Plea For Election Investigation Spreads To House

Duvall Sends Up Resolution; No Action Yet

Irregularities Prior To And During Primaries Covered

AUSTIN (AP)—Clamor for investigation of alleged law violations and irregularities in the July and August Democratic primaries spread to both houses of the legislature Friday.

Rep. Duvall of Tarrant county sent to the speaker's desk a resolution proposing that charges of illegal practices indulged in prior to and during the primaries.

Initial efforts to start a legislative inquiry commenced in the senate Thursday.

The senate state affairs committee later recommended that the resolution introduced Thursday by Senator Walter Woodward be adopted.

It was to come to the floor for final consideration later. Opponents of the senate investigation gained a temporary advantage Friday when they mustered sufficient strength to prevent the resolution from being taken up immediately.

The house refused to suspend its rules to permit Duvall's resolution to be read and considered. Time for consideration of resolutions had expired.

Well, the storm came up, the first blow is over but there's an ominous still prevailing; that forebodes fateful encounters to come.

We're all sure tired of politics. Yeah, all tired but try and find a way to converse more than ten minutes without getting around to politics. Newspapers, including this one, are full of politics because the public mind is full of politics right now.

There's politics and politics; all kinds, shapes, colors; politics practiced for many reasons. Not all politics in this country, or this town, is practiced to get, keep, kick out or return people in and to public offices. Politics is practiced in every bridge club, every fraternal organization, every service club, every business and professional organization and for various and sundry reasons. Objectives may be high or low; methods may be honest or dishonest; victory may be gained or defeat suffered because somebody got the wrong slant on his particular political interest. Mouth-to-mouth gossip is a low form. Clear presentation of ideas with honest purpose of serving the whole people is a high form.

But, we started out talking about storm. Which storm? Oh, any storm! Take your choice; rain storms, windstorms, word storms, election storms, any kind. The election storm, of course, is the principal one. It will be a full-grown hurricane that will rage for months. It will be a nasty experience for Texas, but if the ballot can be made more pure and the state ridden of some pernicious leeches that have preyed on the body politic for some years it will be worth all the trouble.

School will open here a week from Monday morning. More than 300 children will answer the call and begin another session. There are two experiences of childhood that are equally bitter; one is to harbor an ambition to go to school and be unable to do so; the other is the feeling a child has on his first day in a new school. Wonder how many children in Big Spring of school age will be unable to go to school because they do not have sufficient clothing, or because of some other misfortune of which they are not personally responsible? If you have clothing or shoes (CONTINUED ON PAGE 6)

WOMAN RUNS TEXAS SMITHY

The village blacksmith of Borger, Tex., is strikingly different from the brawny character popularized in American folk lore. Mrs. J. M. Bradford, who is five feet, eight inches tall and weighs 115 pounds, took over the job when her husband died last winter. A former milliner with five children to support, Mrs. Bradford said she would "rather shoe a horse any day than try a new hat on a finicky woman." (Associated Press Photo)

Eagle Pass Endangered; Tracks Out

Southern Pacific Detours Via T. and P.; Highway One Threatened

DEL RIO (AP)—The flooded Rio Grande Friday washed away two thirds of the international bridge here constructed three years ago at a cost of $150,000.

EAGLE PASS—Swollen by extraordinary rains on its watershed, the Rio Grande overflowed its banks Friday, inundating streets of Eagle Pass business district. It was feared the entire city would be flooded if the river continued.

Adobe buildings were crumbling, endangering lives of inhabitants trying to save personal belongings. The river had risen to within a foot of the floor of the international bridge. Debris was crashing against the railing; wreckage of houses, bodies of drowned sheep and cattle were racing past.

The Southern Pacific was detouring trains via the Texas & Pacific Friday morning. Three trains passed through here at 2 p. m. Friday, the last one, a passenger train, passing about 2:30 p. m.

Although precipitation registered at the weather bureau, located at the bridge here, was only .35 inch for the 24 hours ending at 7 a. m., an additional 1.1 inch fell from 7 a. m. to 1:50 p. m. A slow drizzle was falling throughout West Texas, according to reports.

The motor bus from Lubbock arrived on schedule time Friday morning with the report that very little rain had fallen on the route since Wednesday.

