End Of Road For Walcott?

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
NEW YORK—Jersey Joe Walcott started the seventh with a left uppercut to Ezzard Charles' jaw. Charles countered with a left and right to the body, forcing Walcott to a neutral corner. Walcott staggered the champion with a left hook to the jaw. Charles drooled and his eyes had that glassy look. He fell forward to his knees and then crumbled flat on his stomach. As the referee counted, Charles slowly pulled himself up but at the count of 10 Charles fell flat on his back. The time was 55 seconds. Walcott officially became world heavyweight champion.

This was their meeting in Pittsburgh last July. Walcott hasn't fought since. You can hardly blame him for he has been fighting on and off for 22 years or since 1930 when he knocked out a chap called Cowboy Wallace in the first round at Vineland, N.J.

Walcott has been better days, physically but not financially. He is 38 by Nat Fleischer's Ring record book although he looks much older and the fight mob says he is older. Walcott and big money were strangers until 1947 when he almost beat Joe Louis in Madison Square Garden, although Louis got the split decision.

Walcott thought he won the title that night. Louis thought he lost. He was cut in several places and one eye was closed. He started to leave the ring but his handlers pushed him back as if to say "wait for the announcement, funny things have happened in boxing before."

Afterwards, Louis agreed to give Walcott another title chance, hoping to wipe out the stigma of the questionable verdict. So the following summer they met in Yankee Stadium and Walcott began to clown. He stuck his chin out and Louis hit it, not once but a dozen times and Walcott saw his second title shot end in an 11-round knockout.

Then the next year, 1949, Louis announced his retirement. The world was left without a heavyweight champion and Charles and Walcott met in Chicago for the vacant throne. Charles won the decision.

Less than two years later, March of 1951, they put the show on the road and Charles again won a decision, this time in Detroit.

There was no reason for a third Charles-Walcott fight other than the fact that Pittsburgh had never seen them. A charity shared in the proceeds and furthermore Charles figured Walcott was an easy touch. He went easy in training, they say. Walcott surprised Charles and everyone else. The odds were something like 10 to 1 because Charles had never been knocked out and on 99 days out of 100 he could box rings around the veteran from Merchantville, N.J.

Walcott had such a hard road to the title he thought he might keep it a while before putting it on the line. He said something about it being the Lord's wishes that he should barnstorm as champion.

He made little money on public appearances and now you might say he's getting ready to give the title back to Charles. At 38, he doesn't figure to be the Walcott who almost knocked out Joe Louis. And he doesn't figure to beat Charles again.

Why their 15-round bout is being held tonight (Thursday), in Philadelphia's vast Municipal Stadium is a mystery to many people.

The place holds 102,000 for the annual Army-Navy football game and can seat many more for a fight, as it did in 1926 when 120,757 paid $1,895,733 for the first Dempsey-Tunney fight.

But this one, even at $20 tops, may not draw 40,000 fans. Promoter Herman Taylor expects something like a $400,000 gate but it may not go that high unless you count $175,000 being paid for television rights.

In New York there is not a great deal of interest except among the big wheels who sit in the first few rows at nearly every heavyweight title bout.

The average New York fight fan, the fellow who pays $5 and $10 for a fight, will see this one on television. In Philadelphia and a 75-mile radius TV will be blacked out. Maybe when the fight is over TV viewers will say "it should have been blacked out entirely."

LONG ISLAND'S DIZZY DEAN

Rickey's $21,000 For Loes Could Mean 20 Victories

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
BROOKLYN, N.Y.—The Brooklyn Dodgers might have a 20-game winner after all. He's not Don Newcombe and he's not Preacher Roe.

He's the surprise of the young baseball season. He's a kid missing from Baseball's Who's Who, and the Baseball Register. He's the kid no one ever suspected would be ready to take a regular starting turn at age 22.

He's Billy Loes, better known around Astoria and the Long Island sandlots as Billy the Kid, the kid who talked Branch Rickey into paying his first sizable bonus ($21,000) for a high school player.

