

Every Voter's Responsibility

Next Tuesday, for the fortieth time, the United States will elect a President. Thirty-one men have held this high office, nine having been twice elected. Only thirty-two of the Presidential elections, however, have been decided by popular vote, in our present fashion. For that matter, there is no provision in the Constitution of the United States under which the people are either required or permitted to vote for Presidential electors.

In the early days of the republic the idea that everybody should have a vote for President never occurred to the gentlemen who conducted the Revolution and framed the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Those things were left to the states, and the Constitution reads that "each state shall appoint, in such manner as its Legislature may direct," the required number of Presidential electors. If any state Legislature wished to, it could today pass a law repealing the privilege of its citizens to vote for Presidential electors, and have them appointed by the Governor or chosen by the Legislature.

Presidents Washington, Adams and Jefferson were all elected under the old provisions of the Constitution, changed in 1804, whereby the candidate who got the most votes was President, and the one who got the next highest number was Vice-President.

The present party convention system of nominating candidates and pledging Presidential electors to their support is only a little over a hundred years old. In that hundred years state after state has constantly extended the privilege of voting for President until it has become such a commonplace, everyday affair that few, especially of the younger voters, realize that it is not an inherent Constitutional right, but distinctly a privilege. It is an honor conferred upon the ordinary man and woman—an honor which carries with it a corresponding responsibility. It is not a privilege to be exercised lightly. The presumption is that every voter will go to the polls with the feeling that he is discharging a solemn duty, for which he has prepared himself by intelligent thought and examination of the programs and policies of the opposing parties.

We fear that few voters in these days take their responsibility as seriously as they should. We urge everyone who goes to the polls next Tuesday to vote in the light of his or her own deepest and innermost convictions. Only if every voter does just that will the result reflect the intelligent judgment of the American people.

The Littlefield Chamber of Commerce also has an advertising committee. Business men, and citizens in general, who come in contact with advertising schemes which are being presented by out of town men or women, will be performing worthwhile service if they will report the matter to Dr. Ira E. Blanton Absolved Of Murder Blame When No-Billed Absolved of all guilt in the two hijackings of M-System stores and the fatal shooting of Robert Tharp in one of the holdups in Lubbock October 15, H. C. (Buddy) Blanton was released from Lubbock county jail at about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. He offered his sympathy to members of young Tharp's family.

A 99th district court grand jury Monday no-billed Blanton, and A. C. Hanna, grand jury foreman, of Slanton, ordered release of the Amarillo man. The no-bill automatically entitled Blanton to release and cancelled a robbery with firearms complaint filed against him in court.

Upon his release, the Amarillo youth expressed his sympathy for the relatives of young Tharp, for whose fatal shooting he had been quizzed by the grand jury.

LEGION WILL CONDUCT ANNUAL POPPY SALE FOR VETERANS HERE SATURDAY

Saturday is Poppy day in Littlefield and plans are being formulated for the largest poppy sale ever held in Littlefield.

The sale is being sponsored by the local American Legion auxiliary unit and the poppies will be sold by the local Rainbow organization.

Beginning at ten o'clock Saturday morning the girls will go forward to make the sale a success.

The Auxiliary's annual poppy sale is a stupendous thing. The poppy sale, too, means work for disabled veterans. It gives them interesting and worth while occupation with which to pass the long hospital hours and it gives them money for the many things government does not provide, money to send home to struggling families made destitute by their illness. If the poppy sale meant nothing else but employment for the disabled, it would be worth all the effort put into it. The wearing of the poppies is a touching tribute to the World War dead. It is an individual act of homage to the individual men who gave their lives for their country in 1917 and 1918.

The need for the poppy funds is greater this year than ever before and members of the local auxiliary unit are putting forth every effort to make the sale a success.

Members of the poppy committee are Mesdames Arbie Joplin, T. Wade Potter, R. E. Riley and J. D. Coen.

Pep Community Club Sponsoring Dance At Pep School Tonight

A dance, sponsored by the Pep Community Club, will be held at the new school house at Pep tonight, November 3, commencing at 9 o'clock.

This entertainment is given for the purpose of raising funds to help buy a piano, as the school and community piano was destroyed in the fire, which razed the school building on Christmas Day, 1931.

The music for this dance will be furnished by Red Norman and his orchestra, of Littlefield.

The admission will be one dollar, and everyone is assured more than a dollar's worth of enjoyment.

The public is cordially invited to visit Pep this evening, and enjoy the dance.

PITY THE CITY WORKER

Every one of our readers undoubtedly knows people who have had, and are still having, an extremely hard time to get along. But very few people in small towns and the country are face to face with actual destitution, with no friends, neighbors or families to fall back on for help, in proportion to the number of those who find themselves in that position in the cities.

