RED CROSS DRIVE TO START FRIDAY SPECIAL GROUP WILL INTERVIEW STATE OFFICIALS

1000 MEMBERS IN LAMB COUNTY WILL BE SOUGHT

J. S. Hilliard Is Appointed Chairman For Local Campaign

At a meeting of the local Red Cross Committee Tuesday evening at the City Hall, plans were formulated for the Red Cross Call campaign in Littlefield.

J. S. Hilliard was appointed Roll Call Chairman, with Miss Nora Belle Grizzle and Mrs. Carroll members of the Committee. It is expected that other members will be selected to assist in the work.

According to Rev. J. F. Grizzle, chairman of the County Red Cross, the members of the committee in charge will commence Friday morning canvassing the business section of Littlefield for memberships, and in this connection Mr. Grizzle said, "We are anxious to get as many as one thousand members in the county."

It is expected that by Saturday Red Cross Stations in the city, where memberships may be taken out, will be indicated by Red Cross flags.

In an interview with Mr. Grizzle he said that the National Red Cross has given to Lamb County more than $2500 in flour and cotton goods alone within the last 12 months, and in the past three years the county has paid into the National office the amount of $263.00.

Mr. Grizzle gave this comparison in an effort to impress on the citizens of the county the necessity of cooperation in the Red Cross movement.

REV. P. H. GATES TO BE PASTOR MERKLE CHURCH

Rev. J. W. Hendrix Will Be Methodist Minister Here

Before the close of the Northwest Texas Methodist Conference at Clarendon Sunday evening, Rev. P. H. Gates was assigned the pastorate at Merkle, and Rev. J. W. Hendrix of White Deer will take over the charge here.

Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Gates have a host of friends, both inside and out of the Methodist church, who regret very much that Littlefield should lose such splendid citizens, as well as spiritual helpers from its midst. Mr. Gates is a capable preacher and has been a hard conscientious worker both for his congregation and the city in general.

Mr. Hendrix comes very highly recommended as a very forceful speaker and man of high standing in the ministry, and the Leader joins the citizens of Littlefield in welcoming him to this city.

Rev. and Mrs. Gates left Littlefield Wednesday for their new location, and the new pastor is expected here in time to fill his regular appointments at the local church Sunday.

MRS. SPINKS IS INJURED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Local Woman Sustains Serious Injuries Friday

Mrs. J. P. Spinks of Littlefield suffered severe injuries about 2:30 p. m. Friday when the car she was driving, a light coupe, and a touring car, said to be owned and driven by L. E. Barton of near Lubbock, collided on Highway No. 7, about four miles west of Lubbock.

Mrs. Spinks, who was alone in the car, was picked up by a salesman and taken to the West Texas Hospital, where she was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain, a broken vertebrae in her neck just above the shoulder, a gash in her forehead, which required several stitches to close, three ribs torn loose from the breast bone on the left side, fracture in left elbow and upper arm, and other bruises and lacerations about the body. X-ray pictures were taken Friday and again Saturday. Sunday she was placed in a plaster cast from her neck to her waist line, in which it was advised by her physician, it would be necessary for her to remain for four or five weeks.

Mr. Spinks had been employed at the Lowrimore gin at Lubbock since September last, and Mrs. Spinks was

Senator Duggan Principal Speaker At Armistice Service

The First Baptist Church was filled to capacity Sunday morning, when a special service, sponsored by the local unit of the American Legion, was enjoyed in commemoration of Armistice Day.

The Stars and Stripes, together with baskets of beautiful bronze and white chrysanthemums, furnished a fitting setting for the occasion.

The service was opened with patriotic songs by the assembly, with Mrs. J. H. Lucas at the piano, followed by a song by a quartette, composed of Senator A. P. Duggan, Arthur Mueller, Lloyd Robinson, and Pryor Hammons.

Senator A. P. Duggan then gave a splendid address on Patriotism, after which two readings were given by Miss Lucille Nance.

Rev. J. F. Grizzle, pastor, gave a brief talk on the Armistice which was followed by the benediction.

Bank Safe Has Been Identified

A bank safe, uncovered by a road-grading crew north of Sudan Friday, has been identified as a safe taken from the Farmers State Bank of Kress, early this year.

