Protest Over Light Plant Election Set For Trial March 9

The action brought by seven Littlefield citizens, contesting the municipal light plant election, has been set for trial on March 9 in the District court at Olton.

The case was called in District court Monday, and Judge C. D. Russell set the date for the trial of the action.

Immediate trial of the case was deferred because of the illness of one of the attorneys for the contestants.

When the case was called Monday, E. A. Bills appeared for the City of Littlefield, and T. Wade Potter represented the contestants.

BOMB PRACTICE SITES ANNOUNCED FOR NEAR HERE

George L. White Gives Lease On Two Locations

Sites Will Be Units Of Lubbock Air Base, And Used In Training Pilots

By MORLEY B. DRAKE

Within the immediate future twin engine army planes from the Army Air Base at Hurlwood, west of Lubbock, may fly over Littlefield and vicinity in great numbers.

But they'll probably be flying at around 5,000 feet, which will make them specks in the air, with the altitude eliminating the hum of the motors except when the wind is of such a nature as to carry the sound to earth.

Two bombing practice locations have been designated by the army on the Yellow House ranch, 15 miles southwest of Littlefield, and all that remains to put the program into operation is the official approval. This will be forthcoming, it is anticipated.

George L. White, owner of the Yellow House ranch, has entered into a lease agreement with the government, and this document is now going through the official channels.

The lease covers eight labors in two squares, one square on the north side of the ranch and the other on the south side.

Colonel H. M. Newstrom, executive officer at the Army Air Base, informed the Lamb County Leader that the two bombing practice locations are being established primarily to give the pilots of the twin engine planes instruction in bombing activities in order to make them efficient in the event that they are required to carry bombardiers in actual war.

Colonel Newstrom said that the two bombing locations would be tightly fenced and that warning signs would be posted for the protection of the public.

Targets will be established, the officer announced, and "bombs" will be dropped from a high altitude. But the shells will be loaded with sand and they will not gouge great holes in the earth; they will carry only a very small amount of powder, just sufficient to make a puff when the shell hits the ground. The score made by the bomber will be recorded by photography. There will be very little noise when the shell strikes the ground.

The Supervisor also stated that she had received wonderful response from the women in the county in this sewing project, and asked that the Leader express her appreciation to the workers who have so faithfully contributed their time and effort to the cause.

When the work now out is completed and received for shipment, this will complete the 1941 work; and workers may then start on the 1942 garments.

Since the sewing room opened on January 5 the following garments have been completed:

A total of 1241 poll taxes were paid at the Morton sheriff's office this year, with 36 exemptions registered.

Some speculation is afloat that prospects are good at this time for oil development close to Littlefield.

Reports indicate that during the past six weeks considerable work has been done in the curing of titles to properties under lease by the Stanolind Oil Company. This fact has caused many to conclude that development will take place in the near future.

Besides the large amount of acreage leased in 1937 and 1938 by the Humble, Stanolind and Gulf, leases have been taken on 16 new tracts during the past month.

This leasing started at Littlefield, extending through Fieldton, and northwest through the Halsell pasture.

Approximately 200,000 acres in Lamb county are under lease, with 10,000 acres south of town.

Constitutional Admendments

Four proposed constitutional amendments are to be submitted to the electorate at the general election in November. Following is a summary of the proposed amendments:

No. 1 which is an amendment to section 33 of Article 16, would add the following exemptions to the list of persons who may draw State compensation—"retired officers of the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and retired warrant officers and retired enlisted men of the United States Army or Navy, and Marine Corps, and officers of the United States Army or Navy who are assigned to duties in State Institutions of higher education."

No. 2 adds a new section, 22-A, to Article 5 and authorizes the Legislature to create other and additional courts to handle civil, criminal and probate matters in cities of 200,000 population or more, without advertisement as local laws.

No. 3 adds a new section, 49-b, to Article 3, to authorize the issuance of not exceeding two million dollars in bonds to construct an office building in Austin for State departments; bonds to be retired in 25 years and to draw not exceeding three per cent interest.

The State owns a lot in front of the capitol building and now is paying $120,000 annual rentals in Austin and about $40,000 outside of Austin.

No. 4 is an amendment to put the State on a cash basis, a new section, 49-a, to Article 3, requiring the Comptroller to furnish statement and estimate to the Legislature of cash and expected revenue, and limiting the Legislature, to such, effective January 1, 1945; providing for the issuance of bonds payable in 20 years at two per cent interest to cover the deficit for emergency appropriations by four-fif-

We Highly Resolve

"We here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that the government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

On the birthday of Abraham Lincoln is a fitting time for us to consider the full significance of that famous quotation from his Gettysburg address. It is also a good time to add our deep approval to that resolve, for every one of us today is determined to see to it that no American who has died for the cause of freedom has died in vain.

