

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL!

Our Year of Opportunity

Another New Year lies just ahead, another year of Opportunity for us all.

Every New Year is our year of Opportunity—opportunity to do the things we have left undone, to undo some of the things we have done unwisely.

What the New Year shall be is largely up to us; each of us individually lies the power to make 1951 a happier New Year for ourselves and all those with whom we come into contact.

Let us all make the most of the New Opportunity that now unfolds!

Happy Marriage Not Menaced By Minor Spats, Says Expert

WINNIPEG (AP)—Marriages are not headed for the rocks just because the husband and wife do not see eye-to-eye on everything.

Dr. Gerda Allison, mother and doctor, says it is perfectly natural, and also desirable, for husband and wife not to agree on everything. The prime requisite of the happy marriage is agreement on the ultimate goal.

She said each person has to take something individually into marriage and retain it.

Dr. Allison was one of three speakers who addressed the Westminster Church marriage clinic. The others were Dr. Murray Campbell and Dr. Dorothea Wardrop.

Dr. Campbell said the truly happy couple must have a number of things in common.

In addition to a real affection, emotional maturity, intellectual union and a union of body and soul, he said the happy couple should have common background, church, grammar, table manners and similar elements including a mutual hobby.

Complete frankness and an understanding of your mate is vital he added.

Both doctors stressed equal partnership status for husband and wife. "Dignified Victorian acquiescence is no longer fashionable," Dr. Allison said. Also, as far as the wife is concerned, she deplored "slavish submission."

Marriage was not the end of the story. "It is just the beginning," a "dynamic state" calling for continual adjustments. The key to happy marriage is "tolerance, understanding and good humor . . . and an informed and realistic attitude toward sex."

Dr. Wardrop said "Sex education should be according to the development of a child and should start with children, not at the pre-marital stage."

War Threat Bring Big Crops Needs

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON—The critical international situation has given American agriculture the signal to open the throttle on production in 1951.

This is in sharp contrast to a year ago. At that time, the government had signaled for a production slowdown. Officials were concerned then about mounting surpluses of farm products and declining farm prices and income.

But the Korean war and the threat of a world wide conflict have inflated the demand and need for the new year envision a possible record volume of farm products.

The need for a greater volume of agricultural products grows out of the facts that (1) civilian buying power is increasing sharply under government spending for national defense and (2) the government itself will need more food for the nation's growing military forces.

More Cotton and Meat

Particular emphasis will be placed on production of cotton, meat animals and livestock feeds. Supplies of cotton are dangerously low due to a disappointing low crop

March Draft Set For 80,000 Men

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army
has called for 80,000 draftees in March, raising total draft quotas
to 450,000 since the Korean outbreak.

The March figure is the same as that for January and February.
The Navy, Air Force and Marines
again placed no calls.

With the armed forces swiftly building toward a total of some 3,500,000, the Army expects a combat strength equivalent to 24 divisions when its expansion goal is reached July 1.

Progress Accelerates On School

Work on Littlefield's new $375-000 high school building now is progressing at a rapid clip after a period last fall of seemingly slow construction.

The brickwork on the exterior of the building now is about two-thirds complete and the progress on plumbing and electrical and interior work is keeping pace, Supt. of Schools Joe Hutchinson said Friday.

The construction in all phases is so interlinked that all must progress together," he said; "any delay on any phase of the construction affects the other phases and slows down everything."

The exterior of the new gymnasium, which is linked to the auditorium of the new building by means of a hallway, now is practically complete.

About all that remains is the installation of window glass and finishing work, he said.

The rate the construction now is going along bolsters hopes of school authorities that the new building will be ready for use with the start of the fall term in 1951.

"We certainly hope we can get into it by that time," Mr. Hutchinson said. "The new building will do much to relieve the crowded conditions under which we now must operate."

With the new building Littlefield will have one of the largest and best equipped auditoriums
of any school in this section, with a stage large enough that the entire school band may be seated on it for concerts.

The gymnasium also will be one of the best suited in this section for basketball games, tournaments and other sports events,
with ample seating capacity provided for spectators far enough away from the playing court to give the players plenty of room.

The building is being finished in buff brick.

Community Chest
Trims Its Budget
To Fit Short Fund

Faced with only a little more than a 50 per cent attainment of the $11,000 quota set for the Littlefield Community Chest, the directors of the organization have voted to cut budget allocations to fit receipts.

With $6,160 instead of $11,000 to meet requests, the directors voted that almost half, or $3,040 go to the Salvation Army. It had been budgeted for $5,000.

