Meeting Of Local Legion Post Called

Next Monday night the present paid up membership of Richard New Post No. 301 are urged to be present at the Legion Hut to participate in the results of a successful membership campaign that will reach its peak on that date.

No records have been broken in this campaign but under present conditions a very creditable response has been the attainment for this organization's enrollment on the new year.

A gradual enrollment will follow this meeting no doubt, since many have not been financially situated to re-new to date. With the certified balances coming in at a later date this too will in all probability aid enrollment for the year.

C. W. BENGES IS CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY JUDGE

Seven Years Amherst Resident; Former County Judge
In Cherokee County

C. W. Benges of Amherst has authorized the Lamb County Leader to announce his candidacy for county judge of Lamb county.

Mr. Benges is well known in Amherst and in Lamb county, having served as druggist in Amherst drug stores for the past seven years, and believes that he is properly equipped to take care of the duties of the office he seeks.

Herewith is Mr. Benges' statement to the voters of Lamb county:

"Once upon a time, I had the honor to serve as judge of the county which was the birthplace and home of the great governors of this state, and a county named for the rugged race of Cherokee Indians, and which was also my birthplace and home until I came to Amherst seven years ago.

"While this was a great honor conferred on me by a people among whom I was born and reared, I do not speak of it in a spirit of vanity, but only to mention that I am not a stranger to the office to which I now aspire. I would be glad to serve as county judge of this great western county which derived its name from a hero and patriot who fell at the battle of San Jacinto, Lieut.
George A. Lamb. Therefore, I am making announcement to this effect:

"The county judge, by reason of his office, is at the head of the county government; he is the governor of the county, so to speak; his office, in connection with the Commissioners' Court, is the most important office in the county in that it affects the people more directly than any other. He is the presiding officer of the Commissioners' Court.
The taxing power of this court extends over every piece of taxable property in the county and reaches into every home. This court makes

New Farm Bill Expected To Pass House Friday

The new federal farm bill, proposed as a substitute for the AAA will be handed to the house Friday and it is thought a speedy passage will be made. The bill has already passed the Senate.

Supporters argued it was constitutional under the supreme court's interpretation of congress' appropriating authority in its decision killing the AAA which the soil bill is intended to replace.

The bill, introduced by Senator Smith (D-SC) as a substitute for a somewhat similar measure by Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) would authorize expenditure of half a billion dollars in federal subsidies to farmers based on their acreage of crop land, soil improving and erosion-preventing crops, changes in farming practices, and a percentage of normal production entering domestic channels.

After two years, permanent state-aid plans with the same objective would become operative in any state whose legislature approved a formula prepared by the secretary of agriculture. States could join the permanent system, however, at any time during operation of the temporary plan. No aid would be given after Jan. 1, 1938, in any state whose legislature had not adopted a plan.

Two Fires Reported; Howell Home At Enoch, Heinen Rent House of near Enoch was slightly damaged last Monday by a fire which started in the rear of the home. The fire was under control by the time the local fire boys arrived.

A rent house of W. H. Heinen just west of the Littlefield Blacksmith shop received considerable damage by a fire which started in the rear of the building on Sunday morning. Some insurance was car-which have gripped the nation. Top, is a Nebraska scene as great rotary

WORKERS ARE URGED TO ENROLL FOR WPA JOBS

Efforts Being Made To Secure Meat Inspector For Lamb County

Joe Hale, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce stated at the regular weekly meeting of the body Tuesday at noon, but few workers had reported for work on the various WPA projects now underway and it would be necessary for more men who have registered to report for work or the county would loose some of the projects that have been approved.

Anyone needing work should report to the relief office, and if eligible work will be given on the various projects. A ten day grace is given those having registered but have not reported for work, to report, or they will be taken off the relief rolls. This date is set from the time of their filing for relief.

Efforts are also being made to secure a meat and cattle inspector for Littlefield and Lamb County. The duties of this inspector would be to inspect all places where meat is sold, and served, and all cattle before being butchered to be sold to the local markets. President Pat Boone and secretary Joe Hale plan to appear before the Commissioners Court for their approval and assistance in securing the inspector.

It is thought that approximately 500 Chinese Elm trees will be purchased for planting along Highway
No. 7. These trees will be about 6 or 7 feet tall and will cost in the neighborhood of 15 cents each.

NYA Laborers To Survey The South Plains Counties

Lubbock, Tex., Feb. 19.—Fifteen South Plains counties will be covered in an archaeological survey to be made by National Youth administration laborers under the direction of Dr. W. C. Holden, professor of history and anthropology at Texas Technological college, if present plans develop. Counties to be included are: Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Hall, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, and Dickens.

