Drunk Man Proves He Is Car Thief

City police arrested a drunk man in the Flats section of Littlefield Saturday little realizing that he was the thief who abandoned a stolen pickup here last week.

Acting Chief of Police F. A. Fitzgerald told of the unusual experience which occurred here. Monday morning when Fitzgerald came to work he found that members of the department had picked up J. C. Perkins, alias David Williams, and placed him in the city jail on a drunk charge.

Fitzgerald and the other policemen discussed the name, David Williams, since it seemed to "ring a bell." After thinking and discussing the matter during the morning the men came up with the name.

On July 16 the police had taken an abandoned 1933 pickup off Highway 84 and, after advising surrounding law enforcement officers, found it belonged to a farmer who lived nine miles southeast of Lubbock. The farmer claimed the pickup. Clothing in the pickup bore the name of David Williams.

The police then interrogated the man and after playing a hunch checked with the Slaton police. They found he had been released in Slaton on July 7. Returning to the jail the interrogation started again. Finding that the police knew about him the Negro confessed and gave his real name.

He said that he and another Negro had stolen the pickup. At the time the police picked it up on Highway 84 the men had gone to get gasoline. When they returned the pickup was gone.

Sheriff's deputies from Lubbock returned the man there where a charge of car theft was filed against him.

On checking with Sheriff Dick Dyer they found that the man had almost every charge possible filed against him in Lamb County since 1945. His real name is J. C. Perkins.

These charges had been satisfied by fines or other punishment. Fitzgerald said that the case is unusual in that in most cases where stolen cars are abandoned the thieves are seldom apprehended.

Law Enforcement Officers Are Eluded in Wild Chase

Littlefield Grows

Littlefield's progress continues this week with the construction of a 40 x 100 foot stone building to house the Littlefield Federal Savings and Loan Association. The building is on XIT Drive at the site formerly occupied by Cleo Smith Lumber Company. The building, which is estimated to cost around $50,000, will feature a drive-in window. Construction is being supervised by Joe Wells.

Driver Believed To Be 'Madman Killer' At Hobbs

Sheriff Dick Dyer and members of the Littlefield police department engaged in one of the wildest chases ever crisscrossed by local law enforcement officers when both departments picked up the trail of a late model car thought to be a Mercury, after being alerted by Sheriff Hazel Hancock of Morton.

Sheriff Dyer said Wednesday night that he was alerted by the Morton sheriff after the man had taken two shots at a man near Morton. Dyer set up a road block near the Oklahoma Flats just when the car ran the road block. Dyer, who was alone, took pursuit of the car. He said that the car was traveling at a very high rate of speed and was turning on all kinds of roads.

They came onto Highway 51 where Dyer remained in pursuit until the other car turned off and went across a field where a lake had been plowed in deep furrows. When the sheriff's car hit the furrows the engine went dead and he was not able to start the engine again, but had enough power to signal the city police who picked up the trail.

The city police chased the man over the same type of trail in the blinding dust and finally landed in a barrow ditch where the patrol car got stuck, and the car got away.

Sheriff Hazel Hancock of Morton said they had all been alerted after the "Madman Killer" had struck at Hobbs and Charles Winders who lives in Morton and works in the oil fields was returning to Morton from work. About 10 miles south of Morton a blue Mercury was off on a shoulder of the highway. A man stood by the car waving something in his left hand. Winders did not stop and as he passed the man shot twice. Winders said his first impulse was to stop, but on second thought sped into Morton and got Sheriff Hancock Hancock said that they returned to the location and found where the car had been but could not find the empty cartridges. He then notified other law enforcement officers in the area.

Both Sheriff Hancock and Sheriff Dyer believe the men to be those involved in the Hobbs incident, although there is no positive proof. But the fact that the men look such desperate chances led the officers to believe that they must have been. Both say that on bootlegging and liquor transporting charges these men usually give up the chase when they are pursued.

Dyer said that the men went through plowed fields, fences, ditches, over dirt and paved roads in their effort to get away.

New Mexico Victims Killed Tuesday Morning

The New Mexico victims, whose bodies were found early Tuesday morning were: J. D. Cantrell, 27, Carlsbad, N.M., and Mrs. Barbara Edwards Lemmons and Mrs. Dorothy Fern Gibson, both 23 of Hobbs.

