

Fern McAdams—

Resting against the wrist of her right hand was a .22 caliber long-barrel pistol.

M. W. Brewer, justice of the peace, said, after an inquest, that he entered a verdict of suicide into the records. The verdict was contributed to the discovery of a note in Mrs. McAdams' private box at the postoffice. The envelope, addressed to her mother, Mrs. Fred Hoover of Littlefield, directed that should anything happen to her (Mrs. McAdams) certain properties should go to the mother. A Littlefield attorney was named to direct provisions of the note, which, in effect, was a bequest.

Mr. McAdams, "just as much at a loss to understand what happened and what caused it as we," according to Sheriff Sam Hutson, said Mrs. McAdams worked Friday night until about 10 o'clock and apparently was free from worries. She laughed when he took her home, he told officials, and made no reference that might have been construed as reflecting a depressed state.

She said, the husband continued, that she would have to arise from bed early Saturday morning because she meant to go to a beauty shop. Her statement was made just as she and her husband were preparing for bed in the front part of the house.

So, continued the sheriff's version, given to the justice of peace, the husband "thought nothing about it when he awakened early Saturday and did not find Mrs. McAdams in bed with him." He was described as having gone back to sleep for a few moments.

Fern Hoover was born in Longs, N. M., Feb. 3, 1909. She married to Carl McAdams, Jr., in Feb. 1938. She had been employed in the office of J. S. Hilliard, secretary to the Littlefield National Farm Loan Association, for more than ten years and had been assistant secretary to the local Rotary Club the past two years. She was active in social and civic affairs, and was a charter member of the Littlefield Business and Professional Women's Club. She had been a member of the First Baptist Church in Littlefield for a number of years.

She was graduated from the local high school in 1926, and she was the first student to complete her school work here who had started in the first grade in Littlefield.

The Littlefield citizenship and the entire community were shocked and deeply grieved at the passing of one of the city's most respected pioneers, who was held in high esteem by all who knew her.

Her father, Fred Hoover, of Phoenix, Ariz., formerly was a deputy sheriff in Littlefield and a constable. He arrived Sunday after being notified of Mrs. McAdams' death, but due to his weakened physical condition, he was unable to remain in Littlefield for the final rites.

Besides her husband and her parents, Mrs. McAdams is also survived by two cousins, Misses Dorothy and Marie Williams of Littlefield.

Mr. McAdams' parents and sis-

After a short time, they established a new Littlefield Hotel on Phelps Avenue, which they operated until the fall of 1937.

Besides Mrs. Whicker, he is survived by a son, Everett, a daughter, Mrs. R. S. Thomas, of Philadelphia, Pa., a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Whicker, and a granddaughter, Margaret Jane Whicker, both of Amarillo, and one brother, W. D. Whicker, Waterloo, Iowa.

Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Whicker, and daughter of Amarillo, attended the final rites.

Mr. Whicker was held in the highest esteem by the management and personnel of the Lamb County Leader, and in the passing of this citizen joins with those who mourn with Mrs. Whicker at his death. The deepest sympathy is extended her in the loss of a devoted husband, who has been her companion down through the many years.

NYA To Establish Two More Airplane Mechanics Units

Austin, August 26—With the establishment of two additional projects in Texas offering work experience in the fundamentals of airplane mechanics, that type of training is moving rapidly toward the front among National Youth Administration Projects over the State, according to J. C. Kellam, State NYA Administrator. Kellam said plans have been approved and action is being taken to set up NYA Airplane Mechanics Projects at the Tyler Municipal Airport and at the Rusk School in Dallas.

For this purpose a shop building has been completed at the Tyler Airport to provide facilities for the instruction of thirty young men in the fundamental skills of airplane mechanics. With 50,000 square feet of floor space appropriated for the Project in Dallas at Rusk School approximately fifty boys will have an opportunity to receive this work experience and related training. The United States Army will furnish the heavy equipment necessary for adequate instruction, and the NYA will provide the lighter machinery.

In keeping with the exploratory character of many National Youth Administration shop projects this basic course in airplane mechanics includes, in addition to engine repair, the elementary phases of nine types of aviation-theory of flight (aerodynamics), mechanical drawing, sheet metal work, welding, fabric work, surface finishes, plating, foundry practice, and radio. This phase of the NYA Program has been designed to be flexible enough to allow the qualified youth an extra measure of training in any one of the specialties in which he shows interest and proficiency.

"NYA Airplane Mechanics Projects in operation at this time," the State Youth Administrator said, "are located at Ranger, Fort Worth, Marshall, South Houston, Waco, and Canyon."

Almost All Ford Workmen Cultivate 'Thrift Gardens'

DEARBORN, Mich., Aug. 26 — Every day when they quit work at the big Ford Rouge plant here, thousands of workers hurry out to their garden plots to fatten the budget—and themselves—by growing vegetables in their spare time. The company encourages this agricultural activity by assigning thousands of thrift garden plots to workers who request them.

