FOUR SUFFER INJURY IN CAR MISHAP SATURDAY MORNING

A tire blow-out about 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning, which caused the light two door sedan driven by Henry Fiets of near Levelland, to turn over several times, caused more or less injury to the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. Fiets, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Allen, and nine months old daughter, Hettie Faye.

The accident happened on Oklahoma Avenue, about 1 1/2 miles from Littlefield. The party had been to this city and were going to the home of Mrs. G. W. Bridges, five miles northeast of Littlefield, when the mishap occurred.

The injured were picked up by a passerby, John Kemo, and brought to the office of Dr. Thos. B. Duke, local physician.

Mr. Allen was found to be the most painfully injured. He suffered severe cuts and gashes, on face, head and chest injury. Mrs. Fiets sustained a fractured rib, shoulder and back bruises, while Mr. Fiets suffered back and head injury, and Mrs. Allen had an injured right arm and some back injury. MAKES EFFORT TO GET AD VALOREM TAX REFUNDED

Judge L. R. Crockett, And Commissioners Return From Austin

Judge L. R. Crockett, and Commissioner W. H. Bell, Don Bryant, Paul Lewis and G. M. Vann returned Sunday from Austin, where they interviewed Rep. Tarwater and Senators G. H. Nelson, Clint Small, and several others in connection with revision of the ad valorem tax to Lamb county.

In this connection Judge Crockett said:

"We found that while the Bill had passed the house by a large majority, there seemed to be some question as to whether or not the senate would pass the bill, as approved by the house. We feel, from the information obtained in talking with the various senators that we will at least be able to get a portion of the ad valorem tax. A number of the senators recommended that 10 per cent of the ad valorem tax be refunded to the county to be used for soil conservation. We found that all of the ad valorem tax had actually been given back to more than 50 counties, while some of the same counties were even getting portions of the other taxes paid into the state. Particularly we found that one certain county had been receiving back every dime of the taxes they had paid into the state for numbers of years, even down to the occupation tax.

"We also called on the State Highway Department, and was given a very fine reception. They made recommendations for further appropriation to be made on the WPA project on Highway No. 51, so that we might have more trucks and equipment, in order that the job might be carried on with a greater degree of efficiency and with more speed.

"They also advised that they would favor another project being sponsored on Highway No. 51, in case it became necessary to take care of the unemployed.

SOCIAL SECURITY TO PAY 300,000 PERSONS PENSIONS IN 1937

Around 300,000 persons will be paid old age pensions by the Social Security Board during 1937.

Although the contributory pensions sections of the Social Security act did not go into effect until January 1, the board estimates that 100,000 of the millions who are having their pay docked for the old age benefits will reach the age of 65 during 1937. Another 200,000 will die.

Those who retire this year at 65 and the heirs of those who die will be entitled, as a final settlement, to 3 1-2 per cent of the wage or salary on which taxes were paid, providing the salary or wage was not more than $3,000.

So far the board has received only 49 informal claims, 23 from persons who have reached 65 since January 1 and 26 from the heirs of persons now dead.

Board officials said persons with claims eventually will be asked to fill out applications on forms now being prepared. These applications will be checked against government records. After the correct amount of the claim is determined, they said, the board will issue a certificate to the treasury for payment.

LITTLEFIELD BOYS TO BOX IN TEXAS A. A. U. MEET

It seems that the boxing bug has bitten the Littlefield boys here lately. About ten or eleven went to Clovis last month to fight in the National A. A. U. meet and three came home with trophies, two with championship and one with a sportsmanship trophy. Next the Littlefield high school took on the Slaton high school in a sportsmanship tournament and although they were not victorious they were not seriously defeated.

Thursday and Friday, March 18 and 19 about ten or twelve Littlefield boys will go to Lubbock, to fight in the Texas A. A. U. Included in this group are, H. W. Bradley, Fly Thornton, and James Foust, who won in the Clovis meet.

The following will go to Lubbock: Alvin McCarty—104 pounds, fly weight.

