Liquor Raid And Arrest Made By Officers Thursday

Sheriff Len Irvin, his deputy, J. L. Walraven, and Constable Sam Huson, made a liquor raid about noon Tuesday at a farm home three miles east of town, seizing about forty gallons of whiskey, and arresting the owner, who was arraigned before Justice of the Peace B. L. Cogdill Tuesday afternoon, and placed under bond to await the action of the grand jury in February.

A false panel had been arranged in the flooring of a back room underneath a dresser, under which floor the liquor was stored in half gallon jars.

According to the officers, this is the largest seizure made by the sheriff's department in a long time.

Arrested in Lubbock
 A police patrolman and two internal revenue agents arrested three Littlefield men in Lubbock Friday night, charged with concealment, possession and transportation of whiskey.

They were freed on bonds of $1000, $500 and $500, Saturday morning, after being charged before Victor H. Lindsay, United States Commissioner. Twelve gallons of whiskey described as bottled in a Dodge sedan were confiscated by the federal agents.

SOMETHING FOR ADVERTISERS TO THINK ABOUT

Few people realize the actual coverage of even the most modest country newspaper. Not so long ago an advertising expert was quoted as saying that careful research had ascertained that a certain well-known metropolitan paper is read, on an average, for the space of 20 minutes, while the average country newspaper has a "reading life" of three hours to its credit. It is kept "round the house for a week. Everyone in the family takes his turn in going through its pages. That is something for the advertiser to think about.

NOT THE WORST DEPRESSION

Dun & Bradstreet's statistics of business failures seem to refute the belief that the 1929-33 depression was the most disastrous in history. The highest failure record in recent years was that of 1932; but it was not so high as that of 1878. There was greater commercial distress in 1867, according to Dun & Bradstreet, and in the depression period from 1876 to 1878 than in any other times.

Bankruptcies are only one item measuring business conditions of depression, but they are important barometers. It is a curious fact, and contrary to general opinion, that failures are higher after the deflation period has run its course and recovery has started up than earlier in major depressions. The Dun & Bradstreet statistics now bear this out, since 1878, the record year for failures, came five years after the panic and only a year before the great revival in 1879. In the latest depression period the year of highest failures was 1932, three years after the break. In the depression of the nineties, also, the peak year for failures was 1896, three years after the panic.

The Dun & Bradstreet figures are not in accord with the often heard phrase, "through no fault of their own," implying that the losses and failures in times of depression are due to the errors or practices of somebody other than the victims. Dun & Bradstreet report that the three main causes of business failures are poor accounting practices, inadequate capital and poor management, particularly indecision and dilatoriness.

Even in the New Deal, these human foibles will not be abolished, nor will they be exempt from their old-time consequences. The number of business failures in 1932 was 31,822, but in 1926, the year which political experts now advise us was "normal," the number was 21,773.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

LIVELY HOME ECOS. CLUB NOTES

The Lively Home Economics Club met Tuesday, January 16 in the club room with the president in the chair.

The club motto was repeated by the club, after which an interesting talk was given by Lucille Glover.

The club was honored by the presence of Rev. Grizzle. We were very glad to have him with us. He gave an interesting talk on "Working Conditions of Our Community and How Home Economics Girls May Be of Help."

We Wonder Why?

1. We wonder why all the basket ball girls have curly hair?

2. We wonder why Mr. Irvin likes to use sandpaper?

3. We wonder why Mr. Sanders always wears a grin.

4. We wonder why teachers are always giving demerits?

The Boy's Lecture

Monday the boys of high school heard a very interesting lecture from Miss Jones, a faculty member, on the opinion of the girls on the way boys act and dress.

The talk was very much appreciated and needed. We want some other teacher to give us more of the girls' opinions.

