Queen Contest To Be Held At Arena Tuesday

The two queens—both senior and junior—who will rule over the 1952 Jaycee rodeo here on June 12, 13, 14, will be selected on Tuesday evening, June 3, at 8:30 o'clock at the rodeo grounds, has been announced by the roping club, who sponsor this activity. At the same time, the tiny cowgirl and cowboy will also be selected.

Any girl in Lamb county is eligible to enter the queen contest, which will be judged on horsemanship alone, and it will not be necessary for the prospective candidates to bring, or appear on their own horses—they will or can be provided. Age limits for the queen are junior, under 15 years of age, and senior queen, above 15 years.

In conjunction with the queen contest next Tuesday night, the roping club will stage a roping contest at the rodeo grounds, for entertainment, and there will be no admission charge of either event.

Judging will be done by three out-of-town, disinterested judges, and results will be announced at the close of the competitions. Cash prizes, as well as the honors, will be awarded to both the senior and junior queens, and the winning tiny cowboy and cowgirl will also not be neglected in the prize awardment.

Spade Voters Turn Down School Consolidation Plan

Spade Independent School voters turned out nearly 100 percent to turn down a move to consolidate the Spade and Littlefield school districts, last Saturday. Littlefield voters supported the proposal by which some 200 to 300 school children at Spade would have been consolidated into the Littlefield schools.

The Spade vote was 151 against the consolidation and 107 for; and in Littlefield, the vote was 46 for and 21 against. The vote at Spade was considered to have included almost 100 percent of the voting population.

Under the rules for the election, both communities had to vote in favor of the consolidation before it could have been effected.

Mrs. E. C. Rodgers of Amherst underwent an emergency appendectomy at South Plains Cooperative Hospital at Amherst Tuesday night. Her husband is assistant county agent of Lamb County.

NUMBER ATTEND LEGAL HEARING AT CITY HALL

Contract Signing To Get Underway This Week

The sign-up of paving contracts got underway in Littlefield this week, following the hearing on the proposed 47-block paving project held at city hall Monday morning, as legally required.

About 75 interested citizens, property owners affected by the paving ordinance were on hand for the hearing, and the vast majority of these, according to City Secretary Street, favored the paving project.

In blocks or "districts" where there is concerted opposition to the paving project, the final decision as to whether those streets shall be paved is left to the discretion of the City Commission, and no announcement along these lines has been forthcoming, nor will be, until the sign-up of paving contracts, between property owners and the contractor has been completed, and the contracts, and absence of contracts studied.

The cost of paving a 50-foot lot, or in front of same is approximately $225, with the property owner responsible for nine-tenths of the cost.

Present plans are for getting the paving under construction at the earliest possible date, and all completed by September 1. Jones Construction Company of Littlefield is the contractor for the project.

Three poppy booths were set up in downtown Littlefield, in charge of the Legion auxiliary, VFW auxiliary and Gold Star Mothers, and assisted by a bevy of volunteer young lady workers.

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

The same general types of materials are used in construction throughout the body. There is a porous part of all organs; there is a lacey layer of blood vessels and lymph channels, there is an elastic muscular coat or coats (sometimes several), and there is a wrapping that is clear like cellophane and kept moist by a fluid.

But these materials are not always in the same order in each organ. The materials stack up a little differently in the brain than they do in other parts of the body.

The inside of the brain, called the white matter, is pithy and porous, sort of sponge-like. Then there is the muscular part of the brain, the ridges and valleys that make up the grey matter, the convolutions of the brain. On top of this is a series of membrane known as the meninges, three different layers of lacey web-like tissues, called the pia mater (which contains blood vessels), the arachnoid and the dura mater. These three layers all have spaces between them, spaces in which flows the brain liquid known as the cerebrospinal fluid. Deep inside the white matter of the brain are other "holes," spaces called ventricles. The cerebrospinal fluid also flows through these spaces and into the canal inside the spinal cord.

This cerebrospinal fluid is like a thing, filtered blood plasma and is formed by the capillaries in the brain as they siphon off this serum from the bloodstream, pass it into the ventricle spaces and then drip it down into the spinal cord. Some of the serum goes upward through the ventricles and gets back to the veins of the body instead of getting into the spinal cord.

Since the cerebrospinal fluid is in direct, intimate contact with the brain it is often an indicator of

Special School For Orchestral Students To Be Held At Texas Tech June 5-18

Something new has been added to the Texas Tech Music Department's summer school. The department will introduce a special school for orchestral students in the 1952 summer session, according to Raymond Elliott, coordinator of the high school music program at Tech.

