

STRICT COURT IS VERY LENIENT IN DRIVER'S CASE

criminal cases have been special session of District Court convened at 10 o'clock Monday morning, and court will continue the rest of this week. Special Session has been called for October 1, with the effort to clear the cases now on dockets in Lamb County. In the case last week of the State vs. E. H. Shaw, indicted for driving while intoxicated, a plea of guilty was entered, and penalty assessed of 30 days in jail, plus a fine of $100, and driver's license suspended for two years. When R. L. Gee and L. C. Rudd charged with chicken theft, specifically the theft of a chicken from the P. R. Williams farm near Sudan, appeared before the court it was found that the first named was only 15 years of age, and his case was transferred to the Juvenile Court of the county. Rudd entered a plea of guilty, and was given a one-year penitentiary sentence, which was held suspended by Judge Russell. O. L. Holliday, charged by indictment with disposition of mortgaged property, an automobile to Cliff Robison of Fieldton, on Thursday was given a suspended sentence by the jury in said cause. Friday, the case in which Jesse McIntyre was charged by indictment with murder of O. D. Brown, went to trial, and the jury found him guilty of failing to stop and render aid, and gave him a five-year suspended sentence. District Attorney Chas. H. Dean and Attorney J. E. Vickers represented the state, and Attorney E. A. Bills

2700 Farmers Will Benefit Says County Agent Donald Turner

"Lamb county farmers will receive a little more than half a million dollars in subsidy checks from the 1937 cotton crop," announced Donald Turner, county agent, Wednesday.

Mr. Turner advised the Leader that no checks had been received at his office as yet, but that he was expecting to receive a batch from the government "any minute."

During the interview Mr. Turner said, "We will receive a little more than half a million dollars. I do not know the exact amount, but more than half a million dollars will go to the 2700 farmers participating."

"We do not have any definite way of determining just when the checks will arrive, but we expect some this week. Since the other counties are receiving these subsidy checks, it is likely that Lamb county will get some this week."

LEADER WANT ADS GET RESULTS . . . "WANTED TO RENT—A four room house near the school building. See Fred Wright at the Palace Drug."

That was an ad given to a Leader reporter last Tuesday, and by Wednesday afternoon, someone had rented a house to Mr. Wright, before the paper was published.

When Mr. Wright told the reporter that he wanted to run a classified to that effect, she told him that anyone who threatened to run an ad, always got results. He laughed and didn't believe this writer, but now the laugh is on him . . . and he is a firm believer in Leader Want Ads now! Furthermore, he had about eight or ten calls, people wanting to rent him a house, after the paper came out on Thursday morning. One day, there were four house-owners who tried to see him.

In Williard Bright's paper, The Gaines County News, published at Seagraves, a grocery firm advertised for rain, back in June, and scarcely had the paper arrived at the post office until the first downpour of the season came in such torrents, that for days, the groceryman thought he would have to run another ad, asking that the rain be stopped.

Where is the guy who says it doesn't pay to advertise?

DOWN THE RIVER

It now appears that England and France have decided to "Sell Checkoslovakia Down the River." At least that's the way in which most people view their joint decision to all the Fuehrer to carry on with the phibiscite and the eventual division and absorption of the very valuable and desirable properties. We doubt whether these agreements will carry weight with the people of France and England.

Checkoslovakia is determined to fight for her independence and will prove a formidable adversary for the Germans. They have food, coal, ammunition and brave fighting men. We doubt whether the entry into Bohemia will be a simple task.

It is to be hoped that our level-headed President will not be swayed by emotional propoganda or sympathies, into repeating our terrible experiences of 1917.

Don't overlook Russia in the event that Hitler marches in. Stalin is—we believe equipped for quick travel. Some three thousand fighting air planes could reach the invaders in about 5 hours, and a few million Russian soldiers would not be far behind.

This editorial is penned on the afternoon of Monday, September 19th. Perhaps—by the time of going to press—Thursday morning—different pictures will have been painted on the world's canvass. But—regardless of developments, during the next forty eight hours, we still maintain—THAT THE UNITED STATES HAS NO BUSINESS IN THIS MIXUP.

DAVE SCHEIN.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

There is a group of peace-minded people who are trying to get new words written to our national anthem, because they think it is too warlike in its sentiments. Another group is offering a prize to composers for the re-writing of the tune, on the ground that the range is too great for most people's voices.

When Congress in 1931 enacted the law making the "Star-Spangled Banner" the official anthem of the United States, the lawmakers certainly overlooked a lot of more inspiring and definitely more American tunes, which are also easier to sing. The words of the "Star-Spangled Banner" were written during the War of 1812, and set to the tune of "Anacreon in Heaven," an old English drinking song. "Yankee Doodle" is a livelier air, with more "pep" to it, and dates from America's pre-Revolutionary days. If someone would write a new set of verses to that old tune it could become the real national patriotic song, Acts of Congress to the contrary notwithstanding.