Bus service, however, had to be suspended between Big Spring and San Angelo due to bad condition of highway No. 9 in southern Howard and across the corner of Glasscock county.

The lake near the Howard county line, which went over highway No. 9 several weeks ago following a heavy rain was rising Friday afternoon, with water already lapping over the edge of the highway dump.

W. A. French, division engineer of the highway department, from Abilene, came out Friday morning with Ed Lowe, district foreman, to inspect the road to determine how to keep the road open in case the water rises further.

French said on returning to town that he expected to send a gas shovel to the scene and build a new dump. The new dump will be on the correct location according to the department plans for reconstruction of highway No. 9, and when the road is re-built through the county it will stand as a permanent part of the highway.

Miss Georgia Owens has returned from a visit with relatives in San Antonio and Marlin.

The Service Of Your Newspaper

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN in any city if it should be suddenly deprived of its daily newspaper?

Perhaps the best answer to that question can be found in what actually did happen at St. Louis, Missouri, recently when the town's two daily newspapers suspended publication for several days during a wage scale controversy with printers.

With the public cut off from its authentic sources of news, all sorts of wild rumors began to fill the air, gaining speed—and believers—as they traveled.

Said one rumor: A terrible murder had been committed near the city.

Said another rumor: Bonus rolls had blown up the White House.

Said a third: A white House had been assassinated.

The city was in a turmoil. Wild stories of every sort were circulated and—human nature being what it is—found eager believers.

Crowder Lets Yankees Have Only Two Hits

League Leaders Shut Out Until Ninth; Homers Win For Macks

NEW YORK—General Alvin Crowder pitched Washington to a 6-2 victory over the Yankees Thursday and showed the league leaders the nearest thing to a shut-out they have seen all season.

Crowder gave only two hits and didn't allow a run until one was out in the ninth. The Yanks came through then on Charlie Ruffings' pinchsingle, giving them a record of 144 games without having been blanked.

Their mark is only one short of the all-time major league record, set jointly by the Boston Nationals and the Phillies in 1894, when they each went through a 132 game season without a shutout and two over the Yanks' own "modern" record. Washington 012 000 210-6

ATHLETICS 5, TIGERS

home runs in the sixth inning brought about the downfall of young Tommy Bridges. Thursday and gave the Athletics a 5-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers. The A's won the series, three games to two.

Up to the sixth, Bridges pitched great ball and was tied at 1-1 in a battle with Rube Walberg. But at that point he tossed home run balls to Al Simmons and Elmer Miller, with a man on base each time, and the four runs were just enough to decide the game.

Walberg marked up his 15th victory of the season against nine defeats although he allowed seven hits while the A's got only nine off Bridges and Buck Marrow.

There is probably no clearer example of the important part that newspapers play in our daily lives. But's experience proves that suspension of newspapers even for a limited time can become a calamity of dangerous proportions.

Rumor and falsehood sink in the darkness, but truth loves the light and never upturns.

All of which helps explain why newspaper editors, recognizing their public duty, are insistent in their demand for freedom of the press and opposed to censorship of any kind, since censorship is merely a form of suppress on of the news.

Not a few editors, faced with contentions by judges who arrogate unto themselves the power to say what the public shall read—and what it shall not—have gone to jail in defense of this principle.

"The truth hurts" says the old adage—but publication of the truth never hurt any community.

PIRATES 6, SAVAGES 3
GALVESTON—One big inning was enough to settle a ball game here Thursday night as the Galveston Pirates defeated Longview, 6-3.

Lefty Darrow led his team to a 6-3 victory over the Cannibal in the eighth inning. The Cannibal scored three runs in the fifth only to have the Buc come back in their half to score five. Galveston counted a final tally in the seventh.

Tom Conlan gave up only six hits as compared to the nine Darrow allowed but he was hampered by critical errors on the part of his teammates and his own wildness. He walked three men in the big fifth, and both of the Cannibal errors were made in that frame.

Conlan and Saverid; Darrow and Rowland.

STEEPS 5, BUFFALOES 4
HOUSTON—Oscar Fuhr, venerable pitcher who beat Houston here last Tuesday night, twirled brilliant relief ball Thursday night and Dallas nosed out the Buffs 5-4 to stay within a game of Beaumont.

