Constructive legislation of real benefit to the people. For example, the hot check law which he authored and sponsored as representative. Today this law protects the average citizen of Texas from ruthless swindlers.

Today, the aged people, the destitute and under-privileged children the needy blind, and teachers' retirement obligations have not been taken care of, claims Mr. Allison. His record proves, Mr. Allison points out, that he voted and actively supported all efforts in the last legislature for immediate payment of these social security obligations. Allison declares that as state senator he will continue to support all reasonable, adaptable and fair plans that will pay the social security bill.

He favors an increased truck load limit for Texas. "The present 7,000 pound limit is discriminatory and inadequate, and prevents the small trucker from making an honest and decent living upon the money he has invested," Allison declares. "The present law also hinders the best interests of our agricultural pursuits—such as the marketing of products by the farmer and rancher. I shall continue to work and vote for an increased truck load limit in Texas, as I have on every occasion as your Legislator."

The citizens of Texas have long wanted to know just where and how their tax dollars are being spent. "For that reason," Allison declares, "I am for a publication law requiring that records showing disposal of public funds in city, county and state offices, be published at regular intervals in local newspapers; so the people may know how their tax dollar is being spent."

As State Senator, Allison promises to favor an occupation tax to protect "our small towns against peddlers and fly-by-night businesses that drain money from our people without contributing one penny to the financial welfare of the community, its schools or institutions."

"One of my first concerns," as your State Senator, "Allison declares," shall be to take action that would assure this district of adequate rural aid money. In this respect I will support any measure that will give our West Texas counties their just apportionment of rural school aid money and relieve discrimination against this district that has been practiced in the past."

No man should be allowed to walk through the door to the Texas Senate Chamber who is not in harmony with, and working for the best interests of labor and agriculture, Allison declares. "I favor legislation that sponsors, gives encouragement to, supports and fosters improvements in labor and agriculture," he announces.

"Sound economy in government shall be my watchword as your State Senator," he promises. "Our State needs proper administration and men in the legislative halls with backbone enough to fight for the people's rights without regard for their own personal interests or desires."

Allison asks a natural promotion from Representative to State Senator, in order that he may render an increased service. "I pledge that my efforts and actions will always be governed by the will, problems and needs of the citizens of my district," Allison announces.

A Vote For Alvin R. Allison Is A Vote For A Progressive, Forward-Thinking Young Man, Well Qualified by Years Of Experience To Render Outstanding Service To The 30th Senatorial District.

FASHION for today

PATRICIA DOW

NEW VERSION

Here's a new version of an extremely popular fashion for large women, the basic frock with front panel cut high at the waistline. For all its simplicity, this dress has real distinction, and 8631 is delightfully slenderizing. Darts on the shoulders and gathers above the high waistline create just enough fullness to make the bodice fit perfectly—and not a bit more! The skirt is slim-hipped, with moderate flare at the hem, the shoulders beautifully smooth.

The deep V of the neckline is becoming because it accents the slimming effect, and it's fun to wear because you can accessorize it differently, edging it with a soft frill or using clips, flowers or brooches. Make it of rayon jersey, flat crepe, chiffon or georgette.

Pattern No. 8631 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52.

Pattern 8727—Perfect to put on and wear right now in flat crepe, silk print or spun rayon, this beautifully cut shirtwaist fashion will be a cool delight on the hottest days of summer. 8727 will look crisp and fresh, in striped linen, polka dot silk or brilliant white sharkskin. And it will feel comfortable and unhampering, because the lines are so simple and free. The bodice can be fastened with three buttons and turned back in narrow, deep revers, or buttoned almost to the throat, with shallow revers.

Pattern No. 8727 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42.

Morton Man—

...Lake, eight miles southeast of Lubbock.

Burial took place in Morton Cemetery immediately following the services.

The body reportedly had been under water one and one-half hours when recovered. All efforts toward revival were futile.

Lubbock fire department and Sanders ambulance were at the scene when rescuers, working with grappling hooks, finally found the body in the main swimming pool near the "spinning top."

According to H. B. Balkar, 23, also of near Morton, who had accompanied Ward and Miss Jewell Compton, 22, also of Morton, to the lakes, and who were witnesses to the accident, the following were the details:

The trio had rented a boat at the row boat house near the upper portion of the lower lake, then rowed to the body of water near the lower dam where a majority of the swimming is permitted.

There had been a heavy rain at the lakes late in the afternoon and no other swimmers were out, so boat-house attendants had turned off lights shining out over the pool.

Balkar said that Ward and he decided to take a dip, did so and had been swimming only a short while when he (Balkar) suggested the two swim out to the raft, approximately 50 yards into the center of the lake from the "top" dive once or twice, then go home.