"On The Avenue" To Be Featured At The Palace Theatre

A feeling of dread comes over Seymour Felix whenever he prepares to start work on a new musical production. For many years Felix has been dance director on some of Hollywood's biggest singing and dancing productions, and in that time has seen thousands of chorus girls come and go.

One of Felix, recent duties was to pick 24 beauties for the Irving Berlin musical, "On The Avenue," starring Dick Powell and Madeleine Carroll, which opens at the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday.

That day 120 of Hollywood's loveliest girls crowded into a small rehearsal hall at Twentieth Century-Fox.

"I saw girls there who worked for me only last year," Felix said, "yet they had changed just enough to put them out of the running. That is the heartbreaking job a dance director has—to pass them up in favor of younger girls."

"No matter how closely they look at themselves in the mirror, they cannot see the slight changes which we see in them. They look older—and to understand what age means in a chorus girl, you must know that 23 is the usual age limit. Most of the girls are 18 or 19 years old."

Of the 120 girls Felix interviewed, 35 were picked for screen tests, and a final hand-picked 24 emerged with dancing roles in "On The Avenue," which also features Alice Faye, The Ritz Brothers and George Barbier.

GET CHANGED TO OIL-PLATING

Spring's here, but let's not put any loud "new suits" on all the old oil bogeymen. After all, botherless engine lubrication gets down to a few calm facts that are facts.

No. 1 . . . You want to be certain that your engine doesn't grind every time you start, while oil is "coming up" from below. Oil-Plating, produced only by Conoco Germ Processed oil, can never lose time "coming up," because it's already there!

For the patented Germ Process creates such a powerful attraction between oil and metal that the inside of your engine becomes Oil-Plated. And you know that platings aren't runny, but stay up in place. That's the way Oil-Plating will stay up to ward off all the worst starting wear you ever heard of.

And No. 2 . . . Whether you've got a "good old car" or the latest thing, you want to make any driving schedule without being nervous about the heat indicator and the oil level. You can easily keep them where they belong. This is exactly why: the Germ Process creates a far stronger normal type of oil film and then checks friction still further by means of modern Oil-Plating—entirely extra . . . exclusive to Conoco Germ Processed oil. Costs no more when you change; costs you less all season. Continental Oil Company

GERM PROCESSED OIL

Ellen gets Her Man

SIXTH INSTALMENT

SYNOPSIS: Ellen Mackay, on her way from school at Winnipeg, to join her father at Fort Edson, misses the boat by which she was to travel. Hearing that another boat is to start north in the morning, Ellen goes to the owner John Benham, and begs him to give her a passage. To her surprise he flatly refuses. Angry and puzzled, Ellen tells Pat McClatchey, a kindly old storekeeper of her difficulty, and Pat with the help of one of Benham's crew, succeeds in getting Ellen on board as a stowaway.

When the vessel is well under way Ellen emerges from her hiding place and faces John Benham, who now cannot help taking her with him.

During the voyage Ellen begins to be strongly attracted by John. But when she reaches Fort Edson she finds her father broken, ill and disgraced, and learns that his troubles are due to one man—John Benham.

Instantly Ellen resolves that she will fight for father. She will reinstate him with the Hudson Bay Company, his employers, and will show up John Benham for what he really is.

A tremendous, smoldering rage grew in her heart against the man responsible for all this. Gone were all her earlier memories, submerged completely in the tawdry horror of what she had seen. Over and over to herself did she now vow implacable vengeance. And by this time she had virtually forgotten her own dilemma. Her thoughts were for helpless, apathetic children, bewildered, dumbly protesting, doomed to slow, terrible death in the winter. And then, at noon one day, she came upon a camp of Crees on the border of Mink Lake.

Even as the prow of her canoe slithered upon the shingle beach before the camp she sensed the undercurrent of excitement with which the camp was being swayed. There was a jumble of movement about the tepees, the shrill yammering of squaws, the wailing of children, and the hoarse, guttural exclamations of the men. Not far from where Ellen landed there was a York boat, piled high with cargo, pulled upon the shore.

