For information regarding the Texas State Dept. of Health, rabies is a one-way disease transmitted from an infected wild animal to man directly through a domestic animal, most often a dog.

Types of rabies are listeriosis and "dumb" rabies.

Signs in "furious" rabies, the animal is either aggressive and wants to be left alone or exceptionally friendly and seeks comfort. Then follows a period of wandering and snapping at other dogs, or people -- even his owner. Next comes paralysis, coma, and death -- usually within 10 days of onset.

"Dumb" rabies, early blindness and paralysis of the jaw is exhibited, and progressive paralysis sets in quite rapidly. Death soon follows.

A veterinarian should be consulted immediately when any of the above signs are first noted.

most 800 persons were on hand for the grand opening of the new downtown location of Ernest Connell's Office Supplies last week.

Ernest Connell said the grand opening was a success during the three-day period.

He was overwhelmed by the response and reception he received," he said. He expressed appreciation for the turnout.

The winners included Suzy Schrodner, two-drawer typewriter; Don Hubert Henry, high intensity lamp; Jeanne Lavo, tape recorder; Cheryl Reast, adult dress; and Mrs. Roger Sell, tape recorder.

Woman Dies From Gunshot, Quest Verdict Pending

Mary Lou Thompson Stacey, 34, died about 9:15 p.m. Monday from a gunshot wound in the chest, according to Justice of the Peace James N. Bowen.

The woman, a Negro, apparently died instantly from a bullet that entered below the right breast at a right angle.

Age Bowen said x-rays of the body Tuesday revealed the bullet severed a large artery leading to the heart. She did not enter the heart, he said she apparently died of internal bleeding. No notable wound was found at the scene.

Events leading to the shooting, Bowen said, began when the woman's six-year-old daughter (another marriage) took the family dog and wandered from home in the Negro section of Main St.

Stacey, the step-father, told officers she did not want to spank the child for wandering off and decided to lock her in a closet for punishment.

The child told officers she was inside the closet when she was shot. She said she was out from the closet and

Game Slated To Precede Sale Opening

Friday is scheduled to be an important day in the lives of more than 300 Littlefield boys and may determine the future of this city's Baseball Association program.

The Association's auction set Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Colt League Park is being staged to raise funds vital to the continuation of the baseball program, according to Kenneth Jackson, baseball commissioner.

Jackson said an added attraction for the evening will be a make-up game at 6:30 p.m. in the Little League Park between Littlefield Butane and Optimists in Major League play.

"The game will end at 7:30 p.m., and we will go from the Little League Park to the Colt League Park for the auction sale," Jackson explained.

Donated items to be auctioned are coming in slowly, Jackson stated, as well as fund donations to finance the program.

Continuation of the program, which includes more than 300 boys in American Legion ball, Colt, Pony and Little Leagues, is threatened through "lack of sufficient funds," Jackson said.

"We need to keep this program alive and going. The only way we can do it is with the help of parents and other residents of Littlefield. Our funds are getting too low."

Funds usually drawn from the United Fund were not available for use in baseball activities this year. Jackson told the Association at a meeting in April approximately $4,000 is needed for the upkeep of field, insurance, charters and all-star expenses.

Friday night's auction is a project planned to bring in a notable portion of the needed funds. Jackson urges all persons with items to donate to contact Earl Pierce at 385-4487 or 385-3243 or B.T. Kiser at 385-3947.

Jackson also stressed, "All items at the auction must be sold to approach the amount of funds needed."

Auctioneers for the event will be J.W. Binner of Littlefield and Harvey Grigsby of Sudan.

GEE-WHIZ DANDELIONS! -- Three-year-old Ronnie Kennedy says a man's work is from sun to sun when it comes to keeping dandelions and crab grass out of a fellow's lawn. Ronnie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Kennedy of 516 17th St.

EARTH-SPRINGLAKE Voting Scheduled Saturday On Hospital District Issue

An important date for persons residing in the proposed Earth-Springlake Hospital District is May 27, when all resident, qualified, property tax-paying voters of the District will cast ballots for or against the proposal to form the District and to issue bonds.

A re-check with Commissioners Court revealed the Hospital District issue, if approved by voters, will not go before the Legislature again as reported earlier by the News-Leader. Setting of May 27 as election date was based on applying for Hill-Burton matching funds.

Should qualified voters approve the issue, creation of the Hospital District would become final.

The election was made possible by many interested citizens who guided the enabling act through the Legislature and secured the governor's signature, finally securing the signatures of more than 100 qualified voters to a petition which was presented to Lamb County Commissioner's Court May 8.