WHISPERING ROCK

Thirteenth Installment

SYNOPSIS: Ruth Warren, who lived in the East, is willed three-fourth interest in the "Dead Lantern" ranch in Arizona by her only brother who is reported to have met his death while on business in Mexico. Arriving in Arizona with her husband who has illing lungs and their small child, they learn that the ranch is located 85 miles from the nearest railroad. Old Charley Thane, rancher and rural mail carrier agrees to take them to the "Dead Lantern" gate, 5 miles from the ranch house. As they trudge wearily through a gulch approaching the ranch house, a voice whispers "Go back! . . . Go back!" At the ranch house they are greeted suspiciously by the gaunt rancher partner, Snaveley, and Indian Ann, a herculean woman of mixed negro and Indian blood. Snaveley is difficult to understand but regardless, Ruth takes up the task of trying to adjust their three lives to the ranch and its development. Kenneth, Ruth's husband, caught in chilling rain contracts pneumonia and passes away before a doctor arrives. Ruth tries to carry on. She is not encouraged by Snaveley in plans to try and stock the ranch or improve it. She writes to her father in the East asking a loan with which to buy cattle. She receives no reply. Will Thane comes home to visit his father. . . . and Ruth meets him. A rancher nearby decides to retire and offers to sell Ruth and Snaveley his livestock on credit. Snaveley tries to balk the deal but Ruth buys to the limit of her three-quarter interest in Dead Lantern ranch.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The day came when Ruth, Ann, and David set out to obtain some Mexicans. She had told Snaveley that she wanted to go, herself, because she had never seen the town of Palo Verde. This was partly true, but she felt that he knew her real reason; she wanted to be sure to get some Mexicans. He refused to go with her and she commandeered Ann for an interpreter. She hoped David could stand the ride—it would be twenty miles there and back. They would have to spend the night—heaven only knew how and where.

They had reached the highway and were perhaps a mile south of the gate when they met a covered wagon, accompanied by a horseman. A lean old Mexican with white mustachios and a wispy goatee, drove the team. Beside him sat a girl of eighteen, whose beautiful fawn-like eyes left the figure of the young horseman, as Ruth and Ann came nearer.

Ann spoke quietly to Ruth. "I think we better ask them people."
"Yes, do."
"Buenos dias, Senor," Ann addressed the old man. He promptly pulled up the horses, arose, and shifting the reins to his left hand swept off his large hat in a courteous bow. "Buenos dias, Senoras," he replied in a voice which was mellowed graciously.

Ann turned to Ruth. "They will be good—they come from far in Mexico—'round th' border they doan speak so."

She replied to the old man and continued to talk for some time. The young horseman caressed his tender young mustache, and drew a little closer to the girl's side of the wagon. The girl caught her black mantilla about her throat with a dainty ivory hand, her large eyes lowered to the small tips of her toes which rested on the footboard under a voluminous blue skirt.

Ann talked steadily and with surprising animation for several minutes; her gestures and expression were much like those of the old man. Ruth saw that she spoke Spanish more naturally than English. Finally, she nodded toward Ruth and swept out her arm to indicate the western mountains. The old man was silent for a time after she had finished. He spoke a short sentence to the young horseman. The young man smiled, shrugged his shoulders, and said a word or two, his eyes on the girl.

The old man seemed undecided. He asked a few questions of Ann, and after her replies fell into another silence.

The conversation was resumed and continued pleasantly. Suddenly Ann turned to Ruth. "They'll come. We pay them fifty dollars a month, an' give them fresh beef when we butcher. The other things they eat they will buy from us. We can fix up a place in the barn fer 'em."

Apparently everything was settled. She spoke to Ann. "What have you learned about these people?"

"I doan' know th' country they come from—a ranch ten days over the line. Don Francisco was the major domo—boss—of the ranch but there was a death an' a changin' amongst the owners that he didn't like, so he left an' come to th' U. S. Alfredo was workin' at the ranch an' come along on account of the girl. They ought to know cattle work."

They were entering the foothills four miles beyond the ranch gate when the old man drew his horses to a stop. Ruth had noticed for some time that he was intently studying the mountains before him. He turned to Ann and asked in his soft, polite Spanish, "Are these low mountains not named with the name of the wolf?"

"I have heard that once they were called so," replied Ann.

"Ah!"
Ann waited a moment but he did not continue. Thoughtfully, his eyes scanned the mountains. "Why, shouldn't they be named for a wolf?" she asked.