"Beat Cleveland's offer and I'll sign with Brooklyn," Loes, an 18-year-old kid fresh out of Bryant High where he pitched five no-hitters, told Rickey.

Loes, you might say, owes his promotion to the Dodger varsity to the Army. He was ticketed for St. Paul last fall after riding the Dodger bench and working in only 13 innings during 1950. But when the Army released him for dependency reasons last winter after nine months service the Dodgers had a pitcher who would not count in the 25-player limit.

At Vero Beach in March, Manager Charles Dressen had trouble evaluating his pitching staff following Newcombe's loss to the Army. He had never seen Loes. It's possible.

Dodger veep Fresco Thompson, who hates to admit that in years gone the Dodgers have lost some valuable local products such as Walte Hoyt, Phil Rizzuto, Sid Gordon, Bill Jurges, Tony Cuccinello, Sam Mele and Saul Rogovin, says of Loes:

"He has ice water in his veins. He never fusses or becomes bewildered whether there are none on or the bases are loaded. He's a real student of the game and is always asking me what he threw at certain batters."

Catcher Roy Campanella goes both Dressen and Thompson one better. Says Campy:

"Loes has speed and a good curve but his control is something. Why, on occasion he rears back and throws a ball faster than Newcombe or Rex Barney ever did."

Loes has, as the players say, "the gall of a burglar."

The topper of all occurred in 1948 when he was named by the

BILLY LOES
Has Control, Too

New York World-Telegram as New York's most valuable high school player. His prize was a western trip with a New York ball club. He picked the Giants.

When the Giants returned home, Charles (Chub) Feeney, club vice-president, offered Loes, a $6,000 bonus to sign a professional contract. Loes thought he would "shop around."

Two weeks later Loes contacted Feeney and the story goes that Loes was willing to sign with the Giants if they "threw in a car under the table." The Giants nixed this deal.

Then a semi-pro game was arranged by one of Loes' friends. All the big league scouts were invited. Loes looked good and Rickey raised baseball eyebrows with his $21,000 bonus.

Oddly enough, Loes' first major league victory was against the Giants. He pitched five scoreless innings in relief. He won two more games in relief and after working 19 innings and permitting but two runs he got his first starting assignment.

New District 2 Lions Governor

Milton (Buff) Morris of Canyon is the new District 2-T-1 Lion's Club Governor. He was elected to the post at the recently held Lion's convention in El Paso.

Governor Morris made a late entrance into the top race last year. His fine showing in that race, together with his impressive record as a Lion, won him the contest this year without opposition.

As a Lion the new governor is a charter member and organizer of the Canyon Lions Club. He is a master key member, three times a Lion Boss, zone chairman in 1941 and deputy governor in 1950-51. He has initiated organization of numerous clubs, has related Lionism to his community, and has attended Lion meetings from the local to the international levels.

As a citizen Morris is a graduate of West Texas State and Texas Tech. He is an active member of Llano Estacado Boy Scout Council, a member of the Randall County Junior Livestock Show Association, a member of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce, the Canyon Equalization Board, and the First Methodist Church.

At present he is also executive secretary of the West Texas State Ex-Students Association.

Governor Morris is 42 years old, married to the former Cathryn starting tomorrow, Loes' rejoinder was a short "So what?" He shut out Pittsburgh.

Four days later against the Cubs he started again. The first two batters singled. Loes showed no concern for what is known as Chicago's heavy part of the lineup. He fanned the next three batters swinging. Rain, Loes might say, prevented him from winning. The game was called after six innings with the score 1-1.

In his first 44 innings, Long Island's Dizzy Dean showed five wins and no losses. He allowed but three runs in 44 innings, showed 34 strikeouts against only 12 walks.

From now on when it's Loes' turn to pitch you can expect the Dodgers to tell this metropolis via the newspapers, TV and radio. He's their new gate attraction.

Fertilizers And Pesticides . . .

Farming and ranching gets just a little more complicated each year.

In these days of stepped-up production, higher crop quotas, advances in mechanized equipment and changing economic conditions, the farmer and ranchman has to keep constantly re-adjusting his seasonal plans if he is to operate at a profit. In addition to keeping pace with day-to-day developments, he has to look ahead and anticipate future conditions that may have a bearing on his situation.