Upon reaching the raft, Balkar said he immediately missed Ward and shouted back to Miss Compton, who had remained on shore instead of going swimming, only to find that Ward had not come ashore.

Life guards and attendants were notified and the search started.

Ward, who was a graduate of Morton High School, and who had lived in this area for "12 or 14 years," is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Ward of six miles southeast of Morton, three sisters, Mrs. Boyd Willis, Mrs. Raymond Standifer and Mrs. Harley Ward, all of Morton, and two brothers, Edgar and Kermit, also of Morton.

The victim was an employe of the Continental Oil company in Morton.

...ward, was the publisher. Tom Dillon, who could cuss more effectively than any editor we have ever known, and we have known some real artists along that line, was the editor. George Akerson, who, like Fred Murphy, has gone to his reward, was the Tribune's ace political writer. George afterwards became one of Herbert Hoover's secretaries, when Mr. Hoover was President. Resigning that position, George lined up with the movie interests as sort of a Washington trouble shooter.

Most of the foregoing paragraph is by way of a back ground for what we are about to tell you. As we recall the events of those days, Minnesota had a farm problem and Fred Murphy believed the solution for the farmers' ills was "The Cow, the Sow, and the Hen." In other words, more intense diversification. Figuratively speaking, the members of the Tribune staff ate, worked and slept with "The Cow, the Sow and the Hen."

How times do change! In those days the idea was to produce; nowadays the farmers get a check for slowing down.

The western story magazines publish column after column of letters from sailors on the seas, from cowboys on the range, from lonely girls on the farms, from rosy cheeked lassies from the heather hills of Scotland, and from chic, ultra modernistic feminine thrills from the efficiency apartments of "Nu York," all wanting pen pals. They all say that they are lonely; that they just love to receive and write letters. Away, away, away; we don't need any pen pals; we get enough mail every day to thrill several movie stars.

Signs Bill Authorizing 70% Increase In Naval Strength

prompt action to begin construction of the greatest fleet in history was promised Saturday after President Roosevelt signed a bill authorizing a 70 percent increase in naval strength.

Within the past 40 days, officials pointed out, construction has started on 92 vessels previously authorized, thus clearing the way for immediate negotiations on contracts for the first of 200 combat vessels to be added to the fleet under the new act.

Completion of those 200 vessels, scheduled for 1946 or later, the United States will have a "two-ocean" navy of 701 fighting ships of 3,547,000 tons.

The record-shattering armada will outweigh today's combined tonnage of Great Britain and Japan, the two other principal sea powers. Funds to begin construction of 200 new vessels were not provided in the bill signed today, but $178,000,000 appropriation is included in a $936,176,540 bill on which a House committee was scheduled to commence hearings Monday.

Hearings were scheduled to start next week also on President Roosevelt's request of July 10 for $4,171,957 in appropriations and contract authorizations for the navy and navy to assure "total peace" for the United States.

The Movie Making Contest to be held at the 1940 State Fair has already attracted nation-wide publicity. Stories on this first contest making moving pictures ever held in the southwest, having been in two National magazines.

Perhaps Your Car Has Right Motor Number To Win New Auto

The one-millionth 1940 Chevrolet car built in the United States has left the line at the division's Flint assembly plant, exactly one month after No. 900,000 was produced, and only three and two-thirds months after No. 600,000.

Coincidentally with its completion, M. E. Coyle, general manager, announced that the car marking this major production milestone is being set aside, to be awarded to the winner of a nationwide contest conducted between now and August 31. The object of the contest is to locate the Millionth Chevrolet Six produced after the introduction of the valve-in-head Chevrolet Six, in 1929.

Production records show that the Millionth Chevrolet Six—as distinguished from the Millionth 1940 model just built—left the assembly line in 1929. Whether or not it is in use today is, of course, unknown. If the contest fails to reveal the actual Millionth Six, the owner of the first Chevrolet passenger car, which was built after production of that unit, and which is entertained in the contest and conforms to the conditions thereof, will be adjudged the winner. Motor number, as obtained from the manufacturer's records will be the basis for decision.

Search for the Millionth Six will be conducted through Chevrolet dealers, all of whom are being furnished with official entry blanks. All cars entered must have been acquired by their present owners, and licensed for passenger car operation, prior to July 12, 1940, and entry blanks, to be mailed before midnight August 31, must bear the signature of a Chevrolet dealer in certification of the data set forth regarding the car. Employees of General Motors, Chevrolet, their advertising agencies, are not eligible to compete, nor are members of these employees' families. The official winner will drive his or her entry to the New York World's Fair making the trip as the guest of Chevrolet, and exchanging the old car for the one-millionth 1940 model, which will be on display in the General Motors Building at the Fair prior to that time.

