TEXAS TO GET HUGE SUM FOR RELIEF WORK

State To Vote August 26 On $20,000,000 Bond Issue

Lawrence Westbrook, director of the Texas rehabilitation and relief commission, announced Tuesday he had been advised $968,787 federal relief funds would be available for disbursement in Texas this week.

Westbrook said the funds were being dispatched by air mail.

"We hope to get the money disbursed this week," Westbrook said.

The May allotment of Texas' relief money had been withheld by the Reconstruction Finance corporation until the legislature had submitted to the voters a proposed $20,000,000 bond issue, proceeds to augment federal government funds.

The legislature passed a resolution submitting the bond issue to a vote at a special election on August 26 and Governor Miriam A. Ferguson approved it Tuesday.

Governor Ferguson sent to both houses a message suggesting passage of a bill that would allow otherwise qualified persons to vote in the August 26 election although they had not paid a poll tax. She said such legislation would "permit many good citizens to vote who otherwise would be denied that privilege." Under Texas law one who does not pay a poll tax by February 1 cannot vote in any election during the year unless exempted from payment of a poll tax.

Governor Signs Beer Vote Bill

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has signed legislation that will submit to a vote of the electorate on August 26 the question of legalizing beer and setting up regulations for its sale if authorized.

The legislature also passed a bill setting up machinery for the state to express itself about repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution. Election of delegates would be held on August 26, the same day the beer question is submitted, to elect delegates to a state convention that would cast the state's vote on the national prohibition question.

PLANS TO CARE FOR INDIGENT SICK ARE GIVEN

Doctors to Offer Suggestions To Commissioners Court

Two plans for the caring for the indigent sick in this county have been drawn up by the Lamb County Medical association and will be presented to county commissioners in a meeting early next week.

One of the plans drawn up by the association would call for the county to contract to pay to the association a set sum of money each year and this would be distributed between the various doctors according to the amount of services they render in connection with indigent cases.

The other plan calls for the commissioners court to set a fee to be paid by the county to the attending physician in all indigent cases.

Following is a resolution signed by 13 Lamb county physicians in connection with the steps the association is taking in an attempt to collect medical fees:

Be it Resolved: That we, the undersigned physicians of Lamb county, State of Texas, wish to call attention to the responsibility of the community for the care of the indigent sick (the county's pauper poor), a responsibility which has heretofore been foisted on the shoulder

Norman Renfro had left Littlefield about 8 o'clock Sunday night for McKinney to visit his father, having accompanied Dr. T. B. Duke, who went to Dallas to attend the operation of his son Richard.

Deceased had been in bad health for the past six months, but had much improved and had written his sons here to that effect. A heart attack is believed to have caused his death.

Funeral services were conducted at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon, burial taking place in the Wilson-Chapel Cemetery at McKinney.

LAMB COUNTY DELEGATION, AIDED BY SENATOR ARTHUR P. DUGGAN, OBTAIN AMENDMENTS TO RURAL AID BILL

Inasmuch as the Rural Aid bill, recently passed, contains clauses said to be detrimental to the schools of Lamb county; one providing that any school district having a tax valuation of more than $3000 per scholastic, would not be entitled to receive state aid, which would eliminate practically every school district in Lamb county; another clause providing that 70 per cent of the total scholastic population must attend school in order to get state aid, and a third clause providing that schools having an enrollment of more than 400 were not entitled to truck aid, and aid in paying teachers' salaries, which would eliminate all districts of the county from State aid, a resolution was passed by the County School Board at a meeting held Saturday last, when it was voted that L. D. Rochelle, county school superintendent, W. P. Webb, superintendent of the Olton School district and W. C. Bentley, county school board member, go to Austin in the interests of the matter.

Mr. Rochelle returned from Austin Tuesday night, and reports that he, accompanied with Senator A. P. Duggan, conferred with State Superintendent of Schools, L. A. Woods, after which an amendment was introduced in the Senate by Senator Duggan, and passed, striking out the tax valuation clause. He also introduced another amendment allowing state salary aid in all districts that transport more than 60 per cent of their rural population. Under this law each truck in Lamb county will receive $2 per child per day for a period of eight months as truck aid. As an example, said Mr. Rochelle, "a truck transporting 40 pupils would draw a salary of $80 per month from state aid." These amendments have passed both the Senate and the House and now await the signature of Governor Ferguson, but, according to the county superintendent, there is every likelihood that the governor will sign the amendments.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Prescott of Big Spring spent Sunday with Mrs. Prescott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beebe.

