Spiced with grated onion, chopped parsley, pimiento and celery, this macaroni loaf not only gives plenty of food value but excellent flavor and appetite appeal. Unflavored gelatine does the blending as well as the molding trick. And did you know that men in particular are gelatine fans and like foods connected with it?

WATER LEVEL DROP IN IRRIGATED REGION IS 1.3 FEET FOR YEAR

The average water level in the principal irrigated region of the High Plains has dropped 1.3 feet from January 1950 to February 1951, according to a bulletin released recently by W. E. Wrather, director at Austin of the U. S. Geological Survey.

The area under study consists of 6,800,000 acres in all or parts of 21 counties south of the Canadian River. There were 14,500 irrigation wells in operation in the area during the period covered in the report and from them 1,600,000 acre-feet of water was withdrawn, according to the bulletin.

The maximum recorded water level decline was 6.8 feet, but in much of the area the decline was only a fraction of a foot. From 1938 to 1951 the average decline amounted to five feet or less beneath 78 per cent of the 6,800,000-acre reservoir, while it amounted to 50 feet or more beneath only one-sixth of 1 per cent of the area.

Less Baseball Seen For 1952

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
NEW YORK—There will be less organized baseball this year than in any campaign since World War II. Baseball is feeling the pinch.

The reason appears to be a combination of such things as minor league money losses, draft calls of young prospects and the expansion of radio and television over the past few years.

In 1946, the first postwar year, 43 minor league teams operated. The figure climbed until it reached 59 leagues in 1949 and 1950. But last year the slackening off began. Fifty-two leagues were scheduled for action but 50 opened and 49 finished a full season.

40 May Function

It now appears that no more than 40 leagues will function in 1952. The Class A Central League, Class C Canadian-American League and Class D Georgia-Florida, Far West and Ohio-Indiana Leagues quit recently. The entrant embraced three states—Michigan, Ohio and West Virginia—with four of its teams in Michigan.

Some major officials say "quality instead of quantity," but it is felt that Oswald (Ossie) Bluege is closer to the right answer than anybody. Says the director of the Washington Senators' minor league clubs:

"Losses, losses, losses, all the way down. A number of clubs are begging the majors to take over outright ownership."

The world champion New York Yankees, once with a 22-team system, are down to a stream-lined 10. Lee MacPhail, Yankee farm system chief, says 119 Yankee farmhands are in the service.

The Cincinnati Reds appear hard hit. They had a working agreement with Buffalo but the Detroit Tigers purchased Buffalo as an AAA replacement for its Toledo team. The

OSSIE BLUEGE

Reds also lost a Class A club (Charleston, W. Va.) when the Central League folded.

The Pittsburgh Pirates lost an AAA team (Indianapolis) but that was expected when Frank McKinney, Democratic national chairman, who owns Indianapolis, sold his Pittsburgh stock.

The Chicago Cubs, who have 105 players in the service, including four from the parent club, lost a Class AA club in Nashville. The Southern Association team now has a working agreement with the Giants.

The Giants lost $70,000 in Ottawa last year and have sold that International League team to the Philadelphia Athletics. Ottawa drew only 122,000 fans last season.

The Giants believe 200,000 are needed to break even.

The Pacific Coast League gained added independence when two of its teams severed major league ties. The Chicago White Sox no longer have a working agreement with Sacramento, while the Cleveland Indians are out at San Diego. However, the Indians now are tied up with Indianapolis.

The Boston Red Sox have replaced Scranton in the Class A Eastern League with Albany, N. Y., in the same circuit. Scranton has been added to the St. Louis Browns' chain.

Denver Made Money

The Boston Braves lost a Class A team when Denver in the Western League decided to go it alone. Denver, incidentally, is one of the few money makers in the minors due to fan interest. There happens to be no television in Denver.

General Manager Branch Rickey of the Pirates, the man who built the farm system with the St. Louis Cardinals and expanded the Brooklyn Dodgers, is far from discouraged.

"The past year has been an encouraging one for Pittsburgh," says Rickey. "We still have a long way to go and Pittsburgh deserves a winner. Calls to the military service may tend to slow our plans but perseverance and the will to win cannot be denied forever. I believe we are headed in the right direction. Our accent is on youth and youth has a way of asserting itself."