We may not think of our defense of freedom from the viewpoint of preserving a heritage for which many of our forefathers gave their lives. We are more apt to think of it as a struggle to preserve our own comforts and to protect the future of our children.

But actually the American tradition is something bigger than any of us—something that was built up at tremendous sacrifice by generations of hardy souls who worked and fought.

At times in our recent history it has looked as though the hard work was done—that the nation our forefathers conceived had been completed and we of the present generation could sit back and enjoy the fruits of freedom without further struggle.

But that is not to be. Our freedom has again been threatened and we, as Americans, are once more called upon to protect it with our lives. Once again we must prove to another challenger that "the government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth".

his soil-building allowance without any expense at the present time.

The County AAA Committee would like to have bids from anyone who has machinery to construct terraces to call by the Lamb County ACA office and turn in their bids for constructing terraces.

The person who constructs the terraces will agree to put up approved terraces and receive payment through the A.A.A. Office.

Super-phosphate is also offered by the AAA as a conservation service. The application of phosphate will earn soil-building payment and can be bought through the AAA now and the cost will be deducted from the farmer's next conservation payment.

To order the phosphate, however, the committee will need at least enough for one carload.

For further information call by the AAA Office at Amherst. Your request will be taken now if you are interested.

May Terrace Land Under AAA Plan

Terracing is a very important soil-building practice in our Agricultural Conservation Program. It is good which the farmer may put into effect in order to learn all of his soil-building allowance. As each farmer knows, the soil-building payment on a farm is much greater in 1942 than it has been in previous years. The total payment to the farm will not be earned unless some soil-building practices, one or more, are carried out to earn the soil-building payment on the farm. For the first time, it is possible to get terracing as a conservation service in the A.A.A. This means that a farmer who wishes to have terraces constructed, may do that by paying for the cost of construction out of his A.A.A. check that he is to receive on the 1942 crop. In this way he is able to carry out

Soil Should Be Put In Good Shape Before Planting

"Homes are the foundation of a nation. With clean, attractive, pure homes the youth become strong, upright, honorable citizens. Anything that will make the home better will tend to improve citizenship."

From the ground up may be enough to know before attempting some ventures, but planting the home grounds is different. Before beginning it, one's first and chief concern is from the ground down. Many persons are now making preparations to begin preparing for spring yard work but there are things which should be attended to before the new plants arrive.

Good soil should furnish food, water, and physical support to plants. A good garden loam is usually made up of about two parts of sand, two of clay, and one part decayed vegetable matter or manure. That's a good combination, for the sand encourages proper drainage and the clay and humus catch and hold the water and bind the soil together, yet keep it from packing tightly.

Fertilizer can be added any time. And from time to time plants do need food just as people need heat, but we must remember they can't use too much, just as people can't sit on stoves. So don't burn leaves and other vegetable matter unless it is diseased—rake it into holes, shovel in a little dirt and hold it there, add water and spade it now and then, and use it later as leaf mold.

The whole bed where shrubs are to be planted should be put in good shape. This should be done at least two or three weeks before planting so the soil has time to settle down.

Edges of the bed should be shaped planting. Grass edges should be cut evenly and neatly—not dug out leaving rough lines. Never should rocks or stones be used to border the beds. Cultivation will help a lot to keep the soil in good shape.

Attractive planting is fairly easy to accomplish when one realizes that the same care makes the garden a field productive will work in the yard—though it may mean a lot of work from the ground down, in natural easy lines about the

by JAMES M. CAIN

Cecil swept out there like she owned the place and the whole block it was built on.