The plight of the unattached worker, cut off from family ties and associations and adventuring alone into the industrial centers is the most difficult situation in which any American finds himself today, if he has not maintained connections back home to provide a refuge when the factory has shut down.

We are more and more impressed with the strength of the policy long since put forth by Mr. Henry Ford and which is being put into effect, we understand, in some of the young new nations of Europe, that there must always be a tie maintained between the industrial worker and the land.

It is difficult for those who have never lost contact with the land to appreciate the situation of the city dweller who has no possible means of obtaining food or shelter, except by exchanging his or her work for money and buying the necessities of life with the money received for work. When no work for pay is obtainable, the city dweller cannot rely upon the products of his own garden and penthouse, or the surplus of his neighbors for sustenance.

That is why the people who have jobs in the big cities are being called upon to help feed and shelter those for whom there are no jobs available.

WHEN A PRESIDENT GOES CAMPAIGNING

Under a law enacted after the assassination of President McKinley, it is a capital offense, punishable by death, even to threaten the life of the President. Nevertheless, the protection of the President's person is one of the chief worries of the secret service men. It is also a good deal of strain upon the President to have to limit his movements, outside of his own home, within the narrow range wherein the secret service men can accompany him.

When the President of the United States goes campaigning, or moves anywhere out of Washington, he is guarded and protected by secret service men every inch of the way. The Presidential special train has the right of way over everything else on the railroad line. Secret service men and railroad officials go ahead of it and see that every switch is spiked in place before the Presidential train passes, while a squad of government secret service operatives precedes the President to his destination and takes command of the local police situation to see that the crowds at the station and elsewhere are handled in such a way as to insure the maximum safety of the President's person.

The personnel of the President's train is selected from the most trustworthy railroad employees, from the engineer down to the waiter who serves meals in the Presidential dining car. The President's personal tastes in food are consulted, naturally, when the dining car is stocked. On one trip made by a certain president the refrigerator contained thirty-six dozen oranges and two dozen lobsters, these being delicacies of which the president was particularly fond.

EIGHT YEARS AGO IN LITTLEFIELD

(Excerpts from Lamb Co. Leader)

This week lumber is being hauled for the new school building at Whit-haral, the new town laid out twelve miles south of Littlefield. The building will be located on Yellow House land, and will be 24x48 feet.

One of the most profitable meetings of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce was held last Friday night in the dining room of the Gold Star Cafe.

The principal subject of discussion was good roads, and the discussers were there to back up their talk with their money. Excellent addresses were made by Messrs E. S. Rowe, Arthur P. Duggan, E. A. Bills, and others. Subscriptions amounting to $500 were also taken for road building purposes, and a committee appointed to see about raising the remaining portion of $2,000 which it is estimated will be needed for this purpose.

Dick Linley was the victim of a serious accident Thursday of last week. While working around the machinery of the Amherst gin one leg became entangled in the belting of the line shaft knocking the knee cap down and fractured the leg, causing intense pain.

He was quickly taken to the City hotel by Manager W. M. Sims, where first aid was rendered by Dr. Rochelle and the fractured parts returned to position and bound in splints.

The influx of new settlers has wiped out many of the old landmarks of this vicinity, but it remained for the ravages of fire last Saturday evening to obliterate a spot very dear to the hearts of many of the older settlers, when the building now occupied by Mr. R. C. Hopping as a garage was licked up in maw of the ravaging flames.

This building, erected by C. J. Duggan in 1913 as the home in which he took his bride, was the first house to be erected in the south part of Littlefield.

A very enjoyable theater party was given at the Lee last Monday night in honor of Miss Lois Graham, one of the popular teachers of the Littlefield schools.

Among those present were: Misses Nanna Thelma Wardlow, Christina Holland, Patsy Lively, Mona Horton, May Morrison, Lois Graham, Mrs. Clayborne Harvey, Mrs. Bessie Baze, E. D. Parnell, Garland Lewis, and Arthur Williams.

B. D. Berkelbach, who recently bought land in this vicinity, and made improvements thereon, has moved his family here.

Local Manager A. R. Hendricks of the Panhandle Telephone system advises that his company is this week putting the finishing touches to a telephone line from Littlefield to Lubbock, which represents a complete re-building of the old line.

Rating Of Teachers Being Kept By Lamb County Superintendent

L. D. Rochelle, county school superintendent of Lamb county, has devised a method whereby a complete record will be kept of each teacher in the entire school system of the county.

SCARLET FEVER REPORTED IN THIS VICINITY

Several cases of Scarlet Fever and one death from this disease have been reported in this vicinity.

The eight year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lidy of seventeen miles southeast of town died Wednesday night, following a few days' illness with Scarlet Fever. The other three children are also ill with the same trouble, but are getting along nicely.

We now have a special arrangement whereby we can, for a short time only, give you the Leader and six magazines all for 1 year for $1.75.