LAW ENACTED AS ADDITIONAL STEP IN POLICING CITY

Officials Will Appreciate Co-Operation Of Parents

A curfew law, effective June 1, has been passed by the City Commission.

Under the new regulation no child under 16 years of age will be permitted on the streets or in the business houses of Littlefield after 11 p. m. without written permission from their parents or guardians except when they are accompanied by such parties.

The curfew law has been enacted as an additional step in the policing of the city, and all officers will appreciate the co-operation of parents and guardians in the carrying out of the new regulation.

The passing of the curfew law came as a result of a number of cases of theft of a character which indicated that they were committed by boys.

There are very few boys in Littlefield who require any police attention but officers were retarded in their work of apprehending those believed guilty of offenses because all boys enjoyed the freedom of the city at any time.

Congratulations

The Southwestern Associated Telephone Co., is engaged in a special campaign to increase the number of telephones throughout the system, of which Littlefield is a part.

While it is true that the adding of new subscribers increases the business of the telephone concern, such campaigns have a more far reaching result than the additional revenue achieved by the firm engaged in expanding its business.

The greatest need of the country at this time is more activity in preparing for increased business and the taking of all possible steps to advance the volume of business which can be done with present facilities.

Thinking and acting progressively will soon bring out the sunshine from behind the clouds.

Progressive steps by industrial and commercial concerns are the forerunner of more employment, and more employment will bring back prosperity in a rush.

The watchword of this newspaper is PROGRESS, and we extend our congratulations to the telephone company on its latest steps to advance that concern's interests. . . . on its new contribution to the welfare of the Southwest.

A Life of Outstanding Service

We recently had the privilege and pleasure of talking with J. M. Hamlin, years of age and a resident of Farwell. Mr. Hamlin attended the Methodist conference, which was held in Littlefield a few weeks ago.

Old in years, but young in his outlook on life and in his zeal to be of service to humanity and his church, Mr. Hamlin offers a stalwart example to those much younger in years as to how to live in order that the evening of life may not be a period of regrets, but long years of great joy.

Modest in his manner and in his thinking relative to his accomplishments on behalf of himself and others, Mr. Hamlin is a man of few words. In fact, he would be the editor of this newspaper to say very little about him; just two or three lines in some obscure place would be a great plenty. We didn't make any promises.

Mr. Hamlin moved to Farwell when the west was the west; in fact, he moved to that section before Farwell was founded. The elderly Farwell resident has been a steward in the Methodist church for more than 50 years, and the church of that denomination in his city is named in his honor—the Hamlin Memorial Church.

A former newspaper man, Mr. Hamlin honored the Leader with a visit. We hope is that he may be spared to come back and visit with us again.

SYNOPSIS

Joyce Ashton, poor stenographer, suffered loss of memory in a riding accident in Chicago morning two years later she awoke after a fall from her horse, memory restored, to find herself in Littlefield, the wife of Neil Packard, California fruit packer. She decided to tell nobody of her predicament but set about learning what had happened to her in the interval. The conversation of her friends gathered in her desk she gathered that she had been a heartless, pleasure-loving young woman. One letter troubled her was from a woman who called herself Sophie, blaming Frills for giving a home to a baby who was caring for. Could it be Frills, Frills wondered! She also remembered herself involved in an affair with a man named Maitland. In San Francisco, where she went while her husband was away on business, she met Robert Ainsworth, a poet whose name she had always admired. When he returned home, she decided to be pleasanter to Neil than Frills had been. But this line was dangerous, too, for Neil was pathetically anxious to win back Frills' love. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Can you stand it to have only me for dinner this once?" asked Joyce.

"Whoopee! Just ask me, can I?" he replied. "You know that, Frills, old kid. I'll go up and wash and be right down again."

