

Let's Get Lamb County's Scrap Rubber Into Circulation

"Let's Get Lamb county's scrap rubber—old tires of all kinds, and other rubber materials—into circulation before the week is over" is the slogan of the week, and scores of self-appointed, voluntary solicitors will campaign to move the area's huge stock of untouched, scrap rubber to market. Lamb Has 50 Tons Scrap Rubber. Lamb County must have at least 50 tons of scrap rubber lying around barns, in garages, in fence corners, in the backyard, and even the attic, doing nobody any earthly good, while official Washington is talking seriously of a gasoline rationing program because the stock of rubber in the nation's stockpile is not moving to market through regular junk channels. This is the belief of scores of close observers in the county. Rationing May Be Averted These are urged on by the quoted statement in press and radio by the president that if scrap rubber in large enough quantities can be proven to exist in the nation and if this rubber can be started to moving to stockpiles, gasoline rationing may be averted, and recap tires may be available to the public in sufficient quantities to tide over until synthetic rubber gets on the market. This week rumors became current that government agencies are going to undertake leasing buildings throughout the country in which to store tires, and that commandeering of privately-owned tires will be undertaken if the situation becomes worse. Failure on the part of the public to respond to appeals for disposal of junked tires, now owned privately by the millions of pounds, is said to have originated the idea. The president's interview in which he gave the hope that if scrap rubber starts moving to market the rationing program might be averted and re-capping supplies might even be available, loomed big in local eyes against the continued rumors of clamping down more tightly on privately-owned tires. Rationing Business Calamity Declaration of local business men is that gasoline rationing would be a business calamity of the first magnitude in this area of wide distances was echoed on every side yesterday afternoon as

Cat Fish Yard Long At Local Locker Plant

Here's a big—Big Fish Story— a true one—Bob Nichols of Sala, accompanied by his brother-in-law, T. H. Anderson of Lubbock, brought to the Littlefield Frozen Locker plant Wednesday morning a yellow catfish one yard and three inches in length, and weighing 30 pounds, caught in Buchanan Lake, between Lampasas and Llano Monday. Mr. Anderson caught this giant fish on a trow line. According to John Standifer, manager of the Locker plant, "this is the largest and best fish the locker plant has ever handled. A representative of the Leader office had the pleasure and privilege of viewing this fish just as it arrived at the plant Wednesday. Mr. Anderson and Mr. Nichols spent from Friday until Tuesday fishing, and report a nice catch all around.

More Funds Needed To Meet USO Quota

A plea for more funds for the USO is being issued this week by Wade Potter, County Chairman. His fellow workers, for they are short about $300 or $400 on the quota for Littlefield. The two teams which are at work in Littlefield have collected between $1,150 and $1,200 which is far short of the quota of $1,526.80. The Nimrod team, headed by C. O. Stone, reports that it has collected a total of $798.75 in cash, and $22.50 in bonds. No official report is to be made from the McArthur team, but it is estimated that they have collected around $350. Attention has turned in all of its departments of $312.50; and Spring Lake, which it had no quota, has sent $60.

M. D. Abbott Asks Re-election To Office of Commr.

Says He Is Always For Square Deal; Resident Of Lamb Co. Since 1929

M. D. Abbott, resident of Lamb County since January, 1929, and who has operated a farm 11 miles northwest of Littlefield since that time, instructed the Leader Tuesday to announce his candidacy for re-election to the office of Commissioner of Precinct No. 4.

In announcing for this office Mr. Abbott stated that he had always fought for a square deal in all matters pertaining to the county. His formal announcement follows:

"I want to take this opportunity to thank the voters of Precinct No. 4 for giving me the opportunity to serve you as your Commissioner. I will always be grateful to you for your vote and any consideration given me.

"In serving as your commissioner I have at all times tried to give you the best service I knew how to render. As a result our finances are in good shape; we have good equipment to work with and, the court as a whole is striving toward a county cash basis, which I think can be reached soon if carefully handled. I am not for high taxes but will try to handle our affairs in a way that what we have will take care of our expenses.

Candidate For County Attorney

Judge J. E. Dryden of Sudan, well known Lamb county lawyer, announced Wednesday that he is a candidate for election as county attorney.

Judge Dryden has been a resident of Lamb county since 1924, and has practiced law in Sudan since early in 1925. He served as county attorney for Lamb county in 1931 and 1932.

The judge announced that his official statement to the voters will be made next week.