In the eighth inning, Stebbins tripled to score Yater. The tying run was on third with none out when Fuhr went to Minogue's rescue.

Eye filed to Langford in short left and Stebbins stayed on third. Holman made a neat play on Peck's hopper and threw home, Stebbins being out in a chase. Holman to McMullen to Holman. Peck tried to go to second on the play, but was out. Holman to James.

Max Baer Is New Threat For Sharkey

Defeat Of Ernie Schaaf Puts Him In Front Rank Of Contenders

Those two falling fists sent Ernie Schaaf, big Bostonian reeling to a crushing defeat in the Chicago stadium and Baer to the front ranks of the heavyweight contenders.

Baer's victory will go in the record books as a 10 round decision, but to the crowd of 8,500 who saw Schaaf stretched unconscious on the floor at the final bell, it was a knockout.

The final bell rang just 10 seconds too soon to keep the referee from counting out Schaaf, hitherto regarded as one of the two or three foremost heavyweights.

Staging a whirlwind finish in the last three rounds, Baer, the 23-year-old German-Jewish-American from Livermore, Calif., knocked out Schaaf's early lead, battered the brawny sailor to exhaustion and then felled him with the two punches.

Baer ripped his two fists into the weary Schaaf's head as the Bostonian came staggering off the ropes in the last few seconds of the final round. Schaaf toppled face forward as if felled by an axe. Just as his face buried itself in the canvas, the last bell changed.

Schaaf's seconds piled into the ring, lifted him to a sitting position and worked frantically to bring him back to consciousness. Schaaf was completely out.

Had there been another round, Schaaf wouldn't have come out for it.

Bright Spots In Business

ST. LOUIS—Volume of orders received from retail merchants during the past ten days was the largest for any similar period this year, according to Hamilton-Brown Shoe company here. August business showed an increase over August of last year, the company reported.

ST. LOUIS—A "definite upward trend in the building industry here" was reported by Frank A. Heuser, deputy building commissioner. Building permits during August averaged $200,000 a day and on one day reached a total of $67,000, Heuser said.

DALLAS, Texas (UP)—Contract for a storm sewer to cost $98,153 was let here today by the city council.

MALLEN—Twenty-six farmers living near Linn in Hidalgo county have repaid their federal farm loans and the community has the distinction of being first in the United States where all loans are paid in full. The loans approximated $1,000, according to Ed Onstot, field inspector for the farm loan service, who said the Dallas office would distribute a bulletin acclaiming the success of Linn community farmers in repaying their loans.

PHILADELPHIA—Charles H. McAllen, president of the Pullman company, announced today more than 2,100 employees of the railroad in the locomotive and car repair shops will resume work this month. Repairs to 3,500 cars and 75 locomotives at a cost of $1,200,000 will be made.

PHILADELPHIA—Industrial activity in the Philadelphia area showed some seasonal improvement for August, the Federal Reserve bank declared today in its monthly review of business and financial conditions.

Wellington Youth To Remain For Crack At Last Winner

Young Kid Whittington, who came all the way from Wellington to beat Red McGinty, and who intends to stay here until he does, made his debut before local boxing fans last night.

The elder and more talented of the McGintys did not show up, had roads preventing him from filling his engagement with the hard-hitting protégé of Ray Simmons, Casey Jones, ex-gob and local veteran, look off the swarthy youngster and staggered through two hectic rounds before his seconds tossed in the towel.

Whittington took the best that Jones could offer without being phased and outboxed the sailor from the first minute to the last. His left hand beat a constant tattoo on Jones' head and his right twice measured Jones to the floor. Casey Jones was the loser.

only to let Pritchard clinch him out of it. Skeeter Graves and Stinky Davis put up an interesting exhibition in the last preliminary with honors about even. Whittington will feature the Cagano bill next Thursday night, with McGinty sought as his opponent.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN PICTURES

HOOVER IN AN UNUSUAL POSE

New U. S. Net Champ

NORTH DAKOTA SAND HILLS BEING MINED FOR GOLD

Discovery of gold in the sand dunes of northwestern North Dakota has led to the use of a special oil flotation and amalgamation process, the first near Minot, N. D. No "gold rush" is anticipated, however. The mining operations with which is shown here, installed every available government claim. (Associated Press Photo)