The Library Fund which would have received $500 if the goal had been reached will receive $280.
The Youth Recreation program
for which it was aped $4,000
could be raised will receive exactly one-half of that amount, or $2,000, and $840 will be granted the Girl Scouts instead of the $1,500 originally planned for this organization.

The Santa Fe Railway

A new history of the Santa Fe Railroad is just off the University of Kansas Press. It is titled "Steel Trails to Santa Fe" and authored by Les Waters, professor of Transportation at Indiana University.

Waters argues that railroading today is far more interesting than ever before with the more complex and challenging problems of technology and competition. Consequently his book differs from most railroad histories which dwell on romance, construction and finance. Waters' book covers every aspect of the business from labor relations to the treating, freight solicitation to stock market up-and-downs, hoboes to deadheads.

Critics of advance copies of "Steel Trails to Santa Fe" feel that the ingredients of success which have made America strong are typified in the Santa Fe railway.

"We should have published 'Steel Trails to Santa Fe' nine years ago when it was first written, so I'd look better as a prophet," Waters contends.

"The company had weathered the depression far better than people suspected and was about to burst forth as the No. 1 railroad of the nation. The manuscript was complete and included a carefully-reasoned prediction of things to come. Now the line is everything I predicted."

Prior to 1940 Glenn Bradley's book, "The Story of the Santa Fe" was the only history of the Santa Fe extant, and it stopped at the close of the last century. Santa Fe's president, the late Edward J. Engel, and his public relations assistant, the late Lee Lyles, undertook to provide a thorough history of the railroad by recruiting a university professor to assure a thorough job of research and writing, an Irishman in order to keep the book from being nothing but facts! Professor Les Waters of the University of Kansas was chosen, and on leave of absence from the university, traveled all over the Santa Fe properties, interviewing employes, probing records of the company and histories of the territory it serves.

The Waters manuscript, completed by 1943, was put to sleep for the duration of World War II. Dr. Waters has revised it to include new records since established. He asserts the handsomely bound and profusely illustrated 550-page book "contains all that one man can put in a book and more than any reader will want to get out of it."

The author has a background steeped in Santa Fe tradition. He was born on a farm in Kansas and spent some of his early years in Topeka, the home office of the Santa Fe. An uncle, Francis Waters, is a long-time employe in the Santa Fe shops at Topeka. Dr. Waters was educated in Missouri and Illinois, and served as director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Kansas before going to Indiana University.

Overlapping Property Taxation

A besetting sin of the Texas state-local governmental structure is the independence of actions of various units in fixing both the tax rates and the ratios of assessed-to-real values. This is, in fact, an outstanding characteristic of Texas, as among the forty-eight states, according to the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Texas, which has just issued a brochure on "Texas Property Taxes in 1949."

The greatest injustice arises, of course, from the fixing of the state tax rate by the local commissioners courts that act as boards of equalization. As a result some counties in Texas pay as much as 60 or 70 per cent less than their share, while others pay approximately that much more. (The ratio of assessed-to-actual value ranges from 25 to 100 per cent.)

The bad situation has been ameliorated somewhat by abolishing the ad valorem tax for general revenue, but it still exists in the taxes for schools, state colleges and Confederate pensions, totaling a maximum of 42c on the $100 valuation.

Insofar as local tax rates are concerned, it may be argued that the local units should have a right to fix their own rates. An injustice arises, however, from the overlapping that occurs in the maze of state, county, city and the various types of district taxation.

The new bulletin of the Institute of Public Affairs shows, for example, that on an adjusted basis of 100 per cent rendition, the total rate for state, county, city and independent school district purposes varies from 72c to $3.98, as among the cities of Texas. On basis of average of assessed valuation, this would mean $1.44 to $7.96. But even this does not show the full picture, as is stated in the preface of the bulletin, because it does not include a large number of special districts which affect both the cities and rural areas. Undoubtedly much greater extremes could be found if some agency had the time and resources to work out the entire intricate pattern.

It is just another problem that the Legislature ought to get around to at no distant day.—Dallas News.

An Example On Traffic

In announcing a citation of commendation of Detroit recently for the remarkable record that city has made in reducing traffic accidents, the American Bar Association sharpened the focus upon a fact which few people will dispute.

The bar association, as others have done, gave chief credit for the Detroit achievement to vigorous enforcement of traffic laws there. In that city, the more serious traffic offenses almost invariably mean jail terms for the violators. The habitual violator of the less serious regulations usually gets the same treatment.