Tech has conducted a summer band school for 18 years, and in 1951 added a summer school for choral instruction. The first orchestral school, another step toward a complete music program, is for high school students with a limited knowledge of orchestral instruments. Demand for such a school has increased due to the emphasis being placed on orchestral music in the public schools.

Robert Raley, conductor of orchestral music for the Lubbock public schools, will direct the orchestral school, June 5-18. The school will stress the development of tonal and rhythmic precision through experience in ensembles. Tech's second annual choral school, under direction of Dr. Gene Hemmle, head of the Department of Music, is scheduled for June 9-21. Class voice and singing experience in the general choir and in several small ensembles, under well-known conductors, will be stressed. Choral instruction for senior choirs—grades 9 through 12—and junior high school choirs—grades 7 and 8—have been arranged. The junior choir school is set for June 19-July 2.

The 19th annual band school, conducted by Dr. D. O. Wiley, director of Tech bands, is set for June 6-July 2. Dr. A. A. Harding, conductor emeritus of the University of Illinois bands, will be guest conductor.

How to spot an expert

An expert makes hard work easier.

When it comes to hauling, a GMC truck is your expert — for this very sound reason:

GMC — as the world's largest exclusive manufacturer of commercial vehicles — concerns itself 100% with the development of new and better ways to transport goods.

Each model is the careful answer to specific, tough hauling problems.

The new GMC "302" engine is a case in point. In addition to being America's highest-compression standard gasoline truck engine — it packs more horsepower for its weight than any other on the road! The result is savings in use — less "dead weight" by as much as 500 pounds over other engines of equal horsepower.

It's this kind of expert engineering that makes us sure of one thing: whatever model you select at our showroom — panel or pickup, stake rack or platform — you'll have an expert on your next job!

Weed Killing Job Never Finished

Weed Killer being used by Cynthia Lowry

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Planting activities are over and a schedule of spraying and weeding has been established. The principal activity of the gardener is confined to the removal of weeds.

A dictionary definition and with the consent of the gardening community a weed may be defined as any plant which is growing out of place. Honeysuckle growing down a bank or sprawling over a stone wall may be just what a landscaper ordered, but when it establishes itself in the garden, it is automatically marked for extermination.

A popular definition of a large number of specific plants—mostly those which are all of them healthy, and with a tendency to over-rapid growth—are generally considered weeds.

Most 'Popular' Weeds

The small home owner and weekend gardener, the list includes dandelions, plantain, docks, chickweed, pigweed, ragwort, spurge, mullein, wild mustard, and burdock. And, particularly in the East and the Middle West, the lawn is often infested with crabgrass.

Many of these have a disagreeable tendency to establish themselves securely in the lawn, completely fulfilling the dictionary definition, because what is sought for are perennial grasses and sedges, clover. Weeds growing in the flower and vegetable beds must be handled.

Once upon a time, no one had a word to say in favor of the weed and they were ruthlessly exterminated. The classic case of weeds is that they deprive wanted plants of needed food and moisture, that they frequently are hosts for disease and insects.

Weeds Are Useful

In more recent date, a few voices have been raised on behalf of weeds. Prof. Joseph A. Cocannouer of the University of Oklahoma has called them "guardians of the soil." He claims among other things that the controlled use of weeds prevent the sun from scorching the earth and preserves moisture. The deep foraging roots of weeds bring up minerals and nitrogen from below the reach of some plants' roots so that it can be used.

For the small gardener, however, weeds are undesirable additions to the plant family if for no other reason than they give the gardens and lawns an untidy, unattractive and unkempt look. They are kept down by a number of techniques, including pulling them out by hand.

For the broad-leaved weeds which seem to establish themselves easily in the lawn, there are the selective 2,4-D killers, chemical hormone preparations which should be used with utmost care and with strict attention to the manufacturer's instructions. While these spare the slender blades of wanted grass, the person applying the preparations by dust or spray should be careful not to allow the wind to carry the material to trees or flowers.

Cultivating, either rooting out or chopping off the weeds below ground, is an effective way of keeping down the population. So is the practice of mulching between rows and around plants.

Attend Funeral Services For Grand Nephew

Mr. and Mrs. Pryor Hammons attended funeral services Sunday afternoon at the Church of Christ at Floydada for his grand-nephew, little Teddy Carter Smith, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smith of 23 miles southeast of Floydada.