A genuinely American tune which brings American crowds, North and South, to their feet, cheering, is "Dixie." Written and composed by Dan Emmett for his Negro Minstrel troupe, its words are of no particular importance from a national point of view, but it is the tune, after all, that counts in such things more than the words do. Who knows the words of the "Star-Spangled Banner," for that matter?

The words of "America" ring with real patriotic fervor, but the tune is the same as the British national song, "God Save the King." Far more truly American, both in words and music, is "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

However, national anthems and patriotic songs aren't written to order. They must be as spontaneous as was "Over There" in the late war, to capture the popular imagination. Some day some American will compose a song which breathes the spirit of America so fervently that the whole nation will sing it. That will be the real National Anthem.

First Cotton Checks Are Received By Cochran County

The first batch of government cotton checks to be received by Cochran county arrived Wednesday of last week. The aggregate amount of these checks were about $15,000. This leaves about $50,000 yet to come.

The $15,000 is disbursed among 95 men, which gives an average of approximately $150.00 each. Some, of course are larger and some smaller. This is on the 3 cent subsidy payments.

Howdy Folks:

Whenever I want to get pepped up about Littlefield's prospects and future, I give the natives a wide berth, and tackle a newcomer—somebody who has been somewhere, and really appreciates a good town when he sees it. For many years H. T. Bartley, whose home has been in Fort Worth, traveled all over the state of Texas—looking for the ideal place to locate in—when he got ready to quit the road. Littlefield was in his territory and he has been coming here for some years. When he decided to open an Associate Store for The Western Auto Stores he promptly chose Littlefield. Mr. Bartley and his son Frank, came here a couple of weeks ago, and installed the stock and fixtures. They opened about a week ago and are already enrolled as top-men in The Littlefield Boosters. It did me a lot of good to talk to the Bartleys; they are brimful of enthusiasm, and will do much towards helping us build up our town. You'll appreciate knowing these nice folks and you'll think more of your own Littlefield after you've talked to them and been inoculated by their special brand of optimistic serum.

Another man who has come to live with us—and invested his money in Littlefield—is N. D. Grisham of Spring Lake. He has just completed the large new roller rink, and is highly etated over the city's prospects. Grisham is a fine chap, who was raised on a farm, went to college, and has fine ideals as well as oodles of practical business sense. He expects to give us clean, wholesome sport and entertainment—and—very frankly admits that he expects to make a fortune. If I'm any judge of people—I am willing to go on record, as saying that Grisham will make good in a big way. So—will anybody else in Littlefield providing that they have something to offer in the way of sincere effort and plenty of faith and patience.

"Time Marches On"—Immediately after viewing this famous news-reel—last Sunday afternoon—Alexander's Ragtime Band struck up the tunes that were popular when the American boys went over-seas in 1917. First—they showed us the preparations for war that are now being made in Europe, and—then we cheered the boys that went over-seas twenty-one years ago. Wonder what they'll be showing in 1959, and—whether I'll be seeing it? Yes—TIME DOES MARCH ON.

Tonight Littlefield Rotarians will be Good Scouts and dance for the benefit of the Boy Scouts building fund. Of course—the public is invited. In fact—you are positively expected. Any Rotarian will gladly provide you with a ticket and every boy scout will thank you. Remember—its at the Legion Hut—tonight—Thursday, and its for the benefit of Our Future Citizens.

Friend of mine—button-holed me the other day, bought me some coffee; went on to explain to me—in detail, how he despises folks who are always hunting publicity. There was a vaguely familiar rhythm in his song. All through the night—I kept asking myself—"Where have I heard that before?" Suddenly—there came back to me O'Henry's famous poem—

NOTHING TO SAY

"You can tell your paper," the great man said, "I refused an interview. I have nothing to say on the question, sir; Nothing to say to you."

And then he talked 'till the sun went down and the chickens went to roost; And he seized the collar of the poor young man, and never his hold he loosed.

And the sun went down and the moon came up, And he talked 'till the dawn of day; Though he said, "On this subject mentioned by you, I have nothing whatever to say."

And down the reporter dropped to sleep And flat on the floor he lay; And the last he heard was the great man's words, "I HAVE NOTHING AT ALL TO SAY."

The first "Norther" suited me just fine. All summer long—I was so busy that I didn't get around to

Pardonable Pride

If there is one thing I particularly dislike it's a braggard. Persons that talk about their achievements, are my Publicemies Nos. 1-2-3 etc. I try—oh so hard, to keep talking or writing about myself. But—once while, something so big and wonderful happened any of us, that we can't contain ourselves, and have to spill the good news. After fifty years of being and struggling—I have positive proof that—A SUCCESS!

Word was brought to me that I had made a favorable impression with a most important person. He said that I was just as sweet as Santa Claus. He was none other than Maxwell Stone. I defy anyone to show me a single instance where Maxwell Stone ever been caught in an untruth. No sirrah—he is absolutely honest and sincere. By the way—did you know that Maxwell recently celebrated his 50th birthday?