ATTENTION—FORMER RESIDENTS OF HILL, JOHNSON, ELLIS, NAVARRO, BOSQUE, HAMILTON AND ERATH COUNTIES

There will be an old-fashioned get-together, reunion and picnic for the ex-residents of the above named counties at Buffalo Springs Lakes near Lubbock, off the Slaton Highway on Saturday, August 3, 1940. Every ex-resident and his family in West Texas is invited to come, bring a well-filled picnic basket, and all will have dinner on the ground together. There will be no charges for the use of Buffalo Lakes premises for you on this day, and this old-fashioned picnic will not be commercialized in any way. Every citizen and his family in West Texas formerly living in one of the above named counties is most cordially invited to come with a basket, renew old acquaintances and make new acquaintances in the old-fashioned way.

There will be no formal program in the morning from 9:00 'til 12:00 those who come will visit with each other and swap stories of their past from Central Texas. From 12:00 'til 2:00 the Committee hopes that an old-fashioned dinner on the ground may be spread out for 2 or 300 yards and the families of all ex-residents can partake of the fried chicken, cakes and pies of their neighbors in days gone by. In the afternoon from 2:00 'til 5:00 there will be swimming and boating for those who desire. There will be old-fashioned speaking (non-political) from pioneer ex-resident citizens from these counties. The general theme of the speaking will be a recounting of past history in Central Texas and what such ex-residents of these counties have done and are doing in the progress of West Texas.

As soon as you see this notice you ex-residents of these counties appoint yourself as a committee of one, or more, to see that every ex-resident comes to this old-fashioned picnic on August 3, 1940, all day, at Buffalo Springs Lakes near Lubbock.

If you desire any further information about this reunion, please write, J. Y. Boyd, County Auditor of Lubbock County, at the Lub-levelland Tuesday.

Mr. Raymond and Eugene Gerik and Walter Lupton made a business trip to Lubbock Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wotipka and family and Mr. and Mrs. Eby Wotipka visited their mother, Mrs. Mary Wotipka in Slaton last Sunday.

Lamb County Leader Gives Outstanding Service To Citizens Of This Area

Had you ever stopped to think that your county newspaper is the only reporter and interpreter in the world of what's happening among friends and neighbors?" asks the Liberty County News.

"The daily newspapers," continues the Liberty County News, "have little time or space for the various towns and communities. . . . The radio is not concerned with the Devers school or Hull-Daisetta churches or Dayton's new homes or Cleveland's bank deposits or Tarkington Prairie's crop conditions.

"Thus the only way for you to learn 'how the cow ate the cabbage' right in your own neck of the woods is to read your home-county newspaper."

The Liberty County News concludes the editorial with the statement:

"The Liberty County News is largely news of YOU. And that means it is readable, interesting, informative. If you don't believe it, borrow your neighbor's copy next week and learn the names of the in-laws and other relatives that were visiting him all day Sunday."

The statements of the Liberty County News are true of all progressive weekly newspapers. In your own county, the Lamb County Leader exerts a special effort to cover the news of the county . . . to give you accurate information on all happenings and particularly news which is of special interest to the farm residents.

In the past few years, news of the government's farm program, in its many phases, has assumed an importance that at one time was occupied only by the strictly local news of all parts of our county. Farm program news today occupies a position possibly exceeding local news . . . it is national news of a local character . . . a kind of news that vitally concerns each and every one of us, whether we live in the cities of our county or are actually engaged in agricultural activities.

The Lamb County Leader brings to you a weekly survey of the news . . . local, state, national and international. Few newspapers other than the large daily publications render you such an outstanding service as your Lamb County Leader.

The subscription price of the Lamb County Leader is only $1 per year in Lamb and adjoining for such a small outlay. We invite you to subscribe for the Lamb County Leader at your earliest convenience, or . . . if your subscription has expired, we will greatly appreciate receiving a renewal subscription. That Nagging Backache
 May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
 Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
 You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
 Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

There Shall Be No Hunger Here

Since the dawn of history hunger and the fear of hunger have driven men to war. And nations have had to have food to defend themselves. No nation has ever been so secure in its supply of food and fiber as America is today. Never has a nation been given such a guarantee of abundance as that assured the United States by the American farmer.

America's granaries are full to overflowing with food and fiber, for America has the Ever-Normal Granary that stores the abundance of fat years against any possible scarcity in the lean years. The Ever-Normal Granary is on millions of farms, in thousands of roadside bins, and in countless elevators and warehouses.

Wheat and corn and cotton to feed and clothe the multitudes are there. Three times the normal supply of wheat has been put into this storage, and added to the new crop it gives us more than a billion bushels for the coming year—half again as much as we would normally consume.