The project has been approved at NYA headquarters in Austin, and work will begin as soon as expected final authorization is received from Washington, D. C. Four persons between the ages of 16 and 25 from each county will make a surface survey of this area to determine what artifacts have been found and by whom these now are owned. In a house-to-house canvas, visiting especially farms and ranches, they will record on data cards information about each article. This data will be compiled later by graduate students in anthropology at Texas Tech. An attempt will be made to secure some of these artifacts for the West Texas museum to be built at Texas Tech with Centennial funds.

Young persons making the survey must be members of families certified for relief before January 1, 1936, and must be registered with the National Re-employment service.

Spade Home Demonstration Club Notes

The Spade Home Demonstration club met February 13 at the home of Mrs. J. E. B. Roberts, but owing to the sand storm which was blowing not as many as usual were present.

Mrs. Roberts is our yard demonstrator, so each member present answered roll call with something I can do to improve the appearance of my yard.

Miss Westbrook gave an interesting talk and demonstration on, "Planning the Yard," she said, we should not set trees in a straight hard row around our places but should set them in groups. Also that the barn, feed stacks, and chicken yards should be screened off by shrubbery. We should endeavor to create an outdoor room which should be, at least partially screened off from the rest of the yard.

THE REGULATED DRIVER

Starting this month, automobile drivers in Texas will be regulated through a driver's license. To acquire one of these, unless he be a habitual drunkard or dope addict or feeble of mind, one has to take no examination and pay no cash. He merely must make application to receive his right to drive a car.

The regulation comes not in the proving of ability to drive but in the right to revoke the license and take a person from behind the steering wheel for a short time, or permanently if the nature of the offense justifies such severe action.

The power of this law will depend upon its use in the courts. The manner in which it is used depends largely upon public opinion. We must remember that in order to use the new power advantageously we must insist that the spirit of the law be followed whenever it is justified. This means that if we ourselves violate the law, we must be willing to take the consequences so that the other violators also will be subject to punishment, and the new law will be free to correct and prevent many of the evils and dangers now apparent on our streets and highways.

Big Indian Fight

Story of the Historic Dove Creek Indian Battle.
By L. D. Reed (Now Deceased)

By request I will try to describe the Dove Creek Indian fight as I was in it.

About the first of December, 1864 while Capt. Gillentine of Erath County was scouting on the upper Brazos he discovered an Indian trail which showed a big party and sent a dispatch to Capt. Fosit of the state rangers and one to Capt. Totten of Bosque county, who was senior captain of militia.

Totten gathered his forces from Bosque, Janson, Caryl, Hamilton, Erath, Comanche and Brown counties, and the men got together at Hubbards Creek, in all, 350 men, as I remember.

We went south of old Phantom Hill but in sight of the fort and took up the trail on the Brazos which led us west. We were then past all cattle herds, but there were buffalo by the thousands.

The trail crossed the Colorado above the site of Colorado town in Mitchell county. When we reached that river I got my first introduction to a sandstorm and it seems to me the worst I ever saw, and we ate supper in it.

While the Indians were camped on that river it rained and the trail from that point was very plain, showing that the body was a very large one.

From this place Capt. Totten sent a detail back after beef cattle to supply us with food.

After crossing the Colorado the Indians turned south and buffalo were very scarce.

Our next camp was on the Concho on the night of January 7, 1865. During the night a courier came in from Capt. Fosit, reporting that he had found the Indians about thirty miles from our camp, so Capt. Totten called up his men, asking that all who wanted to go should saddle up, and all who did not, could stay with the pack mules. Only twenty men chose to stay with the mules, and the company moved forward at once, leaving all the camp outfit on the Concho.

We marched all night, halting only once to draw ammunition, crossing Middle Concho about daybreak, facing a cold wind all night as I ever felt.

At sunrise we came upon Fosit and his men who were standing by their horses on the north side of a mountain. Fosit had one hundred and ten men, and we, having left twenty with the mules on the Concho, and sent ten back after beef cattle had three hundred and twenty left, making four hundred and thirty in all.

The Indians were in camp on Dove Creek with a mountain on the other side in a half moon shape, forming an island covered with a dense thicket. They had cut the underbrush and piled it around the edge of the thicket and their wigwams were in the clearing. Some very large pecan trees were scattered on the island.

One company on one side, the other on the opposite side. An Indian boy was herding their ponies about a mile from their camp.