While 10,000 such plots have been assigned this season, they represent only a small part of the land which Ford employees have under cultivation. Thousands of Ford workmen have gardens of their own, using their backyards or nearby vacant lots for the purpose, and a recent survey shows that a large percentage of the company's employees in the Detroit area are spare-time gardeners.

The assigned plots are located in many different parts of Detroit and vicinity, in order that workers may be given plots as close to their home as possible. Each plot measures approximately 50x100 feet. One of these plots, gardening experts say, will yield enough fresh vegetables to keep a family of five well supplied throughout the summer, and leave a surplus that may be canned for winter use.

The number of plots an employee may have is limited only by his enthusiasm for gardening. Many operate three or more, and one man, with a family of nine children, has 14 plots. The Ford thrift gardens are distinctly family enterprises, as groups of three to a dozen persons, working happily in their garden plots are familiar sights during the summer.

A considerable part of the property cultivated by thrift gardeners is owned by the Ford Motor Company, but owing to the scattered locations of the various plots, much of this land is obtained through the cooperation of individual owners.

Treatment For Weevils Explained By Entomologist

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 26—Weevils are working over time these days.

To help off-set some of their damage to peas and beans which have been or shortly will be harvested on most Texas farms, Cameron Siddall, entomologist for the A. & M. College Extension Service, has some suggestions to make.

First of all, the safest way to keep beans or peas which are to be used as seed is to shell or thresh them and treat them with carbon disulphide, then store them in half-gallon jars, gallon syrup buckets, or 25 pound lard cans. Carbon disulphide can be used in the following proportions: one-fourth teaspoonful per half-gallon jar; one-half teaspoonful for a gallon syrup bucket; five teaspoonfuls for a 25-pound lard can; and one ounce for a 50-gallon drum.

The peas or beans should be placed in a jar, bucket or can. Then a small saucer or jar top, containing the carbon disulphide solution should be placed on top of the peas before the lid is placed on the container. After 36 hours, the lid and the carbon disulphide should be removed and the peas spread out on a table top or on the floor until there is no trace of the fumes. The peas should then be placed back in the container and the lid placed on tight, Mr. Siddall explains.

If the peas are not to be treated, they should be left in the hulls, since they are less subject to weevil damage than if they are shelled or threshed.

Where peas or beans are to be used only for eating, they may be placed in an open container, such as a turkey roaster, and heated to 180 degrees F. for 10 minutes, then stored in tight containers.

Best Texas Boy Driver In National Test This Week

CLEBURNE, Tex., Aug. 26 — Chosen from among hundreds of Texas teen-aged lads as the young man best able to drive an automobile safely and well and describe how he will attempt to reduce traffic accidents, Clark Douglas, 17 years old, of Cleburne, will represent his state in the national finals of the Ford Good Drivers League contest to be staged in New York this week.

Forty-eight young men, representing as many states, will take part in the final tests which will include a series of gruelling car maneuvers in the traffic of New York City and suburbs, followed by psychophysical reaction tests in the Ford building at the New York World's Fair. The final examination, held under the direction of Dr. A. R. Lauer of Iowa State college, will rate the boys on their vital driving characteristics, including their reactions to road and traffic conditions. A $5,000 university scholarship is the first prize.

The national champion good driver will be announced on Thursday night, August 29, by Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Good Drivers League. The runner-up will receive a $2,000 scholarship, while scholarships amounting to $500 each will be given the three next best drivers. In addition, scholarships amounting to $250 each will be presented to the next eight best contestants.

Each of the state winners, no matter what his final score, will receive a $100 scholarship in addition to the cost of his trip with a friend or relative to the New York fair.

The Texas winner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Douglas of Cleburne, where his father is cashier of the City National Bank and is the great grandson of Governor Edward Clark of Texas, who held office in 1861.

Young Clark was graduated from high school this year with highest honors in the senior class, of which he was valedictorian. In addition, he was a student director and played in the school band. Two years ago, he won the Citizenship Award presented by the Rotarians of his town. The boy already has driven some 40,000 miles without an accident, and so at 17 he considers himself a veteran driver.

Accompanied by his parents, his aunt, Miss Patsy Clark, a teacher in Dallas; and his cousin, Sarah Zimmerman, he is now motoring to New York via Washington, D. C.

Tuston E. Seward of San Juan, runner-up in the state contest, will receive a wrist watch in recognition of his driving ability in addition to the certificate of merit awarded by the Ford Good Drivers League.