CHAPTER IV

SYNOPSIS

The contracting business is in the doldrums but Leonard Borland, of the Craig-Borland Engineering Co., New York, has ample funds when his pretty, opera-struck wife Doris decides she is going to resume her singing, interrupted by her marriage at 19 and the birth of their two children, to help out the family income. Borland protests, Doris insists that he has always thwarted her career, and she had her way, as always. The presence of Hugo Lorentz, her teacher, irritates him. After Doris gives a recital at Town Hall, Cecil Carrington, opera singer, phones Borland. At her hotel she tells him Doris has a good voice but lacks style. Cecil is to sing for war veterans but hasn't the words of a certain song. He sings it for her and she says he has a fine baritone voice. Cecil knows of Doris through Lorentz, says Hugo is hopelessly in love with Doris, and that Doris tortures every man she gets in her clutches. Leonard ought to wake her up by giving a recital, she says. "Go get yourself a triumph. Bury her where it hurts, in the triumph department." Cecil will give her lessons but demands payment—kisses. He says but says he loves his wife. He makes good progress in three or four months and spends much time with Cecil. Doris tells him Jack Leigh is going to get her an engagement ring at a movie palace. While Doris is out of the city Cecil, on tour, wires Leonard from Rochester, N. Y., saying her tenor can't sing and asking him to help her out. They are discussing what might happen during the performance.

"They can give you the bird, and they can give it to anybody. I think you'll win, but you've got to win—don't make any mistake about that. You've got to lam it in their teeth and make them like it," Cecil said.

"When is the concert?"

"Tonight."

"Ouch!"

"Did you hear me?"

"I heard you . . ."

When we got to the hotel I took a room and sent up my stuff, and then we went up to her suite. A guy was there, reading. "Mr. Wilkins, who plays our accompaniments. Mr. Borland, Ray: our bartender."

We shook hands, and he fished some papers out of his pocket. "The printer's proofs of the program. It came while you were out, Cecil. He's got to have it back, with corrections, by five o'clock."

She passed one over to me. It gave me a funny feeling to see my name there.

"It's all right—pretty nifty. Except that Leonard Borland is gradually on purpose going to turn into Logan Bennett."

"Oh, yes. I meant to ask you about that. Will you change it, Ray? And make sure it's changed in his groups."

"I only sing twice?"

"That's all. Give Ray your music, so he can go over it. He always plays from memory. He never brings music on stage. The next morning Wilkins left. She had me ha-ha for ten minutes, then said my voice was up and stopped me. Some sandwiches and milk came up."

"You don't get any dinner," Cecil explained.

I tried to eat, and couldn't get much down. Seeing that program had me nervous. When I had eaten what I could, she told me to go in and sleep. "A fat chance I could sleep."

"Lie down, then. Be quiet. No walking around, no vocalizing."

I went in my room, took off my clothes, and lay down. None of it was turning out the way I thought it was going to.

I must have slept, because I had had a call in for seven o'clock, and when it came it woke me up. I took a quick shower and started to dress. My fingers were trembling. About a quarter to eight I rang her. She told me to come on in.

She was as businesslike as before. All she said was, "Sit down and we'll check over what you're to do."

"I'm listening."

"First, when you come on. At all recitals, the singer comes on from the right; that is, stage right. Left, to the audience. Walk straight out from the wings, past the piano, to the center of the stage. Be quick and brisk about it. Be aware of them, but don't look at them till you get there. By that time they'll start to applaud. You stop at the center of the stage, face them, and bow. Bow once, from the hips, as though you meant it."

"O.K. What then?"

"You bow once, no more. If it's a friendly house, they may applaud quite a little, but not enough for more than one bow. Besides it's only a welcome. You haven't done anything yet to warrant more than one bow."

"All right, I got that. What next?"

"Then you start to sing."

"Do I give Wilkins a sign or something?"

"I'll come to that, but I'm not one yet with about how you come on. Look pleasant, but don't paste any death-house smile on your face; don't look sheepish, as though you thought it was a big joke; don't try to look more confident than you really are. Above all, look as though you meant business. They came to hear you sing, and as long as you act as though that's what you're there for, you'll be all right, and you don't have to kid them with some kind of phony act. If you look nervous, that's all right, you're supposed to be nervous. Have you got that? Mean it."

"All right, I got it."

"When you finish your song, stop. If the piano has the final finish, hold everything until the last note has been played, no matter whether they break in with applause or not. Hold everything, then relax. If you've done anything with the song at all, they ought to applaud. When they do, bow straight to the center. Then take a quarter turn on your feet, and bow to the left. Then turn again, and bow to the right. Then walk off. As quickly as you can."

"Do I do that after every song, or—"

"No, no, no! Not after every song. At the end of your group. There won't be much applause at the end of your first two songs; they only applaud the group. Bow once after the first song, and when the applause has died down start the second, and then on with the third."

"All right. I've got it now."

"If the applause continues so long, exactly as you went out the first time, and bow three times, first center, then left, then right, then come off."

"Go ahead. What else?"