Our march was taken up in double file, and 430 men in that shape make a long line.

We had to go around the point of the mountain, and from the point of the mountain to the creek was about one mile open valley. We didn't stop to form a line of battle but charged in that position. When the rear of the command got around the mountain the men in front were fighting. When they got to the creek they dismounted and waded the creek. The Indians had all the advantages. While I was crossing the creek I met several wounded men coming out. The Indians were concealed in the brush and it was a hard matter to get at them. Our men were falling all around, and we had orders to fall back. When we crossed back into the open valley the mountain was covered with Indians, climbing it. When we crossed the creek they came back into the brush and we never could rout them any more. I believe if we had stayed a little longer we would have had them whipped, but we never crossed the creek any more. Firing was kept up on both sides all day and several of our men were wounded after we left the brush. The Indians had the best ammunition. We had confederate powder and rawhide caps. The fight commenced about an hour by sun and lasted until late in the evening. We fell back about six miles, carrying our wounded men with us and camped. We had four Tonkaway

Indians with us, and when we got around the point of the mountain they saw the Indians' ponies in the valley. They left us and went to the ponies, killed the boy that was herding them, and brought them to us.

We had traveled all the night before, and fought all day without anything to eat, and we had nothing to eat that night. We were kept busy standing guard, keeping fires and looking after the wounded. It commenced snowing about midnight and continued to snow until noon the next day. We could not travel and were getting a little hungry. That evening Totten killed several ponies that we captured after the Tonkaways had left, but they were very poor. The next morning we started for the mouth of the Concho, carrying our wounded men and three dead men on litters. The next day our pack mules got to us but our provisions were about gone, but the next day our beaves got to us and we killed the whole herd, about thirty head. That was the best meat I ever ate, though we had neither salt nor bread.

Now I want to say a few words about the men who went back after the cattle. The detail was in charge of Rev. S. H. Powers, a Baptist preacher. They went back and gathered the cattle and followed our trail until the snow came, when they just drifted them south, holding them day and night, through all that fearful snow storm and struck our trail after we had the fight and overtook us, and there was certainly some shouting done when they got to us, for we were as hungry as a lot of men as ever faced a red man. We went on to the mouth of the Concho where we buried our dead comrades, broke up in squads and went home.

Totten took fifty men and went back to the battle ground and buried the dead. There were fifty men killed and a great many wounded.

In the fall before this there were some state rangers camped at Camp Colorado who deserted and went to Mexico. After we had the fight the Indians went on to Mexico; the deserters saw them and talked to them. They told about the fight and said they lost seventy-five men and some women and children. There was a thousand warriors in the band; it was the Pottawatomies and Kickapoos.

The fight was all uncalled for, they were beyond all settlements and were going to Mexico and were not molesting anything, and I believe that fight was the cause of so much trouble on the frontier after the war. Anyhow, Hamilton, Erath, Comanche and Brown counties certainly suffered.

The battle was fought January 8, 1865 on Dove Creek. It seems to me

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

Rehabilitation Loans Being Approved

Amarillo, Feb. 17.—Although farm lending through private channels continues to be more or less sluggish, business was brisk with the Resettlement Administration through its newly-formed regional offices here, according to Benjamin Mallory, director of the division of rural rehabilitation, who stated today that more than $200,000 had already been loaned through the local office, which began functioning about three weeks ago.

"We feel quite proud," stated Mr. Mallory, "of our showing here, as we have not completed our organization staff yet, and it usually takes quite a little time to complete a loan. But our field and regional staffs are working long hours to put as many rehabilitation loans and grants through as possible."

"Applicants for loans or grants must apply to the County Supervisor, and not the regional office. All rehabilitation loans are made contingent upon client's willingness to work out and follow a farm management plan, which will eliminate as far as possible mistakes that usually result in failure to the farmer. We feel that he can profit as much from budgeting expenses as a business man, which he should be, and that that I could hear the women and children howling for a month afterwards. This is the way a private boy saw it.

by laying out a well planned program that his chances are greatly enhanced," Mr. said. Nearly three thousand grant applications involving a half million dollars have been viewed by the Amarillo rehabilitation loans approved 284, and aggregated $100,000. Grants totalled 1,173, involving $208.

SERVICES AT RITZ

Evangelist Jno. R. Denning

A well filled house enjoyed the singing and preaching last Sunday afternoon, as Lamb county residents from practically every point of the compass joined our Littlefield friends in attendance at this service.

The night service also was well attended, and many Christians expressed their delight in the spiritual fellowship which prevailed, and their joy at the conversion of a Littlefield business man.