Oh—I have a lot of other real friends. One is Jacky Farr, Suzy Diane Hall and Polly I. Everyone of them really like me. Now—don't blame me for crowing about my social success.

Fried Chicken "Best Buy" Says Home Supervisor

Of the 34 families in Lamb county visited by Miss Adkins, Home Management Supervisor, 21 families will have their own home grown fried chickens on September menus. These spring chickens have just put on enough weight to be classified as "friers," and they are plump, richer in flavor, and have more meat to the bone, than they had in the July season. There are more of these chicks on the farms than there were a year ago, and although they are well fed and in good condition, they have so far been selling at a lower price than they did in 1937. This is a general trend all over the country according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture publication. There are 13 per cent more young chicks

Conducts Meeting At Hart's Camp

Bro. Sehoy Prestridge, Church of Christ evangelist of Lubbock, who is conducting a revival meeting at Hart's Camp this week and next. Evening services only.

LUTHERAN CHURCH
W. J. Luecke, Pastor

Last week, Wednesday night, the Young People's Society met in the basement of the school for their first fall meeting. A record crowd attended, so that our meeting room was really too small to permit any inside games, except such where all could remain seated. So a track meet was held outside before the school. The shot-put, broad jump, discus and pole vault were the most hotly contested events. Refreshments were served by Rev. and Mrs. W. Luecke. In our next meeting pictures of Carlsbad Cavern will be shown. The following were elected as a committee to see after the road-markers for the church: Mr. Fred Michlink, Mr. Tommy Mauk and Mr. Harold Goertz.

Regular services will be held Sunday with the celebration of Holy Communion in the English service at 11 a. m. Announcement for the same on Saturday. Night services and Bible class begin at 8 and 8:30. All visitors are heartily welcome. Why not spend the Lord's Day with us on Sunday, if you have no church home?

The Ladies Aid of the congregation met yesterday and began the sewing of sheets, pillow slips and gowns to be placed in a sick emergency chest. Other ladies of the congregation may also assist in this work by contributing material etc. This is work from which the entire congregation will benefit.

over the country at large than there was a year ago.

Just now fryers are considered the "best buy" on the market. They should be fairly good size, weighing 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 pounds "dressed," which means plucked, but not drawn, with head and feet attached. A 2 1-2 pound fryer should serve three people with some left over, a 3-pound bird makes the basis of a dinner for four, and 3 1-2-pound bird should be enough for five. This means that about one-half pound should be allowed for each person served.

When selecting a chicken for frying, be sure they are young enough and you can tell by pressing the breast bone, if the bone is flexible, it is sufficiently tender. The breast should be well rounded and all bones covered with flesh.

To prepare a chicken for frying, wash well, but not long enough to allow any of the precious meat juices to soak out into the water. In cutting the chickens consider the size of the bird and the number of persons to be served. If the fryer is large make separate servings of the thighs and drumsticks; the breast goes further if cut in two to four pieces and folded wings are easier to handle and cook more easily. Wipe pieces dry to prevent spattering of fat. Season and sprinkle with a protecting coating of flour or cornmeal or a thin batter may be used made with eggs, flour, potato water, fine bread crumbs, or whatever is on hand.

"The Adventures Of Robin Hood" To Be Feature At Palace

Filed entirely in Technicolor, "The Adventures of Robin Hood," starring the dashing Errol Flynn, is set to have its local premiere at the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight, continuing through Sunday and Monday.

Long-awaited, this beloved legend, concerning the gallant deeds of a Saxon noble who turned outlaw with a band of followers and plundered the rich Normans to feed and protect the poor and oppressed, has long been a favorite to moviegoers of all ages.

But for this Technicolor treatise, Warner Bros. has drawn on much new material rich in the lore of this legendary figure. The original screen play, based on these legends, is by Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Mille Erich Wolfgang Korngold did the musical score.

The lovely Maid Marian is portrayed by the beautiful Olivia de Havilland, Prince John is played by Claude Rains; Sir Guy of Gisbourne is brought to the screen by the sleek Basil Rathbone; King Richard the Lion-Hearted is Ian Hunter; Friar Tuck is the rotund Eugene Pallette; and the lovable Little John is sturdy Alan Hale.

NEW BEARINGS SET ASTOUNDING RECORDS

(1) Howard Hughes lands his plane in New York after record breaking flights surrounded by reporters, policemen and the "insiders" who were able to secure passes. Nearly 30,000 spectators were massed behind the outer barriers watching this epoch-making arrival. (2) Group of typical copper-lead bearings. This is the type bearing used in the tractor which operated for 18,000 hours on a hard road grading schedule with absolutely no attention to its engine bearings beyond ordinary lubrication. (3) Hercules Diesel tractor on record breaking road building contract in Oregon.