Upon obtaining certification that the petition bore the required number of signatures of qualified voters and conformed with the law in all respects and in every way with the enabling act of the Legislature, Commissioner's Court ordered the election be held, designating the High School Building at Earth-Springlake Schools as the polling place.

Boundaries of the proposed election be held, designating the (See HOSPITAL, Page 5)

Town May Get PONY Meet; Parents' Help To Be Needed

Littlefield probably will be extended an invitation to host the District PONY League tournament later this summer, but the outcome will depend on the town's willingness to prepare for it.

"We have a chance to get the district tournament here," says Arthur Summers, PONY League president.

"But we are going to have to decide how badly we want it," he said. "It will take some work and cooperation from the parents."

Summers explained that the tournament could be a real money maker for the Littlefield Baseball Association.

"We certainly need the money," he said, "and this way we could get quite a bit without asking for donations."

A meeting has been called for all parents to discuss prospects of getting the tournament and to determine what would be necessary in the way of getting the field prepared, concessions and other details.

The meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. tonight (Thursday) in the XIT room of Security State Bank.

A PONY League game is scheduled tonight---Roden Drug vs. Ware-Richey---but it will not start until after the meeting at the bank is completed.

'COMEBACK' FARMER Area Farmers Continue To Bring Home 'First's'

Although Lamb County farmers have brought home many conservation awards, another "first" has been added to the list.

Johnny Feagley, who farms in the Rock Ford community, 11 miles north of Littlefield, was named Region 1 "Comeback Farmer" of the year at the 22nd annual Fort Worth Press awards banquet Friday night at Pampa.

Yearly awards are given by the Fort Worth Press through Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Feagley's award marks the first time a Lamb County farmer has won "Comeback" honors.

Feagley's trophy, a silver bowl, was earned by his restoration of 177 acres of land purchased in rundown condition in 1961. The acreage had been placed in the Soil Bank, or Conservation Reserve, on a five-year contract with one year to go at the time of its purchase. Feagley began working the land in 1962, using conservation practices, and yearly has shown increased yields and more improved pastureland.

In fact, in future planning, Feagley says he may plant more grass. "Livestock produces as much profit as farming, and the grass helps avoid erosion," he commented. He said he might parallel terrace part of the acreage.

Two Lebanese Recipes Submitted This Week

Recipes this week in our feature have a different flair. The recipes were submitted by Mrs. Hussien Safady, who is originally from Lebanon. They are Lebanese Cookies and Kafta. Mrs. Safady has lived in the United States for 12 years. She came here for her marriage to a Lebanese man. Before moving to the United States she taught school, and in the Arabic language she taught all 12 grades. She asked about the difference between Lebanon and the United States, and she commented there was little difference because Lebanon is a modern country. She attended college for 2 years in Lebanon and when she came to the United States she attended Hardin-Baylor for a while. She has been back to her home land only once, but they come to visit them. As a hobby she enjoys cooking and baking Lebanese dishes. It is hard to find many of the ingredients like the true dishes and they order many of their ingredients from Houston. She is the manager of Crescent House Restaurant and as a hobby she enjoys cooking. Mrs. Safady has five children. Randa is 11 years old and is in the fifth grade, Eddie is 10 and in the fourth, Randa is 8 and in the second grade, Dunia is 6 and Danny is 4.

LEBANESE COOKIES
1 1/2 to 2 cups all-purpose flour
Purify margarine by boiling two minutes on medium high stove. Let set and cool, drain top of margarine in medium sized bowl and set in refrigerator until the mixture starts to harden. Whip the cooled butter until fluffy and then add the powdered sugar (mixing by hand) and then gradually add the flour until the mixture is no longer sticky.
Shape in any design desired. Place chopped almond or pecan in center then bake in 350 degree oven for 10 minutes.

KAFTA
1 pound ground steak
1/2 bunch parsley

3-4 medium sized peeled potatoes
4-5 fresh medium sized tomatoes (red)
1 medium onion
Chop parsley and onion real fine. Mix with meat very well and add to a pinch of cinnamon and 1/2 teaspoon black pepper and salt to taste. Spread in bottom of pan. Fry the sliced potatoes half done and then place them and the thinly sliced tomatoes on the top of the meat, add water if sauce is desired. Cook 20-30 minutes in 350 degree oven.
A variation for parties can be made by shaping the meat into balls and baking for 15 minutes. Serve with french fries, potato chips and salad.

AMY'S ADLIBS

PHOOEY

By Amy Turner

PHOOEY ON science. Phooey on math. Now, after these two profound statements, I fully expect a packet of mail, the mildness of which will assert that I am un-American. Well, that's not so bad. I mean, when you've been called a communist once and, on the other hand, once heard you were president of a non-existent John Birch society, you aren't likely to get too excited about being merely "un-American."