"Ah—these mountains, but have I not heard tales of these mountains?" The old man paused again, and there was an undercurrent of anxiety in his voice as he continued. "Do I mistake myself, or is there not one small canon where it is said a rock speaks with a voice of evil. There is a tale of travelers which I remember to have heard in my boyhood—is it not true?"

Ann spoke quickly to Ruth. "He's heard about th' voice. I doan think he'll go on."
"Oh, Ann! Think of something to tell him. I want these people—I like them. Now, Ann, I'm going to order you to tell him if it's wrong to lie about the voice theblame is on me, not you. And I'm going to ask you never to go through that gulch—we'll build the road around it—and no one will ever go through there again!"

Ann's face was a study. "Well—now—" she said slowly. A moment more of thought and the Indian woman's face brightened with relief. "Why, I don't see but maybe that'll work—Gawd, Miss Ruth, I wish you'd thought of that before!" She turned to the old man and after a few minutes' talk he smiled and gathered up the reins.

"Ann, we can't let them go through! Here, you lead David's horse and give Don Francisco mine. Tell him and Alfredo that you want to show them where we are going to build a road soon—see? Take them around the gulch. I'll drive the team, through and take David and the girl. I think I can handle her even if—even if she does think she hears something. Those are my orders, Ann!"

The Indian woman spoke at length to the old man. He did not seem very eager to relinquish his seat on the wagon, but already Don Francisco had placed himself under Ruth's authority. It was strange and rather unseemly to be employed by a woman, thought the old man, a beautiful American woman, who was so fragile and yet had such great strength in her eyes. Ah, these Americanos! What wonders their cities must be—still, it was best to come into this country by way of work with which one was familiar.

Ruth drove the wagon with David and Magda seated beside her. She had never in her life driven a team, but it was not necessary to do other than hold the reins; the horses were content to follow the road. As they neared the brown boulder, Ruth began talking animatedly to Magda, her smiling lips close to the Mexican girl's ear. Yet she need not have done so; there was no whispering voice in the vicinity of the rock.

Snaveley was not in sight when Ruth arrived at the barn where Ann and the two Mexicans were waiting. But ten minutes later, as Ruth and her son were on their way to the ranch house (Ann stayed with the new arrivals to help them establish themselves) Snaveley rode out of the trail west of the corral toward Ruth. She stopped to wait for him.

"Thinkin' of startin' a town on the Dead Lantern?" he asked without smiling.

Ruth laughed. "No, we only brought three. We found them on the main road—they've come from Mexico. I think they'll be good workers—they know cattle."

"What's the woman for?"
"The girl? Oh, she's the older man's daughter—I suppose she'll just keep house for them."

Snaveley looked at Ruth for a long moment in silence, his slits of eyes glinting jerkily. Suddenly he left her and rode toward the barn, dismounting at the saddle shed.

Relieved By Taking Cardui

"I was weak and run-down and suffered quite a bit with pains in my side," writes Mrs. Nick Baranco, of Beaumont, Texas. "I was nervous. I did not rest well at night, and my appetite was poor. My mother had used Cardui with beneficial result, so I decided to take it. I surely am glad I did, for it stopped the pain in my side and built up my general health. I took seven bottles in all."

Cardui is sold at all drug stores.

When she reached the port of the ranch house Ruth paused with her hand on the door, and, changing her mind, seated herself on the rawhide cot.

When next her eyes sought the barn Ann was nearly at the house. The girl went to the rear and entered the kitchen without noticing Ruth. Ruth had risen to join Ann when she saw the distant figure of Alfredo come out of the barn with a rolled mattress on his shoulder, walk to the wagon and toss it in. Immediately behind him came Magda, an olla on her head and a half-filled sack in her hand. She also placed her load in the wagon and returned to the barn. By the time Don Francisco emerged with two chairs and an armful of smaller things, Ruth was well on her way.

"Why are you putting your things in the wagon?" she called to Alfredo who came out of the barn carrying a copper tub as she approached.

The young man placed the tub in the wagon, regarding Ruth with a shrug and remained silent, his fingers smoothing his mustache.

Snaveley was standing just inside the door.

"What did you say to them?" demanded Ruth.