AMAZING endurance records which far exceed engineering dreams of but a few years ago are being established by the infallibility and greatly increased ruggedness of internal combustion engines. Hughes famous flight around the world in a fraction over three days is an outstanding example. A road tractor which worked for 18,000 hours without a single bearing replacement on an almost continuous 24-hour a day stretch is another example.

There is much in common between the flight of Hughes "around the world" in three days, 19 hours and 17 minutes and the tractor which maintained a schedule of 12 trips per hour over an eleven hundred foot average haul on three 7-hour shifts for six days per week until it had completed 18,000 hours of work. Both are extreme examples of speed and endurance and both were equipped with the latest type heavy-duty Bohn copper-lead bearings. Earlier bearing materials could not possibly have withstood the stresses involved in a continuous wide open throttle run of this kind.

Back of these spectacular achievements is an engineering

Where There's Bees There Must Be Honey

Mr. Farmer! At last the discovery has been made, whereby you can eat your cotton crop, next year, in the event the price is low, there is drought, or the worms start feasting on the leaves.

Just get a large number of bees, with several hives, and they will make honey from pollen of the cotton.

Lowell Short, manager of the Higginbotham-Bartlett company here, has several bee hives, and he doesn't rob them, just collects rent from the bees. He always has enough honey for his family, and has regular customers who buy the pure honey.

Last year, the bees didn't make much honey, and Mr. Short stated that he did not collect any rent from them, because they needed their honey through the winter, but for the past two months, his bees are paying all the back rent and making a little money for him. When asked by the inquiring reporter where the bees were able to get pollen, since there are very few wild flowers here, he stated that the pollen from the cotton blooms was the chief ingredients in this honey.

Mr. Short purchased a large number of bees and hives in 1931, when the depression came. Since that time, he has entered the lumber business,

The suggestion has been made so many times that the City Commission do something about the parking system in Littlefield, on Saturday afternoons. The many projects that the local Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring mean much to the city of Littlefield, but something must be done, in the general opinion, and be done now, about the parking system on Phelps Avenue. Do I hear a second!

Ever start out happily on a trip, only to have trouble and your good spirits turned to gloom by having flats, due to tires that are worn out. Stop by Roy and Curtis Heard's Station across from the City Hall and let put a set of new Seiberling Tires on your car. The price is so reasonable, just before the fall rush, too.

The most embarrassing moment related by one of the Commissioners at the "Cowboy Supper" for the County Officers recently was the time the County Commissioners met in Austin, and Mr. Vann were trousers that were too long for him. He sent them back to a tailor to have them shortened, and when they were returned he hung them in the closet until time to wear them to a very important meeting with the highway commission. When Mr. Vann put his trousers on, they struck him at his knees. Imagine his embarrassment! ! ! !

Hore-to-fore, cotton has been about the only farm product that could not, in some way, direct or indirect, be consumed as food, but this proves to be a solution to the problem. Cotton has been used by large manufacturing concerns in numerous products, tires, high explosives, cellophane, and wool blankets.

J. H. Weatherford of Lubbock has leased the N. L. Garrett building next door to the Littlefield Truck and Tractor Company, and established a new grocery and market in this city.

Mr. Weatherford has been operating Weatherford's Grocery on Avenue K, Lubbock, since 1926, and on locating here, left in charge of that store his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Daniel.

This new store opened to the public Thursday last. Since that time new merchandise has been arriving daily, until now he has a complete stock, and is planning his formal opening Saturday.

Mr. Weatherford is assisted in the operation of the business by Mrs. Weatherford and Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Burke.

E. S. Billings and H. R. Neely installed the grocery shelving and otherwise prepared the building for occupancy.

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

SEVENTEENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Soledad. Both men are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train, which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting foils a hold-up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff tells Dave he is not wanted. Quinn defends

Dave but Dave and Rand go to Soledad to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceed on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Suddenly a shot from the darkness topples Dave from his horse. Rosy fires and kills the unknown assailant and they rush to the ranch to treat Dave's severe scalp wound. Next morning, at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to deliver a corpse to the sheriff and see the town banker. Identity of corpse reveals him to be ex-employee of Hammond's. Dave, Rosy and the sheriff immediately confront Hammond with facts. Fight between Hammond and Dave prevented by sheriff. Dave plans to raise alfalfa on his land and use money to pay off mortgage. Someone blew up the lake. Hammond thought it was Dave and the latter suspected Hammond or his men. A chance meeting of the two gives them an opportunity to clear away this false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions. Rosy rushes to Winters' home to tell Mary of his suspicions about her husband and asks her help to prove his findings. Laredo evolves a scheme to arrest Crowell as a murder suspect in order to hold him for questioning. By a clever ruse, Dave escapes his captors and then frees Dorsey who was held prisoner for ransom.