Do Your Shopping in Littlefield!

According to Mr. Rochelle, a rating sheet is being kept on each teacher. These sheets require detailed information relative to the individual teacher's natural qualifications, professional training, experience, method of teaching, congeniality, attitude toward pupils, personality, judgement and other matters which, in the opinion of Superintendent Rochelle, are of vital importance to school boards in selecting teachers. "This system," Mr. Rochelle points out, "is not only beneficial to the trustees but it is advantageous to the teacher in that it places on record the merits of the teacher who is actually superior."

The rating sheets are kept on file in the office of the county superintendent.

Johnny Breen, 16 years old, spent all of his life on a boat, plying around New York City. He was made motherless by a fire which sank the boat on which he and his mother and the man he was living. He is the son of a struggling fisherman, struggling through the rough sea. At dawn, amid the fog, entirely unknown, his boat was wrecked. Unable to do anything, he was taken to a Jewish family, living in a second-hand clothing store on the Bowery. From there he set foot in the city he had never seen. He fought his way through against the odds, and soon became a proficient that he attracted the attention of a would-be manager who enters him in many tournaments. It was here that alone came into the life of Breen—an old fighter who was honest. He took under his wing—sent him to school and eventually took him to a health farm he had acquired. He shifts and the family of Breen. Fifth Avenue is introduced by Gilbert Van Horn, last of the Breen family. Van Horn is a man-about-town, who is a chapter in his life—which had with his mother's maid, years ago left the family when about to be married. It was reported that he married an old captain of a craft. Van Horn has a ward, and is about Breen's age. Van Horn is interested in John, and now him to let him finance a course in Civil Engineering at Columbia University. John and Josephine meet—they become attached to each other, love grows and they become engaged shortly after Breen's graduation from college. Josephine has another suitor, a man of the world named Rantoul. Josephine became restless as John gave full attention to his job and sails for Paris to select her trousseau. At the last moment Rantoul sails on the same boat. At sea on the return home the great ocean liner crashes into an iceberg and sinks—all passengers taking to lifeboats. Van Horn perishes but Rantoul saves himself—with Josephine. Breen learns that Gilbert Van Horn was his father. Josephine breaks the engagement and marries Rantoul. For years John buries himself in work. The U. S. enters the World War. Josephine sees Breen in France, but he remains cool, unimpressed. The Armistice is signed. Rantoul loses his fortune and Josephine sues and obtains a divorce. Breen, seven years in South America, completes his work and returns to New York. He meets Josephine again, and discovers that love is being rekindled.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Here, this way," and in a moment John Breen stood close to Almon Strauss. Harbord had arranged the meeting.

"I want to shake hands with John Breen."

Harbord had managed to steer

"I had them clean up and air the rooms," Almon Strauss explained. "I expected you soon, would have called for you, on my return from Paris, but this is better." Along the wall the familiar cases of drawings seemed intact. The filing cabinets were as before, the bookcases had not been disturbed. It seemed as if only an hour had gone since the times when he and Colfax worked late into the night, when he had looked forward to the week-end, to the Sunday afternoon.

"I have been back a few weeks. Have some chairs. I will not say what is happening in Europe, the world is reforming, though the stable years are still a long way off. But my heart is here, gentlemen, always here," Almon Strauss waved his thin hand around, embracing all beyond the rooms, all out over the crowded millions about them in the city. "I have been rereading the final report of Colfax," he said, "and your notations, your very excellent engineering figures, Mr. Breen. These papers have all been kept for me here. No—John; I may call you that. I credit you both." John had started in protest. "The facts are so startling no one now would heed. In an election it would be mud-throwing. In the year after election we are too busy to pay serious attention to such things. But, the plan, the real working plan, must be ready for use some day. We hear so much of the transportation problem. I have read carefully what you say. We have too much transporta-

"Yes, John, the plan." Almon Strauss seemed to waken up from a study. "After all, the plan must come first. Let us get the plan."

"I have had a theory," Almon Strauss went on. "A theory that the city will work its way out of the mire." He stopped, paused for a moment.

"They say that my people are natural dwellers in cities. It may be so. But the Hebrews are an ancient race, a race that has held its tenets, has kept its faith for centuries. If we are to be dwellers in cities, we must look to our houses, to our future habitations. I have lived in the slums—I know the lower East Side—you may not know it, but once I stood on the curb of Hester street and watched a fight. I have known Fighting Lipvitch!"

John sprang to his feet. Almon Strauss sat silent. "Lipvitch—Channon Lipvitch?" John asked.

"John, I knew you there. I knew of you when you fought on the Bowery. My old friend, Lipvitch, is dead, you know. When the Tri-Plex shirt-waist factory burned down, Lipvitch had locked the doors—the shock killed him."

"Please go on," Harbord reminded him after a lengthy pause, "with your vision of the city."