The child was accidentally killed Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, when he fell and was crushed by a truck driven by his nine year old brother.

The children, accompanied by an 11 year old neighbor boy were enroute to the field with a load of cotton seed for their father, when the boy lost control of the truck, which over turned pinning the three year old beneath the chassis. Neither of the other two boys were injured.

The frantic mother rushed the child to a hospital at Matador where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The paternal grandmother, Mrs. R. C. Smith of Floydada is a sister to Pryor Hammons sr. of Littlefield.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morris left Thursday morning for an extended vacation trip through several states, that will take them into Canada. They plan to visit in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Kansas City, Mo., Indianapolis, Indiana, Toledo and Cincinnati, Ohio, and Michigan.

FASTEST FIGHTER: Blink Your Eyes And Jet Is Gone

By RAY CARPENTER
AP Newsfeatures

Cutlass Jet has been called a flying engine

DALLAS—The weird looking craft's two jet engines roared and began rolling down the runway. Four or five seconds later it was airborne.

The pilot banked the plane sharply and pulled it skyward into a tight spiral. At the top of a 90-degree turn the "fastest fighter afloat" shot almost straight upward.

You blinked your eye and it was out of sight.

It was the Navy's newest jet interceptor, the FTU-3 Cutlass, designed to outfly and outfight any plane in the air. It probably is the fastest airplane produced in the United States today. The plane is manufactured here by Chance Vought, a division of United Aircraft.

Several pilots are known to have flown the FTU-1 Cutlass, predecessor of the FTU-3, faster than the speed of sound. Official sources, however, have not confirmed this. The Navy says the plane is in the "over 600 mile an hour class."

Plane Causes Shock Wave
Col. Fred J. Ascani, 34, deputy commander of the flight test center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., dived the FTU-1 Cutlass so fast recently that it caused a shock wave. So did Lt. Col. Richard L. Johnson, 34, of Wright-Patterson test center at Dayton, O.

These shock waves vibrated a large area of nearby Dallas, and caused residents to fear a terrific explosion had occurred in an industrial plant. Police and newspaper telephone exchanges were swamped with inquiring calls.

Dr. Wayne Redmore, a professor of physics at Southern Methodist University, said the planes had to go through the sonic barrier to cause the sound blast. "To set up a shock wave of this magnitude the plane would have to be going faster than the speed of sound," he said.

Sound travels about 760 miles an hour at sea level. At 40,000 feet, if the temperature is -40 degrees, the speed of sound is approximately 665 mph.

Two Jet Engines
The Cutlass is built around two turbo jet engines equipped with afterburners. The afterburners give the added boost needed for quick climbs and are used for combat emergency power.

The afterburner is an engine behind an engine. It creates additional thrust by burning the oxygen still left in the exhaust air of the turbo jet power plant.

The greatest drawback of the afterburner is its insatiable thirst for fuel. It uses a great deal more fuel than the jet engine.

Rate of Climb
The rate of climb of the Cutlass is almost unbelievable. Chance Vought officials won't say, but authoritative estimates place the rate of climb at 12,480 feet per minute at sea level with the use of afterburners.

This incredible rate of climb is gradually reduced at higher altitudes to an estimated 5,080 feet per minute at 35,000.

To look at it, you'd say the FTU's design is radical. It has no horizontal tail surfaces. The vertical stabilizer is built into the swept-back wings. Elevators and ailerons combined in the trailing edge of the stubby wings are known as ailerators.

But the designers say it is the logical answer to demands for high speed and the use of two jet engines in a fighter.

Flying Engine
The FTU is a departure from the flying wing theory. It is the nearest thing to a flying engine ever to reach production lines.

The pilot sits well forward in his cabin overlooking the plane's short nose. The cabin is pressurized, and either heated or cooled by automatic air conditioning equipment.

The FTU has yet to reach the fleet in numbers. But the Cutlass proved its worth in tests off the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Midway in July, 1951.

Texas Hybrid . . .

The history of corn is as old as the history of mankind.

From the earliest records which ancient man left around his camelidown through medieval and modern history, civilizations have achieved greatness or have crumbled according to the supply of corn. "Corn," in this sense, applies to all cereal grains—those abundant streams of golden and white kernels which are literally the lifeblood of healthy, vigorous nations.