When Packard came down the stairs Joyce divined his intention to kiss her again, and she moved toward the dining room immediately, saying, "Dickie eats with us. At least he sits at table and snaps up what favors he can persuade me to give him, don't you, darling? He has his regular dinner in the kitchen."

"Where do you want his chair?"

occurred to her in an effort to cover her embarrassment.

"Good Lord, no!" he exclaimed hastily. "Only . . . only . . ." he hesitated. "I'm sorry, Frills, I can't keep up with you. You've jumped me so hard about talking shop and said so often you didn't give a damn about what happened so long as you didn't have to hear about it—that—"

"Well, I don't want to know everything that happened. I just wondered if you had a successful trip in general," said Joyce. She began to wonder if Frills had ever had a decent word for anyone.

"Oh, sure, we fixed up what I went for and got the new branch office planned out and ready for business," he said.

"Sam said there was a fire at the if you want to come, all right." Secretly she quailed at the idea of going out alone for the first time. Would it be light enough for safety? Could she handle Rosita?

But Packard accepted without further questioning. "I'll tell Sam to saddle up while we get into our things," he said. "Run on in, darling. Let's light out before any of the gang shows up."

"Take Dickie with you and leave him with Sam," said Joyce, and, trembling with excitement, she raced into the house and upstairs to her big closet, where she proceeded to kick off her slippers and pull her dress over her head as rapidly as possible. She was drawing her boots on when she heard Packard cross the bedroom and go through to his dressing room.

Scarcely five minutes later they were hurrying downstairs and out to the stable.

She noticed as they rode off slowly that Neil kept eyeing her in an apprehensive fashion. She decided he must be worrying about the accident she had had and probably wondering what mad idea the moonlight would inspire in her tonight. Well, if he were looking for trouble of that kind he would be disappointed!

"Want a cigarette, dear?" he asked once, holding out his case toward her as they rode close together on a short level stretch along the hills. Joyce accepted it but did not dare to try lighting it while they were moving.

"You light it, please." She handed it back to him.

"That gives me permission to kiss you," he remarked, smiling as he handed her back the lighted cigarette.

"But who wants to kiss his own wife?" retorted Joyce, urging Rosita into a quick trot.

"Here's one man who does," he replied, easily catching up with her. Riding close to her horse he put his arm around her and tried to draw her toward him. Joyce was alarmed, this time not so much at the prospect of being kissed as at the danger of such reckless actions while on horseback.

"Oh, please don't!" she exclaimed hastily. "You make me—" she had been about to say, "you make me nervous," when she was struck by the absurdity of Frills Packard saying anything like that.

Packard looked surprised, but he obediently fell away a little. Joyce was undecided whether to be contemptuous of him for his lack of spirit or to conclude that his experience with Frills, when he crossed her, had probably been so unpleasant that he had learned his lesson thoroughly.

Try as she would, Joyce could not keep Robert Ainsworth from her thoughts. The beauty of the night brought vividly to mind his delightful personality. It would be so perfect with the right man.

Joyce wondered most of the way back if her silence puzzled Neil very much. She would have chatted willingly enough, but nothing except dangerous remarks seemed to occur to her. Neil was little help for he rode in silence. What was he thinking? Looking at him she thought with amusement "Prunes!"

"Don't you feel well, Frills? You . . . you're sort of quiet tonight," said Packard, in what Joyce described to herself as a "cautions voice."

"I feel absolutely wonderful!" she retorted with spirit, "can't I enjoy myself just once without shrieking over it?"

"Oh, sure, only it's . . . it's not exactly like you."

Joyce, torn between impatience and amusement, answered, "Well, whatever I do is me isn't it?"

Packard made no reply to this, but a little later on he said earnestly, "Look here, sweetheart, I stopped to see mother today on my way down. She'd like awfully to . . . he friends with you. Won't you, please? I'd give anything in the world if you'd go to see her and just be nice to her a few minutes. You needn't go often or spend much time there, but if you can . . . she's so anxious to have things friendly. It's tough on her, my being her only son and my wife never going to see her. She's getting old, you know."

Before Neil stopped Joyce felt a lump coming into her throat. His voice was so pleading and so anxious. She remembered the sweet-faced woman whose picture she had found in his desk drawer and how she wondered if his mother was still living.