"Well, I fired them, that's what I did! Do you think I'm goin' to have a lyin', undependable bunch of trash like that on this place? They tell me they won't work an' are fixin' to leave; then you come down here an' they let on they will work—what can you do with people like that?"

Ruth did not reply, but she went to Magda and taking her arm pointed to the ranch house. "Come, Magda."

The Mexican girl's eyes questioned her. Ruth smiled and led Magda toward the house. The three men followed.

At the kitchen door, Ruth turned and addressed Snaveley. "You men will have to stay out here," she smiled. "I want to talk to Magda with Ann's help—it's going to be a purely feminine conversation. Excuse us, please."

Snaveley took a step forward, then stopped.

"Ann," said Ruth when she had led Magda into the kitchen, "ask her if it is true that she loves Alfredo. Don't embarrass her—make it just between us girls."

But Magda was very much embarrassed. She drew her mantilla about her face and twisted one foot. But she nodded.

"Good! Now, Ann, you tell her that if she and her people stay and are good workmen, that'll help her and Alfredo build a little house, and that I'll give them ten acres of land which is not included in the partnership but is part of some that I own. Tell her that she and Alfredo and her father can have this land forever. And tell her that they are working for me, not for Mr. Snaveley."

Magda was transfixed with joy and embarrassment when Ann ceased to speak. The girl took an uncertain step toward Ruth. Suddenly she curtsied almost to the floor and kissed her hand, as though she were a great queen.

"Well," said Ann, "I can't tell you what she said 'cause I doan know th' fancy words in English—anyhow she thinks you're powerful good. But she says she can't tell Alfredo nothin' 'cause he ain't asked her to marry him yet. But she says that she'll see to it that they stay here forever an' work much."

"Ask her why they were going to leave."

Before the Mexican girl had ceased to reply, sudden fear filled Ann's face. The Indian woman did not translate Magda's words; she left the kitchen, crossed the back porch and entered her room.

Magda looked at Ruth, puzzled. "The man say we go."

Ruth smiled and shook her head. "No, no, no—ah, mil mil gracias, Senora!"

There is a tradition in southern Arizona and northwestern Mexico that the summer rains begin on the Day of San Juan—the twenty-fourth of June. Especially is this tradition strong in the San Jorge Valley, for it is here that the venerable Ambrosio Vega is said to have kept rain records for six and forty years. The discerning still say they can make out his records scratched in the adobe—just left of the altar niche—in the ruin which was once his home.

Free Action for all 4 wheels plus the safety of a front axle and comfort of Cantilever Springs

A great deal of thought is being given today to comfort plus the proved safety of a front axle. Various experiments are being tried in an effort to get independent action for an automobile's front wheels.

All of which is simply another tribute to the soundness of Ford engineering and the Ford V-8 for 1934. When you drive this car you get free action not only for the front wheels—but for all 4 wheels.

Ford transverse cantilever springs provide individual suspension for both front and rear axles. In the new Ford these springs have been made more flexible. This type of construction is not experimental and has the advantage of comfort plus the proved safety of a front axle. This new Ford combines V-8 power with gasoline economy—20 miles to the gallon at a speed of 45 miles per hour, in exhaustive road runs. It will do 80 miles an hour without difficulty. At 50 or 60 miles per hour it is actually running at ease!

This reserve power means acceleration unequalled by practically any other make of American automobile, regardless of cost. Before you buy any car at any price, drive the new Ford V-8 for 1934.

Importance Of School Attendance

By A. B. SANDERS, Superintendent Littlefield Schools

What chance would the merchant have to make a success of his business if he closed his doors frequently and stayed out all day? What would be the result on his business if he decided to stay out to do the family wash at least once per week? What would happen to him if he decided to take time out and visit his relatives a few days now and then and close his store until he returned? What happens to the farmer who goes fishing when he should be tilling the soil or destroying weeds? The answer to these questions are self-evident and I am sure you will agree that they would fail.