The safe had been opened and all identifying papers removed, according to Sheriff Len Irvin.

SCHOOLS REOPEN AFTER BEING CLOSED FOR COTTON PICKING

The Littlefield Public Schools began regular work Monday of this week in all the grades. All teachers and bus drivers were on the job. However there was a noticeable shortage in the attendance of the pupils who ride the buses. About fifty to sixty per cent of these pupils are in attendance this week. It seems to be the general opinion that if the weather continues fair the major part of the cotton will be out this week, at least enough of it so that the children can go to school and get the remainder on Saturdays.

The general spirit of work on the part of the folks present is good. They are in for the best that can be had out of the opportunity of school. After a few days review the pupils will be able to pick up the work and continue as before.

The football team is still working out and will probably have two more games. This week will be used to get in shape and the next two weeks will be used for games, probably to be played with Levelland and Olton.

After Thanksgiving the boys will begin training in basketball. Coach Barkdale is pleased with the prospects. Workout will be regular as the training for this sport can be had in the gymnasium.

W. O. Stogner Is Littlefield Visitor

W. O. Stogner, of Oklahoma City, and his daughter, Miss Nel Stogner, returned to Oklahoma City today after spending a week with Mr. Stogner's daughter and son in law, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chesher.

Mrs. Chesher and Billy June returned to Oklahoma City with her father and sister, and will spend two weeks in that city.

Mr. Stogner has been ill for the past four months, but is making rapid progress toward recovery. He has many friends in this city and regretted very much that limited strength and the shortness of his visit here prevented him from visiting more extensively with his friends in Littlefield and vicinity.

A Letter to The Children of Littlefield

Dear Children:

Christmas is not far off and poor old Santa Claus is quite worried because his pocket book is not very full of money. He is so afraid some good little girl or boy might be left without a gift that he has engaged a committee to help him get ready for the big day. This committee wants a list of all good children in the Littlefield territory whose fathers and mothers do not have enough money to help Santa Claus plan for their Christmas. Ask your parents if you should write to this committee and if they say "yes," send your letter to the Lamb County Leader or to the Santa Claus Committee, Box 216. Be sure to tell your age, how many brothers and sisters you have under fourteen years of age and give us the name of any other child you think would like a gift from you.

Lovingly yours,
Santa Claus' Assistant.

We Do Our Part

REGULATION

The responsibility of a newspaper to its readers goes farther than simply printing the news as fully as circumstances will permit. In these days every editor and publisher who would maintain the respect and confidence of his subscribers sees to it that in the advertising columns of his newspaper nothing appears which could have a detrimental effect upon his home town folks.

It would be hardly necessary for us to mention that subject if it were not that the integrity of newspapers, and of small town weekly newspapers in particular, is being challenged over the radio and otherwise, and by men who ought to know better. We refer particularly to Professor Rexford Tugwell, a member of the Administration's "Brain Trust," who has been trying to drum up support for the new Food and Drug bill which he is trying to get the next session of Congress to enact.

There is no class of advertising in which such a thorough cleaning up has been in progress for the past twenty-five years as in the advertising of prepared foods and proprietary medical and toilet preparations. As a result of the efforts of the Advertising Federation of America, the Better Business Bureaus and the Federal Food and Drug Administration it has become possible for any publisher to accept advertising from responsible agencies without having to be an expert dietician or a doctor. That was not always true. We have to admit that in the old days many products were advertised which contained habit-forming drugs, or harmful substances, or which were merely thinly disguised "booze."

Those days have gone forever, and we are glad of it. But we are resentful of the representations made by those who should know better, that such practices still prevail. We can see no good in restrictions which might easily result in great injury to reputable business and no real benefit to anybody. Many of the provisions of the proposed law savor of oppression rather than of regulation.

And we resent Professor Tugwell's charge that the small-town newspapers of America are negligent or culpable in their attitude in the matter of such advertising. Let him turn his attention to some other sources of advertising, which habitually carry advertising of a character which no self-respecting newspaper, certainly not this one, would think of laying before its readers.

EIGHT YEARS AGO IN LITTLEFIELD

(Excerpts from Lamb Co. Leader)

J. W. Huff of Oklahoma, was here the first of the week and purchased building material for a new residence to be erected on his farm in the north part of the county.