"Well, all right, I'll make a detour with you to take me to see her tomorrow. I won't go alone," and she was a little pleased with herself for her diplomacy.

Her prompt acceptance surprised him, she saw, but he seized upon it gratefully. "Thanks a lot. We could take a run out there before dinner. Could you be ready about five? Or would that interfere with anything you're doing? We don't have to go tomorrow, you know."

"No, we'll go any time. I'll get or let any busy five. I'll have hard work, I guess, but I'll dates with me, making any more, I'll be . . . for anything," retorted Joyce.

"I'll be . . . there, I'll tell the world. You know, that's sweet of you. You mean . . . so much mother means to me."

Joyce rode on in silence thinking fast and furiously. If she could do things like this for Packard surely she needn't feel that all the evening was on his side, even though she refused him herself. She could give him more of her company than Frills had; she could eliminate all cause for jealousy with Maitland; she could make his house more of a real home. Or was it too late to do that? And could she follow out such a plan without misleading him as to her feelings?

Well, she had made enough concessions for such a short time! The future must somehow take care of itself.

As, on foot once more, they approached the house from the terrace side, Joyce heard voices; and when they entered the living room they were immediately surrounded by a welcoming group who had evidently been waiting for their return.

"Well, what do you know? Frills' been riding in the moonlight with her husband! Hot stuff! Somebody telephone the scandal to the papers."

The company consisted of Doc Ellison, Ross and Clarice Emery, Charlie Bates, and Art Belmain. Joyce wondered where the other women were.

"Don't suppose you got any golf while you were East, did you, Neil?" asked Art Belmain.

"Not a round," replied Packard.

The men proceeded to talk golf and business.

As the party broke up, Dr. Ellison said in aside to Joyce, "Say, Frills, you're looking much better than you did two weeks ago. Has your head bothered you any lately?"

"Are you afraid it'll cause a scandal if anyone discovers you've been out with your own wife?"

inquired Packard politely. "Here you are, boy, get up and let's see how good your table manners are."

They sat down opposite each other at the small round table with Dickie between them. Joyce was struck by the lingering bewilderment on Packard's face. There seemed to be something he couldn't quite understand, but he asked for no explanations.

"Gee! it's good to be home again," he began. "I sure do hate Chicago."

She asked politely, "Was the conference a success?"

Packard stared.

Joyce flushed. "Oh, is it something I'm not supposed to ask about?"

rushing into the first remark which plant here," remarked Joyce casually, "but almost no damage done. Had you heard about it?"

"Yes, I called up from the city before I came down. But, tell me what you've been doing with yourself, Frills. How's every one in the gang? Doc been in much?"

"Don't know. I just got home today myself," replied Joyce. "I haven't seen anybody I know for nearly two weeks. The first two days after you went they wouldn't let me alone, and I wanted to be quiet, so I walked off and went up to the city alone."

There was an uncomfortable silence. Packard ate for a few moments with his eyes fastened on his food. Joyce understood without doubt that he didn't believe she had spent all that time in San Francisco alone. Why should he? Suddenly she knew she wanted him to believe it. It was perfectly obvious to her that he loved Frills and that he was a little afraid of her.

Joyce wondered with a sudden thump of her heart how he would like a baby around the house. If she could only ask him about that baby in New York.

"I promised Dickie to throw a stick for him," she said as they left the table, "if you care to join us, come along," and she ran across the terrace and down the wide stone steps to the stretch of lawn at the top of the garden, without waiting for a reply. Packard lighted a cigarette and followed her more slowly. By the time he joined them she was racing around with Dickie, having a lively game and secretly amused to wonder what he thought of the unusual sight of Frills enjoying a childishly simple pleasure of this kind.

She turned to him and asked very abruptly, "Are you very tired after your trip?"

"Good Lord, no!" he answered, evidently startled, "why?"

"It's going to be glorious moonlight in a few minutes. Let's go for a horseback ride." His look of blank amazement at this suggestion caused her heart to sink for a moment. Suppose he refused! A gust of angry impatience struck her. If they didn't hurry, somebody would come and spoil her plan!