In addition to the many who were profuse in their thanks, the Evangelist wishes also to express his gratitude to Mr. W. J. Chesher, who has offered the use of the Ritz Theatre building for these down-town services.

Come—be with us next Sunday night at 7:45, and join in the congregational singing, led by Zed Robinson, enjoy the special song numbers, the playing of Gertrude Stanley, pianist, and the gospel preaching. You'll be glad that you come.

REVIVAL TO CONTINUE

The First Baptist Revival continues throughout the week with services at 10:00 in the morning and 7:30 in the evening. Prayer meetings begin at 7:00 every evening and continue through thirty minutes before the general services.

These meetings are grouped for men, ladies, young people, intermediates and juniors.

Rev. Dossey is leading in a splendid way a large and enthusiastic group of juniors in a Booster Band. A cordial invitation is extended one and all to be in attendance upon all the services.

Spade News

Arrange your furniture so that the lines of the furniture will be the same as the lines of the room, says our C. H. D. A., Miss Bernice Westbrook to the Spade 4-H club at the home of Mrs. H. A. Sheffield February 13, 1936.

Do not turn your furniture across the corners because the lines are not pleasing, it wastes space and catches the dust too bad.

Our secretary is sick, Christine Griffen is our Garden Demonstrator.

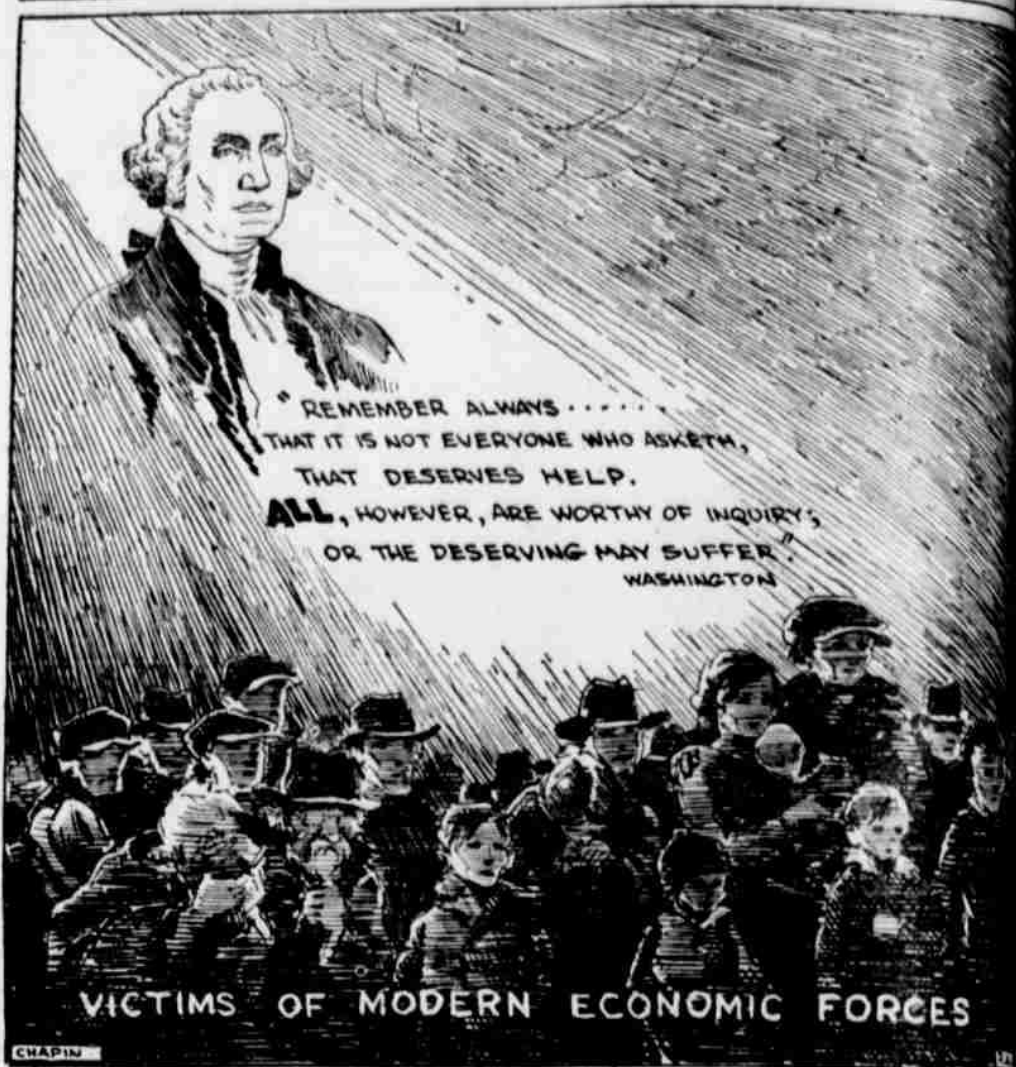

There were twenty-four present. Mrs. Sheffield entertained the members with a Valentine party.

