Leashed Guns of Circle L

by Perry Westbrook

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS: Slim Loyale is paroled from prison after serving 18 months for a crime he did not commit. He returns to his Circle L ranch to father dead and sinister forces at work, trying to make him violate his parole so that he can again be railroaded to prison.

The Brockwells and their gang are plotting to gain possession of Circle L ranch and the property of Mona Hall, a neighbor and lifelong friend of Slim Loyale.

Slim discovers that Sheriff Starbuck has joined the plot against him. With the help of Dakota Blue and his cowboys, Slim Loyale defies the land-grabbers to do their worst.

Slim could not remember his mother, for she had died when he was but a toddler. But there was a picture of her, a sweet-faced, grave-eyed woman, that Bart Loyale had always kept in the center of the smoke-stained mantel above the fireplace in the big, old-fashioned living room.

Slim dug through some of the shelves in his own room and uncovered a snapshot of his father, wielding a branding iron over a prostrate steer. This Slim placed beside that of his mother and sat there for hours before the two of them.

Finally he went to his room. He cleaned up and donned fresh clothes, then went in to supper. Roy O'Brien immediately detailed the account of Steve and Charley attempting to gang him. The jolly little Irishman knew what he was doing, and it was not long before his natural humor and drawing brogue had Slim chuckling.

Immediately after the meal, Slim went down to the corral and saddled a bronco. Dakota Blue accosted him just as he was about to mount. "Give my regards to Mona, Slim," he drawled. "Mebbe yuh better leave yore guns home."

Slim looked at him, frowning. "I don't get yuh, Dakota."

The Circle L foreman rolled and lit a cigarette. "I understand that Leo Brockwell has been visitin' Mona quite a bit lately," he observed. "If yuh should happen to run into him — well, killin' him wouldn't do yuh a bit of good if yuh had to go back to Jarillo for it. C'mon; gimme yore guns, kid."

There was no doubting the sincerity or logic of Dakota's proposition. Slim hesitated, then unbuckled his belts and handed over the scabbarded weapons. "Thanks, Dakota," he said gruffly, as he rode away.

Dakota watched until Slim had disappeared into the dusk, then turned back to the bunkhouse, where he met Roy O'Brien. "Where's Slim goin'?" asked Roy.

"Over to see Mona Hall," answered Dakota. "I jest persuaded him to leave his guns home. He might run into Leo Brockwell over there." Roy grunted and nodded. "I get yuh. But don't that leave the lad kinda helpless? Supposin' he runs again somebody on the trail that don't like him. He wouldn't be after havin' a ghost of a chance."

"I know it," agreed Dakota. "That's where yuh come in, Roy. Grab a bronc an' drift along on Slim's trail. Yuh can keep him from knowin' yuh're around, but in case of necessity yuh can step in an' take the play away from him. Savvy?"

"Beggona, yes!" snorted Roy. "Out of me way; I'm ridin'."

Young Loyale had ridden the trail between the Circle L and the Dot H Dot many times before. And with quickening heart, he knew it was good to be riding it again.

Slim had known Mona Hall for a good many years and she had become a sort of institution with him. She had always been kindly, gentle and understanding. No matter what turmoil of feeling Slim had ever been in, a visit and talk with Mona had comforted him and clarified his mood.

He had never seriously diagnosed his feelings toward Mona. He had never thought of her in terms of love. In fact, the issue of loving and being loved by anyone had never consciously entered his life.

He knew that there had been a deep, elemental bond between his father and himself. But he had been content merely to bask in the sunshine of his father's presence and to enjoy and value it with a fervency he could not, or would analyze. As for Mona, she quieted him, made him feel that the world was complete and good. And he had been content with that.

Now, with his father gone, there was a deep, aching void in Slim, and he was almost feverishly anxious to reach the warmth of Mona's patient, understanding smile. He wanted to be near her, to look at her and to treasure her wholesome, constructive friendship.