Thronged with a delightful populace that filled every seat from the ground floor to the gallery, with melodious strains of music slipping from the deft fingers of the pianist, and a Charlie Chaplin film creation to gaze upon, the new Palace Theatre threw open its doors Wednesday night of last week in its initial performance.

The Palace Theatre represents an investment of $36,000, which within itself is indicative of the confidence of the managers, Messrs A. C. Chesser and Max L. McClure, in the future of Littlefield.

Plans are being formulated and building material is being assembled on the ground for the new First Christian Church, which will be erected Tuesday, at a cost of $1800.

W. V. Tolbert left Thursday for Kansas City with a load of cattle for market.

K. J. Wynn and E. C. Cundiff this week closed a lease for a room in the new Cooper block now being erected. They will be located next to the Sadler Drug Store, and will put in a big stock of racket and novelty goods.

As this paper goes to press a total of 1470 bales of cotton have been ginned here, according to all the gins in Littlefield, (except Davanay gin.)

Fixtures are arriving for the new Palace of Sweets which will be opened about the middle of next week in the Palace Theatre building by J. H. Trimble.

Secretary Wallace Calls on Farmers To Support Program

At Des Moines Saturday Secretary Wallace called upon corn belt farmers to cooperate with the administration's farm program and denounced the holiday movement.

He explained the administration's farm policies, asserting that they have accomplished more in eight months than in the 12 preceding, stating the new $500,000,000 corn and hog production control program was certain to bring better prices to the corn belt producers.

He pictured the corn belt as "the sore spot of the nation," but asserted that until farmers are willing to curb production and reduce supply, prices and improvement in conditions are impossible. He praised President Roosevelt's monetary policies but repeated warnings that "inflation alone" will not solve the farm problem.

"There are at least three paths that farmers may take," he said. "There is the path of immediate price-fixing as advocated by the five mid-western governors. . . there is the trail already blazed by the cotton and tobacco farmers of the south and the wheat farmers of the west; or, finally, there is the opportunity to join the holiday movement and raise hell."

Discussing recent farm disturbances, Wallace said:

"I have been neither surprised nor shocked by the revolt of the holiday folks.

"It is true that I have never seen eye to eye with the leaders of the movement. But when it has been suggested that the great power of the federal government might be used in subterranean ways to disrupt the movement, I have insisted that the best way to stop this kind of ruckus is to get more money into the farmers' hands. The holiday movement is like the nerve to an aching tooth. You deaden the nerve only as a last resort. Meanwhile, it tells us just where and how serious the ache is.

"But when you have said that I am afraid you have said all that can be said of such a movement. Violence, destruction of property, and bloodshed, solve no problems. The statements of the leaders deploring such violence come a little late, and are of very little use in mending broken heads.

"You can't get more of the consumer's dollar by keeping milk away from his children and you certainly don't endeavor him to the cause of the farmer. In the past few months, city people have acquired a new sympathy for the farmer's battle for justice; but let a few more buildings be destroyed, a few more heads cracked, and a few more milk trucks upset, and I greatly fear that the reaction among consumers will be anything but helpful to farmers generally."

NEWS BRIEFS

A total of $60,000, or more than $1,000 per week, has been paid by the Struve Cheese factory at Aberrath to the farmers of that trade territory for whole milk from November 1, 1932, to October 31, 1933, according to Rudolph Struve, manager.

SECOND INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS: . . . Ruth Warren, living in the East, comes into possession of three-quarter interest in an Arizona ranch, left to her in the will of her only brother, reported to have died while on business in Mexico. With her ailing husband and small child she goes to Arizona to take possession, thinking the climate may prove beneficial to her husband's weakened lungs. Arriving at the nearest town, she learns that the ranch, "Dead Lantern," is 85 miles across the desert. Charley Thane, old rancher and rural mail carrier, agrees to take them to "Dead Lantern" gate.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Listen!" commanded the girl suddenly. Her face was white, tense with dread, and her lip quivered. "Oh, Kenneth!" she cried hysterically. "There's not a sound—not a sound—it's too much, I tell you! It's deathly—nothing moves, not a living thing! It's too big!"