In answer to the plea by the President of the United States for all scrap rubber to be turned in for salvage, rubber is pouring into Littlefield, and the other towns over the county, by the thousands of pounds.

Wholesale agents of the oil companies are acting as agents for the purchasing of scrap rubber, paying one cent per pound for all rubber that is brought to them. They receive the same amount when they dispose of the rubber; in other words, the oil men are handling this rubber without profit and as a patriotic service.

As proof that the people of Lamb county are eagerly doing their part, we offer the fact that one farmer brought 890 pounds of old casings to a Littlefield wholesale oil dealer.

Not only the adults of the community are taking part in this drive, but the children are combing every conceivable nook and corner for bits of old rubber.

With everyone working so faithfully at the task, the drive is sure to be a great success here, and reports from other sections are showing that it is just as big a success elsewhere.

Last Rites Held For Mrs. Marshall

Funeral services were conducted at the Littlefield Methodist Church at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Susan A. Marshall, with Rev. W. M. Culwell of Spade officiating.

Surgery was performed Monday in an effort to alleviate her suffering, but she passed away the next day.

Mrs. Marshall was survived by two sons, John and Claude Marshall of Houston; three daughters, Mrs. McQuatters, Mrs. Lillie Ballew of Littlefield, and Mrs. Ora Gibson of Fort Worth. Two sisters, Mrs. A. C. Evans of Potts Camp, Miss, and Mrs. Mattie Nelson of Reeves, Tenn.

Burial was in the Littlefield Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Home of Lubbock.

NATION'S GROCERY BASKET GUARDED

The Federal government, to insure a steady stream of supplies for the nation's fighting forces, and also to its Allies, is assuming complete war-time control over the nation's grocery basket.

The War Production board vested such gigantic control in a nine-member food requirements committee under the chairmanship of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard.

The Wickard committee stressed the idea, though, that it should not be assumed that there is a food shortage, or that consumer rationing of most foods is in prospect.

The total food supply this year is expected to be the largest on record, and even larger than the requirements of not only this nation, but also Russia and Great Britain.

Despite the enormous amounts of foodstuffs in this year's anticipated supply, shortages in certain items are now showing.

Such items are sugar, pork, animal fats, vegetable oils, canned vegetables, coffee, tea, cocoa, and some tropical fruits.

But the prospect for a plentiful supply of wheat, fresh fruits and vegetables, fluid milk, cream, beef, lamb, mutton and eggs is encouraging.

This food supply is dependent on sufficient farm labor supply, available food transportation and processing, and good weather.

Because of the limit to lend-lease shipments due to a present shipping shortage, food supplies here will not be cut into as much as if shipping conditions were normal. This is another factor which complements the nation's food supply.

But if a severe drouth, or a farm-labor shortage takes place; or if the sub menace is eliminated and thereby enabling more food-stuffs to be exported to Russia and Great Britain, then there is a good possibility that rationing of some items here might take place.

The food rationing group has the authority to say what foods may or may not be produced, what foods may or may not be imported, and to direct food supplies among the armed forces, American Allies and U. S. civilians.

Within a short time a joint American-British food board will be arranged so as to link up both of the nations' food supply.

Officials of the Wickard committee stressed the fact that any food rationing that would take place would be carried out by the Office of Price Administration.

The foremost duty of this federal food rationing group is to check on all food needs, and the prospects on production and imports. It can adopt any measures necessary and practical to obtain food supplies.

Because the war has stopped important foreign supplies of vegetable oils, the committee has been faced with its first problem.

It must decide whether to cut down on the consumption of the fats and vegetable oils here, or to draw on the nation's reserve supply.

Russia And U. S. Enter Into 20 Year Mutual Treaty

In rapid-fire announcements calculated to deal an immediate blow to Nazi nerves and to prepare the way for Allied offensive action, the United States, Great Britain and Russia Thursday disclosed they had reached complete understanding on "the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942."

The understandings were arrived at during secret visits by Vyacheslav Molotov, the Soviet foreign commissar, to London and Washington. Molotov, flying here in a huge Soviet bomber, spent from May 29 to June 4 conferring with President Roosevelt.

Besides the historic disclosure of the conversations relating to a second front, it was announced that:

- 1.—Russia and Great Britain had entered into a 20-year mutual assistance treaty, which among other things pledged them to "common action to preserve peace and resist aggression in the post-war period."
- 2.—The United States and Russia signed a mutual aid agreement providing for reciprocal assistance in the winning of the war and for cooperation in practical measures to "create a better world hereafter."