"What's the matter? Afraid it'll cause a scandal if any one discovers you've been out with your own wife?" she demanded.

"Hell!" grinned Packard. "I should worry about that. But you can't blame me for . . . for wondering if I'd heard you right. You—we haven't spent many evenings together lately."

There was something in his voice which hurt Joyce a little. She had not found him exactly interesting so far, but she already liked him enough to be sorry for the way Frills had been treating him. "Well, it's up to you," she replied, "I'm going for a ride and

Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition—this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. I kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well."

Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

MAY FETE SPONSORED BY JUNIOR STUDY CLUB OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

The May Fete, sponsored by the Junior Study Club, and staged last Friday evening in the High School Auditorium, was a great success. Five hundred characters took part in the program.

Miss Doris Dore was crowned Queen by Mayor L. R. Crockett, and looked charming gowned in white lace, while the King, James Anderson, wore conventional black. The flower girls, Dorothy Louise Clements, Jane Whieker, Robbie Bigham, Marjorie Clair Coplin, Dorothy Wales Etter and Dorothy Ruth Hopping, dressed in pastel shades, following the Queen to the throne strewn rose petals from pink baskets. Robbie Jones, as crown bearer, and Jacqueline Snowden and Dudley Paul Repp as trainbearers carried out their parts in a fitting manner. Other members of the Royal Party were: Earl Hobbs, announcer; Heralds, A. C. Pumphrey, John D. Walker; Court Jester, Jack Harvey; Chief Marshall, J. R. Eagan; Leaders of Royal Party, Lucille Hall, Virgie Mae Smith; Princesses, Myrtle Marion Shaw, Wynonne Mason, and Charlyne Kincaid; Princes Tilden Wright, Travis Jones and Billie Irvin; Duchesses, Martha Willitt, Amherst; Lillian Hunt, Sudan; Lois Wren, Whitarral; Prudence Courtney, Fern Thornton, Olga Henson, Bonnie Bell Jones, Dukes, Lester La Grange, Jr., Amherst; Eldon Nichols, Sudan; Ray Westmoreland, Whitarral; Talmadge Sparkman, Emil Timian, Bill Arnn, Quinton Bellomy; Maids of Honor, Mary Nell Keithley, Fleeta Eagan, Mary Ruth Newgent, Jewel Glover; Earls, Earl Glover, Darrell Hemphill, William Davis, Harry Teeters; Ladies in Waiting, Eloise Collins, Minnie Belle Cobb, Fry Herman, Corrine Alexander; Lords, Burt Lambert, Britt Fietz, H. C. Glazener, Bill Wells; Leaders of the Grand March, Genevieve Mason, Virginia Teal; Pages, Dick Johnson, Jr., Malcolm Stokes, Sonny Grissom, Billie Lyman, Neil Singer, Edie Ray Jones.

An outstanding feature of the May Fete, was the fact that children of every age were privileged to participate in the entertainment. Tiny tots of pre-school age, dressed in appropriate costumes, represented nursery rhyme and children from the primary and grade schools in colorful costumes in keeping with their chosen country, contributed in making the occasion a success.

Following a beautiful representation of the foreign countries by the children, the program closed with a representation of the United States, which was splendidly portrayed by the older boys and girls. The march was led by two boy scouts, representing the United States Marine Corps, who were followed by a party representing President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Vice President and Mrs. J. N. Garner, and the President's cabinet. "America was played on the piano, and the group sang "Happy Days Are Here Again."

FARM NOTES

By D. A. ADAM
 County Agent
 Poison grain can be obtained at the county agent's office for control of ground squirrels, during planting time.
 Copper carbonate should be used for smut control in grain sorghums. This is a dry treatment, and a heaping tobacco can full to the bushel of seed will control smut for you.
 Ceresan should be used to treat cotton seed, and 3 ounces to the bushel is the required amount. This has been very successful in the control of rot and other fungous diseases.
 Elmo Bryant, Ross Bryant, Golden Benton, John Hanks, Cecil Galloway, Clarence Schreier, Roy McQuatters, James Walden, Edith and Virginia Cunningham, Arles, John and Jim Humphries, Roy Miller and Robert Hawkins, Wayman and Erskine Gordon have a total of 54 calves in the feed lot that were secured during the past two weeks by the county agent for feeding out for the next spring shows.