Buick Plants To Build 1,000 Cars A Day For 1941

FLINT, Mich., Aug. 26—Assemblers of the Buick plants here are rapidly approaching normal production with re-employment going on at an accelerated pace, it was disclosed Saturday by Harlow Curcio, president.
The executive said that the plants will shortly be building at a rate of 1,000 cars a day with full capacity operations scheduled for September. He said that 10,000 Buick cars are scheduled for current month with an excess of 100 production planned for next month. A second shift was added to the assembly line this week, he said.
Curcio pointed out that the increase in volume output has occurred in less than two weeks after completion of the first "pilot car," a term applied to the first production job of the model year.
Normal Buick production is approximately 200 more units a day than was possible to manufacture before the recent expansion, he explained.
Improved plant facilities are being used to move rapidly into new models required less than two weeks. In this period, there will never fewer than 9,000 persons on the payroll. We have been adding workers at a rapid rate within a short time will reach a peak of 115,800.
The first recorded cattle brand in Texas was that of Don Nicholas, a resident of Real de Las Sabas between 1748 and 1750.

Largest Trench Silo In Texas Finished By Lubbock Feeder

What is claimed to be the largest trench silo in Texas has been completed by H. W. Stanton, Lubbock feed manufacturer and feeder, at his pens northwest of the city and filling with cut roughage and grain is to begin soon after the first of the month.
The silo really was enlarged this summer, it having been used previously. First dug to hold several thousand tons, it was enlarged a year ago to hold between 5,000 and 6,000 tons and now will hold at least 10,000 to 12,000 tons, possibly more, Stanton said.
The huge ditch is 400 feet long, 60 feet wide at the top and 40 feet at the bottom and 20 feet deep.
It is to be filled with red top cane or sumac, hegari, maize, kafir, milo and other sorghums cut up by a huge ensilage cutter. Some corn also is used.
Stanton also has enlarged the capacity of his feeding pens and this year can take care of 10,000 head, double that of last year. The pens are 100 feet wide and 300 and 400 feet long.
Last year Stanton fed out about 5,000 head, including his own and under contract. He enlarged the pens to take care of an expected additional demand. One man, he added, had offered to contract for the entire pens.
"I have been feeding cattle for 37 years, and in only one year, 1937, I failed to make a little money," Stanton recalled.

Dates Set For Hockley Co. Fair

Success of the fair depends upon the fullest cooperation from every public spirited citizen in the county.

McClain, Plainview, and Wesley M. Roddy, Denison; Milking short-horns—Frank Weil, Hale Center, and Thomas M. Ingram, Idalou. ## Methodist Revival Closes At Earth

The revival meeting which closed Sunday morning, August 18 at the Earth Methodist Church, was a success, according to the pastor, Rev. C. A. Holcomb, Jr. Not everything was accomplished that could have been, but the results were gratifying.

There were eighteen additions to the church on profession of faith and there will be more as a direct result of the meeting. In all, there were thirty-four conversions and re-claimations.

Rev. J. H. Sharp, pastor of the Littlefield Methodist Church, did the preaching at the Earth revival.

Fall Gardens To Qualify For AAA Payments This Year

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 27—A fall garden, which meets certain specifications, will qualify for benefits under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation program, providing payment is not already forthcoming for a spring or summer garden.

According to B. F. Vance, assistant administrative officer in charge of the state AAA office, if compliance has already been checked on a particular farm and no certification was made with regard to the home garden, a second check may be made to determine if the fall garden measures up to AAA requirements.

In issuing this last call for AAA gardens, Vance is joined by Jennie Camp, specialist in home production planning for the A. & M. College Extension Service. "A fall garden," she points out, "will add another bit to the family's cash income and will add a lot to the family's food supply for the fall and winter months."

Although only half the counties in Texas have been heard from, reports submitted to August 6 indicate that already 129,518 white farm and ranch families in 120 counties and 9,352 Negro families in 28 counties are seeking benefits for home gardens under the 1940 program. If these 138,870 gardens qualify for payments, the aggregate payment to Texas farm families for this practice alone will be $208,305.

More than 8,000,000 boys and girls have received 4-H Club training since the work became nationwide in 1914.

Littlefield Boys Join Army Last Week

Gordon E. Gardner, Raymond H. Duffey, A. Z. Morris, Hubert Green and Lee T. Duffy of Littlefield signed up for the Army last week.

Today the Army is calling for men, and needs them more than ever before in peace time. Why? Because in our nation's "Preparedness Campaign" we are getting all types of new Army equipment and do not have trained men to handle this equipment. The equipment will be worthless without men to handle it, and the opportunity offered for valuable training to young men will be wasted if advantage is not taken of it. The Army is adding men for all branches of service. Inquire at any Army Recruiting Office for all details. Offices in the Texas Panhandle are located at Lubbock, Amarillo, Pampa, Plainview and Childress.

