High winds, tornadoes, hail and pounding rains have struck in many spots over the Plains this week, bringing some damage to buildings and early planted cotton, but no loss of lives. Ai Chambers' Car Stolen Monday

Monday night a 1950 Pontiac automobile belonging to Ai Chambers, 619 East 16th street, was stolen from behind the Town House restaurant, while the owner was attending a meeting of the Toastmasters Club.
Sheriff Dick Dyer said when Chambers came out of the meeting the car was gone. His office is continuing an investigation of the theft, but at mid morning Wednesday, the car had not been recovered.

Sunday evening brought rains to most of the county and trade area, with some hail falling at Olton and near Hart, where more hail fell Tuesday evening and Tuesday night. Hail measuring up to five inches fell in this area and much young cotton will have to be replanted because of the excessive rains and hail damage. . . At Whithersel, at the other end of the county, only a sprinkling of rain fell during the early part of the week, with but little moisture. . . At Amherst the report gave one inch of rain, with more falling early Wednesday and heavy clouds blanketing the area. . . In Littlefield, where less than 7 of an inch fell, high winds scattered some plants and trees and blew out a plate glass window in the A&B office supply store. Many tree limbs littered the streets in the wake of winds with gusts as strong as 60 miles per hour. No hail was recorded here, but driving winds and rain buffeted the area for more than half an hour. . . School buses, running Wednesday night, did not leave the grounds from Littlefield and Amherst schools because of the wet roads off the paved areas. . . Prospects call for more of the same in the next day or two, with a stationary front located over the Texas-New Mexico line bringing turbulent weather to the South Plains. . . NIGHT WASHMAN

Young mothers prefer to do their laundry at night when family teamwork, plus the gas clothes dryer, can simplify the job. Clothes actually are saved much wear and tear through this nocturnal routine, because they are easier to launder when the dirt is not "saved up" for a single washday. Your husband's contribution can be transferring the wash from the washer to the dryer, which shuts itself off automatically and stores the clothes until it's convenient to take them out.

Organic Matter Frees Phosphate Fixed in Soil

One of the many ways to bring about the liberation of fixed phosphate is plowing under sweet clover to add organic matter to the soil.

Without phosphorus all life would cease, much as a flame dies when there is no air to support it. This vitally important element, so essential for plant and animal growth and reproduction, is one of the least abundant elements in most soils. Seeds, milk, meat, eggs, plant tissues, bacteria, fungi, animal cells, and everything else that originates from life contain phosphorus. The ultimate source of this phosphorus is the soil. The production of plentiful crops of high nutritive value frequently depends upon the addition of phosphate fertilizers to the soil. These additions to the soil, however, usually have only a very temporary beneficial effect because the action of certain soil components changes the phosphate into forms not readily available to plants, according to Dr. Sieling of Massachusetts in CROPS AND SOILS. Some experiments have shown that only 50 per cent of the phosphate added to acid soils reaches the crop for which it was intended. This is due to a process called phosphate fixation. To obtain a high production level of high quality crops, the fixed phosphate must be released in a constant and increased amount. Research has established that organic matter is an important substance in preventing fixation and in releasing the phosphate already fixed.

As soils in the humid region become more and more acid because of cropping and natural weathering processes, the iron and aluminum compounds become chemical traps. These catch any phosphate that happens to be wandering about in the soil solution. The more acid a soil becomes, the more traps become set for catching and holding the phosphate until it is released by another process. Practical farmers have long observed that loss of organic matter in soils caused phosphate deficiency and consequent crop failure. Others have found that management practices which traditionally included the addition of large amounts of barnyard manure were adequate for great crop production, even though the manure was known to be low in phosphate. Various organic materials other than manure may serve as well as a source of organic matter for this purpose. So life goes on because the important element, phosphorus, is available in the soil—made available by other life processes in a self-perpetuating cycle of interrelated chemical and biological reactions. So another new, important function for organic matter is disclosed, to be added to many other important actions it has in maintaining good soils.