The miles wore away swiftly and soon the beckoning lights of the Dot H Dot winked at him through the night. Slim's pulse quickened. Gee, but it was good to be free of the depressing stone walls and the scorching curse of barred cells and windows; to be free to ride through the night again under the stars. And it was good to know that warm welcome, gentle smiles and kindly words were awaiting him beyond those cheery lights.

Suddenly his mood chilled. What was that Dakota had said? Leo Brockwell had been visitin' Mona considerably. Perhaps he was there now. Somehow Slim could not reconcile himself to the belief that Mona really cared for Leo Brockwell's company.

Aside from her punches and her old Mexican housekeeper, Mona lived alone. Doubtless, knowing her as he did, Slim felt that Mona would suffer young Brockwell's presence in silence and affability, even though she might secretly despise him.

Well, Slim decided savagely, he'd certainly find out if Mona was more or less distressed by Brockwell's attentions. And if so, he'd soon remove the offending presence from the picture.

Sure enough, when Slim drew up at the ranch house, he found a saddled horse standing at the hitching-rail which ran between the two big sycamores that grew before the veranda. He rolled and lit a cigarette using the light of the flaring match to scan the shoulder of the strange horse. The brand was a Half Diamond B. Yes Leo Brockwell was on hand.

For a moment Slim hesitated. He doubted his ability to face Leo Brockwell without trouble starting. Well he knew the sneer which could be in young Brockwell's voice and attitude. He knew, too, despite his efforts of self-control, that if Leo turned those smears loose he would not be able to restrain himself.

The thought came that perhaps he had better ride quietly away and

Growing Broomcorn For Profit

By G. B. ALGUIRE

Few crops grown on the Plains, if properly handled at harvest time, are more profitable to farmers than broomcorn, particularly since it is a cash crop cultivated similar to other sorghums and matures in about sixty five days. Planted early, it may be harvested before labor demands are pressing for the major crops, which assures maximum returns to growers at minimum expense. This crop also furnishes labor employment much needed by many, well in advance of the general fall work.

Growers who fail to realize profits from growing broomcorn, too often fail to recognize certain requirements in its culture which are seemingly irrelevant but which, if ignored, will defeat what otherwise, could be a profitable venture. Good seed evenly distributed in the soil so as to obtain a properly spaced uniform stand is the first essential step and should be carefully considered if best results are to be expected. Seed from reputable seed growers should be obtained as these usually are of unquestioned purity. Seed grown one year only from pure stock can also be recommended if they are properly matured. Seed re-cleaned from seed piles obviously are likely to be immature and mixed and should, under no circumstances be used. The slightly higher planting costs of the best seed is insignificant compared with the higher prices paid for good brush over poor brush, at marketing time. Good broomcorn seed is pure in variety, free of trash and seed panicles, and weighs around 50 pounds per bushel.

It is also important to note in this connection that good seed is planted to produce brush, not grain, and the length and fiber quality of the brush harvested is in a definite relation to the spacing of the plants in the field. Successful growers prefer planter plates bored 3-16" and under-rimmed with enough holes in plates so that the planted, properly rationed, will drop about 75 seed per rod. It is most important to space broomcorn evenly about four to six inches apart. If planted too thick the brush likely will be short and spiky or if planted too wide the brush will be too long and coarse under average growing conditions. A little time spent in adjusting planting equipment to properly space broomcorn seed in the rows is reflected in higher prices for more desirable length brush and is absolutely essential if desirable straw is to be grown. Brush having 14 to 23 inches of fiber is usually in best demand by broom manufacturers and growers should strive to meet trade demands in this respect.

Despite however the best endeavors, to plant properly, weather conditions during the growing period, also play an important part in broomcorn culture and over these, growers have no control further than intensive cultivation to conserve moisture and stimulate a continuous healthy growth of the plants. But this may be said: Close attention to the suggestions above enumerated will assure growers a definite step toward a profitable harvest if anything like normal growing conditions prevail. The best time to plant is from May 15 to June 15 after the ground has become warm.

EDITORS NOTE: This is the first of a series of short articles by Mr. Alguire, which are intended as an aid to those interested in handling and marketing this crop.