We had three new members, Martha White, Mary Louise Monroe, and Lanita Heard.

We are sure there will be as many next time. Everyone is welcome.

A Voice From Long Ago

by A. B. Chapman

IN MEMORIUM

We trod o'er the carpet so softly
And looked on the white, sleeping face
So exquisitely lovely we tho't of an angel
Who lay midst the flowers and lace.

It was just such a short time ago
She confided in me, as her friend
And she said she was soon to be married
To the one whom she loved so—to Lynn.

Even heaven seemed pleased at their mating
For the day dawned clear, calm, and blue
As she vowed: "To death do us part"
And each word that she spoke there came true.

The scenes of that morning return now
As she came throu' the wide open door
And the blue of her frock matched the blue of her eyes
And in her arms pink roses she bore.

For the space of one precious moment
She knew life's fulfillment in love
And then from her home she was taken
Just why—lies with God up above.

As I gazed on her calm face there resting
This tho't to my mind seemed to spring
How sweet 'tis to know she will never grow
Old, nor bear care, grief or pain.

Forever she'll be strong and youthful
And I turn from the bier satisfied
For I know she will live through the ages Winsome and lovely—just as she died.

—Mrs. R. E. McCaskill.

Home Demonstration Notes

By Miss Bernice Westbrook

SIZE OF HOME ORCHARD—

"We have our orchard started but we want to finish it this year," says Mrs. Bill Clayton, Home Fruit Plot Demonstrator for the center Home Demonstration Club.

This orchard is to contain not less than 4 cherry trees, 6 plum trees, 2 peach trees, 12 grape vines and blackberry plants. This number of fruit trees and vines should furnish this family of four plenty of fruit to use fresh and to can for use during the season when no fresh fruit is in the orchard. With the strawberries from the garden, this orchard offers a nice variety of fruit.

VALUE OF A HOT-BED—

"I certainly want to get a hotbed made so I can raise my own plants," said Mrs. H. M. McClure, Home Food Supply Demonstrator for the Spring-lake Home Demonstration Club.

When you raise your plants at home you know what variety you have and are much more certain of a good yield. Another advantage is that you can put out your plants when everything is in best condition, and when the plants are the right size instead of having some too old and some too tender.

WATERING THE ORCHARD IN WINTER—

"We have ordered our fruit trees and they will be delivered as soon as the ground quits freezing so we can put them out," stated Mrs. Lollis, Home Fruit Plot Demonstrator of the Littlefield Home Demonstration Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Lollis are getting the ground now and getting a good shape for the trees. If the plus water is turned into the ground in winter, next summer the trees will be able to thrive on the ground moisture when the ground stock are using all the available supply.

A home orchard is soon to be planted by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clayton of Olton. Mrs. Randolph is a Fruit Plot Demonstrator for the Littlefield Home Demonstration Club.

This orchard is to contain cherries, peaches, grapes, dates and strawberries. This will be a variety of fruits that bear most every year, with a few more when they hit.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS — A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers of adventures, romantic, entertaining — and tragic — Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls — These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship — and his soul — NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Well, I'm doing it. I'm painting a little, because I like to pass the time that way."

Macduff was charmed with Angela's way of tossing off her words. Here was a woman who might be worth her salt. She chatted about the Ganges, and gave him a lively picture of her own impressions that morning. Yes, she was an artist. He could tell that from her choice of words.

When Macduff was writing, he bothered little with externals, going in for sombre, philosophical stuff that some people seemed to like. It surprised him to see India through the sapient eyes of an intelligent woman. Soon he was talking himself, and marveling at his own fluency. For half an hour his companion sat back, entranced and amused, while he unburdened. She lit a cigarette and watched him from under the brim of her hat. It must be the cocktails. He was off-like an orator. There was nothing to do but listen, now that the floodgates were open. But would he ever come to the end of his soliloquy? Was he talking sense or nonsense? Angela realized that the man was simply unused to voicing his thoughts, although verbose, no doubt, no paper. She had heard vaguely of his books, but had never read anything that he had written. After this, she would try to get hold of them and see what they were like.