Old Charley put down his sandwich and stepping on the starter, kicked open the muffler. Ancient Lena broke into an unsteady road. To give color to his action the old man got out of the car, threw back the hood, and stood staring skeptically within.

In the back seat the husband and wife were locked in each other's arms. Little David watched them with solemn eyes, not quite sure of his proper course. "It'll be all right, dear," the man's voice came to her in a strained whisper above the grateful noise of the car. "We'll just have to stick it out—you'll get used to it—all—"

Again the thing in his chest began to flutter madly.

To Old Charley's mild surprise the young woman sat beside him for the rest of the afternoon. Her manner had changed. Silently, she looked about her. There was no pleasurable interest in her face as her eye studied each detail of her surroundings—it was as though she felt it incumbent upon her to understand this strange country. After half an hour she began to ask questions:

"Will we see any cowboys to-day?"

"We passed one an hour back."

"That man on the horse? He didn't look like a cowboy. Oh, but don't they wear those—those fur rag things on their legs and high-heel boots and big hats and revolvers—forty-fives?"

"Hair chaps are all right on a fashion plate cowboy, or in a cold country. That man was wearin' the useful kind—plain cowhide. He was probably wearin' boots—high heels. But nobody packs a gun nowadays—ceptin' hi-jackers and peace officers. Oh, it's kinda usual to carry a gun in your car for coyotes and such, but I ain't seen a cowpuncher with a holster on for fifteen or twenty years."

"Why, according to you, this wild country must be as safe as a town with a good police force?"

"Lots safer. We got rattlesnakes and a few other things, but in town you've got high school kids scootin' around in stripped Fords."

For the first time in many hours the girl laughed. She relaxed in the seat, and pulling her tight-fitting hat from her head, let the dry wind do as it pleased with her short amber hair. "We've been awfully rude," she smiled. "We should have introduced ourselves—my husband's name is Kenneth Warren; I'm Ruth."

The old man nodded. "I figured maybe you might be. I think my son, Will, wrote you about—Mr. Grey."

"Oh," the girl's face went sober. "I see, of course. Mr. Will Thane's letter came from Los Angeles and I didn't think of there being a connection when I learned your name this morning. Did—did you know my brother?"

"Yes, pretty well. He and Will used to ride the country together quite a bit whenever Will came out. Will was here when the news was brought about your brother, Harry."

"Please tell me what you know about Harry's death," asked the girl quietly.

Old Charley shook his head. "There ain't much I can tell you. I expect Will wrote about all anybody knows. Your brother went down into Mexico last fall. After the fall cattle sellin', it was. He and his pardner, Jep Snaveley, had been figurin' or lookin' over some stock down that way—so Harry went. Snaveley heard from him a time or two and learned Harry was goin' further into the interior. After that Snaveley didn't hear from him. For a couple of months he didn't think nothin' about it because mail's mighty uncertain in some parts of Mexico. Then he commenced gettin' worried—he even come over to my place and asked me what should be done. Well, just about then a Mexican came into Palo Verde and told about findin' Harry. Close to two hundred miles below the line, it was. The Mexican knew the body was American and he brought some letters—one of them was from you. He described the clothes and so from the story the Mexican brought back and the letters and other personal things, everybody knew it was Harry. Snaveley was notified and he seen the Mexican and told all he knew about it, which is about what I told you."

"Was there anything to show what caused Harry's death?"

"Nothin' exact. The Mexican said it looked like he'd been thrown from his horse and dragged—but it's hard to tell."

"Was Harry buried?"

"Yes, the Mexican did that and he marked the grave. He told them at the next rancho he come to about where to find the grave and all."

The girl's eyes filled. "That was kind," she murmured.

"I expect Will told you it wouldn't hardly be possible to have the body brought over the line?"

"Yes. And I'd rather have things the way they are—I'm the only one who cares, anyway," she finished bitterly.

Old Charley changed the subject. "Are you folks plannin' on stayin' a spell?"

"Yes—I suppose so." She answered slowly, with a nervous glance at the gaunt range of mountains they would soon be entering. "Aren't we nearly there?"