After a moment or two, Almon Strauss continued in low, even tones. "I see a tremendous city rising in the future, a city of such magnitude that men today would marvel at the sight. The saving in heat, in transportation of supplies, in the waste motions of life, will compensate for the great congestion of men. Everything will be centralized in zones. People will live in groups close to their work, with parks and playgrounds scattered in between. There is no value like the value of numbers, no potentiality like the mass potentiality of men, and the city is the natural conclusion to which we must come as we remain longer on this earth. The city now is crude, cruder than the plumbing in King Alfred's hut. We are just beginning to see the faintest gleams of light. The country for food, freedom and for play, the city for economy, for concentration, for study and for education. And by the city I mean the great open-hearted city with trees and grass, and fountains splashing in the sun. The city with clean streets, with ample homes, with every furnishing to make life worth living.

"Down below, those foolish folk talk of birth control. What do they know of the agony? What do they know of building? What of planning far ahead? I may never see the beginning, but, John, and you, too, Harbord, you may see, you may know."

"But I am afraid of the city. I am afraid we have planned too far ahead. People are getting confused and rents go higher and higher. I am closing up this place and expect to leave. But my heart is here. God help the city."

Where the recurring storm-centers of wild conventions and campaigns raged amid sprouts of promise, old Madison Square Garden stands only in memory like a palace in Spain. Steel and tile tower high, and higher.

It was in this environment that Harbord and John paused at the southern end of a walk along the Avenue, crowded with the rush of a mid-season afternoon. The friends were given to long tramps, to the diversion of extended explorations in the city.

Again great things were happening, again the city was restless and uncertain in its ancient harness. Drastic methods were being proposed, merchants' associations and civic bodies were stirring. Great agitations were taking public voice. The huge muddle must assume some proper form. Civic pride was suffering a revival, new forces were stepping to the fore, new ideals of service were again lifting above the tumult of the town.

They paused on the sharp oasis south of Twenty-fifth street between Fifth Avenue and Broadway. A smoking churning rush of cars and buses hemmed them in. Across the way the old Amen Corner had ended its career. On the broad stretch of the Avenue, toward the park, arches of triumph and of victory once reared their fragile forms and only photographs remain. Dewey returned there from the victory at Manila. Great hosts of men marched by in '17—men with faces set, young and tense—drafted from the youth of the Metropolis, tramping onward in the falling snow.

A great void of doubt had come to Harbord and to John, a sickening doubt. To the east, they saw the great clock hands of the tower pointing to seven, and back on Fifth Avenue the rush of motor cars came to a sudden stop with a screech of brakes when the high red light flashed on the traffic towers above the gas-charged street.

John Breen stood, as men have stood in the twilight of thick tropic jungles, gazing at the beauty of the cobra, unaware of its significance.

Harbord struck his cane on the concrete walk, a loud tap. John looked at him, and smiled, smiled with uncertainty.

Josephine Lambert had just sped by them, bareheaded, her dinner wrap resplendent, her face animated, beautiful. She was already far to the south, on her way to dinner in one of the fine old surviving homes of Washington Square.

Thomas Hetherington, the great editor, had pieced together much of the crazy mosaic history of the city. He knew and deduced, and imagined and held in the files of his little office bundles of surprising information. Once, when talking with Judge Kelly, an agreeable old gentleman, himself asking more than he imparted, Thomas Hetherington was prepared to submit a certain train of circumstances, and to ask for the few places where time had failed to fill in facts. He was on the verge of springing one of the really great sensations of the city.

"My dear Mr. Hetherington, what you say may be so. And then again it may not. You say you have talked with Mr. Breen. What did he say?"

"He called it a lot of interesting conjecture."

"But I believe it's so," I insisted.

"Well, if it's so, why don't I go out and claim my own?" he asked.

"Well, why don't he?" Judge Kelly looked puzzled.

them into a corner near the stair. Almon Strauss was leaning toward John, holding his hand. What a homely human he was!

"John I am so glad to see you. Very glad." Almon Strauss was short and of stocky build, almost hump-backed.

"Let us go upstairs. I have the key. You know more about the way than I," he said; "suppose you lead."

As they followed John up to the offices of Colfax, up the dust-covered landing and into the inner room, a strong emotion came to John, a sense of loss overpowering. He switched on the light and was agreeably surprised to find the place in excellent order. John had had an idea that the Bureau must have vanished, like so much of the past.

tion already, too much crowding from the outskirts into the congested city. But what can stop it?

"Your sewer report astounded me." Almon Strauss found and drew the bulky blue-covered document from a desk. "Colfax often told me of the conditions, but I had no idea."

"An island completely surrounded by sewage," Harbord remarked. "Where boys bathe and rats run wild at night."

