A Plea for Reduction of Taxes and Bonds

ATTAIN TO THE STATE OF

(An Editorial)

Under the caption, "A Plea for Reduction of Taxes and Bonds," the Legislature's Committee on Organization and Economy has compiled a booklet of facts "published without prejudice for or against any department or agency of government, for the information of the people of Texas."

The people are vitally interested in cost of government-more interested than at any time in many years.

The voter's apathy and careless balloting in the past has been largely responsible for our excessive government cost. Our lack of interest in reduction of government expense is amply proven by the fact that legislators are seldom asked to vote AGAINST appropriations; we always plead with our representatives to vote FOR this or that outlay of money.

We must remember, before we deal too harshly with the "big boys" of government, that about 80 per cent of our taxes are spent, directly or indirectly, by county, school and city governments.

If we want our influence to be felt on July 23, vote for the man whose record promises honesty and economy in administering the affairs of his

Here is the introduction to the booklet compiled by the committee referred to above:

"The simple, inexpensive government on which, less than a century ago, De Tocqueville congratulated this country, has as its successor today a vast complicated mechanism of which the running expenses absorb almost one-fifth of the income, from all sources, of the American people. Government-national, state and local-costs the people of this country $14,500,000,000 annually. This vast sum is collected and spent by 250,-000 taxing units and supports an army of three million to five million public employees. It represents a per capita burden of about $117 annually, or to put it another way, government costs us between $500 and $600 per family per year. The federal government spends $5,000,000,000 a year; the state governments more than $2,000,000,000; city, county and other local agencies spend more than $7,000,000,000.

"Not only the present volume of our governmental expenses, but the rapidity with which it has been achieved is alarming. Forty years ago the per capita cost of government in the United States was but $13.56. Twenty years ago government spent but one-eleventh of the national income. Its cost has increased out of all proportion either to the increase of population or to the growth of the national wealth.

"Montesquieu, whose writings profoundly influenced the founders of our republic warned that 'the real wants of the people ought never to give way to the imaginary wants of the state.' Adam Smith, the father of political economy, wrote that public servants, when multiplied to an unnecessary number, may consume so great a proportion of the people's substance 'that all the frugality and good conduct of individuals may not be able to compensate the waste and regradation of produce occasioned by this violent and forced encroachment.' Apparently, we have heeded neither the great Frenchman nor the great Scotchman. Nor yet have we remembered Washington's admonition that we should preserve public credit by using it as sparingly as possible. In recent years we have allowed current expenses of government to reach almost unbelievable totals, and at the same time have tremendously increased our governmental debts. The present bonded indebtedness of cities, counties and other political sub-

Mr. Dawes, who was and is a successful banker as well as a statesman, ought to know what he is talking about. He does not hold out any glittering promises to the foolish folk who still believe that the end of the depression will be heralded by the over-night resumption of full production in every industry and the skyrocketing of stock exchange prices to where they were three years ago. But he points out that people are beginning to use more electric current, that the small business and industries are showing gains in many lines, and he sagely reminds us that recovery from depressions always starts at the bottom and works up. THE CALL OF MOSES Exodus 3:10-15; 4:10-12

At last Israel's time of training was nearing an end. They had come through bitter experience to see the futility of their own strivings and to turn in faith to Jehovah as the only hope of deliverance. In like manner Moses had passed through these long. Moses had passed through these long, lonely years of the testing desert experience, years which brought meekness, humility, and a tried and trustful faith. The hour of the divine call was at hand. Moses was to be God's instrument in a deliverance which would echo through the ages.