Beans Fit for Iranian Queen

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

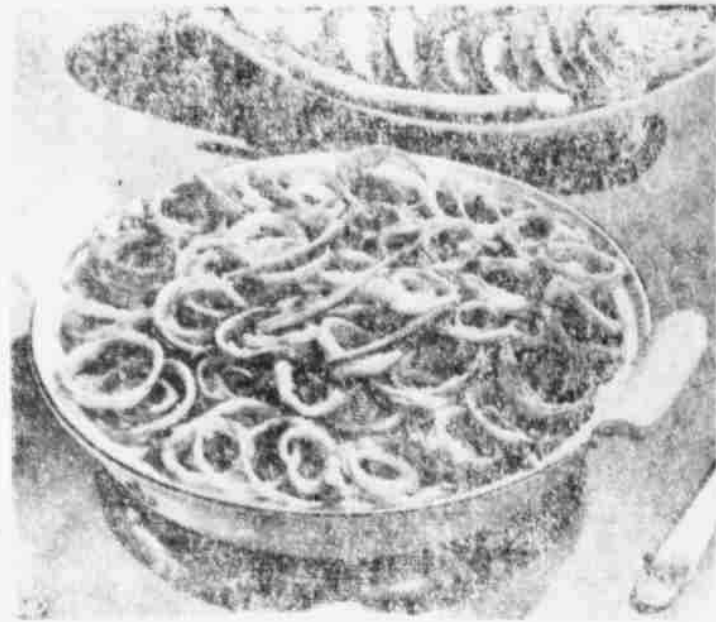

GO RECIPE HUNTING in Florida and you come up with a dish originated by an American housewife and enjoyed by the Queen of Iran. Stopping for a barbecue supper at the Clearwater Lake cottage of John A. Snielys Jr. and his wife May, we snuggled into royal eating habits.

The day of our visit, great sides of beef and pork stretched with a generous baskhouse portion of John Snielys' delectable, crisp off-broiled fiddle flavored as they melted in a time in a shallow, shallow baskhouse, one bit. We could hardly wait until the meat was served and offered to us. Berneise Shale, queen of beauty and grace, but the dish we fell madly in love with was a simple casserole of green beans with an onion topping.

As Mrs. Snielys described the recipe, we noted that the queen of beauty and grace had not only the highest but also the most delicious of beans, the Green Beans of Iran, a similar Iranian name during those recent American visit. The Queen also had eaten the green bean dish with gusto.

The Snielys went all out for the Iranian style. May and her mother, who were the day, were visiting the cooking, setting tables for the party and arranging flowers, and when it came to the special vegetable casserole that was being served with the meat, he lost his patience.

"Listen lady," he said. "It's just beans and stuff."
The Queen dug in.
Back in our New York kitchen we tried duplicating "Beans and Stuff." Our tasters were entranced by the recipe. Here is the recipe.

GREEN BEANS with onion topping—Casserole for a queen

Method: Cut tips from beans; wash in cold water; drain. Cut Bridwell shot 198 out of a possible 200 at the Ft. Worth Gun Club. He broke 98 in the morning and came back after lunch to shoot a perfect score.

Each time Spencer offered Queen Soraya a dish, she looked him in the eye, asked him what it was and considered carefully before she helped herself. Pork, beef and chicken were easy for Spencer. But when it came to the special vegetable casserole that was being served with the meat, he lost his patience. "Listen lady," he said. "It's just beans and stuff."
The Queen dug in.
Back in our New York kitchen we tried duplicating "Beans and Stuff." Our tasters were entranced by the recipe. Here is the recipe.

Wholly Alliance

American people are about to get something else they don't want, don't need, but they will get it without. Most people seem to think that the present floor is high enough because they realize a higher minimum will put hundreds of thousands of low efficiency workers on unemployment lists.

By the labor leaders and some of their indoctrinated followers want that minimum raised to $1.25. That is a small part of Americans, yet they will probably get what they want, or most of it, because of an unholy alliance which we force on our representatives in the Congress.

At least every Congressional district has a few voters in it who want some sort of special privilege legislation to give it an economic advantage which it cannot get in free competition with its customers. None of these things want to be exploited by similar laws being other blocks, yet to realize their own ends they are willing to "swap out" with the other blocks.