"New York and vicinity, dumping its waste material into its front yard, converting its narrow rivers into immense open cesspools; it's a crime." Almon Strauss paused and thumbed the pages.

"The great danger, sir," John interposed, "lies in the absolutely inadequate sewer system of the lower portion of the city. Old brick conduits fifty and seventy-five years old, running to the river. The problem of drainage on Manhattan is simple, but the fact that drainage should all be into disposal works, into scientific plants for the recovery of the magnesium, potash, phosphoric acid, chlorine, oxide of iron and nitrogen, all combined in almost ideal proportion for use as fertilizer. This seems to place the problem beyond the ability of our civic talent. A spoonful may be dipped out here and there and screened, but the great works, the scientific works that would yield a fortune to the city, these are only part of the plan."

Take a tablet of Bayer Aspirin and some other tablet, and drop them in water. Then watch the Bayer tablet dissolve—rapidly and completely. See how long it takes to melt down the other.

That's an easy way to test the value of "bargain" preparations. It's a far better way than testing them in your stomach!

Bayer Aspirin offers safe and speedy relief of headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago, rheumatism, or period pain. It contains no coarse, irritating particles or impurities.

"Estacado"

FIRST SETTLEMENT ON THE PLAINS MELTS AWAY—BECAUSE THE CONVENIENCES OF MODERN CIVILIZATION NOT AVAILABLE

Perhaps it is not known to all that Estacado was the first settlement on the Plains. It was a Quaker colony founded in what is now Crosby county in 1878 by Paris Cox of Ohio.

It was a bold adventure, far from any existing settlements, when the Texas & Pacific railway was under construction along a line 185 miles south. At that time there were no ranches nearer than over a hundred miles to the southeast.

Estacado thrived for several years and the town reached a population of over 800 people. Included in the town's institutions was an academy, the graduates of which have taken a prominent part in the affairs of West Texas. Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry college at Abilene, was one of those who has written his name in large letters.

Dr. J. H. Moore, president of this school, was a graduate of Harvard, and there were many cultured people living in what was a "world of its own." They belonged to the pioneer stock, and at the time of their leaving the East, our present progress had hardly begun.

Mrs. J. R. Beane, of Lubbock, is the only one of the original inhabitants living in this immediate section. She ascribes the cause of the vanishing of this colony to the fact that most of the people had means and sent their children North to further their schooling. These children, after coming in contact with the rapid progress and the conveniences of modern life, were no longer content to come back to Estacado, cultured though it was, and the older people followed them into more modern surroundings.

The present wave of immigration was followed by the best and most modern industries of this age, and those who live near the site of old Estacado have at their command all the conveniences that can be obtained anywhere.

The Texas Utilities Company has had a part in making our present development permanent and the home-life pleasant by its distribution of electric current, which is the most versatile power of this age of progress and enlightenment. We take great pride in the fact that we have contributed to the permanence of development in this great section.

GARNER TO LEAVE FOR HOME

Speaker John N. Garner announced Tuesday that he would leave Saturday night for his Uvalde, Texas, home to vote in Tuesday's elections and to receive the returns.

Reiterating to newspapermen his previous declaration that the Democratic national ticket would be victorious, the Democratic vice-presidential candidate said:

The people of the country long since made up their minds for a change in administration. President Hoover and his followers are defeated. Governor Roosevelt will be elected president by an overwhelming vote."

Farm Club Interest Increase Is Shown At Livestock Show

KANSAS CITY, November 1—Announcement that the number of exhibitors at the coming American Royal Livestock and Horse Show, November 12 and 19, shows an increase of 40 per cent over 1931, was made at the office of Wm. H. Weeks, general manager, today.

"An analysis of our entries also shows that we have calves, pigs, and lambs entered by 4-H Club Boys and Girls and Vocational Agricultural High School Students from 13 states, as against 7 states last year—practically a 100 per cent increase in the junior division."

The announcement continues. "We interpret these facts as a certain indication that the trend of the times affecting economic recovery unquestionably is upward, since the sign comes from the farms, where success or failure has been reflected in business conditions of the nation generally."

Bullington Workers Organize Club Here To Help Candidate

Orville Bullington Workers, as sponsors of the Republican gubernatorial campaign in this section are known, have organized a club in Littlefield for the purpose of aiding Mr. Bullington.

Farm Produce Used To Meet Expenses Of Rural Churches

A new department in church finance has proven successful with Rev. W. H. Gage of Adamsville, Texas.

Mr. Gage is pastor of four rural Baptist churches and arranged the budget in each church on the basis of farm produce rather than money.

A committee from each church was sent out to secure from each family represented in the membership the following gifts in farm produce: 5 bushels of corn, 5 bushels of cotton seed, 5 bushels of other grain, 5 bales of hay, 1 gallon of lard, 1 gallon of syrup or honey, 1 bushel of potatoes per year, and a monthly gift of 1 frying chicken, 1 dozen eggs, 1 pound butter, 1 pound vegetables and 1 can of canned goods.