Now Moses has chosen: chosen to suffer affliction with the people of God rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season (Heb. 11:25). But still faith faltered; he doubted his own capacity. Humility is a grace

Note the infinite patience of Jehovah. When Moses questions, "Who am I that I should go unto Pharoah?" the reassuring answer is, "Certainly I will be with thee." To his second question as to have his distinct. thee." To his second question as to how his divine commission is to be established before Israel the tender response comes, "Thus shalt thou say unto the Children of Israel I AM hath sent me unto you." Yet even in the light of this marvelous unfolding of the nature of God a lingering doubt remains, Moses, like many another of God's servants, looks at himself instead of looking at the Almighty One. He brising the brising the brising and crowded during ten hours of the day with operators on pants and vests. Lipvitch took in piece work on the less difficult parts of manufacture, hirring his help from the tenements of the street. His stock did not spoil, he bought cheap and sold at a profit, even when protesting with a profit, even when protesting with the fight and spoil and selling. In the back, branching from a dark, narrow hallway with a splitting kept his mind alert and made him wary, while dim thoughts of things beyond the tenements, of wide avenues anad great mansions, crossed his consciousness in dreams. John learned that millionaires were in the city, powerful, kindly and immensely rich, looking about for worthy daughters of Israel. He suspected that miles and miles beyond them lay vast territories unexplored.

A month in the Clothing Emporium It was a nice little business, buying Back of the two work rooms came the kitchen, small and dark, opening to the living room in the rear. At one side of this, back of a sink, to save plumbing, was the bathroom. stretched the full seventeen feet from party wall to party wall. Here father, mother, Becka and the twins, Muriel and Constance, the latter just able to walk, were sheltered.

In the living room there were two beds, covered by colored spreads by day and shoved against the wall farthest from the windows, to get away from the night air. Becka and the twins slept on one of these and Mr. and Mrs. Lipvitch occupied the other. With the advent of Johnny Breen a cot, from a nearby second hand store, cot, from a nearby second hand store, was placed beneath one of the windows.

And so the months went by in a smother of smells and chatter and continuous struggle.

As the summer waxed to its fullest heat and high humidity thickened the air with oppressive damp, the Lipvitch family moved out of their back room into the rear area of the teneburst out of his clothes, his strong body never tired. He could lift Becka high up so she might reach the top shelves in the shop; she was often needing things there, and then, suddenly, he refused to lift her, but climbed up himself and found nothing.

John had achieved a prime requisite for worldly success. He was known four and five blocks away as "Fighting Lipvitch." He became a celebrity, nothing less, elevated above the boys on the street ion a par, in fact, with young men four and five years his senior in point of are and fact, with young men four and five years his senior in point of age and a decade beyond him in worldly lore. The Grovan Gang, out for revenge, cruised the Ghetto. John Breen, with brass knuckle dusters in his pockets, a reckless light in his eyes, fought when there were no more than two or three, and took to his heels before a gang. He rather liked fighting, it added to his nopularity. He began to absorb the philosophy of the Ghetto, the kindly brotherhood of those who live within the pale. He also absorblive within the pale. Incidentally, the Conoco Continental Oil Company, has already set a record for trip services, according to E. S. Karstedt, vice presi-

to the growing popularity of this free travel service and to an improvement in general business conditions to the point where Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen have been convinced that they can afford an annual vacation trip, said Mr. Karstedt.

"The service extended by the Conoco Travel Bureau is of wide general value, aside from the direct benefit to the motorist," Mr. Karstedt pointed out, "in that it encourages motorists to stop and shop throughout the House for rent. See J. W. Keith- country, and because a large staff of workers have been enlisted from the ranks of the unemployed to handle this service to travelers.

"At the headquarters of the Conoco Travel bureau in Denver, a staff of 130 persons is maintained at this time, marking state road maps for individual vacation trips, and supplying innumerable pieces of literature devoted to scenic spots throughout the country. Of this staff, more than 100 persons have been employed during the past month, and the peak of the travel season will not be reached before July 20. This staff of workers does not include the thousands of Conoco employees who serve motorists at the more than 8,000 branches of the bureau throughout the country-wherever the Conoco red triangle is displayed.

Established in the spring of 1930, ist, not only on helping him to plan viding road maps and literature de-That is the report of the Conoco voted to major scenic attractions, but comfort of his tour.