The Dodgers, though they have whittled their system from 19 teams to 17, still have the largest chain. They have two clubs each in A, double A and triple A ball. Their big problem will be supplying enough good AAA players for teams at Montreal and St. Paul and AA athletes for their Fort Worth and Mobile clubs.

Off-Season For Trotters

AP Newsfeatures

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—Most of the 15 and a half million who saw harness racing in 1951 may not be aware of it, but there just isn't any off-season for trotters and pacers.

To be sure, there's no sulky racing anywhere in the U.S. at the moment—hasn't been since the Hollywood Park windup December first and won't be until the March 14 inaugural at Santa Anita—but make no mistake about it, the sport is alive with activity.

An estimated 12,000 standard-breds are being booked to training camps six days a week at points north, south, east and west. A total of 11,157 got to the races last year and hundreds of last fall's yearlings are being prepared for their debuts as two-year-olds.

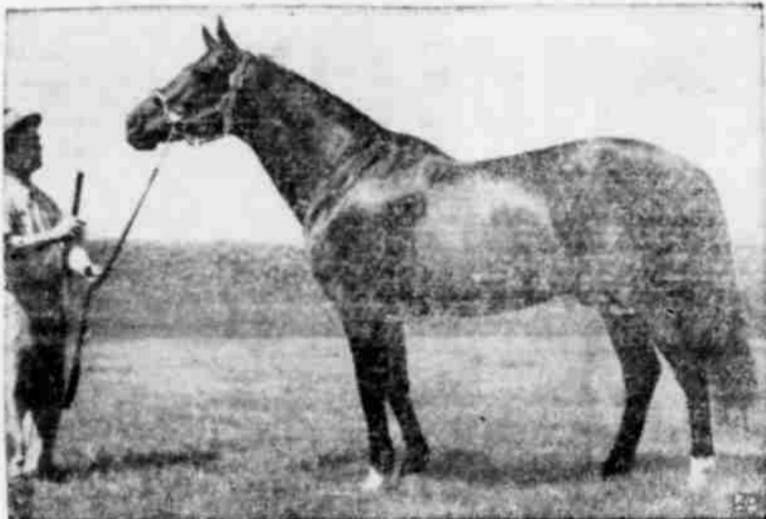

Many of the big stables are basking in the warm climes of Pinebluff, N. C., Aiken, S. C., Macon, Ga., Orlando, Fla., and Del Mar, Calif. But the vast majority are wintering right at home, either by choice or at the dictate of the family income. Since the greatest concentration of owners is in the north, it follows that most of the sport is "wintering."

Saratoga Raceway, where they race for 90 summer and fall nights, is one of the biggest winter training colonies in the north. The snow is piled four and five feet high and the mercury is making frequent dips below zero, but more than 100 horses and 27 trainers are on the go every day but Sunday. The raceway keeps three tracks plowed to handle the morning traffic. The trainers bundle heavily for the jogging. Ski caps and mittens are about the norm—but many of them claim they don't even wear long underwear.

As for the horses, they wear nothing more than a harness, yet they seem to stay healthy and strong. In fact, many trainers say the owners would be willing to send them south in winter that northern training is best.

Aubrey Rodney, who has been training and driving for more than 40 years, is a stout champion of northern training. The fact that he won six sulky titles at the track helps to prove his point. Rodney began his career under the trained Walter Cox, who scored the greatest training feat in the history of the Hambletonian by having four of his northern-trained charges capture the first four monies in the 1929 Hambletonian. The winner was Walter Dear, owned by William H. Cane of Goshen. Second was Volomite, now the leading sire in the sport.

But whether it's in the north or south, the task of readying a stable for a new season is a big one. In November and December it's the breaking of yearlings. In January and February it's the jogging of every horse from three to five miles a day. For those in the warm climates, the real training begins in February and steady increases in speed become the rule. Up north that doesn't happen until late March. It's all in preparation for a 1952 campaign that promises to offer around $14,000,000 in purses—a vast change from the $1,313,024 distribution this same sport knew in 1943.