The latter agreement is similar in all essential respects to the lend-lease agreement signed Feb. 23 with Great Britain and on June 2 with China. Final determination of the terms of the U. S. aid to Russia, and "of the benefits to be received by the United States in return" is

FARMERS URGED TO PRODUCE IN CONSERVATION WAY

Soil conservation always has been a sound farm policy but this year it's a war necessity.

Failure of Texas farmers to carry out conservation practices this year not only would result in loss of thousands of dollars in AAA soil-building payments but would seriously affect production under next year's Food For Freedom program.

In making these statements, Geo. Slaughter, chairman, Texas AAA committee, urged each farmer to carry out practices essential to continuous production. Construction of to be delayed until the "extent of the defense aid is known."

terraces and check dams, seeding summer legumes and other cover crops are some of the practical conservation practices which should be carried out during June in some areas of the state.

"Every farmer knows that the best way to increase production per farm is to increase production per acre and the only way to increase production per acre is to farm the conservation way," the chairman said.

Corp. James Edward Woods, 21, of the U. S. Air Corps, stationed at Hickam Field two years, but now at Bellas Field, Hawaii, was recently awarded a gold trophy at a golf tournament. The trophy is a gold miniature likeness of Corp. Woods, holding a golf club, resting on a varnished wooden stand. A plate attached to the trophy has engraved into it the name and Squadron number of Corp. Woods. He sent this trophy home to his mother, Mrs. Lara Woods, here last week.

Corp. Woods enlisted in the Air Corps of the U. S. Army in November, 1939, and has been stationed in Hawaii almost ever since that time. When Pearl Harbor was bombed he lost everything he had by fire through the attack. Besides the trophy Woods also sent his mother a large picture of himself, which she prizes very much.

Corp. Woods is qualified both as a bombardier and also as a pilot, but his main work is throwing bombs, according to Mrs. Woods.

Khesa Walden of Littlefield received a wire from Washington two weeks ago Monday announcing that he had received an appointment as mechanic at the Lubbock Army Flying School. He began his basic training last Friday, and is serving with the 84th Squadron at the present time. It required five weeks for Mr. Walden to get his appointment.

Samuel Erwin Blessing, aged 20, son of Roy Blessing, is in the U. S. Air Corps, stationed at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill. He enlisted in January last. Samuel wrote Mrs. O. K. Yantis, Jr., this past week to the effect that he was engaged, and that fuller details would be sent later.

Jimmie Zed Robinson, son of Zed Robinson, and brother of Mrs. O. K. Yantis, Jr., enlisted in the U. S. Navy at Lubbock, and underwent an examination there. He will go to Dallas on June 22 for final examination.

Roy Byers, Jr., 20, who enlisted in the Navy about three weeks ago, got instructions to go to Dallas Friday, and from there he expects to go to Northport, Va. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Byers.

Corp. E. D. Parker, who enlisted in the U. S. Army over a year ago, and who has been stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla., spent a few days last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Parker.

Corp. Parker was on a 10 day furlough, but was only able to spend from Sunday until Thursday here on account of the distance he had to travel to and from Littlefield to Camp.

He is a cook in the Medical Corps.

Kenneth Houk, who has been connected with the Medical Corp of the U. S. Army, and stationed at Tuscon, Ariz., has recently been transferred to Camp Haan, at Riverside, Calif.

Kenneth had been at Tuscon for the past two months, and was expecting to get a furlough, but has been transferred.

NEWS RELEASE

CHAPTER VIII SYNOPSIS

A man identified as Joseph Slinn is found drowned in the Hudson river near Albany, N. Y. Slinn was insured by the Protective Life Insurance company, and his beneficiary is a man named B. B. Twombly who lives in Troy. The company's Albany agent, Carlin, identifies the body, and the insurance money is paid to Twombly. But Jerry Glidden, suspecting that Slinn was murdered, has gone to Ironburg, a little mining town in Pennsylvania, to see an "Angela Slinn." She turns out to be an ugly reclusé of a woman who lives in a shack near the abandoned "Break O'Day" iron mine. She denies knowing Joseph Slinn. Rose Walker, granddaughter of the owner of the mine, runs the local store and post office. Jerry finds a tombstone bearing the name "Horace John Twombly," and that night a man registers at the hotel as B. B. Twombly of Portland, Maine. Puzzled, Jerry wires Mart McDowell, a friend of his who lives in Troy, for information about Twombly. As he finishes phoning his wire, he turns to see Angela Slinn standing in the doorway.