I say "non-existent" and I assume that's true. This particular item happened a few years back and I really made every effort to locate the group. After all, if I was to be president, I thought I really should attend the meeting.

But I never could find such an organization in that town and I finally decided the whole thing stemmed from the fact that I had once read their Blue Book.

And as for being a communist, I really don't think I could manage it. From what I've heard about all that pamphlet-passing-out-and-starting-of-riots, it would be much too time-consuming for me.

Then, too, I never have been very good at taking orders, a fact to which The Publisher would probably be happy to testify.

A small tyrant, she cajoled, ridiculed, demanded, beat that knowledge into you. She was probably the finest teacher I ever came in contact with. But, alas, no more. Today, after the big scare in education, I fear the gods of science and mathematics are in firm control. So what if you can't spell or write a complete sentence? Who needs poetry or drama or essays? Today, all you need to know is how to figure out what x plus y equals.

I AM even defeated in my own family. I once overheard a geometry teacher saying he had difficulty teaching the subject to girls because it is a logical science and girls do not have logical minds. I would like to introduce him to my eldest daughter.

Both she and The Publisher have minds like mathematical computers. Give them a figure or a fact and they snatch it up like candy. Their idea of fun...really...is to throw impossible mathematical problems back and forth at each other.

On long trips, they entertain each other hilariously in this manner while I sit and make snide remarks which they completely ignore.

The Publisher's greatest joy on an auto trip is to figure out the tiniest fraction just how many miles per gallon he is getting. I mean, who cares, and just thinking about it gets me so confused I'd rather have stayed home in the first place.

They are both perfectly capable of taking a lovely poem or beautiful musical composition and reducing it to mathematical terms which can be infuriating.

One of these days I have the feeling I might start quoting the lovely words "How do I love thee...." and find myself faced with a response of "if x plus y equals this, then you simply add this and subtract that to get your equation of...."

At this point, I may expand my vocabulary beyond a simple "phooey."

Actually, I don't even think I'm un-American since I'm so incredibly square that I still get a lump in my throat when the Stars and Stripes go by.

IN SPITE of this, I still say "phooey" when it comes to science and math because both are completely incomprehensible to me and if that makes me unpatriotic, then I must plead guilty.

Although this dares me somewhat, I can still remember this time when English was considered one of the top scholastic subjects. Probably the meanest teacher I ever studied under was a high school English teacher, the very mention of whose name could strike terror to the hearts of students and faculty alike.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Be Not Anxious

By BOB WEAR

It would be foolish to pretend that all is well with us, because we, obviously, live in troubled times.

Admitting that this is so, however, does not decrease our individual need for effective and satisfactory living. This means living relatively free from the anxiety which seems so much a part of so many lives.

-Anxiety Makes Everything Worse- We must remember whatever the facts of reality may be, regardless of how undesirable they may be, there is one certain way to make them worse. They can be enlarged and increased by our anxiety.

Blair said, "Anxiety is the poison of human life; the parent of many sins and of more miseries. -- In a world where everything is doubtful, and where we may be disappointed, and be blessed in this disappointment, why this restless stir and commotion of mind? -- Can it alter the cause, or unravel the mystery of human events?"

Anxious feelings about life make us unusually sensitive, and thus have the effect of intensifying by making everything seem worse than it is.

-Anxiety Weakens Us- Potentially, we have remarkable abilities to cope with life. This potential can be realized through courageous action that is the proper expression of a well-established, living faith.

On the other hand, much of our strength can be dissipated by anxiety. In fact, there are many theories about the harmfulness of anxiety. In addition to these theories, we have enough certain knowledge about the damaging effects of anxiety to know that we must do our very best to overcome it before it overcomes us.

SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER

Advice Of 'Expert'

(Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm wanders out of his field this week, but that's his lookout.)

Dear editor: One of the fine things about reading a newspaper is that a man can find such a wide choice of things in it about human nature he can't understand.

For example, I have been puzzling for days now over an item I read in a newspaper last week. According to it, a bunch of art experts inspected a Texas oil man's collection of paintings and decided three-fourths of them were fakes.

Now up to then, the pictures had suited the owner, his friends liked them, everybody was impressed, but now that the experts say they are fakes, all the pleasure has disappeared. I don't understand this. I knew a 4-year-old once who wouldn't eat an apple on Christmas morning except the one Santa Claus put in her stockings, but in a couple of years it didn't make any difference where an apple came from so long as it tasted good. Couldn't tell by biting into it whether it came from the grocery store or the North Pole.

The present age is often referred to as "these anxious times." This painful uneasiness of mind over an impending or anticipated ill is a constant drain on our vitality.