When they were clear of the canyons again, they headed south for Soledad. Neither of them talked. They picked up the trail that led past the D Bar T and Laredo let his bay make the pace. Chuck's voice yanked him out of his thoughts. "Listen! Weren't those shots?" "Shots? I never heard them. Where from?" "To the south and a little west." That would be the Turner place. Laredo spurred his horse into a long lope.

"We'll take a pasear, Chuck. C'mon," he called. When they approached the D Bar T, the place was dark. Laredo reined up by the corral. "Let's look around." They dismounted and approached the house. The house loomed blackly, silently, before them. Laredo came up to the back door and listened. Nothing. He walked off to the side and listened again. A soft groan came from the front of the house. Laredo drew a gun and warily walked around to the corner of the house and stopped. Again the groan. Laredo knelt down and stuck a match. As it flared, he saw a man lying sprawled in a wide pool of blood, face down. He turned him over. "Rourke," he said quietly. "One of them nesters." Laredo turned the man over. "He's done for," he told Chuck, but the nester moved a little. "Who—who is it?" the nester asked in a weak frantic whisper. "Laredo Jackson. What happened, Rourke?" "They tried — to fire — house," Rourke whispered. "Two of 'em. I — come — see Turner — about lake. Dark. Saw — both scatterin' — coal oil — leaves. They cut down — me. Took my — gun." "Which way did they ride?" Laredo asked him. "I couldn't tell," Rourke whispered. "Hurt bad?" Laredo asked gently. "Bad as hell," Rourke whispered. "I'm done for." Laredo looked off into the night, cursing softly. "What kind of a gun was you carryin', Rourke?" "Smith and Wesson .38. Had a chip off the butt." "And you never saw 'em? Never saw their horses?" "I thought it was Turner. I spoke right out, and they both opened up on me. Don't remember much. One of 'em kicked me in the face, and laughed, and took my gun." "Didn't he say nothin'?" "Somethin' about — wonderin' if they'd take it — at a faro table — instead of money." "What did he call the ranny he spoke to?" There was no answer. Laredo poured more water down Rourke's open mouth. The man did not move. "He's dead," he said quietly. Laredo went back to Chuck. "I'm going with you, wherever that is," Chuck told him. "It's Single Shot. That's the only place there's faro tables close." Martin Quinn stood among the curling pennants of tobacco smoke. His face was still, impassive. It was a big night for the Free Throw and the saloon was noisy with the crowd. He felt a hand on his sleeve and looked up to see one of the housemen beside him holding out a folded slip of paper. Unfolding it with one hand, he read: "Come to hotel room at once. Rand." "Who gave it to you?" he asked the houseman. "Dunno. Somebody left it with Mike at the bar." "Get Royer," Quinn said quietly. Royer was the owner of the Free Throw. The man melted through the crowd. Presently, bald, heavy man past middle age with a big diamond on the checked tie that he wore with an even gaudier suit, made his way to Quinn's side. "Want me?" he asked. "What's the matter? Trouble?" Quinn did not look up from the box. "No trouble." "I'm quittin', Royer," Quinn continued. "Check me out." Royer stared at him. "What's the matter? Ain't I treatin' you right?" "No kick at all," Quinn said casually. "Better get a houseman — I want to talk to you." The owner shouted for a man and he and Quinn sought a quiet corner. "Now what's this all about?" Royer asked. Quinn pulled out his billfold, took out a card and silently handed it to Royer. The great bushy eyebrows of the owner ransed as he read it. He gave Quinn a searching look. "What is it, trouble?" "I think so," Quinn answered quietly. The saloon owner cursed not without a grim smile however. "Well, go ahead." Quinn sauntered through the crowd into the dance-hall, skirted the floor and stepped out the side entrance. He took out the note and read it again. The writing was not the same as that on the two notes Roy had sent him. He walked slowly over to the hotel, a scowl wrinkling his forehead. The clerk greeted him and reached for his key. "Seventeen, isn't it, Mr. Quinn?" "Is sixteen taken?" Quinn asked, accepting the key. The clerk looked at him, puzzled, then looked at the register. "No it's empty." "I want it," Quinn said. The clerk was about to speak, but a look at Quinn stopped him. "I want the key to the door that connects seventeen and sixteen, too," the gambler said. The clerk shook his head. "I'm afraid it's lost, Mr. Quinn." Quinn nodded, took the key to sixteen, and headed for the stairs. At the head of the stairs, Quinn paused and removed his shoes. Then he continued down the hall. Room seventeen, his own room, was on the back corner around a small L in the hall. He tip-toed down the corridor and let himself noiselessly into room sixteen, which was next to his own. Then he set about working. He put on his shoes, because the carpet made his movements noiseless. Then, working in the dark he got a towel and soaked it in the pitcher of water, went over to the connecting door and poured the water slowly and quietly on the rug where it disappeared under the door. The rug soaked the water up and spread it into the adjoining room. Then he rose, got the lamp, unscrewed the wick, knelt at the door again, and poured its kerosene slowly on the rug at the bottom of the door. Like an oily snake, the kerosene floated on the surface of the wet rug and slid under the door into the next room. Quinn got the wet towel, struck a match, lit the kerosene and watched the flame flare up and crawl under the door. Swiftly, he laid the wet towel against the door, extinguishing the flames on his side of it, then rose and went out into the hall. He quickly took the ten steps in the corridor to room seventeen, inserted the key softly, unlocked the door, swung it open and stepped inside. The room was dark except for the kerosene flame burning brightly against the connecting door. A tall rowboned man in range clothes with nearly white hair was kneeling before the flames trying to slap them out with his bare hands. Behind him stood Winters holding out a wet towel. "Good evening, gentlemen," Quinn drawled. They both whirled instantly. "You sent for me, I believe?" It took a half second for the two men to realize the situation. Winters, with a snarl, hurled the towel at Quinn's head. But the gambler had anticipated that. His gun exploded at Winters. Then the wet towel struck Quinn in the face and wrapped around his head. He plucked at it frantically, waiting for the shots from Winters' companion, but they did not come. When he wrenched the towel off, the room was in darkness. He waited a tense second, then struck a match. By it, he saw that Winters had fallen against the door, slid down it and extinguished the flames.