"Twombly wants to go inside," said Jerry to himself.

How long had Angela been waiting in the doorway? Her broad face was sullen, though no more so than usual. It gave no information. Most lonely folk are inquisitive, yet she, this morning, had appeared the reverse of that. More angered at his own folly than at her curiosity, Jerry flung the required cash on the counter and went out.

He started to cross to the hotel; but he did not go far forward. In too close talk as yet to notice him, Twombly stood on the hotel porch—with Rose Walker.

"So she's in this, too—she!" A fellow has no right to be jealous of a girl whom he has known for less than twenty-four hours. But a fellow often is.

Strangling an impulse to pass the pair and proceed with high dignity to his own room, he summoned prudence. He believed that too much of what he suspected was already known to undesirable people.

The broker and the postmistress were probably engaged in their conversation thinking he was still out for his announced walk. Jerry decided upon playing the game. Let them think themselves safe here. The detective's power is proportionate to his suspects' ignorance.

He had half completed it when a new idea came to him:

"I'm missing a break in Angle Slinn's defense breaks if she has something to defend. She listens in on my telephoning; I can look in on her shack. She thinks she's so wise to stick to the store; here's my chance."

He wouldn't risk the road. He kept to the woods for a wide detour to the tableland.

Day's gradual decline had stirred the birds to final efforts. They sang, but he didn't listen. He stumbled over fallen logs—his galleys—blundered among those and didn't care.

He said he didn't, anyhow; said he didn't care for anything except proving Lightner a fool to trust Sam Steinhardt's judgment.

He said so for fifteen minutes—twenty.

And so he came, quite suddenly, upon the barren sweep of country he had sought.

He was among the last of those pines near that fatal cliff edge and thus not far from the shanty. Surrounded by its alluring kitchen garden, it stood in full view. But there was something different. From the crazy stovepipe something for chimney, smoke issued.

To come here by the turnpike route must be a whole lot quicker than any woodland way.

Angie sticking to the store? Why, there she was in front of the shack!

Twombly in a long conference with Rose at Ironburg? He stood now beside the shack's tenant at the shack's entrance!

Unable to hear—able to see—aware that he must not be seen: that was Jerry's position. He drew aside, taking a partial cover behind one of the pines upon the fringe of the clump.

Evening was near, and he was stationed westward of the hut. Shadows over him. Over the pair he spied on, the red light of a dying afternoon in July.

One thing became immediately evident. Whereas Twombly's talk with Rose had appeared amicable, his present conversation gave every sign of argument. Even if words were indistinguishable, voices were raised, and there were somewhat violent.

First, the sunbonnet tilted back, and Jerry saw as if in appeal; then—refusal of whatever was asked—A brown sleeve of the plump figure's coat leaped up and down, a fist pounded a palm.

A second later, these roles were reversed.

"Twombly wants to go inside," said Jerry to himself; "and she won't let him. It's just the way she acted to me this morning. But why's she doing it now?"

At last permission seemed to be granted. The one figure turned and bent above the lock, the other took a step back, looking down. Glidden held his breath.

He held it because of Twombly's next action. The broker stretched out his right arm toward that bowed head above which, as its owner leaned forward, the rear flap of the sunbonnet flopped, leaving the neck exposed. Jerry could see Twombly's fist open, the fingers spread wide.

Lately Glidden had likened Angela to a wolf. The broker's stealthily advancing arm, above its potential victim's turned head, resembled a venomous snake. Jerry watched the two, fascinated.

The fingers closed. Slowly, experimentally. On air—but within a scant inch of their desire. They respread. Some sort of debate both urged and retarded them. The arm half retreated, crept forth again.

"Phew!" gasped Jerry. He required no acquaintance with crime to recognize these as the movements of a stranger. He shook himself.

"That guy doesn't really try it, I've got to keep quiet and stay still. But if he goes to it, it'll be up to me to yell and tackle him."

The arm stole nearer; the fingers crooked. Jerry crouched like a rufin on the line.