All were killed with a .22 caliber weapon by someone who stopped his car on a lonely stretch of cross-country highway 36 miles west of Hobbs where Cantrell apparently was helping the women change a flat tire.

Cantrell died at the spot from six bullet wounds in the head, chest and hands. His body, still warm, was found at 4:10 a.m. partially on U. S. Highway 150.

The bodies of the two women, one shot in the back, were found by an oilfield worker, 20 miles away and six hours later in a grassy draw along an isolated oil field road one and one-half miles off the highway.

Officers said there were indications of a "terrific struggle" at the spot where Cantrell, his truck, and the women's car were found. The women apparently were forced into another car and shot at the spot where their bodies were found later. The slugs which killed the trio and tracks of a third vehicle behind the women's car are the only clues which have been found.

New Mexico State Policeman J. A. Smith said, "The killer is obviously deranged—he is a madman."

The third vehicle, also headed east stopped at the scene. There was evidence of a struggle. A high school ring belonging to Mrs. Lemmons and a shoe belonging to Mrs. Gibson were found on the ground.

Lead from the bullets was found under Cantrell's body indicating that he was shot at least once after he had fallen.

Slugs Are Sent to California. The sheriff at Hobbs put the slugs taken from the victims aboard a plane to Los Angeles where it will be determined whether the same gun was used in the slaying of the two El Segundo policemen Monday.

Officers explained that the men who killed the El Segundo policemen would have enough time to reach the Hobbs area had he fled California immediately after the crime there.

Tech Gets Gin Engineering Course

The National Cotton Council announced yesterday that Texas Technological College in Lubbock is one of the colleges chosen to teach a gin engineering course this fall.

Reasons given for giving the course to Tech are that 12 per cent of the nation's cotton is grown in the area, the cotton oil mills, the compresses, and the U. S. government grading offices are located in Lubbock.

Surrounding counties whose students attend Tech rank high in the nation's cotton production. Tech had had a complete Textile Engineering department since its opening.

Man and Baby Are Still Missing

No trace has been found of Johnny Lee Milligan of Littlefield, charged in Castro County with theft by false pretense on giving a $1000 check to Castro Motor Co. on a car trade.

Milligan disappeared from the home of his mother, Mrs. Dan Heard, northeast of Littlefield, with his eleven month old daughter, Jannette Colleen, on July 7. He took only the baby's bottle and a pair of coveralls. He was later seen in Lubbock but from there the trail was lost.

The man's mother has appealed to him to give himself up before he gets into worse trouble. His ex-wife, Mrs. Billy Jean Milligan, added her plea and is afraid for the baby's safety. Mrs. Milligan and her two other children reside in Lubbock.

Milligan had been working for his step-brothers on a farm near Dimmitt since his discharge from the Air Force early this year.

He is reported to be driving a 1937 Chevrolet sedan with dealers' license number 9N-2500.

Mayfield said that he had been to Lubbock in his Chevrolet pickup to get some produce and meat for his store. He said that he had been working long hours during hoeing season and was very tired and the sun was glaring in his face when he hit a large pile of caliche as he was returning home. Area Growers Suffer Loss On Onion and Potato Crops

Yields have been cut in most fields by the long stage of cool weather that came immediately after planting. Growers who got good yields in the area are expected to realize some profit even at the level potato and onion prices are now. Potatoes are $2 to $2.25 per bag and are barely 25 percent of last year's record high, and onions occupied about the same situation, selling during recent days at $1.25 per bag for No. 1's.

Area Growers Suffer Loss On Onion and Potato Crops

It costs producers about 80c per bag to process the potatoes and onions.

The harvest is well underway, but lacks the frenzied digging, packing and shipping activity that characterized it last year.

A new development, spraying rather than beating vines, offers some promise of improving sales of potatoes. It is reported that the Ladybug Co. has perfected treatment of vines with a non-toxic chemical spray of sodium arsenate. The chemical kills the vines, toughens the skin of the tubers and is expected to give a better keeping, higher-grading spud.

The system has been widely used in other parts of the nation with good results. Adapting it to this area required a three-weeks period of tests and experimentation before the right combination of chemical and rate of application was achieved.

Hereford potato growers have used the method with good results. After spraying the tubers are supposed to remain in the ground for a week before digging begins.