FOUR FROM LAMB COUNTY RECEIVE DEGREES AT TECH FRIDAY NIGHT

Misses Raynell Chaney and Jerriene Wharton of Littlefield, and Willie Hampton and Elmer J. Moore of Olton, received degrees at the summer commencement exercises at Texas Technological College in Lubbock Friday night, August 23.

The total number of graduates for the year, including the 213 degrees conferred Friday night, reached 619, for an all-time record. There were 406 degrees granted in June, including four honorary.

This brought the total number of degrees granted by Texas Tech to 4,558 since the founding of the school in 1925. Of the August graduates, 168 received bachelors' degrees and 45 received master's degrees.

Degrees were conferred by President Clifford B. Jones and the graduating address was delivered by Charles C. Thompson, Tech board member from Colorado City. Exercises were held on the lawn of the administration building.

La Fiesta de Santa Fe To Be Staged Aug. 31-Sept. 2

La Fiesta de Santa Fe, oldest community celebration in the United States, commemorating the conquest of the ancient city of Santa Fe by De Vargas in 1692, will be colorfully observed for the 228th time this year from Aug. 31 (Saturday) through Sept. 2 (Monday). De Vargas reconquered the Pueblo Indians after their sanguine rebellion of 1680 and subsequent domination of the city for 12 years.

The Fiesta of commemoration of the notable victory was decreed in 1712 by Jose Chacon Medina Salazar y Villaseor, Marques de la Penuela, who ordered that "because of the redemption of this ancient capital from the possession of the Indians, a fiesta season be established and observed annually for all time to come."

The first day of the annual observance, Saturday, will be given to gaily, with populace and visitors wearing vividly colored Spanish costumes, native orchestras playing in the streets and plaza, and Indians from nearby pueblos, dancing. Climax of the day's enjoyment will be the burning, in effigy, of Zozobra, or "Old Man Gloom," a gigantic papier mache figure, and the informal ball during which the Fiesta Queen will be crowned.

Sunday is to be given mainly to religious devotions and the fascinating re-enactment of De Vargas' entry. Armed and costumed as were the Conquistadores, hundreds of Peans, mounted and afoot, troop down from Cuma to the Plaza to erect the Cross before the picturesque Palace of Governors and to receive the Indian submission.

At nightfall there will be the long and impressive candlelight procession of natives and visitors to the Cross of the Martyrs, memorial on the Heights of Cuma to the padres who were slain in the rebellion.

Children will hold sway Monday afternoon with a costume and pet show and parade. The Fiesta will be brought to a formal close that evening with native dances and singing on the balconies of La Fonda, street dancing and the entrancing "Baile de los Conquistadores" in the hotel.

Contour farming and high-speed highways have put curves into fence building. A straight fence dividing a pasture and a field farmed mechanics of building fences on the contour is explained in a new publication, "Farm Fences," Farmers' Bulletin No. 1832, which may be secured from county agricultural agents or by writing either the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. or the Extension Service, Texas A. and M. College, College Station, Texas.

Pontiac Backs New Cars With Largest Ad Budget

Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors from September until January will announce its 1941 models with the largest introductory advertising campaign in the division's history.

Newspapers again will form the backbone of Pontiac's sales drive, according to W. J. Mougey, Pontiac advertising manager. MacManus, John & Adams, Inc., continue to handle the account as they have since 1934.

This introductory budget is exclusive of mechanical costs and is 65 percent over the amount spent by Pontiac in the same period last year.

Hitting hard on newspaper advertising, Pontiac has raised its four month newspaper budget 55 percent, and extended the publication of pre-announcement, announcement, Auto Show and introductory copy from 2,000 newspapers to 2,500. A newspaper circulation of upwards of 41,000,000 persons thus is guaranteed. Insertions will appear every week until January 11 and will open September 5. Advertisement sizes will run from 48 inches through 144 inches.

"Newspapers will carry 69 percent of our advertising because of the splendid job they did for us during 1940 when Pontiac completed its most successful model year," Ad Manager Mougey said. "We like the flexibility of newspaper advertisements and their certain results."

"Using 2,500 newspapers, Pontiac will place its message before a majority of the newspaper readers in the United States each week."

Magazine advertising for the opening months of Pontiac's new model year has been increased 32 percent and will be concentrated in

"South of Pago Pago" To Be Featured At Palace Saturday Midnight, Sunday, Monday

Against a background highlighted by the breathless beauty and tropical brilliance of the South Seas Edward Small's new film production, "South of Pago Pago," coming to the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday. The stellar cast of this new adventure romance is headed by Victor McLaglen, Jon Hall, Frances Farmer, Olympe Bradna, Douglas Dumbrille and Gene Lockhart, and the picture was directed by Alfred E. Green.