> During the first year of the Conoco Travel bureau's operation slightly more than 26,000 such trips were planned for motorists. With the view to constantly improving its service, new features were added, and the service was advertised in newspapers throughout the country, with the result that more than 67,000 motorists called upon the bureau to plan motor vacations during 1931.

Success of the 1931 season prompted the bureau to prepare to serve an even greater number of tourists this year. It was fortunate that plans vere made in advance, for the opening of the travel season saw an avalanche of requests for trip services that by June 10 had reached 73,000, and this number was increased to over 100,000 by June 20.

Anyone who travels by motor car is eligible to sall upon the Conoco Travel bureau for a free trip service, regardless of the distance traveled or the route covered. Trips actually planned by the bureau this year covered every state and province in North America, and ranged from 500 to 10,000 miles, while the average is approximately 3,500 miles each, Using this average as a basis, and considering that about 110,000 trips have been planned, it is estimated that mo tor cars "traveling the Conoco way" will have covered 385,000,000 miles by the time these vacation trip come to an end.

The Democratic party Friday night nominated Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Governor of New York state, for the presidency of the United States, after what threatened to be a long drawn out deadlock had been overcome.

The fourth ballot gave Governor Roosevelt 945 votes, or 169 more than the necessary two-thirds majority required for nomination. Roosevelt's gain was steady, the count being 666% in the first ballot, 677% in the second and 682 79 /100 in the Governor Alfred E. Smith, who had been heralded by many political prognosticators as the probable "dark horse", drew a count of 201% on the first ballot, descending to 19414 on the second and 190% on the third.

Texas' "favorite son", John Nance Garner, held the indivisible support of his adherents through the first two ballots with 90 % votes, gaining to 1014 in the third.

The apparent deadlock was averted when Speaker Garner released his own state's delegates, which action was quickly followed by California's aggregation, headed by William Gibbs McAdoo, the two states adding to the Roosevelt column 90 votes, more than enough to total the two-thirds majority for nomination. This action came late in the day Friday, preventing an apparent recurrence of Roosevelt to enter politics, and his the Thursday night all-night session.

The official count gave Roosevelt far more than the two-thirds majority required, the tally being:

John Nance Garner, the Speaker of the House of Representatives was born on a ranch in Red River County, Texas, November 22, 1869. He went to country schools, studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1890, was a member of the Texas House of Representatives from 1898 to 1902 and was elected to Congress from the 15th Texas district in 1903, serving continuously since then. He was married in 1895 to Ettie Rheiner. He was elected Speaker of the House in the present Congress.

in the New York state senate. John dent Wilson, was Democratic nominee E. Mack, the same Mack that nominated him at Chicago, at that time the leader of the party in Dutchess county, New York, induced young guess at Roosevelt's ability was in no wise amiss, for, when the ballots were counted, Franklin D. Roosevelt was a state senator.

Since 1910, Roosevelt has never been out of the political limelight, although four years of this time were spent on the side-lines recuperating from an almost fatal attack of infantile paralysis.

The Democratic nominee was born in the same house in which he still lives, at Hyde Park, Dutchess county, New York, on January 30, 1882. He is a graduate of Harvard and Columbia Law School. He married his sixth cousin, Anna Roosevelt, daughter of former President Roosevelt't brother, in 1905 ;they have five children.

for vice-president in 1920, and was first elected governor of New York in 1929, and was re-elected in 1931.