In this manner we in the South are forcing many of our legislators to vote for a $5 minimum wage law in order to get their votes for rigid price supports. This kind of thing can kill our democracy, just as it has so many others down through history. It can so smother us with bad legislation that we must eventually turn our affairs over to some strong man and give him power to override the law.

And the most tragic part of it all is that like rigid price support and high minimum wages are not even good for the people who wanted them in the first place. By stifling the basic functions of a free economy they stifle the very people they are supposed to protect. To thus sell our freedom for illusion is a tremendous tragedy for the generations which must follow us.

Minority Rule

There is before the state legislature a bill designed to more nearly even up the number of people in each county commissioner's precinct. As of now there are instances in Texas where as high as 95% of the people in a county are represented by one commissioner and the other 5% are represented by three commissioners. There is one county where the commissioner is reported to have as many persons on his payroll as there are voters in his precinct. This creates a situation wherein representatives of a small minority of the people control the spending of taxes paid by all the people.

The situation in Lamb County is not nearly so extreme. County officials have no figures on how many people reside in each precinct. However, last summer's election returns indicate that approximately half the population in commissioner's district No. 3 is in the southeast quarter of the county. This would indicate that half the population is represented by one commissioner and the other half by three.

Doesn't seem right, does it? Yet this bill probably die because the people who are being injured are lethargic about such things. On the other hand, certain vested political interests do not want their little kingdoms disturbed. They actively oppose restricting. If we sit idly by and let them, they will smother this bill, which requires that counties be redistricted any time one precinct gets as much as 40% of the population of the county.

And of course, if we don't care enough to do something about it, I guess we ought not to complain about it.

There are some people who already are saying that the drought has been broken. If they mean the drought for 1955, they may be right, but if they are talking about the one that has kept hanging around for four years straight we sort of wonder about jumping to conclusions.

That's what a little old two-or-three-inch rain will do to people who haven't seen that much water for such a long time. In fact, we've never before seen such little water raise so many hopes. It's just like a Methodist conversion.

Had You Thought of What "5-5-55" Really Is?

It took the fertile brain of Milton Autry, who edits the column "Across the Editor's Desk" in the Coleman County Chronicle, to enlighten this editor just what was unusual about Thursday, May 5, 1955—the date of his paper's publication day and that of The Stanton Reporter. Autry said:

"5-5-55,

"Those who have today used the short abbreviation for May 5, 1955, might take note that the figures are unusual, and won't be repeated for another 100 years. It will be the first and the last time, for us (with very rare exception) to use 5-5-55 in date abbreviations. Furthermore, it will be eleven years before a similar situation comes about, when we will have 6-6-66, representing June 6, 1966."

Another thing unusual to happen in this month of May. There are five Sundays, five Mondays and five Tuesdays.

—Stanton Reporter

Not only are cooperatives an economic necessity in cases such as rural electricity and telephone service, but cooperatives of any kind have an inherent right to exist. This is nothing more than freedom of enterprise which this country has enjoyed since its birth.

If a group of farmers want to band together and organize their own millinery shop, they have the same right as do two townspeople who want to enter the same kind of business.

True it is that all cooperatives are not good for a community, but nevertheless they have the right to exist.

But this isn't all the story. If a group of farmers want to come to town and go in business they should have to abide by the same rules of the game as do a group of townspeople.

This isn't the case.

In the case of a conventional corporation, any profits made are subject to a federal income tax ranging from about 30 per cent to 50 per cent, depending upon the amount of the profit. What is left may be paid to the stockholders in the form of dividends which then are subject to ordinary personal income tax—double taxation, if you please.

In the case of a cooperative, it can escape all federal income taxes as a corporation. Only tax paid is that on the personal income of the one who receives the dividend.

We are not extolling the merits or demerits of our corporate income tax plan. Frankly we think the co-ops pay just taxes when the members pay only on their individual incomes.

But whatever the system of taxation, it should be fair to everybody. When one group enjoys favoritism, then the other group automatically is penalized.

Whether a baseball team is allowed three strikes or five is immaterial—the important thing is that the same number be allowed for both teams.

Third Armored On Operation Gyroscope

The 3rd Armored Division, now stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, has been named as the second U. S. Army division to replace overseas divisions under the Army's new and revolutionary "Operation Gyroscope," according to a release from Sgt. B. L. Staats of the Plainview, U. S. Army Recruiting Station.