-We Cannot Afford Anxiety- There is a degree of concern, let us call it reasonable concern or justified concern, that is necessary and profitable. This feeling, however, can easily become anxiety. When it does, the concern is no longer helpful to us. In fact, we are less capable to manage our life effectively.

Therefore it is obvious that we cannot afford anxiety. It causes us to be overloaded for this day, because it reaches out to an uncertain future to the extent of bringing parts of the future into the present.

This practice is even worse when considered in the light of the general view that most of the things about which we worry never happen.

Someone has said it this way, "If you must worry, always do your worrying in advance; otherwise you will miss most of the chances to worry."

-Faith Discourages Anxiety- Anxiety and strong faith do not exist in the same life. A properly established faith gives insight and power which enables us to face life with understanding and fortitude. We are equipped to accept whatever of good or ill the unfolding of life may bring to us. The life we live is not going to be easy, but our faith means that "our strength will be as our day."

Faith will crowd out anxiety if we will give it a fair chance. The following Divine exhortation merits our most careful consideration. "In nothing be anxious, but in everything, by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God."

I heard of a western rancher once who found out Kansas City steaks were somehow considered better than any others and hence brought a little better price, so he shipped his cattle to a town in Kansas, held them there a week, then took them on into Kansas City and sold them and got a big laugh out of all the people there who were eating fake steaks.

Understand, I'm not qualified to discuss art, I'm not even qualified to discuss farming if you get right down to it, but I can't figure out a business where you have to call in an expert to tell whether or not you should like a given painting.

Of course if you're going into the financial aspects of it, that's a different matter. An original by a celebrated artist naturally is worth more than a copy, the same as it is with a dollar bill, but that's for exchange purposes, not for looking at.

It's a good racket, though, and I wish I could get in on it. Can you tell me how I can convince the public the "J.A." brand of sorghum, if it was originally grown by me, is worth a hundred times the ordinary kind?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

OWNER'S REPORT

MAD MONEY

By Bill Turner

"WELL, BLESS my soul!" How many, many times have I heard this expression, particularly from older people when something or other rather startled or amused them.

Now, if I could PROVE that they really had something to bless, I might be $200,000 richer.

However, my proof of the humansoul would have to be more convincing than that submitted by a Los Angeles minister and 38 other seekers of the money.

SEVENTEEN YEARS ago, a bachelor named James Kidd disappeared while on a prospecting trip in Arizona. He has never been found but he left behind a will that's gained worldwide publicity.

His $200,000 estate is to go to anyone who can give "some scientific proof of a soul of the human body which leaves at death." Next month an Arizona judge will determine the winning claimant, if any.

Judge Robert Myers of Phoenix said it would not be necessary to convince him there is an eternal soul but his job is to administer the estate for Mr. Kidd, who is the one to be convinced. This may all sound so ridiculous that it's impossible but there are at least 39 people who plan to go after all that lovely money.

Some are just greedy, some are kooky and some may have the noblest of motives. Now, if I were to join the race, I would have the most noble motive of all. I would use the prize money to finance a search for Kidd. I would like to ask him how come he's such a trouble maker.

IF YOU don't believe there is an eternal soul, how would any person convince you otherwise? Just think about that.

The Rev. Samuel Marcus of Los Angeles is the minister chasing the $200,000 Grail and I certainly don't know just how he plans to argue his case.

At any rate, I wouldn't consider him exactly a typical minister. Newspapers described him as a "wedding chapel minister" who presides at one of a chain of Los Angeles marriage outlets.

He was asked how many weddings he has performed since getting the call from his soul and he wouldn't tell.

"It's the competition; we don't want them to know, but I can tell you it's in the thousands," he explained.

I don't think I want Rev. Marcus to get that $200,000.

BUT I can't stop him because I, too, know there is a soul.

After all, brevity is the soul of wit, and lovely person is the soul of kindness. When I'm in a dark room, I can't see a soul.

And all quotations and literature aside, I just simply KNOW there is a soul...but I couldn't prove it to save my you-know-what.

So I am afraid Judge Myers has an impossible task. I suppose the only scientific way to prove there is a soul would be to separate it from the body and put it on where you could see it, touch it, hear it, etc.

And nobody can do that...not even for $200,000.

Well, nobody that is, except God who is all souls. And He doesn't need $200,000. So, I'm sorry, Mr. Kidd, but I guess you'll just have to keep the faith.

Bless your soul.

Cannot Legislate

BY PAUL HARVEY

Several members of Congress are sufficiently incensed over recent incidents of "flag burning" that they are today considering making desecration of our flag a federal offense.

