LARGE NUMBER APPLY FOR 3 CENT SUBSIDY

Will Be 3 Cents Per Pound On 60 Percent Of 1937 Base Production

Approximately two thousand farmers have made application for the three cent subsidy payment in Lamb County, according to Donald Turner, County Agent. Some seven hundred farmers have not as yet made application. These farmers are urged to come in and make application as soon as possible, whether they have received notice or not.

The payment will be three cents per pound on approximately 60 per cent of the 1937 base production, and not on the number of bales that were produced last year.

Mr. Smith will complete the necessary papers, and additional right-of-ways

New Gin Plant Is Under Construction At Amherst, Texas

Work was started this week on the construction of a gin at Amherst, on the site not far from the Melton gin, which was destroyed by fire last year. Its completion will give Amherst four gins. H. O. Sewell, now of Cordill, Oklahoma, but who last season operated a gin at Anton is supervising the construction, and his and E. L. Brooke are the owners. Parts of the plant are being moved from Oklahoma, and much of the machinery will be brand new. They expect to have the plant ready for operation by the middle of next month.

County Agent Outlines Method Of Destroying Leaf Worm In Lamb

The only poisons recommended to be entirely safe are calcium arsenate or lead arsenate. Lead arsenate is so expensive that it is impractical to use if calcium arsenate can be obtained. Either may be dusted or sprayed. If dusted, from four to six pounds should be used, depending on the size of the cotton.

If to be applied as a spray, three pounds of either material should be mixed with 50 gallons of water and kept well agitated during the application. Materials other than the above are apt to burn the cotton and should not be used.

Farmers Warned Against Harvesting Sudan Grass Or Selling In The Bundle

In a letter recently received in the County Agent's office from E. H. Holmgreen, Administrative Officer of College Station, farmers were warned against harvesting sudan grass or sweet sorghum for grain, seed, or silage, or selling these crops in the bundle to another person who might thresh or put the crop in a silo.

Mr. Holmgreen's letter in part reads as follows: "The question has been raised as to the consequences of a producer's harvesting sudan grass or sweet sorghum in the bundle and selling the bundles to another producer, who might either thresh the grain or place the stalks in the silo. "Sweet sorghum and sudan grass

LOCAL ATTORNEY DEFEATS DEAN IN ALL 5 COUNTIES

Holt, Hutson, Dent And Nichols Win County Offices

In a political race that will long be remembered for its pyrotechnical wind-up, Herbert Martin of Littlefield, defeated Charles H. Dean of Plainview, for the office of District Attorney of the 64th Judicial District. Mr. Martin carried every one of the five counties in the district by a safe majority. While the complete returns have not been officially tabulated, Mr. Martin's majority will run upward of 1200.

This is the first time that an important district office was won by a Littlefield candidate, and Mr. Martin was joyously acclaimed by his neighbors and friends of Littlefield.

One of the surprises of the runoff primary last Saturday, was the large vote cast in Lamb county. The actual vote was within a few hundred of the 4200 count recorded on July 23rd.

With the exception of the Tax-Assessor-Collector's race, the results in the county voting were very close. I. B. Holt won over J. E. Norman by a majority of over 1000 votes while Sam Hutson defeated Don Bryant by less than 200 votes for the sheriff's office; Otha F. Dent of Spring Lake was elected County Clerk over Mrs. Loyd by an even smaller margin, and M. D. Abbott was elected Commissioner of Precinct 4 winning by a small majority over his opponent C. H. Nichols.

Immediately after the county returns were filed with the County Chairman Guy Willis at Olton, they were sealed and Mr. Willis

According to Mrs. J. D. Dodgen, Supervisor, 3200 cans of vegetables were handled at the local cannery last week.

In an interview with Mrs. Dodgen Wednesday, she said: "We do wish the people would make appointments when wishing to have canning done, as so much of the vegetables are laying around and spoiling before we can get to canning them."

Mrs. Dodgen also asked the Leader to state that they were in need of help at the cannery, and that "anyone who wants to work on a percentage of one-fourth of what they can," to please get in touch with her.