The other people in the room who knew them were watching their table with surprise.

"Ye gods!" said Johnny to Clare. "Watch Macduff talking to Mrs. Wynant."

"It's a miracle. I'd like to know what he's saying. It would be Mrs. Wynant who would get him to talk."

"Won't you come with me to the river, Mr. Macduff?" Angela was saying, at the first break in their conversation. "I can't keep away. It's the most animated canvas I've ever seen in my life and I'm rather keen about masses of people."

"That's just where you're different from me," said Macduff, weighing his decision on whether to go with Angela or stay for a liqueur. "No, I won't. There's nothing I dislike so much as human beings, and I find it depressing to look at such thousands mucking about together."

They went out to the veranda and he ordered liqueurs. Angela watched him, wondering if perfect frankness were not the cue in handling Macduff. She leaned towards him. "You're rather a myth on the boat," she laughed, "the man who must not be spoken to."

A deep roll of laughter shot surprisingly from his throat. "It's not on the boat alone—it's the way I live. I find that human contacts interfere with one's work and one's life."

"Then I can't understand why you travel around the world on a cruising boat. To escape from people on the Marenia is like trying to dodge bees in a hive."

"I came on a cruising boat because it takes me to out-of-the-way ports I'd never been able to get to by my other means. Moreover, I've found all the isolation that I would get at home—at the least possible expense," Macduff finished, cannily.

Angela sighed and swung her parasol. "Sometimes I think one would be happier alone, in a world of one's own. The constant give and take of social relations wear one down."

Macduff's face was loosening in amiable lines, and she thought she detected a twinkle through his rimless spectacles. Or was it just the sun on the lens?

"I'm thinking that you're not very happy," he told her, surprisingly.

"Happy enough, Mr. Macduff, but wandering in my thoughts. To tell you the truth, they're in England with my husband and my home."

"Tell me about your home."

"I've never been able to conjure it up for anyone else, although it's so vivid in my own mind. It's a rambling house with gables, frightfully ancient, with bits that have been added on from time to time. The ceilings are low and beamed, and the dormer windows are tucked in odd places under the eaves. It's filled with pictures, ancient and modern, and my dog Jock patterns all over it like a presiding Turk."

Angela stopped abruptly, thinking that she had been lacking in tact and reserve.

"Do you live in New York, Mr. Macduff?"

"Yes. Have you ever been there?"

"Five years ago I visited it for a few weeks. I love it, the excitement, the tearing hurry, the air—such air—But to live in it—how does one manage that?"

"My life is as quiet and slow as if I lived on the tip-end of Cornwall."

"I don't see how you can dwell among such glorious skyscrapers and feel that life is quiet and slow. Life can't be slow in a soaring city. I think I should live on wings if New York were my home."

"It's all bosh, the things people think of. New York. It's the best possible city for work, because it's one of the few places in the world where you are let alone if you want to be. I can work better there than anywhere under the sun."

"Perhaps that's why American women accomplish so much, I admire them greatly."

"Do you?"

"Yes, Don't you?" Her voice expressed surprise.

"No. They're scatterbrains—fckless creatures. They're also shockingly vain — spending, spending, everything for clothes and appearances."

"But how stunning they look!"

"Like so many dolls in a window. The same eyes, the same lift to their chins, the same way of wearing their clothes, and the same ankles."

"But I can't imagine a race of women with better ankles! American women always surprise me afresh with the buoyancy of their spirit. They have such grace—perhaps because they're free and have economic independence. They're the only women who walk with hope and assurance."

"I don't approve of them at all."

"Oh dear! What a pity! If I were a man and lived in America, I should admire them very much and fall in love with any number of them. They're intelligent, too. But I see it's a hopeless argument."

Macduff had lost the thread of the conversation, and seemed to be stumbling towards an important conclusion of his own. He was standing, looking down at her with an air of gloom. Angela gazed at him softly and he shifted his weight. The sun was in his eyes, the garden was fragrant with blooms, the Union Jacks were still pleasantly warm in his stomach. He rubbed the back of his head meditatively and couldn't imagine why his feet were moving towards the river. What was the sense of going to the Ganges with a chance travelling acquaintance?

"How delightful of you to come with me to the river, Mr. Macduff."

Angela's voice was gay with pleasure as she saw him falling into step.

Her companion grunted and pulled on his pipe.