THANKS PAL! That's what trotter Guy Springwood seems to be saying to his trainer, Charlie Fleming, as they prepare for a morning workout in the snow at Saratoga, N. Y., Raceway. The 2-year-old is owned by Ernest B. Morris of Loudonville, N. Y.

Texas Hitters Would Love Mexico

AP Newsfeatures

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—There is talk of the Beaumont franchise in the Texas League shifting to Mexico City—not this year but maybe in 1953.

At the schedule meeting of the Texas League in Houston this was the chief topic of conversation. Owner Guy Airey at Beaumont has received an offer from an unnamed person to buy the franchise, move it to Mexico City and give Airey a 10-year contract to run the club. League President J. Alvin Gardner says it can be done and the teams transported by plane—that the farthest Texas League point from Mexico City will take only three and one-half hours.

But what about the players? Johnny James of the San Antonio Light discusses this angle and he quotes Hoot Gibson, a pitcher for the San Antonio club, who says the altitude and the thin air in Mexico City will do irritating tricks with a baseball.

Gibson played in the Mexican League in 1946. He says he had to learn to throw all over again. "His usual manner of spinning the ball had little effect on the ball's flight," write James. "The batters, most of whom would have been easy meat for the Hooter, teed off merrily and rode his Sunday pitches all over the lot—and out of it. Outfielders, too, had their troubles in the Mexico City park, because what seemed to be pop flies often sailed."

James also reasons that many players would be affected harmfully by a jump from Houston's sea level park to the mile-high altitude at Mexico City.

Beaumont's low attendance has been a matter of concern for other clubs in the Texas League because it affects the visitors' take-home pay, but Jack Fiser, sports editor of the Shreveport Times, says the exchange rate problem is another obstacle. "Not much question that Mexico City, with its three and one-half million people, would draw well," he writes. "But when it comes to translating the visiting club's pesos into dollars, most of the TL bosses seem to doubt that the Americans could possibly come out. To be sure, international baseball is not exactly in its experimental stages. Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Vancouver and Havana have fitted into the organized baseball family without trouble.

But Canadian and Cuban currency seems to come much closer to par value with the dollar than does the Mexican peso. Certain of the TL owners believe that an annual draw of a half-million in Mexico City might not help the league any more than the 105,000 that

GUY AIREY Received An Offer

Beaumont totaled last summer." Fiser found that at least one Texas League club owner—Dallas' Dick Burnett—has already made it clear that he does not intend to force flying time on his ball players. "I don't like to fly myself," he says, "so I can't very well demand it of anyone else."

Fiser adds that as far as anybody can estimate, it would be impossible to manufacture a schedule that could be met via rail transport.

After listening to the ins and outs of the business and the opinions of all, he does not think Mexico City will have a Texas League franchise in the near future.

Future Farmers Association Observing National FFA Week Feb. 18 Through 23

Texas FFA chapters are joining other FFA chapters in the nation, in the National observance of FFA week, February 17-23, by celebrating and sponsoring local chapter meetings, district meetings and banquets, school assemblies, service club and radio programs and father-son banquets, according to Vannoy Stewart state FFA advisor. One out of every four high school boys in Texas is a member of the Future Farmers of America, and these 35,000 Texans account for nearly one-eighth of the total national FFA membership of 300,000. There are now FFA chapters in every state of the union, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

The Future Farmers of America is an organization of both farm and city boys studying vocational agriculture. Pioneer efforts of the Future Farmer organization in Virginia attracted a great deal of attention, and soon six southern states formed organizations patterned after the Virginia set-up. Texas was the 34th state to join the national group, which will observe its 25th anniversary next year.

FFA week traditionally includes the birthday of George Washington, who is recognized by the FFA as the first scientific farmer. Today, the young farmers learn that Washington practiced soil conservation, improved his farming implements, and through experiments on his own lands was constantly improving methods for raising crops and livestock.