A crystal ball might be a big help in this respect. But since few, if any, of us have this advantage, then a planned thinking is the next best method.

One thing is certain this season. Due to a mild winter, Texas may face one of the worst insect infestations in the last 20 years. And, of course, we must constantly practice those conservation measures which will keep our soil in top-notch shape.

A heavy volume of pesticides and fertilizers are expected to be needed this year to support the high-level farm output. Farmers are urged to order their supplies well ahead of the time for applying these essential production materials. A last minute rush would tax industry's ability to fill orders and the channels of transportation from factory to farm.

Total requirements this year for pesticides, including insecticides, fungicides and herbicides are expected to run about nine per cent higher than in 1950-51. On the whole, supplies should be equal to the demand and prices generally are not greatly different from those of a year ago.

The United States Department of Agriculture reveals that supplies of pesticides containing copper and sulfur may not be sufficient to fill all demands but alternate materials will be generally available. Lead arsenate supplies, critically short earlier in the year, are improved. Farmers should be able to get sufficient quantities of weed killers such as 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T.

A generally strong demand for fertilizers has put pressure on the nation's soil building supplies. Fertilizers on the whole are slightly more plentiful although a little less phosphate is expected to be available than last year. Because of a high demand for ammonium nitrate and phosphates, those supplies will be somewhat tight.

Potash will be fairly plentiful.

Why are women's purses bigger than men's?

Remember all those cartoons you've seen of a wife going through her sleeping husband's trouser pockets? They may give you a clue why some women's purses are bigger.

But we're inclined to think that there are other and better reasons why more women than men own stock in so many of America's largest companies.

For one thing, women are practical, thrifty, and inclined to do something sensible about their future finances and those of the family. Forgive us, mister, but the facts speak for themselves:

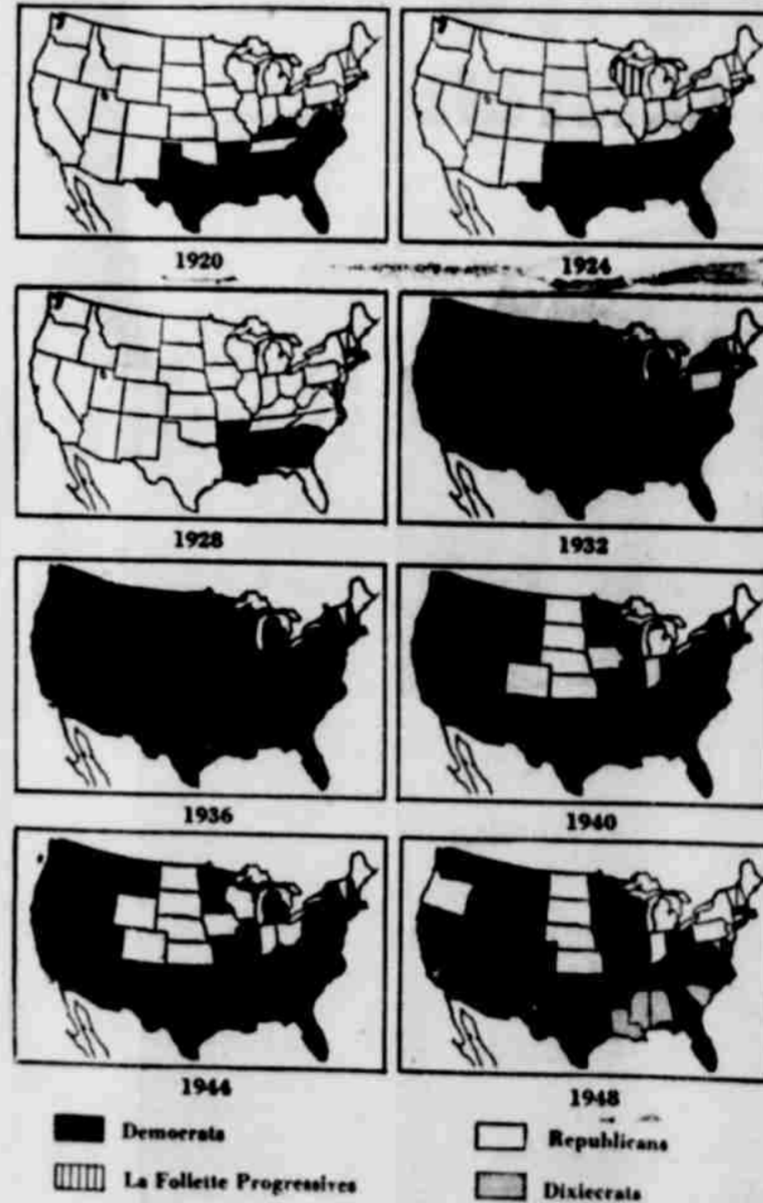

Women have outnumbered men share owners of telephone stock since 1900. The big food companies have a predominance of women share owners. Ditto the country's largest auto maker. And, at last count, 116,800 women owned shares in General Electric as against 83,000 men.

Big business, as it turns out, is a woman.

About 2,100 of these women—and men—turned out this spring to attend the G-E annual meeting and eat a box lunch in one of our largest factory buildings. If you'd like a report of what was said and done, just let us know. A card asking for "Report of the Sixtieth Annual Meeting," Dept. 6B, General Electric, Schenectady, N. Y., will do the trick.

A Great General, When To Gamble

WRIGHT E. GEIGER
Staff Writer

Members of the general staff said Gen. Eisenhower, was the general of World War II planning, his daring, friends could have generals a tip. They recognized that he's a general, an expert calculator, a risk. Fur-won a pilot's license. Eisenhower's ancestors left Germany in the 1600s, going to Switzerland and Holland. They came to the United States in 1732, settling in Pennsylvania. In 1878 the Rev. Jacob Eisenhower, the general's grandfather, and his family moved to Abilene.

Eisenhower's parents, David and Ida Eisenhower, met while students at Land University, Leocompton, Kan. Dwight was born at Denison, Tex., Oct. 14, 1890, the third of seven sons. The family returned to Abilene when "Ike" was 2.

Father a Farmer
His father was a farmer, engineer and ice-maker. The boys took turns selling eggs, chickens, vegetables and fruit to bring money in to the home.

One of his brothers once said it was only by chance that Ike became a West Point man. He wanted a college education but family funds were short. The possibility of an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis offered the chance of an education at government expense.

Eisenhower won the Annapolis appointment, but would have been over the age limit by the time he could enter school. So in 1911 he accepted an alternate appointment to West Point, where his age was no barrier. He was graduated in 1915.

On the day he was appointed a first lieutenant, one year after graduation, he and Miss Mamie Geneva Doud of Denver were married. They have a son, John Sheldon Doud Eisenhower, also a West Point graduate.

Feeling for People
"Ike's" aggressiveness apparently is softened by a deep feeling for people, individually and in masses. He has kept this feeling despite honors and decorations heaped upon him by the greats of more than two score nations.

He said once that he wanted to be remembered as the general who brought better food to the Army. He likes to be called "Ike." And he sends postcards to his old neighbors in Abilene.

His high school class historian predicted he would be a history teacher. He became a history maker. But his instructor at West Point, where he finished 61st in a class of 164, judged him correctly. The instructor wrote on a record card: "Born to command."

Admired by Churchill
Perhaps he saw the same quality Prime Minister Winston Churchill was talking about when he said Eisenhower has the power to command armies but, more important, to "stir men's hearts."

When Columbia University trustees asked Eisenhower to become university president, "Ike" protested that he is not a scholar. Said the delegation's spokesman: "We

Stassen A Boy Wonder In Minnesota Politics

By LEE LINDER
AP Newsfeatures

PHILADELPHIA — Harold E. Stassen—lawyer, district attorney, governor, Navy captain, university president, lecturer and writer—has one compelling ambition today: to be President of the United States.