TINY JAPANESE IN COAST LEAGUE

Kenso Nushida (right), pitcher for the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league, is believed to be the only Japanese in Class AA, or better, baseball. Five feet one inch tall and weighing 110 pounds, Nushida also may be the smallest player in organized ball. With him is Manuel Salvo, biggest man on the club. (Associated Press Photo)

START OF STRATOSPHERE TRIP

Picture above shows the start of Auguste Piccard's balloon trip from Zurich, Switzerland, into the stratosphere. Below Professor Piccard is shown talking to spectators as his balloon was being prepared for the ascent. Twelve hours later he and his assistant, Max Cosyns, landed in Italy after having gazed on the world from the greatest altitude ever attained by man—more than 10 miles. (Associated Press Photos)

Fall Hat Models

Here are two smart fall hats. Above is a boat-shaped turtle back of black velvet with veil. Below is a mouseline de soie and soie combination with rhinestone ornament. (Associated Press Photos)

Marathon Walker

Leslie Kaczander walked from New York to Los Angeles in 62 days, averaging 58 1/2 miles a day to set what was called a new record for the transcontinental jaunt. (Associated Press Photo)

OLD-TIME SPORT LEADERS TOGETHER IN MOVIES

PICCARD MAKES SECOND TRIP TO STRATOSPHERE

Prof. Auguste Piccard, noted Belgian scientist, made his second perilous balloon ascent into the stratosphere in the cause of science. He was principally interested in studying the behavior of cosmic rays 10 miles above the earth. The balloon's airtight gondola, which is fitted up with scientific instruments, is shown as it was being prepared for the ascent. Professor Piccard is shown (right) with his son at Zurich, Switzerland, where the flight started. He landed about half way between Milan and Verona in Italy. (Associated Press Photo)

SHOW NEW HAIR-DRESSING STYLES

STRIKING ILLINOIS COAL MINERS' CARAVAN HALTED

Part of the motor caravan of nearly 15,000 coal miners from central Illinois is shown as it was temporarily halted by sheriff's deputies near Pinckneyville. The motorcade, enroute to Franklin county to persuade miners there to stop work, was turned back by clubs and shotguns in the hands of 600 deputized citizens just after crossing the Franklin county line. (Associated Press Photo)

MR. HOOVER, THE FISHERMAN

It's a long time between fishing trips for President Hoover and he didn't lose a minute enjoying his favorite sport during a fishing cruise on Chesapeake Bay. The day this picture was made he caught 35 fish, one of them a three-foot trout. Seated behind the President is Secretary Hyde, one of the cabinet's better-known anglers. On the right is a secret service man. (Associated Press Photo)

CHAUTER XXXIII

There was only a week in which to prepare for the journey. Lottie gave notice to her employer that she was leaving and did it in such a way that Henri, bursting into aggrieved tears, demanded that she pack her belongings and go immediately!

Lottie did that. She had no sooner reached her apartment than the telephone rang.

"I'm not at home," she told Sallie. "It's for me it's Henri. He probably wants to ask me to come back."

The voice at the other end of the wire was Henri's.

"But Miss Carr can never be reached at home in the day time," Sallie explained deftly. "Miss Carr is employed."

There was a Galle sputter at the other end of the connection. Sallie's manner was composed as she answered. "Oh, you are Miss Carr's employer? She did not come in today?"

With one hand over the transmitter she turned, smiling. "It's Henri all right. He wants to hire you back."

"Tell him I haven't come in yet," Sallie said. "Say you'll deliver the message when I see him."

Obligingly Sallie complied. "You're really going to South America, are you?"

Lottie sensed worry in Sallie's tone and hastily explained Mona's plan in regard to the apartment. "I'll pay half the rent until the lease expires anyway. That'll be next October. I want a home to come back to."

"Maybe I can get another girl to come in while you are gone and save you that expense."

Lottie shook her head. "It's all right. Get another girl to come in if you like, but get her out again when I come back, won't you? Meanwhile I'll swing my share of the rent. I can afford it," she added, "and I'll have a place to come back to."