Bill Chesher Tells About New York World's Fair Plans

Proceeding the regular program, at last week's luncheon of the Rotary club, President Garlington called upon E. O. McIver, president of the Chamber of Commerce, to outline the work that was being done toward securing paving on several of Littlefield's residential streets. Mr. McIver impressed upon those present, the urgency of pushing this work within the next few days. He impressed his hearers with the importance of getting the property owners to sign up for paving so that Federal aid could be secured. The time limit is about up for putting in P. W. A. or W. P. A. applications, and unless these signatures are secured by the end of the present week it will be extremely doubtful as to whether the loan can be secured.

Mr. Bills, attorney for the Lamb County Cooperative of the R. E. A., told of the $161,000 allotment which had been secured from the R. E. A. administration. He also announced that $100,000 additional had been "ear-marked" for a 100 mile extension beyond the 170 mile line which will be built with the initial allotment.

Bill Chesher, was in charge of the program. He had just returned from a business trip to New York, and regaled his hearers with a witty account of his experiences in and around Gotham.

Today's program will be in charge of Don Harris. Up to a late hour last night, he had refused to divulge the mysterious details of the entertainment that had been planned for today.

Howdy Folks:

Bill Chesher has done gone and bin up to Noo Yawk. Sezz he went up by plane. Don't seem to remember much about how he got back. Some evil minded cuss suggested that he might have come back C. O. D. He took on some loud silk sport shirts. If that's what the well dressed Noo Yawkers are wearing — give me a ticket for Omaha. He told the Rotarians all about the wonderful preparations that are being made for the World's Fair which opens next April. Sure was glad that I went to that luncheon. Might have missed the big show altogether. Did I ever tell you that I am a man who has traveled very extensively — mostly via time tables, geographies and travel talks. But don't let this stop you Bill! I just love to hear about them electric light places, especially those swell, elegant joints up in Harlem. Woss you dare Cholly?

Hollywood came mighty close to discovering another Clark Gable right here in Littlefield too. When the Palace Theatre announced a movie contest — all us gals up and voted for Paul Hyde. He was elected by an overwhelming popular vote. Just when it was time to go to Lubbock and face the camera — Paul was stricken with a severe attack of frozen ankles. I'm sure that Robert Taylor and Mickey Rooney are much relieved now that this dangerous competition has been eliminated.

There will be some very good news for the members of the Lounge Lizards Association soon. One of our leading local inventors, is at work on a new type of slot machine. It's different from the old kind inasmuch that there won't be any lever to pull after you drop your nickle in. As far as not paying out anything the new model resembles the old style of gambling machines. Our mechanical genius is studying the possibilities of having a mechanical arm and hand attached to the machine that will reach right down into the suckers' pockets and extract the nickles. Then we loafers won't even have to go to the trouble of finding our coins and pulling a lever each time.

Several of my very good friends, approached Sam Hutson the morning after he was elected, and interceded for me. They tried to get me a job as deputy something. Sam told them that I was No. 402 on the list. That's gratitude for you.

Herb Martin, has bought quite a few cups of coffee for me prior to last Saturday. I congratulated him Sunday morning — and it was right in front of Lon's place. He thanked me and all that sort of thing, but he never made a move or gesture, towards the coffee counter. Of course, I called him to one side — and told him that for the looks of the thing — he ought to keep on paying for my coffee, at least for a few months. Well sir — he shure felt ashamed that he hadn't thought about this himself. But he promptly invited a couple of us in, and promised to take care of this matter — for a period at least. I call it real good judgment.

Gerald Mann and Jerry Sadler, the unblest candidates, led the state ticket in the voting last Saturday. These two young, self-made men have certainly got the world before them. Judging by their past performances, it's a pretty safe bet that nobody is going to strike them out before they get to the plate. Meow! — that was a catty remark.

Sunnyboy Freckles blossomed out and entered the political arena last Saturday. He told me that he had been hired to pass out cards for a couple of the candidates. He wasn't exactly sure who he was working for and he had to ask the way to the polling place. Aside from these two small handicaps, he proved to be a tower of strength for somebody — I don't know who.