Ancient Egypt's strength was derived from its corn crop. The annual inundation of the land by the Nile River provided fertile soil to produce grain for thousands of slaves who built huge temples and monuments that are still wonders of the modern world. The energy which produced these architectural marvels came from products of the soil.

One of the first incidents concerning the founding of our nation is woven around this grain. When the Pilgrims landed on the rocky eastern shore, they were met by friendly Indians who helped the prepare for the hard winter ahead. Perhaps one of the most valuable acts of friendship by the Redman was to teach the newcomers how to cultivate a corn crop. The fruits of this act were served at the first Thanksgiving meal.

We have come a long way in the development of corn since those early days. The Pilgrims merely dug a hole in the ground and dropped in a kernel of corn fertilized with a small sliver of fish. Today, through a process of scientific research, improved fertilization, and careful certification, we are developing better strains of corn which will assure the farmer of maximum yields.

Your State Department of Agriculture each year studies results of extensive tests conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment station in principal corn production areas. These tests prove the superiority of one strain of corn over another. Yield and stalk lodging, shelling qualities, disease resistance, and good shuck coverage are factors in rating merits of the strain. These merits determine the certification number which the Department of Agriculture requires on every bag of grain sold in Texas. As newer and better strains are developed, certification is extended to include the improvements and the old strains are dropped.

Texas Certified Hybrid Seed Corn producers are expanding production of the newer hybrids in 1952 and sufficient quantities of the better strains should be available for farmers next year.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

The old rhyme, "finders keepers—losers weepers," is not always strictly accurate under the law. It is sometimes difficult to define the rights of a finder in court, and much confusion on the subject exists in the mind of the public generally. Confidence men have many times taken advantage of such confusion to "fast talk" unwary individuals out of large sums of money.

There are some rather fine distinctions and exceptions to the "finders keepers" maxim that have plagued the courts—and finders—for generations. In the first place, the finder is not entitled to keep the property unless the original owner is not known and cannot be located. Neither may he keep it unless the object is truly "lost," and not merely "misplaced." In general, property is legally "lost" when parted with involuntarily—through accident, neglect, forgetfulness or any other unintentional circumstance. Property is not lost in the legal sense when voluntarily left by the owner, intending to pick it up later—even though he fails to do so. Such property is "misplaced."

Thus, if one loses a watch on the street by having the clasp break, not knowing where or when it was dropped, it is legally "lost." The same is true of a fountain pen falling through a hole in one's pocket unobserved. In such cases, the finder owns what he has found against all but the true owner.

But when articles are left on a train or bus, in a public hotel room, or even when dropped on a shop floor, under circumstances indicating that the true owner will later return to claim them, such items are considered lost. The proper custodian to hold them for the owners return would be the proprietor or other person in charge. Remaining unclaimed, the property sometimes goes to the custodian, sometimes to the finder. The distinction here appears to be whether the place it is found is private or semi-private, or a place used by the general public.

Every month or so we see a newspaper item telling how some sly person has learned the intricacies of the shady game known to police as "pigeon drop," at a cost of several hundred dollars. This confidence racket has many variations, but generally runs something like this:

A pair of smooth operators slide up to their intended victim on a downtown street. Stranger to each other, they have just found a billfold containing a large denomination bill or a large check, say $1000. They want to split the find, but neither has the money to buy out the other's interest. Now, if the victim can get hold of some cash they are willing to split three ways, or even to give him more than one-third.

When the sucker produces the money in anticipation of a quick return on his investment, complications develop. One of the confidence workers may have consulted

Legal Notice

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To: Frank Nichols; W. B. Nauman; W. H. Bolner; Ben Flentge; Eliza Workman, a feme sole; and the heirs and unknown heirs of each of the above named defendants, if deceased; and the heirs and unknown heirs of Charles C. Covert, deceased; and the heirs and unknown heirs of Charles M. Sarber, deceased, being Wallace C. Sarber; Elizabeth M. Keener and husband, Charles E. Keener; and Myrtle Kanouse and husband, Roy Kanouse; and their heirs and unknown heirs, if deceased; GREETING:

You are commanded to appear by filing a written answer to the plaintiff's petition at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance of this Citation, the same being Monday the 7th day of July, A.D., 1952, at or before 10 o'clock A.M. before the Honorable District Court of Lamb County, at the Court House in Littlefield, Texas.