But the second man was gone. The window was open, and from a solidly embedded hook in the window frame, a rope trailed out the open window. He saw the rope move and ran to the window. He heard a body drop, then the sound of running feet.

Quinn swung out the window and disappeared down the rope. In town, Laredo paused just long enough to tell Chuck: "You stay out the way. I'm handlin' the shootin' irons tonight." They swung into the crowded hitchrack in front of the Mile High.

Laredo started at the corner and worked up, examining every saddle horse at the rack. Far down the line, he came to a blue horse and he stopped. The horse was breathing hard. It was wet with sweat.

He struck a match, knelt down and began to examine the ground under the horse. Some shiny object caught his eye and he picked it up. It was an empty 38 caliber shell.

He straightened up. In front of the saloon doors at the hitchrack, a team and buckboard stood. Laredo swung up over the end-gate and faced the saloon.

Chuck, on the sidewalk, saw Laredo draw a gun. But the single foreman lifted his head.

"Yee-o-ow-e-eee!"

His blood-curdling cry split the night air and he punctuated it with three swift shots through the door of the Mile High that winked out the lights, leaving pandemonium inside.

A tentative shot coughed out of the Mile High, then the din began. Yells, shouts, curses and shrieks welled out of the door, just as the first customers came lolling through the door.

Laredo calmly loaded his gun as he walked down the road to the blue horse. Then he untied the blue's reins and mounted.

Laredo saw the running figure swing under the hitchrack, then come to an abrupt stop before the blue. "Get offa that horse! That blue is mine!"

Laredo hesitated. "Why, so it is," he said mildly.

He swung off slowly, then pivoted around to ram a gun barrel in the belly of the man.

Laredo ordered softly.

Laredo looked the man over, then reached out and pulled a gun from where it was wedged in the man's belt. It was a Smith and Wesson .38 with a ship off its potted butt.

The men who had swarmed out of the saloon stopped now and formed a loose circle about the two men.

"I won that in a poker game," the man blustered.

Laredo backed away from him slowly, his gun steady and ominous. "Now tell 'em you lie," Laredo drawled thickly. "Before I cut you off pocket-high, tell 'em you got the gun from Lurche, a man you killed and then kicked in the face."

Olton Mustangs Dedicate Arcs With Victory, 12-0

The Olton Mustangs dedicated their new light Friday night, defeating Dimmitt, 12 to 0, in a slovenly played game, before a large crowd of spectators.

Poteet went over for Olton's first number in the opening period after a 60-yard drive down the field. Huggins counted in the second chapter after the Mustangs got possession of the ball on a Dimmitt fumble.

The second half was unimpressive. Dimmitt came back strong in the fourth quarters to outplay the heavier Mustangs, but they could not reach the goal line.

The Olton team goes to Brownfield this coming Friday.

Whitharral Panthers Defeat Spring Lake Team, 19 To 12

The Whitharral high school Panthers turned back Spring Lake 19-12, in a Class "C" game of District 13 at Spring Lake Friday afternoon. It was the second victory for Coach "Bulldog" Hale's Whitharral team since the school installed football.

The Panthers scored early after the kick-off, recovering a fumble on the 28-yard line. Webb, left end, covered the remaining distance for a touchdown. Spring Lake scored a few minutes later, also after recovering a fumble. Whitharral marched from its own 20 to the Spring Lake 15 in the second quarter and Gray took a pass to score.

Whitharral prevailed in first downs, 11 to 5.

Rev. A. A. Brian, a former pastor of the First Baptist church here, and now at Merkel, has accepted the call of the congregation at the Levelland First Baptist church, and held services there Sunday.