So long,

A GOOD INVESTMENT

In last Friday's Fort Worth Star-Telegram there appeared a very complimentary editorial on our Triple Anniversary Edition. We proudly reproduce this editorial and express our very sincere thanks to the editors of the Star-Telegram:

Triple Anniversary

"The rapidity of West Texas, development is best illustrated in the growth of one of its youngest counties and towns, Lamb County and Littlefield whose brief history, prosperous present and bright future have been described in the anniversary edition of The Lamb County Leader at Littlefield.

"Lamb County on the rich South Plains only 30 years old this year, Littlefield is five years younger and The Leader is a mere stripling of years, mature enough in ability to issue a special edition of eight sections celebrating all three birthdays. Rich in grazing and agricultural resources, Lamb County already this year has ginned 90,000 bales of cotton as an instance of the productivity of the soil. Even as late as 1923, the population of Littlefield and Lamb County, respectively, were about 250 and 1,175; today Littlefield has 4,000 residents and Lamb County 17,000.

"The special edition was dedicated appropriately to the late Maj. George W. Littlefield Austin, for whom the town of Littlefield was named and who was one of the first persons to see the great possibilities in Lamb County. The paper contains an interesting biography of Major Littlefield and articles on his benefactions both in Lamb County and at State University."

A large number of papers including the Austin Herald Reporter, the Lynn County News and The Dan News, also commented editorially, upon the "Largest Newspaper Ever Published in Lamb County." We value this recognition from these good friends.

The big Anniversary Edition was issued mainly for the purpose of publicizing the splendid progress that had been made by our city and county. The expense and efforts contingent upon seeing an issue of this kind through — rarely make such a venture profitable to the publishers in actual dollars and cents returns. However in the light of benefit to our community, we feel that this edition is amply justified our investment of money, time and energy.

No Time To Lose

For several weeks the Chamber of Commerce has been hard at work trying to put through the paving project on several of our residential streets. A number of the property owners on each street volunteered to help in the work of getting the individual owners to sign up for paving.

It is absolutely imperative that the signed applications be completed this week if any Federal aid is to be secured towards completing the paving. The one disgraceful blotch on our civic escutcheon is the horrible condition of our residential streets. Why should people build nice homes and buy fine cars so long as they have to travel through mud holes?

Everybody recognizes this condition and most of us express our lament frequently and often. Now we have a chance to do something about it and correct this condition. But it can not be put off any longer. The Federal agencies are shutting down on all applications very shortly and — unless our application is filed within the next few days, we shall simply be out of luck.

Will the people of Littlefield rally to this emergency or shall we let it pass by and cuss our streets for ever and a day?

LET'S COMPLETE THE JOB TODAY... NOW!

DAVE SCHEIN.

The New Political Party

The new "National Progressive" party which Gov. Phil LaFollette of Wisconsin and his brother, Senator Bob LaFollette, recently launched, may or may not prove to be an important factor in national politics. That depends upon things which time alone can disclose. It must be conceded, however, that this effort to set up a new party is under the direction of no political amateurs. The LaFollette brothers inherited a natural genius for politics from their father, who ran for President on his own third party ticket in 1924 and received nearly five million votes. They have had much practical experience in politics themselves, both in their home state of Wisconsin and in Washington. They know all the arts of political organization.

It seems likely, therefore, that their new party will be a factor to be reckoned with in the Presidential election of 1940. Especially will that be the case if, as has been suggested, the National Progressive Party attracts to itself the strength of the Farmer-Labor Party of the Northwest and the American Labor Party of the East, together with the personal following of Fiorella La Guardia, the Mayor of New York.

Postmaster And Family Return Home Thursday

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. T. Storey and son, David, returned home Thursday, after a ten days' vacation. Mr. Storey attended the annual State Postmaster's convention in session in Houston. They vacationed in Galveston, and returned home via San Antonio, Uvalde, Del Rio, and the Big Bend country south of Alpine. They enjoyed their trip into Old Mexico, across the border at Del Rio. They visited Mrs. Storey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Wine at Brownfield Wednesday night, returning home Thursday morning.