The rapid growth of Littlefield is shown in the new inter-toll dial trunks here in Littlefield, according to Fred Mathis, manager of the General Telephone Co. in Littlefield. Since 1930, 1938 telephones have been added to the company's switchboard. Since 1949 the number of subscribers has almost doubled.

The General Telephone Company of the Southwest has just completed the installation of 21 inter-toll dial trunks here in Littlefield, according to Fred Mathis, district manager, which will connect Littlefield with the inter-toll network which will give direct access to all exchanges connected with inter-toll network in the United States and Canada for completion of long distance installation, stated Mathis. The step to keep pace with the growth of the telephone industry in the United States. Since World War II, the telephone industry has experienced an unexpected and unprecedented request for telephone service.

Littlefield has shown a marked increase in telephones for the past several years. In 1930 Littlefield had 272 telephones; 1945 - 542 telephones; 1949 - 1180 telephones; 1953 - 1838 telephones; 1955 - 2697 telephones; 1956 - closed the year with 2203 telephones working. This has shown a steady increase in the month of June having a total of telephones in Littlefield at the 2255 level.

Along with the additional number of telephones must be the additional people to keep them working. Mathis said that there are 65 employees of General Telephone System in Littlefield with a payroll in excess of $300,000 annually.

16,000 To Be Returned To Veterans

AUSTIN — More than $16,000 in refunds will soon be in the hands of Texas veterans, Lan Rudder, state land commissioner, said today.

The fees were collected by the Veterans Land Board from veterans buying land through the Veterans Land Program. The transactions were not correct, but until now fees could not be returned.

Commissioner Rudder recommended to the Legislature during its last session that the law be amended to authorize refund of the fees.

He wants to commend the Legislature for giving the veterans their refund of their money," the commissioner remarked.

A total of $16,271.80 will be refunded to 229 veterans who have paid fees since the program was started in October, 1955, but did not complete their transactions.

This is an average of $71.00 per veteran. The largest refund is $100, the amount each veteran must pay in fees. Several receive the full amount. Most of the $100 covers closing costs, $25 in appraisal fee, and a contract service fee. The Veterans Land Board has mailed refunds this week and will be mailed within several

Farmers May Obtain Book On Radioactive Fallout

AUSTIN — To help farmers survive a nuclear attack, county agents are being supplied a booklet "Defense Against Radioactive Fallout on the Farm."

"While those on the farm and ranches are not in the critical target areas," warns William L. McGill, state coordinator of defense and disaster relief, "many would be critically affected by radioactive fallout in the event of an enemy nuclear attack. This pamphlet, U.S.A. Bulletin 2107, is an invaluable aid to rural survival."

Experiments have proven that dangerous fallout occurs in a cigar-shaped area downwind from the target. Generally speaking, this could cover an area 140 miles long and up to 20 miles in width. Several factors determine the area where fallout would seriously threaten lives of persons and livestock; altitude of bomb burst power and design of bomb, wind speed, etc.

The closer to earth that the explosion takes place the greater will be the fallout because larger quantities of soil, rock, and debris are drawn up into the ascending cloud. After mixing with the highly radioactive material, particles fall back to the earth with the greatest hazard existing during the early hours following the explosion. The radiation hazard decreases with the passage of time because the radioactive materials decay, or gradually lose their ability to emit rays.

Since fallout material resembles dirt or dust, some protection is afforded to livestock by trees; however, barns provide the best protection. Contaminated animals and poultry, in some instances can be holed with water and then housed in barns. Animals and poultry should be fed grain or hay which has not been contaminated, and given water from a covered storage tank or cistern for a few days. Vegetables and fruits will be contaminated in the fields and must be thoroughly washed. Farm workers should remain indoors until the danger from fall

Frenzy of Today's Living Make Us Overlook Important Values

Americans are driving themselves at a frenzied pace. On the streets they exceed speed limits, jockey with each other to pull ahead and get to their destinations a few seconds earlier, when there is no reason for haste in the first place. In grocery stores they push and vie to get to the head of the line, so they can hurry home and do nothing. Life is lived at such a rapid pace that a large percentage of the adult population is taking some kind of sedative pill to quiet their jangled nerves.

Common courtesy, which formerly held a top position in the social conventions of the American people, is forgotten. It has been replaced by overwhelming interest in the materialistic things in life.