The 45-year-old, three-time governor of Minnesota, is a polished speaker who has the politician's ability to remember names and faces.

Heads U. of Pennsylvania
Stassen is president (on leave) of the University of Pennsylvania. However, his political roots remain in Minnesota where he was born and where his public career was launched.

Harold Stassen was born on a farm outside St. Paul, one of five children in a family that has many fine scholars on the campus. We seek a leader."

Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Abraham Lincoln, said after visiting Eisenhower: "He's got what the greatest scholars of all time have had—wisdom combined with humanity."

strains of German, Swedish and Czech ancestry. He finished high school at 14, worked his way through the University of Minnesota and its law school—as a farm helper, a grocer's clerk, a railroad conductor—and graduated at 22. That was in 1929.

Stassen opened a law partnership. He sought election as a county (district) attorney at 23 but before the campaign was half over he fell ill of tuberculosis. His law partner, a Democrat, conducted the campaign and Stassen won.

Headed Young Republicans
Nine years later, having worked up from GOP precinct committeeman to organizer of the Minnesota Young Republican League, Stassen was elected governor. He licked the Old Guard GOP machine and then routed the Farmer-Labor regime that had controlled the state for 10 years. Two years afterward, in 1940, he was re-elected.

Stassen was named keynoter and temporary chairman of the GOP convention in 1940. Stassen, then only 33, was floor manager of the Wendell Willkie drive for the nomination.

In 1942 Stassen ran again for the governorship, advising the voters he planned to quit a few months after he was elected. He won again. He resigned to enter the Navy as a lieutenant commander.

In 1944, while on war duty, he was supported at the Republican convention as "favorite son" of his home state, but his name was not placed in nomination.

U.N. Delegate
He was detached from Navy service (temporarily) in 1945 to serve as a delegate to the conference that formally founded the United Nations Organization. He was released from the Navy in 1946, a captain, after serving most of his time in the Pacific area under Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey.

In December, 1946, he announced his candidacy for the 1948 GOP presidential nomination. During his 20-month campaign he visited 16 countries including Russia where he conferred with Stalin.

After he lost the '48 bid, he accepted the post of president of the University of Pennsylvania. He has substantially revised Penn's curriculum and athletic operations and launched a long-range building program.

Toured World
In 1949 he visited England to see first-hand how the socialized medicine program was functioning. In 1950-51 he made a two-month world tour. Late in '51 he announced he would seek the Republican nomination.

An active Baptist and a Mason, Stassen married Esther Glewwe shortly after he opened his law practice. They have two children—Kathleen, 10, and Glenn, 16.

A basement usually provides more storage space than the average family needs. Modern insulation and radiant heat in floors have made basements unnecessary. And many women want laundry equipment on the main floor to save stair climbing. So when a house is built without a basement, some additional space must be provided, enlarging the house. This cuts down the cost saving in building without a basement. On a fixed budget, how far can you go in this choice?

Here Rudolph A. Matern, architect of 90-04 161st St., Jamaica 2, N.Y., authority on small house design, has planned a house which can be built at the same cost with or without basement. Approximately 220 square feet of space can be added above ground for the cost of a cellar.

Architect Matern makes use of this difference by adding a wing to accommodate the heater room and a good sized multi-use room separated from the living room by a folding partition. With an added barbecue fireplace, this space can be used for a recreation room, dining room, or closed off for a fourth bedroom. Plan 9275 showing the multi-use room and laundry space adjoining the kitchen, covers an area of 1283 square feet. The rest of this house beyond the cutaway remains the same as shown in Plan 9274 at the left, which covers 1066 square feet.

G.O.P. Age Records Likely To

WASHINGTON—It's a good bet that this year's Republican presidential nominee will be the oldest in that party's history.

Oldest of the GOP standard-bearers to date was Ohio's Benjamin Harrison, who was 68 when nominated for a second term in 1892. Senator Taft, General Eisenhower and Governor Warren are all past 60.

Taft will be 63 Sept. 8, Eisenhower 62 Oct. 14 and Warren 62 next March 16. Former Governor Stassen of Minnesota is a comparative youngster of 45.