Wells to Picture Zion and Brice

Down in south Utah, not many miles north of Arizona's picturesque painted desert country, the summer tourist will find two canyons, Zion and Bryce, which have been so strangely carved by nature that it seems almost possible that some gigantic prehistoric human sculptor was responsible for them.
 In fact, many of the stone or earthen figures do look like men at a distance, says Carveth Wells, famed explorer, who will devote his regular Wednesday night Continental Oil Company radio program on May 24 to a description of these two Utah wonderlands.
 As a result of the adoption of daylight saving time in eastern broadcasting centers, the Conoco program is now being heard one hour earlier than usual in all but one of the 20 N. B. C. cities from which the program is put on the air. The exception is Chicago, which is continuing at the usual time.

Annual Cowboy Reunion July 3-5

Memories of stirring days on the cattle ranges of the old west will be revived when pioneer ranch workers who saw service with lariat and saddle prior to 1898 hold their annual round-up at Stamford during the fourth annual Texas Cowboy Reunion July 3, 4 and 5.
 The cowboy rodeo, featuring performers actually employed on the ranches rather than professional rodeo performers will be the central feature of the program of entertainment during the Cowboy Reunion. An old fiddlers' contest will be held on one day of the reunion and square dances will be held each night for the entertainment of cowboys and visitors of all ages.
 The most typical active cowboy over 55 years of age and the most typical cowboy under 55 will be selected during the reunion and a prize awarded to each. John Selmon of Stamford received this honor last year for the youngest cowhand and Jake Raines of Spur was selected as the most typical among the active cowboys over 55.

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

May 9, 1933

A great thing has occurred amongst us. We have made a complete turn-around, and at last America's face is toward the future.

Three years---1929 to 1932---we Americans looked backward. All our old financial and political machinery was geared to pull us out of the depression by the same door through which we entered. We thought it simply a case of going back the way we came. It failed. We now realize that the way out is forward---through it.

Thanks for that belongs to President Roosevelt. Inauguration Day he turned the Ship of State around. Having observed the failure of sincere efforts to haul us back the way we came, he designed a new method---new political and financial machinery---to pull us out the way we are going---forward. He is clearing international obstacles out of the way; he does not stand in awe of tariffs. The people begin to feel that he does not take advice from the "interests"; that he has courage and loyalty to work for one supreme interest only---the welfare of the American people. That is a big achievement for two months in office.

And now we all look to what is coming; we grow less and less concerned with what is behind. We are looking for a hand-hold on the haul rope. Every man wants to do what he can, and all he can.

The best thing I can do for the Country is to create industry by building good motor cars. If I knew anything better to do, I would do it. Industry must be my contribution. Motor cars must face ahead to the future, like everything else. They are so much a part of the Nation's daily life that if they lag behind they hold the Country back.

Merchandise and Cash Taken From Variety Store

Littlefield Variety Store was sometime late Sunday night, Monday morning, and $10.00 and merchandise to the value of $40.00 and $50.00 taken. $10.00 was taken from the register. The loot consisted of a quantity of No. 22 cartridges, shells, French harps, watches, chewing gum, etc. The store was gained through the window, which before the robbery both locked and nailed, but was up and the lock broken by the robbers.

According to George Long, owner, the robbery was discovered when he went for business Monday morning. This is one of a series of such robberies in the area.

April Shipments of Fruits, Vegetables Exceed March Record

Fruits and vegetables shipped from Texas during the month of April amounted to 5,400 cars, an increase of 28 per cent over the total for the preceding month, according to daily reports from the United States Department of Agriculture compiled by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Last year in April, 6,472 cars were loaded.

Watch out! Don't let bargain gasoline "Take YOU for a ride"

The more you know about a car, the less chance there is of your being tempted by inflated claims and bargain gas ballyhoo.

Inexperienced drivers may think they are saving a few pennies per tankful, but YOU know that they will soon be spending many extra dollars to keep their engines in condition.

More than 7,000,000 veteran motorists like yourself, who have carefully compared performance and figured costs, are enthusiastic users of Phillips 66... the greater gasoline.

