SUPPORT THE RED CROSS

This is the time of year when the annual roll-call of the Red Cross makes its appeal to every helpfully-minded American. It is a call that ought to be regarded; for the Red Cross is the nation's greatest mainstay when calamity strikes.

One thing that makes the Red Cross effective is the promptness with which it moves when called upon. It can only do that by having ample cash reserves on hand at all times with which to mobilize the forces of relief. So, even though the year 1933 has been fortunately and singularly free from major catastrophes, such as have brought the Red Cross to the fore in past years, it is just as important that it should receive its annual contributions as it ever has been.

This winter, as last, much of the relief work of the Red Cross will be in taking care of the homeless and unemployed. There are fewer, numerically, to be looked after this year than last; more men and women are back at work, and more are being cared for through Governmental and State relief works. There is ground for great hope in the President's program of Civil Works, which is intended to give employment at fair wages to several millions for the next few months. But there is still a huge burden to be carried by those who still have something left, and it is a burden which ought to be shared by everybody.

There is a double reason, therefore, for giving liberally to the Red Cross this year. Keep its coffers filled against the sudden unexpected catastrophe, which may strike anywhere, at any time, and throw hundreds or thousands into distress. See that this great instrument of aid to the suffering is not handicapped in its work of keeping American workers from starvation until the crisis is past.

EIGHT YEARS AGO IN LITTLEFIELD

(Excerpts from Lamb Co. Leader)

Mrs. Maude Foster closed a deal Wednesday wherein she traded the equipment of the Gold Star Cafe to W. Kennedy for his 88.10 acre farm two and one-half miles east of Littlefield, on Oklahoma Avenue.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Smith, who live six miles north of Littlefield, an eight pound boy, Benjamin Hamilton, Monday, November 30th.

First train over the new Doud line of the Santa Fe from Lubbock to Bledsoe was run Tuesday with a heavy tonnage.

W. K. Dickenson of Lubbock, owner of extensive ranch interests, near Tatum, N. M., shipped in a carload of full blood cattle and shipped on the first east bound train several cars of cattle to Kansas City. Mr. Dickenson holds the distinction of shipping on the first train in and the first train out of both Bledsoe and Brownfield.

As this paper goes to press a total of 2979 bales of cotton have been signed here, according to local ginners.

The brick work on Anton, new school building has been completed. Work on the roof, and the finishing and interior work is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

The concrete block residence and garage being erected in Broadacres addition, for Peter Peterson, is nearing completion.

Palace Featuring "Too Much Harmony" Saturday Midnight

"Too Much Harmony," Paramount's lavish musical production, playing at the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight and Sunday afternoon, has an imposing cast, including Bing Crosby, Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Harry Green, Lilyan Tashman and Ned Sparks.

The story revolves around the activities of a group of show people, and the plot follows them off stage and backstage, in their homes and in their dressing rooms, revealing all of the glamour in the lives of those folks whose job it is to make people laugh and cry.

Bing Crosby, cast as a well-known musical comedy star, is engaged to Lilyan Tashman, a money-grabbing piece of blonde tinsel. While on a trip, he hears Judith Allen singing in her small-time vaudeville act, which includes a pair of alleged comedians, Jack Oakie and Skeets Gallagher.

He falls in love with her, brings the entire team to Broadway to appear in his show, and discovers, much to his chagrin, that Judith is virtually engaged to Oakie. He attempts to conceal his love, but it is futile, and he incurs the wrath of both Lilyan and Jack.

At this point, there is too little harmony, with the lovelorn Judith refusing to sing, Oakie refusing to improve his act, Lilyan refusing to give up her man. However, a series of novel sequences solves the romantic jig-saw, and all hands are happy during the grand finale of the show on opening night.

Eight brand new hit tunes were especially written for the film. Several are vocalized by Crosby, one by Judith Allen, and two are production numbers. Dances were devised and staged by LeRoy Prinz. Edward Sutherland directed.

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardul has helped thousands of women: "I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unnerved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day. My mother had taken Cardul, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted doing so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time. Cardul is sold by local druggists."

In Their Footsteps

NO longer can Thanksgiving be regarded as an observance grown rather meaningless with the years. Its original purpose is once more righteously restored and made one with our own. If it be true that "History repeats itself," then that surely is the case today.

The trials and troubles of the Pilgrims have been ours, under different names, in modern garb. And now, with time to pause and take stock of our blessings, we find reason to observe a holiday once almost meaningless.

Just as that first Thanksgiving became yearly tradition, at least in spirit, let us resolve to make this Thanksgiving a point from which to move ahead, taking stock of our advantages and resolving to make each succeeding year a greater cause for "Thanksgiving."

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from some synthetic, habit-forming cathartic may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be corrected in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. B. A.

Of your cordial patronage, and with all good wishes for you on Thanksgiving, we are yours, always ready to serve,

Prize Winner In National Contest For Car Salesmen

J. H. TRIMBLE

The popularity of the Dodge and Plymouth automobiles, and an outstanding example of progressive sales work, is contained in the accomplishment of J. H. Trimble of the Ireland-Beavers Motor Co., Hereford, Dodge and Plymouth dealers, who has spent much of his time for the past few months in Littlefield and territory.

Mr. Trimble, who was a resident of Littlefield in 1925, and who now spends much of his time in this city and section, is very well known and highly regarded as a man and as an automobile salesman.

The accomplishment of Mr. Trimble, referred to in this article, was that of being one of the capital prize winners in a national contest for August and September, conducted by the manufacturers of Dodge and Plymouth cars.

First Salary Checks Received Under Civil Works Plan

Nearly 105,000 Texans drew their first week's wages Saturday under the civil works construction program, and State and Federal agencies are considering plans to put additional thousands to work, and give remunerative employment to women who must support themselves and dependents.

It was pay day for thousands who had been unemployed for months—some of them for as long as two years. Paymasters of the civil works administration released $1,298,192 to workmen in virtually every county of the state.

To Expand Program Those who received pay checks were recruited from the direct relief rolls. The expanded program will take care of those who have not yet gone on direct relief but who might be forced to unless given employment.

Under the plan as outlined, only those who are physically unable to work will be retained on direct relief.

Officials of the livestock sanitary commission, the state health department, the reclamation department, the board of water engineers and representatives of federal agencies in charge of predatory animal and rodent control, plant borer eradication and mosquito and malaria control conferred with Westbrook toward getting more projects started.

From Washington it was announced that federal departments would undertake work in Texas that would put an additional 5,000 men on the payroll.

An extensive cattle tick eradication program in East Texas will be undertaken at a cost of $353,480 and supply 2,180 men with approximately 350,000 hours of work. The tick work will center in Angelina, Chambers, Galveston, Hardin, Jasper, Jefferson, Liberty, Newton, Orange, Polk, Sabine, San Augustine, Shelby, Trinity and Tyler counties.

Get Additional Funds It was anticipated in Washington that additional funds would be made available to the civil works administration when the current appropriation of $400,000,000 is exhausted, which probably will be about February 15.

Work has been started in Texas on approximately 2,000 projects. Westbrook said 95,000 families and 10,000 single persons had been lifted from relief rolls through the C. W. A. This has lightened the relief load to such an extent that officials made plans to give more substantial allotments to families remaining on the rolls. In the past, Westbrook said, needs have been inadequate, at approximately $10 per family.