Never has our flag meant so little to so many. Two factors contribute to this increasing disrespect. One contributory cause is the fact which we have discussed previously: The press throws gasoline on these flames.

By focusing public attention on instances of shocking misbehavior, every youth determined to "shock" is proved with a sure-fire attention-getter.

Millions of Americans daily stand to salute, proudly display or otherwise honor the symbol of "the Republic for which it stands." But these are not news.

The one unwashed beatnik who makes a torch of our flag gets his picture in a thousand papers.

There is another sickness of our citizenry of which this flagrant disrespect is a symptom. It has to do with the fact that the republic, itself, is less "respectable" than it once was.

You and I grew up in an era when patriotism was a two-way street. We defended our country and our country protected us.

It is not easy for us to comprehend the contradictions which confound today's school-agers.

Their flag does not always protect them in foreign countries. Indeed, today's American youth has been drafted to fight warless wars under a mongrel flag; wars which we were afraid to win and ashamed to lose.

Further, our nation, "with liberty and justice for all," now penalizes the hard workers, subsidizes the lazy.

Our nation orders our sons to travel 6,000 miles from home to prevent the advance of Communism....

Yet they are told to tolerate that same menace just 90 miles from Florida.

You and I have been around longer and we can rationalize that our republic, for all its imperfections, is still the best there is... But our still idealistic sons and daughters see a fugitive from justice re-elected to the Congress and Old Glory hangs limp and soiled over our nation's Capitol.

I am not defending them. I am trying to help explain some of their disdain for the values you and I treasure.

Today a House Judiciary subcommittee is considering an assortment of new laws against misuse of our flag. Some would prescribe penalties of $10,000 and five years in prison.

Resentment in Congress is being called a "patriots' backlash."

"We'll teach those young hooligans they'd better respect our flag, or else!" There should, indeed, be a penalty for flagrant expressions of disrespect.

But we should have learned by now that love cannot be legislated.

And in Congress, before all this steam blows off in the whistle, perhaps our energies should be directed toward correcting the hypocrisies and inconsistencies which discredit ourism.

While we're singing "God Bless America," let's give Him some good reasons why He should.

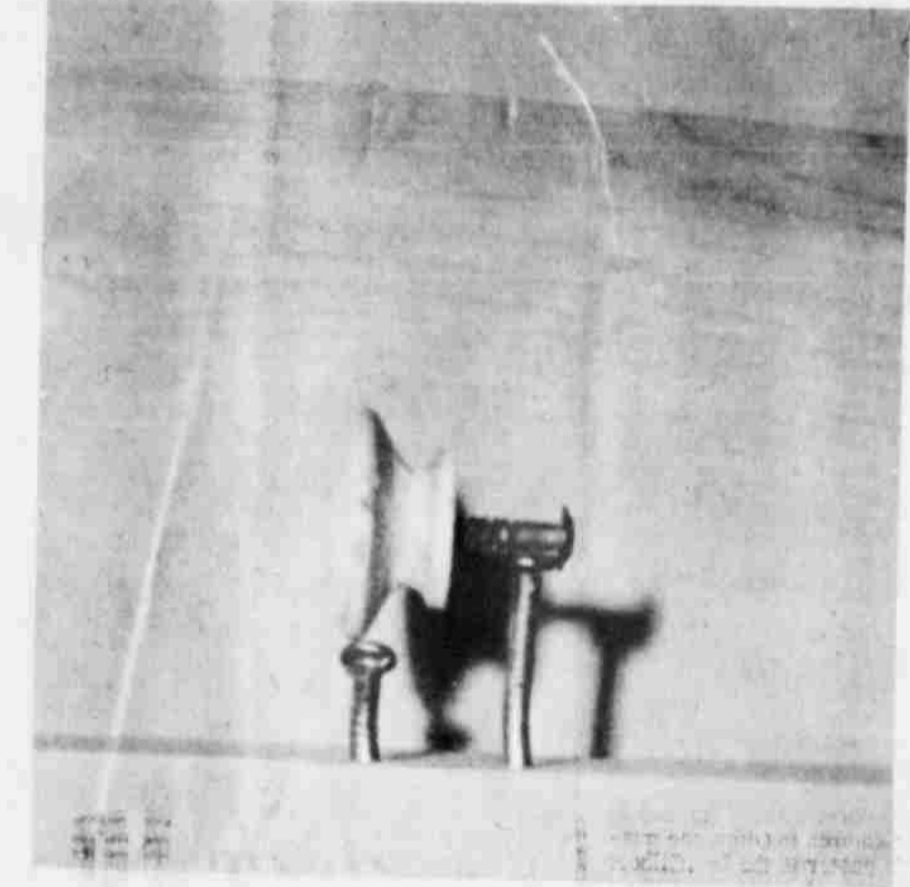

The Countrywoman

By LIBBY MUDGETT

She notes that all good farmers now have sore index fingers. So it always is at this time of the year with men who plant cotton. They are compelled to scratch in the soil morning, noon and evening to see what that seed is doing...just staying there, drying out, rotting, or sprouting magnificently.