There are many pupils in the Littlefield public schools who seem to have no hesitancy in staying out of school a few days when they choose. The parents of these children do not seem to feel the importance of their regular attendance in school. Is it any more reasonable to say the business man would fail who does not keep his store open than it is to conclude that pupils will fail when they are not in school? The school term is a definite number of days with a definite number of things to be accomplished each and every day. If the pupil should miss one of these days he will just lose that much needed instruction that he can never regain. Good pupils can sometimes make a passing grade when they are out some but they can never have the information that they would have had, had they been in school. The continuity of the learning process has a distinct gap that can never be bridged.

It has been estimated that each and every day that a pupil spends in school will be worth at least $10.00 to him through his life time. This time lost can never be regained. If a child misses 10 days during the year he has failed to get a considerable amount just dues. The tax payers are paying the teachers every day whether your child is there to take advantage of it or not. Why not parents and pupils make a greater effort to be at school regularly for the remainder of the term.

Mid-term exams are soon to be had. It is very important that each and every child should be in school every day from now until after these examinations.

Miss Alma Busher And Roy Miller Wed At Clovis, N. M.

Announcement has been made of the marriage on Saturday afternoon, December 16, at four o'clock of Miss Alma Busher and Roy Miller of this city.

The ceremony took place at Clovis, New Mexico. The bride is the daughter of R. L. Busher of Littlefield, while the groom is the son of Mrs. Miller of nine miles north of town.

Mrs. Miller has been a resident of Littlefield for the past nine years and graduated with the 1931 class of the local high school.

Mr. Miller was also a resident of this city for a number of years. He operated a garage at the foot of Main street for several months recently.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for Garden Grove, Calif., where they will make their home.

The couple leave a host of friends in this section who wish them much happiness.

New 1934 Chevrolet Now On Display At Chevrolet Motor Co.

The new 1934 Chevrolet with "knee-action" wheels, 80-horsepower "Blue Streak" engine, streamlined body and an imposing list of improvements and refinements is on display today in the Hewitt Chevrolet Company.

In the design and development of the new models, particular attention has been given to driver and passenger comfort and every effort has been made to eliminate the sensations of both sound and feeling that prove annoying to the motorist.

The new Chevrolet is longer—it has a 112 inch wheel base—roomier, more powerful, smoother and more quiet than its predecessor. The engine is placed several inches farther forward in the chassis and seating has been rearranged.

The additional length is disposed so as to provide more space for the front seat occupants and considerably more room for the rear seat passengers.

In appearance, the sleekness which has characterized Chevrolet cars in the past, is further accentuated by the actual length increase plus the treatment of the car design itself.

The increased power delivered by the new "Blue Streak" engine improves the flashing performance and the many engine refinements, combined with distinct chassis improvements insure extremely fast, safe, economical and quiet operation. Both front and rear seat passengers are insulated from road shocks by the introduction of independent front wheel suspension—known as "knee action" wheels—combined with improved rear spring suspension and a more balanced distribution of weight.

"Knee-Action" Wheels

By independent front wheel suspension is meant the attachment of the front wheels directly to the frame without the use of a front axle. In the conventional type of springing it was necessary to have very stiff front springs because these springs had to hold the axle and wheels in place. Independent springing relieves the front springs of this task and permits the use of a front spring which has a soft, velvety action, just as soft, in fact, as the rear springs. The car, by this system of suspension, has front and rear springs of equal tension and there is no tendency for the car to bounce and jolt along the road. The rear end of the car, in not harshly catapulted into the air whenever the front wheels encounter an irregularity of the road be it chuck hole or raised object. The front wheels, when they encounter such an irregularity, move up and down in a vertical position—they follow the irregularities of the road, so to speak.

In design, the front spring unit is neat, compact and efficient. The entire coil spring mechanism and shock absorbers are encased in a sturdy weather-tight steel housing and the mechanism itself works in a bath of oil. The front wheel is supported by two strong arms extending from the spring unit. The units themselves are rigidly bolted to the frame by means of a king pin support.

The improved riding qualities of the 1934 Chevrolet due to the "knee action" wheels, combined with other features, is present at all speeds and under all road conditions, but the greatest improvement is noticeable at high speeds and on rough roads.

"Blue Streak" Engine

The new "Blue Streak" engine with which the 1934 Chevrolet is powered, is more powerful, smoother, quieter and more economical than any of its predecessors. Incorporating many unique design features and refinements, the new motor has a bore of 3 5/16 inches and a four inch stroke and develops 80 horsepower at 3,300 revolutions per minute.