"It's quite a piece yet—we've only come about forty-five miles. We cross this range and then we're in the San Jorge Valley. The valley's a long one runs 'way down into Mexico. The Dead Lantern's about forty miles down the valley and up against the mountains on the west side. My place is along there too—lies between the south Dead Lantern fence and the Mexican line—kinda over an elbow in the mountain range."

"Why in the world in the ranch called the Dead Lantern?"

"Well, you see, the brand is the outline of a lantern an' folks got to calling it the Dead Lantern—I reckon because there wasn't no light in it. A man makes a brand and puts it on his cattle, and then folks get to calling it whatever it looks like to them. By and by, some name sticks and from then on everybody calls the ranch that." The old man paused. "I expect this'll be your first trip out this way?" he asked.

"I may as well tell you," said Ruth. "My husband hasn't been doing well in business for some time—his health, you understand. Harry knew how things were and — well, he's always been my big brother. My husband and I were very young when we married and he kept his eye on us. He felt that we had no one to fall back on but him—my father and stepmother weren't—"

"When Harry came West and bought his part of the cattle ranch, he willed it to me. He wasn't married, you see, and he wanted us to have something to fall back on if anything happened to him. Now that he's gone, we've come out here to the ranch. We also think the climate will benefit Mr. Warren."

Old Charley was silent for a moment. "Well, well," he said at last, "so you're part owner of the Dead Lantern." The car covered a hundred yards of road. "Don't suppose you've met Jep Snaveley yet?"

"No. I hardly know anything about him. Harry used to mention him in his letters. Are you a friend of his?"

The old man pursed his lips. "I'm a neighbor. In fact, a real close neighbor to the Dead Lantern. It's only about six miles over the mountains from the Dead Lantern house to my house."

"Ah—what sort of a man is Mr. Snaveley?"

"He's about fifty—a good deal slimmer than me"—the old man smiled—"He's an old cattleman; but he ain't been in this country more'n twelve years or so. Originally from Texas, so Harry said. But he knows cattle and ranchin'."

"I'm glad to hear that," laughed the girl; "it will be rather necessary to have some one around who knows what to do on a ranch."

"Well, yes—I expect it will."

Nearly two hours after they had passed through the range of low mountains and had turned southward, a wire fence came down from the mountains on the western side of the valley.

"That's the Dead Lantern fence," said Old Charley noncommittally. "There's twenty thousand acres of the Dead Lantern, feed enough to run two thousand head, the land's all fenced, and there's heaps of browse up in the hills."

"How big is twenty thousand acres?"

"Sizable. The skyline of those mountains is the western boundry; to the south where that ridge runs out into the valley is the southern line. My place is 'round on the other side of that ridge—'bout twenty miles by road. But there's a trail over the ridge from the Dead Lantern home ranch to my place, that makes it about six miles."

"And all that land from here to the mountain tops belongs to the Dead Lantern?"

"Yes. And there's a heap more of it you can't see tucked away in them canyons. If you followed the line fence on horseback it would take you about four days to ride 'round the ranch."

"No wonder it can hold two thousand cows! What do cattle sell for apiece—I mean how much a head?"

"Forty to fifty dollars lately."

She made a quick calculation. "My heavens! Could we get a hundred thousand dollars for the cattle?"

Old Charley smiled. "It's not quite as simple as all that." Old Charley remarked gravely as he turned from the road and stopped by the Dead Lantern mail box. Just beyond the mail box was the gate; a newish sign, crudely lettered in black paint, was nailed on the middle bar: "Anybody coming on this ranch is liable to get shot."

When the old man heard the girl gasp he knew that she had seen the sign, and with averted eyes he began to rummage in the government mail sack.

The girl watched her husband's face as he read; their eyes met blankly, then turned to the old man.

"What in the world does that mean?" asked Warren.

"Nobody thinks it means anything," answered Old Charley reassuringly. "Just Jep Snaveley's way—he's a little ac-centric." He pointed to a faint cloud of dust far up the two wheel paths which led from beyond the gate toward the distant mountains. "I'll be going along now—I reckon it would be best for you folks to meet your new pardner alone, anyways." He looked into Warren's eyes. "And if something should come up sudden-like that you'd want to get to town in a hurry just ride over the mountain to my place. This old car ain't much, but she still rolls."

While they were piling the baggage by the mail box both the girl and her husband glanced frequently at the sign.