Might Be Oldest
The next President might be the oldest in the nation's history, General MacArthur, considered by some Republicans as a possible nominee in the event of a convention deadlock, will be 73 next Jan. 26, six days after inauguration day.

Vice President Barkley is the oldest potential nominee and President of them all. The Kentuckian, who has been in government service since Woodrow Wilson's first term as president, will be 75 Nov. 24.

If President Truman had decided to contend for and won renomination, he would have been the oldest nominee in the history of the major parties. He will be 55 May 8.

Oldest in 1841
The oldest man ever to be president was William Henry Harrison, Whig, who became 68 less than a month before his inauguration. Harrison died exactly one month after his inauguration in 1841.

The Perfect Recipe...

for mixing BUSINESS with PLEASURE for More Leisure Time

The clean, controllable heat of the blue flame and an automatic gas range are the best "ingredients" for making the homemaker's business a pleasure—and, they assure the entire family of more leisure time. Only gas ranges are so sensitive to automatic control. Gas oven burners supply just the required amount of heat. No range is more automatic than a modern gas range. Gas ovens cook whole meals while you are miles away from home.

GOP's "Mr. Republican" Was Born To Politics

By REED D. SMITH
AP Newsfeatures
COLUMBUS, O.—A veteran politician said: "You can't count Bob Taft out of this presidential race by a long shot."
 A few days later, Republican primary voters in Wisconsin and Nebraska made the veteran politician look like a prophet. This came after Taft had taken a couple of hard raps to the chin in New Hampshire and Minnesota.
 Personally, "Mr. Republican" thinks this is his toughest fight ever.
 "This is the most hard-fought campaign in years: every state is and the 1948 nomination to Thomas E. Dewey.

Born to Politics
 Taft was born to politics. His father, William Howard Taft, served both as President and Chief Justice of the United States. And his grandfather, Alphonso Taft, was secretary of war under Gen. Grant, attorney general and minister to Austria and Russia. Sen. Taft's mother was Helen Herron, daughter of U.S. District Attorney John W. Herron of the Southern District of Ohio.

Robert Taft, eldest of three children, was born Sept. 8, 1889, in Cincinnati. He attended Cincinnati schools until his father became governor general of the Philippines in 1900. After two years in the Philippines, Bob Taft returned to the U.S. to attend Taft School in Watertown, Conn.

He was graduated from Yale in 1910 with first honors and from Harvard law school in 1913 at the head of his class. The same year he passed the Ohio bar examination with highest honors in the state.

Father Was President
 His father became 27th President of the United States in 1909 and Bob spent his vacations at the White House. Taft set up law practice in Cincinnati with his brother Charles, now an Ohio gubernatorial candidate.

In later years, his Senate leadership caused him to be called "Mr. Republican." He is co-author of the Taft-Hartley Act, a measure that turned many unionists against him. Unruffled, Taft defends the bill as an act in their best interests.

Robert Taft started his political career on his own as a precinct committeeman and worked up step by step. In 1914, he married Martha W. Bowers, daughter of Lloyd W. Bowers of Minnesota, the U.S. solicitor general at that time.

Wife is Good Speaker
 Mrs. Taft, a gifted speaker, junketed with her husband on his campaigns and the team became known as "Bob and Martha." Poor health has forced Mrs. Taft to give up her active campaigning.

The Tafts have four children—William Howard Taft III; Robert Jr.; Lloyd B. and Horace D. They have nine grandchildren.

Robert Taft has been a relentless foe of New Deal and Fair Deal programs. The current campaign, he says, is one of "liberty against socialism" with Republicans the party to restore "liberty." He believes Truman's decision to retire will have little effect on the presidential race.

CITY HAS OXYGEN BANK

PITTSBURGH (AP)—There are many blood banks in the Pittsburgh district but now there's also an oxygen bank.

A group of businessmen in the Mt. Oliver district of Pittsburgh established the oxygen bank to help cope with emergencies.

