooling bath. It was refreshing, and Jenny felt her courage rise. Angela took a nap, but Jenny could not close her eyes.
It seemed as if Jenny had aged five years when Angela awakened. "Forgive me for dropping off when you were so miserable," she pleaded.
"Nonsense! I'm glad you did. There's nothing you can do."
Angela studied her closely. "Let's have another bath, then we'll go down to dinner, King Prajudhipok's dancers are going to perform for us in the garden afterwards. You must come and watch them."
Jenny was listless. "If only we could get to the boat!" she thought. Jenny went round in a trance, following her companion from place to place. She went into the dining-room and remembered nothing of how it had looked or what she had eaten. Night, star-flecked and warmly perfumed, came hurrying down as they dined. Afterwards they went out to the garden, which was magical in the silvery essence of the evening.
"What an idyllic spot!" Angela exclaimed, seating herself on a marble bench and regarding the Greek columns.
"I feel as if this day is everlasting," Jenny's voice broke in on Angela's thoughts.
"We'll soon be on our way now," she slipped her arm protectively through her friend's.

An hour later Jenny stood at the roadside like one in a dream, waiting for the train to take them back to Paknam. It was slow in coming, and her pulses raced in her fever to reach the boat. But what should she do when she confronted Peter?
At last they were off, and she watched the heads of the tired passengers nodding in the yellow bubbles of light.
When they reached Paknam they still had a long distance to travel by tender. Jenny felt ill with fatigue and worry. Her head was throbbing, and her fears were like thorns piercing her flesh. Angela was a comforting presence, although she did not attempt to talk to her. The tender rode smoothly, the water slapping her sides. A breeze came whipping in from the gulf. Angela took off her hat and her silver hair flew loosely over her ears. Jenny still clutched Peter's cigarette-case in her hand.

The boat drew nearer and nearer. They could now detect the outline of her funnels looming above the lifeboats. Jenny picked out a nautical cap. It must be Dick Charlton in his white uniform. The chasm of water narrowed till they touched the sides of the Marenia. She did not know if her feet would carry her to her stateroom, or sustain her when she came face to face with Peter.
"Buck up, old dear!" said Angela. "We might as well be moving down."
Jenny caught a glimpse of a figure looking over the side of the promenade deck. The shoulder suggested Peter; the face she could not see. He might be waiting for her at the gangplank. The tender was bumping her sides against the steamer, scraping and tearing, heaving and barging off.
Angela and Jenny were caught in the outgoing rush and were among the last to leave the boat. Angela saw that the girl's face was like skimmed milk, and she caught her round the waist. Jenny drew her hat down over her eyes and stepped up the ladder, her glance darting from side to side. Dick smiled at her in passing, although she scarcely saw him. There was no sign of Peter. Of course not. He would wait for her in their stateroom.
Angela took her part-way along to her door, for Jenny's legs were wavering. It was open and on the hook. She pulled the curtain aside and gripped it again to steady herself as she saw that the room was dark. Perhaps he was in bed and asleep. She switched on the lights. The room stared at her empty and dead, and at the same moment she felt the engines throbbing their familiar tune. She got as far as Peter's bed, then fell in a dead faint on the untouched cover.

It was long before she opened her eyes, to find herself staring at the tinted lights and panelled walls. Her glance flew to the back of the door and she saw that Peter's dressing-gown was missing from its hook. "He's afraid to come near me tonight," she thought, and burst into storms of tears.
Burying her head in the pillow, she sobbed wildly and hysterically. At last, exhausted, she fell asleep and did not hear a knock on the door. Reassured by the quiet, Angela stole away, believing that it was no longer any of her concern. They were already pounding through the Gulf of Siam, the Marenia steering her course with midnight stealth on limpid waters.
Jenny slept late, a heavy, drugged slumber. When she awakened, the sun was pouring in through the open porthole, and the rose wall-lights were still on, like evening dress at breakfast-time. She looked across at the other bed and saw that it was empty. Then she remembered the events of the night before. Raising herself on her elbow, she held her head, which ached as if it had been hit with a hammer. Her glance swept around the stateroom for familiar objects, and in a second she sprang to her feet. Where were Peter's things? All of his things? She dashed in to the bathroom. His brushes, his hair tonic, his soap, his razor—every thing was gone. Dared she open his wardrobe door? She sat down on a chair and waited for strength, but it did not come. At last she staggered across the cabin and looked inside the closet. It was empty. Peter must have moved entirely to another stateroom. He must be somewhere on the boat, but hiding from her. What should she do?

Allred Pays Tribute To Signers Of Declaration Of Texas Independence

One hundred years after the Declaration of Texas Independence, March 2, 1836, the governors of three states, Texas, Tennessee, and Wisconsin paid tribute to the deeds of those freemen who made possible the commonwealth of Texas.