They watched Old Charley until the car disappeared over a hill a few hundred yards south of the gate, then turned their attention to the approaching wagon on the ranch road.

When the wagon stopped at the gate, an Indian boy of ten slid cautiously to the ground and, with his wide eyes fixed on the three by the mail box, sidled to the gate and opened it. This done, he speedily rejoined the family in the wagon. Kenneth Warren went forward. "Can you tell me," he addressed the two-hundred pound Indian on the wagon seat, "where Mr. Snaveley is? Are you his man?"

The Indian looked at his two-hundred-and-fifty-pound squaw, glanced back among his numerous progeny, and then turned his black eyes on Warren. "No sabe." The horses started forward.

"Mama, letter for the man!" David, the letter from the box outstretched, started toward the retreating wagon.

"No, David, not to that man. Mama will tell you when the man comes to whom you are to give the letter."

An instant later she whirled about to her husband, the letter in her hand. "Kenneth! This letter—it's the one I wrote over two weeks ago to Snaveley—he doesn't know we're coming!"

This is in accordance with Mr. Griffin's program to render the best service possible to the people of the county.

More Marriage Licenses Being Issued at Olton

Since the repeal of the three day notice law, business in the marriage license line has been picking up, according to Stanley A. Doss, county clerk.

Since January 1 this year 49 licenses to wed have been issued and of that number 19 have been issued since September 1, expiration date of the law requiring that notice of intention to wed be posted three days before license could be procured.

For 1932 only 44 licenses were issued during the entire year.

FORD HELD ELIGIBLE

A ruling was made by Comptroller General McCarl Saturday that Henry Ford is eligible to receive contracts although he has refused the NRA automobile code on behalf of his manufacturing companies.

He held that Ford can be called ineligible only if it is proven that he is violating the code and that the burden of proof in that case rests with the government.

Thousands have Ended their Bowel Worries by taking this advice!

Can constipation actually be overcome? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say the many thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not likely to cure your constipation with salts, pills, tablets, or any of the habit-forming cathartics. But you can correct this condition by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

THE LIQUID TEST: This is the way many men and women have made their bowels as regular as clockwork in a very short time.

First: select a properly prepared liquid laxative. Second: take the dose you find suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving of their own accord.

Simple, isn't it? And it works! The right liquid laxative brings thorough bowel action without using force. An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is syrup pepsin. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as in the case of mineral drugs.

Hospital and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. The dose can be measured, and the action controlled. Pills and tablets containing drugs of violent action are hard on the bowels.

If there are children in your household, don't give them any form of laxative, but use a healthful, helpful preparation like syrup pepsin. Its very taste will tell you it is wholesome, and agreeable to the stomach. Delightful taste, and delightful action; there is no discomfort at the time, or after. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, all ready to take,

Sally: "Really? Tell me about it, Helen." Helen: "Well, as I use the car most of the time these days and actually buy the oil and gas, Dick thought it a good plan to turn the car budget over to me entirely." Sally: "How does that give you extra money?" Helen: "I have more time than Dick and have learned some surprising things about the cost of car operation. Dick thought all gas and oil sold at approximately the same price were of equal value. When the motor broke down, he considered it just hard luck and paid the repair bill." Sally: "Isn't it?" Helen: "No! It is poor motor protection. More than half the entire motor wear occurs during the few minutes of starting when the motor is cold. Only one brand of oil—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—penetrates the metal so that a portion of it, nearly a quart, stays up in your motor, greatly reducing the wear. So checking back on

GOLD PRICE BOOSTED

RFC price for newly mined gold was raised by the administration to another successive new high recently at $32.84 an ounce, and it was revealed that $2,800,000 has been paid out in purchases of the domestic metal.

The administration watched the dollar slide to the new low level, but would give no hint whether its gold buying activities abroad were linked to the skidding exchange rate.

The foreign gold is being bought by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at approximately the price being paid by FRC for domestic newly mined metal.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced that since October 16, $93,000,000,000 has been loaned to closed banks for distribution to depositors.

The deposit liquidation board was formed on that date and Jones said that it soon will have the state committees completed.

London dispatches told of a mysterious sale of 300,000 pounds in bar gold.