BEST SALES RESULTS FOLLOW USE OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING SAYS OIL CO.

Convinced that newspaper space represents the most advantageous medium for merchandising its products as evidenced by substantial increases in sales of Conoco germ-processed motor oil following past newspaper advertising campaigns, Continental Oil company is again launching a large-scale advertising campaign in some 1400 carefully selected papers in all sections of the nation. The campaign will continue into September and will be distinguished by the fact that it will feature the local dealer as well as the company's oil.

Surveys conducted by Continental's advertising department showed two factors which decided the nature of the forthcoming campaign. First, it was ascertained that the best sales results followed the use of newspaper advertising; and second, that the average motorist is far more concerned with the mileage he obtains from his motor oil than any other single factor.

Correlating this information with the fact that Continental distribution is now conducted entirely through local independent dealers, the advertising campaign will stress that each dealer is a "mileage merchant" who, in order to retain his customers and gain new ones, must sell mileage in the form of a motor oil which will give efficient service.

...some other time. Then she had especially over that night and he straightened his jaw and went to the door, knocking firmly.

Mona herself who opened the door, looking at the smiling smile fell upon Slim, and she had not weakened when away! He caught her hands and squeezed them like old times, huh, Mona?"

...how you don't like Leo, but sake, try to get along with don't see why he had to sound tonight, when you and so much to talk over; but in, and we're got to make of it. Promise?"

At sight of so came to his feet rather a half-formed snarl twist- dark features, still swollen ed from the weight of Da- se's first.

...spoke quickly. "Don't mind two go on talking business. and I just want to sit in the and have a quiet visit."

Fornachon stood up and held hand. "Hello, Slim," he sta- led to see yuh back."

Mona flushed at this apparent rudeness on Leo's part. "Ah, surely you've not forgotten Slim, have you, Leo?" she said. "Aren't you going to say hello to him?"

"I gave him my greetin' in town today," growled Leo.

Slim, his face cold, laughed shortly. "An' Dakota Blue gave yuh my answer, Brockwell. We're quits."

Brockwell's face grew even more congested, but he did not answer. Slim led Mona over to a far corner and drew up chairs. "Sit down," he drawled softly. "I just want to look at yuh for an hour steady."

Mona's eyes glowed and she laughed gently. "Silly. Tell me every- thing."

Leo Brockwell's ears were evi- dently keen, for he turned in his chair. "That's right, Loyale," he sneered. "Tell her everythin'. Tell her how it feels to be a convict with a number on yore back. Tell her how it feels to walk lock-step in a line of other crooks. Tell her—"

A red haze seemed to gather in front of Slim's eyes. He whipped to his feet and glided across the room. Mona, her face gone white, caught at his arm, but he pulled away from her. Beside Leo Brock- well's chair Slim halted, rocking slightly on his toes. "Yuh dirty, cowardly whelp!" he rasped hoarse- ly.

"Think yuh can pull that stuff an' get away with it, do yuh, know- in' I got a parole hangin' over my head that I don't dare break? Well, yuh've made a mistake tonight. If yuh notice, I ain't packin' no guns. But I got my fists an' yore sure gonna know the feel of 'em. Get on yore feet!"

Leo Brockwell stood up, his right hand dropping toward his belt. "Keep yore fists to yourself, Loyale," he snarled. "Yore nothin' but a damn convict out on parole, an' yuh ain't got any rights of decent folks. Try usin' yore hands on me an' I'll shore shoot yuh like a dawg. An' nobody'll hold me to account for it."

Slim grew very still and white and deadly. The hate he felt for this swart, sneering fellow nearly choked him. His breath rattled in his throat. Then he swung.

That momentary pause that had fallen on the heels of young Brock- well's words had evidently lowered Brockwell's guard. For a moment he thought that Slim was going to take his scathing remarks without retal- iation. He saw Slim's sudden hunch- ing of one shoulder and knew, too late, that a punch was coming. He tried to duck, at the same time drag- ing at his gun. Slim's fist, swung with all the pent-up rage and sense of unfairness which choked him, landed a little high on Brockwell's jaw. But it had plenty of impetus and power behind it. For the sec- ond time that day, Brockwell knew how it felt to be beaten to the floor by the impact of a human fist.