Twombly, however, changed his mind—or it was changed for him. His intended prey stood erect and faced quickly about. The threatening arm fell. So nearly simultaneously did these things happen that Jerry couldn't tell which happened first. The shanty's door opened, and the ill-paired couple went in. Should he, Jerry demanded of his judgment, have warned the woman in order that she might be on her guard in the future? Should he warn her now? He had, he reasoned, no liking for her, of course; he was quite clearly convinced that she was engaged in some nefarious plot affecting his own interests.

"But a woman's a woman, after all," he said. "If I butted in, I'd give my show away. Still, ought I to?"

What followed raised no further fear of the unfair attack being resumed. Atiptoe Jerry ran across the bare land and through the kitchen garden. He put an eye to the keyhole—darkness. An ear—and he heard:

"Don't tempt me any more. I near squeezed your throat for you when you had your back to me a minute ago."

"I knew it; but I can take care of myself. Well, you can't say anybody can see us now, Mr. B. B. Twombly, so give me that."

Crisp paper rustled. "It's all you'll get till the deal's closed and some real money begins to come in."

"You're mistaken there."

"This is all I've got in cash, anyhow."

"I'll count it."

A light was struck. A lantern was lighted.

Eye again to keyhole, Jerry saw into the hut, but the aperture was small and his range of vision included only three hands. One, which terminated in a brown sleeve, passed over a roll of new bills. The other two clutched the money.

"Then I'll go."

"Wait till I've counted."

Jerry had felt himself upon the threshold of revelation. Now he knew that he had tarried too long in his progress thither. He couldn't afford to be seen. Twombly's hand descended to the knob; Jerry jumped away.

He uncomprehendingly ran for the pine clump. He was well advised, too; no sooner had he reached it than, looking backward, he saw the shanty's door open and Twombly emerge.

Jerry stopped dead in the protection of a tree. He peeped around its trunk till he observed the broker fully started on a leisurely stroll in the direction of the turnpike.

Then, having skirted the cliff edge, Jerry made what haste he could along a course parallel to that distant highway. He must abandon the detour through the woods; it was too roundabout.

He preferred to reach Ironburg ahead of his hotelmate, so that the latter would suppose the announced walk to and from Americus had ended at a normal hour.

To be sure, Angie might have told of his appearance at the store, but there was chance enough that her mysterious dislike of Twombly had withheld this information; therefore, as soon as Jerry thought this hurry had given him sufficient leeway, he struck across country to the pike and hurried on to the village.

As he ascended the hotel's steps, Hassler came out. Jerry carelessly inquired for Twombly. He hadn't yet returned.

"Beat him to it," Glidden's thought assured him. "I'm expecting a telegram," said he aloud. "Has one come?"

"No. You might ask over to the store, though."

Jerry didn't care to see Rose, but he wanted MacDowell's answer to his query. He crossed the road. Shadows filled the store. It was a relief that the place should seem again untended, especially as, at the center of the counter, under a smoky swinging lamp, lay a sheet of ordinary note paper bearing his name: the expected message from Troy.

PARTY CAME INTO CASH AND MOVED TO PORTLAND, ME. IF THERE'S NEWS IN THIS, GIVE ME A CHANCE FOR A BEAT. MAC.

A voice from the post office cage made Jerry drop the paper.

"The sender didn't pay the phone charge from Americus. I'll collect from you."

Angela Slinn! It was Twombly he had seen leaving that hut above the Break O'Day Iron Mine.

And Jerry had run part of the way.

And traveled three-quarters of it by the direct road.

And beaten even Twombly to Ironburg.

Jerry goggled at the woman behind the counter. He had never seen a ghost before:

"Y-you!"

The brutish mask of the woman behind the counter remained impassive. "Yes, Miss Rose is busy up at her house."

Jerry put down a dollar bill—didn't hand it. What if he did not have any too many left? He experienced a strong distaste for touching this seemingly uncanny, and certainly unhuman creature.

"Keep the change!"

Before she had grunted thanks, he was headed for the hotel. Hassler, in shirt sleeves, sat on the porch.

"Mr. Twombly back yet?" asked Glidden.

Hassler squinted at his interlocutor through the twilight. "You asked me that a couple o' minutes ago a' ready. No, he ain't, an' supper's on the table, an' they're just goin' to ring fer it. Why are you worried about Twombly?"

"I'm not," Jerry asserted, though with difficulty. "I only—" "Ain't you so well?"

"I'm all right."