Plans to give unemployed employment is taking shape. The women will be employed in teaching, nursing, sewing, canning operations, clerical work and other associated works.

Paydays in representative localities were:

Fort Worth, 4,000 men, $43,000; Dallas, 4,000 men, between $20,000 and $35,000; Travis county, 3,200 men, $50,000; San Antonio, 5,500 workers, $60,000, with an additional $6,903 paid to 609 men on civic improvements; Harris county, 6,500 workers, $90,000; Port Arthur, 700 workers, $9,000; Borger, 265 workers, $3,400; Denison, 170 workers, $1,214; Wilbarger county, 1,700 workers; Waco 914 workers, $9,278; Amarillo, 2,200 workers, $30,000; Corsicana, 582 workers, $7,500; Gregg county, 400 workers, $5,000.

Local Church To Hold Special After Harvest Service

The pastor of the local Methodist church has announced that the church is going to celebrate after the fashion of a very old feast noted on the calendar of the Jews at the Feast of the Ingathering. "After harvest, the ingathering," he said, "the Jews set apart a Sabbath of rejoicing and thanksgiving for the bounteous gifts of Jehovah." On this Sabbath the worshippers entered the Temple bearing palms and singing Psalms of victory and triumph. "It was a day of great happiness and grateful recognition of Jehovah and his goodness.

"If Jews in those old days," the pastor suggested, "were grateful enough to celebrate in such a way, it is not but fitting that we should have such a day?"

"This Feast of the Ingathering will afford an opportunity to those who care to make known to God our Father and to our fellowship in the faith," he went on to explain, "that we desire to make an offering of thanksgiving. Or as one put it in the church, 'A thank offering.' "It is understood that those who do not care to make a thank offering, who do not feel they owe God anything, will not be forced or coerced. It is only a public way of making known our thanks in a material way.

The church will be decorated in keeping with such a day. Products of the fields will be used to decorate. Special music will be prepared in keeping with the day. The pastor will prepare a sermon making plain what it is all about.

This is something different and new.

The date is December 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Croom of Electra are guests this week of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Yarbrough and family.

Governor Ferguson Not To Run In 1934

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has decided that she will not be a candidate for Governor in 1934.

In a formal statement Wednesday she said she would not again aspire to the office she now holds. However, there is some talk that her husband, James E. Ferguson, may run for the United States Senate, against Tom Connally of Marlin.

The Ferguson term will expire in January 1935.

High Value Placed On South Plains Crop for 1933

The largest agricultural crop in several years is being harvested on the South Plains.

While some crops for 1933 are not as large in total as in other years, the financial returns are by far the largest, and the year's crops will probably bring between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000.

Cotton this year is $17.50 to $20 a bale higher than at the same time last year. The additional production, including the plowup payoff and the increased yields will probably add $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 to the 1932 crop value.

Grain Acreage Increased
Gain in acreage of grain sorghum, added to greatly increased prices for crops, and a possibility of some sale of surplus feed, will likewise boost the value of that crop.

The one disconcerting factor is the cattle market. There has been no increase in prices and feeding programs are being held up pending developments.

The crops may be divided into seven groups: cotton, grain sorghums, wheat, corn, produce, cattle and other livestock.

Cotton "Money" Crop
Cotton—probable value, $23,300,000 to $25,750,000; 350,000 to 400,000 bales with present price of $45 a bale or better, $15,750,000 to $18,000,000; plowup checks, $6,300,000 and cotton seed, $1,250,000 to $1,450,000.

Grain sorghums—$9,050,000; $4,500 cars available for sale of surplus, $1,135,000; crop fed to livestock, $7,615,000 to $8,000,000; sudan crop, 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 pounds, $300,000 to $350,000.

Wheat—1933 crop estimated at 3,000 to 3,500 cars, with probably one fourth more not yet moved out, $2,600,000 to $3,000,000; wheat allotment payments $900,000 with 80 per cent paid this fall.

Corn Yield Good
Corn—1,500,000 bushels, approximately that of last year and grown chiefly in Terry, Gaines and Yoakum counties, $600,000 to $750,000.

Produce—$5,000,000 business this year, including poultry, eggs, butter, butterfat, turkey, etc. Turkey prices may add half a million.

Cattle—$2,700,000; the calf crop estimated at from 75,000 to 90,000 calves and comparatively few sold, $1,500,000 to $1,800,000; feeding crop estimated now at around 30,000 or half of last year's projects, $1,000,000.

Other Stock Profitable
Other livestock—$1,000,000 to $1,500,000. This includes sheep feeding, hogs, sale of horses and mules. Generally several thousand cars of hogs are shipped from the territory in a year. In Lubbock, for example, one firm has averaged 10 cars of hogs a week for several months, with a peak one week of 20 cars. Idalou, Abernathy, Hale Center, Plainview, Levelland, Brownfield, Littlefield and Tahoka are the main shipping centers. There are other towns also that ship regularly.

There are other small crops that bring in good returns, such as alfalfa, broom corn, rye, produce, soybeans, cowpeas and sunflowers. The alfalfa, for example, is a good source of income. Commercially, Hale county probably grows 10,000 tons or more, with this year's crop averaging $10 a ton or better for four cuttings. Broomcorn will bring in more cash. Peak rail shipments was 39 cars one year. Much is now being trucked but around that amount this year would be worth double the 1932 crop.

Grazing Pays
Hale county farmers, and others, owning wheat, make good "side money" grazing sheep on pasture. Swisher county has some of this, as well as Hockley and Bailey. Cochran county farmers get in on sheep grazing as does a number of Lubbock county farmers.

Irrigation farmers in Bailey, Hale and Floyd counties make good returns on their investments, with produce and small acres of feed crops such as rye, cowpeas, soybeans, peanuts, tomatoes, sweet potatoes and spuds and onions. A large portion of local needs for produce is met by the sale of this item by farmers and irrigation farmers over the territory.

Thousands of farm homes this year, as in the past, will have well stocked cellars made from vegetables grown in gardens watered by the stock tank and the wind mill. An average of $100 per farm for the 25,000 or more farms in the territory represents $2,500,000 not included in the above estimates. And there are probably as many farm women with a pantry worth $200 to $500 or more as there are women without a supply.

COTTON CROP REPORT MADE
In a final report on the farm value of last year's cotton crop the department of agriculture has placed the figure at $483,935,000 for lint cotton and cotton seed combined.

The value of cotton lint was placed at $424,061,000 production being 13,002,000 bales. The weighted average price received by farmers for the crop marketing season, August, 1932, through July, 1933, was 6.52 cents a pound.

Cottonseed production value was placed at $59,874,000, the output being 5,782,000 tons and the average price $10.36 a ton.

CORN LOANS TO BE MADE
It has been announced by Secretary Wallace that corn loans will be made on the basis of 45 cents per bushel on farms, and that $150,000,000 of Reconstruction Corporation funds will be available.

Under the new plan the loans of 45 cents per bushel will be available to farmers to be secured by merchantable corn "properly stored and warehoused, provided the farmer agrees to take part in the farm administration's corn-hog production control program.