NEW 1939 PHILCO RADIOS NOW ON DISPLAY AT GARLAND-WHITE

The new 1939 Philco radios, on display at Garland-White Auto Supply, are excitingly different. Their convenience has been doubled and the performance is better than ever.

Some of the outstanding features of the new Philco are the instant push-button tuning and the remote "Mystery Control." The "Mystery Control" achieves the same scientific remote control of your receiving set—but in an entirely new and different way. It does not have a radio beam, nor a photo-electric cell. Now Philco uses this new mysterious force, so that from your easy chair across the room, or lying in your bed upstairs, you enjoy the thrill of changing stations, controlling volume, and even turning off the set, without a single wire connection. It is a light, attractive, compact "Mystery Control" unit, and looks like a small box, similar to a radio, but without wires.

Each portable "Mystery Control" box is in tune only with its companion receiver, so that there will be no possible effect on a neighbor's set.

Garland-White Auto Supply invites you to visit their store and see the greatest thrill in ten years of radio, and see for yourself just how the "Mystery Control" can be carried around.

Dr. J. W. Harris Outlines Experiences In Puerto Rico

Dr. J. W. Harris told a reporter Tuesday afternoon, reviewed the work that he did on the island, in helping establish the Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico, of which he is president for more than 30 years, the reporter went with Rev. Harris, 2100 miles east of Galveston, Texas, and 1,000 miles along the coast of Cuba, past Jamaica, and San Domingo, he told of the beautiful harbor of San Juan, principal city on the island of Puerto Rico. San Juan is the only city on the western hemisphere, and to the left, as one approaches the city, is the Castillo.

Columbus discovered the island of Puerto Rico on his second voyage to America, and colonization in 1495, when Ponce DeLeon made ruler of the colony. The search for gold was typical of the strong personality of the Spaniard. Ponce De Leon started search for the Fountain of Youth, he was on this isle, and from there he went to Florida, for the island told him that the fountain was to the west. To the Comma Springs, or the Fountain of Youth" is in the island, near the western end of the island and is used as a health

The island is octagonal in shape, five miles wide, and 100 miles long, divided by a range of mountains across the 100 miles, being 4500 feet high.

The oldest standing church in the Western Hemisphere is still standing in Puerto Rico, at San Juan, the Porto Cielo Convent was erected as a mission to the island by the early Catholic fathers, was constructed after 1516. The present population of the island is a total of 1,750, with 500 people to the square mile. Eighty per cent of the population is of Spanish blood. Because of the beautiful harbor, sailors were attracted from all points of the globe, and the excellent climate and people leaving Europe, were looking for more favorable locations, stopped on the island of enchantment to live happily. There is no friction among the people of the island, all of them are agreeable and happy.

The principal crops on the island are sugar, coffee, tobacco, coconuts, grapefruit and oranges. Many other crops are grown and Puerto Rico exports much of the sugar produced in the United States.

The first religion of the inhabitants was Catholicism, but it has been divided with Protestantism, and no two missionaries in the same district.

Remarkable advancement has been made in the past thirty-eight years, and today, due to proper methods and procedure of the educational system, the schools are on a par with the high standards among the states, on the states of the forty eight states above those schools of Puerto Rico.

Nothing is outstanding about the schools in Puerto Rico, they are under the supervision and control of an Educational Commissioner, who is appointed by the United States.

Connected with education, the construction of school buildings, appointments of teachers, qualifications, expenditure of all money, with 45 per cent of the budget, all comes through his supervision.

There are two institutions of higher learning located on the island, the University of Puerto Rico, established in 1906, and located at San Juan and directed by a board of directors, whose chairmen is the Commissioner of Education. With twenty five public high schools, and four or five private high schools, more than 1,000 students are graduated each year. Many of the graduates come to the United States, some go to Europe, but most of them stay on the island to be educated. At the University, one can study almost any subject, and experienced teachers are employed to teach agriculture, domestic arts, music and liberal arts, mechanical arts, law and pharmacy.

The Polytechnic Institute, located at San German, was established March 2, 1912, as a private institution by Dr. J. Will Harris, a Presbyterian Missionary, who had a purpose of helping worthy young men and women get a high education, who otherwise might not be able to go to college. From a hundred acres of land and one dilapidated building housing the grammar school there has grown the present Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico. Against terrific odds, and after three attempts, was this great school established. Dr. Harris started on Monday, March 2, 1912 with one boy as a student, and at the end of the month, there were eight boys and four girls. This dilapidated building that housed the original grammar school and the one hundred acres of land was the beginning. At first only the primary grades were taught, the first, second, third and fourth grades, and there were very few schools on the island that were better. When the students reached the sixth grade, they were made teachers in other schools. Dr. Harris with his integrity through the years, helped these students achieve the higher things in life, with the four aims of the college; intellect, Christian living, rural training for the improvement of the country, and physical development. The students were required to do manual work, and of the seventeen magnificent buildings that stand on the campus of the school today, a great portion of the work was done by the students themselves.