He was not knocked out, but he fell on his right side, with the hand that grabbed for his gun momen- tarily smothered between his body and the floor. Before he could free it, Slim, literally diving over the upset chair, landed on him.

Slim wasted no time. All the bit- terness, all the galling shame and indignation he had known through those long months of incarceration in the Jarillo Penitentiary now found outlet. He smashed at Brock- well again and again.

Brockwell, trying frantically to do two things at once, namely free his gun and protect himself from Slim's barrage of punches, rolled his head in the wrong direction. The point of his jaw connected squarely with Slim's fist, and he went limp.

Slim was past all realization of the fact that Brockwell was uncon- scious.

Miniature Santa Fe Train Wins Prize Of $150 At Picnic

Two prize winning floats at a Santa Fe Railway employees' picnic in 1926 have since proved popular and valuable advertising displays for the company.

These floats are miniature Santa Fe trains built by employees of the company's Topeka shops on their own time. They were the hit of the picnic and won a prize of $150. That fall they were exhibited at the Kansas Free Fair in Topeka where they attracted wide attention. Since that time they have traveled up and down the Santa Fe from Chicago to Los Angeles and from Denver to Galveston to participate in parades and celebrations.

The little freight train consists of a locomotive, two livestock cars, a box car, coal car, tanker and caboose. It is 68 feet long and the locomotive derives its power from a Model-T Ford motor. The passenger train, called the "Chief" is 105 feet long and it consists of a locomotive powered with a motor similar to the freight engine and five cars. These cars are a buffet-library, diner, two sleeping cars and an observation car.

The passenger train has been the more popular exhibit and it has paid many return visits to communities where it made a big hit with children as well as their elders during the initial visit. In addition to participating in various state fair exhibits, the trains have taken part in Old Settler's Days, Pioneer Days, convention programs, American Legion parades, Fourth of July celebrations and Labor parades. Since 1925, the little freight train has taken part in 30 celebrations and its popularity has increased yearly. The first year it was shown only four times, year it participated in 10 community events. The passenger's popularity also is increasing. During its first season, it appeared times, but last year it made tours. Altogether it has visited cities. The passenger train was shown at Borger, Texas, recently, and May 15, it will appear in a parade at Albuquerque, New Mexico.

by the publisher of this newspaper. Here is a copy of the letter: "Dear Mr. Drake: "This morning I had the pleasure of looking over a recent issue of the Leader, not that I place myself as a critic, but more or less in the spirit of another interested reader. I must say that I feel you are doing an outstanding job of your paper. Both the advertising and editorial content speaks of "Get up and get" spirit. "I only wish that other country editors could see the kind of job you are doing down there in Littlefield, no doubt they would find plenty of inspiration to pep-up their own sheets."

Sunnen Pin Hole Grinder

Has Been Installed to Offer Our Customers the METHOD of . . .

Positive Accuracy In Pin Fitting!

With this equipment we can produce every time—a "run in" fit, free from high spots, free from bell-mouth with absolute bearing surface — and with perfect alignment of bores. Sunnen_fit pins give thousands of miles of extra service. Sunnen_fit pins will not begin to "click" after a few hundred miles of service. Stop in our shop and let us show you how and why the Sunnen Pin Hole Grinder offers positive accuracy in pin fitting. With this new equipment it is possible to grind and finish any size hole from .480" to 2.400" and to handle hydraulic brake cylinders.

The REAMER Method

requires a tight fit because of high spots caused by reamer chatter. These spots vary in height from .00 1/2 inch to .002 inch, depending upon condition of reamer. With this method a tight fit is proper since the depressions between the high spots act as oil pockets and provide some lubrication.

The SUNNEN Method

requires a "free" fit because the hole is finished perfectly round, ("run in fit"), free from high spots and with nearly 100% bearing surface. With nearly 100% bearing surface a Sunnen-ground hole will show less wear over an equal period of time because it provides more wearing surface to resist wear.