The pastor visited each family of his membership each month and collected the offerings in a trailer, thus visiting the homes of his people as well as securing the gifts.

All the gifts not needed for the use of the pastor's family were sold, and the money used for clothing and other necessities.

The first year these churches paid their pastor more than $2,400 in produce at market prices, and besides, he received numerous extra gifts, having 19 hogs, 80 pure-bred chickens and some 500 bushels of grain on hand at the close of the year.

The causes of missions and benevolences were cared for, by the church membership, with gifts of cash or produce which was converted into cash and forwarded to the institutions for which it was given.

Marlow, Okla. Man Purchases Farm Here

W. E. Harvey, of Marlow, Okla., who owns two farms six miles north of Littlefield, spent Monday and Tuesday here looking after business interests.

Mr. Harvey, who visits Littlefield every year, was accompanied here by C. V. Hill, also of Marlow, who while here purchased a farm four miles west of Fieldton.

Mr. Harvey called at the Leader office Monday and renewed his subscription.

THIEF ENTERS VAN CLARK HOME

The residence of Van Clark was robbed late Saturday night.

Entrance was gained by removing a screen from a front window of the living-room. Approximately $10 in cash which Mr. Clark had placed in his radio and the coat of one of Mr. Clark's suits, were stolen.

The coat was later found a few blocks from the Clark home and returned to the owner by a Littlefield citizen.

Mr. Clark is of the opinion that the thief observed him placing the money in the radio.

Diet Didn't Do This!

HAPPY little girl, just bursting with pep, and she has never tasted a "tonic!"

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.

Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.

If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those hollow days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.

Matamores, Mex.

Marriage of Miss Lois Farquhar and Perry D. Harris was solemnized Tuesday, October 25, at 12 noon at Matamores, Mexico, in presence of the bride's uncle, Farquhar, San Benito, Texas.

Lois is the daughter of Mr. S. J. Farquhar. She is a lady of charming personality, many friends in this section. Perry is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. Harris now of San Perlita, but formerly of this city. For some time he was employed at the Drug Store here, but left Littlefield Monday, October 24, to attend the Danforth School of Pharmacy at Fort Worth, from which he expects to be graduated in January.

Farquhar and daughters, Miss Mrs. Dodgen, and C. E. were called to Marble Falls, October 18 on account of the death by accident of Mrs. Farquhar's brother-in-law, Doc McFarquhar. Mrs. Farquhar joined at 12:30 by Mr. Harris, and accompanied by her uncle, drove to Matamores where the ceremony took place.

Mr. Harris returned to Littlefield Saturday night while her husband is in Fort Worth to attend the pharmacy.

tin, Corsicana publisher and president of the Texas Press Association, has served as secretary of the organization throughout its existence. WEST TEXAS C. OF C. OPPOSES USING STATE FUNDS

One of the chief among organized efforts to defeat the amendment at the November polls is that of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, which organization, through its Central Public Expenditure committee recommended to 99 local committees in as many strategic points over West Texas, that the Texas Centennial Constitutional Amendment be defeated. Wilbur C. Hawk, Amarillo publisher, and president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in commenting on the merits of the chamber's stand against the issue, said:

"The position of our committee is not one in opposition to the Centennial. On the other hand, our committee believes the Centennial is a worthy and patriotic project which should be staged. The committee believes, however, that the Centennial should be organized on a self-supporting and self liquidating basis. "Cotton, of course, would be an important theme in a Texas Centennial, and what better institution can develop this theme than the Waco Cotton Palace? Livestock would likewise be an important theme and what better institution could develop this theme than the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show? The Dallas State Fair, with its unexcelled buildings and grounds, could be used to develop the industrial, commercial, and agricultural theme. A setting with the Alamo as the seat could develop the historical theme. These institutions and others coordinated under a Central Centennial Committee so that all combined projects would tell the complete Centennial story is, in the opinion of the committee, a more practicable way to stage the Centennial. Each project now is a self-supporting enterprise and each would be self-supporting under the Centennial Federation Plan. In fact, each project, because of the Centennial, would be sufficiently strengthened so as to enable the Central Centennial Committee to have ample funds for publicity, advertising, and planning. Under this plan, we are using what we have instead of getting something new. We are not duplicating and wasting capital expenditures in new buildings when we already have them. We are strengthening permanent State-wide institutions we already have instead of building a temporary competing one."

Continuing with his opposition, Mr. Hawk says: "We are opposed to financing it out of the State Treasury when there is a better way of staging it. Tax-payers rightfully should oppose it. State expenditures have increased since 1912 from $12,000,000 to $107,000,000 in 1930—an increase of sixteen times greater than the increase in the State's population. State and local government expenditures last year were $19,000,000 greater than the combined value of the State's wheat, oat, corn, and cotton crops."