Boys join the Future Farmers as "Greenhands," and after reaching certain standards, are given the "Chapter Farmer" degree. Members who make outstanding accomplishments receive the "Farmer" degree. The "Farmer" degree, the highest, is awarded to a member in a thousand. From the group holding the highest degree a "Star Farmer" is chosen. As a boy won this honor in 1931. The keen interest of the farming is shown in the projects as reported by art. Investments of the boys state total more than $10 million. They have more than a million dollars invested in cattle, swine and dairy crops. FFAers are handling projects valued at approximately 600,000, and turkey at more than 900. They are caring for goats valued at over $100,000. Last year the young farmers planted 14,000 acres of corn and 25,000 acres of cotton. The largest crop was 45,000 bushels of corn, and their biggest maker was the fruit crop valued at nearly two dollars.

Littlefield Vocational Ag. FFA Chapter Conducting Team Places First In District

Littlefield Future Farmers of America (FFA) was represented in the District competitions held at Muleshoe last Saturday, along with Vocational Ag. FFA chapters, students from Spade, Springlake, Olton, Sudan, Farwell, Muleshoe, Lazbuddie and Dimmitt, and the local chapter walked off with the high honors, first place in Chapter Conducting, and placed second in Junior Farm demonstrations. Olton placed second and Dimmitt third in Chapter conducting.

The winning of the first place and an appropriate banner, signifying their win, the local FFA chapter, also won the right to compete in the District competitions to be held at Plainview next Saturday. The winner in turn, at Plainview, gets the right to enter the all-state competitions to be held at Huntsville a week later.

About ten district winning teams will be entered in the competitions at Plainview next Saturday.

The splendid scores made by the Littlefield and Olton chapters was pronounced outstanding by the judges and Vocational Ag. teachers in attendance. Littlefield scoring 943 out of a possible 1,000 score, while Olton trailed by only six points, scoring 937.

The local team of winners was composed of John Fields, president, Howard Buck, 1st vice president, Ronald Rogers, 2nd vice president, Larry Kennemer, 3rd vice president, Max Barnett, reporter, Bill Womack, treasurer, Albert Emmons, secretary, Walter Hill, historian, Tommy Sisson, sentinel, Jack Price, advisor, and Earl Turnaville, parliamentarian.

Sabin Hendrickson, former Littlefield football star, who will graduate from McMurry in May has signed a contract to play professional football for the New York Giants.

Hendrickson will report to the Giants training quarters on August 1st and the first game on the Giants 1952 schedule will be with the newly organized Dallas club in the Cotton Bowl.

Hendrickson is also a graduate from Oklahoma A & M. He is married to the former Earlene Smalley of Littlefield.

Hendrickson played for the Wildcats from 1944 to 1946 at both tackle and fullback. He made all-district at both positions and was Co-Capt. of the Cats his last year.

Sweaters Are Ordered For Ten Cage Lettermen

Coach Forrest Martin has announced that ten boys have lettered on the basketball team and sweaters have already been ordered.

The ten lettermen announced by Martin are: Co-Captains Joe Walden and Keith Streety, R. L. Rhoden, Garland Thornton, Freddy Howard, Bill Jones, Jackie Beckner, Frank Fry, Henry Bishop and Boyd Meers. All of the boys except Walden, Howard and Fry will return next year.

The boys have to buy their own sweaters because of a rule set by the Texas Interscholastic League that only $15 dollars a year may be used to buy an athlete a jacket and an additional two dollars for a letter in any other sport that he participates in. The amount was only ten dollars until this year when the amount was raised by a overwhelming vote of 588 to 152 at their regular meeting.

Grid Wolves ..

AP Newsfeatures
MINOT, N. D.—In these days of repeated changes in coaching staffs, it is good to note one spot in the nation where the demand for a coach's scalp is an unknown occurrence. It's the North Dakota Intercollegiate Conference.

Five coaches in the nine-school league have completed at least 21 years at their respective positions. Three others have been holding down the job for at least four years.

The senior member of the coaches brigade in the NDIC is Earl Bute of Wabpeton Science College. He's in his 28th years as athletic director and football coach. He was also the basketball mentor until the '48-49 season.

Next in longevity is Senn Slemmons of Ellendale Normal and Industrial College. This is his 27th season.

Harry Wienbergen is in his 23rd year at Dickinson Teachers College.

E. J. (Al) Cassell of Jamestown College and Lewy Lee of Mayville Teachers are both 22-year men.

An odd note concerning these men is that, although all five are athletic directors, none of them is an alumnus of the college where he coaches.