The original plan contemplated a loan to farmers based on 50 cents per bushel for number 2 December corn FOB Chicago. This meant that the loan value would decrease in proportion to distance of the farm from Chicago and that the value would also fall in proportion to grade.

Mrs. E. G. Elkins, pantry demonstrator for the Anton home demonstration club, took her family truck and drove to New Mexico where she loaded up with 4,000 pounds of tomatoes. Out of this she canned enough for her family's use and then sold the remainder. Mrs. Elkins and her mother-in-law made the trip in one day after sending the children off to school. She has filled nearly 900 containers for her pantry.

In the past, Westbrook said, relief allowances have been inadequate, averaging approximately $10 per family per month. The new plan to give unemployed employment is taking

GOLD RUSH ON

Buoyed by the new American and world gold prices, Alaska is experiencing what old timers say is the greatest awakening since the Klondike and Nome gold rushes of a generation ago.

From all parts of the interior arrivals here report that prospectors and miners everywhere are sinking holes for hidden channels on ground where the former price did not warrant taking chances.

Dredges at Fairbanks and on the lower Kuskokwim river are still digging despite the approach of zero weather.

Visitors from the Klondike this week said six big dredges near Dawson took out over a million dollars in gold and drills are now testing many miles of ground.

Nine Talked Of For Governor's Race

Names of nine proposed candidates in next summer's gubernatorial contest are being discussed in Texas political circles. Some are certain to make the race and others are awaiting further developments.

It is rather well determined that Edgar Witt, Tom Hunter, James V. Allred, and Clint C. Small will seek the honors, while there is a division of opinion whether Mrs. Ferguson will run for another term.

Some of Coke R. Stevenson's supporters still want him as a candidate, although he has indicated he will probably return to the House and be candidate again for Speaker. Others in the list of possibilities include Walter Cline, C. C. McDonald and Claud Pollard.

Cline has a group of friends who would like to see him a contestant, and McDonald would enter only in case the Fergusons stay out. Interest in Pollard has developed the last two weeks. He formerly was Attorney General and is now general attorney for Texas railroads.

If Hunter has any plans to run for any other state office, for railroad commissioner for instance, he has said nothing of it, but on the other hand, he has informed friends that he has "never stopped running for Governor." He was third in the gubernatorial race in 1932, while Small was third in that race two years previously. A report recently was published that Hunter would run for the railroad commission against Lon Smith.

Friends of Allred expect him to announce for Governor by Dec. 15, which will not constitute a news surprise, for his friends have been frank in declaring the Attorney General will run and that he will conduct an energetic campaign.

"They" May Run

Some of Ferguson's closest supporters have said "they" will run for Governor next Summer after having conferred with Ferguson, predicting that "they" will run on a vindication platform once more. Stevenson is convinced the Fergusons will be in the contest.

Should the Fergusons run once more, it will make the ninth major political campaign by either the husband or wife, for the husband ran twice for Governor and was elected, ran for United States Senator and was defeated by Earle B. Mayfield and ran for President of the United States in 1920 on the American party ticket, whose functions were confined solely to Texas. His wife already has run four times for Governor, having been elected twice, and should she run next Summer, it will be her fifth campaign with Husband Jim doing the campaigning, and running the executive office after each election.

In the Spring of 1932 Small was all set to run for Governor, for there was some expectation that Ross Sterling would not seek a second term, based upon apparently authentic reports. When Sterling threw his hat into the ring for another term Small kept out, believing the Houston man was entitled to another term, according to political tradition. So groups of his friends now say they regard his entry next year as certain.

Three men are avowed candidates for Lieutenant Governor. Walter Woodul of Houston, B. F. Berkeley of Alpine and R. M. Johnston of Palestine, while a possible entry is J. C. Duvall of Fort Worth. Some of the latter's friends were boosting him for that office when the last special session of the Legislature closed.

For Attorney General the expected aspirants are Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, Elbert Hooper of Denton and John McGraw of Dallas, Woodward already having become an avowed entrant.

Fergusonism May Be Issue

If Mrs. Ferguson seeks a third term as Governor, it is conceded by all political factions that the paramount issue will be Fergusonism once more, with a bitter campaign unavoidable, especially so because of certain developments in legislative investigations.

The Small platform will undergo but little or no change since three years ago, as he still declares the one big issue in this State is business recovery for the benefit of the whole, more and better payrolls, a cessation of tax drives for increases. Both he and Allred, assuming that they run, will have much to say regarding abuse of the pardon and parole system, blaming crime waves on men who have been let out of prison. Already there is a legislative movement re-vamping the criminal code for the protection of society, and with public interest awakened, this promises to be an issue. Crime costs the people of Texas $100,000,000 a year, equal to the total sum required to run every state department and all of its colleges and eleemosynary institutions.

BREAKS HIP BONE

Mrs. Alice McClure, mother of Mrs. C. W. Smiley, who makes her home at the Smiley farm, five miles west of town, suffered a fall Monday, breaking her hip bone.

On the advice of her local physician, she was taken to the Lubbock Sanitarium Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Smiley suffered a stroke last July, and since that time has been walking with a cane.

Home Demonstration Notes

By MISS RUBY MASHBURN
Home Demonstration Agent

Mrs. R. H. Shaffer of the Sudan Club, demonstrator of the farm food supply work, had her achievement program Friday, November 24. The small pantry was filled with canned cherries, plums, pears, peaches, apples, grape juice, and other fruits. Mrs. Shaffer has an orchard and says that she always has fruits to can, and her pantry certainly shows that she does. Having no more room in the small pantry or cupboard, Mrs. Shaffer had shelves erected along the kitchen wall for her canned vegetables and meats. She has more than five hundred containers, and she has spent no money for cans. She exchanged canned products for them. She also sold fruits and vegetables to pay for the shelves that were built in the kitchen. Besides her canned products Mrs. Shaffer has several hundred pounds of dried peas and beans including nine varieties, sixty gallons of syrup, a number of pumpkins, and plenty of sweet potatoes. Besides filling her own budget and canning for other people to obtain her cans, she has bought turkeys, canned them, sold the canned product, and made money on the deal.

A new cellar has been constructed at the home of Mrs. Ben Oglesby of Sudan, Cooperator in the farm, food supply work. The shelves are down the two side walls of this spacious new cellar. They are filled with canned leafy, starchy, and other vegetables, fruits, and meats. Besides this bountiful supply of canned products there are dried peas and beans.

Mrs. J. B. Teal of Sudan, Cooperator in the farm food supply, canned a beef last week and is highly pleased over the results. Mrs. Teal also has vegetables, tomatoes, and other fruits canned.

The cellar at the home of Mrs. J. F. Gibson, demonstrator of the farm food supply work of the Ruby club, is equipped with narrow shelves on which canned vegetables of all kinds, fruits, and meats are stored. There is a shelf for leafy vegetables, and for starchy vegetables, and for other vegetables, and for fruits, one for jellies and jams, and so on for each class of products.

The achievement day program was held at Mrs. N. A. Schreier's, farm food supply demonstrator of the Sandhill Club, Tuesday, Nov. 21. A shining new cellar has been built. The walls, floor and ceiling are concrete while the shelves are made of wood and are painted green. These shelves are neatly filled with vegetables, fruits, and meats. Below the shelves are containers of dried peas and beans, also pie mellons to be canned a little later when the crop is all harvested.