Continental Oil Achievement Is Described In Digest

The remarkable achievement of the Continental Oil company in developing new engineering methods which promise to effect vast savings of oil and gas in the country's oil fields is the subject of an article in the Reader's Digest for September.

Using the Continental Oil company's new Tepestate field in the State of Louisiana as an outstanding example of the new procedure, the writer describes how natural gas, at one time regarded as a nuisance by oil men, and later treated as a by-product of oil re-

Bond Elections Must Be Held Not Later Than Oct. 1

Cities which must hold bond elections to meet their part of the cost of the projects financed by the Public Works Administration were cautioned today that such elections must be held not later than October 1, 1938.

Geo. M. Bull, Regional PWA Director, said that the Public Works Administration was following the procedure of withholding allotments on projects on which elections cannot be held within a reasonable time. The October 1 date was set since if a bond issue to match a PWA grant fails, at least two weeks will be required to rescind the allotment and make a new grant to another project. All PWA projects must be under actual construction by January 1, 1939.

In some cases cities, which got early allotments for projects, have scheduled bond elections following receipt of the allotment. In other cases, bond elections are being held while the project is in the application stage. Regional Director Bull pointed out that while a successful bond election places an application in a more favorable position for an allotment that such successful bond elections do not necessarily mean that an allotment will be made on the project. Such bond elections are held entirely at the applicant's own risk, he said.

Under the 1938 PWA Act, cities and other governing units applying for PWA aid in building projects must agree to put up 55 percent of the total cost.

OLTON FLOWER SHOW

The annual Flower Show will open in Olton on Saturday, September 24. This flower show is sponsored each year by the Garden club, and some valuable prizes are being offered.

SLIM, FLATTERING LINES Pattern 8228

To put on a dress as trim and pretty as this makes you feel so good, the first thing in the morning, and 8228 will be just as appropriate if you're starting for the office as it is if you're staying at home. It's the kind of tailored frock that's flattering to everybody because it is not unduly severe. Darts at the waistline, front and back, make 8228 as slim as it should be. Make it up in linen, gingham, sharkskin or pique.

Pattern 8228 is designed for sizes: 14, 16, 18, 20; 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35 inch material, plus 5-8 yard contrasting for collar and cuffs.

Pattern 8136

This dress, designed to make large figures look less large, softens the traditional lines of the shirtwaist style with a neat round collar, scalloped closing and full wing sleeves cut in one with the smooth shoulder pieces.

The skirt is slender and straight, the waist has just a little blouse to it, and gathers to make it fit amply over the bust. 8136 is a comfortably cool design and, in cotton, will be easy to tub and press.

Tub silk, voile and chiffon are materials in which 8136 makes up particularly well. Pattern 8136 is designed for sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5 5/8 yards of 35 inch material.

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his home in Soledad. Both men are released from prison where they served sentences for unjust actions. On the train, which is carrying a large sum of money, a quick action and straight fight foils a hold-up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff tells Dave that he does not want Quinn, but Dave and Rand go to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceed on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is going poorly, being beset by debt and involved in a claim suit. Suddenly a shot from the bushes topples Dave from his horse. Rosy fires and kills the unknown assailant and they rush to the ranch to treat Dave's severe wound. Next morning, at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover Mary is now cooking for the gambler—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Quinn, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to deliver a corpse to the sheriff and the town banker. Identity of the man reveals him to be ex-convict Hammond's. Dave, Rosy and the sheriff immediately confront Hammond with facts. Fight between Hammond and Dave prevented by sheriff. Dave plans to use alfalfa on his land and use money to pay off mortgage. Someone blew up the lake. Hammond thought it was Dave and the latter suspected Hammond or his men. A chance meeting of the two gives Dave an opportunity to clear away his false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions. Rosy rushes to Winters' home to tell Mary of his suspicions about her husband and asks her help to prove his findings. Laredo evolves a scheme to arrest Crowell as a murder suspect in order to hold him for questioning.