There is, however, one black spot on the record of the NDIC. It is Bismarck Junior College. They have had four football and three basketball coaches since entering the league in 1948.

SPORT SHOTS

By Harold V. Ratliff
Associated Press Sports Editor

Texas four-pronged high school football championship campaign last fall was amazing as to interest and attendance. Official figures now available with the Texas Interscholastic League show that the playoff games in Classes AAAAA, AAA, AA and A drew 340,366 paid admissions. That means that for the 76 games played the average was 4,478 per contest.

Class AAAAA averaged 12,454. Class AAA, 6,773, Class AA, 3,832 and Class A, 2,816.

This is a tremendous figure in view of the fact that games were played in all parts of the state, in all kinds of weather, and under all kinds of conditions, from both a physical and weather viewpoint.

In Class A and AA it was not at all uncommon for the attendance to exceed the town's total population.

The championship games in the various classes drew these totals: Baytown-Lubbock, Class AAAAA, 14,000; Temple-Breckenridge, Class AAA, 8,500; LaVega-Arlington, Class AA, 7,500; Newcastle-Giddings, Class A, 5,000.

In other words 35,000 saw the championship games and two of those contests were in terrible weather.

You hear the lament that there isn't the big gate for the state championship game as in other years—for instance, in 1945, the state title game (there was only one class playing for a title then) drew 47,000. In 1948 there were some 38,000.

But when you add them all up, for the four classes that now play for titles, you get about the same number that saw the finals in the days of the one-championship affair.

In other words, now all the schools are getting to share in the good gates. Even the lowly Class A schools, can pay expenses.

Before the new plan was inaugurated whereby there would be four divisions playing for titles, the fans had no choice except to follow the Class AA race, as all other races ended at the District or Regional level. Then came the City Conference, Class AA and Class A. And now the four divisions.

As each conference now has its race, the people in each town are going to be primarily interested in their own campaign. This is wholesome—it spreads interest in football throughout the Texas population.

But attendance is only one factor in high school football. The major one now is that the program has been worked out to the best interest of the individual boy. He is competing under equal conditions with an equal opportunity of succeeding.

The big schools still draw the big attendance as witness Lubbock, the Class AAAAA state champion which averaged some 13,000 for its games, but the small schools also can get enough fans out to pay the expenses of the athletic program.

It seems that the Texas Interscholastic League has solved its problems. We still have a bona fide champion (the Class AAAAA boys are the best) and we also have state champions that mean just as much to the small schools.

US Bobsledders Have Grit

By RALPH HALL
AP Newsfeatures
LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—The United States Olympic bobsledders have the grit and the brawn that should bring America two championships, says Jack Garren, chairman of the Olympic bobsled committee.

Garren, who built the Mt. Van Hoevenberg bob run here, says the current crew "is the best balanced team ever to represent the United States."

The German team is expected to be our main rival, says Garren. The Deutschlanders whizzed to the world's two-man and four-man titles a year ago at L'Alpe-Huize, France.

"Our superiority in bobsledding goes back to the same thing that makes our fighting men the best in the world," says Garren. "They've got plenty of nerve and guts. Fine driving skill and teamwork count a lot, but those split seconds that mean victory are shaved by taking chances. And our boys certainly aren't afraid to do that."

The U.S. team departed from New York by plane on Feb. 3. Three men were sliced from the squad because of expenses. This puts the Americans behind the eight ball in training or actual competition. The winter games begin in Oslo, Feb. 14.

Stan Benham of Lake Placid will captain and pilot the No. 1 four-man sled that won in 1948. Behind Benham will be Pat Martin, an Olympic veteran from Massena, N. Y., Jim Atkinson of Hamilton, N. Y., and Howard Crossett of Bradford, N. H. Martin was also No. 2 man for Francis Tyler when our bobsledders won the four-man title in the 1948 games at St. Moritz.

Jim Bickford, another '48 veteran from Saranac Lake, will captain and pilot the No. 2 team with Capt. Dick Severino of Saratoga Springs, Henry W. Stern of Saranac Lake and Capt. Hubert Miller of Fort Dix, N.J., riding in the rear.