Said plaintiff's petition was filed on the 22nd day of May, 1952. The file number of said suit being No. 3325. The names of the parties in said suit are:

Frank Cornelius and J. C. Hamby as Plaintiffs, and Frank Nichols; W. B. Nauman; W. H. Bolner; Ben Flentge; Eliza Workman, a feme sole; and the heirs and unknown heirs of each of the above named defendants, if deceased; and the heirs and unknown heirs of Charles C. Covert, deceased; and the heirs and unknown heirs of Charles M. Sarber, deceased, being Wallace C. Sarber; Elizabeth M. Keener and husband, Charles E. Keener; and Myrtle Kanouse and husband, Roy Kanouse; and their heirs and unknown heirs, if deceased; as Defendants.

The nature of said suit being suba fictitious employer in the absence of the victim. Now the billfold, its contents and the victim's money must be left in the employer's custody a few days in case the owner appears. Then the division is to be made. He takes the money to turn it in to the employer—just up the street a few doors—and disappears. His co-worker also judiciously takes his or her leave.

Numerous twists, not too credible in print, but all sounding very plausible when suggested by a fast talking confidence man, invariably have but one result—the loss of your money.

Avoid being victimized by keeping these ideas in mind. If it is a bona fide "find," your rights are inferior to those of the true owner, who can probably be located. If there is a check involved, the signer will certainly have stopped payment.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts, because the facts may change the application of the law.)

Season Control Should Be Focused At Thrips And Fleahopper

Flains is not the extent by the Owen, extension Texas Exper- Texas Tech said should be fleahopper. a problem Flains, but control program insurance when thrip and is high. there hasten the maturity of the crop, an important point in this area.

Most of the experiments conducted for thrips control alone, he said, have not produced spectacular increases in yields at the experiment station. In some years such control has been responsible for an earlier set of fruit, with little difference in yields of treated and untreated areas.

In some other experiments yields have been increased somewhat, though such increases have rarely reached 200 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

In still other years, treatments have failed to hasten maturity or increase yields. Such results substantiate the statement that the insects are not a serious problem every year.

Results Given

Present results would seem to indicate that thrips control, year after year, may not offer too much promise for increasing yields, he said, but will at times hasten maturity of the crop.

This may be explained by the fact that thrips generally let up in a few weeks, he stated, allowing a good later set of fruit, even where early damage may have been relatively heavy.

Occasionally damage may continue for a longer period. At such times control will result in definite increased yields.

Early control of fleahoppers—when the insects are present in average infestations—may hasten the maturity of the crop and produce some increase in yields, control of heavy infestations naturally would produce more pronounced differences in maturity and increases in yields, he pointed out.

If a control program is to be followed, it is highly important that it be followed through according to

Thirteenth Annual American Cotton Congress To Convene In Houston

The American Cotton Congress will hold its 13th Annual Session in Houston on June 19, 20 and 21. Headquarters will be the Rice Hotel, which is completely air-conditioned. The first two days of the session, June 19 and 20, will be held in the Ball Room of the Rice Hotel, and the third day session will be in the nature of a field day on a prison farm close to Houston.

The Congress will open at 9:30 a.m., Thursday, June 19, and the principal speakers for that day include: The keynote address by Burris C. Jackson, Hillsboro, Texas, Chairman, State-Wide Cotton Committee of Texas; Sydnor Oden, President of the Houston Chamber of Commerce and Vice President of Anderson-Clayton & Company; L. I. Jones, Program Coordinator for Cotton, United States Extension Service; Gus Geisler, Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, Washington, D. C.; and Clifford R. Hope, Representative in Congress from Kansas and Ranking Republican Member of the House Committee of Agriculture.

Also, special entertainment features are being arranged.

All persons interested in cotton are cordially invited. There is no registration fee for the Cotton Congress. All persons will be requested to register.

Hotel reservations may be made direct with George B. Adams, Executive Assistant Manager, Rice Hotel, Houston, Texas.

Recommendations, he emphasized. Applications should be made on time.

Stringing out of treatments will permit populations increases of insects which may nullify the effects of an individual treatment. A thorough application, with the proper amount of the recommended insecticide is necessary, he said.

Spray treatments have generally been found best for early season applications, he said. In early season, winds are often too high for best dust application and repeat treatments should be made if applications are removed by rains, soon after treatment, he concluded.

that it is an American or English custom to invite to lunch six or eight women, "usually childhood friends or college classmates."