"Now, about the accompanist. Most singers turn and nod to the accompanist when they are ready, but to my mind it's just one more thing that slows it up, that adds to the chill that hangs over a recital anyway. That's why I have Wilkins. He can feel that audience as well as the singer can, and he knows exactly when it's time to start. You wait for him. While you're waiting, look them over. Use those five seconds to get acquainted. Look them over in a friendly way, but don't smirk at them. Be sure you look up at the balcony, and all over the house, so they'll all feel you're singing to them, and not to just a few."

"Must be a swell five seconds."

"I'm trying to get it through your head that it's a battle, that it's a tough spot, and that you have to use every means to win."

"All right; I hear what you say."

"Now go in the bedroom and come out and do it. The center of the stage is over by the window, and I'm the audience."

She made me rehearse that entrance about ten times, and then she seemed satisfied. "And now one more thing. I picked Carissimi's 'Vittoria Mio Core' for you to begin with because it's a good, lively tune and you can race through with it without having to worry about fine effects. After that you ought to be all right. But don't forget that it has no introduction. He'll give you one chord, for pitch, and then you start."

"Sure; I know."

"You know, but be ready. One chord, and as soon as you have the pitch clear in your head, start. Don't let it catch you by surprise."

"I won't."

We had another cigarette, and didn't say much. I looked at the palms of my hands. They were wet. Wilkins came in. "Taxi's waiting."

We put on our coats, went down, and drove to the theater.

The stage was all set for the recital, with a big piano out there and a drop back of it. There was a hole in the drop, so we could look out. First she would look and then I would look. She said it was a sellout.

My mouth began to tingle. I went over to the cooler and had a drink, but I kept swallowing.

At 8:25 a stagehand went out and closed the top of the piano. He came back, Wilkins took out his watch and held it up to Cecil.

"Ready?"

"All right."

We all three went to the wings. Stage right, Wilkins raised his hand. "One—two." Cecil swept out there like she owned the place and the whole block it was built on. There was a big hand. She bowed once, the way she had told me to do, and then stood there, looking up, down, and around, a little friendly smile coming on her face every time she warmed up a new bunch, while Wilkins was playing the introduction. For her first appearance she was singing just one long piece, not a group of songs.

Then she started to sing. She turned grave and seemed to get taller, and the first of it came out, low and soft. It was Latin, and she made it sound dramatic as hell. And she made every syllable so distinct that I could even understand what it meant, though it was all of fifteen years since I had had my college Plautus.

Then she got to the part where there are a lot of sustained notes, and her voice began to swell and throbb so it did things to you. Up to then I hadn't thought she had any knockout of a voice but I had never heard it when it was really working. She came to the fireworks at the end, and you knew there really was a big leaguer in town. She finished, and there was a big hand. Wilkins came off, wiped his hands on his handkerchief. She bowed center, left, and right, and came off. She listened. The applause kept up. She went out and bowed three times again. She came off, stood there and listened, then shook her head. The applause stopped, and she looked at me. "All right, baby."

Wilkins put the handkerchief in his pocket, raised his hand. "One—two—"

I aimed for the center of the stage, got there, and bowed, the way I had practiced. They gave me a hand. Then I looked up and tried to do what she had told me to do, look them over, top, bottom, and around. But all I could see was faces, faces, faces, all staring at me, all trying to swim down my throat. Then I began to think about that first number and the one chord I would get, and how I had to be ready. I stood there, and it seemed so long I got a panicky feeling that Wilkins hadn't come out. Then I heard the chord, and right away started to sing.

My voice sounded so big it startled me, and I tried to throttle it down, and couldn't. There are no piano interludes in that song. It goes straight through, for three verses, at a fast clip, and the more I tried to pull in and get myself under some kind of control, the louder it got and the faster I kept going until at the finish Wilkins had a hard time keeping up with me. They gave me a little bit of a hand, and I didn't want to bow, I wanted to apologize and explain worry about fine effects. After that that wasn't the way it was supposed to go. But I bowed, some kind of way.

Then came Scarlatti's "O Cesare Di Piagarmi." It's short and ought to start soft, lead up to a crescendo in the middle, and die away at the end. I was so rung up by then I couldn't sing softly if I tried. I started it, and my voice belled all over the place, and it was terrible. There was a bare ripple after that, and Wilkins went into the opening of the third song, the last of that group. It was the "Come Raggio Di Sol" by Caldara, and it's another that opens soft.