In addition to the distinguished talents of its hand-picked cast, "South of Pago Pago" has the advantage of an exciting, fast paced story which keeps the audience on tenterhooks, masterful direction by Alfred E. Green, and the usual excellence and showmanship that characterize an Edward Small picture.

The story of "South of Pago Pago" is set in the 1880's when men who went down to the China sea in ships were only a mile removed in character from the pirates and robbers who sailed the Spanish Main a century earlier. Buckle Larson, played by Victor McLaglen, has heard that there is a fortune in rare pearls "South of Pago Pago," and he makes a strange bargain with Ruby Taylor, a Singapore cafe girl, played by Frances Farmer, when they set sail to capture this booty.

As soon as they land in the South Seas, Larson proceeds to trick the natives to dive for him and to still the fears of young and handsome Kehane, son of the island chief, played by Jon Hall. Larson's plans prosper when Kehane falls in love with Ruby and forgets about his island fiancée, played by Olympe Bradna. But as the natives die off under the whiplash brutality of Larson, Kehane awakens to the dangers and horrors brought about by the visitors.

AMHERST METHODIST CHURCH

The new Church School year will be here soon and we need to be thinking in terms of this in connection with the special season for revival meetings. The opening of school should bring in some new folks and we need to be on the lookout for them. The ideal and goal of our leaders is: For every one who is in the church school to be a member of the church and every one in the church to be a member of the church school. This may seem impossible, but it is an ideal to reach for. And if every one were an enthusiast for the success of this work it might be reached.

For those who are not able to attend the church school we are offering membership in the Home Department. We dismissed this department for awhile but our Board of Education has reinstated this work.

It is less than three months until the end of our conference year and we are not so far along with our work as we might need to be to make a full report at the annual conference at Pampa November 16. From now until then we shall keep your minds refreshed on these items so "that you might not forget."

We trust that all our members and constituency will bear in mind that we are having only one week of revival effort this year, beginning September 8.

We shall not have any night services next Sunday at the Methodist Church, it was the first occasion in twenty-two years when all the family were together.

Church due to the Baptist meeting but the other Sunday services will be held, laying foundations for the arrival of the Flowers evangelistic people—husband and wife. We shall be glad to see you here and if we do not get to see the members of the church as often as you think we should, remember we are seeking the lost, as Jesus did. You seek some too.

Mrs. Roy Camp and daughter arrived Saturday to visit Mr. Camp, who was in charge of the singing during the Baptist Revival, which closed Sunday.

They left Littlefield Monday and met their son and brother in Lubbock, who accompanied them to Carlsbad Caverns Tuesday.

Tuesday night they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Rev. and Mrs. Fred DeLashaw, at Paint Rock, before returning to Fort Worth.

While in Littlefield they also visited in the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Coen.

Mr. DeLashaw, formerly of Littlefield, is a brother to Mrs. Coen.

city of this frock suggests coolness, and the softness of detailing gives you a frail, flower-like look. The neckline is drawn away at the sides by shirring, which gives it an unusually pretty shape and makes it cooler, besides. Darts at the waistline create becoming roundness over the bust, and the skirt flutters into lavish fullness—that soft, unpressed fullness that makes every step a poem as you walk. Clusters of shirring insure slimmness and flatness where you want them, and a sash bow accents the smallness of your waist.

With a big straw hat and your white or colored sandals, this frock will be utterly charming in flowered batiste, silk print, georgette or voile.

Pattern No. 8752 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20.

It looks cool, it feels cool, and will seem fresh at the end of the day, because there's nothing about it to get crushed and muddled.

Spade Homemaking Girls Complete Summer Projects

Spade homemaking girls completed their summer project last week. Two outstanding projects have been reported. These two girls are to be especially commended for their work. Much benefit was derived from these projects by the entire group.

Sylvia Cooper redecorated her bedroom. The improvement benefited the entire family. She had many problems to overcome, but here is her story of the project:

"My room has a south and west exposure and in the summer time is rather warm. As my room needed papering, I decided to use a cool, blue paper with a small floral design. This color makes the room seem cooler. With the help of my mother, the room was papered. I painted all the woodwork with ivory enamel. I washed and repaired the windows. I already had new curtains for the windows. As I had no dressing table, I decided to make one of orange crates. I found two orange crates at town and fastened them together by nailing a board between them. I bought ply wood for the top. Miss Bowens, my teacher, happened to come by to visit me that morning I was trying to cut this top out. She helped me cut a pattern. I sandpapered, varnished the top, and made a curtain to match my bedspread. I had made a spread of cotton print for my bed and bought enough material for the dressing table and a stool also.

I made the stool out of a nail keg and covered it with a curtain to match my dressing tables.

I spent $7.85 for improving my room and it took me about four or five weeks to complete my work." Frances Savage did a very good project on her summer wardrobe. She planned and made all her clothes for the summer season.