"We'll ride to Tiger Hill together to see the dawn over Mount Everest when we reach Darjeeling," he announced, amazed at his own desire to establish a deeper contact with the woman at his side.

"That will be splendid," she told him.

The afternoon sun fell in slanting rays over the Indian Ocean, shedding a flutter of gold on water that heaved in a darkening swell. The aquatic sports were about to begin in the swimming-pool. Patty, brimful of energy, was diving repeatedly from the highest springboard.

"She was born to live in a swimming-suit," Jenny said, admiringly. "A genuine water-nymph!" Peter remarked, always appreciative of the manifestations of physical perfection.

Jenny saw that Clare and Patty were both in the race. It would be interesting to watch the two of them together, in spite of the difference in their ages.

Clare was a gifted swimmer, and her speed and form were equal to the best that girls half her age could do. No woman on the boat could compete with her except Foster. Foster was good, but she had a day and took most of her rest at night.

Clare was in tangerine, a flash in the clear water of the pool. It suited her dusky skin. Peter in a striking green suit. The whistle blew and the contestants were off, with energy.

Many Texans Given Work Under NYA

AUSTIN, Feb. 18.—Through the National Youth Administration 8,371 young Texans have been given part- time employment in the last thirty days.

The figures were announced by Lyndon B. Johnson, state NYA Dir- ector, after a check-up with repre- sentatives in 20 Texas districts.

In addition, 1,312 have been as- signed to work, and jobs have been made available for 7,642 others. The grand total of part-time jobs provided by the National Youth Ad- ministration in the 30-day period is 17,325.

The boys and girls are working on 467 projects scattered through- out the state. A total of $417,378 is being expended by the NYA and cooperating sponsors are contribut- ing approximately 40 per cent of the entire cost of the projects. The remaining funds of the $459,000 allocated to Texas are being used in projects being approved daily.

The youngsters are working on various projects which will be useful memorials to their efforts. Chief among these are 150 "pocket-size" parks, so called because of their tiny size. The small pleasure-grounds are a pipe dream of Gib Gilchrist, state highway engineer. The highway de- partment is the sponsor of the con- struction of the parks and also of school bus stops and gravel school walks.

Other work includes the beautifi- cation of school grounds and the improvement of recreational facili- ties. Youths are also assisting in the organization and leading of recrea- tional and community activities.

Girls, too, have an active part in the NYA program. In several dis- tricts, sewing room projects are under way. Many are working in libra- ries, repairing and cataloging books. Some are employed in school cafeter- ias and others are doing secretarial work in public service offices.

Carpenter, executive director-designate of the Old Age Assistance Commission said today about the new law.

"Applicants should be prepared to make a full and complete statement of all earnings for the two years immediately preceding application," Mr. Carpenter declared.

"The cash or security clause in the new law necessitates that appli- cants be able to tell the exact amount of money they have in the bank. They should be prepared to give a description of all securities owned, serial numbers, from whom purchased, etc.," he explained. "If securities were sold, the name of the purchaser must be known. Full details about all securities handled, bought, or sold during the last two years must be provided.

"Not only does the requirement concern earned income, but aid re- ceived from any source must be listed," Carpenter stated.

Section 7, subsection (e) of the new law reads that the application shall contain the following informa- tion: If receiving aid from any source, the amount received and from whom, or if such aid is not in cash money, then a description of such aid ten- dered, together with the name of the source of such aid and from whom; the amount received from the United States Government, State or Coun- ty, public or private charitable or- ganizations, corporations, or private individuals.

Are YOU HAPPY After Meals

Or Do Gas on Stomach and Sour Stomach make you Miserable?

Too much food, or the wrong kind of food, too much smoking, too much beer, make your body over-acid. Then you have distress after eating, gas on stomach, heartburn, sour stomach.

ALKA - SELTZER relieves these troubles promptly, effectively.

Use Alka-Seltzer for Headache, Colds, Fatigue, "Morning After Feeling," Muscular, Sciatic and Rheumatic Pains.

Alka-Seltzer makes a sparkling alkaline drink. As it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid.

Alka-Seltzer tastes like carbonated mineral spring water—works like magic. Contains no dangerous drugs... does not depress the heart... is not laxative.

green in the lead. Clare tore through the water like a goldfish, using the long Australian crawl. Patty made better time with the American crawl. Johnny was perched in a corner close to Angela. His face was set in anxious furrows, for he felt that the race had something to do with him. Patty won the first heat, Clare the second; they seemed to be marvellously paired. Angela sat silent, thinking of Johnny and wondering whom he wanted to win. Clare was leading now, but Patty was creeping up. Every stroke brought her nearer to the fleet orange figure. Patty was breathing easily and turning in the water with each long stroke. Johnny's heart was pounding. Clare was losing. Did he want her to lose? He did not know. Patty was magnificent. He liked the clean sweep of her strokes. He remembered his college days, and his heart went out to Patty. He knew that she would root for him, but Clare bewitched him.