Tanks of oxygen and equipment to administer it are stored in the Mt. Oliver Borough building. The service is available, free of charge, to any physician in the area.

By making a phone call a physician can have the oxygen rushed to the bedside of heart attack victims or others critically ill. The oxygen bank is maintained by donations of district residents.

Don Berger of Bartlesville, Oklahoma joined his wife and family here, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Street. Mrs. Berger and two children have visited here for the past three weeks. They plan to return home Sunday.

Kenneth Kinkler who is farming in South Dakota arrived home last week. He plans to return the latter part of the month.

Warren Has Never Lost A California Election

By MORRIE LANDSBERG
AP Newsfeatures

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—From out of the new West comes a presidential candidate with a message for the Republican party.

"Go liberals," says big Earl Warren, three-time governor of California and 1948 GOP nominee for vice-president.

Potent Vote Getter
 The 61-year-old Warren speaks from the experience of a potent vote-getter who has achieved unequalled success in his home state.

A Republican in a state which registers Democratic, he has never been licked for office in California since he first ran for a district attorney's job back in the 20s.

The tall, broadly-built governor with silvery-blond hair reached political maturity in the dark Republican days of the New Deal. He withstood the Democratic tide by developing a state program which he calls liberal—always aided by the smiling Warren personality.

Choice of Both Parties

Twice in his long career he has been the nominee of both major parties—for attorney general in 1938 and for governor in 1946. He is the first governor ever elected to a third term in California.

The 6-foot-1, 215-pound Warren makes a good impression on people with his friendly, down-to-earth manner. He has a sunny smile and a ready handshake. No small political asset is his family of six children.

Undefeated Till '48

Warren never lost an election until he ran for the vice-presidency on the 1948 GOP ticket. But he bounced back to defeat Democrat James Roosevelt for governor in 1950 by over a million votes.

This year Warren won six delegates to 40 for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio in the Wisconsin primary. Even so, political writers there tagged him as a strong campaigner.

Earl Warren was born in Los Angeles on March 19, 1891. His father, Methias, a railroad worker, was born in Norway; his mother, in Sweden. As a boy in Bakersfield, he carried a newspaper route, worked as a railroad call boy and even tried his luck as a book salesman.

World War I Vet

He was graduated from the University of California in 1912 and got his law degree there two years later. When World War I came he enlisted as a buck private in 1917.

He was discharged as a tenant in 1918.

Warren broke into a legislative clerk, district attorney of Alameda County. When his boss quit, pointed district attorney the age of 33. Quickly a reputation as a prosecutor; he was elected and returned again in 1934.

Closed Gambling

The Democrats elected governor in 50-odd years but Republican Earl Warren swept in an attorney closing his four-year term. After he became 1942, he was offered can nomination for 1944 but he turned greatest political triumph when he gained the both parties for governor.

Warren was married an attractive young den-born Mrs. Nina Parsons, with a son, James Earl, Jr., 22; Dorothy, 19, and Robert, 17.

Picture of a Pair who just waked up

HERE in the driveway is a Buick. It has just arrived. It belongs to this proud young couple. They've just "arrived" too.

They've arrived at a discovery—the discovery that owning a Buick instead of a "low-priced car" isn't so much a matter of money.

It's a matter of knowing the facts of life. Buick prices are closer to the prices of smaller, less powerful, less distinguished cars than most people think.

Why don't you check into this?

You'll find you could pay $300 to $400 more — and still not match the horsepower of this nimble beauty.

You could pay hundreds of dollars more—and still not get any more interior room, or richer fabrics.

But that's only part of the story.

The big thing about any car is the way it goes. So you ought to find out how this car rides the road—the freedom from bobble and sway that cost a million real dollars to develop.

You ought to sample the way Dynaflo Drive* feeds the power — with a steady swoop and unbroken smoothness in city traffic, on hills, out on the open road.

And you ought to know how it feels to tou off that Fireball 8 Engine. With all its might this high-compression valve-in-head gets a of miles from a gallon of gas.

We'll tell you this—because a lot of folks ha told us this: No matter what car you're driv now—no matter what cars you've looked at they'll never seem the same after you try the one.