In more ways than one the men might have consisted of leather and pebbles with a dish of grass and a glass of water. Glidden didn't know what he was eating—had he been older and more susceptible, wouldn't have eaten at all. No Twombly at the start; at the finish, still no Twombly.

Monopoly to Route Monotony

Children of Japanese inmates of Camp Harmony, near Puyallup, Wash., are shown playing a game of monopoly in one of the recreation rooms. Some 75,000 Japanese evacuees from coastal areas are settling down in this camp for "duration." Most of them accept their lot with good grace, even though they had left comfortable homes. The camp has its own administration, dental clinic, library, and other facilities.

Formal Opening of Lubbock Flying School Sunday

The behind-the-scenes life of both aviation cadets and enlisted men will be one feature of special dedication services at the large Lubbock Army Flying School which the public may see on Sunday, June 21.

Besides the barracks themselves, mess halls, link trainer building, day rooms, hangar and the sub-depot shop and hangar will all be open to the visitors as part of the formal dedication of the advanced twin-engine school.

Opening the gates to the general public at 1 o'clock, Colonel Thomas L. Gilbert has announced that Major-General H. R. Harmon, commanding office of the Gulf Coast Training Area, will be the principal speaker in the dedicatory services scheduled for 2 o'clock. Col Gilbert will also speak.

The Lubbock Army Post Band will play a varied program under the leadership of Warrant Officer George P. Attridge from 1 to 2 o'clock.

Until late in the afternoon the visiting public will be admitted to various parts of the Lubbock Field on a general inspection tour. The many aspects of camp life of both aviation cadets and enlisted men may be visited on this occasion.

During the progress of the program on the ground, the aviation cadets will carry out routine flying activities, including take-offs, formations, and landings.

All friends of the Lubbock Army Flying School are cordially invited to be present at these dedication services. Since the general public cannot ordinarily be admitted to camp areas, the program on June 21 offers an excellent opportunity for a close-up view of a typical flying school.

Large Number Attend Presentation Of Gilts

A large number of farmers and interested people were present Saturday, June 13, at 4 o'clock at Littlefield to see eight Lamb County 4-H Club and FFA boys receive registered Duroc Jersey Gilts presented to them by Sears, Roebuck and Co. of Lubbock. These gilts were bred by Leo Peterman, Hart Camp, and E. C. Baker, Olton.

This was the first time that Lamb County was included in the Sears, Roebuck and Co. contest and boys as well as their parents showed by their presence that they were interested in the contest as well as being interested in good hogs.

Boys receiving the gilts were Charles Hinds, Amherst 4-H Club; Kenneth Blevins, Fieldton 4-H Club; Kenneth Pool, Hart Camp 4-H Club; Dale Hamilton, Spade 4-H Club; James Young, Littlefield F.F.A.; James Bellamy, Sudan F.F.A.; Frank Farrar, Spring Lake F.F.A.; and Leroy Hackler, Olton F.F.A.

These gilts will be shown again this fall in the county and prizes will be given by Sears, Roebuck and Co. The champion gilt in the county will be shown at Lubbock later against the champions from six other counties to determine the Grand Champion of the Lubbock trade territory of Sears, Roebuck and Co. The winner will be given a Jersey heifer.

W. B. McAllister, Lamb County assistant agent, states that these boys will be glad to show interested people their gilts at any time they come by and urged that they visit the boys and see what kind of a

Bilds Garden Gate 72nd Birthday

Be 72 years of age is one thing, but to be 72 years of age, your own housework, and care of a garden is something else. To be 72 years of age, with agility and spunk left to garden after you have your daily tasks is something worth mentioning. Neal A. Douglass, one of County's pioneer women, did not. On her 72nd birthday Douglass was in need of a garden gate. Being the type one who never leaves anything undone else, that she can do, she gathered together the carpenter's tools, and the nails, and quicker than you can say she had turned out a very nice gate. It was no plain gate, it was fancy enough to be used to serve every purpose it was put to. She planned to paint the gate to match the trellis, but her son, Charles and Mike Joplin, being about the time the gate was finished, and they painted the gate their grandmother. Douglass has long been for her spirit. She is a Gold Mother, Mother of the local American Legion, an active member of the Legion Auxiliary,

Pipe Line From Texas To Illinois Approved

The 550-mile pipe line approved by the War Production board will be government owned, WPB officials said Thursday, and its capability may be stepped up ultimately from 300,000 to 450,000 barrels a day.