DIZZINESS

relieved by Black-Draught

"I decided to take Theodor's Black-Draught, as I had been having bilious spells," writes Mr. Chas. E. Stevens, of Columbus, Ind. "When I get bilious, I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. I get awfully dizzy. I know that I had better take something. After I found how good Black-Draught is, that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down. Thank to me, is a very bad feeling. Now you can get Black-Draught in the form of a SYRUP, for Children."

SECOND MONTHLY SCHOOL REPORT

By Supt. A. B. Sanders

The second month of school ended last Friday with a total enrollment of 708 boys and 705 girls, making a total of 1413 pupils. We call attention to the fact that there are a few more boys than girls in the Littlefield Schools. This is a bit peculiar. Ordinarily the boys decide at a relatively early age that they should get jobs and stop school. That may be one favorable thing about the lack of work. When the young people spend more time in the preparation of themselves for the service they are to later render they will solve the problems of life more effectively.

However there have been some losses in enrollment since the beginning. There have been one hundred twenty persons dropped out of school. A considerable number of these persons will return when the cotton is all out. Some have moved away and will never return. At the present time there is an active list of 1359 enrolled.

The average daily attendance this month is poor due to the fact that a great many people were out picking cotton during the last two weeks. There were eighty-one (81%) per cent of the folks in school for the whole time. This is hardly enough time for the pupil to have a chance at making the required work. The child that is to learn the school subjects well should be there all the time. Again it is necessary for him to be present in order to know how to relate himself to the social situation in the school. The incidental learnings are as important, almost, as the school subjects. In order to gain the proper ideals, attitudes, and interests the child should be exposed to people and circumstances that will furnish him a constrained occasion to practice the use of these ideals, interests and attitudes. The school is designed to do just that thing. Help us keep them in school every possible day.

The percentage of failures in the grades was not distressing this time. There were only about 3 per cent of them who failed in their work. That is three persons out of every hundred are not making their work. In the high school the percentage of failures is higher. Twelve persons out of every hundred did not make their work this time. This is too many to have fail in their work. The teachers are working to solve the problem and they are asking the parents not only to observe the record the child is making but try to help the child do better work. Provide him a place to study where it is quiet and comfortable. The child should not be expected to study in the family sitting room where folks are talking about the happenings of the day.

The tardy list is growing this month. It increased from 191 last month to 413 this month. The habit of promptness will net the child a great deal if the habit is formed early in life. Help the school teach it to him by insisting that he get off to school in plenty of time.

P. T. A. Sponsor Thanksgiving Program Nov. 22

A Thanksgiving program was given at the Parent-Teachers Association Wednesday, November 22. Reverend Grizzle gave the invocation after which the assembly sang songs led by Mrs. Shaw.

Pupils of the Primary Building gave a play "The First Thanksgiving." First grade pupils sang "There's an Old Turkey Gobbler." Bobby Roy Faust and Marguerite Brannen, pupils of Miss Lucille Nance, gave Thanksgiving readings. Musical numbers rendered were a solo by Fredda Charles Bills and a cornet solo by Jack Norman.

The plans for the Christmas P. T. A. party will be published in next week's Leader.

SYNOPSIS: . . . Ruth Warren, living in the East, comes into possession of three-quarter interest in an Arizona ranch, left to her in the will of her only brother, reported to have died while on business in Mexico. With her ailing husband and small child she goes to Arizona to take possession, thinking the climate may prove beneficial to her husband's weakened lungs. Arriving at the nearest town, she learns that the ranch, "Dead Lantern", is 85 miles across the desert. Charley Thane, old rancher and rural mail carrier, agrees to take them to "Dead Lantern" gate, which was 5 miles from the ranch house. As they wearily walked past a huge overshadowing boulder in a gulch in coming to the ranch house, a voice whispered, "Go back! Go back!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Snavelly pursed his lips thoughtfully, then shook his head. "No—no use to see any more lawyers—they'll just gouge us, stir up somethin' so's they'd have to be hired to straighten it out again. No use in that. You've seen your lawyer an' you've got the will. The will's what counts—just as long as I recognize it as bein' what it says it is, there's no need messin' around with law." A queer light came into his eyes and his voice took on a curious hollow lift and fall.

"All right," said the girl quickly. She was glad to settle all conversation relative to law.

"I'm mighty sorry I didn't know you was coming," remarked Snavelly. "Me and Ann ain't exactly fixed for company. But I'll be seein' what I can do. Between now and supper I'll just be fixin' up the place out back in the old house."

"That old ruin? But—it's falling to pieces!"

For an instant the man's body tensed, then he laughed—a thin, dry little laugh which had in it something of the sound of crumpled paper.

"The old place has seen its best days, lady, but it's all we got. There's two rooms that's as good—just about—as they ever was. Your brother has slept there—it's plenty comfortable—just a little mite dirty right now."

"But it's full of great cracks—some of those walls might—"

"No, no. Nothing ever falls in this country without there's a rain or a big wind. When it storms you can come in here in case anything wants to fall. Otherwise, you'll be plenty safe. We don't have more'n a couple of storms a year anyways."

After supper the adobe itself was visited. Huge and dismal the great bulk towered above them in the night. Yet, once inside, the walls looked quite safe by the light of the oil lamp on the table. The adjoining rooms were certainly more spacious and conveniently arranged than anything in the ranch house. As Snavelly had said, the place was dirty. But the dirt was the dirt of earth—clean, dry dust. Ann, the giantess, had just finished arranging the bedclothes on three canvas cots.

Ann had picked up a lighted lantern, left the room and took the path which led to the barn, the lantern swinging in long arcs from her arm.

Back in the living room of the ranch house Snavelly remarked that he had sent Ann to the gate in the buckboard for the baggage.

"Oh, but that wasn't necessary," said the girl. "We could get along until tomorrow—it's such an awful trip in the dark."

Snavelly shrugged. "She'll be back in a couple of hours."

Snavelly sat near the fireplace, half facing the man and woman who were seated near the cot. His attitude was that of one who is waiting to be asked foolish questions—as though he were about to be quizzed by a pair of children. Ruth's first question changed his attitude.

"Who is Ann—is she your—"

"No, by God!" The man thrust his body forward and his hands gripped the arms of the chair as if he were about to spring to his feet. His pale eyes glittered. "She's nothin' to me! Do you get that? She's a nigger half-breed I'm hirin' to take care of the house an' help on the place. Anybody says different is a—"

"I was only going to ask what you have just told us, Mr. Snavelly." The girl's heart was in her throat.

Snavelly settled back in his chair and his fingers strayed to his forehead. After a moment he spoke casually. "Ann's a queer creature. Strange. Her blood, I reckon. Her father was a heavyweight nigger prize fighter an' her mammy was an Apache squaw. 'Big' Jackson, her daddy, was born a slave. He was in the army durin' the Indian trouble in this country—stationed at San Carlos. I reckon Ann's the result of a raid on some Apache village. Mostly she's called 'Indian' Ann—you can see she favors her mammy's folks—straight hair an' that Indian face. Must have got her size and color more from her daddy, though. Ann don't get along with towns—this here civilization. Down in Texas she run a dance hall an' saloon, but she got in trouble an' drifted out this way. I'd seen her before, an' when I runs onto her in town one day, she was broke an' lookin' for a job. That was just after your brother went to Mexico." Snavelly paused, his eyes on the girl's face.