The garments she made are as follows:

White sharkskin skirt; blue gaberdine jacket; batiste blouse; beige gaberdine jacket; gathered skirt of print; dimity dress; a pair of pajamas; two pillow cases which were made in spare time.

This work improved Frances' ability to sew and plan as well as helping the family budget by reducing clothing costs.

CHAPTER IX

Synopsis

Rollins, tennis ace, dreamed of winning the Davis Cup team. He fell in love with Grace Hamilton, but Grace wouldn't love a man who regarded tennis as a man's work. Len gave up his tennis ambitions—partly because of love for Grace, partly because of a bad injury to his ankle they were married. But when recovery was complete his old tennis was so strong and he joined the Davis Cup team, in spite of a threat to leave him if he showed.

Len walked off the court without a word. Hughes, Clark and Wheatley came rapidly forward, faces beaming, congratulating him. Through his tightly set jaw he said: "That's number one!" Though the others did not altogether understand, they laughed and slapped his shoulders and told him how splendidly he had played. The next day he sat silently before Clark and Swanstrom and the French doubles team with Hughes and Wheatley in a five-set struggle.

In the clubhouse Hughes was undressing; Wheatley seated on a bench looked up as they approached and there were tears in his eyes. "Tough luck," Swanstrom said, "but with kindness." The match either team might win. They had the breaks. One of the doubles players, the captain slapped Wheatley on the back. From further down the court came the cheerful, exultant voice of the victors. France only needed one more match to win the Davis Cup from being across the sea to America. He received two letters that day. He opened the one from Dan Hamilton first. Enclosed within a sheet of paper was a check for fifty thousand dollars. Automatically he put it in his wallet. He slit the lavender envelope, opened the folded sheets and found a letter from his father. Father has arranged for your divorce. Richard has asked me to marry him on the second of September, his birthday and I see no objection. Tenderly he folded the letter and put it in his pocket. Tears and stinging, shamelessly burned his cheeks. He thought; "I show them I'm a good sport, a loser. I'll send some flowers to Grace. I must not forget that—to Grace flowers. And also send that check tomorrow."

He covered with perspiration, wild but happy, came through the door. "Got him!" he said gleefully and fell heavily into Len's arms. "That's fine," Len said without a word.

"I said Clark, still breathing."

hard, "if you can do what no one expects you can possibly do—" he paused abruptly.

"Didn't you get any sleep last night?" Swanstrom added. "You look wrecked. I'm almost inclined to send Wheatley out there in your place."

Len smiled grimly and went toward the door. "I'm all right," he said, and went out.

At another time he would have been conscious of the full weight of his responsibility. But on this particular day, at this particular time, he felt free from it all. He was just going out to play a couple of sets of tennis. He would do the very best he could. There would he knew, be little dash or fire to his performance; it would be the cold, mechanical play of a man who has been trained to be accurate.

So there had been a baby. Perhaps a boy. And he was—would have been—the father. But it was dead. Dead because—

The sun was terribly hot and there was little air. The stands remained strangely, ominously quiet. Soon he realized that Lefevre, white teeth gleaming against dark skin, was before him offering a hand.

He walked to the far end of the court and as the ball came toward him stroked instinctively. He was responding without volition. But the racquet met the ball squarely, evenly, and sent it spinning over the net within the boundaries of the other white-chalked areas. How long they warmed up he did not know.

The referee's voice came questioning from above. Len did not move. Then suddenly Lefevre, like a bird in flight, was rising on one toe and his racquet made an arc in the air. The ball missed the service box. "Fault!" came from above in French. Again Lefevre was up on one toe and again the ball came toward Len. This time it landed inside the white line and mechanically he swung at it. The gut meeting soft ball seemed to vibrate through his entire body—the switch which electrified him into action.

Len remembered how Grace had come to him from the train the evening she had left home. To live on twenty-odd dollars a week—with him. Incredible! Wasn't that bravery? Why, she was the most courageous, the loveliest—he swung but the ball seemed suddenly heavy and landed in the net. "Monsieur Lefevre leads," came the shrill French voice from above, "one love; change, please."

One love. One love. It reverberated through his brain. One love was all he would ever know. Grace. Except, of course, this other and (as she claimed) greater love—Oh, yes, it was his service. He threw the ball above his head. The racquet was light in his hand as he swung. The ball hit the ground on the other side and twisted sharply. Lefevre off balance, knocked it outside. Len felt suddenly elated and as quickly depressed.

So she was being married today. Today of all days. To Richard Whyte. By the time he walked off the court, in victory or defeat, she would no longer belong to him. He felt a soft, small hand trembling on his arm as the paternal, kindly minister read from his Bible; and outside it was raining. It was raining, drumming against the window panes—and the radio played on—opening in the far baseline corner! The racquet swept the ball toward the spot; Lefevre reached it but could not return the ball with strength. He went to the net and smashed, skanting it off at a sharp angle. There was sudden thunder from the stands and the boy was handing three balls to Lefevre. Were they even up in games then?