The Ever-Normal Granary for corn holds three times the usual carry-over and the corn means pork and lard, beef and mutton, milk and butter, poultry and eggs.

If there were a cotton crop failure, we should not go without because the Ever-Normal Granary now has more than a full year's supply.

The American farmer is the most efficient on earth and he now has the most efficient storage system on earth. America's bursting bins of food and fiber are the farmers reply to the bursting shells in Europe. Come what may, the American farmer with his Ever-Normal Granary is ready for the defense.

Next Year's AAA Program To Urge Soil Conservation

Next year's AAA program will continue emphasis on soil conservation, give increased opportunity for adapting the program to fit individual farm requirements and provide features that strengthen the Ever-Normal Granary program of balanced abundance and production.

These were the recommendations of the National AAA Conference, held in Washington, D. C. according to George Slaughter, chairman of the state AAA committee, who attended the conference as one of the Texas representatives.

It was pointed out at the conference that farmer recommendations for strengthening the Ever-Normal Granary and for more conservation are an important contribution for the national defense, the chairman declared.

Several new soil-building practices have been recommended, he continued, and expansion of the grant-aid plan, under which farmers receive advances of lime, superphosphate and other materials necessary for conservation against payments earned under the program, was endorsed. Recommendations also were made to extend special wind erosion control programs to a larger area in the Southern Great Plains.

Special suggestions were outlined for improving the handling and storing of crops in the Ever-Normal Granary.

Specific recommendations of importance to Texas included the following:

Allotments: (1) That no payments be made on "New farm" cotton allotments. (2) That allotments on farms consisting of newly developed or cleared land be limited by state committees to make them relatively smaller than allotments on nearby "old farms" where substantial adjustments are being made by old growers.

Crop classification: That fall sown oats in areas subject to serious water erosion during the winter months and where there are no locally adapted biennial or perennial winter cover crops be classified as a non-soil-depleting crop.

Orchards: That practices be adopted, featuring maintenance of permanent cover in irrigated orchards and vineyards, contour irrigation on sloping vineyards and orchards and contour planting of fruit and nut trees.

Commercial vegetables: That, as in 1940, commercial vegetable allotments be established in counties designated as commercial counties. That this designation apply to counties in which more than 400 acres of commercial vegetables are normally grown on farms producing more than three acres. Upon recommendation of the state committee the allotment may be omitted in the state and a vegetable limit placed on farms having other crop allotments. In such areas no payment would be made directly on vegetables. Commercial vegetables would include perennial as well as annual vegetables, with processed crops classified as vegetables under the program unless it is determined that they are not in competition with fresh vegetables.

Crop insurance: That the crop insurance program be extended to other commodities, such as corn, cotton and tobacco, as soon as the necessary actuarial data and legislative authority are available.

THE AMHERST METHODIST CHURCH

Many people are complaining at the fate of fortune, and say that there are no breaks now. There are opportunities as used to be. It is true with both all ages of men and youth. But did our fathers get all the breaks then? True, they did not have to work, our physical frontiers were expanding. It seemed to people all had a more nearly chance to carve out their fates, and have a greater share of the desirable things of life.

What of the fields open and demands for help these days? There is no demand for labor or it is a demand for a well equipped worker? Once the tide and maybe drift into a place to make a living, more or less. Many of the drifters filled places for which they were not suited, they were not satisfied where they were, their employers were not satisfied with them, but both due to circumstances tolerated the situation.

places of the work and it has been found that the greatest percent of people are in places they detest and were it not just for a matter of food, clothes and shelter, and meeting the weekly installments they would quit tonight. How few people here are that go to their work of mornings with the relish they quit at night.

Pastors, teachers and churches are forces that should study and consider this matter and help people solve these vocational or occupational problems. Sure, machinery has supplanted the laborer who is untrained, but the trained man will always be needed. A machine cannot think and devise new methods and plans. Of course the person who is deprived of a chance for school and training is placed at a great disadvantage.

But there are a lot of ways for one to go to school if there is the willingness to pay the price. After one gets into school and shows that there is a tenacity possessed that knows no defeat—many times help will come. We have that demonstrated here at Amherst, and a thousand cases at Texas Tech at Lubbock. But one should remember that this life preparation, nor life itself is no pink tea affair.

Parents, teachers and schools, what are we doing to help the youth find themselves, and to find a place for them in rocky ways of livelihood? Vacation is rapidly passing, where are we, and are we preparing to be strong and of good courage and be prepared? This is a time of much unemployment, but Roger Babson says there are always from five to six million people in this nation that will never work at any time and at any kind of a price. Many are very unfortunate today in that they cannot find a place but their sad fate should be a spur in the sides of others to do their best to avoid this crisis. And as time goes on we do not look for conditions to improve very much very long.