Previously, the 10th Infantry Division, stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas, had been the only state-side division named to participate in the plan which has been dubbed "rotation with stability" because of its stabilized tours of 31 months in an overseas command followed by at least 33 months in the U. S. Like the 10th Infantry Division, the 3rd Armored will replace a unit now stationed in Europe.

Individuals enlisting for the 3rd Armored Division under "Operation Gyroscope" will be sent direct to Fort Knox for immediate assignment to the unit. These individuals will then take basic training, in the case of non-prior service men, with the 3rd Armored and become regular members of its organization. Prior service men will join their regular units as soon as practicable.

Prior service personnel enlisting in grade of E-5 or above and E-4 with seven or more years of service will be eligible to receive travel allowances and authority to move dependents and household goods from the recruiting station at which the man enlisted to Fort Knox.

Enlistments for the 3rd Armored Division will be accomplished in three increments with the first scheduled to begin on May 23 and concurrent recruiting from then until September 2. Quotas for the unit will be announced at a later date.

Sgt. Staats will be in Littlefield on the first and third Monday of each month from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. and will be at the Postoffice.

Other than these days he can be contacted at the U. S. Army Recruiting Station located in the Court House, Plainview, Texas.

WHO'S BUGS NOW?

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A discussion of humor was underway when Mrs. Frances Lea discovered unidentified insects invading her high school classroom.

She sent a note to the janitor reading "I have bugs" and asked the class to speculate on his reply. One boy suggested: "You're lucky. Most teachers have students." Instead the janitor sent back word: "Be right over." He was.

Through A Glass Darkly

By CARROLL POUNCEY

Cooking, of course, is a lost art except among those poor unenlightened souls who are only housewives and mothers. Among the more enlightened "working mothers" and "careerists" (?) the idea of going into a clean well lighted kitchen stocked with food and labor saving devices suggests only that when she opens the can, or takes the package of frozen food out of the freezer, there is enough light for her to admire her maid.

The practice of cooking bread for instance is almost as unheard of as staying home with the children in the pre-baby-sitter era. Women just don't cook food anymore like they used to, and its high time somebody bawled about it and we are.

Chicken and dumplings may be cooked somewhere over the rainbow, but not, we suggest in anyone's home any more. Hot breads, old fashioned pot roast with baked potatoes, buttermilk hot cakes, and pies have joined the ranks of the false hair piece as far as today's women folk are concerned.

In the era of the so-called working mother, the baby sitter rules the roost, and lots of times the home look more like a roof than a home. Momma works, but by the time she pays the baby sitter and makes a payment on "her" car, she doesn't have enough left to justify the time she steals from her growing family. For, madam, consider this. Those kids are only little for a very short while, and when they are grown, you may indeed the most wonderful part of your life.

If you think your man can't make a living for you in the manner you would like to become accustomed to, try making a home for him on what he makes. It's terribly old fashioned, we admit, but by golly, there are lots of things more important than putting a few dollars in the family sugarbowl at the end of the month. Try getting by on what he makes instead of trying to see if you can spend it before he brings it home.

And in the name of all that's good to eat, try cooking a meal once in awhile. Feed him one more greasy hamburger out of a paper bag, and lady, one of those mornings you will wake up to find that you really are the head of the house, for he will be long gone. Statistics show that every year hundreds of married men just disappear from their homes, never to return again. And I'll bet you a dollar to a doughnut (you can't hardly get them anymore), more of those guys were hungry for some real cooking.

If Herbert Hoover were running for President today and promised two chickens in every pot he wouldn't get a male vote. They know there ain't nobody home to cook 'em.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: II Chronicles 27-30, Micah 6-7
Devotional Reading: II Corinthians 5:11-19

Reconciliation

Lesson for May 22, 1955

THERE are only three possibilities when two persons or groups are lined up on opposite sides of a fence. It may be a family quarrel, a national crisis, a split in a church, a community fight... Whatever the cause, whatever the "fence" may be, there are really only three ways the two factions can be related to each other. One is the way of hostility. They can cut off all communication; they can refuse to hear any good of each other; they can harp on past wrongs; they can open a shouting war. Another way is that of compromise. They can each agree to something neither of them wants, in order to keep the other one from getting what he does want. One side can yield to the other not because of any friendliness but only because of fear.