"So—I hired her knowin' her like I did. I felt sorry for her. There's nothin' bad about Ann. She just can't stand bein' in town—spends most of her time in jail when she is in town. It ain't her fault—but folks give her liquor, you see an' when she's drunk she's a God-a-mighty terror."

"How much do you suppose she weighs?" asked Warren.

"Close to three hundred, I reckon—solid as a rock. She's powerful. You'll look a long ways before you find a man as strong as what Ann is."

"I'll subscribe to that," said Warren.

"What kind of trouble did she get into down in Texas—did she just prove too destructive to the city hall?"

"Well, no. She killed a man—beat him to death with a chair. But it was his fault," Snavelly paused. "He wasn't no small man, neither," he added as an interesting afterthought.

For quite some time the conversation hung fire. Snavelly sat as before—waiting.

Ruth began by asking about the ranch. To all of her questions Snavelly returned prompt and pessimistic answers. It was soon evident that there would be no need of any one working out the exact value of three quarters of forty thousand dollars.

"But couldn't we get some new cattle if that's what we need?" asked the girl.

"We could if we had the money. But it wouldn't be no use—not enough water for more stock. We've got some water, but it ain't close enough to where the feed it."

"How could we get more watering places?"

"Havin' it rain would help. In this country a waterin' place is a repressa, a dirt tank. You take an' dig a basin in the ground where a gully runs. When it rains the water comes down the gully an' fills the pond. We got plenty of them ponds but they're so silted up an' shallow they don't hold water long an' it don't rain anyways. It rained just enough last winter to fill the biggest pond on the place; that an' the well here, is all the water we got. There's four other ponds but they're powder dry. An' all the grass is sunburned an' wispy-like."

"Mr. Snavelly," asked Warren, "perhaps we should wait until tomorrow to see the books—but could you give an idea of the earnings?"

Snavelly observed the young man for a moment. "Yes, Mr. Warren, I can. There ain't any earnings. You can see the books any time you want—they ain't complicated, neither. We sell twice a year, after the fall an' spring round-ups. An' we buy twice a year—stock up the commissary. Grey took his share of last fall's sale with him—an' some of mine too, if it come to that. This spring I sold all I could an' got enough to a little more'n stock up the commissary. If you folks aim to stay on I reckon I'll have to go to town again before fall." Snavelly spoke as though nothing could be more distasteful than going to town.

"But, Mr. Snavelly," asked the girl, "ain't there any money?"

Snavelly stood up and took an old laybook from the mantel. Slowly he turned the pages, wetting his thumb at every page. He looked up.

"There's a hundred and fifty-one dollars and eight cents of partnership money in the bank."

Closing the book with a snap, he returned it to the mantel, resented himself and waited patiently for more questions.

"Mr. Snavelly," said Warren, "when we were coming along the road shortly before we saw the house, we heard a—well, we had a queer sensation, as if some one who was very close by spoke to us—"

"You did?" Snavelly leaned forward and watched Warren's face keenly. "Was it by a big rock down in the gulch?"

"Yes—y—s where it was. At least that's what we thought we heard the— it was rather 'rd."

"Well, what did it do?"

things about this country. He used to try to find somebody who said they'd heard the voice, but he had poor luck. Then some Indians come up in this neighborhood to gather acorns an' your brother got one old bush-head, who'd had education, to come up to the house an' tell about the legend. I was right here when your brother took down what the old buck said."

The girl read aloud from the paper:

"THE LEGEND OF THE VOICE"

"In the long ago days a tribe of good Indian live in the San Jorge Valley. They grow what they eat and kill nothing. They do never fight other Indian for so long they forget how it is.

"One time some bad Indian come quick from the north. These Indian kill what they eat and fight much. All the village and all the field of the good Indian is burn up. All the young men become dead. They do not know how it is to fight.

"But there is one very wise old man. He is medicine man. He take the women and the little children away. He lead them in these mountains when the young men try to fight. But very quick the bad Indian are on the trail. When the wise old man come to the big arroyo with the women and the little children he look back. He see the bad Indian follow. Where the trail leave the arroyo he stop. The wise old man say to the women and the little children, 'You must go on. Go in the still places of the mountains and wait. You must stay four days. Then go back into the valley and make again the village and the field.'

"The wise old medicine man go back in the arroyo and wait for the bad Indian by the big rock. He take a little breeze he find playing by the big rock. He make this little breeze into a soft whisper. Then he do other things that medicine man can do. When all is ready he lay down by the big rock and let his life go away.

"The bad Indian come to the arroyo. The chief try to step over the dead old man. But he stop. Into his ear there come a little whisper. All the bad Indian hear the whisper. It tell them things and they are much afraid. They go out of the San Jorge Valley and they do never come back.

"Always there is the little breeze

in the arroyo. Sometime it whisper. More I do not know!"

Beneath the legend Harry Grey had written, "The old man tells me that for centuries the Indians have used the big boulder in the gulch as a council place. They believe that when the need is great the voice will advise them."

"What do you think now?" For the first time Snavelly had asked a question. Neither the girl nor her husband found an answer.

"Can you tell us any more?" asked Warren at last.

Nine Talked Of For Governor's Race

Names of nine proposed candidates in next summer's gubernatorial contest are being discussed in Texas political circles. Some are certain to make the race and others are awaiting further developments.

It is rather well determined that Edgar Witt, Tom Hunter, James V. Allred, and Clint C. Small will seek the honors, while there is a division of opinion whether Mrs. Ferguson will run for another term.

Some of Coke R. Stevenson's supporters still want him as a candidate, although he has indicated he will probably return to the House and be candidate again for Speaker. Others in the list of possibilities include Walter Cline, C. C. McDonald and Claud Pollard.

Cline has a group of friends who would like to see him a contestant, and McDonald would enter only in case the Fergusons stay out. Interest in Pollard has developed the last two weeks. He formerly was Attorney General and is now general attorney for Texas railroads.

If Hunter has any plans to run for any other state office, for railroad commissioner for instance, he has said nothing of it, but on the other hand, he has informed friends that he has "never stopped running for Governor." He was third in the gubernatorial race in 1932, while Small was third in that race two years previously. A report recently was published that Hunter would run for the railroad commission against Lon Smith.

Friends of Allred expect him to announce for Governor by Dec. 15, which will not constitute a news surprise, for his friends have been frank in declaring the Attorney General will run and that he will conduct an energetic campaign.

"They" May Run
Some of Ferguson's closest supporters have said "they" will run for Governor next Summer after having conferred with Ferguson, predicting that "they" will run on a vindication platform once more. Stevenson is convinced the Fergusons will be in the contest.

Should the Fergusons run once more, it will make the ninth major political campaign by either the husband or wife, for the husband ran twice for Governor and was elected, ran for United States Senator and was defeated by Earle B. Mayfield and ran for President of the United States in 1920 on the American party ticket, whose functions were confined solely to Texas. His wife already has run four times for Governor, having been elected twice, and should she run next Summer, it will be her fifth campaign with Husband Jim doing the campaigning, and running the executive office after each election.