She unexpectedly comes upon a mass of buttercups hidden between two lonely sand dunes. She doubts that any eyes other than hers have ever seen them. They are a joy to behold, but wasted and unseen -- like someone's unused talent or carefully concealed love of beauty.

She sees a farmer stand in a field of cotton plants that not many days ago gloriously popped through the ground. The wind blows the sand down his carefully tanded rows until the fragile plants are first seared and then killed. There are not many sadder sights to country people. Some, but not many.

HOW COME I ALWAYS HAVE TO CARRY THE HEAVY END?

BITS AND PIECES

Human Nature-Paradox

HOMALU HOOD

Ever had to write a story about yourself? Suddenly you've got 14 thumbs and four hind-feet. It's a real effort even to remember your name.

Twice every week since May 8, preceding each publication of Lamb County Leader and County Wide News, Publisher Bill Turner has asked me, "Have you written a story about yourself to let the people know we have a new editor?"

Well, this week I did -- Sunday afternoon in the protective quietude of my own domicile.

I chewed up three pencils and managed to almost-hopelessly tangle the keys of my typewriter twice. But the story is written and can be found elsewhere in today's edition.

Why is it people react this way when asked for information about themselves? I have noticed this reaction while interviewing people. A deadly approach is to say, "Now, tell me about yourself."

You meet with an abruptly blank stare, a pea-green color change and a laboriously sawed-out answer, "Well, er, ah -- there isn't anything to tell."

This is a genuine oddity, because it is an accepted fact that the most widely used word in the English language is the pronoun "I." We, all of us, talk about ourselves more than any other subject. Our conversations and letters are monuments to "I," filled with "I think, I said, I like, I don't like, etc."

Yet, when information is needed about us for publication, we grow tongue-tied as a bear. The two characteristics form a direct contradiction in basic human nature.

If you don't believe me, remember my anguish in writing about myself then browse through the above paragraphs and count the number of times I have used the words "I," "Me" and "My."

THE TOWN of Littlefield, my mother and I have found, is one of the friendliest, most receptive and most attractive cities in this state. My mother, Mrs. M.M. Hood of Paducah who will be living with me here, comes home from shopping tours daily exclaiming about the friendliness and helpful concern of the city's merchants and business personnel.

And this news editor sincerely hopes that basic friendliness will include telephone calls and contacts from the News-Leader's readers providing news and social tips -- the type of newspapers may miss if not tipped off by city and area residents.

Also -- and this is one sure way to an editor's heart and to help make your newspaper a better one -- we are counting on that quality of "helpful concern" to net more and more "letters to the editor." We sincerely want to know what is in the minds of our readers -- their opinions, their likes and dislikes, their pet peeves and pet projects.

SPEAKING OF PETS, our household is ruled by a diminutive canine -- part terrier and part Chihuahua -- named "Doc." ("The Doc" is short for his real name -- Dr. Coy S. Stone.)

Doc is totally unpredictable. Whenever another small dog comes around, he wags his tail and goes through all the motions of dog friendliness. The two get along marvelously and soon are scampering and playing.

But when a big dog -- like, say, a German Shepherd -- enters the vicinity, instantly Doc becomes belligerent. His hackles rise and vicious growls rumble from his small black-and-white chest. If not restrained, he will attack and make straight for the big dog's throat. He isn't kidding, either.

Now, this may not make sense in canines, but it is most applicable to human nature.

Whenever we are introduced to people on our own level -- jobwise, social, intellectual, etc. -- we respond warmly. In no time at all, we are chatting easily and without restraint.

But let a Big Dog come around -- someone who out-ranks us on the job or who occupies a highly prominent position in life -- and far too often we react with a defensive antagonism. We see only the stature, not the human being inside.

In the case of both canines and humans, the big dog is no different from the small dog -- inside. The towering German Shepherd also wants to be friends with our little Doc, but the overwhelming size of the big dog throws Doc on the defensive and blinds him to the friendship offered him.

It's like you can't see the forest for the trees.

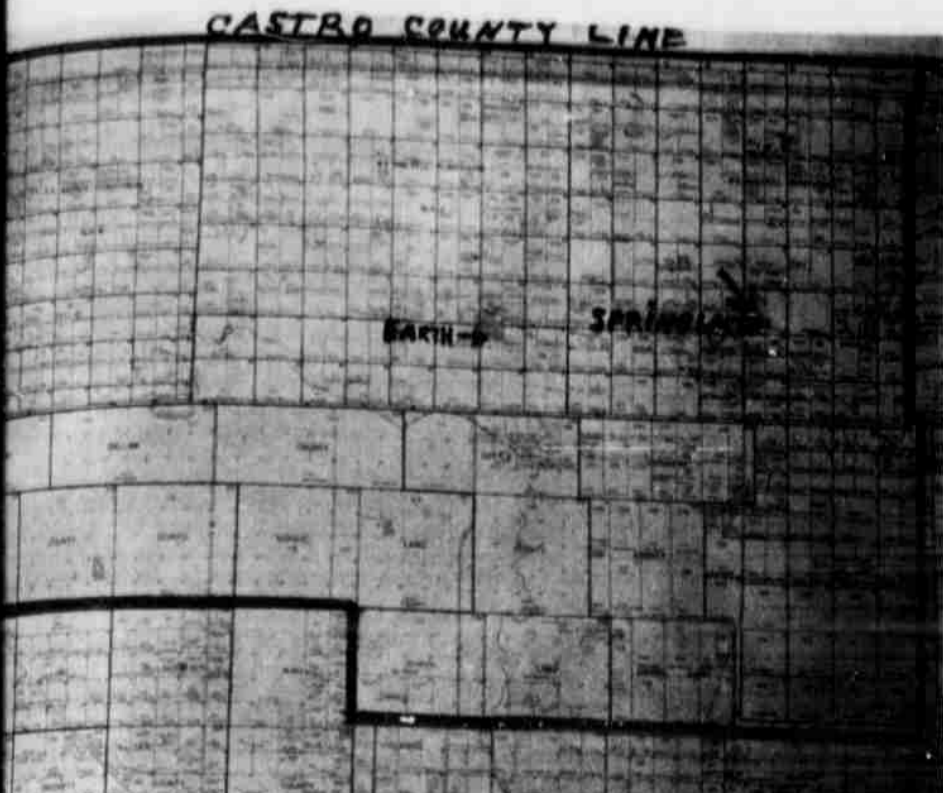

And, you know, the same basic reaction applies to problems.

When minor troubles come along, we face them calmly and get busy putting the situation in order.

But when faced with a big problem, too frequently we let the size of it fill us with fear. We fight it. We lie awake nights overwhelmed by its magnitude and cursing our bad luck. Sometimes we let our own fright cause us to blunder into an ever worse situation.

Yet, if we look inside a big problem we find the contents are no different from those of a small one -- there is just more of them to be dealt with, one by one, exactly like a series of lesser problems.

If we could retain the wisdom to face big problems with the same assurance and calm sense of solution we exercise in smaller ones, we might find the big dog is wagging his tail behind him.

County Agent's Corner

BY BUDDY LOGSDON

Home gardens in Lamb County are off to a good start. Insect control may be required some time during the growing season to keep them healthy and productive.

Borden's is the milk for children!

problem could come from insecticide residues on the treated vegetables.

The Food and Drug Administration, explains the county agent, has set certain restrictions on the use of insecticides applied to edible crops. Observance of these restrictions will protect the consumer from harmful residues.

Information on controlling insects in the home garden and a list of insecticides which are widely used and are generally available are included in L-642, "Control of Insects in the Home Garden."

The county agent suggests that gardens be checked frequently for insect infestations, and if they are found, that control measures be applied before the situation gets out of hand.

A copy of L-642 is available from the county Extension Service office.

explained reasons, seem to have a liking for small bits of wire, nails, scraps of hardware, screws and bolts. Many owners have been made aware of this fact through the loss of a valuable animal, says County Agent Buddy Logsdon.

Damage is usually caused by irritation or puncture from swallowing the object. In most instances the loss could have been prevented and Logsdon offers these suggestions for eliminating future losses.

Remove wire fences which are weak from rust before small bits of the wire drop into the grass and became a hazard to grazing livestock. After a construction job in the barnyard area has been completed, it is worth the time and effort to sweep the area thoroughly or drag it with a sweep of permanent magnets.

It is difficult to detect and remove trash metal from ground. But permanent or electromagnets in feed chutes from bins to feeders will remove a major portion of trash metal. It is important that some type of magnet be installed in home grinding mills and mixers.

It's the case again, says the county agent, when an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. In fact, he says, it is possible to remove almost 100 percent of trash metal from feed, pastures and barnyards just by following good "house-keeping" practices as a part of the livestock management program.

FEED GRAIN--Feed grain prices will be especially sensitive to crop prospect changes during the next several months due to smaller stocks on hand, believes John G. McHane, Texas A&M University Extension economist. He expects prices to continue higher than a year earlier this spring, but with a favorable growing season this year, prices probably will not advance as much this summer as in 1966, he says.

WASPS CAN BE DANGEROUS--Wasps, as a rule, are beneficial insects, but they can become "tough customers" when disturbed. This often happens, says Phil Hamman, Extension entomologist at Texas A&M University, when they build their nests too close to traffic lanes in and around the home or in trees and shrubbery which may be near a door or driveway. The insects and their nests can be eliminated by the use of insecticides. Ask the local county agent for control information.

DRASTIC CHANGE
When we are not satisfied or when we feel unappreciated, we may think that if we could make some drastic change everything would be different. However, rather than making a change for change's sake, we should, through prayer, open ourselves to the direction of the Lord of our being.

pressure underground pipeline and a sprinkler irrigation system.

In the spring of 1964, Feagley planted 59 acres of switch grass for irrigated pasture, and in the fall he constructed 11,728 feet of level closed end terraces to control erosion and conserve water. During the 1964 crop year Feagley carried out the conservation crop pling system which included 70 acres of cover crops, stubble mulching and crop residue, used irrigation water management, contour farming pasture, exercised proper use and management by controlled grazing, fertilizing and irrigating water management on the pasture land.

Feagley says his crops so far have shown an increased yield each year despite the adverse weather conditions. He also stated he expects the crops to do better the next few years as the land is "just now getting in shape" to farm.

Feagley has at this time 17 mother cows and 14 calves. He also keeps seven head of horses and seven hogs. He plans to increase his herd to 30 mother cows and keep six brood sows. He would like to finish out about 50 head of hogs for the market each year.

His trench silo stores enough of his own grain and hay for supplemental feed in conjunction with the grass and small grain pasture to support this number of livestock. He has adequate facilities for feeding, sheltering and penning his livestock.

Feagley grew up on a farm in Lamb County and finished high school at Amherst where he was active in the school agriculture programs and 4-H Club.

Feagley and his wife are active in the Rocky Ford Church where he has held several offices. They have a five year old son, Monroe Wayne.

HOMALU HOOD

Homalu Hood Joins News-Leader Staff

New editor of the News-Leader, Homalu Hood, who replaces Tex Rogers, is a native West Texan with a special yen for West Texas cities and towns -- preferably those with a population less than 20,000.

After several years of living in metropolitan cities, ranging from Austin and San Antonio to Albuquerque, N.M., she says she learned the best people in the world live in the smaller cities of West Texas.

And -- Homalu says she also learned -- happiness and good fortune are people.

Born at Paducah -- on a top-secret date of birth -- she is the daughter of Mrs. Marcus Homer Hood and the late Mr. Hood.

A graduate of Paducah High School, her formal education was acquired at Texas Women's University, Denton; University of Texas and Hardin-Simmons University. During one summer she studied with Loula Grace Erdman at a creative writing seminar at West Texas State University.

Prior to coming to Littlefield May 8, Homalu was regional editor of the Plainview Daily Herald three years. During a five-year period preceding her duties at Plainview, her newspaper career was interrupted to learn the banking business at Hobbs, N.M.

Homalu was on the staff of Wichita Falls Times and Record News three years before entering banking.

At Littlefield, Homalu resides at 701 E. 13th. Her mother currently is in the process of moving here from Paducah to reside with her. Head of the household is a small black-and-white terrier named "Doc."

END OF A 'FIRST' AND A 'LAST' -- Superintendent Paul Manning completes his first year with Littlefield Schools as he signs diplomas and ends a 12-year association of 113 seniors with the schools.

WRAPPING UP ANOTHER GROUP -- High School Principal Beryl Harris and her secretary, Mrs. Alvin Webb, put finishing touches to paper work for another graduating class.

Area Junior Livestock Show Elects Officers

Members of the Littlefield Area Junior Livestock Show committee met recently and elected new officers for next year.

Leslie Lichte was elected president with Nick Nicholson of Amherst as vice-president, Doug Walden as secretary and Donald Carr as treasurer.

Directors are chosen by FFA members and 4-H boys and girls from Littlefield, Sudan and Amherst.

SAVE TIPPING

Save yourself the annoyance of picking up overturned house plants by keeping them in sturdy clay pots. Most growers and quality florists supply plants in clay pots -- not just because their porosity helps produce better root action and growth -- but also because they're more tip-resistant than synthetic containers.

4-H selected Leslie Lichte and Doug Walden as directors. The two outgoing directors are Clinton Byars and Waymon Lewis.

"Lone Star Limited"