At Old-Washington-On-the-Brazos, Governor Allred recalled to Texans the indomitable spirit of "those men, who, on this sacred spot, subscribed this scroll of independence and literally offered their lives, their all as willing sacrifice upon the altar of Texas freedom."

"Full well did each one know the price to be paid should the venture fail," said the 32nd Governor of Texas. "There were no cowards to stand aside, doubting in an abject spirit till their State was crucified. The Texan of to day, who scans this immortal document, marvels at the simplicity of its pronouncement of eternal truths."

"Forty of the fifty-eight signers of the Declaration of Texas Independence were under forty years of age. The author, George W. Childress, was but thirty-two. They were men of surpassing intelligence, men of vision, men of virtue, men of wisdom far beyond their years."

"From such occasions as this it behooves us to take increased devotion to that cause for which these immortals gave the last full measure of devotion, to strive for a renaissance of pride in Texas ideals, traditions and institutions; to offer up prayers of thanksgiving for this our sublime ancestry and sublimer Texas heritage."

Governor Allred, accompanied by Governor Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin, joined Governor Hill McAlister of Tennessee at the dedication ceremonies in Huntsville honoring the memory of General Sam Houston, a Tennessean.

Mahon And Finnell Discuss Conservation Work In This Section

Washington, March 2.—The work of the Soil Conservation Service in the 19th Congressional District was the subject of a conference last week between Congressman George Mahon and Mr. H. H. Finnell of Amarillo, Regional Director of the Soil Conservation Service. Mr. Finnell was in Washington for meetings with other Regional Directors and Administrative officials.

Mr. Finnell outlined general phases of the work as it has been conducted so far. CCC Camps in Lamb county and in Dawson county have served as illustrative projects in the program throughout the past year. He discussed the effort which is being made to accoordinate the work of the Soil Conservation Service and the Resettlement Administration.

The Congressman expressed commendation for the fine work which has been done under Mr. Finnell's direction. He said: "I consider the conservation of our soil to be the most outstanding problem confronting our West Texas farmers. The potential value of the work which Mr. Finnell is doing is inestimable. One of the chief virtues of the new farm bill adopted by Congress last week is that it will concentrate interest in the great national problem of soil conservation. Every effort to preserve the natural wealth which lies in our soil will meet with my complete cooperation."

Carveth Wells To Explore America For Conoco Again

Carveth Wells is back on the air!

After spending nearly three years roaming U. S. scenic highways, the jungles of Panama and the high, practically unexplored mountain regions of Mexico, this international reporter and globe trotter has announced that he will conduct a new series of "exploring America" broadcasts for Continental Oil Company.

The first of his 1936 Conoco radio travelogues will go on the air Sunday, March 8, over 20 of America's largest and best known stations, says Wells. This program will deal with scenic and historical attractions of Santa Fe, Taos and other sections of Northern New Mexico.

Wells, whose wanderings have taken him to many strange corners of the earth, gained widespread popularity as a radio star during 1931, 1932 and 1933, when he conducted a series of 56 travel broadcasts for Continental and the Conoco Travel Bureau.

LESLIE HOWARD AND BETTE DAVIS COMING TO PALACE IN "THE PETRIFIED FOREST"

When Leslie Howard makes a picture, it is something the motion picture public throughout the world looks forward to seeing. But when Bette Davis, whose great work opposite Howard in "Of Human Bondage" brought her instant recognition as one of the finest actresses of the stage or screen, appears with this great actor, that is something about which to get excited.

Consequently the fact that Mr. Howard and Miss Davis are coming to the Palace Theatre Saturday mid-night, Sunday and Monday, in the Warner Bros. picture "The Petrified Forest" is real news. And the supporting cast includes such brilliant players as Genevieve Tobin, Dick Foran, Humphrey Bogart, Joseph Sawyer and Charley Grapewin.

"The Petrified Forest" will probably always be remembered as the greatest Howard-Davis vehicle. Adapted from the successful stage play by Robert Emmet Sherwood which ran all last season to packed houses on Broadway, the picture is a gripping tale of love and heroism laid in the colorful Arizona desert.

Local Legion To Meet Monday Night

The second Monday night Legion meeting of this month will be held March 9th in the American Legion Hall. This will be a business meeting and all the membership, are urged to be present.

Numerous business matters of deep concern to the local post will be presented in the meeting. Now that the intensive part of the local Legion membership drive has been concluded, and the winners and losers FETED with a supper, does not mean that there is no more to be done on getting more memberships. The same membership committee still exists and the QUOTA for Littlefield is one hundred paid up members for this year. Though we have passed the half way mark why not keep on keeping on, with renewed additions to the present roster.

Since last meeting night it is now a rule of the local post to use the initiation idea from here on out for all new members. A committee was appointed to take charge of this feature on initiation night.

The Spade Home Demonstration Club met Thursday February 27, at the home of Mrs. T. N. Tucker. There were thirty-three present.