Chevrolet also offers the Starterator in the 1934 models. The Starterator eliminates a starting button, the later being coincidental with the foot accelerator.

Thirty-Four Are Baptised Into Church Sunday

The exact result of the revival just closed at the First Baptist Church would be difficult to estimate, for the fact that quite a number going from the meeting united with other churches.

The local church reports one hundray and ten new members, thirty-four being baptized into the fellowship of the church Sunday evening, January 21, the closing night of the revival, and eight were baptized last Sunday evening. There are yet several giving their names for baptism to be baptized at a future date.

Sunday morning, January 21, doubtless broke all records for Sunday school attendance in the history of Littlefield. More than five hundred had come into the school before the closing bell called the classes into the auditorium, and though the great overflow was not present last Sunday, the attendance showed an increase of more than one hundred over the Sunday beginning the revival.

The school has made extensive plans to care for the increased attendance, by selecting officers and teachers to fill vacancies, take new places or do what ever may become necessary to care for everyone that will attend. A new order for literature went out Sunday afternoon and will be in the school Sunday morning.

The B. T. S. had quite a number of new members last Sunday evening and both the morning and evening services were well attended.

LUTHERAN CHURCH NEWS

In the service Sunday night which was so well attended that chairs had to be brought over from the parsonage to seat the people. Several children and adults received the sacrament of baptism. Likewise, several adults were accepted into membership of the church by the rite of confirmation. The church altarpiece was nicely decorated for the occasion. The pastor chose for his theme "The One Thing Needful." Due to the fact that the services have been so well attended lately there is considerable discussion among the elders of the church regarding a possible enlargement of the church building.

The Junior and Senior Bible classes of the young people of our church have been united, and are taking up the study of the chief doctrines of the Bible using Dr. Luther's small catechism for a guide. All visitors are heartily welcome. The class meets every Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Next Sunday night the Lord's Supper will be served. Announcement for communion either Saturday afternoon or Sunday night before Bible class. A special collection is to be lifted Sunday for the tuberculosis sanitarium of our church at Denver, Colorado.

The Rev. Wm. Remmert and family of Plainview, Texas, as well as Miss Norinne Wuensche of Bishop, visited at the Lutheran parsonage Monday. WALTER J. LUECKE, Pastor.

METHODIST CHURCH John Witt Hendrix, Pastor

The church school enjoyed a handsome increase last Sunday morning; Men's Bible Class has greatly increased. The children in attendance were not just here as should have been.

We are persuaded there are many children in this town and community which do not attend either church or Sunday school. It means something the records show, after a very close check, that only one-half of one per cent of all those brought to court mixed in crime have never attended Sunday school that is, that 99 1-2 per cent of all those taken in crime never attended Sunday school at all, and this record has been collected largely by judges themselves. This crime preventing, life saving institution bids you welcome each morning on the Sabbath day at 9:45 a. m.

An increase in church school always means an increase in attendance upon public worship. These two services are tied up together—inseparable. Any one who makes ready to come to one usually attends both, especially church school. Church attendance, some are want to say, is a habit; it may be even that. But it is in another sense a matter of industry of Sabbath mornings. It is not denied that it requires some energy to shave, to clean up, to put on clean hose, over sprawling about the house. In fact, life itself requires more than that. However, it is interesting to find a large crowd who survive and appear at worship.

The choir is busy making choice music for each period of worship, having rehearsal each Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. and are present at services. The pastor is making ready to meet you each Sabbath with a message of interest. Next Sunday the morning subject will be "Christianity In Industry." It is being asked, what has the church to do with this situation? Has christianity any message about a world order? Is the church interested only in preparing for another world? We'll be among the prophets Sunday. Evening subject "Fainting In Low Gear." Lots of people can mount up like eagles. Get weary in walking. Let's see to which crowd you belong.

By Miss Westbrook, H. D. A.