OPPOSES POSITION TAKEN BY WEST TEXAS C. OF C.

Peter Molyneux, editor of the Texas Weekly, published at Dallas, replying to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce head, says: "Mr. Hawk makes a slight error of $4,600,000 in the amount of expenditure by the State Government in 1930 a figure which in itself make a respectable Centennial appropriation. He uses the total State revenue from all sources for that year, which was $107,789,996.91, instead of the expenditures, which were $103,137,982.28 a difference of $4,652,014.63. Mr. Hawk's plea is for the little property owners, who are unable to pay taxes. Well, the total revenue of the general fund from property taxes in 1930 was $10,833,227.21. That was the revenue of the general fund from property of all kinds, including that in the big cities. It is not clear from this that the share that would be contributed by the small property owner, or by the big property owner, for that matter, toward any Centennial appropriation would be relatively small? But that is not all. At the same election that the Centennial amendment will be voted on another amendment is up for adoption, and undoubtedly will be adopted, which will exempt from all State taxation, for the general fund, the school fund, and the Confederate fund, all homesteads up to $3,000 assessed valuation. That means that homesteads assessed at $3,000 or less will pay no State taxes whatever, and those assessed for more than $3,000 will pay only on a surplus, a homestead assessed now at $4,000 paying on $1,000, one assessed at $5,000 paying on $2,000, and so on. That will eliminate most of the home owners of the State from among the State taxpayers, and they will not have to pay any part of the Centennial appropriation. And it will cut the small taxpayers of all kinds, so far as State taxes are concerned, nearly in half."

Will M. Mayes of Austin, executive vice-president of the Centennial Committee, states that he believes "the Texas Centennial will return millions of dollars into the State Treasury. It is conservatively estimated that the increased income from the gasoline tax alone will be approximately $25,000,000." Mr. Molyneux of the Texas Weekly continues his sanction of the Cen-ennial when he says: "The proposed amendment doesn't appropriate any money and it does not direct the Legislature to appropriate any money. It merely authorizes the Legislature to provide for such a celebration as it decides to be suitable, to be held at such times and places as it may designate, and to appropriate such support as it may find necessary and within the resources of the State. And it confines this authority to the Centennial celebration alone."

COLLEGE CO-EDS TAKE UP POLO TRAINING

A girls' equestrian club has been organized at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, with Miss Marian Miller of Waco as manager. Seventeen girls are charter members of the organization. The girls plan to try out polo and hope to become proficient enough to ride in the rodeo at the Fat Stock Show here next month.

PEP PARAGRAPHS

By MRS. G. C. KEITH

Mrs. W. J. Rutledge, who has been in ill health for some time, left Monday for Abilene, where she will visit her son and take treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. William Burt of Littlefield took supper with Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Burt Sunday evening.

Mrs. J. O. Allison became quite ill one day last week and was taken to Littlefield to the doctor. She was brought home a few days later, but is still not very well.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Keith and Miss Mary Keith of Matador visited Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Keith Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. John McMurtry of Muleshoe visited in the G. C. Keith home Sunday.

The Pep gin has been running both day and night to take care of the cotton. Cotton pulling has been getting a good start.

Makes Babies Chuckle; Folks Past 100 To Renew Their Youth

Babies, break up your bottles of soothing syrup! Climb out of your cradles! Demonstrate to the old folk the vigor of youth!

Youth, stay young! Fight the battle of life with a vigorous body and a clear, cool eye!

Young men, develop those great muscles of steel! Be the kind of a young man that singles you out from the crowd!

Girls, keep that school girl complexion!

Men! Women! You who are not so young as you once were! Keep up with the crowd! It's easy!

And now! A message to the grandmas and grandpas! ! ! ! A long life before you! Break up your crutches! Toss the rheumatism dope in the garbage can. Make merry! There is a Santa Claus!

And gather around, everybody! Fry, stew, boil, bake—fix it anyway you like, but for your sake, my sake, for it's very goodness sake, we recommend most highly, enthusiastically, extemporaneously and spontaneously "Bellomy's Select Corn Meal," for sale by your grocer or at my place.

week's premillennial Bible school taught in Fort Worth in the First Baptist church. The greatest teachers and preachers of the American continent taught the Bible. There were pastors from most every state in the union. There were fourteen thousand people registered in the school. The new auditorium of the First Baptist church, of which Dr. J. Frank Norris is pastor, has just been completed and is a great monument to the Lord. There were conversions all along through the services and over a hundred additions to the church during the school.

The pastor and his people received a great inspiration and have returned with many doubts removed from their minds, and are resolved to press the BATTLE to the gates and to win the lost to Christ.