Dr. Foreman

Reconciliation
The trouble with both these is that either one of them leaves the two parties just where they were. Hostilities (cold or hot) harm both sides. Compromise for selfish reasons actually brings the parties no closer together; they will stay together only as long as selfishness dictates, and they will split apart at the next opportunity. There is a better way: the way of reconciliation. Apart from religion, it is doubtful whether true reconciliation ever takes place; for it can be fully done only in the spirit of repentance first of all, and is nourished and strengthened only through the joining of hearts in worship. Thus, by the way, is why Christian marriages hold together far better than marriages between people of little or no religion. Quarrels occur in most marriages sooner or later, Christian or not. The battle of the sexes is one from which no family is free. But in a couple without religion, little quarrels grow to big ones, husband and wife either become enemies and go separate ways, or stay together only for the sake of appearances, or the money,—not because of love. Without religion reconciliation is rare. It is only in the family with a common faith that reconciliation is possible. When the day's end comes and it is time for prayers,

It Has Worked
Reconciliation is not a theory, it is a fact. It has actually worked. The Hebrew Book of Chronicle tells of King Hezekiah's experience with his neighbors to the north of him. They had been citizens of a seceding group, no doubt inheriting much of the bitterness that always underlies secession at any time or place in history. To their inherited prejudices against the Kingdom of Judah from which their forefathers had revolted, there was added the sting of poverty and defeat; for the seceding kingdom of Israel had finally gone down in weakness to a final smash-up. The left-behind citizens must have been an embittered lot. But King Hezekiah sent invitations to all these people, recently his enemies, to come up to the Temple and join in the great Passover festival. Men once enemies were drawn together in a common fellowship of sin, and in a united worship of their one God. In this spirit broken churches have come together again, in this spirit broken homes have been mended, northerners and southerners in the United States have forgotten their grandfathers' quarrels. It was in this spirit that in 1948, combat out of nations that only three short years before had been at violent war, Christian delegates around the world came together for the first time in the World Council of Churches,—born of repentance, cradled in worship.

Never 100 Per Cent
It never works 100%. There were unreconciled Israelites who did not come to the Passover; there are Irishmen today who have never forgotten Cromwell, southerners who cannot forget Sherman, bitterly proud churchmen who refuse to be reconciled with any church but their own. When we attempt reconciliation with others, we may not always succeed. But which is better, to try God's way—for reconciliation is the way he has shown us—even if we do not always succeed, or not to try at all, and end in a dark wilderness of bitter isolation?

STARSIGUIDE STAY-HOME FLIERS

BY ALAN CLINE... STARSIGUIDE... STARSIGUIDE... STARSIGUIDE...

ARTIFICIAL SKY—This is the basic framework of the trainer that lets fliers study navigation by the stars while they remain at home.

Air Force officials say the simulator on this advanced training device is the only one of its kind in the world. It was designed to give fliers a realistic experience in flying at night without the danger of an actual flight.

An instructor twists a few dials and instruments register 2,000 feet altitude, a ground speed of 200 knots and a wind of 20 knots blowing to the east.

As the imaginary "plane" rises, the "sky" officer climbs the 21-step circular stairway to his star fix with his sextant. The stars, really tiny lights with mirrors behind them, look exactly like the real thing. Even to the color and magnitude of light. They are all precisely placed in the model of the northern sky.

And the stars shift—just as they would if a plane were flying at 200 knots, at an altitude of 20,000 feet and with a 20 knot wind. Flight in this trainer can be simulated anywhere in the Northern Hemisphere and missions can be flown at speeds up to 1,800 knots and altitudes ranging to 50,000 feet.

Just about everything the navigator will come up against in actual flight goes into the instruments of this model and steel turning contraption which contains 21 miles of electrical wire.

The 14-ton nevers were put together by John D. Willey, a Link Aviation Inc. electrical engineer, who painstakingly placed every star in its proper place. That job alone took six months.