Her senses stirring with a strange trepidation, Ellen made straight for the center of the camp. In an opening among the tepees she came upon were swaying back and forth in a strange scene. A knot of Indians fierce struggle, and in the centre of them loomed the tall figure of—John Benham!

For a moment things seemed to whirl about Ellen. Then she steadied, calmed by a cold, triumphant satisfaction. At last she had run the respoiler to earth. She pushed closer to the centre of the conflict. She saw John Benham lash out with one fist and drive a short, powerfully built buck to the ground. Others closed in, but Benham beat them back with short, driving blows knocking many of the maddened bucks senseless to the ground. Finally the ring about him broke. He leaned over and swept something from the earth before him. When he straightened up again Ellen could see what he held. It was a full, unopened bottle of whiskey!

Hardly realizing what she was doing, Ellen forced her way through the jam and bedlam until she faced him, where she drew herself up proudly and looked the astonished free trader in the eye.

"You!" he gasped. "Ellen—Miss Mackay."

"Yes," she answered, her voice tripping with cold contempt. "It is I—you—contemptible hound I've been following evidences of your—your trading activities for nearly a month now, and at last I see you in all your disgusting glory." She pointed at the bottle he held.

"What was the matter? Wouldn't these poor unfortunates pay you enough in furs for that poison?"

For a moment Benham looked at her incredulously. "This," he muttered, almost stupidly. "This? Do you mean to say you think I have been trading whisky to the Indian?"

"I don't think—I know. I have been in a dozen camps and I have seen them, and what you left to them. I hope the picture will be with you always, John Benham. I hope those poor, innocent babies and children, doomed to die of famine this coming winter, will haunt you to your grave. You—you—oh, you greedy, treacherous dog!"

Ellen was white-faced and trembling when she ceased her tirade of accusation, yet her eyes flamed with the fervor and light of a Crusader. Benham was silent, his face white, the muscles of his jaws bulging like coils of iron. Ellen spoke again, with biting scorn.

"You—you half-breed! And you brutalize and starve your own blood-brothers."

"Stop!" The word burst from Benham in a tortured cry. The muscles of his face seemed to writhe, and into his eyes flamed something which caused Ellen to unconsciously give back a pace. For a fractional moment she thought he was going to strike her. Then, suddenly, he grew quiet. His face hardened, his eyes grew cold. A curt, harsh laugh broke from his white lips. He turned away, and with a drive of his arm sent the whisky bottle hurtling against the bole of a nearby spruce, where it crashed to a thousand pieces, its contents running down the rough bark of the tree in an amber flood.

Without a backward look he strode off, and Ellen followed, carried away by her own scorn and anger. For he had had his innings. He had brought her to the verge of ruin, and she was determined that he should know what her method of retribution would be. He should know in advance that before the season was over the red-coats from Regina would be on his trail.

She followed him beyond a tepee, then halted in surprise. An old squaw had stopped Benham and was facing him. The squaw was gnarled and bent, a wrinkled shrunken old crone.

"Thank you," the old crone was saying. "The Great Spirit will bless you, my son."

Benham patted the squaw upon one bowed, shrunken shoulder. "It is nothing, mother," he said slowly. "And the dog responsible for this shall answer to me."

Then, before Ellen could face him again, he had swung off into the forest.

Ellen went slowly back to her canoe, where Moosac awaited her, emotionless and stoic. Somehow the triumph she had imagined would be hers had gone flat—stale and tasteless. She was weary, weary body and soul. Two words kept ringing

DR. IRA E. WOODS ADDS LATEST EQUIPMENT TO OFFICE HERE

Dr. Ira E. Woods, optometrist, announces the addition to his equipment of the Wottring Rotoscope.

This instrument is the latest development for reconditioning the visual apparatus to a more normal relationship among its various functions. Its use will make much more comfortable many pairs of eyes without the necessity of wearing glasses. And make comfortable other eyes that will not adapt themselves to a correction without reconditioning.