OIL NOTES

Whiteface, May 13. (Special)—Under terms of a lease filed in the county clerk's office at Morton, P. E. E. Wiggins, jr., Dallas, and associates, leased 8,000 acres of land in league 92, Lipscomb county school land, southeast of Lehman, for an oil test.

Contract calls for operations to begin by July 1, date of spudding in. Price paid was $10 per acre, with a 50 cent rental. The test is to go down to 5,200 feet.

The location is in the same league as one previously announced by Wiggins and Hyde. The location's north of Sulphur draw.

The lease was recorded last week calling for a test well in the Scraper-out Ranch property, a few miles south of Lehman, by the Texas company. This block consists of 7000 acres, and the contract calls for drilling to start not later than July 2.

The oil test near Bula was going right down at 2800 foot mark when last report was received. Salt and shale were being encountered, and prospects are bright as formation is running pretty true. The very latest drilling equipment is being used.

Wildcat test in Southeastern Bailey county, immediately north of the Cochran county line, is planned within the near future, it was reported Monday. It is reported that George Etz will drill the test on a block of acreage assembled in leagues 180, 181, 182 and 183, Floyd county school land survey.

The north line of these leagues is five miles south of Baileyboro. Contract depth will be 5,500 feet, with Magnolia Petroleum company, Shell Petroleum Corporation and Barushall Oil Corporation, having taken spreads around the proposed wildcat test. At one time, Etz was reported to have blocked 16,326 acres in southeastern and south central Bailey county.

Definite location of the Etz test has not been determined. Honolulu Oil company and Cascade Petroleum company No. 1 Duggan, discovery well in Southeastern Cochran county.

The Scout's Radio

Troop No. 25, Littlefield, Texas. Editor-in-Chief, Mr. Eugene Latimer Co-Editors, J. G. West and David C. Storey.

Now that school is over, the Scouts may meet more freely with no studies to keep them busy. They were just beginning to realize and notice that last Friday night, May 14, for practically every member of Troop No. 25 was there.

The general theme of discussion was first aid on which Mr. Latimer asked numerous questions.

Several Tenderfoot scouts, wanting to begin passing their second class rank, were supposed to go a mile in twelve minutes but unfortunately their pace was off, thereby making it in about eight minutes.

The conclusion of the meeting was with a game of Spanish leapfrog and spat.

WHAT THE SCOUT IS

The Boy Scouts of America is an organization of the boys of America into a fellowship with one another, their leaders, parents, and officials. In other words, a Scout is close to nature, a friend to all, and has a great respect for the great Scoutmaster of all Scoutmasters or our Divine Creator. Therefore the Boy Scout is an all around respectable boy.

ORGANIZATION OF SCOUTING

The "good turn" done by the unknown Scout of England to Mr. W. D. Boyce led the American along with several other friends, on February 8, 1910 to incorporate "The Boy Scouts of America" under the laws of the District of Columbia. This was an important item in the history of the United States for the development of future citizens.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Scouts are met in 73 civilized countries which represent 91 per cent of the world's population?

The Boy Scouts of America organization is a federal incorporation recognized by Congress?

Daniel Carter Beard is in his seventy's, yet is still in active scouting?

Scouts are asked by people all over the world for directions?

Scouting is known to every continent on earth except of course the Antarctic?

SOUTH PLAINS SCOUT CAMPORAL HELD AT LUBBOCK MAY 7-8

Three hundred and fifty boys enjoyed a day of fun, excitement, and friendly relationship as the first district camporal was held at Mackenzie Park, May 7 and 8. Troop 3 of Lubbock and Troop 39 of Sudan took off the highest honors. A silver trophy was presented to the Lubbock troop which had a rating of 3,320 points. The troop which consists of four patrols that scored "A" and two that scored "B". This troop, with B. V. Hicks as scoutmaster, is sponsored by the First Baptist church of Lubbock.

A community troop of Sudan also ranked high. Douglas Adams, the scoutmaster, pushed over two patrols with an "A" and "B".