Quinn was dealing faro when Laredo handed him Rosy's note. He got his hat and left the Free Throw, heading for Sam's place, the only place in town where a man could get a bath in hot water. He entered the shop and found Winters stretched out in the single barber chair getting a shave. Winters saw him and raised a careless hand in greeting. "Hullo, Quinn. How'd they pry you away from the faro table?" "I took the afternoon off," Quinn said. Winters laughed easily. "I was hoping you'd be there this afternoon. I was coming in and take a heap of money away from you." Something in Quinn's mind told him to be cautious. "I never turn down a game," he said quietly. Quinn smiled and said nothing. He waited a moment, then stood up. "I'll be back later, Sam." Quinn went into the hardware store, one corner of which was walled up into a large room which was the post office. Murphy was behind the wicket. "Hello, Murph," Quinn greeted him. "Has the mail for the Turner spread been called for yet?" "No, Winters got his, but he never took the rest of it." On the street again, he headed for the bank. He had come to a decision about Winters at last. According to Murphy, Mary Winters had not received the money he had mailed to her anonymously the night before, so she had not given Winters the money he now had. He entered the bank, swung open the gate and strode past the clerk to the office door marked "Private." He swung it open brusquely. Pearson was seated at a desk, pencil in hand. Quinn reached in his bill-fold and pulled out a card which he slipped carelessly on the desk in front of Pearson. The banker studied the card and his rather stern features settled into more genial lines. "What can I do for you, Mr. Quinn?" "I want to know about Winters, Mr. Theodore Winters," Quinn said. "Does he bank here? I'd like to take a look at his account if he does." "Certainly." Pearson rang a bell and the clerk entered. "See if we have a Mr. Theodore Winters banking here," Pearson ordered. "Bring me his account." The clerk disappeared and returned with a sheet of loose-leaf paper. Pearson handed it to Quinn. The gambler scanned it swiftly. "He banked twenty-five a week for three months, then stopped. That was two years ago. He was married about that time, wasn't he?" "Some time around there," the banker said. Quinn rose, "Much obliged, Pearson. I'd appreciate it if this"—he tapped his billfold—"didn't get around." "I understand perfectly," Pearson said. Outside again, Quinn hesitated a moment, then walked across to the Free Throw. He strolled through the main room to the dance hall beyond. He strolled behind the dance hall bar and gossiped with the bartender. He had idled away a half hour this way before he saw Winters come in and walk over to the faro table. Quinn caught the eye of one of the house men. "Mix around at Joe's table and see how big Winters' roll is, will you, Tom?" The house man nodded and left. In five minutes he was back. "He's got a wad so big, he can't get it in his billfold." Quinn left and walked down toward the station. At a shoe shop a few doors below the bank, he entered and was waited upon by a near-sighted and be-aproned old German. "Anybody called for a pair of ridin' boots during the last hour, Dad?" he asked him. "I mean ridin' boots, army boots." The old German shook his head. "Is there another shoe store in town?" "Dere iss a man from me four doors down who soss he rebatrs boots." Quinn thanked him, suppressing a smile, and went down the street to the other boot shop. He asked the same question of an old Mexican who assured him fluently that he had not seen such a pair. Outside again, Quinn rolled a cigarette and crossed the street to the barber-shop where he had seen Winters. Sam, the negro, was seated in an empty chair. He got up immediately, a broad grin on his face. "No, I don't want anything."