There are many pairs of eyes that can never be made comfortable with lenses alone, because they have become so completely adjusted to an abnormal and strained working condition over the years that they can not learn with ease a new association of the various phases of the visual act with comfort. This instrument teaches the eye to adapt itself to the new association.

It is not a fad or a newfangled, impractical gadget. Its value has been demonstrated over a period of years by the research departments of the American Optometric Association, by the Graduate Clinic Foundation in Optometry and by many other scientific bodies.

Grand Jury Returns Eight True Bills

Eight additional true bills were returned Friday at Olton by the District court grand jury.

Court adjourned Saturday. The next session of District court will open Monday, August 2. True bills were returned as follows:

D. Kincaid, and Louis McGann, alleged burglary of the Bryan Drug store; Lee White and Earl Kendricks, alleged burglary of the home of Mrs. Cornelia Norman, near Amherst.

Arnold, Webb, Hill, White and Kendricks are in the Littlefield jail. Simpkins, Pritchard, Kincaid and McGann are out on bond.

All the above cases were carried over to the next term of court.

Arrests have not been made in the other two true bills returned, and therefore the names of those involved cannot be announced.

The first meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Roger McLachlan Monday, March 22, 4 p. m. All young married women are invited to attend.

They will serve full meals, short orders, sandwiches, etc., and state that their foods are of the highest quality, and invite you to come in and try their service.

INTERVIEW—

"We also discussed the matter of having the highway running from Hale county west through Littlefield, and into New Mexico, designated as a state highway. While they listened favorably to our request, they stated it would be some time before there would be any further designations made, until some of their more important highways were completed, and more funds made available for maintenance.

"We learned while discussing with the various legislators, that there were considerable talk of discontinuing the state gasoline tax refund to the consumers. We, of course, were bitterly opposed to this movement, as it would effect the people in this district a great deal more than other parts of the state, where tractors are not so commonly used. There have been about 12 per cent of all of the gasoline tax paid in refunded to the consumers, which has been used in equipment and other motor vehicles driven on the highways. If this law should go into effect, it would mean the loss of a great amount of money to the farmers of Lamb county.

The legislators we interviewed expressed their willingness to help us out of our difficulties, and I believe this trip to Austin paved the way for action along the lines above outlined.

Mrs. A. C. Barton Plants Mandines and Pfitzer Junipers

Last week Mrs. A. C. Barton of Spring Lake set out mandines and pfitzer junipers for the foundation planting across the front of her home. The red leaves of the nandinas Mrs. Barton found are a beautiful contrast to the dark green on the junipers. She massed the bridal wreath bushes along the side of the house where their white blossoms will be most effective.

A year ago the work on the yard was started. The yard was first fenced and walks were made. The soil was dug up, fertilizer added, and then the yard was leveled and sodded. The Bermuda grass spread well and it needs little attention this year. Filling in a few spots is always needed in the spring. Blumps of bear grass have used in the corners of the yard to give a more attractive appearance to the entire yard. Lemonade sumac will be used with the bear grass.

Mrs. Barton intends to finish her planting this spring and summer. Shrubs are to be set along the north fence to serve as a shelter as well as a background for her roses and flowers. A wind break for the entire house is included in the plans. Mrs. Barton is the yard demonstrator for the Spring Lake Home Demonstration Club.

CARD OF THANKS
Words cannot express our appreciation and thanks to our many good friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy and other courtesies extended us during the long illness

FLOODS AND DROUGHTS

The eastern part of the United States, which has been suffering from lack of water ever since the great drought of 1930-31, is now getting more water than it needs. It is probably doubtful if the net damage caused by the floods in the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and their tributaries will prove to be anywhere nearly so serious as the wide-spread distress and economic troubles which the seven-year drought cycle caused. Too much water is better than not enough water.

Nobody has yet found a way to control the climate, and until that is done it is likely that most efforts at either flood control or drought control will prove futile, or at best will be of value to a very small proportion of the people.