The huge dome is powered by a 150-hp horsepower motor, and although it weighs 14 tons, its balance is such that a small weight can tip it.

In the navigators were to make the same missions in the air, the Air Force figures the cost would run about $300 an hour. Power costs for the trainer are calculated.

FIXED
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — An English visitor listened as two American newsmen discussed clarity in news writing and the need for simplified language. "And how you Americans do simplify it," said Karl Archibald, of London. "I am interested in the use here of the word 'fix.'" "I am invited to dinner and my host asks how I would like a drink fixed. He means mixed. My host's calls to us to hurry because dinner is all fixed — and she means prepared. My host says we must get a fix tire fixed — and he means repaired. You say you are on a fixed income — and you mean steady and unchanged. You say you will fix something to the wall — and you mean attach. And you say 'I'll fix him' — and you mean get revenge." "Finally you remark that you are in 'a hell of a fix' and I see that you may have some comprehension of my predicament in trying to follow your simplification."

week.

Social Security Representative To Be Here May 25

A Social Security representative will be in Littlefield at the Employment Office at 1:30 p.m. on May 25th and will be happy to assist in all matters pertaining to social security.

Disability, long an economic factor in the life of a wage earner, will no longer reduce the insurance payable under the Social Security Law according to John G. Hutton, Manager of the Lubbock, Texas, Social Security District Office.

Since January 1, 1955, workers who are totally disabled by illness, injury or other physical or mental impairment which can be expected to be of long-continued and indefinite duration may file an application with their Social Security Office to establish a period of disability. This period of disability, when established by medical records furnished by the claimant, will be excluded in computing the wage earner's average monthly wage at retirement or upon death of the wage earner.

Under the old law their average earnings would keep dropping as long as they were disabled. It was possible, Mr. Hutton added, that in some cases because of a long-continued disability a wage earner might lose the right to any payment at all.

PART OF THE CROWD estimated at more than 3500 which stood and sat through the presentation of the first annual Lamb County cotton queen contest here last Friday night. A big portion of the crowd came back Saturday night to see the cotton style show which ended just as the first drops of rain began to fall. RICKFORD PUSHES BALL. RICHMOND, Va., (AP)—Vern Bickford, former Boston Braves pitching ace who did a quick major league fadeout when he developed a sore arm, won't accept the doctor's verdict that he'll never pitch another game. Bickford underwent an operation in June 1954, for removal of a bone spur from his right elbow. Though he still can't straighten out the arm to its full length, the Richmond Virginians of the Interstate League have given him a comeback chance. "The doctor told me I'd be able to pitch again, but I'd already throw curves and a knuckler without my arm hurt," says Bickford, a native of Canton, Va. "I haven't got a speed, though—just pushing the ball up to the plate."

Four years ago she came to Littlefield and assumed her present duties. During that time she has completed her M. Ed. degree as a member of Westava, Band Boosters, the Woman's Club, seen two sons graduate and a daughter enter high school. Mrs. Williams says she has fallen in love with Littlefield especially the young people, who are and always have been, the chief interest in her life.

FAITH DEMONSTRATED
By TOMMY WILLIAMS, Minister

"Be thou an example of the believers . . . in faith . . ." (1 Timothy 4: 12). On 1st thought the above scripture may seem to set forth an impossible assignment. Since faith is a quality of the heart, how can a person let it be seen so as to be an example in faith?

The answer is that all genuine faith is demonstrated in actions. No person should claim to be a real believer (with a faith that counts) unless he is willing to act according to the instructions in the word of the Lord.

That we may be "examples in faith," the New Testament points out those who are examples to us. Many of these examples are in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews.

Look at the list here, and see the activity connected with their faith:

By faith: Abel OFFERED (verse 1)
Noah PREPARED (verse 1)
Abraham OBEYED (verse 8)
Abraham OFFERED (verse 17).

In these examples and others, we have demonstration of the faith God wants us to have, so we may be examples to others.

"He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also" (John 14:12).

Better Fishing

Limber Wand Catches Fish If You Put Worm To Work

Some youngsters have more fun digging for worms than catching fish. This little girl is gathering an ample supply before heading for the old mill stream.

Here is the first in a series of stories telling youngsters how to become better fishermen. In this article AP outdoors writer Dion Henderson advises a simple beginning.)