America's No. 1 two-man team will be Benham and Martin while the No. 2 sleds are Fred Fortune and John Helmer, both of Lake Placid. Squad alternates are at the Tropical meeting.

The race mob sat up and took notice. Who was this mild, 99-pound bantam who sat a horse, some said, much like the fiery once-famous Don Meade?

"Racing background?" said Jimmy. "No, I don't have any of that. I never heard of a track until I was 16. I just started riding, 'cause it was either that or mine coal."

The son of a coal dealer in Kona, Ky. (pop. 600), Jimmy heard a couple of boys in his home town were going to Detroit to work at the tracks. He went along.

For almost two years, he worked around the stables at the Detroit Fairgrounds track, learning to ride as he exercised horses and watched the jockeys. Then, in the next nine months, he was given five mounts, but each finished out of the money.

In February, 1951, on his sixth mount Jimmy won his first race at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.

The victory fired up the soft-spoken youngster. The very next day he bottled home three winners. Other triples followed during the summer in the Detroit area.

At the end of the 1951 campaign, Jimmy had 122 winners and horse owners were beginning to bid for his services.

His four winners Jan. 9 at Tropical started Jimmy off with a bang in 1952. When Tropical closed Jan. 16, he was the leading apprentice rider of the meeting with 21 winners.

D. J. Ramsey, a former rider who took Jimmy under his wing after seeing him in action last summer, thinks the Kentucky kid will be a great jockey before he's through.

"He was easy to educate for the race racket," Ramsey says. "He's level headed and sharp. I'll rate him right now with the best of the old stars when they started out."

"The kid has no emotions and no big head. He wants to learn. When a trainer tells how to ride a horse, he listens, while other jockeys are looking out the window."

A State On Wheels

Keeping highways up-to-date is of concern to every Texan.

Our economy depends on roads. Every day more and more vehicles are on the highways, carrying passengers and goods.

At the same time the roads are becoming less capable of carrying the constantly increasing volume of traffic. We are getting behind with the highway job in Texas.

Maintenance is a great problem because of war-time damage and neglect, and because many miles of roads have passed their normal life expectancy and should be rebuilt.

New construction is desperately needed to relieve congestion which makes highway travel dangerous. Accidents are increasing as the roads become even more crowded.

Here in Texas we now have 3,400,000 vehicles registered. Our traffic death rate is more than 2,000 per year. Economic loss is in the neighborhood of $100 million.

What are we going to do about it? Well, not long ago the highway department estimated that additional revenue of at least $100 million per year for the next five years would be required to modernize our roads so as to carry the traffic adequately.

If all the road user taxes you pay went to the highway department, the revenue would be sufficient to build and maintain all the roads we need.

Part of the money is diverted, however, to the public schools, to the counties, to agricultural users in refunds, and so on. (About one dollar out of three that goes to the federal government in road user taxes comes back to the state in federal aid for roads.)

If we can stop road user tax diversion, the financing problem is solved. Otherwise it will be necessary to find new tax money for highways.

There is a third alternative—that of letting our roads go to ruin. This does not seem to be a very desirable way out of the dilemma.

Texas Good Roads Association, with headquarters in Austin, has launched a campaign to inform the people about the highway emergency. You can, if interested, get more details about the road situation by writing that association.

Every Texan should be interested. We are a state—and a nation—on wheels.

Cattle and Sheep Disease Spreads

Livestock producers were alerted today against a serious reproductive disease of cattle and sheep which now appears to have spread to every state in the nation.

The disease, vibriotic infection, takes a heavy toll of livestock profits through breeding failures, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health.

"Vibriotic infection is caused by a tiny germ which attacks cows and ewes, causing sterile animals or the loss of calves and lambs," the Foundation reports.

"Diagnosis is difficult, as vibriotic infection can easily be confused with other cattle and sheep breeding diseases such as brucellosis, triebomoniasis, salmonellosis, pasteurellosis and listeriosis. For this reason, when owners have breeding troubles in their herds, they should have the animals given blood and cultural tests. If the veterinarian finds the trouble is vibriotic infection, steps can then be taken to deal with the problem on a herd basis.