She was being married. And he was here in Europe, playing tennis. "Father has arranged for a speedy divorce." He, Len Rollins, was worth fifty thousand dollars now, if he cared to be.

Well, he could do a lot with fifty thousand dollars. Travel, keep on playing without worry about the future. There it was again, damn it! Tennis. Always tennis. Grace had left him because of it. And now she was marrying Richard Whyte.

The ball sped back and forth across the net, its soft hardness against the gut causing the racquets to sing. And then it was past him and there was a roar from the stands which continued, short but awe-inspiring, as they changed courts.

"I love you, Len, terribly." And the way she quivered when he held her close to him. How difficult it was, after all, to peer into the future. That first time they ever had seen each other, did either believe then that their lives would have turned out like this?

Another game was over and the Frenchman, smiling slightly as they passed each other, led four to one.

Yet somehow it did not seem important; it did not matter much whether he won or not. He returned the smile automatically.

And that idyllic week, they had known together in Florida. Shoulders touching as they sat on the beach overlooking the blue-green water, trembling. He had loved her very much then—and always would. He did not know the ball had passed him. It was the wind in his eyes, of course, that blurred his vision. But there was no wind. Grimly he gritted his teeth and stood waiting, but something was wrong.

At last he realized that Lefevre must have won the first set and that he was standing foolishly at the baseline awaiting the serve. He walked slowly to table and sucked a lemon; washed his face with a towel though the perspiration, despite the heat, was slight. He had not yet cabled the flowers. Perhaps he should have done so before coming here to the Stade. He must remember to attend to it immediately the match was over . . .

They were playing again now and the Frenchman was pressing the advantage he had gained by winning the first set. His attack was relentless, his recoveries magnificent. Only Len's service saved him from rapid humiliation. That and his occasional net play. But it was impossible for him to concentrate long upon the little white sphere Lefevre kept persistently returning to him. Always a picture of Grace's face—smiling and radiant, or a bit frightened and tearful—intervened.

He chased back, back, after a long job, hit it from over his shoulder. Lefevre at the net "killed" the sensational return. "Monsieur Lefevre leads in the second set, two games to one."

Two games to one! That all the margin of difference? Oh, yes, and there was one set already to the Frenchman's credit. But what matter? Eventually he, Len Rollins, would win or lose. He'd much rather win, of course, but if he lost—

Would Justin still give him that manager's job in Indianapolis if he wanted it? In New York it was only early morning. Let's see, the match had started at 2:30; it must be shortly after three now. Why, in New York it was only seven o'clock. Plenty of time. Plenty of time to cable Justin—and Grace. She still loved him. More than she did Whyte. Of that he would be sure, always. Perhaps if he—but it was too late. Yet was it? Why not feign sudden illness and no—he could not, must not, do that. It was—well, it just wasn't what the English called cricket. Yet he might during the next change, jot down two messages and have the boy send them. He might. But he knew he never would. In motion pictures, perhaps, things were done that way, but not in real life. Real life was different. Conventional, inexorable, cruel.

Zing—zing—zing sound of perfectly timed racquet meeting a white fuzzy ball. Lefevre dancing on legs that were spry and tireless; himself, long-limbed, cool, deliberate, moving back and forth, up and down, arm making arcs and circles as the ball shot off his racquet. Perspiration was beginning to come only now, and vaguely he wondered at it. His country's cause should stir him to greater efforts, but there were other things—other things which crowded all else out of his mind.

He won the next two points. Lefevre frowned.

If he had gone out to Easthampton after her at once, they'd never have gone for that ride in Hughes' car. And if they hadn't—but what use thinking of that now! It was too late. The sharp intake of her breath, the shriek of fright as the small car swerved, were in his ears; the taste of blood was salty on his lips. He laughed shortly; it was not blood on his lips of course, but perspiration. And Lefevre was still dancing on the other side of the court like a satyr grinning—

Len could do nothing with the ball. His racquet had gone dead and heavy. He could not control his motions. Legs and arms were listless. Lefevre was constantly pushing him to the base line, bombarding him with scorching drives. And the insufferable singsong voice from above kept up its chant in French: "Monsieur Lefevre's game. Monsieur Lefevre leads one love in the third set."

The ball came toward him and he slashed it back at Lefevre's feet, the force of the drive knocking the French player off balance. His next service was deadly, with more spin than any previous service in all his career. He crossed over to the opposite side of the baseline, poised and again served. Vainly Lefevre strained to reach the ball—and failed. Two successive aces—"Monsieur Rollins' game. Score in games two-all in third set. Monsieur Lefevre leading in sets, two-love."