Other outstanding troops were 5, 6, 8, of Lubbock; 66 of Hale Center and 23 of Slaton.

The contest was held in three divisions: campcraft, scoutcraft, and inter-patrol projects.

Under the campcraft division were the use of camp site, equipment, and food. Safety, sanitation, activities, patrol organization and leadership were beneath the scoutcraft division, while the inter-patrol project division included first aid, knot tying, fire by flint and steel, fire with two matches, tent peg making, signaling, chariot races, and antelope races.

All the scouts are looking forward to the next annual camporal.

Two men had escaped from an asylum and wandered into an airport. Some mechanics were warning up a motor, and the men jumped in the plane and managed to take off. When they had reached the altitude of some two thousand feet, one became quite fidgety.

"I believe I'll jump out of here," he said. "I can't stand it any longer."

"O. K. buddy," said the other one. "But you'd better take a parachute."

"Why?"

"Don't be silly," was the reply. "Can't you see it's raining?"

During the war the mother of a soldier called on her preacher. The tears were streaming down her face.

"And what is the trouble?" asked the minister.

"Ah, Father, it's bad news I have," she said. "Pat's been killed."

"Oh, I'm so sorry," said the preacher. Did you get a message from the War Department?"

"No," she said. "I got word from Pat himself."

"But I don't understand," said the Rev. "How did you get word from him?"

"It's a fact," said the old woman. "Here's the letter—read it for yourself."

The letter read: "Dear Mother, I am now in the Holy Land."

AMHERST ASKS FOR REMOVAL OF COUNTY SEAT TO THAT CITY

Both Littlefield and Amherst are asking for the county seat of Lamb county.

The first application for an election to pass on the county seat question was made by Littlefield, and was followed Saturday by Amherst, which presented a petition Saturday afternoon to Judge Crockett.

This petition carried 43 signatures, and was presented to the Commission's Court Monday morning in regular session.

Don Bryant, commissioner of Precinct No. 1, moved that the petition be approved. This motion was seconded by Hiram Bell, commissioner of Precinct No. 4, and was unanimously approved by the court.

In order that all cities and sections of the county may be placed on an equal footing in the seeking of the county seat, the ballots will be so worded that voters may write in the name of the town in which they desire the county seat located. The voters also may vote for the retaining of the county seat at Olton.

New Texan Theatre Is One Of the Best In the West

Combines Latest Interior Treatment and Equipment With Attractive Exterior

The latest interior finishing an extremely modern note in construction and equipment, the new Texan theatre at Sudan has opened its doors to the theatre-going public on Thursday night. The auditorium has been finished on the walls in sixteen square panels. The Nu-wood is finished with the color scheme in alternate shades of brown, a beautifully modern appearance.

Wall Treatment
Painted at intervals on the walls are vertical pilasters, also of wood. The light fixtures on the pilasters are of classic-modern design, and were planned, designed and installed by Max Bishop of the Palace and Ritz staff of Littlefield. Their measurements over the top are 16 by 34 inches. Finished with a flitter with relief in black, mounted by vertical strips of glass, the fixtures combine in soft-light diffusion the latest trend in modern architectural accomplishments.

A very finest projection equipment, Simplex, has been installed in the booth, together with low-voltage Brenkert lamps, giving Super-Sound projection on the late Gardner sound screen. That same has been spared to make the Texan the finest theatre on the Plains, is evident in the instance of high-fidelity sound reproduction by an engineer sent from company offices of R. C. A. Camden, New Jersey. All this vision and sound equipment provide ultimate in visibility and reproduction. The booth is constructed with iron reinforcement rods and solid concrete which conforms entirely with underwriters specifications, and is absolutely fireproof. Should a fire occur in the projection room, it would be utterly impossible for the fire to spread to the rest of the theatre. This feature alone is possessed by no other theater in Texas.

Furthermore, all exits are so arranged and flared, that the entire theatre could be emptied in 30 seconds. The wiring of all electrical equipment was done by one of the skilled electricians on the staff, Homer Baker of Littlefield.