Do your best and keep at your best and no man is at his best out of Christ and the church.

COTTON CROP REPORTED NORMAL AND AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

J. Sam Lewis, in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Sunday, gave the following report on the crops in the Plains section:

Hot weather and a moisture shortage that is general in July has taken a heavy toll of South Plains grain sorghums and the crop is in all stages from two or three weeks old to "in the head" stage. Reports indicate that signs of deterioration are evident in most sections, due to hot, wilting winds that have sapped moisture content of the soil.

Cotton, on the other hand, is standing the weather better. Like sorghums, cotton has a wide range from plants several weeks old to in the boll stage.

Sorghums on the sandy soil are said not to be hurting as much as those on tighter land. On the heavier type of soil wilting is more apparent. Much of the crop is in the "boot" or "dough" stage, a critical time when moisture is needed.

Comparatively little rain has been reported over the plains since early in the month. Sub-soil moisture content was generally below normal at the beginning of the month. What rain has come this month has, as is the custom, been rather spotted.

Cool nights the past week or ten days have aided in slight revival of plants.

Early feed at some points has been affected more than the late feed. Irrigation farmers are watering their crops and these appear to be in good shape.

No late reports of insect trouble in cotton have come. Apparently June insect infestation has passed the danger point.

K. N. Clapp of Anderson, Clayton & Co., estimates that the greater part of the cotton acreage is "normal" with much of the early planted cotton offset by late plantings, due to crops being washed out late in June and, in a few instances, early July.

Generally, cotton is slightly ahead of last year and of normal at this time. Some picking may begin after the middle of August, but general picking will not start probably until September.

Cotton acreage allotted to the 22 acres in Lubbock's area represents 1,446,000 acres; general or feed acreage, 2,102,000; neutral or government, 1,645,000, and wheat, 1,050,000.

Total tilled acres is 6,234,000. Most of the entire allotment is in crop this year.

Wallace May Be Succeeded By Marvin Jones

Reports from Washington Saturday indicated that Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace would resign to campaign actively for the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket.

Wallace, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, reportedly would be succeeded in the cabinet by Marvin Jones of the House agriculture committee. Strong bipartisan congressional support for the appointment already has developed.

Make Effort To Complete Assembly Of God Church

An effort is being made to complete the Assembly of God Church at Morton. The frame work is up, and contributions are being taken to stucco and wallboard it.

Mrs. A. L. Dishman of 18 miles northeast of Morton and Mrs. M. A. Tanner of 8 miles northwest of Morton were calling on merchants in Littlefield Friday for donations toward completion of the church building.

As this is a very worthy cause, and the church has not the means to go ahead and finish their church building, any contributions from the public will be gratefully received. Anyone wishing to donate to this cause may send to either one of these ladies, or to the Assembly of God church, care of the Leader.

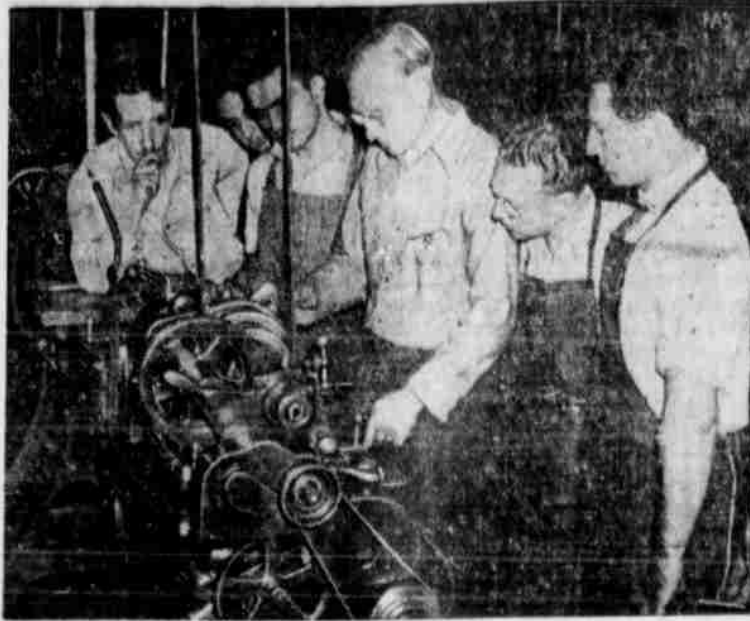

Pledges Himself To Carry Out Every Campaign Promise

KIRBYVILLE, Texas, July 24—Standing within sight of his birthplace, Jerry Sadler, candidate for Governor, pledged himself to carry out every campaign promise he has made during the campaign.

"I was born here, and was raised in East Texas, by God-fearing parents who taught us that we must keep our word," Sadler said. "I made you promises two years ago when you elected me to the Railroad Commission. I have carried out those promises. I have cut the cost of the commission, I have helped to lower the Class Freight Rates of this State.