Progress Noted In Every Phase Of Activity Here

Best Crop Prospects In Years Add Glow To Picture

Littlefield and surrounding territory is in the midst of one of the most progressive periods it has enjoyed in the past decade. Progress is reported on projects already underway. Foundations are being laid for new programs, and enthusiasm is mounting over others still in the embryonic stage.

Prospects are bright, not merely for a bumper crop this season, but for one of the best in the history of Lamb county. Indications of progress are prominent in all other phases, and to even the most casual observer, conditions must seem eminently better than in several years.

Briefly, the picture is:

1. Construction work continues on Littlefield's new $70,000 post office building, which will be occupied shortly after Jan. 1, 1941.
2. The paving of 56 blocks of city streets progresses, with property owners cooperating with the Works Projects Administration and the City of Littlefield. City officials plan to apply for additional funds in order to continue the work throughout 1941.
3. The architect's plans have been submitted on a municipal auditorium for the city, and enthusiasm is widespread over this proposed project.
4. Within a few weeks, city officials will hear reports of engineers who are making surveys in regard to a proposed surface drainage project for Littlefield.
5. A WPA Recreation Program is underway at the City Park with hundreds of children and adults taking advantage of the supervised play. Plans are to construct a playground in the College Heights addition and to start similar projects at other places in the county.
6. The foundation has been poured on the new Methodist church building. Completion is near on the new Hammons Funeral Home, and construction or remodeling of residences is underway throughout the city. Several business houses have completed remodeling projects during the past few weeks.
7. The Lamb County Electric Co-operative is proving one of the most beneficial organizations ever formed in this area. Already 600 miles of lines, serving rural districts, have been energized and the organization hopes to have 1,000 miles of lines contracted for by Jan. 1, 1941. Littlefield is the center of this industry and every month those served by the organization come here to transact business with the group.
8. Improvement work on State Highway 51 proceeds at a steady rate. Prospects appear bright for definite action to be taken soon on the east-west highway through Lamb county. This route serves several towns of the county. A group of Littlefield business men and county officials appeared before the State Highway Commission the first of the week urging that the road be given state designation.
9. An increase of 49 scholastics in the Littlefield Independent School District was reported Wednesday by school officials. Scholastics this year totaled 1,825 as compared with 1,776 last year.
10. Beautifying of the school grounds here will begin next week.

Culberson Defeats Brooks In Run-off For R. R. Commissioner; Nearly 40,000 Votes Cast In Plains Area

Lamb county voters joined nearly 40,000 others in South Plains counties Saturday to make selections in the Democratic run-off primary for railroad commissioner and local candidates.

Approximately 2,000 votes were cast in Lamb county, nearly half of them in Precinct No. 4, which includes Littlefield.

In the state races, Olin Culberson defeated Pierce Brooks for the office of railroad commissioner, and Alexander was elected chief justice of the state supreme court over H. S. Lattimore. However, Culberson and Alexander trail their opponents in Lamb county. In local races, Troy Howton defeated L. A. Ratliff, 502 votes to 398 to win the contest for constable, Precinct 4, and Sam J. Farquhar polled 562 votes against 367 for Willis Holder in the race for justice of the peace.

The county's vote on state races was:

Railroad commissioner: Brooks, 1,283; Culberson, 879.
Chief justice: Lattimore, 1,079; Alexander, 961.
Representative 120th district: Tom W. Deen, 1,092; L. G. Matthews, 1,045.

Culberson, the new railroad commissioner, carried ten counties in the area to seven for his opponent, Brooks, but Brooks led in the total votes cast in the section, 19,738 to 19,715. Brooks carried Bailey, Cochran, Dickens, Floyd, Hale, Hockley and Lamb counties, while Culberson carried Lubbock, Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Gaines, Garza, Crosby, Dawson, Motley and Scurry. Lattimore led Alexander for chief justice, 21,535 to 15,170. Alexander only carried Bailey, Cochran and Floyd counties in this section. Deen, of Floydada, a former county judge, defeated Mathews, also of Floydada, 7,462 to 6,299, based on incomplete returns from the 120th district.

Playground Planned For College Heights

With the Littlefield WPA recreation program at the City Park in full swing, plans are being made to open a new playground under the same project in College Heights Addition. Dona Huff, supervisor, said Tuesday. Miss Huff added that the College Heights program would probably be started next week.

Interest and attendance at the local project continues to increase, according to the supervisor. Local attendance for the first week was 2,300, an average daily attendance of about 450.

Children of all ages as well as adults, have been participating in all the activities.

The opening of school next week will necessitate a change in the playground schedule, and a new schedule will be published in an early edition of the Lamb County Leader, Miss Huff said.

The Littlefield project is the first unit of the Lamb County WPA recreational program. Within the next few weeks other units will be opened in other towns of the county.