It was a great hour for the people who were there from Littlefield, when Brother Roy A. Kemp joined the First Baptist church and aligned himself with the Fundamental Baptist. There were many others who did the same and many others are almost persuaded to do likewise.

We invite all who are not in church to come be with us in our services. We are just plain Christian folk who love the Lord and lost souls. Come. You are welcome.

Furthermore, for the benefit of the individual who will not support any listed nominee, be he Democrat, Republican, Socialist, Communist, Jacksonian, Liberty or even a wide-open Independent, a column is included on the official ballot in which he may write the name or names of his choice for any national, state, county, or precinct office without being dubbed a follower of any specified political party.

position to reverse its action of four years ago, when Texas voters sent a delegation to the electoral college which cast its vote for a Republican chief. This possible outcome can be made, even more astounding should the effort now being exerted in some quarters terminate in the defeat of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, erstwhile Texas governor, and again the nominee of the Democrats of the state for that office, and the consequent election of Orville Bullington, Republican nominee for the governorship.

papers, located in all parts of the country, cooperated in taking this poll of small town and rural America political preference. The Publishers Autocaster Service, a newspaper editorial service, acted as national headquarters in tabulating the national vote. Returns were received from 42 states of the 48. These 42 states represent 496 electoral votes of the 531 in the electoral college. Two hundred and sixty-six electoral votes are necessary for election.

155; Hoover, 83,953. Of the total vote cast, Roosevelt received 59.84%; Hoover 40.16%. Roosevelt leads in 35 states; Hoover in 7. Electoral votes: Roosevelt 414; Hoover 82.

Of the six states from which no returns were received, the electoral votes are as follows: Alabama, 11; Arizona, 3; Delaware, 3; Nevada, 3; Oklahoma, 11; and Rhode Island, 4—Total 35.

The seven states in which Hoover leads are Connecticut, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Vermont. Roosevelt leads in the other 35 states as shown in the tabulations below.

Table titled 'FINAL VOTE' with columns for 'Weekly Newspaper Presidential Poll' and 'Nation-wide'. Lists states and their respective vote counts.

The studious minded voter will find some very interesting figures in this nation-wide poll. For instance, it will be noted that the margin of majority for Roosevelt in this small vote in some states is far from being decisive. Eight of the 35 states which show Roosevelt leading might easily be won over to the Hoover column at the polls next Tuesday.

Strong in Country In general summing up, however, this weekly newspaper poll checks very accurately with the polls conducted by the Literary Digest and the Hearst Newspaper, so far as a division of the states between Hoover and Roosevelt in popular vote favor. This is the exception: The small town and country vote indicates a stronger swing to Roosevelt.

With the returns in from all states for a total of 2,617,185 votes, the Digest shows 1,473,446 votes for Roosevelt, or a percentage of 56.30; to Hoover's 973,367 votes for a percentage of 37.19. Other candidates drew votes accounting for the remaining 6.51% of total votes cast in the Digest poll.

In comparison, this newspaper's nation-wide weekly poll gives Roosevelt 69.84% and Hoover 40.16% of its total vote cast. The one big exception in our weekly newspaper poll to those of the Digest and all other straw votes taken in is in the small town and country vote from Illinois. All through the weekly newspaper poll, Hoover has led in the Illinois small town vote by a margin of 7 to 5.

WHY NOT COME TO WEST TEXAS? "Money is literally begging for a chance to work, and will do so cheaply if given complete assurance of safety," says an announcement from New York. What's the matter with coming out to West Texas.

SUNSHINE Cochran County News—One of the most heartening evidences of recovery is the marked improvement in the country's banking situation as compared with a year ago and through the troubled period of last winter, when there was widespread uneasiness and when banks were closing in increasingly large numbers. A sign of pronounced betterment is the drop of nearly 60 per cent in bank loan applications to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the five weeks ending September 3 over the preceding five weeks. In addition, there have been recurring reports of the reopening of banks and the organization of new institutions.

THE CANNING INDUSTRY— Canning and preserving of food-stuffs in Texas is done by forty-six establishments with 698 salaried officials and wage-earners who received (1930 census) $496,312 in salaries and wages. Total production was valued at $3,292,225, of which $1,297,799 was "value added by manufacture." Commercial canning takes care of only a negligible part of the State's tremendous production of fruits and vegetables during the past year. It has been very satisfactory to have 100,000,000 more credit to those who have done those two years.

WE THINK— That immediate action taken on the suggestion of the commissioner Homer Hocking factory be established in the field. What do you think?

We believe that a factory, in addition to the home canning which each year, would be a forward in the development section.

Levelland Plains Co-op Cheese

As the result of a meeting of the county agent's office recently, in which a number of persons from different parts of the county were in attendance, steps are to be taken to co-operative cheese factories to the Hockley County general who made a recent study to visit the plant which were present and made a aroused enthusiasm in the and its potential value to the of the Levelland section.