"As your governor, I make this same pledge. I have promised to veto any sales tax laid on my desk; I have promised to aid in the passage of taxation on oil, gas and sulphur to pay old age pensions, aid for the blind, and aid for dependent mothers and children; I have promised to adjust our present Franchise Tax laws so that the charge for doing business in this state will be equally divided and to create thereby a fund to match Teachers Retirement funds; I have promised to restore the Labor Department to the laboring man and take it from the direction of an employee for an utility company.

"All of these promises I have made, and I pledge you, my fellow Texans to carry out each campaign promise. You will have no alibis from Jerry Sadler."

Sadler will close his campaign in East Texas, where he rapidly rose from an oil field laborer to owner and refiner and where he burned the midnight oil to become a lawyer and from thence to enter on a successful political career.

Options on two tracts of land are now being considered by the California office, and it will be known within the next few days whether present plans will materialize now or at a later date. However, it is thought that the company will locate at Sudan within the next few weeks.

Options were let on 110 acres owned by George Springer and between 60 and 70 acres owned by P. E. Boeson. Both tracts are located east of town along the Santa Fe right-of-way.

CHAPTER IV SYNOPSIS

Rollins tennis ace, is torn between two desires. He dreams of Europe to help win the Cup for America, and he is with the rich Grace Worth who is willing to dofy her tennis. Fate takes a hand and he injures an ankle so severely that the doctors say he can't play again. He gets a job at Len's sporting goods shop and Grace will stand up for him. But on a Tuesday evening Grace decides to meet Len at the store, only to have a man open the door of the shop.

like you hanging around tennis places," she said brokenly. "It is the only thing I ask, but that doesn't seem to make any difference. First thing you know, instead of two nights a week it'll be four." He laughed unconvincedly. "That's utterly ridiculous, darling. My ankle wouldn't permit it, even if I did want to play that many times in one week." "Then you do admit that if your ankle could stand it you'd be out more often, playing tennis? If your ankle should ever become normal I wouldn't mean that to you." She snapped two slim fingers weakly. He laughed. "I'll show you how much it means to me. Tomorrow I'll tell Mr. Richmond I'm through. You don't think I care particularly donned his familiar white clothing all the tense, familiar excitement returned. He practiced with the three other men of the company whom Durkins from upstairs, the manager, had chosen for the team. It was, as he had been sure it would be, mere child's play compared to the competitive game he had known. It was not necessary for him to move around much and the ankle took practically no punishment. Darkness finally came and the session was over. In the locker room they discussed the first league matches which were to be played Sunday. "With you, Rollins," Durkins offered, "we should have no trouble at all taking them. For that matter, we ought to clean up the whole league. The cup's as Tomorrow I'll tell Mr. Richmond I'm through.

Mr. Rollins working late?" asked. "I'm Mrs. Rollins. He had finished an hour ago." She gazed at her out of pale, a puzzled expression on his face. "Working? No, no one is working here, Ma'am. No one at all. I was comin' in when he went out. He went home." "What time was that?" "Five-thirty. I come at five every day." "Thank you," she said, panic in her eyes, and turned abruptly

The cab had to stop for three lights, but at last it braked to a halt before the building. She thrust some money at the driver, ran through the hall up the four flights of stairs, unlocked the apartment and fell on the inside of the hall door. The radio was playing. "Len," she cried out in relief, "how have you been?" "His voice was icy cold. How have you been? You at least have left a note to say you'd be late. I've been wasting my time worrying about

Why," she stammered. "I was went for a walk. What time you get home?" "What time did I get home?" "Like, his concern over her expressed itself in anger. He was hungry. "What time I always get home when I work something snapped inside her. Rollins," she returned even her breathing nearly normal. "don't stand there yelling at me like that. And furthermore, I keep on telling me lies. I want to meet you. Where were you?" "I took a step forward. "So like that," he stormed. "It's the point where you're on me. Well, I won't do you hear? I won't do it."

"Very well," she said softly. She crossed the room in long, slow steps, shut off the radio. He meant to let go the way he had complete control of him. But the combination of her absence and Grace's discovery of his deception had led him to lose his temper. He wanted to retract his words but it was too late. He was crying—and it was all

Stop crying," he said gently. "Forget all about it." "You lied to me," she managed between sobs, "you lied to me."