In the Spring of 1932 Small was all set to run for Governor, for there was some expectation that Ross Sterling would not seek a second term, based upon apparently authentic reports. When Sterling threw his hat into the ring for another term Small kept out, believing the Houston man was entitled to another term, according to political tradition. So groups of his friends now say they regard his entry next year as certain.

Three men are avowed candidates for Lieutenant Governor. Walter Woodall of Houston, B. F. Berkeley of Alpine and R. M. Johnston of Palestine, while a possible entry is J. C. Duvall of Fort Worth. Some of the latter's friends were boosting him for that office when the last special session of the Legislature closed.

For Attorney General the expected aspirants are Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, Elbert Hooper of Denton and John McGraw of Dallas, Woodward already having become an avowed entrant.

Fergusonism May Be Issue
If Mrs. Ferguson seeks a third term as Governor, it is conceded by all political factions that the paramount issue will be Fergusonism once more, with a bitter campaign unavoidable, especially so because of certain developments in legislative investigations.

The Small platform will undergo but little or no change since three years ago, as he still declares the one big issue in this State is business recovery for the benefit of the whole, more and better payrolls, a cessation of tax drives for increases. Both he and Allred, assuming that they run, will have much to say regarding abuse of the pardon and parole system, blaming crime waves on men who have been let out of prison. Already there is a legislative movement re-amending the criminal code for the protection of society, and with public interest awakened, this promises to be an issue. Crime costs the people of Texas $100,000,000 a year, equal to the total sum required to run every state department and all of its colleges and eleemosynary institutions.

BREAKS HIP BONE

Mrs. Alice McClure, mother of Mrs. C. W. Smiley, who makes her home at the Smiley farm, five miles west of town, suffered a fall Monday, breaking her hip bone.

On the advice of her local physician, she was taken to the Lubbock Sanitarium Wednesday morning. Mrs. Smiley suffered a stroke last July, and since that time has been walking with a cane.

Home Demonstration Notes

By MISS RUBY MASHBURN
Home Demonstration Agent

Mrs. R. H. Shaffer of the Sudan Club, demonstrator of the farm food supply work, had her achievement program Friday, November 24. The small pantry was filled with canned cherries, plums, pears, peaches, apples, grape juice, and other fruits. Mrs. Shaffer has an orchard and says that she always has fruits to can, and her pantry certainly shows that she does. Having no more room in the small pantry or cupboard, Mrs. Shaffer had shelves erected along the kitchen wall for her canned vegetables and meats. She has more than five hundred containers, and she has spent no money for cans. She exchanged canned products for them. She also sold fruits and vegetables to pay for the shelves that were built in the kitchen. Besides her canned products Mrs. Shaffer has several hundred pounds of dried peas and beans including nine varieties, sixty gallons of syrup, a number of pumpkins, and plenty of sweet potatoes. Besides filling her own budget and canning for other people to obtain her cans, she has bought turkeys, canned them, cold the canned product, and made money on the deal.

A new cellar has been constructed at the home of Mrs. Ben Oglesby of Sudan, Cooperator in the farm, food supply work. The shelves are down the two side walls of this spacious new cellar. They are filled with canned leafy, starchy, and other vegetables, fruits, and meats. Besides this bountiful supply of canned products there are dried peas and beans.

Mrs. J. B. Teal of Sudan, Cooperator in the farm food supply, canned a beef last week and is highly pleased over the results. Mrs. Teal also has vegetables, tomatoes, and other fruits canned.

The cellar at the home of Mrs. J. F. Gibson, demonstrator of the farm food supply work of the Ruby club, is equipped with narrow shelves on which canned vegetables of all kinds, fruits, and meats are stored. There is a shelf for leafy vegetables, and for starchy vegetables, and for other vegetables, and for fruits, one for jellies and jams, and so on for each class of products.

The achievement day program was held at Mrs. N. A. Schreier's, farm food supply demonstrator of the Sandhill Club, Tuesday, Nov. 21. A shining new cellar has been built. The walls, floor and ceiling are concrete while the shelves are made of wood and are painted green. These shelves are neatly filled with vegetables, fruits, and meats. Below the shelves are containers of dried peas and beans, also pie mellons to be canned a little later when the crop is all harvested.

"When I get bilious I feel sleepy and tired and do not feel like doing my work. I get awfully dizzy. I know then that I had better take something. After I found how good Black-Draught is that is what I have used. I guess it rids me of the bile, for I feel better—don't feel like I am dropping off to sleep every time I sit down. ### SECOND MONTHLY SCHOOL REPORT

The second month of school ended last Friday with a total enrollment of 708 boys and 705 girls, making a total of 1413 pupils. We call attention to the fact that there are a few more boys than girls in the Littlefield Schools. This is a bit peculiar. Ordinarily the boys decide at a relatively early age that they should get jobs and stop school. That may be one favorable thing about the lack of work. When the young people spend more time in the preparation of themselves for the service they are to later render they will solve the problems of life more effectively.

However there have been some losses in enrollment since the beginning. There have been one hundred twenty persons dropped out of school. A considerable number of these persons will return when the cotton is all out. Some have moved away and will never return. At the present time there is an active list of 1359 enrolled.

The average daily attendance this month is poor due to the fact that a great many people were out picking cotton during the last two weeks. There were eighty-one (81%) per cent of the folks in school for the whole time. This is hardly enough time for the pupil to have a chance at making the required work. The child that is to learn the school subjects well should be there all the time. Again it is necessary for him to be present in order to know how to relate himself to the social situation in the school. The incidental learnings are as important, almost, as the school subjects. In order to gain the proper ideals, attitudes, and interests the child should be exposed to people and circumstances that will furnish him a constrained occasion to practice the use of these ideals, interests and attitudes. The school is designed to do just that thing. Help us keep them in school every possible day.

The percentage of failures in the grades was not distressing this time. There were only about 3 per cent of them who failed in their work. That is three persons out of every hundred are not making their work. In the high school the percentage of failures is higher. Twelve persons out of every hundred did not make their work this time. This is too many to have fail in their work. The teachers are working to solve the problem and they are asking the parents not only to observe the record the child is making but try to help the child do better work. Provide him a place to study where it is quiet and comfortable. The child should be kept in the family sitting room where folks are talking about the happenings of the day.

The tardy list is growing this month. It increased from 191 last month to 413 this month. The habit of promptness will net the child a great deal if the habit is formed early in life. Help the school teach it to him by insisting that he get off to school in plenty of time.

P. T. A. Sponsor Thanksgiving Program Nov. 22

A Thanksgiving program was given at the Parent-Teachers Association Wednesday, November 22. Reverend Grizzle gave the invocation after which the assembly sang songs led by Mrs. Shaw.

Pupils of the Primary Building gave a play "The First Thanksgiving." First grade pupils sang "There's an Old Turkey Gobbler." Bobby Roy Faust and Marguerite Brannen, pupils of Miss Lucille Nance, gave Thanksgiving readings. Musical numbers rendered were a solo by Fredda Charles Bills and a cornet solo by Jack Norman.

The plans for the Christmas P. T. A. party will be published in next week's Leader.