The Detroit system unquestionably works. Until a few years ago, the traffic accident record in that great city was one of the worst in the nation. It was so bad that an aroused citizenship demanded, first, more vigorous enforcement of traffic laws by police and other traffic officers; and, second, the imposition of more severe penalties in the courts. They got both and, during the past two or three years, Detroit's traffic accident record has been among the best in the country.

It represents an achievement which adds to the proof that the greater need in the promotion of traffic safety in this country is not more laws—although new laws doubtless would be helpful in a great many instances.

The best way to get safety results quickly is really to enforce existing laws through greater diligence in arresting violators, and of greater importance, through penalties sufficiently severe to deter offenders.

This has been proved in Detroit. And what Detroit has done any other city in the U. S. can do.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Free Scotland Issue

No one seems able to put an accurate finger on the strength of Scottish nationalism, generally estimated as more vocal and numerical. While the audible nationalists demand return to the ancient glories of free Scotland, the less talkative majority regards the union that has existed since the accession of their James VI as England's James I not as vassalage to but successful invasion of the simple land south of the Tweed. Jamie took his buddies to London with him. In the ensuing years, they have been followed by their friends and relatives until nowadays Englishmen, seeing Scotch patronyms on the great doors of government, banking, industry and trade, suggest that a liberation would be of England, not of Scotland.

The informed Scottish view is that Robert Bruce licked 'em at Bannockburn and Jamie VI absorbed 'em, Caledonia forever! "Nemo me impune lacessit." Keenly aware that the Anglo-Saxons have not meddled with Scotland unpunished, that tacit majority sees no reason to disturb an entirely satisfactory status quo.

Best guess is that the Stone of Scone will find its way back to Westminster under Scottish pressure. Bruce was crowned on it. It is Robble's heirs that are still being crowned upon it, isn't it?

peace in the trouble spots?
 How tightly will economic controls be screwed down to curb inflationary pressures mounting steadily under the government's deficit spending program, and fed increasingly by sharply expanding military and security demands?

Price Controls Possible
 If price controls come, will they be placed in effect at or around current price levels, or will there be a "rollback"?

Is there any assurance that growers will be able to meet a government-requested production goal next season of 16,000,000 bales after a season in which probably less than 10,000,000 bales were produced?

Is there enough good quality seed? What about the mounting costs of production and the declining yields in some of the older cotton growing areas?

All these questions contributed to an overtime of nervous apprehension in the market as the old year drew to a close with prices fluctuating erratically around the 40 to 42-cent levels in the current crop months, and 36 to 37-cent levels in the 1951 deliveries.

Speculate On Ceilings
 The current crop prices were better than 2 cents a pound below the record highs reached in November while the 1951 crop futures were holding at only about a half a cent below their highs.

Narrowing of the difference between the near and far months, which had previously been as wide as 6 cents a pound, reflected the market's adjustment to prospects of curbed exports and the threat of price controls.

One widely held theory is that if price ceilings are imposed by the government, they will be placed on around current price levels. This would leave considerable room for advance in the forward months thus making it more attractive price-wise to growers to increase planting in 1951.

Prices Make Record
 Prices which topped those of the 20's went up on the boards of the nation's cotton exchanges in the history-making advance of 1950. Never in the 79-year history of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange had there been a price posted such as the 44 cents a pound top hit by the December contracts. Previous high was 41.69 cents reached by May in April, 1920.

The record high levels resulted from a change in production prospects from surplus to a near record short crop, inflationary pressures, booming general business conditions, increasing domestic consumption of cotton, mounting exports as Marshall Plan countries continued to reach out for American staple, a rising trend in parity, and most electrifying of all—outbreak of war in Korea and our involvement.

RODENTS STARVE QUICKLY

DAVIS, Calif. (AP)—Small rodents, such as mice, can starve to death quickly in cold weather, says Walter E. Howard of the University of California. When it is cold the little animals must eat several times as much food as when it is warm. They do not seem to be able to break down stored fat in their bodies fast enough to prevent starvation when it is cold. However, through use of war mnesters and huddling they can keep warm enough to prevent the quick starvation, Howard says.

ORCHARD PLAN DROPPED

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (AP)—The state government's plans for nationalizing orchards in Indian-held Kashmir have been postponed because of the financial drain involved in paying off the owners. THE AGE OF SMOKE
BONN, Germany — (AP) — At what age should youngsters be allowed to smoke? Grown-ups in this country are just as widely split on the issue as anywhere else. Now the law-makers of this young republic have made an energetic dash at it. What the law-makers wanted to decide was this: at what age may youngsters be allowed to smoke "in public"? After ten months of deliberation they emerged with a draft of a new "youth protection law" to reduce age limit from 18 to 16 years.