The days flew by. Battered at the telephone by a repentant Henri who had not taken her announcement of a new job and departure from town seriously, Lottie finally capitulated to the extent of working two afternoons.

The little apartment was piled with luggage. A wardrobe trunk stood open, filled with a careful selection of clothes. Sallie brought a nurse who had lived in the tropics who offered much advice.

"Take cotton clothing," she insisted. "Even cotton underwear. It's much cooler. Be sure all your hose are light colored. Mosquitoes feast on darker shades."

She urged Lottie to take plenty of cotton socks and leather instead of rubber soled sports shoes. Laundry was cheap but not rapid. The girls would need plenty of clothes. They ordered plenty.

Lottie, whirling back and forth between her own apartment and Mona's home, arrived with this bit of information, that "tricky little model just Mona's size," this hint as to sea sickness.

"I hear the Miranda is a regular tub," she insisted, "and that means mal de mer with a vengeance."

Mona was equally busy. There were papers to sign, the house to close, servants to discharge temporarily and pay for the interval. Mona was too recently removed from the terrors of a lost job to do anything except what she considered the right thing by her employees.

The girls bought cameras, dark glasses, magazines (the Miranda carried no supply of fancy little deck bags to hold glasses, books and handkerchiefs).

A supply of a remedy for sea sickness. Mrs. Callahan had told her about it. "How does your family feel about the trip?" Lottie asked Mona.

"Great! I'll see you know," Mona replied. "I've packed articles for the dozen, for the trip was a long one."

"The booklet we can get laundry done at all while we are waiting," objected Mona. "Do we need all these things in our cabin?"

"Laundresses come down to the boat," Sallie informed her amusedly. "Very dressy laundresses, wearing the duds other travelers were silly enough to entrust to them on earlier voyages."

"They'll have to leave a deposit, then," Lottie declared. "Tarpaulins and umbrellas for the rainy season, chiffons for evening, very little silk. And countless hose!"

"It seems too bad to leave all those knockout clothes here," Lottie murmured, referring to her beloved evening dresses. "But it would be worse to take them and have them ruined."

Mona had met with little difficulty in booking passage. An official from the Virgin Islands had cancelled a suite. It was, obviously, the best to be had on the Miranda and Mona promptly engaged it.

There were telephone calls, good-bys, last minute purchases. Sallie rushed to buy a six-months' stock of cosmetics and packed them compactly and cleverly in a single small overnight bag.

"What are you going to do with the Empress?" Lottie asked. She had hoped that a quixotic urge would insist that Mona present it to Steve.

"Leave it with Withington's, of course," Mona had decided against taking any jewels except her wedding ring. They would only prove a burden.

Mona came and went. Tuesday, Wednesday. They were to sail Wednesday afternoon at four.

The baggage had gone aboard the day before. Only the last few things remained to be done. A single suitcase for last minute packing lay open on the chaise longue.

For the most part, Mona had limited her wardrobe to black and white or simply white. Black was a difficult color to wear in the heat. It was warm and out of keeping with tropical surroundings.

"Mourning isn't used as much as it has been," she told Lottie. "And, even though I am looking for some way to get around the will, I loved my husband. In a way, I mean, I love the way I love you."

"I'm not going with the idea of attempting to bowl anyone over," Mona remarked, repeating a phrase that was a favorite of Lottie's. "You don't have to attempt to do that, darling," Lottie said. "You do it no matter what your intentions are."

The bags were packed and Lottie and Mona were arrayed in dark winter dresses to be shed the second day out. Two fur coats lay waiting to be worn to the boat and then brought back by Sallie and placed in storage.

"Make your first costume do for the first two days," Sallie told them. "No body dresses on boats like the Miranda. The third day probably will be warm enough to start emulating summer."

Luncheon was served in Mona's sitting room. Later the car brought over the entire Moran family. They were going to the boat.

Mona and Lottie, hatted and coated, flew about checking everything. A taxi was called for the remaining baggage and Sallie, as the least interested member of the party about to see the girls off, consented to ride with the bags. Lottie and Mona rode in the car with the Morans.

Servants would close the house and lock it within an hour. As the car whirled through the park Mona felt that a new era in her life was beginning. And so it proved.