Fourth Installment

SYNOPSIS: . . . Ruth Warren, living in the East, comes into possession of three-quarter interest in an Arizona ranch, left to her in the will of her only brother, reported to have died while on business in Mexico. With her ailing husband and small child she goes to Arizona to take possession, thinking the climate may prove beneficial to her husband's weakened lungs. Arriving at the nearest town, she learns that the ranch, "Dead Lantern", is 85 miles across the desert. Charley Thane, old rancher and rural mail carrier, agrees to take them to "Dead Lantern" gate, which was 5 miles from the ranch house. As they wearily walked past a huge over-shadowing boulder in a gulch in coming to the ranch house, a voice whispered, "Go back! Go back!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Snavely pursed his lips thoughtfully, then shook his head. "No—no use to see any more lawyers—they'll jest gouge us, stir up somethin' so's they'd have to be hired to straighten it out again. No use in that. You've seen your lawyer an' you've got the will. The will's what counts—jest as long as I recognize it as bein' what it says it is, there's no need messin' around with law." A queer light came into his eyes and his voice took on a curious hollow lift and fall.

"All right," said the girl quickly. She was glad to settle all conversation relative to law.

"I'm mighty sorry I didn't know you was coming," remarked Snavely. "Me and Ann ain't exactly fixed for company. But I'll be seein' what I can do. Between now and supper I'll just be fixin' up the place out back in the old house."

"That old ruin? But—it's falling to pieces!"

For an instant the man's body tensed, then he laughed—a thin, dry little laugh which had in it something of the sound of crumpled paper.

"The old place has seen its best days, lady, but it's all we got. There's two rooms that's as good—jest about—as they ever was. Your brother has slept there—it's plenty comfortable—jest a little mite dirty right now."

"But it's full of great cracks—one of those walls might—"

"No, no. Nothing ever falls in this country without there's a rain or a big wind. When it storms you can come in here in case anything wants to fall. Otherwise, you'll be plenty safe. We don't have more'n a couple of storms a year anyways."

After supper the adobe itself was visited. Huge and dismal the great bulk towered above them in the night. Yet, once inside, the walls looked quite safe by the light of the oil lamp on the table. The adjoining rooms were certainly more spacious and conveniently arranged than anything in the ranch house. As Snavely had said, the place was dirty. But the dirt was the dirt of earth—clean, dry dust. Ann, the giantess, had just finished arranging the bedclothes on three canvas cots.

Ann had picked up a lighted lantern, left the room and took the path which led to the barn, the lantern swinging in long arcs from her arm. Back in the living room of the ranch house Snavely remarked that he had sent Ann to the gate in the buckboard for the baggage.

"Oh, but that wasn't necessary," said the girl. "We could get along until tomorrow—it's such an awful trip in the dark."

Snavely shrugged. "She'll be back in a couple of hours."

Snavely sat near the fireplace, half facing the man and woman who were seated near the cot. His attitude was that of one who is waiting to be asked foolish questions—as though he were about to be quizzed by a pair of children. Ruth's first question changed his attitude.

"Who is Ann—is she your—"

"No, by God!" The man thrust his body forward and his hands gripped the arms of the chair as if he were about to spring to his feet. His pale eyes glittered. "She's nothin' to me! Do you get that? She's a nigger half-breed I'm hirin' to take care of the house an' help on the place. Anybody says different is a—" he paused.

"I was only going to ask what you have just told us, Mr. Snavely." The girl's heart was in her throat.

Snavely settled back in his chair and his fingers strayed to his forehead. After a moment he spoke casually. "Ann's a queer creature. Strange. Her blood, I reckon. Her father was a heavyweight nigger prize fighter an' her mammy was an Apache squaw. 'Big' Jackson, her daddy, was born a slave. He was in the army durin' the Indian trouble in this country—stationed at San Carlos. I reckon Ann's the result of a raid on some Apache village. Mostly she's called 'Indian' Ann—you can see she favors her mammy's folks—straight hair an' that Indian face. Must have got her size and color more from her daddy, though. Ann don't get along with towns—this here civilization. Down in Texas she run a dance hall an' a saloon, but she got in trouble an' drifted out this way. I'd seen her before, an' when I runs onto her in town one day, she was broke an' lookin' for a job. That was just after your brother went to Mexico." Snavely paused, his eyes on the girl's face. "So—I hired her knowin' her like I did. I felt sorry for her. There's nothin' bad about Ann. She just can't stand bein' in town—spends most of her time in jail when she is in town. It ain't her fault—but folks give her liquor, you see an' when she's drunk she's a God-a-mighty terror."

"How much do you suppose she weighs?" asked Warren.

"Close to three hundred, I reckon—solid as a rock. She's powerful. You'll look a long ways before you find a man as strong as what Ann is."

"I'll subscribe to that," said Warren. "What kind of trouble did she get into down in Texas—did she just prove too destructive to the city hall?"

"Well, no. She killed a man—beat him to death with a chair. But it was his fault," Snavely paused. "He wasn't no small man, neither," he added as an interesting afterthought.

For quite some time the conversation hung fire. Snavely sat as before—waiting.

Ruth began by asking about the ranch. To all of her questions Snavely returned prompt and pessimistic answers. It was soon evident that there would be no need of any one working out the exact value of three quarters of forty thousand dollars.

"But couldn't we get some new cattle if that's what we need?" asked the girl.

"We could if we had the money. But it wouldn't be no use—not enough water for more stock. We've got some water, but it ain't close enough to where the feed it."

"How could we get more watering places?"

"Havin' it rain would help. In this country a waterin' place is a repress, a dirt tank. You take an' dig a basin in the ground where a gully runs. When it rains the water comes down the gully an' fills the pond. We got plenty of them ponds but they're so silted up an' shallow they don't hold water long an' it don't rain anyways. It rained just enough last winter to fill the biggest pond on the place; that an' the well here, is all the water we got. There's four other ponds but they're powder dry. An' all the grass is sunburned an' wispy-like."

"Mr. Snavely," asked Warren, "perhaps we should wait until tomorrow to see the books—but could you give an idea of the earnings?"

Snavely observed the young man for a moment. "Yes, Mr. Warren, I can. There ain't any earnings. You can see the books any time you want—they ain't complicated, neither. We sell twice a year, after the fall an' spring round-ups. An' we buy twice a year—stock up the commissary. Grey took his share of last fall's sale with him—an' some of mine too, if it come to that. This spring I sold all I could an' got enough to a little more'n stock up the commissary. If you folks aim to stay on I reckon I'll have to go to town again before fall." Snavely spoke as though nothing could be more distasteful than going to town.

"But, Mr. Snavely," asked the girl, "isn't there any money?"

Snavely stood up and took an old daybook from the mantel. Slowly he turned the pages, wetting his thumb at every page. He looked up. "There's a hundred and fifty-one dollars and eight cents of partnership money in the bank."

Closing the book with a snap, he returned it to the mantel, resented himself and waited patiently for more questions.

"Mr. Snavely," said Warren, "when we were coming along the road shortly before we saw the house, we heard a—well, we had a queer sensation, as if some one who was very close by spoke to us—"

"You did?" Snavely leaned forward and watched Warren's face keenly. "Was it by a big rock down in the gulch?"

"Yes—yes, that's where it was. At least that's where we thought we heard the whisper—it was rather weird."

"Tell me about it—what did it say?"