"Bulls and rams are believed to be the chief spreaders of the disease. New cows and ewes should be tested, too. Safety measures include segregating healthy animals from the infected ones, and guarding against the spread of the disease."

work for her and she is sure they'll work for others.

She is careful to point out that her little book—it is only 61 pages long—is not a recipe book. Rather it is a book of food lists chosen to remind a parent of the many things a child may have to eat and the many ways you can serve them.

By the time you have read the book you should be equipped to handle almost any food problem for Junior so satisfactorily that he will have the proper diet his health and growth require.

Of particular value to parents is the special section on psychological problems in eating by one of the experts in the field of child care, Dr. Samuel Karelitz.

The pediatrician knows, he says, that by far the majority of poor-eating problems are psychological.

If one may generalize and still be correct, in the large majority of instances, poor eating habits are created by children to be used against members of the household, most often the parents themselves. If poor eating is the tool employed by Johnny to torment his mother or to keep his mother near him, it falls in its purpose if the parent learns to be non-

One way of getting Johnny to eat, says Dr. Karelitz, is to place the entire meal on the table before him, while Mother reads, knits or otherwise occupies herself for about 45 minutes. At the end of that time Mother should remove the food which has been left, without commenting, grumbling or in any way indicating displeasure or pleasure. "It takes perseverance, and a strong will, for a worrisome mother to carry out this regime for the 2 to 4 weeks that may be necessary for success."

A child should be taught to feed himself as early as possible, says the doctor. He cautions:

"Do not try to teach him to eat. Introduce chopped foods and solid foods of heavier consistency as soon as he can tolerate them. If he chooses to eat with his fingers, do not be dismayed. He will learn conventional eating habits from your example when he is old enough to observe.

"When he is older, let him play or help in the kitchen while you are preparing his meal. The delightful odors of good food are better stimulants to digestive juices than radios or fairy tales, and the

So Your Child Won't Eat

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

So your child won't eat! What do you do? Go stark mad trying to think of something he will eat?

That's why Hilda Sachs wrote "So Your Child Won't Eat!" (Sterling Publishing Co., N.Y., $1).

"It all began," she says, "when a friend suggested trying an egg salad. I did and my child ate heartily for the first time in days. I just hadn't thought of egg salad before. It was then I decided that there must be many simple things one 'just doesn't think of' and many different ways to prepare the old stand-bys. I wrote them down as I thought of them and, before I knew it, the list of simple ways one might prepare potatoes alone took almost a page."

She decided to pass these ideas along to all mothers facing the same problem. They seemed to

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

As an air scoop, the nose starts off a chain of respiratory reactions which get around to all parts of the body sooner or later. As an atomizer for odors, the nose turns on a sprinkling system of scents which starts in the brain and also reacts throughout the body. But that's not all the nose does.

The nose also has an effect upon your voice and upon your hearing. The main nerve of the eyes crosses over some of the nasal pathways and thus gets influenced by the doings of the nose.

The nerve in the head that is connected with the nose is the No. 1 cranial nerve, and as such it is possibly the first link-up between you and the outside world that comes to you in gusts of air. When you toss back some of that air in the form of speech, the nose and nasal cavity get in on the deal, too.

Back behind and around your eyes is the nasal cavity, a cavern-type structure with several stalactites hanging down. The holes inside these noisew stalactites are the sinuses. If you've hit a stalactite in a cave, you know it gives off a ringing sound, shriller toward the loose end than toward the bigger attached end.

The sounds you make in your voice box come tooting up the throat and swat the different sinuses on their way out and you have speech of varying pitch. When these sinuses are chock-full of germs or congestion, they don't ring when hit, they just sorta thud and you have the peculiar dull nasal quality of speech that accompanies a cold or sinus trouble.

All the gadgets that make up the voice box and all the paraphernalia that lie between the voice box, and the sinuses also play a part in the production of sound, of course, but the nose in in on the deal, too.

At the back of the nasal cavern is a hole in the ceiling that leads off to another part of the cave. This ceiling slopes downward at this point into the throat, but that hole leads to the intricate system of the ears.