Unfortunately, the frenzy does not extend to some factors in life which really are important. Intellectually we have become too phlegmatic. In the fields of morals and government we have become too indifferent. When an especially heinous sex crime is committed against a child, there is public indignation. But in the every-day decline in moral standards, caused largely by chaotic conditions of two world wars, there is not the indignation that would be expected of Americans.

There seems to be public indifference to the fact that the United States is fast moving into national socialism. If the people were asked to vote directly on the issue, socialism undoubtedly would lose by a wide margin. But when socialist-minded leaders in Washington advocate measures which will lead us farther into socialism, like nationalization of the power industry and federal control of the schools, there is no loud and widespread outcry from the public.

The nation's sense of values has been derailed. It's time we slowed down enough to reappraise ourselves and try to get back on the right track.

Senate Settles Down for Long Debate on Civil Rights Bill

The civil rights bill, preliminary consideration of which began in the Senate Monday, bids fair to engender one of the longest drawn-out legislative battles in decades. Meanwhile, virtually all other legislation must be shelved, and much of it never will get to the floor.

A majority of the senators unquestionably are determined to enact the first civil rights bill of the 20th century.

Southern senators are equally determined that it will not pass in the form in which the House already has approved it by a vote of 286 to 126. They would "fistbust it to death" if they could; apparently they cannot, as Sen. William F. Knowland, the Republican leader, has said that Congress will stay in session until a bill passes, and President Eisenhower also insists upon passage.

The Southern members believe that they can get a compromise talking much of the sting out of this clearly sectional legislation.

Northern and Western senators who will vote for the bill must have been impressed when Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia declared on the floor last week that the bill "is cunningly devised to vest in the attorney general unprecedented power to bring to bear the whole might of the federal government, including the armed forces if necessary. . . . Russell is highly regarded by his fellow senators and never has been accused of demagoguery.

Almost as grim a warning was sounded by Sen. Eastland of Mississippi when he said that the bill would reactivate the "compulsory informer act" passed during the Reconstruction era, depriving newspapers of the right to conceal their sources of information. It also "would compel neighbor to inform against neighbor, brother against brother, child against parent," Eastland declared.

This "force bill," directed solely at the South, is too drastic, even if it be granted that some sort of reinforcement of civil rights legislation is needed. Millions of Americans do not grant that. The bill should be amended to remove such dangers as Russell and Eastland pointed out.

Fortunately, the prospects for compromise look favorable. Russell said after a conference with the President Wednesday that the chief executive is against enactment of any "punitive" legislation and that his mind is not closed to amendments. The Senate traditionally has been reluctant to impose cloture, for no senator knows when he may want to employ tactics against some measure he doesn't like. And so it should not be easy to summon the 64 votes needed to shut off debate.

Highlights and Sidelights From Your State Capitol

By VERN SANFORD Texas Press Association

AUSTIN, Tex.—A big change is forthcoming in the operation of the largest law enforcement division of the State.

In keeping with recommendations of the Texas Research League, following a two-year study, the Texas Department of Public Safety will reorganize into six commands. Each command will be responsible to the central office in Austin.

Headquarters of the six regions will be in Lubbock, Corpus Christi, Waco, Houston, Dallas and Midland. Two Highway Patrol districts will be within each command.

Col. Homer Garrison will continue in the Austin office, in overall charge, with the rank of major.

Heading the various commands will be Capt. R. A. (Bob) Crowder (Lubbock); Chief Kent Odem (Corpus Christi); Chief W. J. Ellett (Waco); Capt. Glenn Rose (Houston); Capt. Guy Smith (Dallas); and Capt. W. E. Speir (Midland).

In addition to the regional reorganization, the new plan calls for four central divisions in Austin. Identification and intelligence services will be in charge of Chief Joel Tisdale. Motor vehicle records and services will be handled by Chief A. F. Temple. Personnel and staff services will be directed by Chief Glen McLaughlin. And inspection and planning will be headed by Chief G. W. Busby.

Colonel Garrison said the move would result in more efficient service and greater economies. "The Texas Rangers also will come under the regional grouping," Garrison stated. "A Ranger captain will be within each region, and responsible to the regional commander."

TO DAM OR NOT TO DAM — A slice of the sort of troubles that plague Texas water development planning is shown in the current problems of the Brazos River Authority.

At Gov. Price Daniel's request, BRA directors held a statewide conference in Austin. Purpose: to reconcile the numerous conflicting views on how best to use the waters of the 1300-mile stream. Scores of people came and spoke their minds, but reconciliation was hard to find.