I sang it soft for about two measures, and then I exploded like some radio when you turn it up too quick. After that it was a hog-calling contest. Wilkins saw it was hopeless, and came down on the loud pedal so it would maybe sound as though that were the way it was supposed to go. But a fat chance we had of fooling that audience. I finished, and on the pianissimo at the end it sounded like a locomotive whistling for a curve. When it was over, there was a little scattering of applause, and I bowed. I bowed center, and took the quarter turn to bow to the side. The applause stopped. I kept right on turning and walked off stage.

Old Homes ARE TURNED INTO Beautiful..Convenient..Modern Homes

Through the magic of modernization, old homes are changed into beautiful, comfortable, work-saving modern homes. New conveniences are added, and wasted space is utilized to provide maximum enjoyment of the home.

Don't Delay! MODERNIZE Your Home NOW!

- No Down Payment
- No Mortgage
- Easy Monthly Payments

IT'S A WISE INVESTMENT

Aside from the added convenience, work-saving features, and increased comfort which is imparted to your home, modernization is a wise investment. Reliable statistics show that approximately $3.00 added value comes from every $1.00 spent on modernizing a home. In some phases of modernization, insulation and weatherstripping for instance, the cost is offset in a few years by the savings they bring about. Upkeep cost is also cut to the minimum. In the case of rent property, increased income is usually an immediate result.

Machinery Repaired Means More Guns

Every piece of old farm machinery repaired and used this year will mean more guns in the hands of the armed forces, W. E. Bentley, chairman, Lamb County USDA War Board, said this week.

"If we deliver our Food-Freedom pledges by using the equipment we have on hand instead of buying new machinery, we'll be releasing just that much material for guns, tanks, planes, and ships with which to lick the Japs", Bentley said.

Realizing the tremendous responsibility of food in total war, OPM allocated as much material as possible for repair parts and new machinery several months ago.

"We might be able to buy extra parts and new machinery later and again we might not. Any way you look at it, this year is the wrong time to take chances," the chairman said.

Every farmer who repairs an old machine, instead of buying a new one as he might in normal times, is giving two-fold aid to the fighting forces by releasing essential materials for war use, and insuring production of food for the war effort, Bentley said.

"We can't sit around two-thirds of the winter and expect to get all farm machinery in top-notch shape overnight", the chairman said in pointing out all equipment should be checked and repair parts ordered immediately.

This Week IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C. (NWNS)—Although the government now has the power to dictate prices on all types of commodities, no immediate action to put ceilings on the retail prices of consumer goods is contemplated. Such action will undoubtedly be taken as it becomes necessary, but immediate action of the administrator of the new price control law will probably be largely confined to strengthening the ceilings already established on materials needed in defense production.

Until the new law was passed, the price ceilings imposed by the Office of Price Administration depended on voluntary co-operation. Now they can be enforced by the threat of heavy legal penalties. The new law also gives Leon Henderson, federal price administrator, power to dictate price ceilings on all consumer goods and on rents. Just when he will take any action on these prices will probably depend on how much voluntary co-operation he gets from retailers and wholesalers on keeping prices down. Mr. Henderson's general aim is to keep prices at approximately the levels they were in April, 1941.

The subject of greatest debate in formulating the new law was the question of farm prices. Some members of the farm bloc in congress sought to permit farm prices to rise to 120 per cent of parity, but because of charges that the bill was becoming a "farm relief measure" instead of a price control law, it was finally agreed to limit farm prices to 110 per cent of parity.

Secretary of agriculture, Claude R. Wickard, now has stated that he intends to prevent farm prices from rising above parity. He has the power to do this, since he can at any time break prices by putting on the market the government-owned supplies of farm crops at any price he sees fit. He is already demonstrating how this works by releasing some government corn below current market levels and he is believed to have broken the price of cotton merely by stating in a speech that he planned to release some government controlled cotton for use in army uniforms.

The government's original purpose in buying huge quantities of farm products was to prevent farm prices from sinking to disastrously low levels, but it is now apparent that these stocks can be used in the other direction to keep prices from going too high.

President Roosevelt objected to the new law permitting farm prices to rise above parity and it is believed here that Secretary Wickard's stand has been influenced by the President's views.

In signing the bill, the President commented at length on the right of the government to dispose of its surplus stocks in order to keep prices at fair levels. He also said:

"I feel that most farmers realize that when farm prices go much above parity, danger is ahead. One of the best ways of avoiding excessive price rises, of course, is abundant production. And I hope agricultural prices can be maintained at such a level as to give farmers a fair return for increasing production."

It is estimated that, even if prices are kept at parity or below, the farmer's income will be greater this year than any year since the last war. Total farm income for 1942 is estimated at about $13,000,000,000.