"Oh, it really wasn't a lie; honey, it wasn't Grace. Sit up and your eyes and I'll tell you all about it. It wasn't really a lie," he repeated with some heat. "I'm going to tell you that, but you don't listen. I had an opportunity to earn a little extra money— I took it. I didn't tell you anything about it because I wanted it to be a surprise." "You see, Mr. Richmond, he's very wealthy sportsman—has a car, and he asked me to give him Bob some tennis lessons. I agreed to talk to you about it before, but then I figured I'd take this job I could give you anything you want." He paused, and at her bent head hopefully. "You know very well I don't about hanging around a damp, bare armory after work, do you? I much prefer coming home here to a good dinner." "Couldn't you," she asked with a wan smile, "have said come home here—to me?" "Inquisition. That's exactly what I mean. Home here—to you." She raised her lips to his. "I—I suppose we're all made up now, aren't we? And tomorrow you'll tell Mr. Richmond?" She snuggled closely to him. "Yes. Tomorrow I'll tell him."

Len gave up instructing young Richmond. But with the arrival of mild weather he faced a new and more difficult problem. The men at Talbot's wanted him to play on their tennis team in the business league. He was undecided for days whether or not to speak to Grace about it. He didn't dare play without telling her, and he was afraid that when he mentioned it she would object. But finally at the theater one evening—it was Grace's birthday—he corralled his courage, and did.

The curtain fell on the first act and they went out to the lobby to smoke. "Gracie," he began, after they had discussed the play, "they have organized some sort of industrial tennis league at the shop." He paused, cleared his throat nervously. "The men at Talbot's asked me to play with their team. I told them," he spoke slowly, trying to keep his voice indifferent, "that I wasn't interested; that I was busy."

She sighed. "How often will you have to play?" "Once a week. On Sundays." "And it won't hurt your ankle?" "No, I'm sure it won't." "Will you promise that if we ever have something important to do or somewhere important to go you won't feel you have to play?" "Surely. There's no obligation. You know I wouldn't let it interfere with anything important." "All right, then." She knew it would be useless to forbid him to play. After a year of marriage to Len Rollins she realized fully that he had only one interest outside her and his work—tennis. And that was all right. Tennis as a hobby was fine. As a life work, which he once considered it, it was all wrong.

The nearest courts were those on Riverside Drive not far from where Len and Grace lived. As he good as ours right now." The others heartily agreed. Johnson looked across the bench which separated them, admiration and a little awe in his face. When they left Durkins gave each of them a copy of the season's schedule. "So you'll know when and where we play," he explained. Len put his in his pocket, bade them good night and went home.

He arrived at the apartment in high spirits, his body suffused by a slight, but contented tiredness. "What's wrong?" he asked Grace, who was unusually silent during the evening. "You don't appear very chipper. Feeling all right?" Her answer was, "I saw Mother today. They've made the first move toward reconciliation. They've asked us both out for the week end."

He frowned. "You know I don't get off until ten on Saturday night." "Couldn't you possibly get the afternoon?" "I'll ask." "If it can't be arranged we'll leave early Sunday morning." "Sunday, Sunday." "Mind if I speak frankly, Gracie? I don't want to go. I'd feel uncomfortable after the way they have been acting toward me and about our marriage. It's only natural, I suppose, and I don't hold any resentment against them. Just the same I'd feel out of place, embarrassed."

"I see," her voice was soft and small. "I—I suppose you're perfectly right from your point of view, but I thought that for my sake perhaps you'd try and see it through. After all, it would be only one day." "Now," he replied, "you put me on the spot. You know I'd do anything in the world for you, sweetheart. Even go out there with you if you're absolutely set on it. But just put yourself in my place." "Yes," she said softly, evidently disappointed. "I see what you mean. We'll just forget about it. I'll make some excuse." "Now, damn it all, he was on the spot. How would he be able to make it clear to her that the matches Sunday afternoon had nothing to do with his not wanting to go out to Easthampton? It was true that he did not care to visit her family. But would she understand that or would she accuse him of wanting to stay home because of the game?"

In any case it would be foolhardy to say anything about it to Grace now. In her present mood she would not understand; she would misinterpret everything. It would be best, he finally decided, to postpone mentioning it until the last minute. It might rain. Playing then would be impossible and the situation saved all around. Yes, that was best. His mind was eased and he gave it no further thought. Friday evening they walked over to Riverside Drive to view a huge steel-gray warrior of the sea not far from where they lived, one of the Atlantic Fleet anchored in the Hudson after annual maneuvers in the South. "Mother," Gracie said as they stood at the stone wall that overlooked the river, "was really quite upset at our not coming out. I believe they're honestly sincere about accepting my black sheep into the fold." He shrugged. "I know a good way to find out. You go out there Sunday and determine their attitude. Lay your cards on the table; make them do the same. Ask them pointblank how they feel about our marriage now that we've made a success of it." Her hand pressed his arm gratefully. "If they're still horrid about it," she murmured, "I'll tell them to go to the devil and to find another daughter."