Garner Nominated Vice-President Texas Democrats succeeded Saturday in nominating John Nance Garner for vice-president of the United States, after shifting their solid support from the Texan to Roosevelt on Without a break the states indorsed Garner or remained silent until Iowa nominated M. A. Tinley of Council Bluffs, a favorite son and war hero. After the roll call Tinsley withdrew in a gracious speech and moved the nomination by acclamation of Texas' favorite son, starting a landslide surpassing even that of the previous day given the presidential nominee. As a matter of fact, this was the only time that the Democratic convention was entirely in harmony. When permanent chairman T. J. Walsh saw that the Garner demonstration would assume landslide proportions, he graciously and quietly vacated his high seat and in his place appeared the stately figure of the junior Texas senator, Tom Connally, of Marlin, who had previously championed the interest of the Lone Star delegation in his Garner-for-president nominating speech. Senator Connally placed the motion of unanimous approval and declared his friend, the tawny Texas son, the vice-presidential nominee, starting a Garner demonstration in which every state delegation participated. Before the huge demonstration had been concluded, and as the convention awaited patiently the aerial arrival of presidential nominee Roosevelt to make his acceptance speech, Sam Rayburn of Texas read a telegram of acceptance from Speaker Garner, in which he predicted victory in November with restoration of power to the people.

Seek Municipal Power Plant Here

A heavily signed petition has been presented to the City Commission asking that body to sponsor a municipal power plant.

The petition was signed by business men and a large number of the other residents.

The petition sets out that such a plant is asked with the idea in mind of giving the city a new source of revenue, in order that reduction in taxes may be effected.

Those signing the petition agreed to support such a plant at a reasonable rate for electrical current for such time as is required to pay for the necessary equipment.

field for some time. One of the especially good features of the day was the fact that there was something to interest everybody. The program included a parade just before the opening of the rodeo and horse racing, band concerts, candidate speaking, the awarding of $40 in cash as Trades Day prizes, a baseball game, a water fight put on by the Littlefield fire department, and a street dance as the concluding feature of the day's program.

The horse racing and rodeo was a special feature of the day, in addition to the program planned by the merchants. Legion and band, and was under the direction of Homer Smith, Dr. R. S. Tanner, Col. J. W. Horn, and Everett Whicker. While there were not a large number of entries the horse racing and rodeo program attracted much interest and should have the effect of increasing the interest in good livestock in this section.

The sides in the water fight were captained by two brothers, Sid and Jake Hopping. Jake says that his side won the victory and Sid says that Jake is a-well, Sid thinks Jake would make a better county clerk than a captain in a water fight.

Candidate speaking was in progress throughout the afternoon. Talks were made by candidates for state and district offices, and for county offices. Among the speakers were J. N. Johnston of Floydada, candidate for rep-divisions of Texas alone is equal to about three-fourths of the bonded debt of the United States in 1915.

"Governmental expenses have imposed an almost insupportable burden upon private enterprise and at the same time the ability of the latter to bear this burden has been impaired by competitive activities on the part of government. Almost every field of endeavor has been invaded by government agencies. Practically every trade and every profession is represented in the growing army of public employees. For men and women of the most diverse talents and abilities the public service offers places. Hence, we see in popular magazines advertisements of schools for training public employees, which advertisements contain such statements as the following: 'Pick the job you want, I'll help you get it.' 'You don't have to worry all the time about lay-offs or being fired. Hard times do not affect the government employees and he gets an average of $200 a year more than other workers.' 'Government positions; splendid salaries.' 'We have shown thousands the way.' Skilled and unskilled laborers, clerks, mechanics, people with ambition to be managers, inspectors or experts of any description are invited to exchange the hazards of private enterprise for the security of employment by the one 'business' which grows, flourishes and 'pays off' regardless of general conditions.

"Within the last two years there has been a general shrinkage of property values, attended by a deflation of prices of all products. Private citizens have been forced to reduce their household expenses because of the reduced purchasing power of their earnings. But no one could guess from a study of public expense we were not passing through a period of unprecedented prosperity. Our national, state and local governments, far from retrenching, have increased their expenditures. At a time when the people need to employ for themselves an increased share of the income, they are required to enlarge their contributions to government.

"We are perilously close to the limit of our resources for government expenses, if indeed we have not reached the limit. The paramount question before us today is: How shall we reduce governmental debts? It confronts us in respect of every branch of government—district, municipal, county, state and federal. It must be answered, and speedily, if private enterprise is to be preserved and public credit maintained."