But this was Patty's race. She must win! Johnny's throat was soapy, as it used to be when he tackled at football.

Patty won, and, as she touched the end of the swimming-pool, he bit his lips on a shout of jubilation. Angela felt his suppressed excitement and was suddenly sure of something that had puzzled her for weeks.

But it was Clare he went over to speak to, Clare he helped out of the water. "Good stuff, Patty!" whispered Johnny as she passed him on her way to the dressing-room. "You and I'll have a race pretty soon."

Patty laughed in her throat, tossed her cap and trode on. She felt robust and happy, as if a dark shadow that had been creeping up on her for weeks had taken to its heels.

Clare was also in gay spirits, a step from Peter's side. She had not cared whether she won or lost; stress did nothing but give one crow's feet.

"Well, that's over," she said. "Patty's like the wind. I admire her form in the water."

"You were quite worth watching, too." Peter's voice was warm, and his glance passed over her like a searching flame.

"Why didn't you compete, Mrs. Rumford?"

"Oh, I'm a drone," laughed Jenny. "She's a loretel who looks for rocks to sit on in the sun while she combs her hair," said Peter.

Was Jenny dreaming, or did she catch a look of understanding, the sudden raising of a curtain, between those two? Her heart missed a beat. No, that was absurd. Day-dreams! Clare and Peter had scarcely spoken to each other since they'd come on the boat, except for their chat in the lounge at Bombay. They all moved out to the deck to dry themselves.

"Isn't the sea strange today?" Jenny murmured, after a long silence.

"This is the first time since we left the Mediterranean that I've seen the water crumpled, or foam breaking on the waves."

No one was paying any attention to what she said.

"This is no place to dry," said Clare, shivering with cold. "It's too late. The sun's gone down."

Jenny was lost in her thoughts, watching the dying sun in a semitrance. She would not go below while the sunset lasted. The others had already gone; she had not noticed them leaving her.

She went down to B deck and along the corridor. Her glance swept by chance towards an alleyway, and her hand went up to her mouth to stop the exclamation that sprang to her lips.

Texas Cowboy Reunion Is Set For July 2, 3, 4

Stamford, Texas, Feb. 18.—Dates for the seventh annual session of the Texas Cowboy Reunion have been officially set by the directors as July 2, 3 and 4—Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The Reunion this year will be part of the Texas Centennial observance, being known as the Texas Cowboy Reunion Celebration of the Texas Centennial.

The Texas Cowboy Reunion, which is recognized as one of the most authentic survivals of the old west and the rapidly vanishing cattle empire, will prove instructive as well as entertaining to Centennial visitors, both from within and without the state. The annual meeting in Stamford brings together the pioneer cowboys and cattlemen who replaced the buffalo with longhorns, as well as the bronzed cowboys of today who punch white-faced cattle on the comparatively few remaining large ranches of the Southwest.

MAYTAG HAVE RECORD YEAR DURING 1935

Maytag Southwestern Company, distributors of Maytag Washers in Texas, reports that 1935 was the record year in its existence, having sold washers in retail value of close to one million and a half dollars. Also January sales for 1936 were 332 units ahead of January 1935.

J. A. Barton is manager of the local Maytag office.

As indicative that Texans are interested in quality merchandise, Walter Rogers, President of Maytag Southwestern Company, points out that 87 per cent of the sales in 1935 were the aluminum or best washer, and only 13 per cent were the lower priced models. "I am fairly familiar with the routine of county government, understand the duty and authority of the Commissioner's Court over which I will preside, and in this, as well as other matters, the law will be my guide.

"I do not know how the affairs of this county have been handled. I am not concerned about that. I presume that they have been managed in a way that is a credit to those in charge and with justice and honor to the county. If this be true, I shall endeavor to maintain that high standard of public service to which the people are entitled. If, however, I find that I can make any improvement I will regard it my duty to do so.

"I will appreciate your vote and if I am honored with the office I will crave the co-operation of all the people to help me make Lamb county a better place in which to live, a beacon light to those afar, and the banner county of The Great West. My hat is in the ring to that end.

"C. W. Benge."

NOTE: This announcement will appear in other papers of the county at a later date.