Upholstered Chairs
A new upholstered chairs will be installed. The foyer is being completely done in furtherance of a modernistic tone of the auditorium, and all openings will be finished with rich velour. Wilton carpeting will be laid in the foyer and auditorium aisles. A lounge and rest room has been built on one side of the foyer for the ladies, and the men's rest room and stair-entrance on the other. The main entrance on the 50-seat balcony leads to the 50-seat balcony and the living quarters up.

Stucco Exterior
The front is being stuccoed, with a finish in black Carrara, which has a clean appearance of stucco. Modern lines on the facade will also be laid in Carrara, letting the touch intended by the architect.

A provision for further comfort during the summer months, an Air-Blower is being installed together with a Buffalo Air conditioner. This equipment will keep the theatre cool, clean, and sweet on the hottest summer day.

As has been the policy of G. W. Chesher in the past, he will book the latest releases from the offerings of the best makers of motion pictures in the business, and assures at all times the best entertainment available.

Home Demonstration Notes

ASPARAGUS SUITABLE FOR WEST TEXAS

"Asparagus can be grown from seed but the crowns must be set deeper the next year. The plants seed in the summer and a number of the seeds will come up in the garden the next spring," said Mrs. Roy McQuatters of the Spade Home Demonstration club.

Asparagus is a satisfactory vegetable for the garden as it will produce from 10 to 15 years and it withstands heat, drought, high water, and alkali. A rust resistant strain should be selected. Mrs. McQuatters advises planting the crowns in a soil that has been well fertilized as it does best in a soil that has a large amount of humus.

Mrs. McQuatters has cut her asparagus about four weeks so far this year. It is best to limit the cutting season for the first time to not more than three weeks. This may be increased to 10 or 12 weeks in later seasons. Irrigate the asparagus well during this season and at least every two weeks during the summer.

SELECT LARGE FLAT ROCKS FOR WALKS

"I have found that rocks, unless they are large and quite flat, do not make a satisfactory walk," declared Mrs. W. T. Weaver. Small rocks are likely to crumble and they do not afford a safe or comfortable footing.

Select rocks that are large enough for the foot with a little extra room and in that way the danger of turning one's ankle will be eliminated. The rocks should be placed even with the grass and well sodded in between. This allows the lawn mower to be run over the walk. If the walk is placed above the ground the wind will blow the dirt away from it.

PLANS CLOTHES FOR WHOLE YEAR

Planning the entire wardrobe for the year prevents buying clothing unless it is really needed, Claudine Merritt has found. She believes that more clothes can be had for the same amount of money if plans are carefully made.

Claudine took an inventory of her clothes before she made any of her plans. This allowed her to see what was worth making over or mending before buying anything new. A record of purchases helps her in determining what she needs and if that make has given good service. Claudine is the clothing demonstrator for the Sudan 4-H club.

EXPLAINS AMOUNT OF VEGETABLES NEEDED

"I am going to raise more than 200 pounds of vegetables other than green leafy or yellow vegetables for each member of our family as we like company, and then, too, I want to sell some vegetables," declared Irma Bennett, garden demonstrator for the Littlefield Senior 4-H club.

As two hundred pounds should be allowed for each member of the family, Irma will have over six hundred feet of row space in the garden. One foot of row space will produce one pound of vegetables when the garden is irrigated. The six hundred pounds of vegetables will be the amount that the family should have for the year. Part of these will be canned, part will be stored for use in the winter, but the greatest part will be used fresh during the summer and fall.

A large variety of vegetables add interest to the meals as well as furnishing important vitamins and minerals to protect the family's health. Irma plans to have at least six or more varieties in the garden and she has selected seed that are particularly adapted to West Texas.

YARD IMPROVED

"We have just completed setting out bermuda grass in our yard," said Mrs. Reno Rochelle, president of the Rocky Ford home demonstration club.

The grass was set out in rows and the yard is low enough that it can be flooded instead of being sprinkled with a hose. Bermuda set out at this time and well watered will cover the lawn before the summer is half over.