Memorial Erected For Judge Kinder

On a plot of ground 365 by 30 feet in a Plainview city park a large Rotary wheel, laid out with rocks, trees and shrubbery, has been built in memory of Judge L. S. Kinder, pioneer Plainview jurist, who was killed in an automobile accident near Melmore, N. M. June 2, 1931.
A fountain built of rocks, 12 feet high and 30 feet in diameter at the base, forms the hub of the wheel. One hundred and fifteen Chinese elms, extending as radii from the hub in six double lines, from the spokes. The rim is a circle of shrubs at the extremities of the six lines of trees.
The Kinder Memorial Park is a project of the Plainview Rotary Club of which Judge Kinder was a member. On the fountain is a bronze memorial tablet dedicating the park to the memory of the jurist.

Mack Wilson

(The Service Station Owner)

Tells . . .

"MY CUSTOMERS TALK ABOUT 'GAS' AND GAS"

MACK WILSON, the service station owner, discovers a lot about people in his daily contact with motorists, but one thing he can't understand is the difference in attitude toward the price of natural gas and the price of gasoline. He says that over the period of a few months the price of gasoline will fluctuate several cents, and there is never a murmur from his customers, in spite of the fact that gasoline is the only fuel that operates the common automobile.

He couldn't understand it because there are several fuels that people can turn to for general household purposes. Mack took the trouble to find out why they continue to use gas. He discovered that they would use gas if it cost several times the amount asked because it still would be the best bargain in fuels. He found, also, that people with automobiles spend more for gasoline than they do for gas for cooking and water heating.

You need not be a dealer in gasoline to appreciate Mack Wilson's attitude on gas rates. Consider gas for its value and you will recognize it for the bargain it is.

SPADE

The Spade High School sponsored a box supper last Wednesday night, January 24. A large crowd attended and many boxes were furnished and sold. In connection with the box supper a beauty contest was held. The race was a close event between Miss Erlene Kennedy and Miss Butler. Miss Erlene finally won by one vote. The total proceeds of the events amounted to something like $63.00, which is to go to the Spade athletic fund to pay for ball suits for the boys and girls. Thursday night there was a musical program given at Spade. There was quite a crowd in attendance.

Friday night Spade went to Anton to play two ball games. The Spade girls won by one point, and the Spade boys won by a large number of points. Saturday night the Spade girl's "B" team played Amherst and won the game. The same night the Spade boys and girl's "A" teams played Wayland College teams from Plainview and won both games.

This week is mid-term examination week at Spade and everyone is studying hard in order to pass. Then, to relieve the tension, there is to be an invitation basketball tournament for boys and girls at Spade gym, starting Thursday night, and lasting through Saturday night. No task is too Large or too Small When You Do It Electrically

Neither has electricity failed one task requiring precision. Whether it be supplying the power to run the kitchen clock or the largest motor in the greatest industrial plant—electricity will do the task best and most efficiently.

But it cannot be any more dependable than the generating, transforming and distribution equipment which supplies it to these load points. The Texas Utilities Company is proud of the fact that its equipment is unsurpassed by any in the entire southwest, and its service is of the very highest standard.

In order to supply this high standard service, the Texas Utilities Company made a big investment in building the gigantic Tuco Generating Plant. Tuco Station generates its power by means of steam turbine driven generators instead of oil engines as heretofore—the new power being the very best equipment, and the most reliable in operation. Our electric service is as good as man can make it. There's a world of difference between GOOD ELECTRIC SERVICE and just "electric service."

a final contract should be drawn up between the two interested parties. At this point the services of a lawyer, either as a member of the committee or as an adviser, will be found almost indispensable because the contract should be in a legal form.

There are several ways by which the county committee may aid in the adjustment of farm debts.

The mere fact that such a committee exists means that people of the community will give more attention to debt-adjustment problems and will frequently cause debtors and creditors to seek an amicable adjustment of any differences that may exist. It has been the experience of many county committees that in many cases it is only necessary to suggest to a debtor applicant that he go to his creditor and "lay his cards on the table." He should do this before officially submitting his case to the committee. It will promote better relations between debtor and creditor. In many cases it may be well for the committee to refer the problem to some third party known to the creditor and who will be able to find a solution without bringing the case before the committee for a hearing. Such action will conserve the time of the committee. Often this third party will be someone with whom the creditor is doing business who has a contact and influence with the creditor which the committee itself would not have.