Sam." Quinn assured him, "Where's Winters' room?" A slight change came over the negro's face. "He lives on a ranch, don't he?" Sam asked. "He lives here," Quinn said quietly. The negro's mouth gaped open. "Here? He don't live here, boss. No one lives heah but me an' the missus. Upstairs." "He had slippers on, Sam." "Yassuh, Them's mine Ah give him to wear. His boots was pretty thin and he ast me to send 'em out an' git fixed while Ah was barberin' him." "Where'd you send them?" "That old Dutchman fella," Sam replied glibly. "I asked there, Sam," Quinn said patiently. "Ah sent 'em out by that littlest kid of mine. Mebbe he took 'em over to Garcia's." "I asked there too. He hasn't seen them either." The negro fidgeted nervously. Quinn regarded the negro dreamily. "Sam, where did you come from?" "Texas, Boss." "Then you've seen hard-cases hurrah the town, haven't you?" "Yassuh. Too many times." "Did you ever see one hurrah a colored man's barber shop, Sam?" Quinn regarded the black man with a slow smile, extending in his other hand a ten-dollar bill. "What about it?" Sam's hand reached slowly for the bill. "You go upstairs and turr to the right. It's the back room. Ah ain't got no key." Quinn found the stairs to his left and mounted them. The door to the room was locked. He put his shoulder to the door and broke the lock. His experienced eye noted a shoe-box that was used as a wastebasket. It was full. He dumped the contents on the floor near a window and began to sort out and smooth the crumpled pieces of paper. Half way through, he rose with a paper in his hand and went closer to the window. The letter was sent from a well-known smelting company in Tucson dated two days ago. Enclosed are banknotes as you always direct with your shipments, $893.00 in payment for twenty-seven ounces of gold, quoted at the current market, refining costs deducted. Quinn let the paper slip from his hands. "So that's it. Gold," he muttered. Putting the paper in his pocket, he glanced around the room. Cigarettes littered the floor and rug, even the dresser top. Quinn lighted a match, touched off the paper in the shoe-box and waited for it to burn down. Finished, he closed the door and him and went down stairs. Sam was waiting, his face sweating. "Boss, what am Ah goin' to tell Mistur Wintuhs when he comes in?" "Tell Winters you smelled smoke and had to break down the door to put out the fire." He gave Sam another ten. "Buy a new mirror, Sam. And just forget that I was even in here." When they awoke Dave it was by sticking a gun in his midriff. "You got the hobbles off you. Come on," Reilly grunted. "You're goin' to take a trip, Turner." Dave extended his hands to be bound. As Sayres reached out, Dave lunged for his throat, wrapping his long fingers around it, his thumbs at the windpipe. Sayres slid off the table, clutching with his big hands at Dave's wrists as Dave felt a skull-shattering blow on his head. He held on doggedly, feeling another blow on the other side of his head, and yet another, as he sank into unconsciousness. It was daylight when he regained his senses, brought back by the (Continued on Classified page)

OVER TWO THOUSAND ENROLLMENTS EXPECTED

Many New Courses Will Be Added Here

FACULTY OF 43 TEACHERS IS COMPLETE

Journalism and Industrial Arts Among New Courses

Completing their faculty a few days ago, the Littlefield School Board together with Superintendent Floyd Hemphill, made preparations to take care of what promises to be a record enrollment at the local schools when the opening bells ring next Monday morning.

Forty-three teachers have been engaged of which quite a number are new to Littlefield. This is two more than were previously employed in the local system. Mr. Hemphill explained that it was necessary to engage extra teachers because both Miss Teel and he, had done part time teaching in the past and would now confine themselves entirely to the supervision and administrative duties.

Superintendent Hemphill expressed himself as well pleased with the prospects for a most productive and progressive school year. He re-

Fifty Years of Locomotive Development

(Above)—Santa Fe Railway's new 5001-class of freight locomotives is illustrated here in contrast to the modern automobile which appears small enough to fit easily into the engine's firebox. Ten of these mammoth power units capable of 70-mile-per-hour speeds are being placed in service. Their tenders carry 20,000 gallons of water and 23 tons of coal or 7,000 gallons of fuel oil. Nickel-plated steel boilers enable these locomotives to carry a steam pressure of 310 pounds. The engine weighs 440 tons.