From that hole the ears are supposed to get their ventilation. You know that the outside ears have a drum over them which generally forms a seal, so that only sounds and not air enter the ear from that shell-shaped job sticking out on each side of the head. But from that hole there is at the back of the nasal cavity near the top of the throat, the air circulates into the ears, aiding in all the functions of the ears, including the maintenance of balance.

There's a tiny recess just behind this hole, the kind of off-set from traffic that often collects "spiderwebs." It isn't in the channel of airflow, so it doesn't get swept very often and as any such spot might, it collects webs and other debris. The webs and debris make up the kind of stuff known as adenoids.

A little bit of adenoids might be all right; it might be the web that catches some of the "flies" that get in the air stream. But when those adenoids keep piling up, they get so big and heavy that they close over that hole to the ears, not only cutting down on hearing but also possibly messing up the many other functions of the ears. It takes noseing sufficiently past this hole to breathing to keep the air circulating the ear to keep webs from closing it up. So here, again, the nose plays a very important role.

Then there's the involvement of the nose and the eyes. You know that when you cry, your nose runs. The ducts which channel your tears open not only into the eye, which makes them overflow, but there is also a "safety" valve that opens into your nose, too. So you have to blow your nose when you cry to get the tears out.

Then there's the problem of peeling onions. If you hold the onion under running water when you peel it, you won't weep; or if you keep your mouth open and close your nose when you peel the onion, you don't weep. It is possible that the onion juice can sting your eyes if it gets in them, making you weep.

Mrs. Peachey Wins On Radio Program

Mrs. W. A. Peachey's question was read as the sweepstake question on Walter O'Keefe's "Double or Nothing" program for Campbell's soups Wednesday morning of last week.

She brought recognition to Amberst and $107 to herself with the question on the National Broadcasting company's program heard from KGNC, Amarillo.

The question was: The four virtues of man are prudence, justice, temperance and fortitude. Collectively speaking, by what are these virtues known?

Answer—The cardinal virtues.

It is also possible that the onion scent, when it hits the smelling bulbs in the nose, gets rejected and sets up a backward flow which results in tearing of the eyes and dripping of the nose; then, by keeping your mouth open and automatically closing off your nose, you can peel onions and smile.

Another connectoin between the nose and eyes exists in the pulley which works the eyelids up and down; this pulley is connected with the root of the nose, there between the eyes.

With so many different functions of the nose parental warning of "Keep your nose clean" becomes a very good piece of advice.

TEEN TALK

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Plant your beauty seeds now and reap the benefits as you grow older. If you want to be glamorous at 30, lovely at 40, and charming in your old age, work for it now. A young plant will wilt if it doesn't get proper care—water, sunshine and air. So, too, it is with a young body. If it is not nourished, rested and exercised properly, it will not weather life gracefully.

Respect your mind and body in your teens and you will grow into lovely womanhood. Many young girls write asking whether there are beauty secrets available. Youth has the secret of beauty. Bend the twig in the right direction now, and it should pay off with handsome dividends.

Ask yourself these questions:
Do I look clean? Beauty begins in the bathtub for teenagers. At your age soap and water should be a fetish with you. It is inexpensive and available, so why not use it? The well-scrubbed look is necessary for shining beauty and radiant complexion. Use your nailbrush and bathbrush.

Wash your underwear and hosiery each day in warm soapy water for a clean over-all feeling.

How about hair? Do you sham-to give a natural look.)

Do I look healthy?—It is no longer the vogue for young girls to have that interesting pallor. It is stylish to be sparkling with a pink glow. Young complexions can be kept clean and radiant by using a soapy washcloth and tepid water. Dry your skin with a turkish towel and rub briskly. Use a complexion brush to stimulate the skin.

Exercise is important. Engage in an outdoor sport at every season of the year.

Do I reek of perfume?—It is better not to use any fragrance if you limit it to cheap scents. Many young girls make the mistake of showering themselves with scents, instead of applying cologne, toilet water, perfume or sachet in a lady-like quantity. A drop of any good fragrance will go a long way.

Mrs. Loyd Crosby, junior high school social science teacher, who has been unable to teach since last November, resumed her work in the schools Monday morning. During her absence the vacancy was filled by Mrs. W. H. McCown, substitute teacher.