Authorities are surrounding their operations with greatest secrecy lest speculators profit.

Officials fixed the price of domestic newly mined gold at $32.84 an ounce, 17 cents higher than on Saturday and 38 cents greater than the London quotation after turning it into dollars at an exchange rate of $4.92 1-2 to the pound, a low mark reached in today's dealings. The dollar closed at $4.90 3-4.

London bullion quotation in British currency decreased by 6 and one-half pence.

Child Killed—

dodging another car, when the truck, traveling eastward, hit him. The body was taken to Stahler Funeral home in an ambulance.

Mr. Adams is the owner and operator of the Roundup Gin, 18 miles west of Lubbock, and was at his gin at the time of the accident.

The Adams family lived in Littlefield a number of years, Mr. Adams being one of the owners of the Farmers Gin, until about a year and a half ago, when they moved to Lubbock.

Robert was the youngest of eight children.

Funeral services were conducted at the Church of Christ, at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. Liff Sanders, after which the body was brought to the Littlefield Cemetery for burial, interment being at 3:30 P. M.

Besides his parents, the child is survived by four brothers and three sisters, Richard of New York City; Sam P.; John, Era Dell, Dona Lou, George, Lala Ruth, and Bobby Gene, all at home.

Littlefield was shocked and grieved at learning of the death of the child, who was known and loved by a large number of the citizens of this city. The sympathy of the entire city goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Adams and family in their sad bereavement.

on her way to that city at the time of the accident.

Buster Roberts of Crosbyton, a passenger in the touring car, suffered cuts about his face caused by glass from the windshield of the car in which he was riding. He was also taken to the West Texas Hospital for treatment.

Both automobiles were badly wrecked, the front wheels on the Spinks car being broken from the chassis.

Mr. Spinks said Wednesday that Mrs. Spinks was resting easy, and he believed getting along as well as could be expected.

TURKEY MARKET OPENS; LOCAL DRESSING PLANT IN OPERATION

The turkey market opened Saturday last, November 11, with No. 1 turkeys selling at ten cents per pound. No. 2 turkeys six cents; and Old Toms seven cents.

According to local produce dealers, No. 1 turkeys are selling for 2 cents over last year's market, as the turkey market opened at 8 cents for Thanksgiving in 1932.

The local turkey dressing plant located in the Bellomy building, and operated in connection with the Littlefield Poultry & Egg company, is now in operation in charge of Barney Wilson, of Lubbock, who will be in Littlefield for the next two weeks.

A large number of turkeys are being handled by the local plant, which ship the birds to New York and other eastern markets.

When discussing the quality of 1933 birds, Mr. Wilson said they were the "regular run of Thanksgiving birds."

About fifty turkey pickers are now employed by the Littlefield Dressing Plant, but it is expected that about 100 will be required to carry out the work during the last rush days before the market closes, which is expected to be about Saturday.

According to the manager of the plant, this company paid the farmers of this trade territory around $11,000.00 for turkeys last year, and expended about $500 to pickers for their services during the turkey buying season.

Cast of 500 Used in Picture Coming To Palace Theatre

One of the largest casts of the year went into the making of the Warner Bros. picture, "The Mayor of Hell," the juvenile edition of "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," starring James Cagney, which will be featured at the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight and Sunday afternoon.

Some five hundred men, women and children, all playing bits and principal roles, were used in this stirring story which deals with a dramatic fight against graft and corruption in a boys' reform school.

Approximately 350 young boys between the ages of 12 and 16 worked throughout the making of the film as inmates of a reform school, at which the treatment is worse than that of some of the chain gang camps. A number of these youngsters play roles equal in importance to those of the adult players. Among the young boys assigned outstanding parts are Frankie Darro, Farina, George Offerman, Jr., Sidney Miller, Mickey Bennett, Raymond Borzage and Ch. Cane. The leading feminine role in picture was given to Madge E. who appears for the first time opposite James Cagney. The rare edity of Allen Jenkins is given opportunity in another prominent. Other screen favorites who have of importance include Dudley Dig Arthur Byron, Sheila Terry, R Barrat, Harold Huber, Dorothy P son, George Pat Collins, Edwin well, John Marston, William V. M Charles Wilson, Hobart Cavans and George Humbert.