It is quite likely that the creditors of an individual may meet for the first time as a group through the efforts of the county committee. When creditors learn that others have similar claims, all of which cannot be satisfied in full, a compromise may be more easily reached.

Local committees may render a service by assisting conservators and receivers of closed banks. Experience in many communities indicates that such conservators or receivers have come to rely quite largely upon the county committee for help in arriving at an equitable procedure, when the liabilities of farmers are involved in the affairs of a bank.

The committee should be able to help delay foreclosures while investigations are being made or while an application for a federal farm loan for refinancing purposes is being considered.

To help determine legitimate cases for foreclosures and to advise the creditor in such instances is as truly a function of the committee as other duties mentioned.

To suggest what appears to be a just basis for scaling down loans will be very helpful.

Local committees can frequently render assistance in closing federal farm loans.

An extension agreement may be arranged which will, in a sense, "freeze" the accumulated indebtedness and provide for the division of available income among creditors, taking into consideration priority of claims, until such time as it may seem advisable to effect a more permanent settlement of the case.

Assistance may frequently be rendered to judges passing on debt cases by presenting pertinent information based upon an impartial investigation of a debtor's property and his financial standing.

According to Mr. Whicker, several meetings have been held at the Littlefield Hotel for the purpose of organization. The local committee also met with the district supervisor, Judge Abernathy at Lubbock, Saturday last, and received full instructions how to proceed with their duties.

Headquarters of the Texas Farm Debt Conciliation Committee for Lamb County will be at the Littlefield Hotel, where the farmers of this section may apply for assistance which may be rendered them by this committee, said Mr. Whicker.

The farmers will be given from time to time further data regarding the Texas Farm Debt Conciliation duties and assistance which may be obtained from this source through the columns of this newspaper.

The past six months, practically all cases contested have resulted in convictions. I have recently pressed contested cases more vigorously to dispel the idea of beating a violation because same is misdemeanor, only.

Agricultural Adjustment Act will be used to accomplish this end."

Lease money received from the uncultivated land stipulated in the contracts means very little; but, the price received from the cotton produced means a whole lot to the farmers. If the project is a success, the cotton farmer will get a fair price per pound for his product.

The contracts call for a reduction of 35 to 45 per cent of cotton acreage. The direct benefit received from such a project would mean $10 to $11 per acre for the land uncultivated. Such a movement would aid the farmer indirectly by giving him a living and profitable price for the cotton produced, and aid him in general from cooperation with the government in future plans which are not yet announced.

The local committee, composed of J. C. Hillman, J. O. Garlington and W. W. Allen have worked diligently for the success of the cotton reduction project in this district and hope that the producers will cooperate to such an extent that will give Lamb County full benefit.

"The Big Shakedown" Featured At Palace Sunday And Monday

Charles Farrell and Bette Davis are co-starred in Warnes Brothers "The Big Shakedown," which will be featured at the Palace Theater Sunday night and Monday.

Farrell and Miss Davis, who play for the first time together, make delightful screen lovers. Farrell will be remembered for sterling characterizations in such recent pictures as "Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men," "The First Year," "Wild Girl" and "Tess of the Storm Country," and in many others with Janet Gaynor.

Miss Davis, who recently has risen to stellar roles, is best known for such pictures as "Bureau of Missing Persons," "Ex-Lady" and "The Working Man." Ricardo Cortez is the villain of the production. He does not hesitate to put his own sweetheart on the spot, when he jilts her for another light of love. His most recent pictures are "The House on 56th Street," "Six Executive" and "The Torch Singer."

Others members of the cast are Glenda Farrell, Allen Jenkins, Henry O'Neill, Phillip Faversham, Robert Emmet O'Connor, John Wray, George Pat Collins, Adrian Morris, Dewey Robinson, Ben Hendricks, George Coe and Renee Whitney.

The picture is a thrilling drama dealing with a new type of racketeering which has come in since the repeal made the liquor game less profitable. It is based on the story "Cut Rate" by Sam Engels and Niven Busch and was adapted for the screen by Busch and Rian James. John Francis Dillon directed.