Mr. and Mrs. Rochelle have set a windbreak along the north side of the drive to protect the yard as it is already protected by the orchard on the south. More screening with shrubs and trees at the back will add to the attractiveness of the background and will protect the yard from the west winds. Some evergreen planting will add much to the beauty during the winter. Mrs. Rochelle plans to use Armour River privet for part of the evergreens as it is well adapted in West Texas.

This is one of the most accurate methods of measuring land, and will eliminate the costly and inaccurate chain method.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

*Astounding is the comparison between the huge 42-inch wheel of the famous 1910 Oldsmobile Limited and the much smaller 16-inch wheel of the 1937 Oldsmobile Six. This pretty Miss made the comparison when new models were recently displayed alongside the well-known Limited, relic of an earlier period in automotive transportation. While wheel sizes were decreasing through the years, tire sections were increasing from 4 1/2 to 6 1/2 inches on Oldsmobile Six and 7 inches on the Limited. Meanwhile tire pressures were dropping from 75 pounds to 28 pounds.

Sentimentally-Appealing Sweethearts Bring To the Screen Another Great Attraction--'Maytime' At the Palace Saturday Midnight, Sunday and Monday

Hollywood's first spectacular musical picture of the new year, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Maytime," will be shown at the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday.

With the glamorous Jeanette MacDonald and the picturesque Nelson Eddy reunited in the starring roles, this extravagant adaptation of the successful stage musical is far more beautiful than the original. That is to be expected, of course, owing to the greater resources of the screen.

Miss MacDonald and Eddy surpass their starring performances in other brilliant pictures. John Barrymore is excellent as the temperamental and tragic impresario and Lynne Carver, a lovely stranger to the screen from Kentucky, appears with Tom Brown to provide the juvenile romance.

"Maytime" is a gorgeous spectacle to view and a beautiful theme to hear. Hunt Stromberg and Robert Z. Leonard, who respectively produced and directed "The Great Ziegfeld" last year, occupied the same positions in the production of the new picture.

Noel Langley adapted the story from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young, Sigmund Romberg, who wrote the original Broadway score, composed the songs for "Maytime" with Herbert Stothart.

Miss MacDonald and Eddy rise to their full stature in the realms of stardom, adding to the laurels they won in earlier films. Together they sing the original stage song, "Will You Remember?" so effectively that those who hear it will be unlikely to forget it.

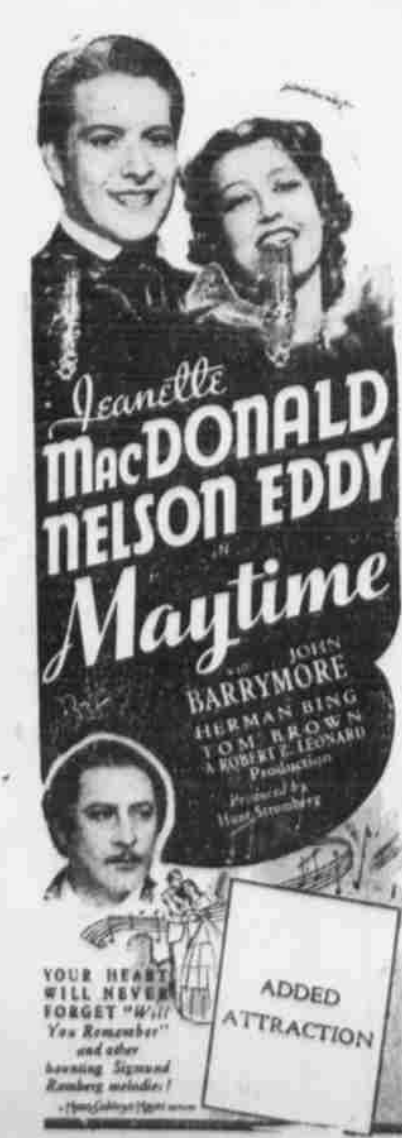

Eddy sings three first-rate novelty songs, "Students' Drinking Song," "Vive L'Opera" and "Virginia Ham and Eggs." Together the stars give a touching rendition of the folksong, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny."