Although farmers are being called upon for record production of all kinds of crops, it is well understood here that farm labor is becoming an increasingly difficult problem. Because of the loss of man power to defense factories and to the army and navy, it is realized that those working on farms will be forced to work increasingly long hours and should be compensated for their increased labor.

Members of the farm bloc in congress point out that the average farmer works at least 62 hours a week whereas defense workers in factories work only 40 hours a week and get time-and-a-half for all hours over 40.

Every labor union action which interrupts defense production in order to get even better conditions for defense workers, is like a thorn in the side of farm representatives here. If the farmer is going to put in long hours of work at moderate pay and without complaint, they feel it is imperative that laborers do the same thing.

The effort of the automobile workers union to get double pay for those who work on Sunday is an example of the type of action which arouses the farm representatives. Automobile workers now get time-and-a-half for each hour they work over 40 hours, but the union de-

Young People Enjoy Banquet Meeting

The Quarterly meeting of Young People of the West Plains Baptist mandated that those who work on Sunday, even if they do not work more than 40 hours during the week, get double pay for all work they do on the Sabbath.

That new disturbance of labor, plus the walk-out of welders in the ship building yards on the Pacific coast over an inter-union feud, has once again brought up demands in congress for no-strike legislation and wage control. When the war first started and union leaders agreed to a labor control plan suggested by the President, it was hoped that there would be continued peace on the labor front. But now many congressmen are plainly worried again over the threat of new labor troubles interfering with defense production. Any serious development along this line is expected to lead to drastic legislation.

Associational W.M.U. met in Littlefield Tuesday, Feb. 3. The W. M. S. of the local Baptist Church served with a Banquet to 135 young people and their sponsors.

The Dining room was decorated by the local Y. W. A. with Valentine decorations.

Miss Valerie Brady was toastmistress. The welcome address was given by Miss Fern Wilson. Response by Gerald Moore of Sudan. A short business session was held under the direction of Miss Floy Bell of Earth who is president of the organization. A short skit was given by Helt Heathman and Roy Jean Shabat. Reading by Miss Arvella Davis. Earth. Jimmie Sanders of Earth led in group singing. Mrs. James Holland of Amherst brought the devotional message.

The meeting was closed with an address by Mr. Floyd Hemphill on the subject "Hearts", which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Harold Russ of Earth is leader of this organization in the West Plains Association.

Sudan Schools Inaugurate "Six Day Week" Program

The Sudan school board announced last week that school will be on each Saturday for the remainder of the term. School will be almost a month earlier under plan, the year being finished May 1 instead of May 22, they announced.

The "six day week" plan was taken to aid farmers, and to cope with labor shortage which probably will be severe by this time, one of the busiest seasons of the year for farmers in this area. This will release older boys of the school so that they may help in farming operations.

Inauguration of Daylight savings Time will not be adhered to at the present time, the board announced. Beginning last Monday, the Sudan schools started at 10 o'clock instead of 9 o'clock and will be dismissed at 5 o'clock. Actually this will be the same time by the sun, even though it is an hour later by the clock.

Reason for the change in schedule, as given by the board, is that most of the students, who live in the rural districts, would be forced to start on their way to school before daylight, as buses start on the runs earlier.

TOMORROW . . . guessing

When all the shooting ends, what is America going to be like?

Picturing tomorrow—the tomorrow after the war—is pretty much like crystal gazing. It's a matter of doing a lot of guesswork with unknown quantities.

The only thing we really can feel sure about tomorrow is that we are going to win the war. We haven't much of an idea what the peace will be like, what kind of government we will have in the United States nor how those quarter-of-a-trillion dollars which we may owe are going to be paid off.

If we are so disposed, we can get gloomy over the prospects for tomorrow in spite of anticipating victory on the war front.

But if we look beyond the debt, the hardships of war and the uncertainties of our social organization, it is quite possible to envision a silver lining on the other side of the war-clouded horizon.

Probably our outlook today will have most to do with the kind of tomorrow we get. For we do know this—if the world of tomorrow is to have a silver lining that lining will have to be manufactured in the U. S. A. It can only be produced by the planning, the working and the faith of democratic people.

BRAINS . . . resources

If the brains of 100,000,000 intelligent Americans are striving to create a better world after the war, the chances are excellent that they will find the formula for accomplishing this goal.

Man power may play a major part in winning the war, but brain power will be the chief factor in planning the peace.

We may not have a monopoly on brain power, but just as we have the right set-up for superiority in the mass production of goods, a democracy, such as ours, also can count upon superior mass production of ideas.