BRA directors suggest a six-dam program on the Brazos. It would include raising the level of Possum Kingdom Dam and constructing six more dams between it and Whitney Dam. Cost is estimated at $187,000,000. BRA hopes to borrow $50,000,000 from the federal government, get the rest from private bond sales. All would eventually be repaid, according to the plan, by revenue from sale of power and water.

But downstream water users and private power companies are dead set against the plan. Representatives of South Texas industrial and agricultural interests contend that paying for the dams would raise the price of water they use from $1 to $10 an acre foot. Private utility spokesmen

But a surgeon, for example, kept medical journals for about forty years, thinking he'd get around to reading them. But when he had time, he'd go back to a big hospital and take a short course; during the regular days and weeks he was so exhausted after dinner he'd just fall asleep.

His wife talked him into getting rid of them — but not before he had glanced through a dozen copies. You guessed it: he read an article about an operation he had never performed and the very next week such a case came into his office.

A woman who reads incessantly has so many old magazines that her husband says they have run out of storage space in basement, attic and closets and now he's considering building a lean-to on the house. A man who likes to putter with mending and making household gadgets keeps old lengths of pipe, copper wire, iron rods, two-by-fours and varnish samples. A woman who has long since built her dream house still hangs on to house and garden clippings — several scrapbooks full of them.

Consumer Market For Beef Studied

An intensive study was made in 1955 by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to determine the Texas cattle raisers and the salers and retailers of beef. The study was specific and objective in its nature regarding the preferences of consumers for the various grades and cuts of beef.

The study was conducted in Houston, but corresponding studies were made in Phoenix, Arizona and Denver, Colorado.

A bulletin just released by the Experiment Station, "The Consumer Market for Beef," is a summary of this survey.

Irrespective of price, 80 percent of the 1,000 families interviewed in Houston preferred beef, according to the study. Chicken, the second most popular choice, as preferred by 15 percent of the families; veal by 9 per cent and fresh and frozen pork by 6 and 2 per cent respectively.

The income of a consumer generally had a marked relation to his meat preferences. Beef was usually preferred by the high income families while incomes shifted their choice between chicken or fresh pork. The likes of different incomes had about equal preference to veal.

Steak was the most popular meat and roast the second choice, reports the bulletin. The consumers placed major emphasis on leanness in meat, giving little consideration to marbling.

Prime meat was outsold by grades even when the price was the same! Probably because its leanness, round steak is most preferred beef cut. The roast is the most popular meat.

The bulletin contains more information and statistics on the points as well as on shopping, buying practices, freezer storage facilities, methods of preparation and serving beef and frequency of use of beef cuts.

Copies of this bulletin are available from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for bulletin 101.

 in - for your information it wasn't a copy of your paper, as this one had a fishy smell - that the price of steel had recently gone up $8 a ton, which clearly indicated the steel industry has let its newspaper subscription expire, as President Eisenhower only the day before had asked business to hold prices down voluntarily, and as a result a lot of other things were automatically going up.
 For example, naturally the watch manufacturers, on hearing the price of steel had gone up, will figure they ought to go up on the prices watches, as everybody knows the steel spring in a watch is made of steel, even if it doesn't weigh over an ounce.
 Plow points, tractors, cars, pickups, naturally will require an increase in price, to offset the rise in the price of steel, and so I decided what was good for industry was good for me. Consequently, when I took a dozen eggs into town yesterday to sell, I told the store I have to have five cents more.
 "How come?" the store owner asked.
 "Don't you read your newspaper? It's on account of the increase in the price of steel," I explained.
 Now here's the rub. Instead of nodding his head in agreement and saying there didn't seem to be any way around it, he just laughed. You could see he didn't have any full understanding of inflation and the upward price spiral.
 "Don't believe I'd be interested," he said.
 "But my costs are going up and I've got to have more money for these eggs."
 "Don't believe I'd be interested," he said, and turned around to wait on another customer.
 Now I could have waited him, but from long experience I knew the eggs couldn't, so I sold them at his price and came home.
 It's the people who don't mind understand inflation that's causing this country's ouch trouble. I don't mind paying $8 a ton more for steel if somebody will recognize I ought to get more for eggs. There are more people than you realize who are out of tune with me and my hens.
 Yours faithfully,
 J. A.