They turned back toward home. "You will go out for the week end?" She shook her head, looked up into his face. "I don't want to be away from you any longer than I Truck buyers are careful buyers—they thoroughly analyze and compare all types of trucking equipment—they want to make certain that they'll get the make and type of truck best suited to their business requirements.

It is a significant fact that more truck users choose Chevrolet than any other make of truck . . . because Chevrolet trucks could not have established their record of leadership in 1940 and maintained it for six out of the last eight years had it not been that Chevrolet trucks deliver more dollar-for-dollar value than any other make. All models and types of Chevrolet trucks may still be purchased at today's low price levels, so it would be wise to consider replacing some of your trucking equipment with new Chevrolets now.

George Ross Enjoys Plane Trip Over Texas

George Ross, of southwest Littlefield, returned Friday from a recent airplane trip throughout northern and central Texas. He accompanied his brother, C. C. Ross, of Venezuela, South America, who flew his plane up here Sunday, July 14.

Their trip began the Tuesday previous from Lubbock, their first stop being in Abilene to visit relatives. From there they combined business with pleasure and went to San Antonio. Their next stop was Corpus Christi, and from there they flew to Mission and back to Littlefield by way of an elderly uncle.

On their return trip they flew from Corpus to San Antonio and up to Austin. Then they turned northwest and came back up through Abilene again and to the airport at Lubbock.

Mr. Ross says this is not his first time up in a plane, but that it was a thoroughly enjoyable trip during which he saw many interesting sights.

His brother, Mr. C. C. Ross, has made a hobby, as well as a business asset of his flying. He has more than 600 solo flight hours to his credit, and he finds his plane invaluable in covering distances in the dense jungles and practically impassable roads of his country, where only slow river boats are available for transportation purposes otherwise.

Ben Lyman, Jr. Makes Distinguished Record As University Student

Mr. Lyman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lyman of this city, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Jeffries.

He attended the summer session at Tech College from June 6 until July 15 and made 100 in all tests, it is reported. He will enroll there at the opening of the Fall semester for the full term.

In between his college terms, he serves as a very valuable assistant in the Jeffries Grocery and Market, owned by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Jeffries, of which his father is manager.

Ben is a young man of whom Littlefield is very proud. He has a wonderful personality, and a natural gift of friendliness and courtesy which has won for him the friendship of everyone he comes in contact with.

When working in the Jeffries establishment, Ben can always be depended on to offer, with a smile and friendly greeting, every courtesy and assistance possible in his own individual and pleasing manner.

It's Great To Be An Editor ?????

By MORLEY B. DRAKE
It's great to be an editor... especially around election time! There's so much propaganda fired from every direction that an editor gets plumb dizzy... life loses all its proper and normal proportions... he thrills... then he chills... then he sits so quiet and very still... surely, he muses, there's an antidote for all our ills.

That Democratic Chicago landslide for Roosevelt et al had us all in a jitter. We sat down on the floor in front of our radio and absorbed the whole show. We wanted to march when the Hardin-Simmons Cowboy band played "The Eyes of Texas." We felt sort of kicked in the pants when John Nance didn't do so well... and we sympathized some with Jim Farley. But when we got to figuring around a little we remembered that John Nance had Texas and that Jim was figuring on going into the baseball business through the medium of at least part ownership of the Yankees. John Nance can sit on his porch down Uvalde way and smoke a cigar and Jim can lounge around in the Yankee dugout. "God Bless America!"

We didn't get so all-fired het up about the vice-presidency. President Roosevelt wanted Secretary Wallace and Wallace wasn't doing no protesting at all. We remember away back when Wallace, from I-o-wa, "where the tall corn grows," was getting a start in the political business.

Some time around those early years of Wallace's political career, we were on the editorial staff of the Minneapolis (Minnesota) Tribune and Fred Murphy, a big Irishman who has since gone to his (Continued on Back Page)

Contracts For Defense Reach Billion and Half

President Roosevelt has announced that the National Defense commission has cleared $1,661,891,494 of army and navy contracts in a little more than a month's time.

The chief executive made public commission reports which gave the nation its first detailed account of progress made in mobilizing materials, men and machines for the most extensive peace-time defense effort in United States history.

The production division of the commission alone reported that it has cleared $1,390,575,405 of contracts for the navy and $271,316,089 for the army since June 8. Later in the day, Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, announced that the total of contracts awarded by the war department between July 1 and July 13 was $401,000,000, considerably more than the amount which the production division reported clearing. The difference was accounted for by the fact the commission deals only with contracts over $500,000 each.

Another commission division, that dealing with materials, gave no figures on contract clearings, but said "substantial supplies of strategic and critical raw materials are being acquired."

Reviewing past accomplishments, the reports also made several new disclosures, including these:
