We Do Our Part

LEAVE NATURE ALONE TO ENJOY IT MOST

It was a most attractive photograph. It showed a wild waterfall, toppling over a rocky ledge and foaming down into a gorge whose banks were covered with virgin timber. Everything in view looked, presumably, just as it did centuries ago, before there was a white man on the continent.

The paragraph of printed matter that accompanied the picture said that this water fall was on the Tahquamenon river in the upper peninsula of Michigan. A movement was afoot to turn the region into a state park, it was said; and then came this sentence—"the place is difficult to reach at present, but a highway will be built to the falls if the park is O. K.'d."

And while all of us who like to go places by auto would be glad to have one more beauty spot put within reach of our summer tours, it occurs to us to wonder if we aren't overdoing this business of putting roads into the wilderness, just a little.

A good part of the charm of some of these wild spots is their isolation—the fact that they are not only unspoiled, but that they are so hard to get to that people don't get a chance to spoil them.

We have built so many roads in the last decade that it is hard to think of any beauty spot which the casual motorist cannot reach. And while this is, in the main an excellent thing, we might reflect that once you make a wilderness thoroughly accessible, it ceases to be a wilderness.

There ought, in other words, to be some areas which can't be reached by car; spots which one must penetrate afoot, or with a pack horse, if one is to see them at all, and which contain no tourist cabins or general stores.

Let there be a few prizes for those who are willing to rough it, a few bits of wilderness which we can never see if we aren't game to park the car and hike a bit.

BLACK-DRAUGHT

"Such a Good Laxative," Says Nurse

Writing from her home in Festus, Mo., Mrs. Anna LaPlante says: "I am a practical nurse and I recommend to some of my patients that they take Black-Draught, for it is such a good laxative. I took it for constipation, headache and a dull feeling that I had so much. A few doses of Black-Draught—and I felt just fine."

Because so many people know from having used it that Theodor's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, millions of packages of it are sold every year.

Morton To Get New Light Plant

An agreement between the town of Morton and Mr. Roberts of the Fairbanks-Morse Company was closed Wednesday of last week assuring the town of an up-to-date light and power system. Mr. Roberts will move to Morton and give the plant his personal supervision. It is expected to be in operation in about thirty days.

EIGHT YEARS AGO IN LITTLEFIELD

(Excerpts from Lamb Co. Leader)

Walter Burleson, local merchant and ace pitcher for the Greenville baseball team this year, is in line for a big league position next year, according to the Greenville Morning Herald, a recent copy of which was received this week by the Leader.

Burleson has made an exceptional record on the mound this year, closing the season's game with a score 5-0 in favor of his team.

Work on the installation of Littlefield's sewer system is steadily progressing, according to Engineer A. B. Carson, in charge of the work. Mr. Carson states that the disposal plant, located northeast of town, is now practically completed. All the mains has been laid and practically all the laterals east of Main Street are now in and ready for service.

Mr. and Mrs. George Long of Quanah were here last week visiting L. R. Crockett, and family, and viewing the virtues of this country. They went back home to sell off their property and hope to return here soon to make this their future home.

B. N. Joplin of Waterloo, who has been visiting his parents, five miles south of town, returned to his home Tuesday.

Quintin Bellomy is leaving Thursday for Fort Worth, where he will attend Draughan's business college.

G. R. Belyeau, residing southwest of Littlefield, last week finished marketing his crop of broom corn, the finest he ever grew. He had 33 acres in this crop, which yielded 61 bales or nine and a half tons, selling at $95.00 per ton or about $30 per ton under market because unfortunately most of it was caught in some rain showers and damaged.

The John H. Arnett, local Ford dealer, this week reports the delivery of 14 Ford chassis to be used for school transportation of pupils at Littlefield, Sudan, Amherst and Morton. This is said to be the largest single order of Ford truck chassis ever delivered on the South Plains.

Six Hundred Thousand Cattle Shipped From Texas

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 29. — Representatives of the Texas Southwest Cattle Raiser's association, the Gulf Coast Cattle Raiser's Association, the drouth relief service, Bureau of Animal Industry, State Livestock Sanitary Commission and railroads met at Houston Wednesday to coordinate the cattle buying program in Texas and attempt to inform the public generally of the problem of the program.

C. Z. Crain, head of the surplus commodities department and R. D. McCrum, cattle movement supervisor of the Texas Relief Commission, attended the meeting from Austin.

Explaining the county quota basis, Crain said it was necessary to limit the shipments from each county to 450 head per week in order to avoid congestion at pens and processing plants. He explained that the processing plants can handle only about 70,000 head of cattle per day at capacity. At the same time, Crain said he had been assured from Washington that the buying program will be continued "until the emergency has been met."

To farmers and ranchmen whose herds have not yet been reached Crain declared that the program will continue until ever cattle raiser has had a chance to sell the animals he wishes to cull from his herd.

As a result of the government's program, the cattle population of Texas, estimated at near 7,000,000 is expected to be reduced by approximately 2,000,000. Already, some 600,000 head have been shipped from the state.

Under the quota arrangement, the most acute cases of distressed cattle are to be handled first. Crain said. In addition to the 450 head for shipping purposes, condemnations of cows unfit for shipment will bring the total sales per county per week up to approximately 650 head. One visit to a pasture doesn't necessarily mean that it is the last. After animals hardest hit by the drouth have been eliminated, federal agents may return later to buy other undesirable animals, and further reduce the surplus. Crain again asked cattle owners to bear in mind that field representatives are working just as fast as quotas will allow and that every effort will be made to reach all distressed herds.

Those little daily "chores" that seem to Mr. Husband only a detail, take hours of hard work each day unless the Mrs. has the assistance of the many economical servants that the electrical world offers.

BUSINESSMEN SHUT OUT SCHOOL 3-0 BOB MCKNIGHT PITCHES IN FINE STYLE

The Businessmen's team of C. O. Stone struck their first blow against the League yesterday evening when they defeated the school team 3-0. With Bob McKnight in fine style and his pitching heads up ball with skill, made possible the favor of the businessmen's team. The School forces have taken the lead to date but it is the sole wish and ambition of all teams in the League to check them in their March, and this was demonstrated in the 3 to 0 contest with the businessmen. Each time that a loss is administered to the Educators means an advance for other clubs who have been fighting it out for other positions in the league standings.

Sunnydale Wins Lopsided Tilt With Lutherans

For one lone inning the game between the Sunnydalers and the Lutherans showed up like a contest was in progress, however, when the hit and run riot was over with the West-side boys who bound Littlefield on the West, a ten run splurge had been committed and the Hanks-Pepper combination tucked another contest away on the higher percentage side of their League standing.

Firemen Defeated By School Faculty Score Is 3-1

Allstars Recover To Win From Lutherans 7-6

Last Wednesday night the Lutherans made another attempt to add to their win column and had things well in their hands until the final man was retired. With two out and a bounding ball being hit to third base, that should have retired the side Thomas Lowe scored from third to knot the count. A pass ball brought a runner up at third and with the count three two on the batter a pop fly to the left looked like a putout went for a single and the ball game for the Allstars.

TODAY'S FASHION HINTS

VERY LATEST

By PATRICIA DOW

Designed in Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 44 requires 7 1/2 yards of 36 inch material with 1 1/2 yard contrasting.

SLENDERIZINGLY SMART

Pattern 8261—Attractively smart and simple is their design, made especially for the larger woman. Every line contributes to the slenderizing effect—from the surplice closing to the pointed yoke in the front and back of the skirt.

In the sketch the upper part is of all-over lace attached in pointed outline to the dress of net or chiffon. But one may combine other materials and contrasting colors. A pastel colored yoke and sleeves combined with black would be flattering to the beauty of the face, and slenderizing to the figure. It is a frock easily cut and made.

Local Optometrist Sponsors Club For Children

Dr. Ira E. Woods is sponsor for the local chapter of a national organization of boys and girls known as the Observers Club. The sole objective of this club is outright conservation.

There are no dues or other fees. The only requirement for membership is a pledge by each boy and girl to avoid harmful reading habits, and to give his or her own eyes the best possible protection.

After children qualify for membership, they are given an attractive emblem and four handbooks on opera houses, magic, and other subjects of interest to boys and girls. All of these handbooks stress the importance of good eyesight to play and in school.

"Organizers of the Observers Club," said Dr. Woods, "believe that this organization will be a real factor in making both parents and their children more conscious of the importance of healthy eyes."

"We want to create interest in proper vision," continued Dr. Woods. "We are anxious to arouse a child's desire to have perfect vision, and make ability to see well as proud an accomplishment as to skate or to swim well."

Dr. Woods is a specialist in a child's eyes and a holder of a license in optometry.

OUR STORE HAS BEEN LINKED WITH THE GROWTH AND DEVELOPMENT OF LITTLEFIELD

Back in the early days of Littlefield—in the time of the wide open spaces—the Stokes-Alexander Drug Co. was serving the people of this community the ranchmen and cowboys, and the great numbers who came in to purchase the lands in this section.

The store was purchased by Stokes-Alexander in May, 1922, and has continued under the management of J. M. Stokes down through the years. There has been no change in management, no change in policy, just a continual development of the business, meeting and anticipating the needs of the people of this city and section.

When the store was purchased by Stokes-Alexander the merchandise carried in stock could be put in one corner of the present store. TODAY, IN THE STOKES-ALEXANDER DRUG STORE, YOU WILL FIND A STORE THAT RENDERS A SERVICE MET, BUT SELDOM EXCELLED IN THE LARGE CITIES.

The Stokes-Alexander Drug Co. has been linked with the growth and development of this city and section. Whatever has been for the good of Littlefield and territory has found the Stokes-Alexander store anxious and willing to co-operate.

Complete Line Of Drugs

We feature in our drug and drug sundry departments that famous REXALL line, known from coast to coast for quality and variety. When you buy REXALL, you buy the best.

In addition to the wide range of merchandise in the REXALL line, we carry a vast amount of other items; in fact, it is very seldom that we cannot select from our shelves whatever is requested. That is one of the reasons why our business is growing; people like to purchase what they ask for; they do not wish to take something in the way of a substitute.

We carry a complete line of toilet goods, perfumes; in fact, you will find in our drug store all those items which make up the stock of the large drug stores in the big cities.

And Don't Forget Our Jewelry and Watch and Clock Repairing Department. We Lead in This Department as in all Others in our Business.

School Supplies

School will open in a couple of weeks. And we are prepared to supply the children's needs. Send or bring them to our store; they will be able to obtain all their requirements.

We have long featured school supplies, and this year we have made special efforts to have an extra complete line.

Garland Vandell is in Dallas this week looking after a job. Frank Miller and wife, and Roscoe Miller and family journeyed to Grayson County recently to the family reunion. This is an annual affair with them and this scribe believes it a mighty fine thing to do. It is fine to have the family touch, to keep up the family association, the family spirit and hold up the family good name.

Gordon, loving Page Roemer in marriage to Dr. Richard for fifteen thousand dollars to a woman. Helena, sophisticated married woman with Richard, does not make trouble for Nancy, who knows nothing of the marriage. Mr. Gordon sells his property Richard. Nancy never to continue making love when she finds he wants away with him, she recoils in horror. Taking shelter in a poor woman whose dying, Nancy realizes that the best man after all, for him. Although he saves life, he repudiates the help of Helena, finding that they at the night together in the hotel, spreads the scandal. Mr. Angelo Fuller, Roddy's sweetheart, and niece of Max, tries to stop the scandal when Roddy returns home — his mother believes him crazy for Dr. Morgan, who takes care with him. Nancy goes to see her brother. "Rod" have you been doing it stealing?"

Go On With The Story
I tell you, Rod, don't ask begged.

you must tell me — Angie, at something's wrong! Tell shall tell me!"

she shook her head. "No, no!" pipped her hands and snatched at. "I'll find out!" he said, after him sobbing, "It's nothing — don't ask, don't ask."

tears could not avail now, heaved the whirlwind. Roddy mood to reason with Angelo, something was wrong.

could go straight to Richard, as they would settle it. He was loath to him.

Polk was back again. "No, Roddy, delectah ain't in — be quiet, walk in, dere's a lady here—waitin'!"

"Roddy hesitated.

thought of it a moment. He mind Helena. If there was of Richard, Helena would be jealous. Roddy found out a good deal about women.

sat in a chair by the window.

Roddy Gordon?" she exclaimed, gave him her hand.

swallowed hard. He drew close to her and sat down.

Haddon, I think you'd know any gossip, wouldn't you? shrank a little. What in the was coming.

I don't know — what do you just been told—" he stammered when he straightened himself to his question, "Is there any reason why I should have a quarrel with Richard Morgan—about my ask me!" she gasped in panic! She thought he knew that she had told.

But, to Rod, her confusion was only the damning proof of Morgan's guilt. There was something. He became deadly quiet and calm.

"Mrs. Haddon, we're old friends. You were always kind to me," he said, "I—as a friend, I ask you to answer me. I have a right to know what's said of my sister.

Helena tried to collect her thoughts. The boy was not angry with her. She saw that; then he did not know. And this would be a way to get at Nancy herself.

"There's some talk, yes," she admitted reluctantly. "A small place, Rod, and gossip. You mustn't be too angry with me if I say—your sister has been indiscreet, that's all!"

But he was more of a man than she thought. "How indiscreet? My sister? Good God, if a man had said that! Who's the man? Richard Morgan?"

Helena nodded, tapping her foot on the floor.

"Mrs. Haddon, I wish you'd tell me," he pleaded quietly. "See, I'm not excited. I want to take care of my sister. What's the story? It's a lie, you know it, I know it, but tell me—what is it?"

She panted a little; she was frightened. He looked suddenly a man and she had thought him a mere boy.

"I—I can't tell you!" she said in a low voice, "I'm going—let me go, Roddy!"

But he had caught her by the wrist. "You shall tell me!" he said between his teeth, "what is the—the damned lie they're telling?"

She dragged back from him, her green eyes suddenly blazing with fury. "I'll tell you—but don't blame me—let go my hand!"

He let go as if she had struck him, but his eyes still burned into hers.

"Your sister went to Washington with Morgan. She stayed there a day and a night. A man who registered at the same hotel told it—they were there as man and wife. That's the story—now, are you satisfied?"

"I'm quite satisfied," he replied simply, "thank you, Mrs. Haddon. Good night.

Mr. Gordon has spent his evening alone. His wife had given up early; a headache brought her the relief of going to bed. She was in terror of her husband's remarks about Roddy's return. Nancy was out on the piazza now, sitting on the steps. No one knew that she was there, and she did not speak when Roddy sprang up the steps and bounded into the house. He did not see her at all.

A moment later Mr. Gordon looked up into the boy's face.

"By Gum!" he ejaculated involuntarily, "what's wrong? Drunk again, sir?"

Roddy laid his hand heavily on the back of the nearest chair and straightened himself.

"Father, do you happen to know about the scandal—the story they're telling here about Nancy Virginia?"

Mr. Gordon sat up straight. "Make yourself plain, sir."

"Did Nancy ever go to Washington without you—or mother?"

Mr. Gordon's face changed. "She did."

in his throat, his hands clenching on the chair back.

"When?"

"In the spring—after your first escape." Mr. Gordon was staring hard at him his anger rising.

"They say she went with Richard Morgan and stayed there twenty-four hours. They —" Roddy gasped, his eyes blazing—"that fellow — Morgan — registered them as man and wife."

To his amazement his father said nothing. He merely nodded his head slowly, his face stern.

"Do you hear me?" Roddy shouted. "Do you take it in? Nancy—Nancy Virginia and Dick Morgan as man and wife. Some one saw it, read the register."

Mr. Gordon regarded him sternly something like grim humor showing in his eyes. The young fool did not know what a sacrifice the girl had made for him. Then he remembered the intolerable implications against his poor girl. He turned on his son and Roddy made an inarticulate sound.

"They're married," he said shortly. "Married?"

Roddy's jaw dropped, he stared at his father like a zany.

There was a long moment of silence in it. Mr. Gordon's anger gathered force. And who had dared to start it? Roddy getting his breath, broke out again.

"Married? Why didn't I know? Why didn't you tell me before — tell other people?"

Mr. Gordon gave him an exasperated glance. "You're not the one to find fault," he replied dryly, "they're married — secretly."

Secretly? he word was like a torch of flame, it set Roddy on fire.

"Why?" he demanded fiercely, "is that fellow ashamed of my sister?"

His father said nothing.

"Do you hear me?" Roddy strangled with anger. "My sister? He began to walk up and down. He thought of the family honor. His father must be breaking down in a premature dotage! What else could it mean. Did Richard know it? His eyes shot fire.

"I know," he said chokingly, "you've told Morgan about me—it's because she's my sister! Nancy Virginia scorned for me—my God, I'll—I'll —" he seemed to strangle again. He ran out of the room and out of the house.

Bare-headed and disheveled, he ran to the gate. He never once looked back. He did not hear the half-smothered cry that pursued him. He vaulted the gate and was gone.

But Nancy stood there, clasping her cold hands against her breast.

"Oh, what shall I do?" she sobbed to herself softly. She had heard almost all that Roddy had stouted at his father, "what can I do?"

A sharp sound startled Morgan; some one had run up the front steps. He rose slowly to his feet, went to the door. On the steps stood Roddy Gordon.

"What's wrong Roddy? Any one ill?"

"No one's ill. I've got to see you that's all!" Roddy's voice was utterly changed.

Richard looked at him sharply. Had he been drinking again?

"Come in," he said quietly, "go into the office."

Roddy stopped short by the table and faced him, folding his arms on his breast.

"I've come—" he got that far and seemed to be choking. The boy in Roddy had leaped up again. He was a boy in his passion of blind rage.

"I've come to demand an explanation," he panted. "I—father just told me—you've married my sister."

"Sit down," said Richard quietly, "let us talk it over."

"Talk it over? Hell!" Roddy struck his hand on the table with such force that every article on it crashed and spun around. "You've married my sister and let people talk about her. Do you happen to know what they say of it—of her?"

Richard's face whitened to his lips. "I know nothing. Who dares to say anything about her? Or about me?"

Roddy laughed wildly. "Dares? When a man hides his marriage people talk, don't they. I'll tell you what they say. They know nothing of this marriage—this secret marriage of yours, you—you coward! They say she's your—" he strangled again, "—your mistress, dam' you!"

Richard rose to his feet.

"Who says it?" he demanded hoarsely, "who told you that?"

"The whole town says it!" shouted Roddy, "it's seething like a caldron. Lomax knows it, Haddon knows it, everybody knows it! You took her to Washington and married her secretly and ruined her good name!"

"If you were not a boy and her brother," said Richard, "I'd wring your neck!"

"Wring my neck, would you? You haven't got the courage!" Roddy screamed, flinging out his arms, "Do you think I don't know what ails you? Father told you I was a thief—you're ashamed to say you married my sister—my sister, Nancy Virginia Gordon! She's an angel and you're a devil, a black-hearted, cowardly scoundrel! You'll fight me, or, by God, I'll call you a coward on every street corner in the town! I'll publish you—you can't hide any longer behind my sister. I—" he stopped again, and suddenly drawing himself to his full height, spoke with a new tragic dignity. "I challenge you, Richard Morgan, to defend yourself or die in your tracks—like a dam' coward!"

Richard had scarcely heard him.

"Yes, I'll fight you," he said dryly, "I admit you've a right to demand it."

"Come out now—the moon's like day—I'll get a gun—we can fight it out now. I can't wait, I won't wait!"

"Now? Out there? a grim smile twisted Richard's lips. "If one of us dies out there tonight it would be called plain murder. That won't do, Roddy, we must keep to the coffee. Get a second, then I'm ready any time.

"I wouldn't care a copper what they called it," Roddy snapped, "but since you're particular—oh, the code, of course! I'll get a second, you can get yours—over the phone. I give you the choice of weapons, Dr. Morgan."

Richard bowed his head gravely. "Pistols. Mine's here on my desk, but you can bring two. I'll be waiting for you when you come back. Where is it to be?"

"Out there!" Roddy pointed at the moonlit lawn.

"I understand," Richard answered grimly, and he opened a long window on the moonlight piazza, "you can go this way, I wait."

We Think—

Something or other about a snake 21 feet long that flattened out measure about 12 or 14 inches from nose to the other, which he claims he have seen on top of a water tank.

That wouldn't have been a bad story if Jim had killed the snake and buried the deceased on top of the tank without the aid of a cable or tractor.

There's not a bad story a-tall. It is told by "Slim" Sellers. Here goes:

Immediately following the recent rainfall a party of old ducks endeavored to learn the art of swimming in a puddle of water in the downtown section of Littlefield. Despite their age, these ducks had never seen water except in a small drinking pan, but native instinct directed them to try their ability at swimming. One duck got a foot stuck in the mud beneath the water and had to be towed out by four other ducks; one pulling, one pushing and one on each side giving valuable assistance.

MY, MY, WHAT AN EVENT—
A Littlefield man, 60 years of age, with two sons well past 30 years of age, looked up at the sky a week or two ago and remarked:

"My, my, I wish it would rain; I have seen one or two rains in my life time, but I wish my boys could see what rain looks like."

F. S. The Palace Theater screen borrowed the above gag from us.

NOW THAT THE ELECTION IS OVER, WE CAN FIND SOME OTHER SUBJECT ON WHICH TO DISAGREE.

HERE'S SOMETHING THAT WE RECALL AWAY BACK YONDER BEFORE IT RAINED:

Bill Chesher's check suit. Bill, where is that suit; if it isn't too badly worn we would feel some like old residents if you adorn yourself in the said garment and stroll down the main stem.

Of course, it wouldn't look well with that blue shirt and golden trouser retainers.

SHOW PUBLICITY—
We had the pleasure of attending the initial performance at the New 15th theater, said opening presentation taking place last Friday night.

That's a mighty pretty little show house and offers real class entertainment.

In fact Littlefield should be mighty proud of its new theater. Congratulations to the Chesher's.

PUBLICITY FOR OURSELVES—
Zack Isbell reports that bird dog is back home, returned to him through the medium of the classified columns of the Lamb County Leader.

We guarantee results in finding you anything from a dog to a wife.

WHATEVER YOU NEED USE THE CLASSIFIED COLUMNS OF THE LAMB COUNTY LEADER.

LITTLEFIELD NEEDS A LARGE PUBLIC AUDITORIUM—
Without a shadow of a doubt one of the greatest needs of Littlefield is a large Municipal Auditorium, in which events of all kinds could be conducted. At the present time Littlefield is without an auditorium that is sufficiently large and suitable for the variety of events which are carried out in a city of this size, or which could be conducted if a suitable building was available. Such a building should not have stationary seats, but an adequate supply of portable seats should be available. The variety of uses for a Municipal Auditorium are unlimited.