In a dictatorship the ideas of the people don't matter. The people in Germany are told what to do—they depend solely on the ideas of Hitler and his gang. In our country, on the other hand, the government depends on the ideas of all the people. It makes full use of its vast resources of brain power. Certainly the combined mental energy of 100,000,000 people can produce something superior to the mental gymnastics of a handful of misguided fanatics.

VISION . . . anticipation

Perhaps what we need in this country today is a pair of imaginary rose-colored glasses for every man and woman to look through—even if we have to wear them over gas-masks. They need to be so rosy in color that we can see a beautiful glow in the sky of the future even though our immediate view is blurred by dive bombers.

A thousand different writers in a thousand different ways have preached the "look for the silver lining"—"what's the use of worrying"—"singing in the rain" gospel, but most of us have difficulty making these philosophies stand up under pressure.

But if we ever are really going to try to make those Pollyanna-like philosophies work, now is the time to do it. We need to keep our mental eyes glued on a future which is as fascinating as the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

We need to keep thinking about tomorrow—and we must look forward to it as something as exciting as the night before Christmas is to a five-year-old child.

If we can do that, both in our dreaming and our scheming, there is little doubt that our dreams will come true.

MORALE . . . fear

All of us who have followed the news of this war have been impressed by the importance which military and government leaders in all countries attach to morale.

Morale is defined by Mr. Webster as: "Condition dependent upon such moral or mental factors as zeal, spirit, hope, confidence."

The most important element for building morale in this country is not just an all-out effort for victory but an all-out anticipation of the life that is in store for us after victory is won.

Hitler is trying to build morale among the German people on the basis of fear. He tells them that they will be enslaved for a thousand years if they don't win. He has taught them to dread the future if they lose instead of to long for the post-war period.

Morale built on fear doesn't fit the definition of Webster or of anyone else. It weakens the spirit, blinds hope and shakes confidence. Our victory will be an easier one if we build our morale firmly on hope—if we are drawn on by the vision of a future which surpasses anything we have known before.

Eighth Grade Students Elect Officers January 20

Students in the three eighth grades met in the grade school auditorium Tuesday, January 20, for the purpose of electing officers.

Landon Grissom was elected president, Georgia Beckner, vice-president; Frances Towes, secretary; Malcolm Stokes, treasurer; and Junior Graham, reporter.

Plans were discussed by the group to stage either a banquet or a picnic, which will be held late in the spring. Another meeting will be called soon, when the students will make plans to raise money.

In the movie "Navy Blues" Ann Sheridan does a sword dance with a sword that belonged to Admiral Farragut.

Careless habits contribute to destruction of materials and property as well as the possible loss of life by fire.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. brought sod in to sod the yard. After a few weeks we planted shrubs which we bought and which were given to me by neighbors and home demonstration club members. To screen the garden from the yard we set out 50 privet shrubs and every one is living.

"Daddy and I hauled rocks from about five miles away to make the cobblestone walk from the front door to the yard gate and from the back door to the back gate and well.

"We planted flowers in the garden which is to the side of my yard. I shall continue my yard work during this next year and I hope to complete the foundation plantings as we have already placed an order for those. Since my daddy's death I shall have to depend on my brother to help me with the yard work.

"Our entire family is proud of the yard and each has helped me to make it beautiful. In September the 4-H Club Girls came to see the yard and we took some pictures of it. Later in the month when the women of the home demonstration clubs were making the county tours they visited my yard. I am always glad for people to see what we have done."

Littlefield Teachers Vote To 'Work Harder' On Registration Day

A few days ago the Governor of Texas declared Monday, February 16, a state holiday. The chief reason for the holiday was that the state needed her public school teachers to register men for the army.

I am proud, however, to report that 100 per cent of the teachers in Littlefield have said "We are willing to work harder on next Monday in order that we may have school and register our men for the army at the same time—we find it our duty and willingly agree."

This fine spirit on the part of our teachers is indeed gratifying since our boys and girls are behind already in their school work this year because of rain, sickness and other bad weather.

A Loans Available Under Food For Victory Production Program

Experienced
Food Raising
To Enlist

America Must Have to Win War,
Fred L. Nix

Time farmers, farm laborers, every rural family with experience in food raising and land reclamation enlist in the Food for Victory production program, Fred Nix, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, said today.

Special assistance is immediately available to all eligible families in this agency, according to Nix, who urges those wishing details to contact him at the office in the City Hall building in Littlefield, Texas.