Every time you Phill-up with Phillips 66, you get high test and high anti-knock without a single cent of higher price. And you know exactly how high the test is, because Phillips always prints the definite figures instead of indefinite claims.

This month, for example, Phillips 66 gravity ranges from 62° to 68°. That's why you will quickly feel the difference it makes in your motor—extra power and added snap... more miles per gallon... swifter acceleration... smoother running.

Besides, Phillips 66 contains no injurious chemicals which attack cylinder walls. No surplus gum to stick the valves. No excess carbon to foul the spark plugs. And don't forget, every gallon of Phillips 66 is scientifically pre-suited to your weather at the time you buy it, by the famous principle of CONTROLLED VOLATILITY.

If you wonder how Phillips can give this honest high test and bigger value without extra cost, just remember that Phillips is the world's largest producer of natural high gravity gasoline.

So stop for gas at the Orange and Black 66 shield... and while you're there, ask the courteous attendant to drain and refill with Phillips 66 motor oil. We are proud of its reputation as "the world's finest oil for your motor."

"I'M A FANATIC"

on the subject of gasoline quality. That's why our independent organization set out to make a world-beating motor fuel which would offer more value for the money. I personally invite you to try a tankful of Phillips 66 and see how well we have succeeded. Then, as a favor, please write me your opinion.

Contract Bridge

Submitted by Mrs. C. E. Cooper

The double dummy hand selected for the readers of this column this week is one of the most interesting the writer has ever discovered. We want some of our men players to solve this one. By far the greater number of answers that come in to these problems come from women players.

The problem is for North and South to make five clubs against any possible defense. The opening lead is the five of hearts by West. The correct play of the hand will be given next week.

Answers to Questions
No. 1.—Unless one is naturally a keen card player or has learned the principles of correct play in auction bridge even a perfect knowledge of bidding and responses as given in the preliminary course of lessons in the Culbertson system will not make a good player of him. There should be some supplementary study of leads and plays. Elimination plays; end plays; and grand-coups; do not come about accidentally. They are plotted and planned from the beginning of the hand by the expert player and it is the command of this higher strategy that the big thrill of contract is found. I would suggest that you have some further instruction.

No. 2.—Your question has been answered before but as forcing situations seem to bother so many I will go over it again. If you are playing the Culbertson system an opening bid of two in a suit, with no past score, is forcing to game unless a penalty equivalent is in sight. If you have been playing with persons who make an original bid of two in a suit and then refuse to go to game when partner's reply shows weakness, they are not playing the Culbertson game. You understand of course, that if you have given a forcing bid and your partner passes you out you can do nothing about it except choose some other partner in the future. You cannot say, "Partner, you have to bid something." He has already made his bid when he said, "Pass."

You can glare at him, you can throw down your cards and quit the game, you can even shoot him and be cleared if the judge is a contract player but you cannot make him take back his "pass" and bid.

ENOCHS' BREEZES

George "Mark" Yates of Plainview spent last week visiting his uncle, Ed McClellan. Mr. Waldrop of San Antonio visited with G. P. Howell last week. Durwood Howell spent the week end visiting his brother Douglas, at Lubbock. Mother's Day program at Enochs Sunday was a big success. Rev.

Moore preached a good sermon. Pop Eye Victory of Overall, Tenn., is visiting his uncle Jim Victory at this time.

Enochs South Plains League ball team went to Lubbock Sunday and were defeated 7 to 5 while the Enochs "Rinkey Dinks" defeated the old Bula "Alley Rats" 4 to 3.

BOWELS need watching

Let Dr. Caldwell help whenever your child is feverish or upset; or has caught cold.

His simple prescription will make that bilious, headachy, cross boy or girl comfortable, happy, well in just a few hours. It soon restores the bowels to healthy regularity. It helps "break-up" a cold by keeping the bowels free from all that sickening mucus waste.

You have a famous doctor's word for this laxative. Dr. Caldwell's record of having attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby is believed unique in American medical history.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your drugstore and have it ready. Then you won't have to worry when any member of your family is headachy, bilious, gassy or constipated. Syrup Pepsin is good for all ages. It sweetens the bowels; increases appetite—makes digestion more complete.