RODENT DAMAGE RUNS HIGH IN SOUTH PLAINS AREA

Rat damage on the South Plains during the past year amounted to more than $500,000, estimates E. G. Pope of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife office in Lubbock. The office in Lubbock concerns itself chiefly with rodent and predatory animal control.

"Rats have been on the increase during the past year and our control measures fell behind the last couple of months," Pope said.

He estimates there is one rat on the South Plains for every person. Population of the South Plains is estimated at 300,000 people. Pope said a rat destroys about $2 worth of property per year.

Large quantities of grain sorghum stored and stacked on farms will provide good diets for rats this winter. Because of the heavy grain concentrations, he urges rat control measures.

Successful Poison

The most effective rat killer is a new poison called warfarin, he said. "We've been experimenting with the use of warfarin since 1942," he added, "but it was not until this past year that it proved itself."

Warfarin was developed by Dr. Carl Paul Link at the University of Wisconsin Rodent control units of the fish and wildlife service have developed methods of application, Pope said.

Warfarin is an anti-coagulant when introduced into the blood stream. It causes internal bleeding in rats which brings on eventual death. Three dosages within a period of five days are required before it is effective, Pope said. "Because an accumulation of the drug is required there is little danger to domestic animals or pets," he explained.

Lubbock Figures Lower

The wildlife service mixes the poison bait, a combination of one pound of warfarin compound to 19 pounds of corn meal, sugar and oil. Actual killing substance in this mixture amounts to .025 per cent, Pope said.

The antidote to warfarin poisoning is vitamin K, a blood coagulant or clotter.

The rat population in Lubbock county is considerably less than that of other South Plains counties in proportion to human population, Pope said. He attributes this to constant rat killing measures of the county.

In the other principal bowl games unbeaten Oklahoma meets Kentucky in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, Michigan meets California in the Rose Bowl and Clemson meets Miami in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Associated Press sports writer Will Grimley picks Texas over Tennessee, Michigan over California, Clemson over Miami and for obscure reason, Kentucky over the Nation's No. 1 Oklahoma eleven.

Why he choose Texas over Tennessee, which beat Kentucky, and then choose Kentucky to beat the only team that has defeated Texas is a little difficult line of reasoning to follow.

In the other New Year's Day bowl games he predicts: Gator Bowl at Jacksonville: Wyoming over Washington & Lee. The Cowpokes to win by a touch down over the crippled Generals.

Sun Bowl at El Paso: West Texas State over Cincinnati.

Salad Bowl at Phoenix: Arizona State of Temple over Miami (Ohio) Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.: Morris-Harvey over Emory & Henry.

Pineapple Bowl at Honolulu: Denver over Hawaii. Oleander Bowl at Galveston: Wharton Junior college over San Angelo Junior college.

Cigar Bowl at Tampa: LaCrosse Teachers over Valparaiso.

Farmers Get

tomobiles, appliances and other industrial goods likely to become relatively scarce, consumers are expected to spend more and more of the growing income on food, particularly meats and dairy products.

The situation has the promise of a high level of farm prosperity. But just how high is a question which weather, government economic measures and the farm labor supply will determine.

Weather, of course, will be a major factor in determining the sizes of the crops. Government price controls are generally expected by March. Such controls would set the farm prices. Despite a 12 per cent increase since the start of the war in Korea, the prices of most farm products were below minimum ceilings authorized by law. No ceilings have been invoked as yet.

In a long range forecast, the agriculture department says farmers' cash receipts from marketings will probably equal or exceed the record set in 1948. But net income after production expenses is not expected to reach the 1948 level. The department says production costs will increase more than income.

But Farmers Will Produce Nevertheless, field reports indicate that farmers have sufficient confidence in future prices to step up production.

Major interest will center on cotton and corn in 1951. The government had called for at least 60 per cent more cotton—a mighty big job in the face of threats of smaller supplies of farm labor and production materials. A big corn crop will be sought because this grain is the major raw material for production of meat, milk and poultry products.

The lack of supports for meat animals and poultry may lead to revisions in farm laws. "The Truman administration takes the position that it has no effective method of supporting prices. All it could do, leaders say, would be to buy up and store surplus quantities of these products—might wind up with heavy financial losses. The need for price supports to protect those paid during the