Fifty years ago, No. 684 was the latest thing in Santa Fe freight power. She served her heyday when freight train speeds averaged 10 miles per hour and 30 cars made a big train. Today, she is the last survivor of her class. At the Topeka shops she pulls mightily as she shoves her modern sisters, as shown above, around the locomotive shop yards. She came from the Baldwin locomotive works in 1888 just 50 years ahead of No. 5004, which represents the latest engineering developments in steam freight engines.

Dove season opens today, and oh, the fun we're going to have on hunting parties. And—to prepare for the real outdoor sport with real equipment, we'll stop by THAXTON BROS. Don't forget THAXTON'S when you start hunting. Get your license there, too.

A sprained ankle is next to red ants, mad dogs and pessimists, so I've been indisposed for the past week, and a fine lot of pals I have—no one brought me a wheel chair or a crutch.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Rogers were recent visitors in Amherst, and were guests of Mrs. C. M. McFall of the Amherst Hotel. They were returning from Amarillo, where they had attended the Will Rogers Memorial Highway Celebration. Mr. Rogers is the son of the late Will Rogers, noted humorist and philosopher.

The special Luster-Sheen process that the Evins Tailor Shop uses, removes dirt and grime without injuring the most delicate fabrics. Remember, you should have all your clothes cleaned before starting to school.

Sidelights of the election—Herbert Martin is the first Lamb County man to ever win in a race for a district office, and he is the first district candidate to carry all of the voting boxes in the district. The late Arthur P. The second largest was the vote given B. L. Cogdill four years ago.

Back To School Beauty Needs? At the LITTLEFIELD BEAUTY SALON I found, on my tours this week, that the operators create a new hairdress especially for fall and for the exciting days ahead. . . new activities, new clothes. "The Texans" To Be Featured At Palace Over This Week End

Heading a cast of thousands in the new epic of the Reconstruction days, "The Texans," is Hollywood's newest romantic team, Joan Bennett and Randolph Scott. In this story by (by Emerson Hough, who also wrote "The Covered Wagon") of the South's struggle for freedom and self-rule after the War Between the States, which will be seen at the Palace Theatre starting Saturday midnight and continues through Sunday and Monday, Miss Bennett portrays tempestuous belle of Old Dixie, while Scott has the role of the soldier-lover who tames her.

Miss Bennett is usually thought of as the fragile type, more at home in a drawing room than on the prairies, but in "The Texans," as a fire-eating daughter of the South, she goes the "Jezebels" and "Scarlet O'Haras" one better and starts a one-woman rebellion against carpet-bag rule which nearly throws all Texas into flames.

Miss Bennett is now carrying the dramatic burden of one of the first families of the American theatre. Her father, Richard, the one-time matinee idol recently retired and her sister Barbara left the screen when she married Mort Downey, the singer. Joan's other sister, Connie is now specializing in farcical

Plane For Exploration

As the Southern soldier who comes home from war to find his country in ruins, Scott has a role in which he is completely at home. He himself is a son of Dixie to the very core, born in Virginia and educated in Georgia and North Carolina. Even now he spends much of his free time in the heart of the Virginia fox-hunting country.

A part based on the life of one of the frontier's most colorful characters, Mrs. Amanda Burks, the first woman ever to drive the Chisholm Trail, is played by May Robson, "the grand old lady of the screen." Seen recently in "A Star is Born," and "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," Miss Robson now has her most "hardbitten" role as the intrepid old frontierswoman who stands up for her rights against the Union army.

Others in the cast are Walter Brennan, who, as a pioneer trapper, plays a role similar to the one he had in "The Buccaneer," Robert Barrat, Robert Cummings and Harvey Stephens.

One Hundred Men Busy Preparing For South Plains Fair

Lubbock, Tex., Aug. 29—Plenty of action can be seen at the Panhandle South Plains fair grounds, as more than 100 men, armed with the necessary tools, are busily engaged remodeling the entire site. With the new $20,000 Merchants Building virtually completed, crews of workmen started to work moving two of the older buildings, namely the Boy Scout and Women's Building. These structures are being moved into line with the new building, forming a semi-circle entrance to the grounds. A system of walk and roadways are being installed; a mile or more of new fencing erected; flowers, trees, shrubs and grass being planted, and many other new features being added that will add greatly to the beauty of the location.