By DION HENDERSON
 AP Newsfeatures

Here is a word to encourage the beginning fisherman: Fear not for lack of skill or practice. The worm does most of the work. And the worm works just as hard whether the new Walton is a weary executive or a bright-eyed sprout.

Later on, sport fishermen may graduate to plug casting, to spinning tackle or the cult of the flyrod. But even then some may hide an angler's eye, like a secret vice, for those special days when fish are deep or feeding slow.

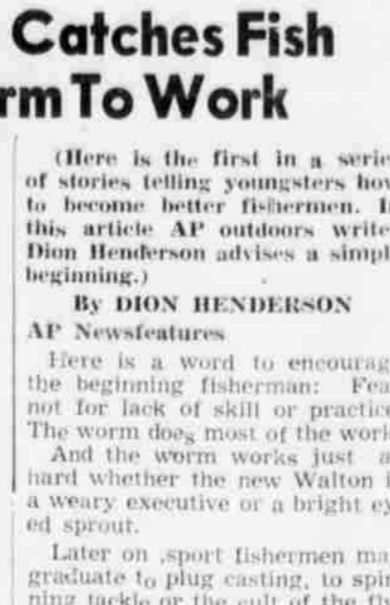

Even the best of the fancy tackle anglers like to recall how they started—usually barefoot in a brook, with a willow pole and a bent pin and an uncommonly active worm.

There is much to be said for this simple beginning.

First of all, let the beginner cut himself a limber wand, of willow if possible, but most anything will do. There is more to the willow than either economy or tradition, too. A good willow, to a good flyrod for sporty play in its brief green prime, beats of panfish. And sport is what the stuffing out of anything up you're after. Find one seven or eight feet long and not bigger than a man's thumb at the base. The line should be only slightly longer than the pole, unless you are going to fish deep in a lake. Tie it back along the lip with several knots a foot or so apart, for support. Disregard such things as corks and bobbers. The young in heart consider these as the sure sign of a fisherman who intends to sleep rather than fish. In practice, you'll either let the bait drift, or fish it just off the bottom anyway.

As to hooks, you don't really have to go as far as the bent pin. That rightly belongs with the barbless hook, which in turn is part of the upper level of skilled flyrod fishing rather than beginning.

And now for the really talented member of your initial fishing partnership: The worm. Try turning over a spadeful or two, of moist shady loam, and move right smartly. The best worms are hardest to catch. For the eager youngster, or the fellow with a spark of sporting blood who can put his dignity aside, catching the worms is sort of a preliminary feat.

And if you want to do a super job in preparing a menu for panfish, bullhead or such, try for the notably husky variety of earthworm called nightcrawlers because that's what they do. The pursuit of nightcrawlers with a flashlight in the wet grass of the lawn, starts off your first fishing expedition with a study of wildlife in miniature. A nightcrawler, grain for grain; is as wild as any grizzly in the bear business. Put your worms in a tin can, just like Huck Finn did, with some moist soil beneath and some moist grass above to keep them cool and lively. Where you are at the break-or-pend, or lake-take that long shanked hook (a small one, maybe No. 8) and hook the worm through the belt of muscle around his middle. Then toss out the bait, and let the worm take over.

MAGGIE MCKENZIE, popular radio star of KGNC says, "Every woman knows light Karo is best for cooking... and on the table..."

it's Karo for me, the best-tasting waffle syrup of 'em all"

Yes, indeed...biscuits go like hot cakes when you pour on plenty of delicious Karo waffle syrup. There's nothing like it for good eating. Satisfyin' flavor. So rich it stands right up on top of biscuits (keeps 'em light and fluffy). Keep Karo on your table morning, noon and night...it tops anything!

Ask your grocer for Karo waffle syrup, in pints and quarts

ADEQUATE WIRING SERVES SAVES

For the life of your home - wire for modern living!