The theory that floods and soil erosion are the consequences of human actions in cutting off the forests and plowing up the plains is frequently expressed. The fact is that there were devastating and soil-robbing floods before there were any settlers at all in America. The accounts of De Soto's discovery of the Mississippi, in 1541, tell of the muddy waters and the floating trees and logs. In 1647, Pere Marquette wrote of the great quantities of soil and the floating islands of trees that came down the Missouri.

In the long run, nature always strikes a balance. Droughts and floods recur in irregular cycles, but the farmer who is able and willing to stick through all of the hazards and uncertainties usually comes out even in the end.

and at the death of our lovingly husband and father. We feel we couldn't have went through these long hours of darkness if it had not been for our good friends. We wish to especially thank Dr. Payne and Dr. Shotwell for their kind medical attention.

BOOM EVIDENT IN BUILDING FIELD

The increase in the volume of new building construction throughout the country in 1936 over the previous year is encouraging in many ways. In normal times building is one of the largest industries, employing at its peak more than three million workers in the building trades, and other millions in the production of building materials and equipment. Last year was the biggest building boom since 1931, according to authoritative construction reports. But nothing which can properly be called a building boom has as yet set in.

The people of the United States built about 260,000 new homes in 1936, as compared with 75,000 in 1935. The total amount spent on new housing was only $12 per capita, as against $61 at the height of the last home-building boom in 1925. The outlook now is that about 1,000 new homes will be built this year. It takes about 1,000 new houses every year to house our normal population increase properly and replace buildings burned or otherwise rendered uninhabitable. Much new home building will be necessary in the Ohio Valley because of flood damage, but apart from that the United States needs at least a million new houses now.

There is considerable doubt whether there is enough skilled labor to carry on a real building boom if it started. All through last year reports of a shortage of competent bricklayers, plumbers, carpenters and other building mechanics came from every section where there was a marked increase in building operations, and contractors are reported as being prepared to offer "bonus" wages this Spring to good men. Wages are already near the high figure of the middle '20's, both for skilled men and ordinary labor. One reason for the shortage is that by building trades workers have established themselves on other lines. Forced by the depression to find work wherever they could, half a million or so have found ways to make a living either as farmers or in other occupations.

There is no new crop of journeymen workers to replace those who have died or become incapacitated by illness or accident in the past ten years. With the real estate building, which is starting now and bids fair to continue for another ten or twelve years, the building trades would seem to offer a fine opportunity for boys who can find ways to become masters of almost any one of the building crafts. Good workmen will be in greater demand for a long time.

CHURCHES

announces the addition to his equipment of the

WOTTRING ROTOSCOPE

This instrument is the latest development for reconditioning the visual apparatus to a more normal relationship among its various functions. It's use will make much more comfortable many pairs of eyes without the necessity of wearing glasses. And make comfortable other eyes that will not adapt themselves to a correction without reconditioning.

There are many pairs of eyes that can never be made comfortable with lenses alone, because they have become so completely adjusted to an abnormal and strained working condition over the years, that they can not learn with ease a new association of the various phases of the visual act with comfort. This instrument teaches the eye to adapt itself to the new association.

GAY JUMPER FROCK

Pattern 8907: What a bolero is to Big Sister, the jumper is to Little Sis—the spice of her wardrobe! And this scrumptious model has it all over most jumpers because the styling is so distinctive and the possibilities for effective color and fabric combination so endless. Today, a velveteen blouse with the broadcloth jumper; tomorrow supplant the velveteen with a gay taffeta or gingham for the blouse, and the result is something entirely new and different.

Moreover, mothers will appreciate the way this clever number goes together. One glance at the diagram tells the story in plain, convincing language.

Clean System Clear Skin

You must be free from constipation to have a good, clear complexion. If not eliminated, the wastes of digestion produce poisons and the skin must do more than its share in helping to get rid of them.

So for a clear, healthy skin, remember the importance of bowel regularity. At the first sign of constipation, take Black-Draught—the purely vegetable laxative. It brings such refreshing relief, and tends to leave the bowels acting regularly until some future disturbance interferes.