Just give us a chance to prove it — and you have a lot of fun.

Health Talks

Presented by the State Medical Association of Texas

...column of the body... hole through which the fluid of the brain, the cerebrospinal fluid drips. Surrounding that is the butterfly shape of pithy grey material. And around that is a solid white material of the vertebral disk.

There are three wrappings to the spinal cord, wrappings continuous with the meninges of the brain; they are called pia mater, arachnoid and dura mater, thin membranes which form coats for this column.

As in all parts of the body, the spinal column has some incoming tracks and some outgoing tracks as well as switch tracks. These tracks (called tracts in medicine) lie in the white material of the column with most of the incoming or descending tracks on the left side of the column, the outgoing or ascending tracks on the right and the switches around the butterfly-shaped middle of the disk.

Some tracks don't go all the way down the spinal column. They go just part way, edge over toward the butterfly, and then start back up. Others go farther down. But down about the 20th disk, in the midback region known as the lumbar area, there is no more direct descending of the nerve tracks; those below that area only ascend, all coming together at the first lumbar junction and then all descending together to many parts of the body, outside of the spinal column.

Those tracks going down, called the descending tracts, are the motor nerve tracks of the spinal column, the ones that create action and motion. Those tracks coming up, the ascending tracts, are the sensory nerve tracts of the spinal cord, the ones that create feelings of cold and hot, pain and such.

Through an involved, intricate communication system, therefore, when something stirs the big butterfly wings in the brain, the message is sent down through the spinal cord to the particular butterfly that is supposed to send the message on out to the part of the body that needs to respond. While that message is being sent to some part of the body, the butterfly also flutters his other receiving wing, and the message is sent back up the spinal column to the brain. When the part of the body responds to the action that the brain sent it, the brain has received its message and can record the feeling associated with the action.

That sort of thing is going on all the time to all different parts of the body.

When more action is required, more messages are sent, messages in the form of a stimulating substance for that part of the body. When less action is required, the brain sends messages that will slow down the action, sedative substances for that part of the body.

From the eyes, ears, nose and mouth the brain picks up the clues as to the needs for all parts of the body. All the internal organs of the body also send messages to the brain as to their needs. And the spinal column with its nerves fulfills the job of getting the messages to the different parts of the body, messages which muscles act upon.

Count 2: Suit to recover the above described property by virtue of continuous, open and adverse possession for more than ten years.

If this Citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued this 22nd day of May, A.D., 1952.

DP GIRL FINDS HOME

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—After wandering two-thirds of the way around the world since she was 9, a South Bend housewife now has a home and family of her own.

Mrs. Wanda Zmyslo, 20, became a displaced person in 1940, when the Russians forced her family from their home in Poland and into a Siberian labor camp. Her father was eventually shot and her mother poisoned.

After many trials she entered the United States from a Mexican orphanage in 1948, under the sponsorship of distant relatives. Mrs. Zmyslo recently became a mother on the first anniversary of her marriage.

FIGHT OVER BANNER—Two delegates to the Texas Democratic convention in San Antonio exchange blows after part of the delegation bolted and left the meeting to hold a rump session.

The Loyal Democrats walked out because they were opposed to the majority which favors Gov. Allan Shivers' plan to send an uninducted delegation to Chicago. The fight was caused when a

Farmers May Join Cotton Growers Association And Secure Laborers

Farmers in the Littlefield territory who want or plan to use Mexican National labor for hoeing or pulling cotton may secure help by joining the West Littlefield Cotton Growers Association office at Hampton's Gin, 4 miles west of Littlefield, on the Bula Highway, or at Hampton's Gin at Spade.

The association will recruit the laborers and deliver them to Hampton's gin west of Littlefield and return them to the port of entry, when the farmer has completed his work.

Membership fee in the association is three cents per acre of land, cultivated by the farmer.

Additional information concerning the association and its work may be secured at either of the two Hampton gins.

Clayton Wood, Vocational Agriculture teacher at Chico (Wise County) has been employed as association manager and began his duties June 2.