Applications for Wheat Loans Now Being Written

As announced by Hilliard Smith, Field Supervisor for this district, comprising Lamb, Bailey, Castro and Parmer Counties, there has been a total of $35,442.00 in crop loans approved in Lamb county.

Mr. Smith said he is now working on wheat loans, applications for which have to be received at the Dallas office not later than May 31. He pointed out that as the farmers have only two weeks within which to make applications for wheat loans, he urges that all those needing assistance file their applications without delay.

Mr. Smith handed the Leader the following provisions governing the wheat and summer fallowing loans:

The man who has previously made a crop loan, giving the government a mortgage, but has in wavers except wheat, may now make a summer fallow or wheat loan on the wheat land, exclusively on 1934 wheat crop mortgage.

The farmer who has not previously borrowed, but has wheat abandonment, may now borrow for wheat production, including summer fallow, and also make a spring crop loan if his acreage justifies it.

All waivers, including landloans, will be expected at this time on both spring crop loans and 1934 wheat loans.

A 30-per cent reduction in cash crops, including the wheat loan and on wheat acreage, will be required.

The limit per acre on summer fallow and wheat planting will be $1.25 per acre. Where the farmer has his own seed and borrows only for summer fallowing the loan will be limited to 70 cents.

The spring crop loan provisions will be the same as heretofore except the Panhandle wheat area is allowed this extension of time. All applications on either or both loans must be in Dallas office on or before May 31.

Loans are not available on land not heretofore cultivated.

Farmers borrowing for summer fallowing will be expected to cover their first plowing not later than June 15.

Funds to cover seeding are to be held by the Dallas office and advanced when necessary.

Eight acres is the limit on farms which grew no cotton in 1932. Where cotton has been grown as the principal money crop a 30 per cent reduction is required, the same as on the abandoned wheat lands.

Applications for loans may be made through Hilliard Smith. Applications must be approved by the committeemen and the cropping plan approved by the county agent. Final approval will be made by the Federal Inspector. Counties not served by agricultural agents are expected to have one man designated as acting county agent by County Commissioners.

'PHONE COMPANY LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN TO INCREASE NUMBER OF SUBSCRIBERS

Plans Submitted—

The Southwestern Associated Telephone company is engaged in a drive for new business. The management feels that the time is particularly opportune, in that business generally is responding to the "New Deal."

Industry and other classes of business seem to have caught the spirit and are becoming much more active. Prices of farm commodities are on an upgrade. Unemployment is increasingly lessened each month as a result, thus adding more cheer to the immediate future outlook.

This movement can be accelerated if everybody will help. Making that needed purchase now or setting a faster pace in the interest of enlarging the business that is now being done is responding to the president's appeal for assistance in again restoring this nation to a prosperous state.

Governor Signs Redistricting Bill

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson Tuesday signed a bill redistricting Texas to make room for twenty-one congressmen instead of eighteen. Because the state had only eighteen districts it had been necessary to elect three congressmen at large last November.

Under the bill signed by the governor, East Texas will get a new district, central west Texas a new district and the Panhandle a new district. Makeup of all the other districts was materially changed from their former grouping.

19th district is composed of the following counties: Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran, Hockley, Floyd, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, King, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, Haskell, Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry, Mitchell, Andrews, Martin, Howard.

Judge Clark M. Mullican, district judge at Lubbock for the past ten years, announced Tuesday that he will be a candidate for congress from the new 19th district.

Improvements Are Being Made At Stone's

An extensive program of improvements is being carried out at 1c to $5 Store, which is owned by B. Stone.

This store was recently damaged by fire.

In the rebuilding and improvement program, Mr. Stone and his partner, owner of the building, are going to the end that the store will be one of the finest of the kind in South Plains.

One of the leading thoughts in carrying out of the improvement program is to provide the best possible for merchandise, and make the store exceeding attractive.

Additional light has been added by the building of a new light, and the walls and ceiling shelving have been refinished.

One of the outstanding features of the improved store is the rearrangement. This has been accomplished by the installation of fixtures, which are beautiful in design and treatment.

Business is being carried on as usual during the improvement program.