Rev. Harris stated that because of the bi-lingual education on the island, it is destined to become the connecting link of the English speaking North and the Spanish speaking South. In Puerto Rico is the best of both the northern and southern hemisphere, united. The people have developed strong personalities, and are capable of adapting themselves anywhere. Puerto Ricans are industrious, quick to think and acquire knowledge, they are pleasing, considerate, as is true of all Latin Americans. They are kind and live happily. Today most of the young people speak English, but thirty years ago, the majority of the people spoke Spanish.

When the school was established as a grammar school, Dr. Harris had in mind to have a college, and as the years past, the scholastics increased, and now it is a Liberal Arts College, and not only does it have a beautiful campus, seventeen magnificent buildings and a large endowment, but also a good library and well-qualified professors in every department, with 200 students enrolled. It is maintained by the Presbyterian church, but it serves all denominations and no church affiliation is required by those who attend.

Dr. Harris, who was assisted in the school by his brother, Clarence Harris, made frequent trips to New York for money for sustenance of the school, and at first all funds were secured from the people in the United States, and those who contributed, did this as missionary adventure. Later he had the cooperation of the Carnegie Corporation of New York, and it has continued to assist, furnishing much of the money in the early years of college. The greatest difficulty came in line with the co-education and manual labor, as these factors were alien to the Latin mind. In order to make a success it was necessary to establish and enforce strict rules in the institute. At first the school was called a correctional school, it was laughed at and very depreciated by the young people; but this attitude changed after the first few years, and now it has enrolled, students from among the best families of the island. It is the only private institution in all Latin America that is co-educational, where men and women both are allowed to attend school and stay in the dormitories. Only a Bachelor of Arts degree can be secured from this college.

On the 25th anniversary, March 2, 1937, Dr. Harris retired as president, and since that time has been living with his family on a ranch near Dilly, Texas. This man, who has devoted the greatest part of his life to the teaching of Christain living and lifting the standards of living through the establishment of a school, which was destined to become the guiding influence in education in Puerto Rico, still has plans to establish a college for college graduates, and next month he will meet with officials in Washington and lay his plan before them, which is to be model farms where graduates can live and work with their hands on farms that can eventually be secured as their own. He feels that the farmers of America have been neglected, and it is his idea to try to help a few of them find happiness.

Rev. and Mrs. Harris have three sons and two daughters, who finished high school in Puerto Rico. One of their daughters teaches English in one of the high schools in Puerto Rico today.

Dr. Harris has never been a pastor of a church, but he is an ordained minister, and has at one time, been supervisor of 27 churches.

New Little Theatre To Present Three One Act Plays

Rehearsals Will Be Started Next Monday Evening

After months of planning and preparation, The Little Theatre of Littlefield, has been organized by David Schein and a group of drama enthusiasts. The first season will consist of four performances to be staged at two month intervals. The first presentation will consist of three one act plays interspersed with dramatized ballads. The plays selected for the opening are: "The Valiant", "War" and "Hearts and Flowers". "The Valiant" is generally conceded to be the finest play of its kind ever written; "War" is an exceptionally clever one-act satire and "Hearts and Flowers" is a side-splitting rural mellerdrama.

In discussing the prospects for the forthcoming season, Mr. Schein said: "We shall give the people of Littlefield a community theatre that they will be proud of."

A meeting will be held at the library in the city hall, next Monday evening, and tryouts will be given those interested. Mr. Schein expects to complete the casts for the opening shows next week and urges all those interested in Little Theatre work, to come to the meeting next Monday or get in touch with him personally.

The first presentation will be under the sponsorship of the Woman's Study Club and a share of the receipts will be turned over to the Library fund. The net proceeds of the second show of the season will be turned over to the Rotary Club for their Boy Scouts Building Fund.

ownership; to strengthen the regular rehabilitation loans and supervision to low-income tenants; to increase the security and the length of tenure and reduce the economic loss involved in the annual transfer of approximately a million tenant families from farm to farm.

One of the major possibilities offered in the new lease form, he said, is that of providing an incentive for greater interest on the part of the tenant and his family in the care and preservation of the land-owner and thus promoting the preservation and improvement of that half of the nation's agricultural land which is operated by renters.

Calling attention to the recent study of the nation's soil and human resources conducted by D. P. Trent, chief of the Farm Security Administration's tenure improvement section, Mr. Limer said the problem of unproductive land is serious, but the problem of unproductive lives people must live upon unproductive land is incomparably more serious.

"Worn-out, eroded, gullied, lifeless and barren farms," he continued, "are important from the standpoint of the national welfare, and the dilapidated houses on many farms are a matter of serious public concern, but the hopeless and fruitless lives of the people who occupy these dilapidated houses and who struggle for existence upon those impoverished lands assume the appearance of a national tragedy hence the problem demands consideration from the standpoint of conserving the nation's human resources. These flexible lease forms are now available to every land-owner and tenant in this county for inspection and study.