... because half a door wouldn't do the job that a full-sized door would do. And, it's the same with everything in your home. Half done jobs don't do the job... they can't because they're not big enough. Electric wiring is like that, too. If the wiring is up-to-date, if the wires themselves are large enough, then, and only then, can Reddy Kilowatt do a full-sized job for you. If you find your lights blink when appliances are turned on, your TV picture shrinks or your toaster is slow to heat, chances are your wiring is at fault. Live complete modern living - the electric, the modern way with good wiring. To get good wiring? That's easy... call your qualified electrical contractor.

Texans In Washington

By BRUCE HENDERSON
The Associated Press
 Central Texans are a hardy sort, and Harold Hearfield of Belton has proved it. He worked all day on a broken leg.

Hearfield, says the Temple Daily Telegram, accidentally stepped in a chin-deep excavation. It took him up, but he climbed out and went about his business. A postal worker, Hearfield showed up promptly the next day at the post office. His leg hurt, but a co-worker had asked the day off and Hearfield knew if he went home the other man would be called back. So he stayed. After work at his wife's urging, he dropped by a hospital. A doctor took one look at an x-ray of the aching leg. The next thing Hearfield knew he was in bed and his shattered leg bone encased in a cast.

A great outdoorsman was Davy Crockett. But, says an East Texas man, he could make quite a speech when he got cased up. Arthur West, Cotterville, grocer who has studied Crockett's life says several years ago he acquired an old book bearing the title: "Speeches on the Passage of the Bill for the Removal of the Indians, Delivered in the Congress of the United States, April and May, 1830." West says the book contains a talk by Crockett that could stand to this day as a monument to statesmanship. He quotes these words from Crockett—a Tennessee representative, then, who opposed lashing Indians from the Southeast to lands west of the Mississippi.

"What my conscience dictates to be just and right I will do, be the consequences what they may. . . . Whether I can answer it before the people is comparatively trifling; though it is a great satisfaction to me to have the approval of my constituents. . . . I do for the good of the country and for that only."
 "If this bill should pass, the Indians would have no privileges allowed them, while the white men will have all. Now, if this is not oppression with a vengeance, I do not know what it is. I cannot stand that."
 "I know that I stand alone, having perhaps, none of my colleagues agreeing with my sentiment. I cannot help that. . . . I should be the only member of this House who voted against the bill, and the bill, and the only man in the United States who disapproves it. I will still vote against it. . . . I care not for popularity unless it can be obtained by upright means."
 The work containing the speech is preserved in the rare book collection at East Texas State Teachers' College, Commerce.

West was Crockett was defeated because of his re-election, probably because of his popular stand in Indian removal. Popular stand he died at the Alamo March 31, 1836.

At 95, He Just Loafs On Mere 48-Hour Week

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—At 95, Charles Frederick Breckel has cut down on his work week.

The Louisville printer, who operates his own shop, remembers when he got up at 4 a.m. and sometimes worked 16 hours.

Walks To Work
 Now he gets up at 5 for the 8-hour shift, walking the four blocks from his home to his shop.

Breckel, who thinks he might be the oldest printer in the country, lives strictly by the Benjamin Franklin formula: Early to bed, early to rise.

At the shop, he sets some of the larger type and locks up all of the printing forms for the press. He does some of the bookkeeping and, according to his sons, he's still "boss."

Danger Avoided
 There's a reason he didn't retire when he reached the normal retirement age 39 years ago. It's because he noticed in newspapers that many people died a year or so after they retired.

In his own family, he said, he had a brother who "didn't live very long because he retired." The brother died at the age of 71.

SAFETY FIRST—Still working at 95, Charles Breckel, a printer, says he observed that many people die soon after they retire.

As an instructor in T-28's, Lt. McMaster will instruct cadets in the North American propeller-type trainer, in aerobatics, formations, and basic instrument flying, all necessary in preparing them for further instructions in speedy jet aircraft.

Lt. McMaster received his wings from Webb Air Force Base. He is a 1953 graduate of Texas A&M College.

The mission of Webb Air Force Base is to train American Aviation Cadets and Allied Country students under provision of the Mutual Defense Assistance Pact, presenting them with pilot's wings upon completion of their basic flight training.

From lack of rain, some of the picturesque limestone formations and ridges were becoming dry. Misters supplied by an electric pump is keeping them fresh and full of water and color. It serves the three miles of caves open to the public, DH says he thinks it's the first irrigation system for a cave.