The implication is that such odd customs are beyond Gallic comprehension, but for the French hostess who is novelty-loving or brash enough to imitate, the writer issues a stern warning:

"Hell hath no fury like that of a Frenchwoman invited to a hen party, without due and fair warning."

"You must never invite a friend, no matter how intimate, to this sort of luncheon without warning her that she will only be with other women."

"Otherwise, she might arrive decked out with her best outfit, with the intention (secret, but well

Glenn D. Landrum Serves On Destroyer In Far East

Serving in the Far East aboard the destroyer escort O'Bannon is Glenn D. Landrum, fireman apprentice, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Landrum of Star Route 1, Littlefield.

Landrum, who has served on the O'Bannon for four months, entered the Naval service April 26, 1951. He formerly attended Littlefield High school.

The O'Bannon, while operating with the UN Blockading and Escort Force, recently fired 1,300 rounds of ammunition at Communist military installations and troop positions in the besieged city of Wonsan.

She arrived in the Korean area in Nov., 1951.

The destroyer received nationwide acclaim during World War II when she engaged a Japanese battleship near Guadalcanal and damaged the ship so badly that it was sunk the following day.

understood) of charming her two male neighbors at the table."

"If you only offer the company of two old friends with whom she made mud pies in the park or copied Latin verses at school or the convent, she will never forgive you!" cries the French Emily Post.

The article admits that hen parties can be fun, but quickly adds, "or they can be very annoying."

French hostesses are traditionally respectful of protocol when they seat guests at their table, but the homemakers' magazines prod them on with suggestions of the awful consequences if they make a gaff. Foreigners are especially difficult, they are advised. Say the French writers:

An Italian who doesn't care for the place given him at a large dinner party will ostentatiously cross his knife and fork on his plate, and refuse to eat or speak, during the whole meal.

A Spaniard, even more sensitive of his wounded dignity, "will not hesitate to refuse to sit down."

But an Englishman, instead of making a scene, will take his lowly place and wait for a break in the conversation to sarcastically thank his hostess for treating him like an old friend of the family though it is his first visit.

Another type of luncheon or dinner, the tete-a-tete, is enthusiastically endorsed as something the modern Frenchwoman has over grandma, who never had such opportunities (the guest, it is airily assumed, will always be a male).

But even if he is "only" your husband, the French social arbiter advises flattering him with an attractive table and good menu.

She recommends a gaily printed tablecloth, and no other ornaments other than a bouquet (longer than it is high) and perhaps plain candlesticks.

Arty hostesses who go in for porcelain poodles to hide the salt and pepper, causing luckless guests to pepper what they wished to salt, get a slap on the wrist. So do those who pay too much attention to their guests' appetites, and make everybody feel they must take second servings.

Lums Chapel Couple

The accident was rather of the freak variety, or was caused due to unusual circumstances. The Carlisle car was following behind the butane truck, and another light truck, and the latter truck, attempted to pass the butane truck, and in so doing went into the ditch. The Carlisles became so absorbed in the fate of the overturned truck, that they failed to notice, in time, the big butane truck, which had stopped on the highway, while the driver sought to assist the driver of the pickup, and their car crashed into it.

A brother, to Mrs. Carlisle, who came to the hospital gave the above version of the accident to a Leader reporter.

The driver of the overturned truck, whose name was not learned, was not seriously injured.

Both the Carlisle car and the overturned truck were damaged.

Youth Recreation Director Resigns To Do Scout Work

Don Maness, who has headed the Youth Recreation Center, and program, for the past nine months, has tendered his resignation, effective May 31, and has announced that he has been offered and accepted a position as field scout executive, with headquarters at Abilene. He will first take a 6-week preparation course in New Jersey, and will assume his new position August 1.

This leaves the recreation center without an acting head or director, and also leaves the status of the youth center and the proposed summer recreation program in a doubtful status.

The prime reason for the resignation of Mr. Maness was the lack of support in funds for the center and program. But Mr. Maness stated that an apathetic attitude on the part of Littlefield youth, in attendance and support, was also a major factor in his resignation, and in the lack of support for the program.

The past week a new funding drive was undertaken here, but reports received, indicate that the drive was not too successful, at least thus far, with a goal of $5,000 set but not nearly attained. Actually, it was reported less than $1,000 was pledged.

Those in charge of the drive, which includes two representatives from each civic club in the city, have scheduled another meeting for next Monday night, in furtherance of the campaign. To this meeting, have been invited youths, parents, in fact everyone, interested in youth and a summer program.