"It's hard to describe. We stopped at the rock a moment, and when we were leaving, this voice told us to go back. The unaccountable thing about it was that the words seemed to have been spoken just a few inches from our ears. We were rather tired and a bit unstrung, though, perhaps our imaginations—"

Snavely frowned and shook his head. "No—you heard it all right."

"But what is—who was it and how in the world was it done? Why was it done?"

Snavely thought a moment. "Oh, it's a superstition—I guess you'd call it."

"I wouldn't," breathed the girl, with a shiver.

"But we heard something," said Warren.

Snavely rose and entered his bedroom. In a moment he returned and gave the girl a sheet of paper in her brother's handwriting. "Your brother was always interested in legends an'

things about this country. He used to try to find somebody who said they'd heard the voice, but he had poor luck. Then some Indians come up in this neighborhood to gather acorns an' your brother got one old bush-head, who'd had education, to come up to the house an' tell about the legend. I was right here when your brother took down what the old buck said."

The girl read aloud from the paper:

"THE LEGEND OF THE VOICE"

"In the long ago days a tribe of good Indian live in the San Jorge Valley. They grow what they eat and kill nothing. They do never fight other Indian for so long they forget how it is.

"One time some bad Indian come quick from the north. These Indian kill what they eat and fight much. All the village and all the field of the good Indian is burn up. All the young men become dead. They do not know how it is to fight.

"But there is one very wise old man. He is medicine man. He take the women and the little children away. He lead them in these mountains when the young men try to fight. But very quick the bad Indian are on the trail. When the wise old man come to the big arroyo with the women and the little children he look back. He see the bad Indian follow. Where the trail leave the arroyo he stop. The wise old man say to the women and the little children, 'You must go on. Go in the still places of the mountains and wait. You must stay four days. Then go back into the valley and make again the village and the field.'

"The wise old medicine man go back in the arroyo and wait for the bad Indian by the big rock. He take a little breeze he find playing by the big rock. He make this little breeze into a soft whisper. Then he do other things that medicine man can do. When all is ready he lay down by the big rock and let his life go away.

"The bad Indian come to the arroyo. The chief try to step over the dead old man. But he stop. Into his ear there come a little whisper. All the bad Indian hear the whisper. It tell them things and they are much afraid. They go out of the San Jorge Valley and they do never come back.

"Always there is the little breeze

in the arroyo. Sometime it whisper: More I do not know!"

Beneath the legend Harry Grey had written, "The old man tells me that for centuries the Indians have used the big boulder in the gulch as a council place. They believe that when the need is great the voice will advise them."

"What do you think now?" For the first time Snavely had asked a question. Neither the girl nor her husband found an answer.

"Can you tell us any more?" asked Warren at last.

Roquemore, Miss Viva Roquemore and Mrs. Fred Gilbert of Millsap, Texas.

To The Memory of Rubye Roper

Rubye sleeps. A place is vacant in a home that cannot be filled. Somewhere in that indefinable land of mystery her spirit is at rest. Her life was but a short span, but her memory will linger with the passing of the years.

Over yonder she sleeps beneath the silent tomb, yet her ready smile, her friendly greetings, her sterling qualities of character and her tenderness and loving kindness to everyone with whom she was associated, are traits that will linger in our memory of her with the vanishing of the years.

She was a devoted wife and mother, a loving daughter and sister and an indulgent friend—but over all she was a christian who followed the dictates of her master.

It is the gloom of the churchyard that reveals to us the beauty of life. It is the broken ties at the grave that prompt us to a fuller appreciation of the tenderness of the ties that are not yet broken, and so while we mourn the loss of the dead, we may rejoice that there is no cloud so dark that there is no light behind it, no sorrow so poignant that there is not balm for the wound it inflicts.

And so to the departed soul we bid a long and affectionate farewell, hoping, believing, and trusting that sometime, we shall meet in the beautiful land of "Somewhere."

Two Turkey Shoots To Be Held Soon

Two more turkey shoots have been announced by DeWitt Reid and Jerry Spray. These will be Christmas and New Year shoots, and are expected to attract a very large crowd of sportsmen.

The turkey shoots held last Friday and yesterday attracted large crowds. The shoots are proving very popular with sportsmen.

part in all school affairs of the county for the past nine years. He declares that if he is elected his services will be freely rendered to every school in the county without favor or discrimination. He believes that every effort should be directed toward the securing of more State aid for schools to the extent that all expenses of schools except local building programs and permanent improvements, should be taken care of by scholastic apportionment and other forms of state aid. He further believes that a definite program should be planned by Lamb County with other counties in a like situation to secure from the State an allocation of funds for this county to match the permanent school funds of other counties which have been granted public lands in the past in the form of public lands from which county permanent school funds have been raised. This, he says, is the most practical way to lower local taxation.

REPEAL BATTLE IN 1934

Prohibition was pitched as the keynote of the 1934 state election in Texas Friday as delegates to a convention authorized to reflect this state's sentiment on repeal of the eighteenth amendment certified a vote in favor of eliminating it.

John Henry Kirby of Houston, who was chosen chairman, was cheered when he said the impending political battle would be over whether Texas should amend her own constitution to coincide with the national change.

Maury Hughes, of Dallas, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, told the convention that every candidate for state office should be forced to declare himself on the prohibition issue.

Woman Is Chosen

Mrs. James M. Loving of Austin was chosen secretary of the convention and George Slater of Austin sergeant-at-arms.

Hughes said the Democratic executive committee would insist on placing on the primary ballots next July the proposition whether Texas' constitutional and statutory prohibition should be repealed.

He said it would be physically impossible to enforce the prohibition laws in Texas with wet territory surrounding this state. He said he was in favor of returning to local option and local self-government and opposed to open saloons.

SIoux INDIAN MISSIONARY IN CHARGE SERVICE AT FIRST BAPTIST

A large crowd gathered at the First Baptist Church Sunday evening, when Rev. George Wilson, Sioux Indian Missionary, was in charge of the service.

His program consisted of songs and a brief lecture on the Indian work in New Mexico. Rev. Wilson will return some time during the holidays with three of his own children, and eight children from the New Mexico Baptist Orphans Home.

Announcement of the exact date of their coming will be made in a later issue of the Leader.

SCHOOLING AND SUCCESS

Every year a new crop of youngsters comes to that crossroad where they are forced to decide whether to go further with their education or stop. It is an important decision. We are not the ones to say that every boy or girl who decides he or she has had enough school is wrong. Some of them will do better to go to work—if they will go to work. Stopping school does not necessarily mean the end of education. If they think it is, their outlook is wrong and none too encouraging. Two or three of the most successful farmers we know are constantly studying—studying and changing their methods when it is wise to do so. It is the man who ceases to study that is in danger. So the youngster who cannot or will not continue school should immediately set about building the foundation for success in some endeavor. Honesty, industry and close application to whatever they attempt will win. It will keep them interested and happy. The most successful man we can think of is a fellow who has made something of a fortune but is so disgruntled and disgusted with everybody and everything about him that he hardly has a friend left. Success is possible without a protracted academic training—but the time never comes when people can afford to stop gaining new knowledge. Most of our youngsters will do well to continue school if they possibly can. It opens up a much wider field for them when they do seek employment.—Republican-News, St. Johns, Mich.