Cost of the line from Longview, Texas, to the vicinity of Salem, Ill., is expected to be $35,000,000 or $40,000,000, it was stated, but that estimate may be a "little high."

Of the 300,000 barrels daily which the line is expected to deliver in the Salem area, 250,000 barrels will be carried on to the Eastern "shortage states" by tank car and barge, and 50,400 will remain in the Middle West.

Capacity of the line could be increased substantially after its completion by the installation of additional pumps, officials said. Present plans call for a pumping station every 50 miles, but the big 24-inch tube could carry half again the amount of oil if the number of pumps were increased.

The shortage of steel and other materials for the large pumping units contributed to the decision to install the smaller number at this time, just as the shortage of steel plates dictated the use of seamless steel tubing and cast iron for the line itself.

As planned, the line will alleviate the Eastern scarcity to a considerable degree, although no official would go so far as to say that it might permit increased gasoline rations.

The pipe line will relieve a worrisome tank car situation. The present 18-day tank car shuttle will be cut to 10 days, allowing railroads time to give proper care to the cars, which are undergoing severe wear and tear in their present rush movement.

Actual terminus of the pipe line will be at Mount Vernon, Ind., a barge and rail center on the Ohio river rather than at Salem, Ill., a refinery city and the center of a network of small pipe lines.

From Mount Vernon barges are expected to haul 115,000 to 120,000 barrels daily up the Ohio to Pittsburgh, a 700-mile trip. Mount Vernon also has four railroad branch lines which connect with main roads to the East.

Allred Says That Texas Pensions Were Started By Him

Declaring that "too many promises have been made, too many promises have been broken," James V. Allred, candidate for United States Senate, reminded Texans that old age pensions were started in Texas while he was governor and that for five long years every pension paid to the old people of Texas was from money raised during his administration.

Reviewing the pension program "from the record," Allred declared that "President Roosevelt is the best friend the old people of Texas ever had. He started the old age pensions in the nation. I started old age pensions in Texas."

The amendment authorizing pension payments was submitted upon Allred's recommendation, he recalled. "And I made speeches for it while the present candidates for the United States Senate remained silent."

Sudan Election Results In Defeat

A third bond election in Lamb county road district No. 4 to construct a system of hard-surfaced roads radiating from Sudan resulted Saturday in defeat of the proposal, with 206 votes cast against and 194 in favor.

A two-thirds majority was necessary to authorize issue of the bonds, amounting to $145,000.

First election was held last June 10, when the question was turned down by a small majority. Last Nov. 4, the issue was favored by a small majority but the election later was invalidated when several favorable votes were declared illegal.

Two hundred and sixty-eight votes would have been necessary to carry the election.

Friday he planned to visit Plainview, Tulla and Silverton. Edwards said the extension service had instructed its farm agents to assist farmers in every way possible in the grasshopper control situation.

LET'S ANSWER THE PRESIDENT

With Tons and Tons of Scrap Rubber

The radio and the press quote President Roosevelt as declaring that if the people of the country can and will get the Scrap Rubber of the Nation into "Circulation" it is possible that Gasoline Rationing will not be necessary, that commandeering of tires may be averted, and even trucks may have re-capped tires for use in carrying on the work of the Nation.

We've got tons and tons of scrap rubber in Lamb County. It is in the corners of fields, in the barn, the garage, and in the backyard. But we have been negligent in answering the appeal for rubber that lies dormant in old, worn out, used tires and tubes, and countless other rubber articles. Now that every ounce of scrap rubber can help to arm our country's war-time tanks and field artillery, our jeeps and trucks, our tractors, farm trucks and pick-ups, let's get in the drive and push it to the limit!

Scrap Rubber Week June 15 to 20

Gasoline rationing would be an economical catastrophe all over the country, and especially in this section where the people depend on the crops they haul to town to earn their living. We must keep this army of farmers producing the crops that mean so much to us all. This week we have a chance to do a really Patriotic service to our country by turning in our scrap rubber. Let's not fool around another minute. Get action on your scrap rubber before the day is over.

Wholesale oil dealers, filling stations, and many others all over the county are offering a cent a pound for all used tires and tubes which we turn in, and are doing this on a non-profit basis. Let's all get in the scrap NOW!!

Let's Put Scrap Rubber In Circulation--

New $5 Auto Tax Stamps On Sale

The new $5 Federal automobile tax stamps went on sale Wednesday, June 10, at the local post office, but sales have been slow so far, according to postal officials.