One of the many changes being made this year is the laying out of a new modern parking area inside the fair grounds. Heretofore fair patrons parked their cars on the outside of the grounds, but this year all parking facilities will be inside the gates. This added facility will not make necessary "pass out or return checks" and will afford visitors the conveniences of their automobiles for resting, storage and, for those who bring their lunches, a place to eat.

With the rearrangement of the grounds, the old coin turnstile admission system will be discarded for the new and up-to-date ticket system. Fair patrons this year will purchase admission tickets before entering the grounds. Convenient ticket booths and stations will be set up with a sufficient number of ticket sellers on duty at all hours to take care of the expected increase in attendance.

Contracts were signed late last week with one of the "big names" in the rodeo world — Johnnie Mullens — formerly arena director of the Madison Square Garden Rodeos — to personally supervise the rodeo each night during the six day exposition. Mullens' seven years at the Garden, coupled with his experience at Tucson, Arizona, for 13 years, and at the Calgary Stampede for three years, plus the many other rodeos he has supervised, ranks him as one of the best in the business today. Mullens was arena director at the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial, one of the largest rodeos ever to be staged.

Mullens is shipping in at great expense a carload of his famous bucking horses that he has used at the Gardens. These "Montana Man Killers" will be ready for contestants each night. Officials state that the rodeo will be one of the wildest and woolliest, the roughest and toughest, ever staged in the southwest.

M. D. Fanning, formerly with the Southwestern Fat Stock Show and Exposition at Ft. Worth, and at one time associated with Mullens at Madison Square Garden, was elected arena secretary. Fanning is in Lubbock now, making preparations for the big time rodeo.

steady jogging of his horse. He realized his head was lolling from side to side, in the mane of his horse.

Relaxing, he let his body sway, as if he were still unconscious. He dimly realized that he was mounted on his own horse.

He knew the horse had not been unsaddled since yesterday, for it quivered its skin continually.

Reilly's thin whistling stopped suddenly and he called to Lew. The leader drew up and Dave's horse stopped willingly.

"Give us a drink," Reilly called. Dave heard him dismount. "Reckon that jasper is alive?" Lew asked.

"I dunno. I been wat'rin' him and he acks just like he was dead." "Take a look," Lew said. Reilly walked back and, seizing Dave's forelock, yanked his head up off the horse's neck.

A high, jagged-edged hog-back rose before them and Lew nosed his horse into the trail that ascended its side. The trail was narrow; to the left there was a sheer wall, to the right a long talus or wind-rift that sloped abruptly to the canyon bottom three hundred feet below.

"Wonder now, is that hoss spooky?" Lew asked. "If he is I reckon I'll let this rope go and you drive him up."

"Naw. He's dead on his feet," Reilly replied.

Lew said: "I hope so," and swung up into the sharply ascending rocky trail.

He steeled himself. "You old horse. Sorry." And he sunk his teeth in the horse's withers, ripping away a large piece of skin.

On that narrow ledge, the horse, frantic with fright and pain, started to pitch. Lew's efforts to snub him with the rope were savage but fruitless.

important era in the development of a dental health program for Texas. These first two years have been spent to a great extent in experimentation. It is important that we have men as representatives, who have some knowledge of the work and who would be better qualified to assist in carrying it on.

"For your convenience, we are enclosing a postcard for your acceptance, and earnestly ask that you sign and return it immediately for our record. The reorganization of the whole State is a big job and your prompt reply will be a great help in expediting the work. Again let us say that we do not wish to make the program burdensome, however in accepting we want you to realize that your county will depend on you for its direction and for the volume of its dental health education. This will afford you an opportunity to serve your profession and the public and we trust that you will accept the reappointment to this important office.

"Plans and instructions for the future will be sent you upon receipt of your acceptance. We are proud of the accomplishment of the past two years and hope, the aid of County Chairmen, or call on them to make progress in the ensuing year. Let us put dentistry in its proper place in public health."