Every acre and every man is to produce the food America needs to win the war," said Nix. "Rural families with land raising experience, regardless of whether they are regular farm operators, can start all-out production now by using the assistance of the Farm Security Administration.

In the family which can't produce the food for the war, Nix said, "I'll raise a garden and food for use," Mr. Nix continued, "at means there will be more defense workers, armed and report to other United States."

THANK YOU, MR. BURGIN!

The editor of the Lamb County Leader is indebted to J. H. Burgin, father of Mrs. W. J. Aldridge, for a copy of the poem, "Hitler and the Devil."

Mr. Burgin enclosed the verse in a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Aldridge, and instructed them to "tell Drake to put that in his newspaper."

A resident of East Texas, Mr. Burgin has visited Littlefield on several occasions and has many friends in this city and throughout this section.

This editor hopes that Mr. Burgin will return to Littlefield soon for a prolonged visit, and . . . in the meantime . . . we'll carry out his wishes by pouring it on Hitler and extending to the devil "deepest condolence" on his altered status as commander-in-chief of Hell on earth.

Now read:

HITLER AND THE DEVIL

Hitler called the Devil upon the telephone one day,
The girl at central listened to all they had to say,
"Hello," she heard Hitler say, "Is old Satan home?"
"Just tell him it's the dictator who wants him on the phone."
The Devil said, "Howdy," and Hitler "How are you?"
"I'm running a hell on earth, so tell me what to do."
"What can I do," the Devil said, "dear old pal of mine?"
"It seems you don't need any help—you're doing mighty fine."
"Yes, I was doing very well until a while ago,
"When a man named Roosevelt wired me to go slow;
"He said to me, 'Dear Hitler, we don't want to be unkind,
"But you have raised hell enough, so you'd better change your mind."
"I thought his lease-lend bill was a bluff, and he could never get it through,
"But he soon put me on the spot when he showed what he could do;
"Now that's why I called you, Satan; I need advice from you,
"For I know you will tell me just what I ought to do."
"My Dear Hitler, there is not much left to tell,
"For Uncle Sam will make it hotter than I can here in hell.
"I have been a mean old Devil, but not half as mean as you,
"So the minute you get here the job is yours to do,
"I'll be ready for your coming and I'll keep the fires all bright,
"And I'll have your room ready when Sam begins to fight,
"For I can see your days are numbered and there's nothing left to tell.
"So hang up your phone, get your hat, and meet me here in hell."
—PETER P. BELL

remind readers of the Lamb County Leader that loan assistance from the Farm Security Administration is available for the purchase of gardening equipment, seed, feed, cows, and heifers, pigs and chickens, and to rent workstock and equipment, repair livestock shelters, fences and machinery, and to meet other needs.

Mr. Nix has been assured that this new Food for Victory program has been streamlined with simplified forms which have been worked out to make these loans quickly available. He said the new loan program for the low-income families not now participating in the FSA program may amount to as much as $500 for each family and extend from one to five years at 5 per cent interest. Present FSA borrowers may

Alph Wright Named
Supervisor At Bombing Plant

Alph Wright, who has been in charge of the Littlefield water works for the past several years, has been appointed Supervisor of the waterworks at the bombing plant at the airfield near Lubbock, and took over his new duties Saturday.

This is considered a nice promotion for Mr. Wright, who will move his family to Lubbock as soon as he can secure suitable living quarters.

H. W. Wiseman has been named to take Mr. Wright's place here as water superintendent, but the night job, left vacant by Mr. Wiseman, had not been filled, according to W. G. Street, city secretary.

Approximately 56,000 male residents in Texas will be registered in the 20 and 21-year old age groups on February 16th. General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, announced today.

National Selective Service Headquarters anticipates a total registration in the Continental United States of about 9,000,000 men between the ages of 20 and 45 years. General Page has been advised, and of these about 1,650,000 will be in the 20-21 year old group.

It is also estimated that around 443,000 in the 36 to 44-year-old group will be registered in Texas on February 16th, together with some in the 21-36 year old group who were unable or for other reasons did not register at the two previous registrations.

The age groups to be registered on February 16th include all men not previously registered who have attained their twentieth birthday on December 31, 1941, and who have not reached their forty-fifth birthday on February 16, 1942; that is: All unregistered males resident in the United States who were born between February 17, 1897 and December 31, 1921.

Mrs. Lynch was burned severely on the arm and on the hip, a strip of blazing tar paper having fallen on her.

The blaze is believed to have started from the boiler.