Automobile owners are reminded that every car in the county must have a $5 stamp on it by June 30, and are urged to buy their stamps now before the rush.

Only 2,000 of these stamps were obtained in the first order, and these must be sold before any others can be ordered. If these are not sold before June 30, the others will be ordered after that date, and will not be available at the proper time. Persons whose cars do not bear one of these vehicle stamps by July 1 are subject to certain fines. It is estimated that about 4,250 stamps will be purchased in Littlefield.

With South Plains Men In The Service

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lynn, of near Bula, received a letter this week from their son, Kenneth, who is serving in the Medical Corps, somewhere in the Pacific, stating that he was well and working hard.

Kenneth was inducted into the Army at Camp Bliss, in March, and received his basic training at Camp Berkeley at Abilene. He was then transferred to his present station for further training.

Mrs. R. L. Drake received word from her sister, Mrs. R. O. Barbee, of Abilene, that her nephew, J. W. Barbee, formerly of Spring Lake, is in Australia, and is alright.

J. W. graduated from Spring Lake High School in 1937 and joined the National Guard at Plainview in 1940. He was sent to Camp Bowie at Brownwood as a member of the Field Artillery and was later sent to Java. From Java he was sent to Australia, and after reaching there last February, transferred to the Air Corps from the field artillery.

Rural Route Carriers To Sell War Bonds

Rural Route carriers are now authorized to sell War Bonds and Stamps for the convenience of those in the rural communities who may not have easy access to a post office or bank.

The carriers will take either cash or checks, and will give the patrons receipts for their money. The following day they will deliver the bond made out in proper order to the patron.

Persons living on rural routes are urged to take advantage of this service for their dimes and dollars will mean just as much toward winning the war as anyone else's.

O. T. LINDSEY—

"TO THE VOTERS OF
LAMB COUNTY:

"After being urged for some time by a large number of friends and voters to become a candidate for the office of sheriff, I have decided to make the race, and if the voters see fit to elect me, I will devote my undivided efforts for an honest, efficient and impartial administration of the duties of the office.

"As to my qualifications for the office of Sheriff, I have had 13 years' experience as a peace officer in various parts of the Panhandle and the South Plains, and as far as I know there has never been any complaint or criticism of my work, and if you elect me as your sheriff, I solemnly promise to execute the duties of the office on the basis of justice to all, and favors to none. None will be too small to receive justice; none will be too big to escape it.

"It is my intention to see as many of the voters as possible during the campaign without neglecting my duties, and as far as the restricted tire situation will permit. But should there be any whom I fail to see personally, I assure you that any consideration you see fit to give my candidacy, and your support at the polls on election day will be appreciated, and I promise you will not be disappointed in the trust placed in me.

"O. T. LINDSEY."

SCRAP RUBBER—

they wondered "what to do" to meet the situation. "Let's show the president that the scrap rubber is here and that we can get it to move to market" was echoed on every side. Gasoline rationing right now would do a great deal of damage here, unless farmers could obtain gas freely, and if getting the rubber off our premises and into channels of trade will help avert that and help win the war, the quicker we act the better for all concerned.

Wholesale oil dealers, filling stations and others are offering a cent a pound for scrap rubber in the form of used tires. They are doing this on a non-profit basis, for they will be reimbursed on the cent a pound basis.

Remember, even an old hot water bottle, the rubber handle bar of a tricycle, old elastic, even a tiny rubber band helps to wage the war more fully against the Axis.

CLAUDE M. COFFER—

may be called into the Service before the end of the year, it would seem that the work of carrying on our schools is going to devolve, largely, upon the women of our Country. Therefore, I present her candidacy for your earnest consideration and any support that you may give her will be deeply appreciated by a man who will then be rendering his utmost in service and devotion to his Government, his People, and his Home-land.

"Respectfully submitted,
"CLAUDE M. COFFER."

M. D. ABBOTT—

but everything we can, and I feel that the experience I have had as commissioner will enable me to serve you much better in every duty that is ours to perform.

"I would also be glad to go over any of the past records we have; or to explain to any interested voter anything you might care to ask, for after all I have been working for you.

"Realizing the responsibility that is on the commissioner, believing the experience I have as such, I submit to the voters of Precinct No. 4 my candidacy and earnestly solicit your vote and influence in the coming Primary. I will if possible try to see you before the election.

"Respectfully,
"M. D. ABBOTT."
